Richmond, Va. — "After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizzy spells, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2812 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Painless dentistry is the art of drawing it mild.

Smile, smile, beautiful clear white clothes. Red Cross Ball Blue, American made, therefore best. All grocers. Adv.

All Business.

"Then I can be one of your pupils?"

"Assuredly, sir, for $10 a lesson," said the great artist. "And a favorite pupil for $2 extra."—Puck.

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it
Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher
In Use for Over 30 Years
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

COUNSEL FOR WEDDED FOLK

Little Advice That Possibly May Help to Make Things in Some Degree More Pleasant.

If I were giving counsel to the husband and wife who would make each other happy and hold each other's love I would suggest that neither call the attention of the other to the disagreeable qualities of the family of either.

"My husband loves my people as if they were his own," a wife told me. "It makes me feel so happy!"

I doubt if he did love her people very dearly, but he overlooked those characteristics which a more selfish man would have resented. If it was what a schoolboy would call a "bluff" it was a gloriously unselfish one.

Most of us can stand the tempers and idiosyncrasies of our own when we alone have to hear them. It is when we see them through the eyes of a third person that they become unendurable. That is perhaps one reason why so few roofs are large enough to cover two families.

If each "in-law" exercised toward the members of the household into which he or she married the same pardoning love that is exercised toward one's own the aspersions cast upon the mother-in-law would die a natural death because they would have nothing on which to feed.—Virginia Terhune Van de Water, in Mother's Magazine.

The Fine Flavor—

the delicate taste of malted barley blended with the sweets of whole wheat—is sufficient reason in itself for the wonderful popularity of

Grape-Nuts
FOOD

But it is more than delicious—it is the finest kind of concentrated nourishment to thoroughly sustain body and brain tissue—a food that benefits users remarkably.

A short trial proves

"There's a Reason"

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

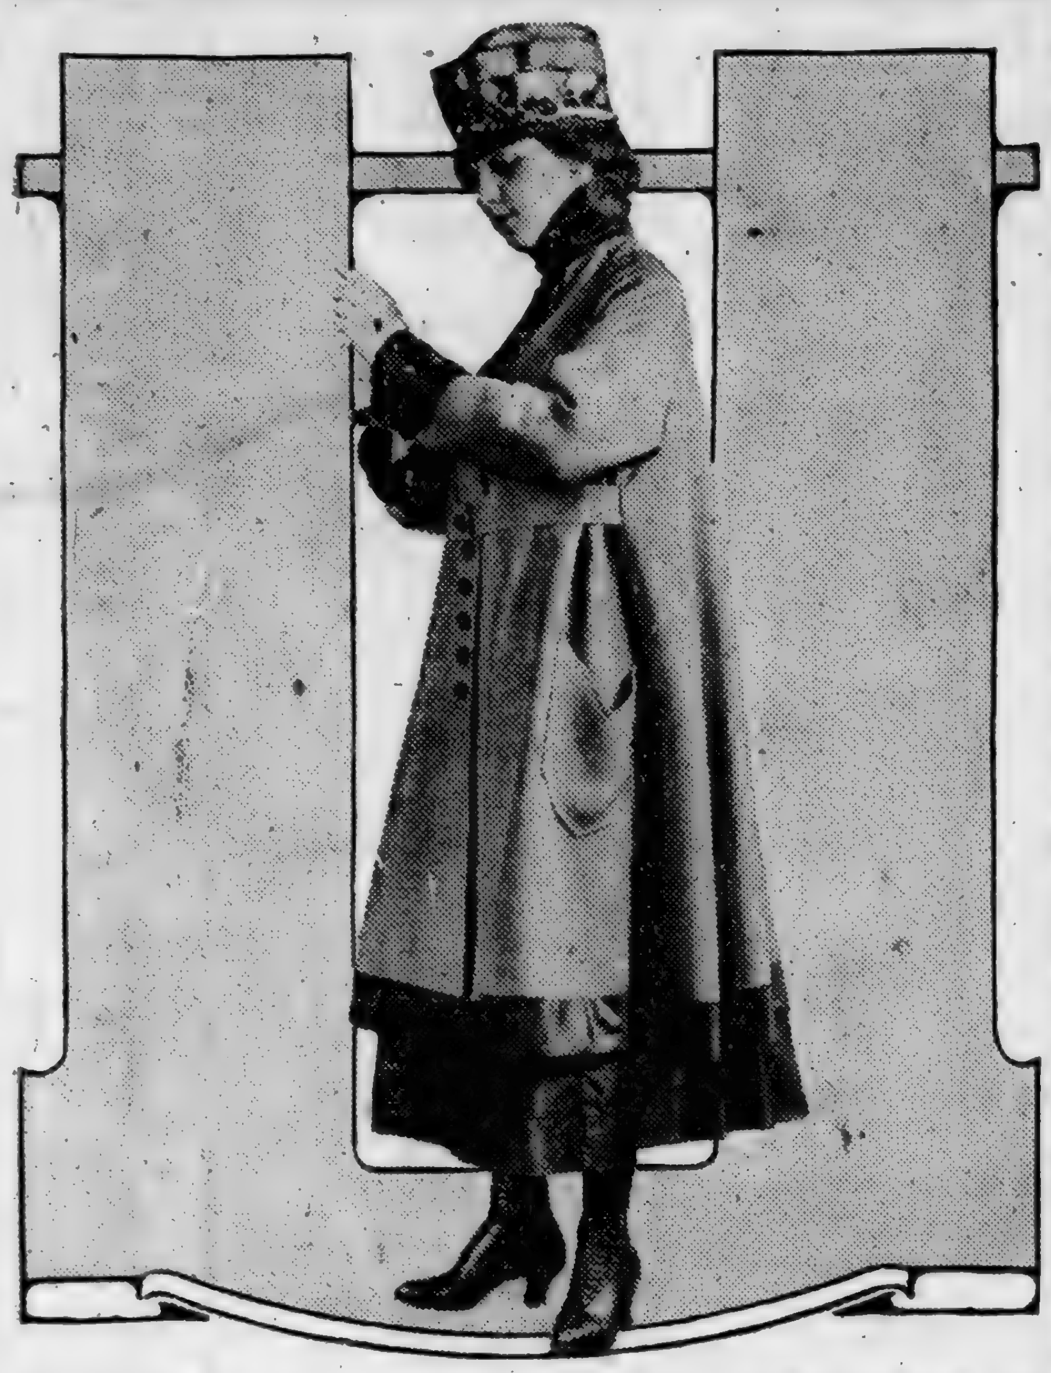
JULY

L 908

0222

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



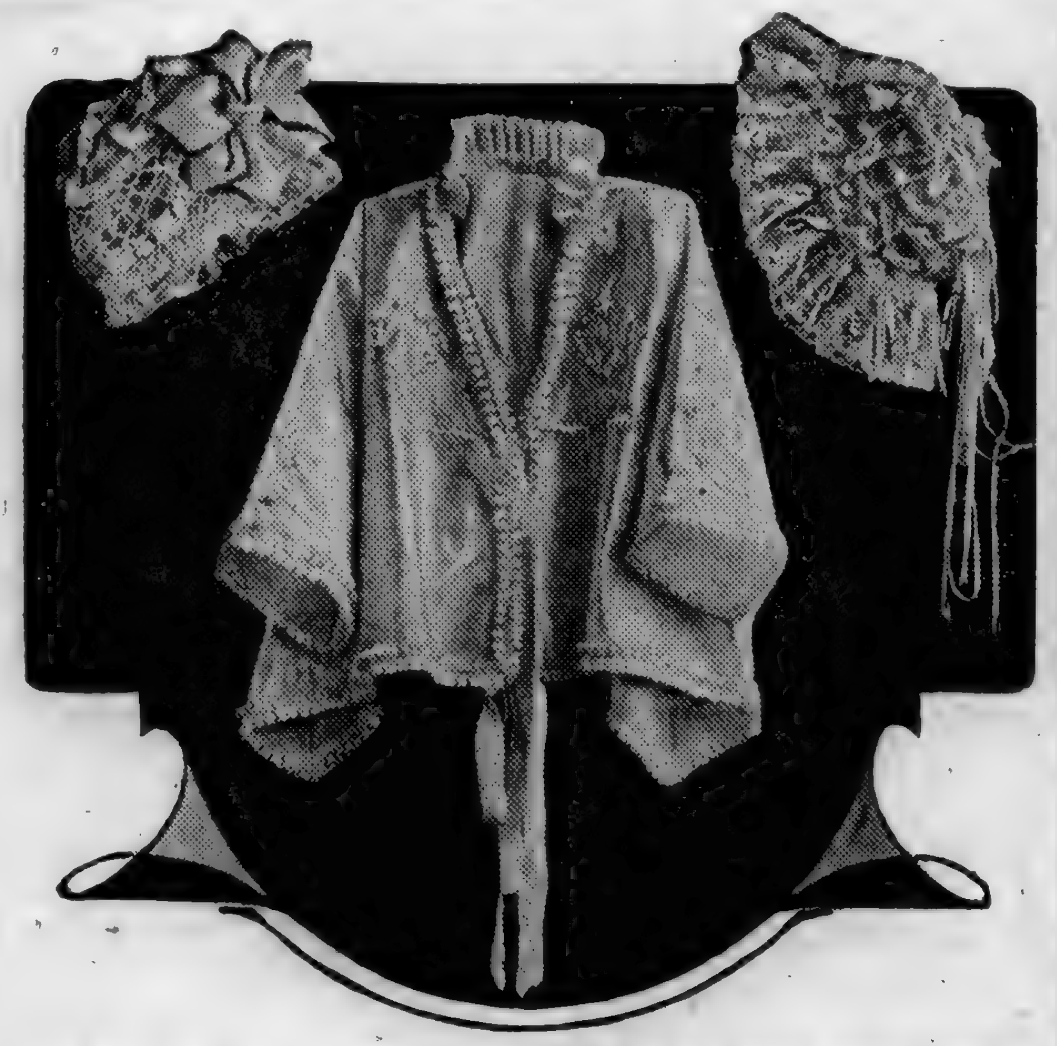
Standardizing the Street Suit

A movement has recently been launched by women of affairs, whose opinions are worth while, to standardize the street suit. For smart women, gifted with a correct sense of clothes, such a movement was not needed. They may be relied upon to be quite uniformly garbed in rather plain, beautifully shaped and faultlessly made tailored suits when their affairs make it necessary for them to walk in the streets. For them the street suit has been standardized for years.

But in order that our streets may make a better showing of tastefully dressed women it will be necessary to establish a standard for the woman who may be in doubt as to what she should wear, and to call her attention to it.

The first consideration is that women are getting together more than ever before in clubs and other organizations, in the interest of progress. If they establish the custom of wearing the tailored suit for almost any occasion no woman will stay at home because she lacks the proper dress. Such an obstacle will cease to exist. A second consideration, of great importance, lies in the fact that the street is not the place for conspicuous clothes. An ugly inference is certain to be drawn when any woman dresses so as to attract everyone's attention on the street. She is believed to be either coarse or a fool.

Standardizing the street suit will not reduce us to a tiresome monotony in suits, because there is endless room for variety in making. The smart suit shown in the picture is an illustration. It is a smooth-faced cloth in a dark mixture, with brown predominating. When the plain and beautifully tailored coat is off, one discovers a trim skirt with an entirely new management of the belt and actual pockets, patterned after the saddlebag pockets which have been one of the pretty fancies of fashion. But these are stitched flat to the skirt instead of hanging free. The handsome costume blouse is of brown chiffon over lace with a vest of delicate brocade. For another occasion a plain tailored blouse might be worn. This is the sort of suit that it is proper to wear for church and for the street, the two places in which one woman should never seem to try to outshine any other.



In the Gay Career of Ribbon

The most enticing fancies of fashion are surely to be found in the pretty things made of ribbon that spring up like perennial flowers at the ribbon counter. This particular locality is like a flower garden in the department store, and gay and lovely ribbons lure women as the honeysuckle lures the bee. Ribbons are the loveliest product of the looms, and perhaps they inspire the designers to make for them a career of endless little gayeties in apparel.

They make the most appreciated gifts that cost less than anything else of equal beauty.

Two breakfast caps and a negligee calculated to gladden the hearts of everyone at the morning meal are shown in the picture. They are all of pink satin ribbon, which takes dainty lace as a companion in each of the caps. At the left a cap of plain satin ribbon has a narrow frill of point d'esprit about the face and a skeleton cap crocheted pink silk floss over it. The two are tacked tightly together.

The little breakfast jacket is made of wide pink satin ribbon with the edges overcast together with pink silk floss. A seam extends along the shoulders and down the top of the sleeves. A ruche made of narrow satin ribbon laid in small box plaits finishes all the edges, and a frill of wider ribbon stands up about the neck. Wreaths made of tiny blossoms in pale pink, yellow, and green are fashioned of flowers made of baby ribbon. They are placed at each side of the front and on the sleeves. The jacket fastens with long ties of narrow satin ribbon.

In the cap at the right strips of ribbon are joined in shirred seams to make a circlet for the crown. This circlet is gathered along one edge, forming the center of the crown. A frill of lace is pulled to the other edge. Loops and ends of baby ribbon are set over the lace at the end of each shirred seam, and a rosette with many falling loops made of it is set at the center of the crown. None of these is difficult to make.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

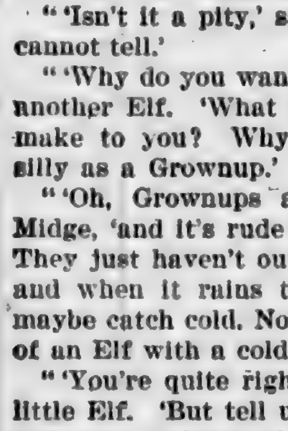
WEATHER DOG.

"The Elves have a dog," said Daddy, "which always goes with them on their trips. His name is Weather."

"I've never heard of such a queer name for a Dog," said Nancy.

"Why just think, Daddy," said Nick, "if you called him good Weather, or bad Weather, how funny it would sound. Not at all as if you called him good Jack or bad Jack."

"Well," continued Daddy, "they do call him bad Weather and good Weather, but they really are just as fond of him whether they call him bad or good for his name really means the Weather, and the Elves never care if it rains or snows or is piping hot.



"Not for Myself I'm So Fussy."

"You see, once upon a time in Elfland, a little Elf named Midge wanted to know if it was going to rain or if the sun was going to shine.

"'Isn't it a pity,' said Midge, 'that I cannot tell.'

"'Why do you want to know?' asked another Elf. 'What difference does it make to you? Why you are just as silly as a Grownup.'

"'Oh, Grownups aren't silly,' said Midge, 'and it's rude of you to say so. They just haven't our ways, that's all, and when it rains they get wet and maybe catch cold. Now, whoever heard of an Elf with a cold?'

"'You're quite right,' said the other little Elf. 'But tell us, Midge, why do you want to know if it's going to rain or not.'

"'Because I'm giving a party for the Butterflies this afternoon and I especially promised them I would have Mr. Sun. They really don't care about coming unless Mr. Sun is to be with us too. So you see it's not for myself I'm so fussy.'

"'Bow-bow, bow-wow,' sounded from nearby.

"'There is our beautiful Doggie, Max. He may tell us some way to know if it's going to rain or not.'

"Max came running along, wagging his tail, just as he heard the last few words the little Elf was saying. He was a great, big Dog with huge brown eyes, and such a wise, wise face.

"He talked in Dog talk, wagging his tail, and sticking his ears up in the air just as you Children use your hands, or shrug your shoulders, or scowl, or laugh. And the Elves knew what he meant. This is what he said:

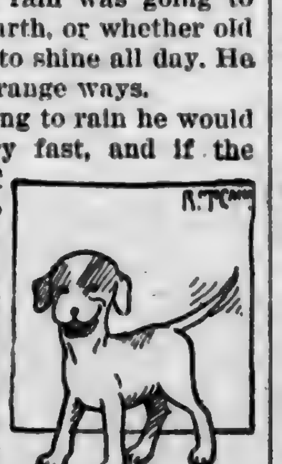
"'I'm so very grateful for my home with the Elves. You picked me up when I was a little wretched Puppy, almost too sick to care if I got well or not. And then you made my coat so fine and silky. You gave me such good things to eat, and the Elves always petted me such a great deal—that—well—I'm very happy, oh very, very happy,' and Max's tail began to wag and wag as if it would almost come off.

"'So,' he continued, 'I would be very glad to tell you always what the weather is going to do. Years and years ago my great-great-great-grandfather was a weather prophet, and the animals used to ask him whether it was going to rain or shine, and he could always tell them.

"'Now to show you how very grateful I am I would like to do the same. I'll take three days studying it up as I've almost forgotten all the secrets.'

"And after that Max always told the Elves whether the rain was going to pay a visit to the earth, or whether old Mr. Sun was going to shine all day. He did this in many strange ways.

"When it was going to rain he would blink his eyes very fast, and if the Elves asked him if it was going to be a fine day he would wag his tail. If there was going to be a terrific storm he would shake all over and if there was going to be a thunder and lightning storm he would give low, low growls.



He Would Wag His Tail.

"Soon he became known as Weather and not as Max at all. So that is why the Elves always take Weather with them wherever they go, for he can always tell them just what it's going to do, from his great-great-great-grandfather, who has whispered down through all that family of Dogs just what the Sun and Rain are going to do.

"And so when the Elves are giving parties for the Butterflies they can always be sure of Mr. Sun if Weather tells them he is coming. But these Dogs are only known to Elfland, for they are the little stray Dogs the Elves have rescued who know these secrets."

Waiting His Turn.

"And when are you going to have the measles?" asked the caller of small Tommy, whose little sister had them.

"Just as soon as Nettie gets through with them," was the logical reply.

Natural Result.

Sunday School Teacher—What will become of the man who caters to his body and neglects his soul?

Bright Pupil—He'll get too fat.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 16

PAUL AT ATHENS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:16-34.

GOLDEN TEXT—In him we live, and move and have our being.—Acts 17:28.

Athens! What a name to conjure with. Athens has always epitomized the acme of intellectualism, culture, art, and esthetic accomplishment. Driven from Berea and alone, Paul fled to the coast and taking ship crossed over to the Thessalonian peninsula. Entering the city—he beholds its statuary, meets its philosophers and views its moral degradation and its myriad manifestations of heathenism. Outwardly cultured, molding the thought of the world, yet it passed from its pinnacle of power because it knew not God. Paul saw the pantheism of the cultured Stoics and the Epicureans, who because of their distant and but little concerned gods, enjoyed the pleasure of wealth and ease.

I. Paul Brought to Trial (vv. 16-21). Such sights stirred the spirit of Paul. The marvel is how indifferent we may become in the presence of the great spiritual poverty of our time. His spirit stirred within him, when he saw the city crowded with idols. As Paul followed his custom and began his preaching in the synagogue he also took advantage of the opportunity to do open-air work in the market place. Here a small group and there another. This he did daily until the teachers (v. 18) began to take knowledge of his presence in their city. Some in contempt called him a "babbler," while others concluded that he represented some new religion, though he set before them the same message of salvation in Jesus Christ which had caused such remarkable results elsewhere. That they might hear him more fully and without the interruption of the mart of trade, Paul is taken to the Areopagus, or Mars Hill, where from time immemorial the greatest criminals had been sentenced and the most solemn questions of religion settled.

II. The Unknown Made Known, (vv. 22-29). Such idle speculation (v. 21) was of no value to the Athenians. This Paul knew, yet he began his address in a most conciliatory manner (v. 22 R. V.). He would win their favorable attention before he called them to repentance. Keenly observant, Paul had seen among the many inscriptions one "to the unknown God," and this one whom in ignorance they worshiped, he would set forth. Many today are in blindness, seeking to know God when he has already been made manifest (to be seen). (John 1:18; John 5:20; John 14:9; II Cor. 4:6.) It is man's own fault if he does not know God (Rom. 1:20-22, 28; II Cor. 4:4), and no knowledge is more important (John 17:3), Paul's opening words in verse 24 were but to seize a well-known object of their street decoration and discussions and with it to lead on to the great truth he yearned to have them comprehend. This caught the philosophers as well as the idle curious. God is not a philosophic conception of the mind. He cannot be confined to temples made with hands nor does he need the services of our hands, seeing he created all things and giveth to all things life. Paul's next point was that "He hath made of one every nation of men." As yet how little men really believe that truth—witness the European conflict and the economic, racial and social differences of this land. Negro segregation and Asiatic exclusion are but illustrations of our separation from the teaching of the brotherhood of man. But this brotherhood is not alone for altruistic service but "that they should seek God." This was his great and glorious purpose in creating the nations of the earth, in setting the seasons in motion, to minister to their needs, and in appointing the bounds of their habitations; yet how far man has departed from that ideal (Rom. 1:28). It is of the highest importance that men should seek God and he is not difficult to find for those who seek him (Jer. 29:13).

III. What the Athenians Lacked (vv. 30-34). Thus far Paul's auditors must have followed him keenly, and it was the goal toward which he had been driving so relentlessly. Such sublime conceptions, keen logic and quotations from their writers won their attention. He then delivered a keen thrust at this, the "psychological moment," by calling upon them to "repent." The Athenians lacked a realizing sense of the personality of God—that man could have personal and intimate relations with God or that a man could or had risen from the dead.

Any candid seeker after truth who will examine the evidence will be convinced of the truth that Jesus of Nazareth, crucified upon a Roman cross, rose from the dead.

These Athenians also lacked the ability to accept this fact and to yield their lives in obedience to it, and so some tried to sneer away the truth, but that did not alter it.

Some were amused, and some evidenced a curious interest, saying, "We will hear this again," but certain men, Dionysius and Damaris, "believed." Such has ever been the manner of the reception of glad tidings.

It's a Picnic Getting Ready for a Picnic

If you choose

Spanish Olives Pickles Sweet Relish Ham Loaf Veal Loaf
Chicken Loaf Fruit Preserves Jellies Apple Butter
Luncheon Meats Pork and Beans

Libby's Ready to Serve Food Products

Insist on Libby's at your grocer's

Libby, McNeill & Libby
Chicago

A few good misses in the chorus are apt to help an opera to make a hit.

Beautiful, clear white clothes delights the laundress who uses Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers. Adv.

If a woman is unable to marry a man herself she wants him to marry a friend of hers and make her miserable.

ALWAYS LOOK YOUR BEST

As to Your Hair and Skin by Using Cuticura. Trial Free.

The Soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal. These fragrant, super-creamy emollients preserve the natural purity and beauty of the skin under conditions which, if neglected, tend to produce a state of irritation and disfigurement.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

USUALLY WORKS THAT WAY

Hopkins Senior Had an Experience That Falls to the Lot of the Majority of Married Men.

Young Hopkins had become a happy Benedict, and his father thought it advisable to administer to him a curtain lecture on how to make marriage a success.

"When you have any differences of opinion," he began, "if you are not able to persuade your wife that you are right—and you probably will not be able to do so—you must compromise."

"Yes, father," replied the son, respectfully.

"And in this connection I will give you a little experience of my own to illustrate my point. Well do I remember that your mother desired to spend one summer in Switzerland, while I was equally anxious to go to Brighton."

"And how did you arrange a compromise, father?"

"Well, we stayed from Friday to Monday at Brighton, and spent the rest of the summer in Switzerland."

Simple Explanation.

Oculist (pointing to his test card)—Can you read these letters?

Patient—No, doctor.

Oculist—Well, then, these?

Patient—No, doctor.

Oculist (impatiently pointing to the largest letters)—Well, these, then?

Patient—No, doctor.

Oculist—Why, hang it all, how is that possible?

Patient—Because I never learned to read.

Cuba has a quilless porcupine.

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE
NEW HOME
NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME
Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts.
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS.

Kill All Flies! They Spread Disease
Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for
Daisy Fly Killer
Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

2000 ACRES choice land on railroad 25 miles from Florida capital. Only $5 per acre. Title perfect. Write E. C. 501 S. Broadway, St. Louis, Mo.

WAS FIRST "BEAUTY DOCTOR"

Cagliostro Lives in History as One Who Tricked the Whole Aristocracy of Europe.

The first "beauty doctor" to gain wide celebrity was one Balsamo, son of a poor shopkeeper in Palermo, but best known by his assumed title of Count Alessando di Cagliostro. He was born 173 years ago and was educated in a monastery. As a young man he went to Rome, where he met and married a beautiful girl, says an exchange.

The pair then traveled over Europe under the names of Count and Countess Cagliostro, going about in a magnificent coach-and-four and securing access to the highest society of the countries they visited. They made a fortune by selling a "wine of Egypt," disposed of in drops as being more precious than nectar, the use of which was alleged to restore vigor and youth and beauty to wornout and wrinkled men and women. The Countess Seraphina adduced herself as a living evidence of the efficacy of the elixir, averring that she was past sixty and had a son who was a veteran soldier. The count claimed to be an octogenarian. For years they carried on a highly profitable trade in Egyptian drops, beauty waters, wrinkle eradicators and love philters, but at length, after long enjoying the favor of cardinals and bishops, kings, princes and nobles, Cagliostro was thrown into prison and his wife confined in a convent, where both died.

Simple Way Out.

She—Now that you've got a raise of sixty a month, Tom, we can afford a more expensive flat.

He—But we're very comfortable here. How would it do if I asked the landlord to raise our rent?—Boston Evening Transcript.

Post Toasties

"DELICIOUS!"

A New Use For This Word

The New Post Toasties are truly entitled to the word "delicious."

They're distinguished by the tiny bubbles found on each flake and they carry the full, rich flavour of choice, white Indian corn — not found in corn flakes of the past.

And unlike common corn flakes, they are not "chaffy" in the package and don't grow mushy in milk or cream.

Note carefully the tiny bubbles—then try a handful dry to test the flavour. In comparison, other corn flakes are as "chaff."

New Post Toasties

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

JULY

L 908

0223

POULTRY POINTERS

Too many beginners make the mistake of trying to raise four or five breeds or varieties of poultry. This is a serious mistake as very few experienced poultry men, let alone a beginner, can make a success of more than one breed. "One breed bred right" is better than two bred wrong.

Buying eggs is a mighty cheap way of getting new blood. In many cases we can procure eggs from birds that simply couldn't be bought at all. In many case, a single bird raised from a setting of eggs, is worth many times the cost of the entire setting.

Hens that are set during hot weather should be given a reasonably cool and comfortable place. If they are set where it is hot during the day or night they are likely to overheat the eggs and sometimes become so uncomfortable that they leave the nest.

Fowls and chicks that are kept in yards must have a good supply of tender, fresh green food every morning. Fresh cut young clover, fed while the dew is on, is good for this purpose.

Separate the growing cockerels from the pullets, and give the former an extra allowance of food, especially if you are growing them for market.

Great size of an abdominal pouch in a goose indicates great age, a fact that is useful in purchasing breeding stock.

Never try to keep a hen with chicks after she wants to wean them for if you do, she is likely to injure them and perhaps kill some.

A few guineas on every farm will eat a lot of bad bugs and grow into semigame for some epicure's table They bring good prices.

There is no better way to aid the enemy than by allowing filth to abound. A lousy hen eventually becomes a diseased one.

No green food is better enjoyed than fresh lawn clippings, which are a treat to both old and young stock.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.

J. C. Coons. Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Preaching, 7:30 p m ;Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:30.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

The Pastor and family have appreciated their vacation and tried to use it to a good advantage. We are now back on the job and expect to be busy till Conference.

Good congregrations greeted us at both the morning service at St. Joe, and the evening service at Fairview, last Sunday.

Christian Church Announcements.

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Social 10:30 a. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.

A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Preaching services, 10:30 a. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

JOT IT DOWN

That we do the very best line of Commercial Printing and at reasonable prices. Give us your next order and let us prove our assertion.

Bear in mind, we want your business, and we propose making ourselves deserving. Are you with us?

THANK YOU

Notice of Ditch Letting.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the Trustee of Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, will at St. Joe, Ind , on the 31st. day of July, 1916, at 10 o'clock a. m., receive bids for the improvement by cleaning and repairing the following ditches:

D. P. Hale, No. 29; A. J. Collins, No. 820; Adolphus Widney, Lateral No. 1, No. 310; Adolphus Widney, Main, No. 810; Fred Yesbera, No 525; David L Carpenter, No. 8018; Saylor—Showalter. No 820; Samuel Hindman, No 814; Samuel Hindman, No. 768; H. M Widney, No. 712; Elijah Saylor, No 701; Elijah Saylor, No. 812; Letitia Sherer, No. 7649; Daniel Baker, No. 347; James B. Gibford, No 710; William Knight, Lateral No 1, No. 641; William Knight, Main, No. 641; J. M. Milliman, No. 310; Geo. Wade, No. 281.

Plans and specifications are on file in my office showing the number of cubic yards of excavation, where excavation is necessary, and the work to be performed in making such repairs, by sections of one hundred feet.

The successful bidder shall, within five days, be required to enter into a contract and give bond with two freehold sureties in a sum not less than double the amount of the contract so awarded.

H. C. HATHAWAY,
30- Trustee.

Threshers Meeting.

All threshers are notified that a meeting will be held at Hicksville, Friday evening of this week, July 14, at the City Hall at 8 o'clock All citizens, far or near, who are threshers are invited and requested to be present. Matters of general interest to threshers will be up for discussion. Make it a point to be present. Committee.

COLETOWN

Rev. and Mrs D. A. J. Brown and son Claud, of Hudson, Ind.; and Miss Mildred Outland, of Hartford City, took dinner with W. E. Jackson and family, Tuesday, and called on Henry Kling and wife in the afternoon.

E. D. Nelson and family Sundayed at Jim Evans'. Lee Mercer was an afternoon caller.

Alvin Walker and family spent Sunday with Roy Volkert and family, near Scipio Center.

Jack Beams pays the highest market price for old or young chickens.

Miss Gertrude Shutt, of Spencerville, was the guest of Olive Jackson, a couple of days last week.

Harry Miller and family and Mr. Jones and wife, of Antwerp, visited with Carson Mercer and wife, Sunday.

Mrs. Martha Andress, of Hicksville, is visiting at Wm. Sowers.

Mamie Craig spent Sunday a Henry Klings'.

Mrs. Adam Smith and Miss Katie Goets, of Mansfield, Ohio, came Thursday to attend the funeral of Herman Miller and spent the latter part of the week with Henry Kling and wife.

Mrs. G. W. Palmer is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. R. Murphy, of Hicksville.

A. M. Furnish and family, of Spencerville, were Sunday guests of W. E. Jacksons'.

Mrs. Caroline Tegtmeyer and daughter, and Irving Tegtmeyer and wife, of Ft. Wayne, took dinner with E. S. Ginther and family.

Habits, After All, Make the Child

By SIDONIE MATZNER GRUENBERG

It Is Through Little Tricks of Politeness and Deference That a Child Learns Respect.

THERE is no doubt that some children are much "brighter" than others. And, of course, the brighter children are easier to teach than are the others. But many a bright child absorbs the teachings offered him and develops a character that is very far from satisfactory, while among the less "gifted" children are evolved useful and lovable spirits that amply compensate for the relatively feeble intellects. This is all common knowledge; yet we continue to be puzzled about it without making any effort to clear up our understanding. Or we continue to think and to act as thought the development of the intellect were of itself sufficient to insure suitable training of the character.

The fact is that while knowledge may be converted into power it is in itself very far from being a substitute for wisdom. And still more remote is it from character. We know that children can learn knowledge; the important question for us is, can they acquire character?

When we compare an infant with an older child and with an adult we may see that the lack of "character" on the part of the infant means that the child has not yet developed fixed habits in regard to certain things, whereas the older person has. You do not know just what the child will do under given circumstances, while you do know what the grown-up will do. It is the mass of habits that make up the foundation of the character which the child acquires.

Habits of courteous speech, for example, may be mere imitations of other people's speech, and very different from what the child would use if neglected in this regard. Yet as it becomes a habit it constitutes a distinctive part of the person's character. It is through the little tricks of deference and politeness that a child learns respect, and it is from this that he develops an appreciation for the qualities that we wish him to look up to.

And that suggests the second element that enters into the "character" that can be trained or cultivated. The comparison between young children and adults shows us that another difference in their characters lies in the comparative instability of the child's likes or dislikes, and of his standards of right and wrong. Beginning with nearly direct imitation of what he sees his parents do, he comes in a few years to imagine himself doing things that he hears of others doing. When he begins to read about the exploits of great heroes he projects himself into the characters of history or legend, and for the time being he lives in the character that is uppermost in his interest. In this way he absorbs from his immediate surroundings and from his reading and associates the ideals and principles that will give stability and color to his conduct—that is, his character.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Susie Rex and grand-daughter, Miss Ruth DeLong, returned to their home in Chicago, last week, after a 10 day visit with relatives and friends here.

Little Miss Eveline Engle visited relatives in Wayne, last week.

Willie Miller has purchased the property belonging to Willie Harter, and expects to take possession this fall.

Eleven room house on West Main St., for sale or rent. Other well located residence properties and vacant lots for sale on easy terms. S. S. WIDNEY.

J. H. Benner, wife and Eveline Engle, who makes her home with them, visited their daughter, Mrs. Emery Welker and family, near Edgerton, Sunday. Mrs. Benner remaining for the week.

Mrs. Harry Fuller and children, of Garrett, visited Mrs. Stanley Davis and family, Friday and Saturday; and Mrs. John Miller and family, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Ames and family, of Hicksville, were Sunday guests of Grant Ames and family.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office, ...No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE IND

The Gossips Say-

The first wheat cut in this vicinity was last Saturday by Wm. Hamm.

Joseph Haifley went to Wayne, Monday, where he will work at the carpenter trade.

FOUND:—A horse yoke, near the Creek bridge. Owner can have same by paying for this notice.

The Concord social as announced for next Saturday evening has been withdrawn on the account of the serious illness of Mrs. Johnson.

John Bets and wife, Mrs. Martha Shearer and Miss Edith Berry attended the Bets family reunion held at the home of Sam Bets, five miles southeast of Spencerville, last Sunday. They will make it an annual affair.

After on illness of several weeks, Mrs. Geo. DeLong, of near Newville, died Monday evening at 6:00 o'clock. She had been in poor health since Mr. DeLong's death. Nervous breakdown was the cause of her death.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: 7 year old horse and a good 1-horse wagon. J. B. Haifley.

For Service: Poll Angus bull at $1.50 cash. Francis Lothamer.

Patronize Our Advertisers

They are all boosters and deserve your business.

CARL HAGENBECK-WALLACE CIRCUS

THE WONDER SHOW
THE LIKE OF WHICH YOU NEVER SAW BEFORE

ALL NEW AGAIN! ALL RIGHT AGAIN!

A CIRCUS GATHERED FROM 18 NATIONS.

6 ARENAS USED FOR ITS 1,001 WONDERS.

CAPITAL INVESTED $3,000,000

3 RAILROAD TRAINS—3.
22 TENTS—22.
8 BANDS—8.
400 PERFORMERS.

YOU HAVE NEVER WITNESSED A CIRCUS LIKE THIS.

60 RIDERS—60.
60 AERIALISTS—60.
500 HORSES—500.
200 ACTS—200.

3 HERDS OF ELEPHANTS 3

400 WILD ANIMALS

CARL HAGENBECK'S ZOOLOGICAL PARADISE

World's Greatest Trained Beasts

Performing in a Massive Steel-Girded Arena. The Wide World, Civilized and Uncivilized, Ransacked to Augment and Complete what is now the Biggest Zoo On Earth

THE GREAT WALLACE CIRCUS DE LUXE

50 CLOWNS 50 INCLUDING PIRO THE KINGS JESTER

Only Circus With Trained Wild Animals

Biggest and Best Holiday in All the Year

WONDERS, NOVELTIES, FEATURES FROM EVERY LAND

OSCAR LOWANDE
First person in history of the world turning a somersault from one running horse to another.

FLYING WARDS
Daring and sensational aerial artists. Performing in dome of world's biggest tent.

SIX CEVENES
Most dexterous performers on lofty double aerial wire in earth's history.

3-MILE GALA, GOLDEN STREET PARADE 10 A. M.

All tents illuminated by electricity at night.

DOORS OPEN AT 1 AND 7 P. M. PERFORMANCES BEGIN AT 2 AND 8 P. M. ONE 50c TICKET ADMITS TO ALL. CHILDREN UNDER 10, 25c.

Will Exhibit at

AUBURN

Saturday, July 22, 1916.

Our Hobby
Is Good
Printing

Ask to see samples of our businesscards, visiting cards, wedding and other invitations, pamphlets, folders, letter heads statements, shipping tags, envelopes, etc., constantly carried in stock for your accommodation.

Get our figures on that printing you have been thinking of.

New Type, Latest Style Faces

100 Per Cent.

INCREASED EARNINGS.

The following is fac-simile of certificate of Bond issued to each Depositor in this Bank.

No. __________ Grabill, Ind., __________ 19____

Mr. ____________________

THIS IS TO CERTIFY that your DEPOSITS in this bank are INSURED under a bond of THE AMERICAN GUARANTY COMPANY of Columbus, Ohio.

THE GRABILL STATE BANK.

PRESERVE THIS. By Albert Egly, Cashier.

Postal Savings pay 2 per cent. Interest and the money is placed in banks who have to furnish a Bond to the government to guarantee that the funds are safe in that Bank.

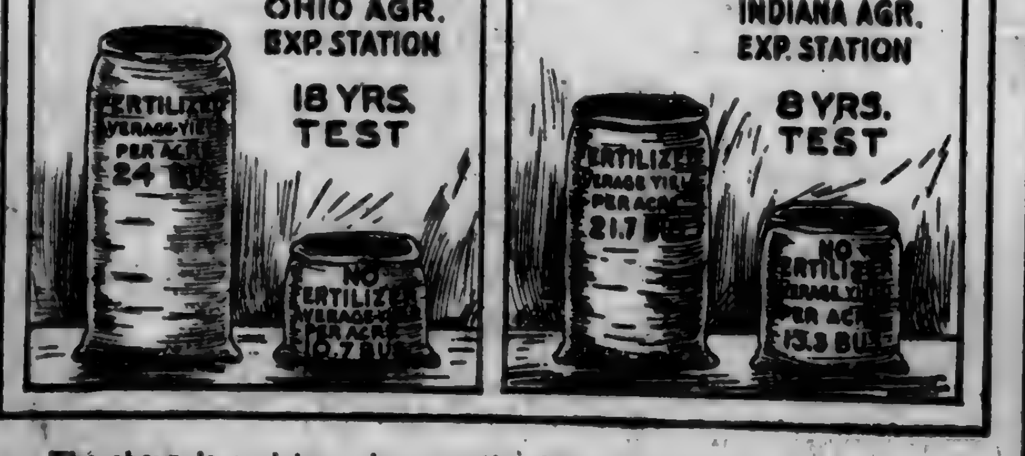
We pay 4 per cent. Interest and give you the same guarantee. An increased earning of 100 per cent.

THIS is the only Bank in this community thus insuring its depositors.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors



OHIO AGR. EXP. STATION
18 YRS. TEST
FERTILIZED AVERAGE YIELD PER ACRE 24 BU.
NO FERTILIZER AVERAGE YIELD PER ACRE 10.7 BU.
INDIANA AGR. EXP. STATION
8 YRS. TEST
FERTILIZED AVERAGE YIELD PER ACRE 21.7 BU.
NO FERTILIZER AVERAGE YIELD PER ACRE 13.3 BU.

THE PROOF IS IN THE SACK

The above is a picture show worth while. A crop can be no better than the land on which it grows, which is another way of saying that fertilizing pays.

JULY

L 908

0224

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY JULY 20 1916 — NO. 30

LOCAL ITEMS.

Patronize the advertisers.

WANTED—To buy your Hay. C. E. Frye, Phone 73-31, St. Joe.

FOR SALE:—A-1 Jersey-Durham cow. John Koch, St. Joe, Ind.

P. A Shurts and daughter, Miss Pearl, were Ft. Wayne visitors, Saturday.

J. Smith and wife, of Garrett, spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Wilson Sanders and wife.

A fine line of summer ready made wearables for Women and Children. Schloss' of Auburn.

Mrs. Harry Jones, of Ft. Wayne, spent from Wednesday until Friday, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Simon Bernard and husband.

Mrs. J. S. Whitcomb and Mrs. Belle Harris, of South Milford, came Saturday and remained over Sunday with the former's daughter, Mrs. John Milliman and family.

St. Joe Mills have a good supply of Daily Bread Flour, if you need some before your new crop is ready, we are at your service.

Dr and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer had as their guests from Wednesday until over Sunday:-Mrs. W. K. Sheffer, daughter Miss Ethel, and grand-daughter, Miss Ruth Pulver, all of Angola.

Mrs. Emma Abel spent Wednesday and Thursday with her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Woodcox, at Auburn. Little Miss Mildred Woodcox accompanied her home for a visit.

Dan Hilkey and wife, of Aromas, Cali., and Smith Bailey, who has been residing in Oklahoma until recently, came Thursday for a several days visit with Champ Bailey and family.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	105	$3.68
M. P.	72	2.30
Christian	73	2.13
Concord	123
Fairview	25	.79
Coburntown	73	2.14
M. E. Spencer	78	3.48
Lutheran	78	2.00

McCormick Mowers at Curie's

Mrs. S. D. Gee was a Ft. Wayne visitor, Saturday.

For Sale: Blackberries. Mrs. Carl Johnston.

Frank Ginther, of Plymouth, is home assisting in the harvest field.

John R. Leighty, of Kansas City, is home on business for a few days.

Cut your grain with one of our new McCormick Binders. Curie has just received a large shipment.

Anton Bovaski and wife, of Minnesota, are visiting Sherman Rickett and wife.

Mrs. Arvilla Derck spent a few days the past week visiting in the families of C. A. Patterson, W. C. Patterson and S. W. Tustison.

Sam Warner and wife went to Ft. Wayne, Wednesday evening returning Thursday evening, and spent the time with their daughter, Mrs. F. H. Langley and husband. They also attended the Sells-Floto Circus.

Nothing like it—McCormick Binder—Car load just received at Curies. We will have one of them ready for you. How about it for this years crop?

Mrs. William Theek, daughter Alice, and son William, former neighbors of Chas. Bayman and family, at West Unity, were their guests from Monday until Friday, when they returned to their home at Napoleon.

Mrs. Fred Reichelderfer, of Payne, Ohio, spent from Wednesday until Sunday with her brother, John Betz, who with his wife and the Misses Ethel and Edith Berry, took her home in the Betz machine. Mrs. Ada Berry and son George, were also over Sunday guests in the Betz home.

C. R. Brunson, wife and daughter Beulah, of Chicago Junction, Ohio, were dinner and Friday afternoon guests of C. C. Bassett and wife. The former will return home Monday while his wife and daughter will remain for a few weeks visit with relatives.

Some little excitement was had here last Wednesday evening, when a foreigner from somewhere, showed signs of being bug house, frightening some of the ladies along the road north of town. Ray Reasoner brought him to Dr. Sheffer's office and the sheriff was called. It was thought that the heat was too much for him and so he was let go.

Still After You.

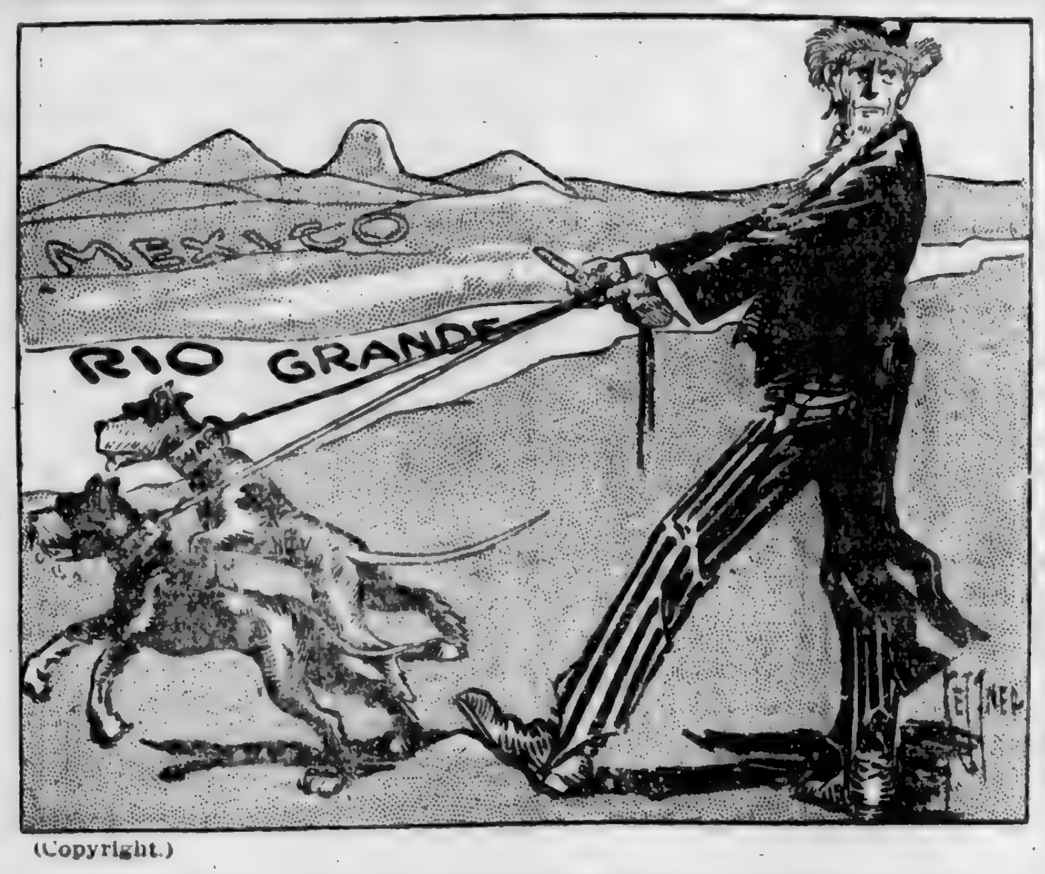
We are still awaiting for you who have not opened up that checking account you were intending to open up with us. The many advantages it gives you in handling your funds, cannot be appreciated until tried out. New accounts are started nearly every day. Join the thrifty.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

AWAITING THE WORD



(Copyright.)

A milk stand is being built at the B. & O., depot, on the north side.

Beeks Erick, of Spencerville, is now carrying mail out of that place, instead of G. M. Shutt.

Miss Elva Fredricks, of Hicksville, came Saturday for a week's visit with Miss Pauline Barney.

Mrs. Anna Dilley went to Auburn Junction, Monday noon, to visit her daughter, Mrs. Effie Smith, until Friday.

Miss Flossie Sechler had as Sunday guests: the Misses Ruth Abel, of Union City, and Mabel Stevens, of New Haven, and Mr. Bratton of Angola.

L. W. Priddy, who lives on the Isaac Speer farm a few miles east of Auburn, lost practically all his hay Thursday when the barn burned down. He had all but a few loads of hay in the barn and was intending to put the remainder in that afternoon. Lightning struck the barn about noon, and it burned to the ground. The tools were all taken out, except a wagon. Luckily there was no stock in the barn at the time of the fire. It is not known whether there was any insurance carried on either the barn or the contents. Mr. Speer, the owner, lives at Waterloo.—Courier.

Clark Roberts and wife entertained the following relatives at their home, northeast of here, Sunday, at dinner. There being thirty-four present. C. C. Dean and family, and Miss Georgia Dean, of Decatur, Ill.; Floyd Dean and family, of Hawkeye, Iowa; Mrs. Sam Leebow and two daughters, of Winnimac, Ind.; C. R. Brunson and family, of Chicago Junction, Ohio; Naman Dean and family, of Butler; William Bohls and family, of Garrett; Earl Tustison and family, Mrs. Inez Cramer and little daughter and Miss Lucile Whitehurst. The day was spent in visiting as some of them had not met for several years. C. C. Bassett was called in the afternoon and took several pictures of them both at the Roberts and Whitehurst homes in Newville.

Mrs. Margaret Swineford is again in poor health.

Elmer Bart and family and Hollis Dilley and wife picniced in Hallabaugh's woods, Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Copp and daughter, Mrs. Flossie Widney, were Fort Wayne visitors, Saturday.

Carl Bensteel, wife and children, of New Castle, Ind., were Friday guests of Howard Borthwick.

Miss Helen Woodard, of Plymouth, came Monday for a two weeks visit with Miss Lela Wallace.

Mrs. George Milliman and son Lysle, left Monday for a several weeks visit at various points in Michigan.

S. D. Gee, wife and grand-daughter, Kathaleen Gee, drove to Hicksville, Sunday, and were the guests of their son, Howard Gee and family.

The body of David Cramer was shipped here from Wayne, last Tuesday evening, and taken to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Click, east of St. Joe, by Undertaker Kinsey.

J. P. Buckingham, C. R. Price and F. B Leighty and their wives, and Mr. Guy Miller were entertained at the home of Chas. Koch and family, Monday evening. Homemade ice cream was served.

Fred Bearss writes home that they are now on the border line, and that the weather is about as hot as here, but that it has rained every day since they arrived. He gives his address as Marcedes, Texas, Co. K, 162nd. Regiment, Indiana Vol. Inft.

Miss Inez Hart left Sunday for South Bend, where she will spend a two weeks vacation with Frank Dolph and wife. They expect to spend the most of the time at Cassopolis, Mich., at their Lake cottage.

The Rural Housewives Club and their husbands gave Mrs. Amy Koehnlien, of New Paris, Ind., a former member of the club, a reception Tuesday evening, at the home of Kell Hart. Ice cream and cake were served.

Subscribe for this paper

Schloss' of Auburn are showing a fine line of Summer Dress Materials.

R. H. Abel and wife were Sunday afternoon guests of L. E. Cole and wife, of near Five Corners.

J. C. F. Abel and wife were Sunday afternoon guests of their son, Glen and wife, at Spencerville.

Champ Bailey's brother, Smith Bailey is moving into the Sylvester Widney property at the south end of Widney Ave.

Jasper Snyder, wife, daughter Florence, and son Donald, motored to Grover Hill, Ohio, Sunday to visit Mrs Snyder's sister, who is quite ill.

Jack Beams pays the highest market price for old or young chickens.

Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma, daughter Jean, and son David, and J. P. Buckingham and wife were Sunday guests of Ray Reasoner and wife.

Mrs. Arvilla Derck, and Harold Walker and wife, of Montpelier, O., and F. A. Patterson and wife, of Hicksville, were Sunday afternoon guests of C. A. Patterson and wife.

Craig Sheffer has been working in a blacksmith shop in Butler for the past week. His wife and son accompanied him to that place Sunday evening and will try to find a house and move there soon.

John Y. Davis was taken to Ft. Wayne, Monday, in the Rolland Bearss machine, where he visited a specialist and had a couple of X-ray pictures taken. Just what the matter was could not be ascertained at that time.

W. K. Sheffer, Waldo Sheffer and wife, of Angola; John Knight and family, Craig Sheffer and family together with Mrs. W. K. Sheffer, daughter Ethel, and grand-daughter, Miss Ruth Pulver, of Angola, who had been visiting here since Wednesday were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

Send in your news items.

E R. Kinsey was an Auburn visitor, Thursday.

Old Reliable McCormick Mowers at Curie's. Get ready for that warm day.

Vernie Monroe and Stanley Koch spent Sunday with Harry Kinsey, at Angola and Lake James.

Mabel and Lee Crowl, of Edgerton, Ohio, were over Sunday guests of Romeo Headley and wife.

Mrs. Ann Abel has been visiting her grandson, Chas. Benjamins', at Grabill, for the past several days.

S. W. Tustison and family, and W. C. Patterson and wife left Tuesday morning for Springfield, Ohio, where they will spend the week with Ralph Patterson and wife, returning home Friday.

The Mission Band was entertained last Friday afternoon at the home of Eloise Bowman. After the mission lesson a large cake with five lighted candles appeared and announced the birthday of the little hostess. The candle flames were extinguished by five little five year old girls after which refreshments were served to twenty-five members and friends. The guests were D. J. Baker and wife, of Ft. Wayne; Mrs. C. R. Price, Mrs. Mary Bowman and Master DuWayne Kinsey.

J. P. Buckingham and wife, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price, Chas. Bayman and wife, Merritt Barney and wife, and F. R. Bowman and wife were at Spencerville, Friday night, at which time all but the latter couple, who had previously taken the work, were made members of the Order of the Eastern Star. The Spencerville ladies of the chapter served one of the most delicious dinners ever given in this section and in many other ways demonstrated their ability as royal entertainers.

Threshing.

We have a car of good coal on tracks at $3.40 per ton. Come early. St. Joe Mills.

We are ready to receive NEW WHEAT for which the highest market prices will be paid at all times.

* *

We are Feed HEADQUARTERS.

Always Welcome at

St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

POULTRY WANTED!

Highest market prices will be paid for your old and young hens. If you can't bring them in to me just phone and I will call and get them. We have got to have the poultry and are willing to pay you the best price for it.

J. Beams

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

JULY

L 908

0225

CANADIAN CROPS EXCELLENT

Returning Tourists Speak Well of Their Treatment in Canada.

The Canadian Government, having made extensive preparations during the last few years to impart to the National Park system a degree of comfort and pleasure to the visitor, combining the best efforts of man with the very best gifts of creation, has now the satisfaction of seeing an appreciation of the efforts they have made. Tourists returning from a trip over the Canadian Pacific, the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern railways speak enthusiastically of the beauties that are revealed as these roads enter and pass through the mountains. The government has spent enormous sums of money laying out roads, and developing easy means of access to glacier, hill, valley, lake and stream. For what purpose? That the wonders that Canada possesses in its natural parks may become more easily accessible and afterward talked about that a tourist travel through Canada would result. Tourist travel means business, and it is business that Canada seeks. To make it even more easy for this travel, the Government has taken pains to make every step of the tourist's entry into Canada one that will give the very least degree of trouble. On crossing the border, there is only the ordinary examination of baggage, and the only precaution is that in the case of foreign aliens, and even in their case there is no difficulty when the officials are satisfied that they are not attempting entry as enemies.

Although officials of the Government have taken every means to bring to the attention of the tourists and others that no difficulty could be placed in the way of their admission, there still remained doubt in the minds of some. Only the other day the Government took action again, and authorized the statement that no measures taken for recruiting the forces either have been or will be applied to any persons who are not ordinarily resident in the Dominion. Nor is it the intention to ask for volunteers except from among British subjects, resident in Canada. Moreover, the Military Service Act, under which conscriution is applied in Great Britain, affects only persons "ordinarily resident in Great Britain."

Americans and British subjects resident in the United States who desire to visit Canada will find no more trouble at the border than they have experienced in the past, anl upon arriving they will be made as welcome as ever. War conditions of any kind will not inconvenience or interfere with them.

The immigration authorities suggest that, as a precaution against inconvenience, naturalized Americans whose country of origin was one of those at war with the British empire, should provide themselves with their certificates of naturalization.

Now that it is impossible to visit Europe, the planning of your vacation trip through Canada is one to give consideration to. The Government has taken an active interest in its National Parks in the heart of the Rocky mountains. These can be reached by any of the lines of railways, and the officials at these parks have been advised to render every attention to the visiting tourists who in addition to seeing the most wonderful scenery in the world—nothing grander—nothing better—have excellent wagon and motor roads, taking them into the utter recesses of what was at one time considered practically inaccessible.

In addition to this the tourist will not be inactive to the practical possibilities that will be before him as he passes over the great plains of the Western Provinces. The immense wheat fields, bounded by the horizon, no matter how far you travel. The wide pasture lands, giving home and food to thousands of heads of horses and cattle. The future of a country that he before only heard of but knew so little about, will be revealed to him in the most wonderful panorama, and imprinted in the lens of his brain in suc ha way that he will bring back with him the story of the richness of Agricultural Western Canada. And he will also have had an enjoyable outing.—Advertisement.

Old Wine in New Bottles.

What happens when the accepted tune of a national anthem is changed even with considerable care is revealed by this from Tom Daly's column in the Philadelphia Evening Ledger: "As the opener of the exercises at the convention of the National Association of Credit Men in Pittsburgh the words of 'America' were sung to the new music arranged for them. When the applause had dwindled away, the president arose and said: 'I feel that our convention is never properly begun unless we sing the nations' anthem, so let us all arise now and sing "America." '" (Prolonged applause.)

Defined.

"What's your idea of a crank?"

"A crank is a fellow who insists on trying to convince me, instead of letting me convince him."—Boston Evening Transcript.

The more praise a man bestows on himself the wiser he is not.

TRIP OF UNDERSEA CRAFT THRILLING

Story of Voyage of German U-Boat Across Ocean Outrivals Fiction.

HOSTILE SHIPS ARE DODGED

Submarine, During Hazardous 3,800-Mile Run, Submerged Many Times to Escape Possible Attack From Enemy.

Baltimore, Md.—Pictures of adventure no less thrilling than those which fill the pages of Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," are called up by the amazing story of the trip of the German U-boat Deutschland across the Atlantic ocean—a voyage that has been pronounced the most daring in the history of the sea.

The story of the remarkable voyage made by this submarine—the first to cross the Atlantic ocean—through a maze of hostile warships, has been told simply by Capt. Paul Koenig, commander of the undersea craft.

Koenig was modest about it all. He had a few words of praise for his crew and none for himself. When he spoke of the fatherland his eyes sparkled and his whole body twitched with eagerness. When he talked of "just dropping down when he saw a destroyer" his voice was calm.

Would He Surrender?

Just once did he display real emotion. That was when toward the end of the interview this question was suddenly shot at him:

"Suppose on your way back, just as you left the Virginia capes, you saw a destroyer bearing mercilessly down upon you. Suppose there wasn't time to dodge, wasn't time to submerge, what would you do? Would you surrender?"

The undersea skipper's face turned a sudden red that looked queer under his thick weather tan. His hands clenched, his eyes flashed, then slowly each word painfully thought out, came the answer:

"Would I surrender? I—couldn't tell about that—positively I can't. I don't know—surrender? I think the moment would bring the decision. Yes, that moment would carry its own decision."

That was the spoken reply, but in every bit of the man's tone, in every set line of his face could be read the real answer—Capt. Paul Koenig has no intention that the Deutschland shall ever fall into enemy hands.

Fears No Enemy Warship.

And he has every confidence that he will take the Deutschland back to Bremen loaded with the rubber and nickel that the Fatherland so craves for its munition factories.

"Six, ten, a dozen, twenty cruisers outside will not stop us," he exclaimed. "We will go back; we will go back easy. And we will come again, and others will come and trade will go back and forth, and the British blockade—that will be a thing to laugh at.

"The future of the submarine has now been proved to be unlimited," he asserted. "There is practically no maximum to their capacity; their mechanism has been perfected; we have shown that they do anything any other ship can do, and more besides. "About that I am positive. The coming of the Deutschland, 3,800 miles to America, and her arrival with a range of almost ten thousand miles left, with fuel and water and supplies and everything for that much travel still aboard, shows that you can go with a submarine simply where you want to go."

Koenig is a small man, ordinarily looking until he begins to talk, when his force and personality become at once apparent.

First Submarine Trip.

One of the first questions asked of him brought one of the most surprising replies of the interview. Requested to tell in detail of all the submarine experience he had before being selected to attempt the crossing, he replied quickly:

"But you see I have not had any. Of course we practiced after we went aboard. We practiced a great deal. Navigation I know. Submarines I think I know now.

"Was it fun? Sometimes, yes. Most it was fun in the English channel. There we lay ten hours on the bottom, snug and comfortable. Some of us slept and some of us read, and most of us listened to our graphophone playing a beautiful song from "Peer Gynt," while above us raged the destroyers and cruisers that would have thought us the very choicest of prey had they but known what lay hidden there below them. It was not a long ten hours. We drank a little champagne, and we ate and attended to the machinery.

"Once each day we submerged as a practice drill," he said, "and besides we submerged, as I remember, five times in the North sea, six in the English channel, and three or four in the open water.

"Yes," laughing heartily, "yes, each time there was a reason.

"The longest we actually stayed under was that ten hours in the English channel, but we could stay four days. At the end of that time our batteries would be exhausted, and we would have to rise and recharge them. During the entire trip we traveled a total of ninety miles under water.

"As far as the physical effect on the ship's company is concerned, we could remain forever. We can submerge fifty fathoms—three hundred feet—but as a matter of fact we never went nearly that deep, and probably never shall."

Liked the Submerging.

Those on the Deutschland besides himself were First Mate Krapuhl, Second Mate Gyring, Chief Engineer Kleis and a crew of 25 men. Kleis, he said, over and over again, was "the most important of all." Then he told how the crew spent the time.

"On board they busied themselves with the machinery, for practically all of them are mechanics. They played cards, and they had their singing and their sleeping and their sitting about, and the time passed.

"Best of all, they—all of us, in fact—liked the submerging. Unpleasant? Indeed it was not. It was just like sinking into a sort of blue nest. We open the portholes, and then through the glass we could see the fish and the formations of the sea, and always we listened, listened, listened.

"How do we listen? There are aboard two microphones, and with them we were able to hear the whistling of a buoy six miles off when we were under water. And just before we came up about thirty miles from the Virginia capes, we were able to hear the ringing of a bell buoy six miles from us.

"The screw of a ship we could hear quite plainly while it was yet a safe distance from us. More than hearing it, we could tell whether it was a cruiser or a destroyer. It was quite fascinating to listen so.

Details of the Trip.

Captain Koenig did not take the Deutschland around Scotland, as has been conjectured. He came straight through the Channel, he said.

"We left Bremerhaven at noon on June 14. We proceeded quietly to Helgoland; there we stayed four days. There were three reasons for that: No ship proceeds all the way after starting. It is too easy to calculate when she may be expected at some given place. So we lay in wait a while. Then, too, we wanted to train the men. During those four days we drilled and taught them hard, and when once more we proceeded we had a capable submarine crew.

"Again, we had to trim the cargo. That must always be done after a start is made. We must shift things about and stow them away. And everything needs to be tested. All worked nicely.

"We carried 180 tons of fuel oil. Of that we have 95 tons left—more than enough to take us back—and we shall not ship any more here. Then we carried many tons of oxygen and twenty tons of fresh water, of which we had ten left.

"The last time we submerged was as we were nearing the Virginia capes and we saw an American boat approaching. We thought it was a fruit boat so we just dipped under for the last time. The men were always glad when we did that—it made such smooth traveling. The Deutschland scarcely rolls at all under water.

"And that about completes the story of the voyage. We traveled, we saw ships and submerged, we traveled again on the surface and at last we arrived."

The Deutschland, built by the Krupp Germania works, cost $500,000. This voyage will pay for her, he said.

Boat a Mass of Machinery.

As described by Dr. John C. Travers, assistant U. S. health officer, who was taken through the boat by Captain Koenig, the Deutschland's interior appears to be mainly a mass of machinery. She has but one deck below and a seventeen-foot depth of hold for her cargo. Dr. Travers descended through the forward hatch, where he found the crew's quarters, bunks on either side of a narrow passageway leading to compartments occupied by the captain and his two officers. The captain's room is scarcely six feet square and barely high enough for a man to stand.

It is furnished all in metal, with the exception of a small oak desk. Directly beneath the officers' quarters is the dynamo, which stores electrical energy to drive the vessel when submerged.

Next Dr. Travers was taken into the officers' messroom, scarcely larger than the staterooms, with a galley built with all the economy of space of a Pullman dining-car kitchen. Aft the messroom, about one-third the ship's length from her stern, is the submerging machinery and two periscopes.

Fur-Trimmed Dresses in Paris.

In Paris lingerie dresses are being trimmed with borders of fur; silver rabbit and white astrakhan are the favorites, and deep collars extending from twelve to fifteen inches down the back are being worn with white lace and chiffon dresses. Pastel-shaded broadcloth circular capes banded with fur are worn over one-piece dresses and the ermine mantellettes which appeared in the late winter are worn a very great deal in Paris and New York.

A Bit of Spanish Influence.

Ball trimming of silk or woolen floss in brilliant colors is used to trim the brim and crown of a new sports hat which is very popular just now at the country meets. Leghorn or milan hemp is chosen for the hats, which have rather high crowns and flaring broad brims.

One of the tasks that keep the president of the United States busy is the necessity of signing something like 50,000 documents each year.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Every established mental condition is an acquired habit, and it has become such by continuous repetition of thought. Despondency and cheerfulness, anger and calmness, covetousness and generosity indeed are all states of mind—are habits built up by choice, until they have become automatic. A thought constantly repeated at last becomes a fixed habit of mind, and from such habits proceeds the life. —James Allen.

COOKING LOBSTERS.

These delicate shellfish are so well liked that although in many states they are hard to get, a few ways of preparing them will not be amiss. Those who are fortunate enough to have them in plenty will appreciate a new dish. A medium-sized lobster is the best to choose, those which are lively and heavy in weight. Lobsters should be killed immediately before boiling. If a pointed knife be run into the back between the body and tail shells, death will occur at once. No lobster is of good flavor that has been killed hours before it is cooked. A fresh boiled lobster has a stiff tail, which will, if gently raised, return with a spring to its curled condition. Care should be taken never to pull the tail straight, as it will never respond again.

Lobster Toast.—Canned lobster may be used for this dish. Pick over to remove any pieces of shell. Add one dessertspoonful of warmed butter, red pepper, capers and pickled cucumber. Pound till well blended, add salt. Heat hot and serve on buttered toast.

Creamed Lobster.—Remove the meat from the lobster and chop finely. Beat the yolks of two eggs and mix with a quarter of a cupful of cream, a few drops of onion juice, a half a teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of red pepper and a grating of nutmeg. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the minced lobster, cook and stir for a few minutes; then add the cream and other ingredients. Stir until the combination thickens. Serve on toast.

Broiled Lobster.—Kill the lobsters as before described, and with a sharp knife and a mallet or with a cleaver split down the back on the line which runs down the middle of the shell. Remove the stomach and intestines, place the two pieces with the shell part down over a moderate fire. When half cooked, moisten well with butter, and sprinkle with pepper, salt and lemon juice. Crack the claws before serving.

Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness, and its power of endurance—the cheerful man will do more in the same time, will do it better, will persevere in it longer, than the sad or sullen.—Carlyle.

SUGGESTIVE DISHES.

For a simple little cake to serve with a cup of tea, the shortbread enjoyed so much by the Scotch will be worth adding to your cookbooks.

Scotch Shortbread.—Take a cupful of butter, creamed; one-half cupful of cornstarch or arrowroot, one-half cupful of rice flour and two cupfuls of wheat flour with one-half cupful of sugar. Cream the butter, add the sugar, and mix in the flour, kneading it well with the hands until well mixed. Pat it on a board until a fourth of an inch in thickness, and cut with small cutters, pricking well with a fork before baking. Bake in a slow oven.

Walnut Catchup.—When the black walnuts are green and still soft enough to pierce with a needle, pick a hundred. Allow six ounces of small onions, a clove of garlic, two quarts of vinegar, two ounces of anchovies, two ounces of pepper, one-fourth of an ounce of mace, one-half an ounce of cloves. Pound the walnuts in a mortar until well broken, then put them into a jar with the vinegar, onion and garlic, cut fine, with salt to taste. Let stand for two weeks, stirring twice a day. Strain off the liquid, add the rest of the ingredients, and boil 30 minutes. Skim well and strain when cold, and bottle.

Labscosh.—Butter a baking dish and fill with alternate layers of sliced raw potatoes and hamburg steak; season with pepper and salt and butter. When the dish is nearly full, pour over one-half cupful of finely chopped onions and one cupful of tomatoes, either cooked or fresh. Then pour over a cupful of sweet cream and set into the oven to bake. This should bake slowly an hour and a half. The tomatoes may be omitted if the combination is not enjoyed.

Carrot Pudding.—To a cupful of boiled and mashed carrots add two well-beaten eggs, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of cinnamon, the same of grated nutmeg, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and half a cupful each of milk and cream. Mix well and pour into a pudding dish and bake half an hour. Serve cold with sweetened whipped cream.

Mock Guava Jelly.—Wash and soak overnight a pound of home-dried apples. The next morning cook them slowly in the water; then strain through a jelly bag. There should be five cupfuls of juice; add to the boiling hot juice five cupfuls of sugar and one cupful of lemon juice; cook 20 minutes; skim and strain into glasses.

The man or woman that makes character makes foes.—Young.

The ideal life, the life full of completion haunts us all. We feel the thing we ought to be beating beneath the thing we are

FOOD SUGGESTIONS.

A pressed meat which will be found appetizing for picnics or luncheons on hot days is prepared as follows: Boil together a pound of round steak and two large pork hocks. When done, mince the meat with a fork but do not put it through the meat chopper as it makes it pasty. Put into a mold and pour over it the liquor in which the meat was cooked.

Salmon With Tomatoes.—Prepare tomato cups by scalding the tomato, remove the skin, then hollow out the form cups, using a sharp teaspoon. Turn upside down to drain and place on ice to keep them firm. Fill with salmon and chopped celery with a good boiled dressing that is highly seasoned.

Prune and Rice Meringue.—Boil and drain one cupful of rice, then add two tablespoonfuls of butter, three of sugar, one well-beaten egg and one teaspoonful of ginger extract. Spread some of this mixture on a platter, cover it with a layer of stewed prunes; continue alternating the layers until all the rice is used. Sprinkle lightly with sugar, and cover with a meringue made of the whites of two eggs, one-half cupful of sugar, and brown in the oven. Serve cold, decorated with whole stewed prunes.

Apricot Tapioca Pudding.—Cover one and a half cupfuls of tapioca with cold water and let it soak for three hours; then drain and add three cupfuls of boiling water, one-half a teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of sugar; cook in a double boiler until transparent. Skin and stone twelve apricots, put them into the bottom of a buttered baking dish, pour over the tapioca mixture and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold with sugar and cream.

Pickled Cherries.—Select sound large cherries and to every quart of cherries allow a cupful of the best cider vinegar, two cupfuls of sugar, one stick of cinnamon, broken in bits; a blade of mace and six whole cloves. Pit the cherries, pack them in jars and pour the boiling vinegar and spices over them. Cork and set away; they may be used almost immediately.

Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace;
Wednesday's child is merry and glad,
Thursday's child is sour and sad;
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child must work for his living;
But the child that is born on the Sabbath day
Is blithe and bonny, and good and gay.

GOOD THINGS.

To make ripe olives more delicious soak them over night in olive oil in which has been placed a small clove of garlic.

Beet Salad.—Cut in small pieces six cooked beets, the same quantity of cold potatoes and celery. Mix the yolks of five hard-cooked eggs, with two tablespoonfuls of anchovy sauce; then press through a sieve and add very gradually six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two of vinegar, one tablespoonful of made mustard, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper and the whites of the eggs, cut in rings. Mix well and serve cold.

Corn Salad.—Allow half as much each of chopped celery and walnut meats as of grated cooked corn; season with salt, pepper and one finely chopped onion. Mix with a good boiled dressing to which whipped cream has been added.

Supper Dish.—Place eggs in a granite pie plate and sprinkle generously with cheese and bread crumbs, with salt and pepper to taste. Place in the oven and bake until the eggs are set. A little cream put into the pan before the eggs are broken into it is an improvement.

Cafe Parfait.—Take a cupful of strong coffee infusion, add two egg yolks beaten, one-half cupful of sugar and cook in a double boiler until thick. Beat a pint of cream until thick; add to the coffee mixture when cool; pour into a mold and let stand in ice and salt three hours. Unmold and serve.

Buttermilk Cake.—Take two cupfuls of buttermilk, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in the buttermilk; two-thirds of a cupful of wheat flour, two cupfuls of graham flour, unsifted, and one-half cupful of walnut meats coarsely broken. Bake one hour. This makes two loaves. The nuts may be omitted and a sour cream and nut frosting may be used to ice the top.

Nellie Maxwell

Summer Luncheons in a jiffy

Let Libby's splendid chefs relieve you of hot-weather cooking. Stock the pantry shelf with Libby's Sliced Dried Beef and the other good summer meats — including Libby's Vienna Sausage—you'll find them fresh and appetizing.

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

Libby's
Peerless Brand
Wafer Sliced
Dried Beef
Libby McNeill & Libby Chicago

THE "PARKER" APPLE GRADER AND SIZER.
Get more money for your fruit by grading and sizing it properly. Write for circular. The Walter G. Parker Co., Milford, N. H.

FOR SALE ¼ price. Large tract Florida Land, suitable for citrus or other farming; excellent location; money making proposition. Particulars free. Address: M. E. DOUGLASS, Groveland, Fla.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. All dealers or 6 sent express paid for $1.00
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

DRUGGIST TOOK A CHANCE

Youngster Seeking Toothpaste Knew Only That He Was "Mamma's Boy," But It Was All Right.

The other day a bareheaded little boy, apparently between three and four years old, went into the drug store of James Whinrey in Muncie and said to the proprietor: "I want a quarter's worth of toothpaste." After Mr. Whinrey had wrapped up the package and given it to the lad, the latter said, "Charge this to mamma."

"Whose boy are you?" asked the baffled druggist, who failed to recognize the youngster.

"Why, I'm mamma's boy," said he, and could not be induced to tell his name.

"I thought I'd take a chance on the kid, anyway," said Whinrey, in relating the story, "because I figured out that no boy of that age would ask for toothpaste unless he had been sent by an elder person. If he had asked for candy, it would have been different. And sure enough, I had read human nature correctly for two or three days later a well-dressed woman, whom I had never seen before, entered the store, and approaching me, said, 'Did my little boy get some toothpaste in here the other day?'

"'Yes'm,' I said, as she handed me a quarter and walked out without saying anything as to who she was. But I'll find out that family's name if it takes all summer."—Indianapolis News.

Quite Appropriate.

"Mrs. Comeup wanted her husband to buy a gold collar for her pet French dog."

"Did he?"

"He pooh-poodled the idea."

Conversationalist.

"That man prides himself on being a conversationalist."

Education is a "leading out;" our book sharks too often think of it as a process of pouring in.

A busy man is one who can't find time to meddle with things that don't concern him.

Adds a Healthful Zest to any Meal

Most everyone likes a hot table drink, but it must have a snappy taste and at the same time be healthful. Probably no beverage answers every requirement so completely as does

POSTUM

This famous pure food-drink, made of roasted wheat and a bit of wholesome molasses, affords a rich Java-like flavor, yet contains no harmful element.

The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum is made in the cup "quick as a wink," by adding hot water, and stirring.

Both forms of Postum have a delightful aroma and flavor, are healthful, and good for children and grown-ups.

"There's a Reason"

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

JULY

L 908

0226

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. ROBT. STOPIEL, Moore Avenue, Washington Park, Illinois.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, backache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have any symptom about which you would like to know write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free of charge.

Monoclonius Itself Again.

A monoclonius, only a few million years old, but scrambled apart like Humpty-Dumpty, has been put together again by Barnum Brown and mounted in the American Museum of Natural History. Mr. Brown found his three-horned dinosaur, with its five-foot skull and relatively small brain, entombed in the rocks of Alberta, Canada, where it once had roamed through tropical glades. Hardly a piece was missing of the 17 feet from tip of tail to nose. But the pieces had to be sorted. This cretaceous, herb-eating animal was rich in toes and teeth. In the mouth, which was guarded by a horny sheath, nestled 60 teeth, 30 in each jaw and double rooted. Five toes graced each of the front and hind feet. Many of these toes were adorned by hoofs. The specimen is considered a rare find.

FOR BABY RASHES

Cuticura Soap Is Best Because So Soothing and Cooling. Trial Free.

If baby is troubled with rashes, eczemas, itchings, chafings or hot, irritated skin follow Cuticura Soap bath with light application of Cuticura Ointment to the affected part. Nothing so soothing, cooling and refreshing when he is fretful and sleepless.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

So He Did.

"This is a muddy spot," said the girl. "In such a case Sir Walter Raleigh spread out his cloak for Queen Elizabeth to walk on."

"It would be more sensible for me to carry you over," responded the young man, "and a heap more fun."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Some men sink under their failures; others use theirs as a ladder to climb up to success.

Stop That Ache!

Don't worry about a bad back. Get rid of it. Probably your kidneys are out of order. Resume sensible habits and help the kidneys. Then, kidney backache will go; also the dizzy spells, lameness, stiffness, tired feelings, nervousness, rheumatic pains and bladder troubles. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands recommend them.

An Ohio Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Mary M. Jastatt, 240 W. High St., New Philadelphia, O., says: "I suffered twenty years from a horrible case of kidney complaint. I had spells with my back when every nerve and muscle and even the bones seemed to be in pain and doubled me all up. The complaint kept getting worse and if it hadn't been for Doan's Kidney Pills, no doubt, I would have died. I used them and soon felt like a different woman. The cure has been permanent."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF

Reduces Bursal Enlargements, Thickened, Swollen Tissues, Curbs, Filled Tendons, Soreness from Bruises or Strains; stops Spavin Lameness, allays pain. Does not blister, remove the hair or lay up the horse. $2.00 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Book 1 M free. ABSORBINE, JR., for mankind—an antiseptic liniment for bruises, cuts, wounds, strains, painful, swollen veins or glands. It heals and soothes. $1.00 a bottle at druggists or postpaid. Will tell you more if you write. Made in the U. S. A. by W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass

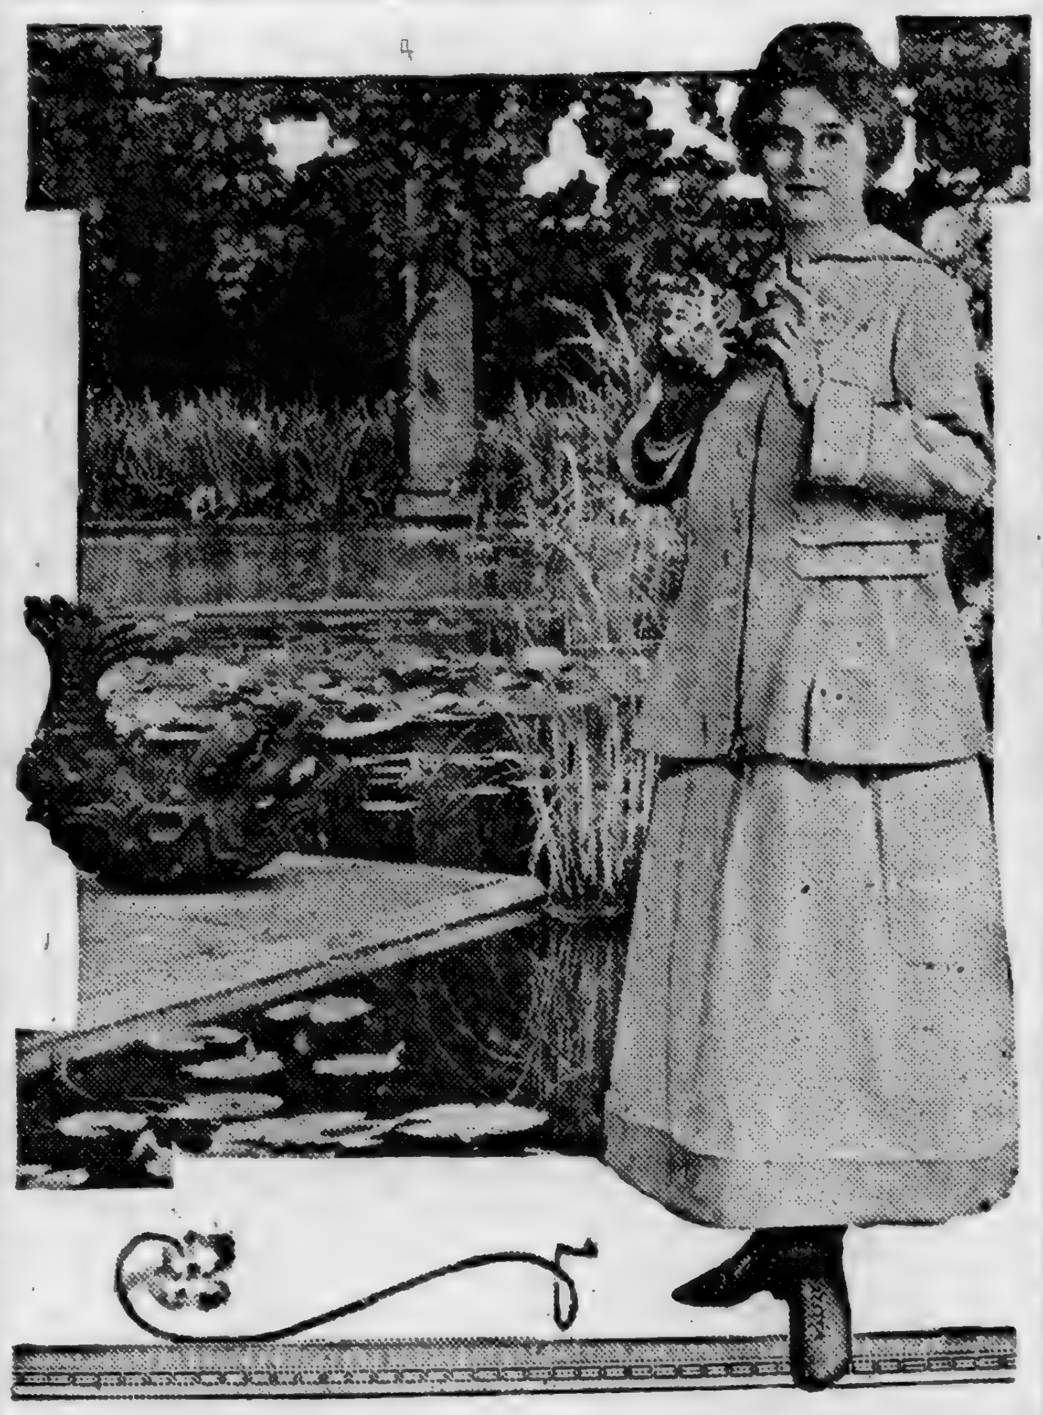
APPENDICITIS

If you have been threatened or have GALLSTONES, INDIGESTION, GAS or pains in the right side write for valuable Book of Information FREE

E. E. BOWERS, DEPT. W-4, 210 S. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



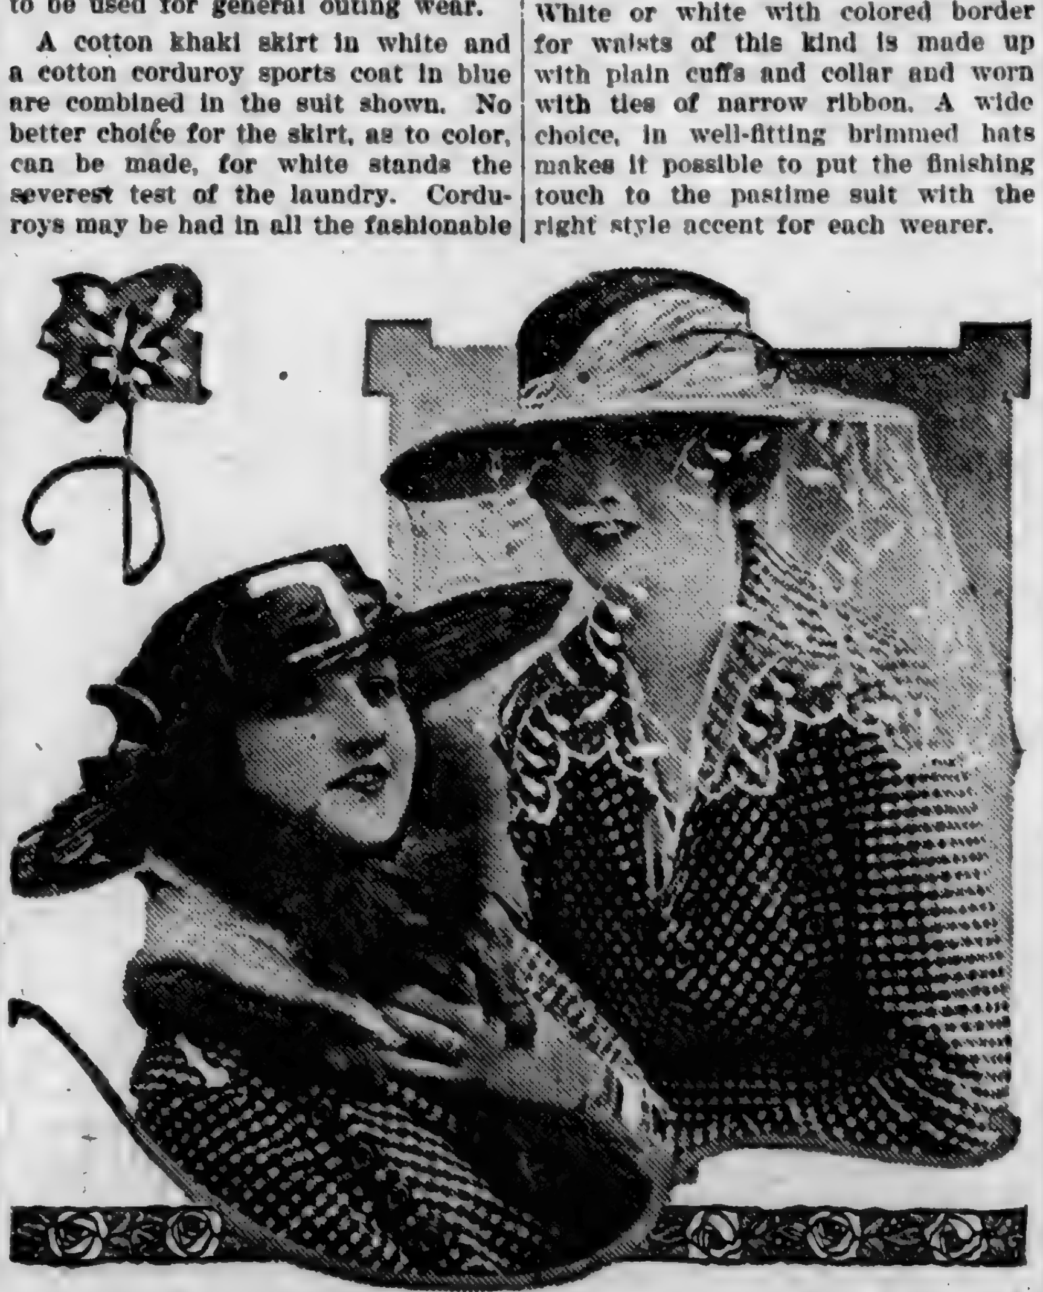
Country Costume for Many Sports

A costume of moderately heavy washable cotton answers the purposes of the athletic girl who goes in for all the summer sports. With an ample income and a zest for clothes one may dress for golf, for walking, for tennis, and all the rest of it, in special outfits designed for each sport, but there is no especially good reason for it. The "pastime suits" and hats introduced this season are appropriate for all sorts of outdoor wear. Two or three of them will see the average girl through the summer, and they are to be used for general outing wear.

A cotton khaki skirt in white and a cotton corduroy sports coat in blue are combined in the suit shown. No better choice for the skirt, as to color, can be made, for white stands the severest test of the laundry. Corduroys may be had in all the fashionable colors—light green, gold, rose, and blue among others.

The skirt in this, as in other pastime suits, is of medium width, straight hanging and finished at the bottom with a cuff of material like the coat. It fastens at the left of the front with buttons and buttonholes. The coat has a collar and belt of the white material, and the cuffs and pockets are piped with it. It is a pretty fancy to have the buttons in the two colors used, but in this instance, as in many others, they are of plain white bone or pearl.

Such a suit is to be worn with a plain shirtwaist, and dimity is a fine choice in well-fitting brimmed hats White or white with colored border for waists of this kind is made up with plain cuffs and collar and worn with ties of narrow ribbon. A wide choice, in well-fitting brimmed hats makes it possible to put the finishing touch to the pastime suit with the right style accent for each wearer.



Veils and Furs for Midsummer

Airy midsummer veils, made to float with every light breeze that blows, and to suggest coolness, are affected by the summer girl. They seem hardly made for association with cozy-looking fur pieces but are found side by side with what are called summer furs in the wardrobe of the up-to-date followers of fashion. But these two are not so incongruous as they seem; before the hours of a summer's day have all rolled away both of them may prove a very good reason for existence.

The new veils are sometimes the sole trimming for midsummer hats, and they are made in fascinating patterns, in white or black mostly. A white hat of satin becomes a background for a veil of brilliant black in a lace and net pattern. Half of the veil is sometimes of plain net and the remainder of lace, worn in the effect of a harem veil. A white veil on a black hat is occasionally managed with much cleverness, but the white veil on a white hat is a joy of midsummer, sure to please every one.

Summer furs are made in small capes of ermine or moleskin or combinations of these, and in scarfs of ermine, fox, moleskin, and in ermine combined with these other furs. They are a fad, or course, but every one is ready to forgive an inconsistency when it is charming. Real fox skins, in white, are expensive, and ermine is a royal fur. But furriers are wonderfully clever in using other pelts to imitate both these high-priced varieties, to the entire satisfaction of those who wear them. A very small per cent of neckpieces classed as fur or ermine are really entitled to these names. Other furs masquerade with such good success under these titles that they lose their identity. Moleskins are not rare furs but so much work is involved in making them up that summer furs of moleskin command a high price.

With the lightest and most summery of apparel fashion decrees that summer furs are correct, and therefore so be it.

Leaves in the Hair.

A very pretty fashion has just come over from Paris. Chaplets of leaves, glossy or transparent, in colors harmonizing or contrasting with the dress, are being worn around the hair. This arrangement is particularly becoming to young girls so long as the leaves are not metallized.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 23

PAUL AT CORINTH.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:1-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be not afraid, but speak, and hold not thy peace.—Acts 18:9.

I. Paul's Companions. (vv. 1-6.) Paul's coming to this city after his experiences in Athens is significant when we read I Cor. 2:1, 2. He found a home as usual at first among his Jewish countrymen. Aquila and Priscilla were not only fellow Christians but fellow craftsmen (v. 3). Paul supported himself, as Jesus did for 30 years, as a carpenter. This gave opportunity to reach the people naturally as one of them. At the same time he set them the example of doing good (I Cor. 10:31; I Cor. 9:6-12; II Thess. 2-9). Paul did not think it a lack of faith to do manual labor or secular work for his own support because God had called him to preach. In the midst of his labors (v. 5) Silas and Timothy came to him from Philippi and Berea. The Philippians had sent him aid and brought news of the abundant harvest of faith and love in that church. Paul was weak and sick and dejected in spirit (II Cor. 2:3), probably bodily sickness. He was also in want (II Cor. 11:9). As he meditated on the word, it had so got hold on him that he could not keep still. It overpowered him with the thought that Jesus was the Christ and that he must tell it out, but the Jews were not willing to receive his testimony. "They opposed themselves and blasphemed," (v. 6). The good news these helpers brought encouraged him in his conflict (v. 6).

II. Paul's Compulsion. (vv. 7-11). The opposition of the Jews did not prove his testimony to be untrue or that it had been unwisely presented, but rather it revealed the iniquity of the hearts of the men who were the religious leaders. To their faces Paul could exclaim, "I am clean," (v. 6). It is a great thing for any man to be able to say this, and it is the privilege of every believer (Acts 20:26). Then we can say with Paul: "I shrank not from declaring unto you the whole counsel of God." (R. V.) If we do not declare unto men the way of life, then their blood is upon us (Ezekiel 33:4, 8, 9), but are we indeed clean of the blood of all in our own homes, in our churches, in our Sunday school classes, in our communities and in the lands beyond the sea? This compulsion disconnected Paul from the false religionists of his day. "From henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles." The advantage of the house of Justus was (a) that the owner was a proselyte, not a born Jew. (b) The place was close to the synagogue so that his preaching would be a standing invitation to the Jews, and (c) Justus was evidently a Roman citizen, and Paul would gain access through him to the more educated people of the city. Moreover he would have greater advantage of the Romans than of the Jews for protection of the Christian converts. We do not infer that he left his lodgings in the home of Aquila and Priscilla nor ceased his work of tent making.

Paul's testimony after Athens was based only on the cross (I Cor. 2:1, 2) and it was that which turned "impure, sinful souls into pure brides whom he conducted to Christ," (See I Cor. 6:9-11). This vision kept Paul in the city where he founded one of his strongest classes (vv. 11, 18).

III. Paul's Contest, (vv. 12-17). Gallio, the brother of Seneca, listened to the charges, but threw the accusations out of court (vv. 14, 15). Sir William Ramsey calls this decision the "charter of Christian freedom." Freedom of religious speech was granted over the entire Roman empire so far as Roman authorities were concerned, and the door was open for Paul to make his way throughout the civilized world. Thus we have further evidence that all of Corinth was no match for Christ. The Lord had people there who must be called by the spoken word, and Paul was the one to speak the word. The Lord only allows us to be hurt when both we and the work can be helped thereby. He never really allows us to be hurt (Rom. 8:18; Isaiah 54:17). Christian workers in this land are confronting the same Corinthian evils in every great city; intemperance, crime, graft, dishonesty, white slavery, oppression of the poor and other works of the flesh.

It is the business of every preacher and Christian to pray and teach and work and live to save men from these evils and to convert them to righteousness.

There are also Corinthian evils in the heart, and in order to overcome them we must put on the whole armor of God, and be filled with the Spirit of Christ.

Summary: At Corinth Paul worked at his trade, converted his fellow workmen, preached to Jews and Gentiles, founded a strong church, wrote letters to the Thessalonians, had two helpers, Silas and Timothy, accepted aid from the Philippians, received a vision in the night from God, was delivered by the Roman governor, stayed nearly two years and used the city as a strategic center.

Boys Become Scarce.

For the first time in more than 20 years the Children's Aid society of New York is unable to furnish enough boys to families who want either to adopt them or care for them until the boys become of age. The reason for this is the campaign for military preparedness and the great demand for workers in war munition factories.

Almost every day letters come to the society headquarters asking for boys who have been trained at its farm school.

Last month 41 of the society's boys, sixteen to twenty-one years old, enlisted in the army and navy service for boys. The munition factories take a large number of the older boys.

Invaluable Treasures Hidden.

It is reported now that valuable Belgian paintings have been rolled in cloth, inclosed in water-tight metal tubes and sunk in the Scheldt river. The Venus de Milo was hidden in a cellar in 1870 when the Germans entered Paris.

Even thin men have a lot of the ills that flesh is heir to.

On Eugenics.

Prof. Herbert L. Flower said in an address on eugenics in Boston:

"Youth's point of view is better than age's when it comes to questions of eugenics.

"Here, for example, is a dialogue to prove my claim.

"A beautiful girl said to her fashionable mother:

"'Yes, mother, dear, I like Mr. Gobsa Golde, but isn't he too old to be considered eligible?'

"The fashionable mother compressed her roughed lips.

"'On the contrary, my love,' she said, 'he is too eligible to be considered old.'"

Some Solemn Thoughts.

Back there in the olden days David wanted Uriah's wife, so he sent Uriah to the most dangerous point in battle. And Uriah got his, just as David hoped he would. It is likely that a good many men want other men's wives nowadays, but we never hear of them sending the husband to the front in some such place as Verdun. The world is growing better.—Liberty Press.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

HORSE SALE DISTEMPER

You know that what you sell or buy through the sales has about one chance in fifty to escape SALE STABLE DISTEMPER. "SPOHN'S" is your true protection, your only safeguard, for as sure as you treat all your horses with it, you will soon be rid of the disease. It acts as a sure preventive, no matter how they are "exposed." 50 cents and $1 a bottle; $5 and $10 dozen bottles, at all good druggists, horse goods houses, or delivered by the manufacturers.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO., Chemists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

WOOD PULP SCARCE IN SPAIN

Supply of Galician Pine Has Been Cut Off by the War—May Use Native Wood.

The shortage in the supply of wood pulp for paper manufacture in Spain, and the high prices now demanded for this product is causing some anxiety among paper manufacturers and publishers. Attention has been given to the advisability of the government's undertaking to stimulate the cultivation of the poplar tree, the wood of which is preferred for pulp in Spain.

Spain imports almost all the wood pulp required for its paper industries and exports to England much of the pine grown in Galicia, which is highly resinous and not so well suited for paper manufacture as the less resinous pine of Sweden and Norway. Experiments, however, are to be made to ascertain if, by extracting the resin, native Spanish pine can be used, at least as a temporary substitute. Most of the local paper mills, it is stated, cannot employ rag and jute wastes, their plants being adapted to wood and chemical pulps. Nearly all the waste material, such as fiber waste, rags and bagging, are exported, the United States having become, since the war, the leading customer.

More Practical Than Men.

The Woman's Home Companion says:

"That women are more practical than men our correspondent proves by offering an undeniable fact. When a man finds his hair becoming scanty and wishing to increase it, what does he do?

"He buys hair 'grower,' never yet known to produce hair.

"When a woman finds it desirable to augment her portion of hair what does she do?

"She buys hair."

Almost any woman can make her husband tremble by merely saying that she has just heard something about him.

Mrs. Lydia Shrake, one hundred and six of Prairie du Chien, Wis., is the head of six living generations.

SWAMP-ROOT

Is not recommended for everything; but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it may be found just the remedy you need. At druggists in fifty cent and dollar sizes. You may receive a sample size bottle of this reliable medicine by Parcel Post, also pamphlet telling about it.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents, also mention this paper.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 30-1916.

Hen Hatches Woodpecker.

It is unusual for a hen to hatch out a woodpecker, but an instance is reported by Ira Cordrey, a farmer living near here.

The hen had been missing for some time. When found she was mothering 11 baby chicks and one tiny woodpecker, which appeared perfectly happy to let the hen scratch worms for it, and the hen is paying just as much attention to the little woodpecker as it is to her brood of chicks.

The woodpecker's appearance is explained on the supposition that a woodpecker laid the egg in the hen's nest while the hen was off looking for food.—Federalsburg (Md.) Dispatch Philadelphia Inquirer.

Gave Wife Half a Cent a Day.

Mrs. Ada Garland testified before Superior Judge Graham at San Francisco that during her 15 months of married life with Eugene Garland the total sum of money given her by her husband averaged but one-half a cent a day. She worked in a candy store, she declared, and not only supported the family, but also gave him two pairs of shoes and occasionally gave him shaving money.

LIQUID BLUE?

No, Mr. Grocer, that's mostly water. Since the war started it's more nearly all water than ever. Give me Red Cross Ball Blue, that's a two-ounce package of real goodness. You should see my clothes. I just can't keep from smiling out loud.—Adv.

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "He's never so happy as when he makes a string of people miss their trains while he monopolizes the bureau of information."

Sometimes a man can be real noisy without being very progressive.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Three Hundred Million Bushel Crop in 1915

Farmers pay for their land with one year's crop and prosperity was never so great.

Regarding Western Canada as a grain producer, a prominent business man says: "Canada's position today is sounder than ever. There is more wheat, more oats, more grain for feed, 20% more cattle than last year and more hogs. The war market in Europe needs our surplus. As for the wheat crop, it is marvelous and a monument of strength for business confidence to build upon, exceeding the most optimistic predictions."

Wheat averaged in 1915 over 25 bushels per acre
Oats averaged in 1915 over 45 bushels per acre
Barley averaged in 1915 over 40 bushels per acre

Prices are high, markets convenient, excellent land, low in price either improved or otherwise, ranging from $12 to $30 per acre. Free homestead lands are plentiful and not far from railway lines and convenient to good schools and churches. The climate is healthful.

There is no war tax on land, nor is there any conscription. For complete information as to best locations for settlement, reduced railroad rates and descriptive illustrated pamphlet, address Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, or

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.
G. W. AIRD, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

JULY

L 908

0227

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - -	$1.00
Six Months, - - -	.50
Three Months, - -	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Obituary

Lavina R. Tustison, daughter of Washington and Catharine Tustison, was born near Huntertown, Allen County, Indiana, April 4th., 1850. Died at her home near Concord, Ind., July 12th., 1916. Age 65 years, 3 months and 8 days.

When she was about 3-yrs. old she was brought by her parents to DeKalb County who located on the farm near St. Joe now known as the Tustison farm, where she grew to womanhood, and on Nov. 21st, 1870, she was married to James Johnson who survives her. To this union were born two sons, Earnest W., and Charles R., both of whom are also living. Mrs. Johnson was one of a family of eight children and her death is the first broken link in that family brother and sisterhood.

She leaves to sorrow over her departure: her husband and 2 sons, one grandchild, Thelma Johnson; three brothers and four sisters; viz: Martin Tustison, of St Joe; Mariah J. Johnson, of Seattle, Wash.; Nelson Tustison, Louisa Burley, Florence Simanton, Charles Tustison and Emma Tustison, all of St. Joe; and besides these there are other relatives and many friends to mourn for her decease.

Having professed a saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, Sister Johnson was received into full membership in the Concord Methodist Protestant Church on Jan. 17 1883, and remained faithful unto death. She was a good Christian woman, loyal to her church and true to the faith, and her death is a distinct loss to the church of which she had been for more than thirty-three years a member.

She had been in failing health for sometime and about 6 weeks ago took to her bed with the fatal illness which caused much bodily suffering but she bore it with Christian courage and fortitude. The end came peacefully and was not unexpected. She has wrought well in the Master's Kingdom and her work is finished and she is at home in the Father's House. We are cheered by the prospect of the Christian Hope that we shall meet with her and other loved ones in the sweet bye and bye.

Funeral services were held from the Concord M. P. Church at 2:00 o'clock, Friday. Rev. J. C. Coons, officiating. E. R. Kinsey, funeral director. Interment in the Riverside Cemetery.

Betsy Elizabeth Brownlee, daughter of James and Ellen Brownlee, was born in Trumble County, Ohio, December 25th., 1829. Died at her home near St. Joe, Indiana, July 15th., 1916. Age 86 years, 6 months, 20 days. She came with her parents to this county nearly seventy years ago and here she had lived to see its development from almost a wilderness to the present state of cultivation and progress, and in this development she played her part sharing with her parents and afterwards with her husband the hardships of a pioneer life, laboring to rear their family and provide for them the comforts of life.

She was married to William Allen, January 11th., 1847. To this union were born seven children five of whom are living, viz: Mary Warner, of Hicksville, Ohio; Jane Coburn, Wyone Allen, Josephine Wilmot and Alonzo Allen, all living in this vicinity. One son, John Allen, died in the year 1900, and another son, William, died in 1873. The husband died in 1891 since which time she remained a widow living at the old homestead with her son and daughter, Alonzo and Wyone, who have done what they could to make life pleasant for her in her declining years. She is the last one of her own generation and she has "Come to her grave in a full age, like as a shock of corn cometh in his season".

Funeral services were held from the home, ½ mile west of Coburn's Corners, Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. C. Coons, officiating. E. R. Kinsey, funeral director. Burial in the Alton cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the sympathy and kindness shown to us during the sickness and death of our dear mother and also for the beautiful floral offering.

MRS. MARY WARNER.
MRS. JANE COBURN.
MISS WYONE ALLEN.
MRS. JOSEPHINE WILMOT.
ALONZO ALLEN.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

There has been only one impeachment of a president, that of Andrew Johnson, who was impeached in 1868 for usurpation of the law, corrupt use of the veto power, interference at elections and high crimes and misdemeanors. His trial lasted from March 30 to May 26 and he was acquitted by a vote of 35 to 19—a two-thirds vote being necessary. A change of one vote would have resulted in his conviction.

Summer Time
----IS---- Picnic Time
and you will want Paper Napkins, Cups and Plates to take along for the days outing.
Junket Tablets and Extracts.

You will also need some Creams, Lotions and Powders for the SUNBURN.

Your horses and cattle need some special attention this hot weather—Dr. Hess Fly Chaser is the relief.

GOLDEN MURRAY,
Spencerville

Restless Rich Women Could Find Contentment in Helping Others

By LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

There's never a heart, howe'er downcast,
However dreary and lone,
But hath some memory of the past
To love and call its own.

Not to know contentment is one of the saddest plights a woman can be placed in. To have so much money that her every wish may be gratified is a doubtful blessing to many a woman. Many a wife of wealth does not know what a happy home life means.

The majority of rich women spend their time as they like and make no complaint if their husbands do likewise. If he is satisfied to spend three or four evenings a week at his different clubs, entertaining his coterie of congenial friends on his yacht or motoring trips for weeks at a time, she makes no demur. They are both in the mad pursuit of pleasure, if it takes them by different routes.

Whose fault is it? Even children do not bind them to the four walls of home. The boys are sent at an early age to preparatory schools and then to college, and girls likewise. Even their vacations they elect to spend with their girl or boy chums, explaining: "Why should we go home—father or mother is never there. One is in the mountains for the summer, the other, who cannot endure mountain scenery, is at the seashore."

Few of the restless rich women set any tasks for themselves. Once in a while one hears of an Anne Morgan who is an exception to the rule, who sees to it that many a struggling working girl, too poor to afford a vacation, gets a few weeks' outing at her expense before planning where she will go herself. It was she who started the cult among the rich of making the lives of the working class happier, more worth the living. Some few followed in Anne Morgan's footsteps. The majority, soon wearied of making personal efforts to bring joy into lonely lives, contenting themselves by sending a check when it was impossible to evade it, to be used or not used for the purpose designated, it did not matter much to them. It was therefore left with the few to carry on the good work.

There would be less restlessness among rich women and more contented hearts if each one would set an allotted task for herself of bringing joy to at least one poor, deserving household, finding employment for a brave lad who could not find employment because of lack of influence, or keeping a sick mother whose starving brood, clung to her skirts, to tide over the cruel weeks of illness in her own home without having to break it up, her children placed in institutions to be gathered together again about her knee; perhaps never.

Restlessness would soon vanish if women would but make themselves as useful as ornamental in this great busy workaday world. To each one is given an allotted task. Those who shirk will be held accountable later on.

Some Things U Should Know.

That we keep as good a line of High Grade Groceries as any store in DeKalb County. If you want Good Groceries RIGHT, We have them.

Specials For Saturday

All Laundry Soap, 6 cakes for	25c
Granulated Sugar —$1.00 Limit—	8½c
If you will buy a general order amounting to $5.00 you can include in it 25 pounds of Granulated sugar for	$1.75
My line of $1.00 dress shirts at	78c
My line of $1.50 dress shirts at	$1.15
One lot all straw hats	15c
One lot silk hats	35c
All 50c ties	35c
All 25c ties	15c
One lot of 50c caps	2[illegible]c
Most dealers ask $1.00 for same Overalls that we ask per pair	85c

I can save you from 50c to $1.00 on every pair of Shoes you buy of me.

◆◆◆◆

Come in Look us over and see if you can't do better at

BARNEY'S

Daily Jots

L. W. Fairfield was in town Monday, calling on friends.

Mrs. Bird, of Binkstaff, Ill., and Mrs. Clint Lucas were Fuesday afternoon guests of Wm. Lucas and wife.

A Sad Mistake.

A neglected cough has undoubtedly caused more deaths than any other agency. A lingering cough should be promptly treated. If allowed to continue until cold weather the tissues of the lungs will be weakened and the power to resist epidemics of cold and grip is lessened. By getting three ounces of GLANDO PINE you can make one pint of excellent cough syrup. Keep it on hands and use it freely. Stop that cough before it has too firm a grip upon you. Don't be careless and make a mistake that may cost you your life. If you can not get GLANDO PINE of your druggist send 50 cents to the The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind., and it will be sent you.

Mrs. Bessie Tustison entertained the Young Matrons Club of Hicksville, Thursday afternoon. Those from that place who were present were: Helena Crook, Grace Culler, Mabel Hart, LaVern Lybarger, Pearl Baker, Berniece Kerr, Annabel Jordan, Kathryn Ferris, Olive Miller, Mary Hanna, Miss Fae Miller, the Little Misses Dorotha Miller, of Chicago; Mary Helena Jordan and Eulilla Hart. The following guests were also present: Mrs. Hallie Jones, of Wayne Mrs. Arvilla Derck, of Montpelier; Minnie Bayman, Grace Dilley, Retta Hathaway, Mae Tustison and baby Keith, Addie Patterson, Ella Patterson, and the Misses Elizabeth and Kacherine Bayman. The hostess served a buffet lunch. The time was spent in a social way over their needle work, and a very pleasant afternoon was had.

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low-Summerf ares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31 70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado - -	$36.60
California -	$78.75
Yellowstone -	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

Local Briefs

Read the Free Column

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

G. M. Barney traded his lot last week to F. M. Monroe for his Auburn automobile.

The Lutheran Christian Endeavor held their Sunday evening meeting on the church lawn.

For the benefit of our customers through the busy harvest, we will keep open exchange.
St. Joe Mills.

Joseph Foltz and wife, of Kalida, Ohio, were guests of the former's sister, Mrs. J. P. Buckingham and husband, Thursday and Friday.

Will Hamilton, wife and little daughter Margaret, and Lee O. Tustison, wife and little son Keith, were Sunday evening guests of O. K. Shull and family.

WANTED your Poultry, for which we will pay the highest market price. Call us and we will come and get it. Phone 13-1.
J. P. BUCKINGHAM.

On Sunday, July 23rd., the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will sell round trip excursion tickets from St. Joe to Cedar Point, Ohio, fare $1.65. Special train will leave St. Joe at 5:24 a. m. Returning, special train leaves Sandusky at 6:15 p. m., same date. Consult nearest Ticket Agent for particulars.

Frank Kinsey and family were over Sunday guests of Roscoe Sechler and family east of Butler. Mr. Kinsey appeared on the scene of the terrible accident at the Lake Shore crossing, shortly after the killing of Otto D. Carey, wife and two sons, aged 6 years and 18 months. They lived on a farm north of Hicksville and were returning home from Butler, Saturday evening about 10:30. The machine was a total wreck and was thrown 100 yards down the track. Part of the bodies were mangled beyond recognition. The train was the Twentieth Century Limited running at 70 miles per hour.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids—Splendid for system.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Jump from Bed in Morning and Drink Hot Water

Tells why everyone should drink hot water each morning before breakfast.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice inside-bathing, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste which it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning inside-bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone, its cleansing, sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

R U Superstitious

Do You Believe In Signs ?

If you do you are a judicious advertiser and a good business man. Judicious advertising Always Pays and especially when you advertise in a paper that is read by everybody in its territory.

This newspaper reaches the eye of everybody who might be a possible buyer in this section.

JULY

L 908

0228

The Turmoil

By
BOOTH TARKINGTON

The Story of a Big Man in a Big Town

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—6—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Mary shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone.

For all his resistless energy and confidence, Sheridan is about to receive a great blow. Bibbs shows to better advantage in the crisis than you'd believe he could. It is a question, now, whether the old man will recognize his "weak" son's power and give him something better to do than working in the factory.

CHAPTER X—Continued.

He expanded this theme once more; and thus he continued to entertain the stranger throughout the long drive. Darkness had fallen before they reached the city on their return, and it was after five when Sheridan allowed Herr Favre to descend at the door of his hotel, where boys were shrieking extra editions of the evening paper.

"Now, good night, Mr. Farver," said Sheridan, leaning from the car to shake hands with his guest. "Don't forget I'm goin' to come around and take you up to— Go on away, boy!"

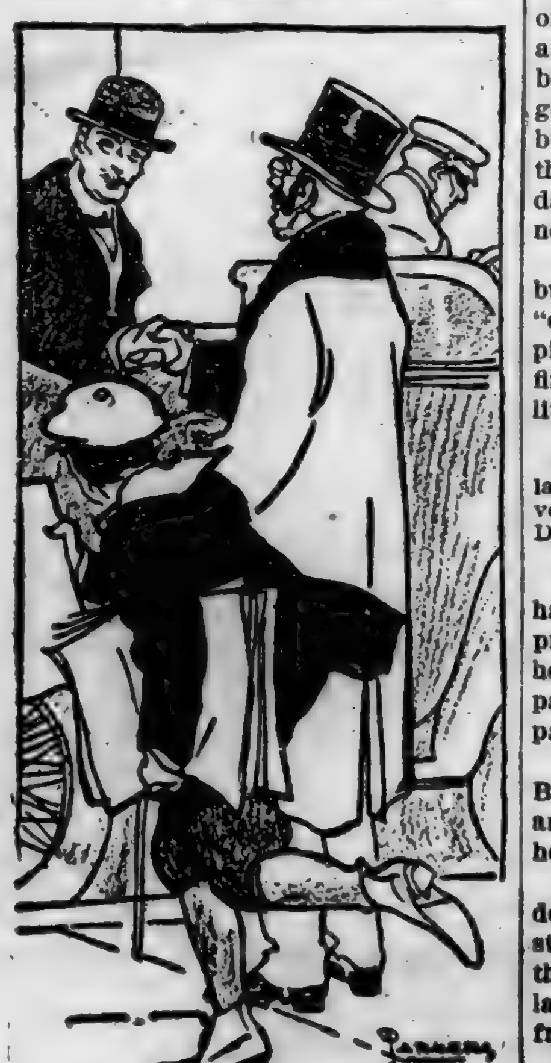
A newsboy had thrust himself almost between them, yelling, "Extry! Secon' Extry. Extry, all about the horrable accident. Extry!"

"Get out!" laughed Sheridan. "Who wants to read about accidents? Get out!"

The boy moved away philosophically. "Extry! Extry!" he shrilled. "Three men killed! Extry! Millionaire killed! Two other men killed! Extry! Extry!"

"Don't forget, Mr. Farver." Sheridan completed his interrupted farewells. "I'll come by to take you up to our house for dinner. I'll be here for you about half-past five tomorrow afternoon. Hope you 'njoyed the drive as much as I have. Good night—good night!" He leaned back, speaking to the chauffeur. "Now you can take me around to the Central City barber shop, boy. I want to get a shave 'fore I go up home."

"Extry! Extry!" screamed the newsboys, zigzagging among the crowds like bats in the dusk. "Extry! All about the horrable accident! Extry!" It struck Sheridan that the papers sent out too many "extras;" they printed "extras" for all sorts of petty crimes and casualties. It was a mistake, he decided, critically. Crying "Wolf!" too often wouldn't sell the goods; it was bad business. The papers would "make more in the long run," he was sure, if they published an "extra" only when something of real importance happened.



"Now Good Night, Mr. Farver."

"Extry! All about the hor'ble ax'nt! Extry!" a boy squawked under his nose, as he descended from the car.

"Go on away!" said Sheridan gruffly, though he smiled. He liked to see the youngsters working so noisily to get on in the world.

But as he crossed the pavement to the brilliant glass doors of the barber shop, a second newsboy grasped the arm of the one who had thus cried his wares.

"Say, Yallern," said this second, hoarse with awe, "'n't chew know who that is?"

"Who?"

"It's Sheridan!"

"Jeest!" cried the first, staring insanely.

At about the same hour, four times a week—Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday—Sheridan stopped at this shop to be shaved by the head barber. The barbers were negroes, he was their great man, and it was their habit to give him a "reception," his entrance being always the signal for a flurry of jocular hospitality, followed by general excesses of briskness and gayety. But it was not so this evening.

The shop was crowded. Copies of the "extra" were being read by men waiting and by men in the latter stages of treatment. "Extras" lay upon vacant seats and showed from the pockets of hanging coats.

There was a loud chatter between the practitioners and their recumbent patients, a vocal charivari which stopped abruptly as Sheridan opened the door. His name seemed to fizz in the air like the last sputtering of a firework; the barbers stopped shaving and clipping; lathered men turned their prostrate heads to stare, and there was a moment of amazing silence in the shop.

The head barber, nearest the door, stood like a barber in a tableau. His left hand held stretched between thumb and forefinger an elastic section of his helpless customer's cheek, while his right hand hung poised above it, the razor motionless. And then, roused from trance by the door's closing, he accepted the fact of Sheridan's presence. The barber remembered that there are no circumstances in life—or just after it—under which a man does not need to be shaved.

He stepped forward, profoundly grave. "I be through with this man in the chair one minute, Mist' Sheridan," he said, in a hushed voice. "Yessuh." And of a solemn negro youth who stood by, gazing stupidly, "You goin' resign?" he demanded in a fierce undertone. "You goin' take Mist' Sheridan's coat?" He sent an angry look round the shop, and the barbers, taking his meaning, averted their eyes and fell to work, the murmur of subdued conversation buzzing from chair to chair.

"You sit down one minute, Mist' Sheridan," said the head barber gently. "I fix nice chair fo' you to wait in."

"Never mind," said Sheridan. "Go on get through with your man."

"Yessuh." And he went quickly back to his chair on tiptoe, followed by Sheridan's puzzled gaze.

Something had gone wrong in the shop, evidently. Sheridan did not know what to make of it. Ordinarily he would have shouted a hilarious demand for the meaning of the mystery, but an inexplicable silence had been imposed upon him by the hush that fell upon his entrance and by the odd look every man in the shop had bent upon him.

Vaguely disquieted, he walked to one of the seats in the rear of the shop and looked down the two lines of barbers, catching quickly shifted, furtive glances here and there. He made this brief survey after wondering if one of the barbers had died suddenly, that day, or the night before; but there was no vacancy in either line.

The seat next to his was unoccupied, but someone had left a copy of the "extra" there, and, frowning, he picked it up and glanced at it. The first of the swollen display lines had little meaning to him:

Fatally faulty. New process roof collapses hurling capitalist to death with inventor. Seven escape when crash comes. Death claims—

Thus far had he read when a thin hand fell upon the paper, covering the print from his eyes, and, looking up, he saw Bibbs standing before him, pale and gentle, immeasurably compassionate.

"I've come for you, father," said Bibbs. "Here's the boy with your coat and hat. Put them on and come home."

And even then Sheridan did not understand. So secure was he in the strength and bigness of everything that was his, he did not know what calamity had befallen him. But he was frightened.

Without a word, he followed Bibbs heavily out through the still shop, but as they reached the pavement he stopped short and, grasping his son's sleeve with shaking fingers, swung him round so that they stood face to face.

"What—what—" His mouth could not do him the service he asked of it, he was so frightened.

"Extry!" screamed a newsboy straight in his face. "Young North side millionaire insuntly killed! Extry!"

"Not—Jim!" said Sheridan.

Bibbs caught his father's hand in his own.

"And you come to tell me that?"

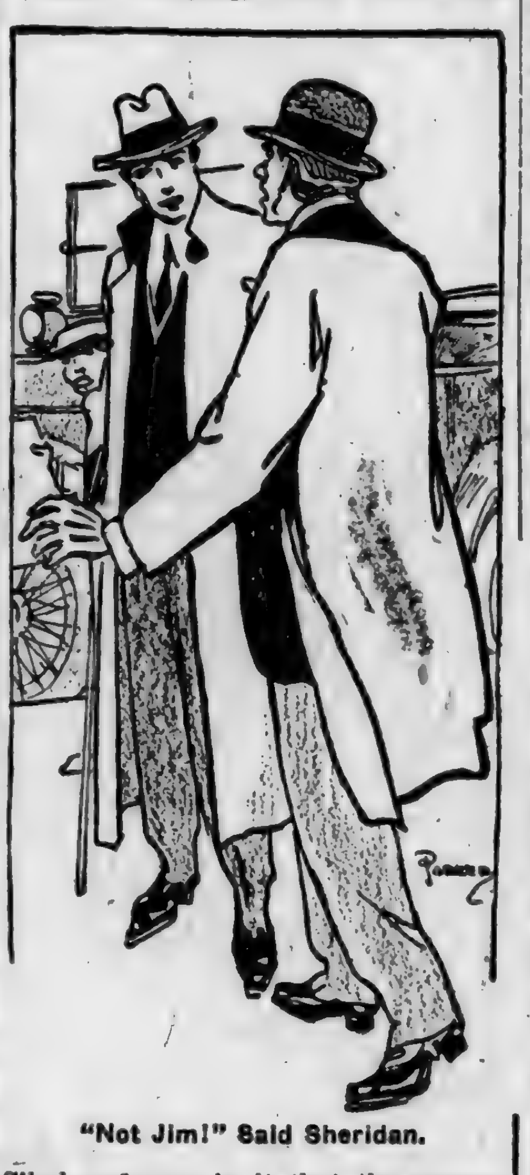
Sheridan did not know what he said. But in those first words and in the first anguish of the big, stricken face Bibbs understood the unuttered cry of accusation:

"Why wasn't it you?"

CHAPTER XI.

Standing in the black group under gaunt trees at the cemetery, three days later, Bibbs unwillingly let an old, old thought become definite in his mind: the sickly brother had buried the strong brother, and Bibbs wondered how many million times that had happened since men first made a word to name the sons of one mother. Almost literally he had buried his strong brother, for Sheridan had gone to pieces when he saw his dead son. He had nothing to help him meet the shock, neither definite religion nor "philosophy" definite or indefinite. He could only beat his forehead and beg, over and over, to be killed with an ax, while his wife was helpless except to entreat him not to "take on," herself adding a continuous lamentation.

Edith, weeping, made truce with Sibyl and saw to it that the mourning garments were beyond criticism. Roscoe was dazed, and he shirked, justifying himself curiously by saying he "never had any experience in such matters." So it was Bibbs, the shy outsider, who became, during that dreadful little time, the master of the house; for as strange a thing as that sometimes, may be the result of a death.



"Not Jim!" Said Sheridan.

"Dust to dust," said the minister, under the gaunt trees; and at that Sheridan shook convulsively from head to foot. All of the black group shivered except Bibbs. He had been close upon dust himself for a long, long time, and the machine shop, if he had to go back to it, would probably bring him closer still. To Bibbs' knowledge, no one and nothing had ever prevented his father from carrying through his plans. He had the gift of terrible persistence, and with unflecked confidence that his way was the only way, he would hold to that way of "making a man" of Bibbs, who understood very well, in his passive and impersonal fashion, that it was a way which might make, not a man, but dust of him. But he had no shudder for the thought.

The truth about Bibbs was in the poem which Edith had adopted. But he had not hidden his feelings about his father where they could not be found. He was strange to his father, but his father was not strange to him. He knew that Sheridan's plans were conceived in the stubborn belief that they would bring about a good thing for Bibbs himself; and whatever the result was to be, the son had no bitterness. Far otherwise, for as he looked at the big, woeful figure, shaking and tortured, an almost unbearable pity laid hands upon Bibbs' throat. Roscoe stood blinking, his lip quivering; Edith wept audibly; Mrs. Sheridan leaned in half collapse against her husband; but Bibbs knew that his father was the one who cared.

It was over. Men in overalls stepped forward with their shovels, and Bibbs nodded quickly to Roscoe, making a slight gesture toward the line of waiting carriages. Bibbs gazed steadfastly at the workmen; he knew that his father kept looking back as he went toward the carriage, and that was a thing he did not want to see. After a little while, "It's too bad!" he half whispered, his lips forming the words—and his meaning was that it was too bad that the strong brother had been the one to go. For this was his last thought before he walked to the coupe and saw Mary Vertrees standing all alone on the other side of the drive.

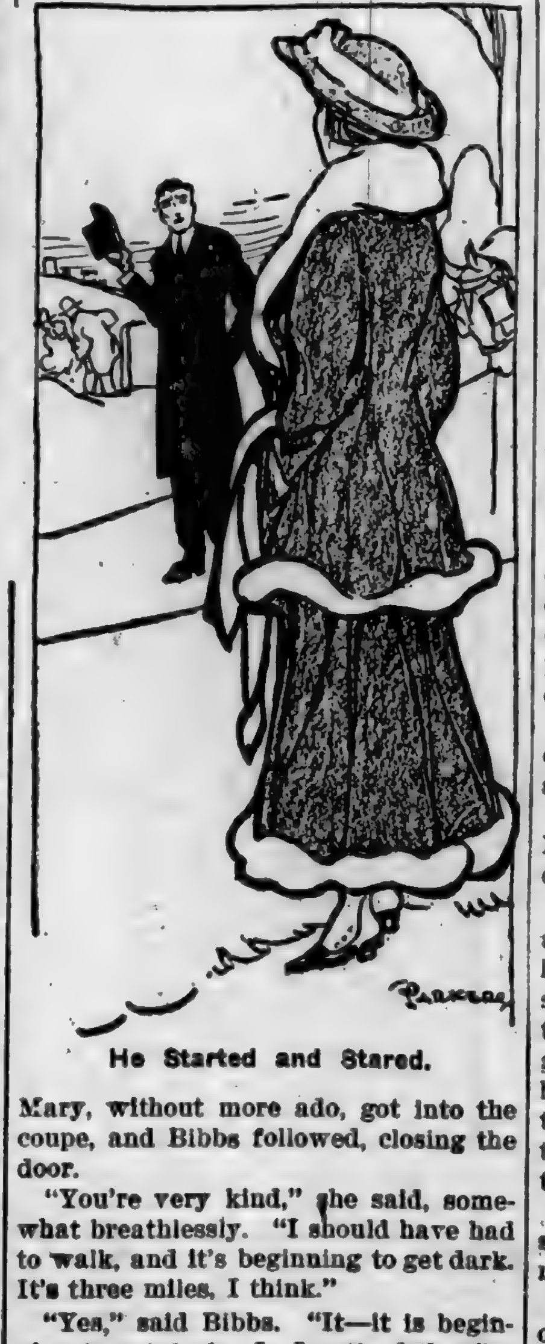
She had just emerged from a grove of leafless trees that grew on a slope where the tombs were many. Against such a background Bibbs was not incongruous, with his figure, in black, so long and slender, and his face so long and thin and white; nor was the undertaker's coupe out of keeping, with the shabby driver dozing on the box and the shaggy horses standing patiently in attitudes without hope and without regret. But for Mary Vertrees, here was a grotesque setting—she was a vivid, living creature of a beautiful world. And a graveyard is not the place for people to look charming.

She also looked startled and confused, but not more startled and confused than Bibbs. All his life Bibbs had kept himself to himself—he was but a shy onlooker in the world. Nevertheless, the startled gaze he bent upon the unexpected lady before him had causes other than his shyness and her unexpectedness. For Mary Vertrees had been a shining figure in the little world of late given to the view of this humble and elusive outsider, and spectators sometimes find their hearts beating faster than those of the actors in the spectacle. Thus with Bibbs now. He started and stared; he lifted his hat with incredible awkwardness, his fingers fumbling at his forehead before they found the brim.

"Mr. Sheridan," said Mary, "I'm afraid you'll have to take me home with you. I—" She stopped, not lacking a momentary awkwardness of her own.

"Why — why — yes," Bibbs stammered. "I'll—I'll be de— Won't you get in?"

In that manner and in that place they exchanged their first words. Then Mary, without more ado, got into the coupe, and Bibbs followed, closing the door.



He Started and Stared.

"You're very kind," she said, somewhat breathlessly. "I should have had to walk, and it's beginning to get dark. It's three miles, I think."

"Yes," said Bibbs. "It—it is beginning to get dark. I—I noticed that."

"I ought to tell you—I—" Mary began, confusedly. She bit her lip, sat silent a moment, then spoke with composure. "It must seem odd, my—"

"No, no!" Bibbs protested, earnestly. "Not in the—in the least."

"It does, though," said Mary. "I had not intended to come to the cemetery, Mr. Sheridan, but one of the men in charge at the house came and whispered to me that 'the family wished me to'—I think your sister sent him. So I came. But when we reached here I—oh, I felt that perhaps I—"

Bibbs nodded gravely. "Yes, yes," he murmured.

"I got out on the opposite side of the carriage," she continued. "I mean opposite from—from where all of you were. And I wandered off over in the other direction; and I didn't realise how little time—it takes. From where I was I couldn't see the carriages leaving—at least I didn't notice them. So when I got back, just now, you were the only one here. I didn't know the other people in the carriage I came in, and of course they didn't think to wait for me. That's why—"

"Yes," said Bibbs, "I—" And that seemed all he had to say just then.

Mary looked out through the dusty window. "I think we'd better be going home, if you please," she said.

She gave him a quick little glance. "I think you must be very tired, Mr. Sheridan; and I know you have reason to be," she said gently. "If you'll let me, I'll—" And without explaining her purpose she opened the door on the side of the coupe and leaned out.

Bibbs stared in blank perplexity, not knowing what she meant to do.

"Driver!" she called, in her clear voice, loudly. "Driver! We'd like to start, please. Driver! Stop at the house just north of Mr. Sheridan's, please." The wheels began to move, and she leaned back beside Bibbs once more. "I noticed that he was asleep when we got in," she said. "I suppose they have a great deal of night work."

Bibbs drew a long breath and waited till he could command his voice. "I've never been able to apologize quickly," he said, with his accustomed slowness, "because if I try to I stammer. My brother Roscoe whipped me once, when we were boys, for stepping on his slate pencil. It took me so long to tell him it was an accident, he finished before I did."

Mary Vertrees had never heard anything quite like the drawling, gentle voice or the odd implication that his not noticing the motionless state of their vehicle was an "accident." At once she discovered that he was unlike any of her cursory and vague imaginings of him. And suddenly she had a glimpse of Bibbs' life and into his life. She had a queer feeling, new to her experience, of knowing him instantly. It startled her a little; she did not realize, however, that she had made no response to his apology, and they passed out of the cemetery gates, neither having spoken again.

Bibbs was so content with the silence he did not know that it was silence. The dusk, gathering in their small inclosure, was filled with a rich presence for him; and presently it was so dark that neither of the two could see the other, nor did even their garments touch. But neither had any sense of being alone. The wheels creaked steadily, rumbling presently on paved streets; there were the sounds, as from a distance, of the plod-plod of the horses. Oblongs of light came lancing into the coupe, and passed, leaving greater darkness. And yet neither of these two last attendants at Jim Sheridan's funeral broke the silence.

It was Mary who perceived the strangeness of it—too late. Abruptly she realized that for an indefinite interval she had been thinking of her companion and not talking to him. "Mr. Sheridan," she began, not knowing what she was going to say, but impelled to say anything, as she realized the queerness of this drive—"Mr. Sheridan, I—"

The coupe stopped. "You, Joe!" said the driver, reproachfully, and climbed down and opened the door.

"What's the trouble?" Bibbs inquired.

"Lady said stop at first house north of Mr. Sheridan's, sir."

Mary was incredulous; she felt that it couldn't be true and that it mustn't be true that they had driven all the way without speaking.

Bibbs descended to the curb. "Why, yes," he said. "You seem to be right." And while he stood staring at the dimly illuminated front windows of Mr. Vertrees' house Mary got out, unassisted.

"Let me help you," said Bibbs, stepping toward her mechanically; and she was several feet from the coupe when he spoke.

"Oh, no," she murmured. "I think I can—" She meant that she could get out of the coupe without help, but, perceiving that she had already accomplished this feat, she decided not to complete the sentence.

"You, Joe!" cried the driver, angrily, climbing to his box. And he rumbled away at his team's best pace—a snail's.

"Thank you for bringing me home, Mr. Sheridan," said Mary, stiffly. She did not offer her hand. "Good night."

"Good night," Bibbs said in response, and, turning with her, walked beside her to the door. Mary made that a short walk; she almost ran. Realization of the queerness of their drive was growing upon her, beginning to shock her; she stepped aside from the light that fell through the glass panels of the door and withheld her hand as it touched the old-fashioned bell handle.

"I'm quite safe, thank you," she said, with a little emphasis. "Good night."

"Good night," said Bibbs, and went obediently. When he reached the street he looked back, but she had vanished within the house.

Moving slowly away, he caromed against two people who were turning out from the pavement to cross the street. They were Roscoe and his wife.

"Where are your eyes, Bibbs?" demanded Roscoe. "Sleep-walking, as usual?"

But Sibyl took the wanderer by the arm. "Come over to our house for a little while, Bibbs," she urged. "I want to—"

"No, I'd better—"

"Yes. I want you to. Your father's gone to bed, and they're all quiet over there—all worn out. Just come for a minute."

He yielded, and when they were in the house she repeated herself with real feeling: "'All worn out!' Well, if anybody is, you are, Bibbs! And I don't wonder; you've done every bit of the work of it. You mustn't get down sick again. I'm going to make you take a little brandy."

He let her have her own way, following her into the dining room, and was grateful when she brought him a tiny glass filled from one of the decanters on the sideboard. Roscoe gloomily poured for himself a much heavier libation in a larger glass; and the two men sat, while Sibyl leaned against the sideboard, reviewing the episodes of the day and recalling the names of the doners of flowers and wreaths. She pressed Bibbs to remain longer when he rose to go, and then, as he persisted, she went with him to the front door. He opened it, and she said:

"Bibbs, you were coming out of the Vertrees' house when we met you. How did you happen to be there?"

"I had only been to the door," he said. "Good night, Sibyl."

"Wait," she insisted. "We saw you coming out."

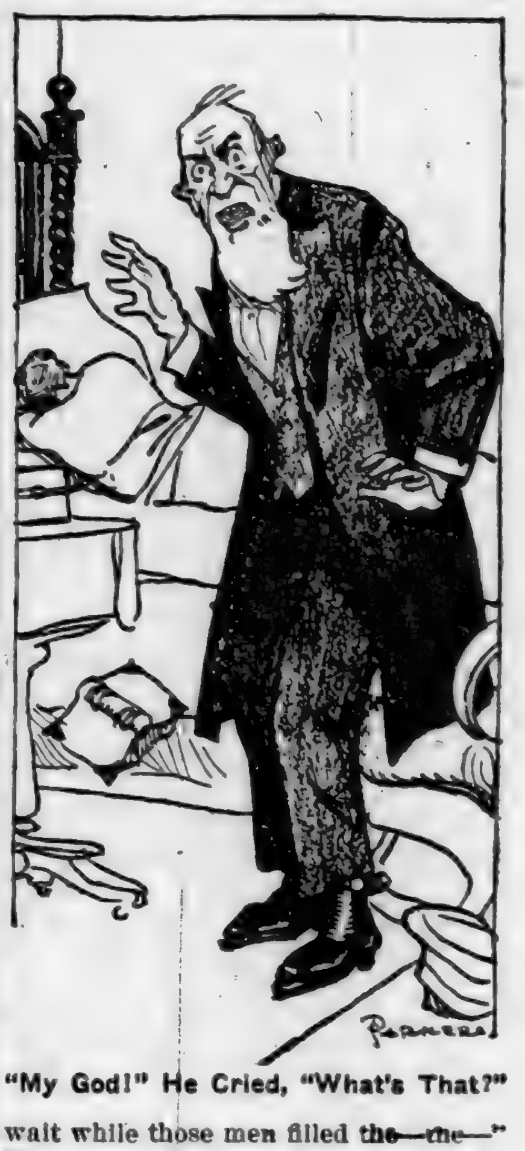
"I wasn't," he explained. "I'd just brought Miss Vertrees home."

"What?" she cried.

"Yes," he said, and stepped out upon the porch, "that was it. Good night, Sibyl."

"Wait!" she said, following him across the threshold. "How did that happen? I thought you were going to wait while those men filled the—the—" She paused, but moved nearer him insistently.

"I did wait. Miss Vertrees was there," he said, reluctantly. "She had walked away for a while and didn't notice that the carriages were leaving. When she came back the coupe waiting for me was the only one left."



"My God!" He Cried, "What's That?"

Sibyl regarded him with dilating eyes. She spoke with a slow breathlessness. "And she drove home from Jim's funeral—with you!"

Without warning she burst into laughter, clapped her hand ineffectually over her mouth, and ran back uproariously into the house, hurling the door shut behind her.

CHAPTER XII.

Bibbs went home pondering. He did not understand why Sibyl had laughed. At home, uncles, aunts and cousins from out of town were wandering about the house, several mournfully admiring the "Bay of Naples," and others occupied with the Moor and the plumbing, while they waited for trains. Edith and her mother had retired to some upper fastness, but Bibbs interviewed Jackson and had the various groups of relatives summoned to the dining room for food. One great-uncle, old Gideon Sheridan from Boonville, could not be found, and Bibbs went in search of him. He ransacked the house, discovering the missing antique at last by accident. Passing his father's closed door on tiptoe, Bibbs heard a murmurous sound, and paused to listen. The sound proved to be a quavering and rickety voice, monotonously bleating:

"The Lo-ord givuth and the Lo-ord takuth away! We got to remember that; we got to remember that! I'm a-gittin' along, James; I'm a-gittin' along, and I've seen a-many of 'em go—two daughters and a son the Lord gave me, and he has taken all away. For the Lo-ord givuth and the Lo-ord takuth away! Remember the words of Bildad the Shuhite, James. Bildad the Shuhite says, 'He shall have neither son nor nephew among his people, nor any remaining in his dwellings.' Bildad the Shuhite—"

Bibbs opened the door softly. His father was lying upon the bed, in his underclothes, face downward, and Uncle Gideon sat near by, swinging backward and forward in a rocking chair, stroking his long, white beard and gazing at the ceiling as he talked. Bibbs beckoned him urgently, but Uncle Gideon paid no attention.

"Bildad the Shuhite spake and he says, 'If thy children have sinned against him and he have cast them away—'"

There was a muffled explosion beneath the floor, and the windows rattled. The figure lying face downward on the bed did not move, but Uncle Gideon leaped from his chair. "My God!" he cried. "What's that?"

Did Mary Vertrees wait at the cemetery until Bibbs was ready to go just because she wanted to make his acquaintance? Jim is dead, you know, and the aristocrats must have money.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Anything Believable.

After reading the actual accounts of the fighting in several regions of the war, we believe every fairy tale we ever read—and "Jack the Giant Killer."

JULY

L 908

0229

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

To the American Public:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employes on all the railroads are voting whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a 100 million dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public service—your service. This army of employes is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation 3 billion dollars a year, and 44 cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employes.

On all the Eastern Railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employes earned these wages (lowest, highest, and average of all) as shown by the payrolls—

	Passenger		Freight		Yard
	Range	Average	Range	Average	Range	Average
Engineers	$1641 3224	$1931	$1585 2992	$1783	$1303 2178	$1543
Conductors	1553 3004	1831	1552 2901	1642	1145 1991	1315
Firemen	951 1704	1128	933 1762	1109	752 1633	935
Brakemen	957 1707	1141	862 1521	973	834 1635	1085

The average yearly wage payments to all Eastern train employes (including those who worked only part of the year) as shown by the 1915 payrolls were—

	Passenger	Freight	Yard
Engineers	$1796	$1546	$1384
Conductors	1724	1404	1238
Firemen	1033	903	844
Brakemen	1018	858	990

A 100 million dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employes) is equal to a 5 per cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law, or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employes' representatives.

Shall a nation-wide strike or an investigation under the Government determine this issue?

National Conference Committee of the Railways

ELISHA LEE, Chairman.
P. R. ALBRIGHT, Gen'l Manager, Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.
L. W. BALDWIN, Gen'l Manager, Central of Georgia Railway.
C. L. BARDO, Gen'l Manager, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.
E. H. COAPMAN, Vice-President, Southern Railway.
S. E. COTTER, Gen'l Manager, Wabash Railway.
P. E. CROWLEY, Asst. Vice-President, New York Central Railroad.
G. H. EMERSON, Gen'l Manager, Great Northern Railway.
C. H. EWING, Gen'l Manager, Philadelphia & Reading Railway.
W. GRICE, Asst. to President, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.
A. S. GREIG, Asst. to Receivers, St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad.
C. W. KOUNS, Gen'l Manager, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway.
H. W. McMASTER, Gen'l Manager, Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad.
N. D. MAHER, Vice-President, Norfolk and Western Railway.
JAMES RUSSELL, Gen'l Manager, Denver & Rio Grande Railroad.
A. M. SCHOYER, Resident Vice-Pres., Pennsylvania Lines West.
W. L. SEDDON, Vice-President, Seaboard Air Line Railway.
A. J. STONE, Vice-President, Erie Railroad.
G. S. WAID, Vice-Pres. & Gen'l Manager, Sunset Central Lines.

Legal Advertising.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

St. Joe, Ind., July 14, 1916.
To all whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Business Meeting of the qualified members of the St Joe Methodist Protestant Church will be held in the said church on Monday, July 31st., 1916, at 7:30 p m., according to the Constitution and Discipline of the Methodist Protestant Church, and the laws of the State of Indiana and the United States of America, for the purpose of transacting the following business:

(1) To hear and consider the Annual Reports of the officers of the Church, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society.

(2) To consider and decide upon necessary rules, regulations, repairs and improvements.

(3) To consider and decide upon the financial budget for the Conference Year of 1916-1917.

(4) To elect by ballot one trustee for the said church to serve for a term of three years.

(5) To elect a Class Leader, Secretary, Stewards and all other officers of the Church.

(6) To cast ballots for a delegate to the Seventy Seventh Annual Session of the Indiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church.

(7) To transact any other business that may come before the Annual Meeting for consideration.

John C. Coons, Pastor.
F. D. Kinsey, Secy.

Fred B. Leighty }
F M. Monroe } Stewards.
Fred Reeder }
Orange Herrick }

St. Joe, Ind., July 14th., 1916.
To all whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Business Meeting of the qualified members of the Fairview Methodist Protestant Church will be held in the said church on Tuesday, August 1st., 1916, at 7:30 P. M., according to the Constitution and Discipline of the Methodist Protestant Church, and the laws of the State of Indiana and the United States of America, for the purpose of transacting the following business:

(1) To hear and consider the Annual Reports of the officers of the Church, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society.

(2) To consider and decide upon necessary rules, regulations, repairs and improvements.

(3) To consider and decide upon the financial budget for the Conference Year of 1916-1917.

(4) To elect by ballot one trustee for the said church to serve for a term of three years.

(5) To elect a Class Leader, Secretary, Stewards and all other officers of the Church.

(6) To cast ballots for a delegate to the Seventy Seventh Annual Session of the Indiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church.

(7) To transact any other business that may come before the Annual Meeting for consideration

John C. Coons, Pastor.
Frank May, Secy.

Sanuel Fellers }
J. W. Sherer } Stewards

PUBLIC NOTICE.

St. Joe, Ind., July 14th., 1916.
To all whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given that the Annual Business Meeting of the qualified members of the Concord Methodist Protestant Church will be held in the said church on Wednesday, August 2nd., 1916, at 7:30 P. M., according to the Constitution and Discipline of the Methodist Protestant Church, and the laws of the State of Indiana and the United States of America, for the purpose of transacting the following business:

(1) To hear and consider the Annual Reports of the officers of the Church, Sunday School and Christian Endeavor Society.

(2) To consider and decide upon necessary rules, regulations, repairs and improvements.

(3) To consider and decide upon the financial budget for the Conference Year of 1916-1917.

(4) To elect by ballot one trustee for the said church to serve for a term of three years.

(5) To elect a Class Leader, Secretary, Stewards and all other officers of the Church.

(6) To cast ballots for a delegate to the Seventy Seventh Annual Session of the Indiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church.

(7) To transact any other business that may come before the Annual Meeting for consideration.

John C. Coons, Pastor.

Martin Wagner }
Geo. Johnson } Stewards
F. A. Provines }

Notice of Ditch Letting.

Notice is hereby given, That the Trustee of Spencer Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, will at the Spencerville High School Building, on the 29th., day of July, 1916 at 2 o'clock P. M., receive bids for the improvement by cleaning and repairing the following ditches:

Geo. Wade, No. 281
Elias Kline, No. 7723
E. L. Dilley, No. 383
Franklin P. Hart, No. 434
James B. Gibford, No. 710
Geddes, No. 890

Plans and specifications are on file in my office showing the number of cubic yards of excavation, where excavation is necessary, and the work to be performed in making such repairs, by sections of one hundred feet.

The successful bidder shall, within 5 days, be required to enter into a contract and give bond with two freehold sureties in a sum not less than double the amount of the contract so awarded

Percy A. Walker,
31— Trustee.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,..............No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

Notice of Ditch Letting.

Notice is hereby given, That the Trustee of Concord Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, will at St. Joe, Ind., on the 31st. dayo f July, 1916, at 10 o'clock a. m., receive bids for the improvement by cleaning and repairing the following ditches, and including the cleaning of ditch banks:

D. P. Hale, No. 29; A. J. Collins, No. 820; Adolphus Widney, Lateral No. 1, No. 310; Adolphus Widney, Main, No. 810; Fred Yesbera, No. 525; David L. Carpenter, No. 8018; Saylor—Showalter, No. 820; Samuel Hindman, No. 814; Samuel Hindman, No. 768; H. M. Widney, No. 712; Elijah Saylor, No 701; Elijah Saylor, No. 812; Letitia Sherer, No. 7649; Daniel Baker, No. 347; James B. Gibford, No. 710; William Knight, Lateral No. 1, No. 641; William Knight, Main, No. 641; J. M. Milliman, No. 310; Geo. Wade, No. 281.

Plans and specifications are on file in my office showing the number of cubic yards of excavation, where excavation is necessary, and the work to be performed in making such repairs, by sections of one hundred feet.

The successful bidder shall, within five days, be required to enter into a contract and give bond with two freehold sureties in a sum not less than double the amount of the contract so awarded.

H. C. Hathaway,
30- Trustee.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching service, 10:30 p. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching Services, 7:30 p. m.

Christian Church Announcements.

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Preaching services, 7:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

Greatest Telescope in World, Now Building, to Weigh Above 500 Tons

Several years ago the Canadian government decided that it wanted the largest telescope in the world, to be set up in the clear air of Vancouver for photographing thousands of stars that had never been photographed before—stars almost inconceivably distant. Light travels at the rate of about 186,000 miles a second; yet some of the starlight to be snared by the Vancouver instrument has been speeding through space for perhaps a million years since it left home, says a writer in the American Magazine.

Of course the job was given to Brashear. A gigantic parabolic mirror—the largest ever made in one piece—was cast in France. It weighed in the rough 4,968 pounds and was 73 inches in diameter. Nearly 400 pounds of glass had been taken from that lens when I saw it in Doctor Brashear's shop, where it is kept in an underground chamber, protected from all air currents. When it is completed and mounted, the telescope will weigh more than 500 tons.

An Individual Lifeboat.

"Carry your own lifeboat," is the motto of an Italian inventor, G. Piperno, who has visited England with what is probably the most ambitious lifesaving appliance on record.

When not in use the apparatus is packed into what looks like a man's suitcase, measuring 24 inches by 16 inches by 8 inches, and weighing 20 pounds. When disaster is imminent the passenger brings the suitcase on deck, breaks the seal, and the apparatus opens out and becomes a small boat.

If it is necessary to abandon the ship, the passenger steps into his private boat, closes the outer cover, and launches his craft by hurling himself overboard. Then, according to Mr. Piperno, the apparatus rights itself in the water, the top cover is thrown open, and the occupant finds himself sitting in an absolutely unsinkable ship.

BUTLER S
HOME-COMING
CELEBRATION

Tuesday, Wednesdy, Thursday, Friday
July 25, 26, 27, 28, 1916

FOUR BIG DAYS

Free Street Exhibitions Every Day
Forenoons, Afternoons and Evenings, by the Kildore Acrobatic Clowns and the Frisco Four, Colored Singers, Dancers, Talkers, Actors.
Free Exhibitions by the Maxwell Concession Co.

Ball game each Afternoon
6 Different Bands. 3 Each Day.

Big Fraternal Parade.
Tuesday Evening. Address by
Hon. James E. Watson
Republican candidate for U. S. Senator, at 8:00 p. m.

Big Automobile Parade.
With school children Wednesday forenoon. Address by Hon. James E. Jayne, the Billy Bryan of Indiana, and Prof. L. W. Fairfield.

Industrial and Fantastic Parade.
Thursday forenoon. Political speaking by U. S. District Attorney, L. Ert Slack, Democrat; Judge E. A. Dausman, Republican candidate for Appelate Judge.

Friday Festival Day.
Coronation of Queen of the Home Coming. La-Grange Corn School Visiting Day. Speaking by Hon. Archibald M. Hall, Republican.

100 Per Cent.
INCREASED EARNINGS.

The following is fac-simile of certificate of Bond issued to each Depositor in this Bank.

No. ____________ Grabill, Ind.,____________19____
Mr. ______________________________
THIS IS TO CERTIFY that your DEPOSITS in this bank are INSURED under a bond of THE AMERICAN GUARANTY COMPANY of Columbus, Ohio.
THE GRABILL STATE BANK.
PRESERVE THIS. By Albert Egly, Cashier.

Postal Savings pay 2 per cent. Interest and the money is placed in banks who have to furnish a Bond to the government to guarantee that the funds are safe in that Bank.

We pay 4 per cent. Interest and give you the same guarantee. An increased earning of 100 per cent.

THIS is the only Bank in this community thus insuring its depositors.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

It Will Pay You to become a regular advertiser in —This Paper—

Yes, We Do
Job Work
You will find our prices satisfactory
Come in

JULY

L 908

0230

BETTER SERVICE TO YOU.

❋ ❋

We don't want you to think of the Farmers and Merchants State Bank just as a place to deposit your money, although of course we are glad to have you keep as large a balance with us as is possible.

It is our desire to render our patrons every service and accommodation that can reasonably be expected to us.

Our Bookkeeping Machine, makes it possible for us to give you better service in the handling of your account than ever before.

By the machine method, your account is kept in balance all the time. If, as sometimes happens, you want a statement of your balance in a hurry, we can give it to you, including to-days checks and deposits, in less than five minutes.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

SPENCERVILLE

Phone Jack Beams if you have any Chickens for sale.

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Geo. Beams and family, of the County Line, were Sunday guests of Henry Beams and wife

Donald and Harriett Akey, and lady friend, of Leo, were Saturday evening guests of Leavitt Akey and family.

Rev. Mumma and family, and the Misses Leone Widderfield and Julia Baker and Mrs. Vern Wilmot spent Saturday at Ft Wayne.

Master Roy Bowser, who has been staying at the home of his uncle, Homer Bowser, of Huntertown, for over six weeks, returned home Sunday evening.

Perry Fredrick, of Big Rapids, Mich., visited at the home of his brother Friday. Mr. Fredrick was called here by the serious illness of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Parker of Huntertown.

The Girls Pansy Club will be entertained at the home of Cleo and Ada Bowser, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. John Beninghoff will be present and the club will be reorganized. All girls interested should be present.

Many from this place attended the funeral of Mrs. Edward Myers of near Hopewell, who died very suddenly at her home, Friday. The funeral was held Sunday morning at the Hopewell church. Interment in the Woodlawn Cemetery at Auburn.

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Sell your Chickens to Jack Beams.

Born to Leavitt Akey and wife, last Friday, a son.

R. U. Bowser and wife spent Saturday afternoon at Butler.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Mortie Widderfield and family were Sunday dinner guests of Harvey Kimes, Jr. and family.

Rev. A. K. Mumma and family spent Friday evening at Harlan, the guests of Rev. W. S. Oberholtzer and family.

John Horn and wife, Mrs. Leila Hart, Newton Miller and family and Frank Horn and wife were Sunday guests at the home of D. K. Horn and family.

Helen and Angella Shook left Saturday evening for their home near Auburn after spending several weeks at the home of their uncle, Dr. B. O. Shook and family.

Perry Henderson and wife, of Montpelier, Ohio; John Henderson and wife, and Glenn Henderson, wife and son John, were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Jack Henderson and wife.

Mrs. Georgia Jenkins, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Lillian Shull and family, of Hart, Mich., returned home Saturday. Her nephew, Wellington Shull returning with her for a few weeks visit.

John Beninghoff, wife and son Golden, and lady friend, Miss Helen Bowman of St. Joe; Arthur Heyman, wife and daughter Mary Ellen, and Wm. Benninghoff and wife, of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday at Hamilton Lake.

Sell Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 12
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Dean is able to sit up a little at this time.

Mrs. Lillian Benninghoff, who returned from Ft. Wayne hospital a couple of weeks ago, is improving slowly.

Mrs. Leah Blood and the two infant children of Grant Ames and wife are on the sick list.

Howard Smith visited relatives in Ft. Wayne, last week.

The W. C. T. U., will meet with Mrs. Grant Ames, Friday afternoon. They will observe Mother's Day.

Levon and Earl McDonald, of Butler, were Sunday guests of John Miller and family.

A letter from Dewey Miller, Camp Willis, Columbus, says he is doing fine so far. He says, he and a number of others were vaccinated last Friday, some of the boys were quite sick, but Dewey says it did not effect him that way. Sixteen year old, Carl Clark of Hicksville, is their corporal. He has been enlisted since about 12 years old.

Mrs. Josephine F. DeLong died Monday, July 10th., after a few weeks illness, the result of a nerveous breakdown caused by the sudden death of her husband, G. F. DeLong about 8 weeks ago. Mrs. DeLong was about 63 years of age. She leaves an adopted daughter, Mrs. Frank Fitch. Deceased was a member of the U. B. church and the president of the Willing Workers Sunday School Class. She was also the Secretary of the U. B. Ladies Aid Society. The funeral was held Thursday from the U. B. Church. Rev. Keesey officiating, assisted by Rev. Lilly, of Hicksville, and Rev. Beauchamp, of Corunna. Interment in Newville Evergreen cemetery in care of funeral directors, Mr. and Mrs. Hosac, of Hicksville.

A Friend in Need.

When Glando Gargle is used for a cold in the head it is surprising to see how quickly the clogged nostrils are opened. Adenoids are caused by a neglected cold. If the mucus which forms is allowed to remain in the nostrils, a diseased condition will result, which causes chronic catarrh and adenoids. Glando Gargle was prepared to meet these special needs. Equally effective for sore mouth or sore throat. Price 50 cents. For sale by All Druggists.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Lewis Markle and wife, and Martin Beery and wife visited Sunday with James Oberholtzer and wife.

Ed Billman and wife, Frank Wertman and wife, and Glenn Steward spent Sunday at Garrett the guest of Arthur Steward and family.

D. M. Kelley and two daughters, Lena and Nellie, called Sunday on Samuel Kelley of Milan Center.

Alvin Keesler and wife, Ami Baker and wife, and Elma Elpetuse, of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday with Harvey Kimes, Sr., and Minnie Thompson.

Harvey Kimes, Sr., and Ira Smith made a business trip to Wayne, Saturday.

John Koch and wife, Grace Cook and Lena Kelley attended the Epworth League Conference held at Garrett, Friday evening. They report the rally very interesting. Light refreshments were served.

Mark Tyndall, who has been working at Wayne, spent Sunday with his parents, W. S. Tyndall and wife.

Lewis and Eli Beery, of Spencerville; Mrs. Repp and daughter Daisy, of New Haven; and Mrs. Cummins were Sunday afternoon callers at the home of Henry Beery and wife.

Mrs. Ada Glass of Wayne, was a Sunday guest of her sister, Mrs. Chas. Essley and family.

Lee Robb and son Lewis, of Ft Wayne, Reuben Deitrick and wife, and Mrs. Wm. Goldsmith and children visited Sunday with Milo Beam and wife.

The Misses Cora and Jesse Brown, of Coletown, spent Sunday with their brother, William Brown and wife.

Delta McKinley, Edna Dinius, Mrs. Della Smith and Florence Kimes were Hicksville shoppers Saturday.

Mrs. Farver and daughters, of Auburn, were Friday guests of Mrs. Earl Stiman and family.

Chas. Gibbons and wife, and Edward Shumaker spent Sunday with Chas. Essley and family.

Notice

Persons who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale: 7 year old horse and a good 1-horse wagon. J. B. Haifley.

For Service: Poll Angus bull at $1.50 cash. Francis Lothamer.

The Gossip Say-

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

Mr. Philley and family, of Celina, Ohio, spent a few hours Wednesday with Kate A. Leighty.

The Lutheran Sunday School will hold a picnic for their scholars, Thursday, Aug. 3, at the Erick Grove, south of town.

Eleven room house on West Main St., for sale or rent. Other well located residence properties and vacant lots for sale on easy terms. S. S. WIDNEY.

Come in and pay that over-due subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

Slipped Back Ten Years!

When asked the secret of her youthful and healthful appearance, a well known woman of Paulding county, Ohio, said: "For several years I was in poor health, I felt tired and achy, was nervous and irritable, my digestion was poor, I had dizzy spells, was troubled considerable with constipation, and had an ugly, splotchy complexion. A friend persuaded me to use GLANDO Tonic. One box helped me so I tried another, and some weeks later I took the third box. Now my liver and kidneys are working nicely and I feel like a new person. My complexion has cleared wonderfully. I can heartily recommend GLANDO to others, as I am sure it can do as much for them as it has for me." By writing to The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind., names and addresses of persons who have been helped by GLANDO will be given. GLANDO is sold by druggists. A 50c. package contains a week's treatment.

In Society

On Friday evening, June 30, occurred one of the most pleasant and long to be remembered gatherings held in some time, the occasion being the 52nd. birthday anniversary of John B. Crofoot, who lives two miles west of Kendallville. A company of 76 of his friends and neighbors gathered at the Crofoot home and gave "Johnny" the surprise of his life.

For weeks, his children, Mrs. Edna Pope and her husband, Roy Pope, and the Misses Violet and Juliet Crofoot, had planned and worked to make this surprise complete. They were successful. So in the evening, Verne Haywood, knowing "Johnny" to be a good judge of stock, took his auto and with Uncle John Leeper, W. E. Peterson and Earl Crofoot, went to Rome City to buy a cow, but of course the owner of the cow was not at home. Of course they had to return home, but in the meantime the friends had gathered and were in waiting, so as to make the surprise complete.

The evening was spent with music and recitations, a fine solo by Lester Blackman; music by the Crofoot orchestra and some enjoyable selections by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Manchester on the piano and graphaphone. Little Miss Florence Winegard brought down the house with her German recitation. Refreshments were served Many presents to Mr. Crofoot were in evidence. From the company was a beautiful chair, the presentation of which was made by W. E. Peterson, in a few well-chosen words. Mr. Crofoot was too overcome with emotion to respond and all he could do was to thank each one and everyone for their kind remembrance of him, and assert that if Mrs. Crofoot, who now is making a visit in Portland, Oregon, had been present to enjoy his surprise with him, his joy would have been complete.

Those from out-of-town were:—Mr. and Mrs. Warren Manchester, Indianapolis; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Peterson, St. Joe, Ind.; Miss Dessie Carson, Connersville, Pa.; Mrs. Emma Pope, Fortville, Ind., and Miss Leta Parks, South Bend, Ind. —Kendallville Standard News, July 5th.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED SORE, ACHING FEET

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet, swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more pain in corns callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug or department store, and get relief

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Frank W. Silberg
Veterinarian
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
—ON—
Main Street
SPENCERVILLE, - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7
(31) Residence No. 101

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township
OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser
Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.
Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Offices first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest in America
Strongest in the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP
Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

L 908

0231

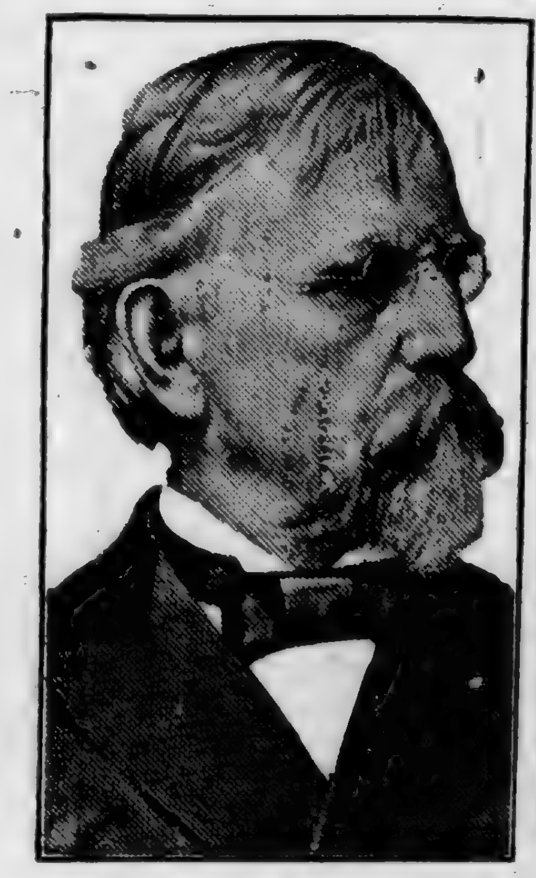
INDIANIANS IN FRONT RANK

State Produces Many Famous Men and Women Who Have Left Their Impress Upon the World—On Battlefield and in Legislative Halls Indiana's Sons Have Done Their Share.

IS THE LITERARY HUB OF AMERICA

By ELLIS SEARLES

Indiana as a state may well point with pride to the number of famous and noted men and women who have left their impress upon the world in the first one hundred years of the state's history. When Indiana became a state in 1816, just one hundred years ago, the centennial celebration of which event is observed this year, it was sparsely settled with a hardy people who had before them the difficult and dangerous task of carving out a future for the new commonwealth. Such a task called for men and women of the type that knows nothing of the word "failure." The first one hundred years of the state's history proves that the spirit of pluck, the genius and the native culture of the people of the new state has not been lost among the succeeding generations.



Gen. Lew Wallace.

Indiana has given the nation one president, Benjamin Harrison, who was one of the ablest statesmen that has ever occupied that high office. It has give four vice-presidents. The first was Schuyler Colfax, who was elected with President U. S. Grant and served from 1869 to 1873; Thomas A. Hendricks, who was elected with President Grover Cleveland and served but nine months of his term, until he died on November 25, 1885; Charles W. Fairbanks, who was elected with President Theodore Roosevelt and served from 1905 to 1909, and Thomas R. Marshall, who was elected with President Woodrow Wilson in 1912 and is the present occupant of that office.

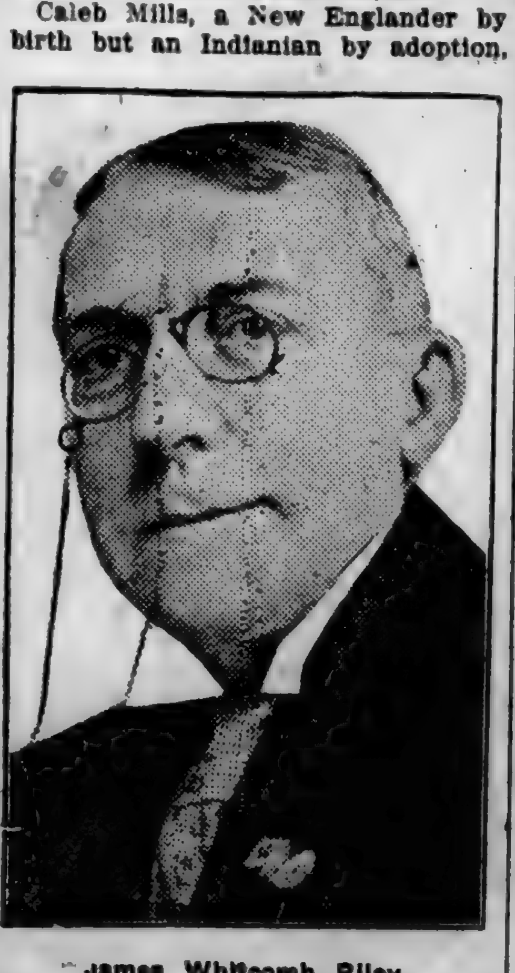
William Henry Harrison, who was territorial governor of Indiana before the birth of the state, was a great soldier and executive. He was the father of William Henry Harrison, who was president of the United States in 1841, serving but one month until his death. The latter was the father of President Benjamin Harrison.

Indiana's First Governor.

Another man who left his impress on the new state was Jonathan Jennings, the first governor. Jennings led the fight against slavery in Indiana which succeeded in having it abolished and forever prohibited in the state. He was a Wayne county citizen.

John Paul of Madison was the first president of the state senate, in 1816. Isaac Blackford of Vincennes was the first speaker of the house. Indiana's first United States senators were James Noble and Walter Taylor.

Caleb Mills, a New Englander by birth but an Indianian by adoption, was the father of the system of free schools maintained by direct taxation.



James Whitcomb Riley.

Gov. Joseph A. Wright, who was not noted for other things, was, in fact, the "patron of husbandry" in early Indiana. He believed in the development of agriculture and he brought about the organization of the first state board of agriculture.

Hugh McCulloch of Fort Wayne was one of the most noted financiers in the entire history of the nation. He was secretary of the treasury in the administration of President Grant, when the financial system and the financial condition of the country were such as to call for the ablest financial judgment and the hardest of labor. Mr. McCulloch's portrait still appears on certain denominations of paper currency.

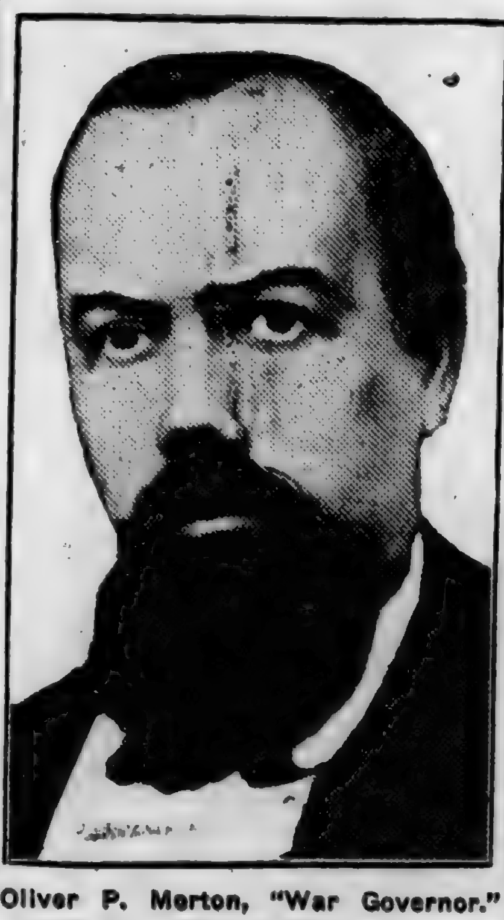
Walter Q. Gresham was another Indiana man who reached high places in the history of the nation. He was a great jurist on the bench of the United States courts. He was postmaster general in the cabinet of President Arthur in 1882 and was secretary of state under President Cleveland.

Among the other noted federal judges in Indiana have been William A. Woods, John H. Baker, Francis E. Baker and the present judge, Albert B. Anderson.

Perhaps no Indiana man in the one hundred years of its history left behind him a greater influence for good in public life than Oliver P. Morton, the "war governor" of Indiana. Governor Morton was a Wayne county man. Before the Civil war he took a determined stand for the maintenance of the Union and against the secession movement. On this issue he was elected governor. His administration was one continuous period of perilous and thrilling times. He fought for the preservation of the Union with all of his might and power. He used the state's credit without authority for the purpose of equipping regiments of Indiana soldiers for service in the war, and the legislature later approved his actions and paid all bills. Governor Morton was the inspiration that moved more than two hundred thousand men of Indiana to enlist in the Union army. His patrotism was hard and fast.

Many Distinguished Soldiers.

Indiana supplied a number of high and distinguished officers to the Union army. The leading ones were: Generals George Chapman, Benjamin Harrison, A. D. Streight, John Coburn, R. S. Foster, George F. McGinnis, Alvin D. Hovey, James R. Slack, Robert H. Milroy, Willis A. Gorman, Lew Wallace, John T. Wilder, Thomas A. Morris and General Hackelman.



Oliver P. Morton, "War Governor."

The most noted Indiana general in the Spanish-American war was Gen. Henry W. Lawton, a regular army officer appointed from this state. General Lawton went through that war and was sent to subdue the rebellious Filipinos, and he was killed on the firing line in the Philippines. A monument to his memory stands in Garfield park, at Indianapolis.

When Benjamin Harrison was elected president he came to Indiana for his attorney general, as a member of his cabinet, and he appointed William H. H. Miller of Indianapolis.

Henry Ward Beecher, as a young man, served as pastor of a church at Indianapolis, and it was while in that city that he really rose to national fame.

Abraham Lincoln lived for several years in Spencer county, Indiana. He came to that county from Kentucky with his father and mother when he was a young man, and he helped to transform the forest into a habitable place. It was in Spencer county that his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, died and was buried, and the state looks after her grave. From Indiana Abraham Lincoln went to Illinois, from which state he was elected president.

Shortly after the Civil war Andrew Carnegie was for a time an Indiana citizen. He was a poor young telegraph operator on one of the early railroads.

Thomas A. Edison, the great wizard of invention, also lived in Indiana for a short time many years ago, and it was in this state that he conceived some of the ideas that later made him the world's most noted inventor.

One Indiana man, still living and in active business, whose name should go down in the history of the state is Elwood Haynes of Kokomo. He produced the first automobile ever made, and he is still in the automobile manufacturing business.

Literary Hub of America.

When it comes to literature, Indiana now stands as the literary hub of America. It has been said that every person in Indiana is an author, and it seems as if this bold statement is true. John Clark Ridpath, the historian, was an Indiana man. Included in the list of Indiana authors are Booth Tarkington, Meredith Nicholson, the late Charles Major, Maurice Thompson, Gene Stratton Porter, Juliet Strouse, known to all newspaper and magazine readers as "The Country Contributor," and so many others that they cannot all be mentioned. And who does not love James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, whose songs of everyday life have touched the heart of the civilized world? Riley is, perhaps, the most universally loved poet in the world today, and his "Old Swimmin' Hole," "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," "Out to Old Aunt Mary's," "The Gob'luns," and "When the Frost Is on the Punkin'" and many other poems will live as long as the English language is spoken.

Charles W. Fairbanks.

George Ade, Hoosier humorist, has made more people laugh than perhaps any other present-day writer. And Kin Hubbard, whose "Abe Martin" has become famous for his homely philosophy and satire on the fads and foibles of men and women, is another Indiana humorist of the first rank.

Albert J. Beveridge stands out prominently among the statesmen who have gone from Indiana into the councils of the nation. He served twelve years as United States senator and forged his way to the front rank of those who did things. Since his retirement from the United States senate Beveridge has devoted his time to writing books and for the magazines. He wrote "The Russian Advance" while still a member of the senate, and other books followed. His most pretentious work, however, is "The Life of John Marshall," the first chief justice of the United States Supreme court, on which he is still at work.

Other Prominent Men.

Charles W. Fairbanks was a member of the United States senate from Indiana before he became vice-president, and his dignified and conservative statesmanship was a powerful influence in the shaping of national affairs.

United States Senator John W. Kern, at present the majority leader of the senate, is a native Indiana man. He was once the Democratic nominee for vice-president.

David Starr Jordan, president of Leland Stanford university and one of the leading educators of the country, was for several years president of Indiana university.

Robert J. Aley, now the president of the University of Maine, resigned as state superintendent of public instruction of Indiana to accept that position.

In religion, in science, in education, in art, in literature, in finance, in business, in industry, in statesmanship, in fact in all of the varied activities of national life, Indiana has contributed at least her share of those who have risen to the high places. The list is a long one, and it tells the story of the march of civilization and the advancement of culture, education and accomplishment that has characterized the first century of the state's history.

Seeing the Heavens.

An estimation of the number of stars seen with the aid of the modern telescope was a few years ago made at 125,000,000. According to a more recent estimate there are about 219,000,000 stars brighter than the twentieth magnitude. Professor Hale has recently stated that "there is reason to hope that the 100-inch telescope would add nearly 100 still fainter stars, many of them lying beyond the boundary of the universe as at present known," and within a year or so such a telescope (i. e., a reflector) will probably be in use in North America.

INDIANA BRIGADE FACING MEXICO

Hoosier Guardsmen Have Left Fort Harrison Deserted and Silent.

WELL TREATED GOING SOUTH

Citizens of Many Towns on Way Gave Our Boys Best They Had—Wreck in Missouri—Leave-taking Sad.

Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.—Old Hoosierdom at last has got all her boys off to the Mexican border in a somewhat belated response to our nation's call. Camp Ralston is practically deserted. The Indiana brigade is trying to acclimate itself to a steady temperature of 100 to 110 in the shade and to maintain health and appetite in spite of the dust, bugs and Mexicans.

The state's soldiers are just getting settled in camp in Texas and haven't much more than raised their tents after the long journey from the North. So it is too soon to expect details of the new life. Letters to thousands of Indiana homes are being received this week describing the trip through the middle West and Southwest.

It was both sad and gay—Indiana's good-by to her sons in khaki. Wives, mothers and sweethearts were open and above board in their misery and longing and love—honest tears. But the boys—they stalled and coughed and complained about the dust in their eyes, and didn't fool anybody for one instant, not even themselves.

Cordial Greeting Everywhere.

The friendly and cordial greeting given the Indiana troops along the road was remarkable. At every town, village and city a great crowd turned out and the enthusiasm ran high. Even at places that during the Civil war were noted as hotbeds of secession, the buildings were decorated, flags waved and the people cheered. In some places the factory whistles blew long and loud, and in one little town every church bell rang as the train was passing through. Postal employees were at every stop to gather the mail the troops wished to send home, and in the larger cities representatives of the chamber of commerce or other civic bodies asked whether there was anything that the soldiers needed. Everywhere the sentiment to help the boys who were going to the front prevailed. It was an exhibition of friendliness that the trainmen said they never saw before.

Lauds Indiana Soldiers.

While the Indiana artillery boys were exercising at one of the stops along the way, a citizen of the town approached Major Tyndall with the question: "Are these regulars?" "No, sir," answered the major. "They are part of the Indiana National Guard." "Well," said the citizen, "they look and act more like regulars than any troops that have passed through here and I have watched the troops of 25 trains that have stopped here." The major was well pleased with the compliment and sent the word down the line to the soldiers, who gave three husky cheers in acknowledgement.

Troop Train Wrecked.

Battery A, of the Guard, on the way to the Mexican border, was in a wreck. Nobody was injured, not a man receiving a scratch.

The wreck occurred 200 miles southwest of St. Louis and resulted in many hours' delay and the changing of Maj. Robert H. Tyndall's headquarters from the Battery A train to the train transporting Battery C.

The accident which occurred near Northview, Mo., demonstrated the magnificent discipline of Battery A, for in less than five minutes the entire battery was parading up and down a dusty road, looking either to the right nor to the left, and the members were not dismissed from drill until the excitement was over.

Usual Wreck Ahead.

One hundred and fifty miles west of St. Louis occurred the usual "wreck ahead." A freight engine pulling a heavy train uphill lost the tire of a wheel, and not only was the headquarters train held up at a little station for two hours, but two regular passenger trains and several freight trains were bunched up. Good came of it, however, for the troopers were able to get a fine dinner on the dining cars of the regular trains. During the delay Batteries B and C, following the headquarters train in two sections, came up, and for more than an hour the entire Indiana battalion of artillery was together.

Reception for Lewis.

Soon after Brig. Gen. Edward M. Lewis, now in command of the infantry brigade of Indiana, arrived in Indianapolis he was the central figure in an informal reception given for him by Gov. Samuel M. Ralston to a large group of state officials. The state officials had waited about half an hour for the arrival of General Lewis. When he appeared at the governor's office, in company with Evan B. Stotsenburg, a boyhood friend of the general at New Albany, and Col. Leslie R. Naftzger.

Calls Guard "Bully."

"Bully" was the word used by Brigadier General Lewis in expressing his opinion of the Indiana guardsmen's camp.

"I think you have a bully camp here," said General Lewis. "I have found everything in splendid condition. My first concern as commander of the brigade will be for the health of these men, and I will do everything that I can to make things as comfortable as possible for the Indiana brigade in Texas."

General Lewis gave an intimation of what may be the duties of the Indiana troops on the border, and expressed the hope that the entire brigade of infantry can be kept together in a fashion similar to the camp at Indianapolis. A regular camp of instruction will probably be conducted, and if that plan can be carried out the Indiana men will receive the best training afforded.

The Thrilling Scene.

I have been thrilled by stage spectacles, and like every other woman have wept when a beloved hero or heroine has been swept into the toils of the villain, said one woman, but I witnessed a scene at Fort Benjamin Harrison that will live forever in my memory. The incident was the lowering of the tents of the Third regiment of the Indiana National Guard in preparation for leaving for the Mexican border.

With a friend I was strolling across the fields of the army reservation. The big brown, or, rather, the yellowish brown tents, presented an inspiring picture. My friend stopped. He looked toward the Third infantry, his trained military eye telling him that something was about to happen.

A bugle sounded from afar. Then with a suddenness that both frightened and thrilled me, I saw the city of tents, which a moment before had stood serenely in the heat of the July sun, tumble to the ground as though blown down by a giant's breath.

Near us, and under a tree, stood a soldier and a girl, perhaps his sweetheart, perhaps his sister. Or it may have been his wife. That doesn't matter.

Her hand grasped the arm of the khaki-uniformed soldier man—and she whispered, while her voice was hoarse with sobs she tried to keep back.

"Now I know you are going away."

University Soldiers.

From across the fields floated the words of a song that I heard when the boys were leaving from a northern town at the time of the Spanish-American war, "Good-by, Dollie Gray." Then followed some college yells.

"What's that?" I asked.

"Boys from Indiana university," came the reply.

They were having a jolly time anticipating their going away, as they expect, by cleaning their "fixin's" (I show that I do not know proper army terms).

Always Her Baby.

One could not help but get the martial spirit. I found myself listening to the farewells being said by mothers who had come for the last time to bid their sons good-by. One stalwart soldier bent his head and, as his mother clasped him in her arms, it was plain to see that again he was just her little boy. He was her baby.

Yet she smiled and said: "Good-by, my son."

He was not so brave. His eyes filled with tears as he watched her walk away with bowed head.

The Pride of Motherhood.

A little woman with a worn dress and the heels almost worn off her shoes sat in the grass while a boy—I say a boy, because he looked scarcely more than seventeen—lay with his head in her lap. He slept. She never took her eyes off his face.

He was her baby.

I asked about her. I was told that she was a widow, and this her only son. She was told that if she wished she could prevent her boy's going away. Her only answer was: "I am proud that my boy loves his country enough to go." Each day he was in camp she visited him, bringing little luxuries that probably she could ill afford.

A Split Honeymoon.

Miss Leila Popenhaus and Maurice Hodapp, both of Seymour, were married at the quarters of the Seymour company of the Second regiment by Rev. Charles L. Graham of Seymour just before the groom's departure for Texas. The wedding had been planned for early morning, but when Miss Popenhaus arrived Hodapp was on the drill ground. Miss Popenhaus waited in the shade of the officers' tent until noon when the wedding ceremony was witnessed by the whole company. Mrs. Hodapp returned to Seymour and Hodapp set forth to the Mexican border on his honeymoon alone.

Forming Artillery Battalion.

Franklin L. Bridges, adjutant general, is devoting his attention now primarily to the formation of the Second artillery battalion from Indiana, and until that is accomplished, the formation of other units of the National Guard will not be attempted.

He said that men, which may compose two batteries at Fort Wayne, now are being examined physically, and that the mustering in of at least one battery at Fort Wayne will proceed at once. Two new batteries may be mustered in there shortly.

NEED OF BETTER FARMING METHODS

Prof. Christie of Purdue Speaks to Fertilizer Men.

DEMAND FOR FOOD STUFFS

Most Land Under Cultivation Now, but There Must Be More Science Employed In Raising Future Crops.

Hot Springs, Va.—"The present high cost of living would indicate that the production of food products is not keeping pace with consumption. Today, there is but little new agricultural territory to be developed in the United States and the increase in farm products for the future must come in a large measure, from land already under cultivation," said Prof. G. I. Christie, Superindent of Agricultural Extension Work at Purdue university, before the National Fertilizer association convention here. "The New Agriculture" was the subject of his address.

Agriculture Great Business.

"Agriculture is the great business and industry of the state and country, and the farm must be brought to a high state of productivity to meet the demand of the rapidly increasing population. It is a problem of industrial efficiency as well as that of social co-operation," continued Professor Christie. "Comfortable homes, the best of schools, community churches, community centers, good roads and a more permanent and satisfying social life must be provided for. This can be done only when the land owners and their families are willing to remain on the farm and expend their energy and money in the building up and maintaining of rural institutions."

Demand for Food Stuffs.

"The large and rapidly increasing population makes an unprecedented demand upon the farmers for food stuffs. A study of statistics shows that the population of the United States has practically doubled every twenty-five years. A few years ago new states and territories were being occupied and an increased supply of farm products placed upon the market. This acquiring and developing of new lands did much to keep production ahead of consumption and meet the needs of an increasing population," continued Professor Christie.

Better Wheat Yields.

"The average yield of wheat in the United States for the past ten years was 14.8 bushels per acre. A few years ago the yield of wheat in England and Germany was really lower than that found in the United States. Through fertilization and a better crop system, these countries have been able gradually to increase the average yield of the wheat crop until at this time it ranges about 36 bushels per acre. On the farm of Purdue university, where conditions are similar to those of a large area of wheat lands, through a good rotation of crops and proper fertilization the average yield of wheat for the past thirty years has reached 28 bushels per acre. These, with other examples clearly demonstrated that it is possible materially to increase the yield of wheat throughout the country."

Need County Agents.

Prof. Christie then told how 238 farmers in Indiana grew 5 acres of corn each last year, from which an average yield of 72.4 bushels per acre was obtained, or just about double the average yield of the state. The average cost of producing an acre of corn in Indiana is $19.16 or 37.10 cents a bushel. The 238 farmers who raised 72.4 bushels per acre did so at an average cost of $13.52 per acre or 18.6 cents per bushel, showing clearly that the high yields are not only profitable because of the total value but because there is a greater net profit on each bushel produced. Professor Christie explained the importance and development of the county agent movement throughout the country at considerable length and pointed out how the county agent works in connection with other agencies to bring about better schools, better churches, better roads and recognition of the country's greatest business and industry.—Agriculture.

Her Proof.

"I've brought back those eggs you gave me this morning," said the new bride, as she began to take the articles in question from her basket. "They're duck eggs."

"Duck eggs!" sneered the grocery-boss. "You're mistaken, ma'am. I don't never sell no duck eggs."

"But I tested them," triumphed the matrimonial novice. "I dropped them into water and they floated."—Judge.

Of Course, It Takes Cash.

"Is George doing nicely at college?" asked the sympathetic friend. "Yes, indeed," said the fond mother, "and taking such an interest in his studies, too. Why, only last week he wrote home to his father asking for funds with which to pursue his investigation of dramatic celebrities."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Didn't Give Her a Chance.

He—What you need is a complete change.

She—But you keep on calling.

JULY

L 908

0232

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX　ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY JULY 27 1916　NO. 31

LOCAL ITEMS.

Patronize the advertisers.

For Sale: Blackberries.
Mrs. Carl Johnston.

Mrs. S. B Bernard was at Fort Wayne, Monday.

C. T. Bayman and wife were Ft. Wayne visitors, Sunday.

WANTED—To buy your Hay, C. E. Frye, Phone 73-31, St. Joe.

Mrs. B F. Hostetler, of Wayne, was a Saturday evening guest of Will Randall and wife.

J. C. F. Abel and wife spent Sunday afternoon with their son, Glenn and wife, at Spencerville.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price left Sunday for Ft. Wayne for a two weeks vacation. They will visit other places also.

A number of our folks attended the Chautauqua at Auburn, last week. The talent was fine and it was time well spent.

James Rhodenbaugh, wife and daughter Irma, Mr. Droke of Marion; P. A. Shurts and daughter, Miss Pearl, attended the Show at Auburn, Saturday.

Wm. Maxwell, of east of town, purchased a Maxwell car and Newton Miller, on the County Line, purchased a Chevrolet car of C. A. Patterson, last week.

J. P. Buckinghams' and C. A Pattersons' spent Sunday with Miss Shordon and her parents at Wayne. She will return to St. Joe to teach school next year.

Mrs. Addie Filley spent Wednesday and Thursday with her daughter at Adrian, Mich. Friday she went to Marion to visit another daughter, Mrs. Nina Kees. Miss Sarah Bartlett is looking after her home while she is gone.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

M. P.	106	$3.90
Lutheran	104	3 86
Christian	63	2.24
Concord	116
Fairview	25	.76
Coburntown	93	2.30
U. B.	83	3.03
M. E. Spencer	93	5.43
Lutheran	110	2 93

J. H. Leighty is at Lake Wawasee spending the week.

Wm. Curie made a business trip to Garrett and Wayne, Monday.

Mrs. Sam Kees, Mrs. John Hart, James Rhodenbaugh and wife, and Sol Barney were Ft Wayne visitors Monday.

Miss Flossie Sechler is working in the post office during the absence of Miss Inez Hart, who is on her vacation.

Mrs. Mary Scholes, Mrs. Emma Abel and Mrs. Ida Williams were Sunday dinner guests of Frank Scholes and wife.

Alfred Reasoner and wife, of Concord, and Ye editor and family were Sunday guests of G. N. George and family.

Martin White and family and son-in-law, Roy White and family and Fitz Harris, were guests of S. S. Wolff and wife, last Sunday.

Thomas Elliott, of Grand Rapids, Mich., brother-in-law of Fred Reeder, spent last Monday in St. Joe, returning home in the evening.

Boys and Girls bring us your paper sacks. For good clean sacks we will pay 1c. for 25 lb. sacks, and 2c. for 50lb. sacks.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Bert Leonard, of Wayne, was home over Sunday the guest of his family. Three children returned Monday with him to spend the day.

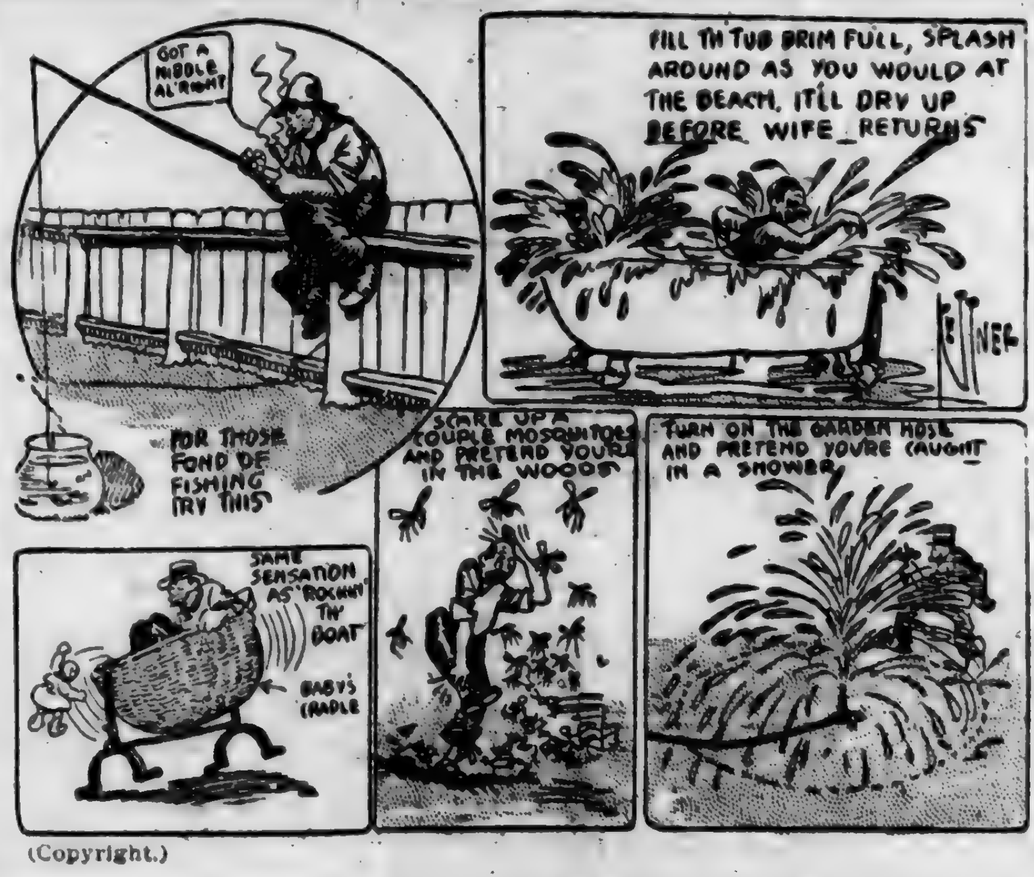
Miss Bessie Kinsey and gentleman friend, and Miss Chloe Houk, of Ft. Wayne and Harry Kinsey, of Angola, spent Sunday in the George Kinsey home.

The Loyal Boys and Girls Class of the Christian Sunday School enjoyed the day at Erick grove, Sunday, together with their teachers, Clark Scholes and Miss Ruth Perry.

The Lutheran Sunday School of this place will picnic in the Erick grove, south of town, on Thursday of next week. The Spencerville school will join them and an invitation is given to anyone else who desires to spend the day with them.

Mrs. Laura Whaley and daughter, Mrs. Wes Boydstod and two children, of Topeka, Kan., came last week for a 10 days visit with C. Curie and wife and other relatives. Four generations are represented in the Curie home at this time.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE STAY-AT-HOMES



GOT A NIBBLE AL'RIGHT
FOR THOSE FOND OF FISHING TRY THIS FILL TH TUB BRIM FULL, SPLASH AROUND AS YOU WOULD AT THE BEACH, IT'LL DRY UP BEFORE WIFE RETURNS
SAME SENSATION AS ROCKIN' TH' BOAT
BABY'S CRADLE
SCARE UP A COUPLE MOSQUITOES AND PRETEND YOU'RE IN THE WOODS
TURN ON THE GARDEN HOSE AND PRETEND YOU'RE CAUGHT IN A SHOWER

(Copyright.)

George Milliman and son Merritt, were Ft. Wayne visitors, Thursday.

Mrs. Milo Provines, of near Auburn, was the guest of her parents from Saturday until Monday.

J. C. Brown and wife, of Kinderhook, Mich., spent part of last week with Otto Ginther and family.

R. V. Andress, wife and little niece, of Kendallville, spent several days last week, with M. E. Leighty and family.

Mrs. Ernest Steward, of Spencerville, was the guest of her parents, D. F. Brown and wife, from Wednesday evening until Saturday.

Miss Maude Zonker, of Corunna, came last week to keep house for her brothers a couple weeks. They have moved into the Widney property east of the opera house.

Lessie Meek will move his barber shop into the Widney room, where he formerly run the shop. The restaurant will occupy all their room.

Mrs. Ida Williams and daughter, Miss Florence, of Auburn, came last Wednesday night for a visit with the former's mother, Mrs. Mary Scholes, and other relatives.

The ladies of the Christian Church will give an Ice Cream Social, Saturday evening, July 29, on the Christian Church lawn. Everyone cordially invited.

H. L. Dunkle, wife and daughter Rhea, and Miss Ella Rahe, who have been spending the past two weeks at Cold Springs, returned home Saturday. Mr. Dunkle reports having caught a nice bunch of bass during his stay there.

Mrs. O. J. Fundom, of Fostoria, Ohio, will spend the remainder of the week with F. M. Thornton and wife. Mrs. Fundom, who is a recent bride, is a cousin of Mrs. Thornton, and while here will incidentally help celebrate the first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton, who were married in San Diego, Calif, July 27th., '15.

Subscribe for this paper.

Miss Alice Richmondt was the guest of Waterloo relatives over Sunday.

Frank Baker, of Ft. Wayne, was a supper guest of D. F. Brown and wife, Saturday.

John Reihoehl and sons, Henry and Willis, spent Sunday with relatives in the northwestern part of the county.

Mrs. Alice Gee and two children left Sunday for the home of her parents, Eugene Carper and wife, to remain for a week's visit.

Charles Bishop, wife and two children, of Garrett, and Mel Bishop and wife were Saturday supper guests of H. C. Hathaway and family.

Mrs. Anna Abel returned home Saturday evening after a two-weeks visit with her grandson, Chas. Benjamin and family, at Grabill.

Mel Herrick and wife, Roy Kinsey and family, Will Hamilton, wife and Margaret Eleanor, and Lee Tustison, wife and Baby Keith, spent Sunday at Hamilton Lake.

Miss Doris Thompson, Mrs. B. C. Thompson and baby, Bobby Bruce, came last week for an indefinite stay with M. E. Leighty and wife. Mr. Thompson is a member of the National guard and is now on duty at the Border.

H. L. Dunkle, wife and daughter Rhea, and Miss Ella Rahe motored to Ft. Wayne, Sunday, and attended the Dunkle reunion at Forest Park. Miss Rahe and Master Earl Kelsey returned home with them for a visit. This was the first Dunkle reunion ever held.

Mrs. Leona Mason entertained Thursday afternoon in honor of her own and Mrs. Mary Scholes birthdays, the following guests: Mesdames Mary Scholes, Mary Meek, Nellie Perry, Arminta Northrup, Belle Ridgway, Elma Brown, Emma Abel, Opal Wilmot and two children, Ada Bassett, and Mrs. Ida Williams, of Auburn. The hostess served refreshments.

H. S. Garton and wife entertained Joe Winebrenner and wife, Sunday.

P. A. Shurts took John Davis and son Frank, to Ft. Wayne, Monday.

Jack Beams pays the highest market price for old or young chickens.

Saxe Hadsell and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Hadsell's, parents at LaGrange, Ind.

John Milliman, wife and children and George Milliman were Sunday guests of Mort Milliman and family.

Willis Reasoner and wife, of Butler; Herman Reasoner and wife, of Ft. Wayne; were Sunday guests of Charles Reasoner.

Miss Berniece Reasoner, of Elkhart, came Friday to be the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Anna Dilley, and other relatives.

Henry Sechler, wife and daughter Thelma, and little girl friend, and Mr. Cole, of Butler, were Sunday guests of Jacob Sechler and wife.

Guy Walker, of Mishawaka, Ind., came Tuesday to visit J. C. Hulls', Wm. Smiths', Orson Quances'. His business is such that he returned Wednesday.

Frank Myrtle and wife, Robert Webster, wife and little daughter Myrtle, of Waukeegan; and Mrs. Hannah Randall, of Waterloo, were Sunday afternoon callers of Wm. Randall and wife.

Christ Curie and LeRoy McMillen were the first to thrash their wheat in this vicinity. The quality was excellent and Mr. Curie's averaged a yield of 31 bushels per acre while Mr. McMillen's was some less.

Invitations are out for the Reasoner Family Reunion, for Thursday, August 10, in the Hamilton grove, 2 miles east of St. Joe. A splendid program has been arranged. Should the weather be bad it will probably be held in opera house.

Send in your news items.

Clarence Zonker was an Auburn visitor, Sunday afternoon.

Miss Agnes Sechler was home from Angola over Sunday.

Get one of our Stock Dr. Books. Free for the asking.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Miss Luzerne Sailer went to Harlan, Thursday, to visit her uncle, Frank Hettinger, for a week.

Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma and Miss Lina Rummel were St. Joe business callers, Saturday.

Mrs. Anna Simpson returned Saturday from Montgomery, Mich., where she had been visiting her son and family.

Frank Terman and wife motored to the homes of the latter's nephews, Earl and Alder Crawford, near Sherwood, Friday, returning Saturday.

Mrs. S. W. Tustison and daughter, Margaret Ellen, went to Plymouth, Tuesday, to visit the remainder of the week with Dr. and Mrs. W. K. Schlosser.

The W. C. T. U., will meet with Mrs. Ada Bassett, Friday afternoon. The topic will be "Mothers and White Ribbon Recruits". A cordial invitation is extended to mothers and babies.

Ray Reasoner, wife and son Floyd, and Wilbur Collins and wife of near Butler, motored to Van Wert, Ohio, Saturday, and visited an uncle, Frank Collins and family. They returned home Sunday evening.

Word came to relatives here, Friday, of the death of James Peters, on July 20, at Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. Peters resided west of town about 25 years ago near the B. & O., and Wabash Crossing.

The Loyal Workers Class of the Coburntown Sunday School will hold an ice cream social on the church lawn, Thursday evening. After you work hard all day spend the evening here and enjoy yourself.

Still After You.

We are still awaiting for you who have not opened up that checking account you were intending to open up with us. The many advantages it gives you in handling your funds, cannot be appreciated until tried out. New accounts are started nearly every day. Join the thrifty.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

We are ready to receive NEW WHEAT for which the highest market prices will be paid at all times.

* *

We are Feed HEADQUARTERS.

Always Welcome at
St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

POULTRY WANTED!

Highest market prices will be paid for your old and young hens. If you can't bring them in to me just phone and I will call and get them. We have got to have the poultry and are willing to pay you the best price for it.

J. Beams
SPENCERVILLE, IND.

JULY

L 908

0233

HOOSIERS ENJOY MERCEDES CAMP

Soldiers Adapting Themselves Readily to New Life—Very Few Homesick.

ONE SOLDIER IS DROWNED

Private Floyd Wolf of Ft. Wayne, Goes Beyond His Depth in Lake and Dies Before Help Comes—Could Not Swim.

Mercedes, Tex.—The situation here so novel to the Indiana troops that it may be a long time until they settle down to the humdrum monotony of the soldier life. But they are adapting themselves well to the conditions, which are as much different from Indiana conditions as could possibly be imagined, and the soldiers from Indiana make fewer complaints than the soldiers form any other state. It is a fact worthy of note that Indiana men are getting more compliments from the regular army officers and from the citizens than any other troops. This is due perhaps to the fact that some of them have seen actual service and they are commanded by such officers as Major Tyndall, who knows what real war is. There are few cases of homesickness in the Indiana camp. It was to prevent this that General Barker, in charge of the Brownsville district, issued his recent order concerning amusements and recreation for National Guardsmen. It is expected that within two weeks every regiment in camp will have a baseball team, and the climate is such that baseball can be played the whole year round.

Fort Wayne Boy Drowns.

Private Floyd R. Wolf, age eighteen, Company M, from Fort Wayne, was drowned in Llano lake the night of July 17. He was one of a crowd taken to the lake to bathe in the charge of Sergt. Frank Hessert of Company M. Wolf could not swim and was told not to venture into the deep water, but he did not follow instructions and drowned before any of his companions could reach him. Sergeant Hessert recovered the body and turned it over to H. J. Minton, undertaker at Mercedes, who sent it to Indiana. This is the second drowning since the troops have been here. The first victim was a private from the Fourth Nebraska. Young Wolf was the son of C. A. Wolf.

Shut Off Bandit Raids.

The persons living in the Rio Grande valley, especially those in the vicinity of Mercedes, were delighted with the coming of the soldiers, first, because of the protection assured, for it is admitted here that the presence of the soldiers has shut off the bandit raids, for the present, anyhow, and second, because the soldiers bring a lot of money into the valley. When the bandit raids began many people fled and no one would come here. The result was that the valley was up against it, as far as coin of the realm was concerned. Just as soon as the Indiana troops got here they began to put money into circulation. It is estimated there are between 15,000 and 20,000 soldiers from Indiana, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Wyoming an dthe Dakotas in this vicinity and the amount of money they will spend cannot be estimated.

Plenty of Good Water.

One of the drawbacks to the camp practically is ended, the lack of water supply. When the Indiana troops arrived all water for domestic purposes had to be hauled in tank wagons. Two hundred Mexicans were put to work on the water system and this has been finished. The water is from the Rio Grande river, which is about seven miles from the camp.

Two pumps average 420,000 gallons of water a minute into a reservoir, where it is filtered into a great irrigating canal that is about 4,000 feet from the camp, and from the canal to the camp water is sent through pipes by two force pumps.

Eighteen thousand gallons of water are sent into these pipes each hour and there are five large tanks, each with a capacity of 15,000 gallons, where water is held in reserve in case of accident to the pumps. In the camp are 100 hydrants for kitchen use. There are 45 bath rooms.

Suggests Athletic Field.

General Lewis told the commanding officers that there is plenty of outdoors in the vicinity of the camp, and they can clear off the ground they need for tennis courts, baseball diamonds and croquet. All that is needed is a grubbing hoe and a strong back. properly.

Instructed in Butler Yell.

The six Butler college students in Battery A have just learned from letters how they missed a rare treat at Tulsa. Capt. Lon H. Eddy, an old Indianapolis man and a Civil war veteran, now living at Muskogee, has some young relatives in the battery. He organized a party, including all the Hoosiers within reach and a lot of young people who were instructed in the Butler yell, to go over to Tulsa to give the boys a reception. They waited 27 hours for the train, and then it went through at full speed.

Mustn't Eat Watermelon.

When the boys got here they went into things rather recklessly, and gorged themselves with all sorts of things, and there was considerable stomach trouble, but now they know better. They find that it is not good for them to eat watermelon, which is called boneless ham in this country.

The food they eat must be seasoned with plenty of pepper and salt. An excess of cold drinks is one the taboo list, and frequent baths and daily shaving help out wonderfully. Most of the Indiana troops, when they left home, wore heavy woolen clothing, but they have been here long enough to learn that the very lightest of clothes is what they need. And they are discarding woolen shirts and uniform as fast as the lighter stuff can be issued to them.

Hoosiers Pretty Lucky.

The boys do not get the delicacies that mother and sister sent them at Fort Harrison, and they haven't any swell cafes to rush into. There hasn't been a case of indigestion in the entire camp, and lobster and all that goes with it was, you know, a common thing back in Indiana with a lot of young men who are now roughing it. So it may be said that the first week of the Hoosiers in this country, while it was filled with hard work and many discomforts, was not so bad. It might have been worse, because it is agreed that Llano Grande is the best camp site in the entire Rio Grande valley.

Hoping for Better Pay.

The appointment of a major general for this camp means that several other brigadier generals will be appointed and that the major general in command will have a large staff. Consequently, many regular army officers who are at present unassigned are hoping that they will be sent here when a major general takes command. The more pay they get the better they like it.

The understanding is, too, that in a short time a number of first and second lieutenants of the regular army will be detailed to this camp as instructors, and it is probable that Lieut. Willis Crittenberger, who now is on duty at Brownsville as aid to General Parker, may be one of the officers assigned as instructor. Lieutenant Crittenberger has made many friends among the Indiana soldiers, and they would welcome his selection as one of their instructors.

Lewis Will Remain.

The Indiana troops are going along much more comfortably than the troops of other states that are at McAllen Mission, Donna Harlingen and other points along the border. The probability that this camp will be a division in command of a major general does not mean that Brigadier General Lewis will not remain. He was appointed to drill and put on a war basis the troops of Indiana, and he will continue in the position, but will, of course, retire as camp commander and give his attention exclusively to the Indiana troops.

Get This Preparedness.

The Indiana artillery officers are wondering what would happen should they be called suddenly into service. Each battery requires 157 horses and 16 mules. Battery A has 29 horses, Battery B has 10, and Battery C has 8. They have made the necessary requisitions, but that is as far as they go. Major Tyndall went to Brownsville to see General Parker, but missed him, as the general was at Mercedes and the Llano Grande camp. However, the major laid out a line of complaints and requests to General Parker's assistant that brought good results.

Everybody Doing Well.

There is no need to worry about the Indiana boys. They are doing well and are as happy as the heyday superb and daring youth can be. There are no banshees stalking through the silent city of tents, but once in a while is heard the screech of a bob cat of a low, inexpressibly mournful, long drawn out, shuddering wail that tells that a Mexican lion is loitering in the vicinity, for there are wildcats, leopard cats, Mexican lions and an abundance of wild deer and wild turkeys in this locality and the nimrods from Indiana are getting ready for a deer hunt and lion chase as soon as they get things straightened around a bit.

One-Half Usual Charge.

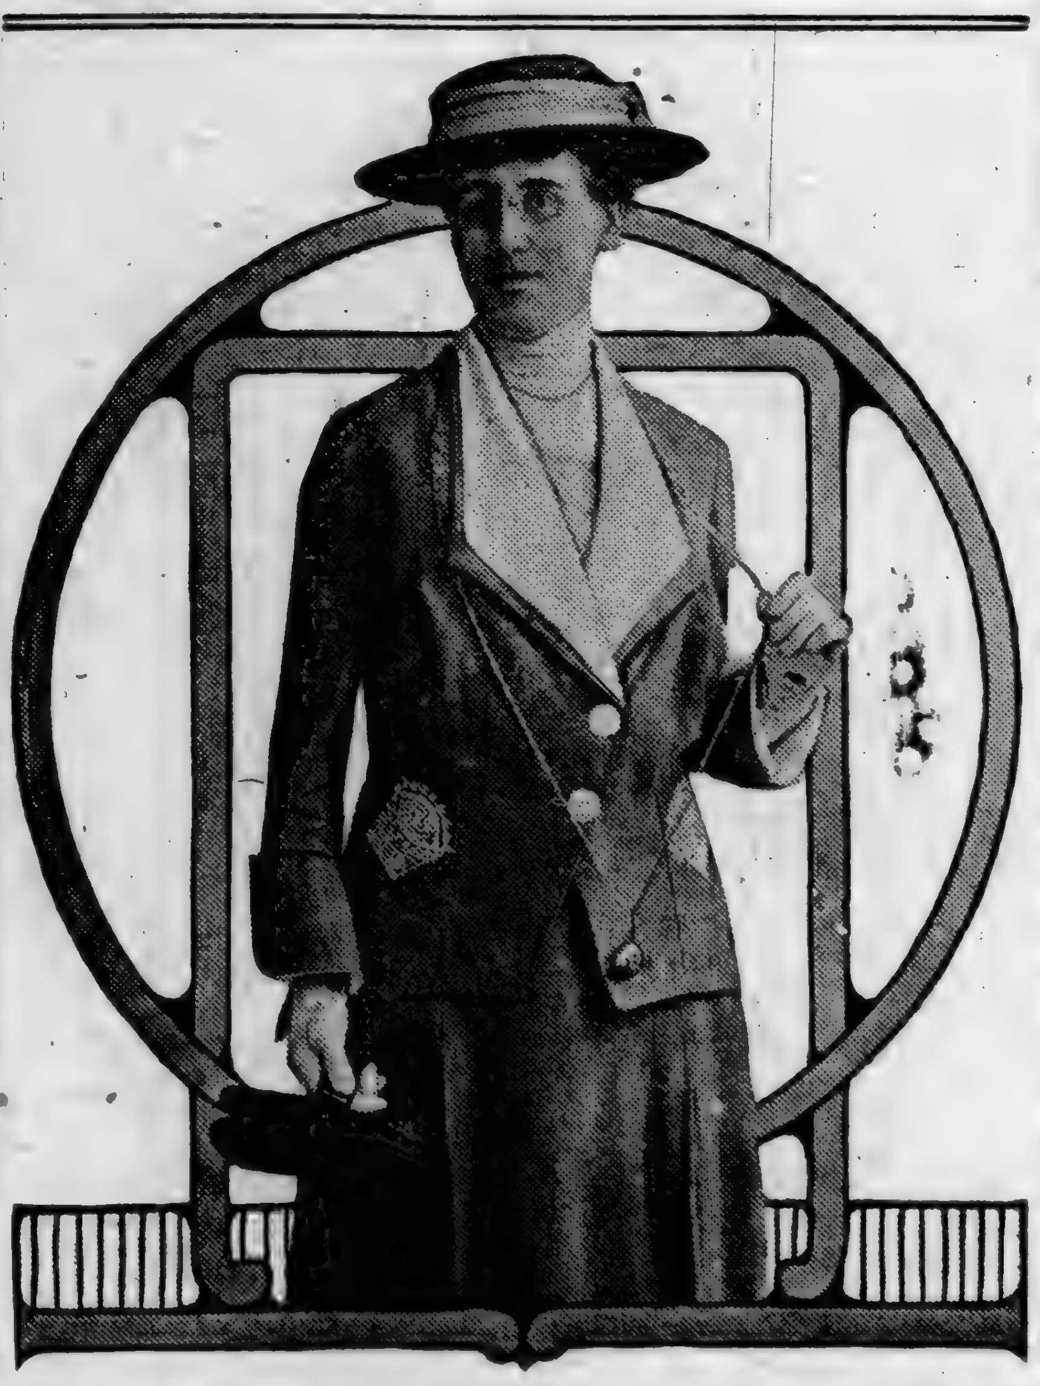
The Western Union Telegraph company announces that until further notice it will make telegraphic transfers of money to members of the National Guard who have been mustered into the federal service at the Mexican border, at one-half the usual charges for such service. It is understood that in their hurried departure many of the Guardsmen failed to reckon on the high cost at the border of some of the conveniences which are not included in the provision which Uncle Sam makes for his soldiers, and the company has made this arrangement so that money can be sent quickly at a low cost.

Have Seen Previous Service.

A great many of the officers and men of the First Indiana regiment have seen previous service along the border or in Spanish-speaking countries. Major Clark served in the Eleventh infantry in Cuba and Porto Rico, Major Foxworthy was in the One Hundredth and Sixtieth Indiana in Cuba, and Captains Stutzman and Shirley spent a number of years in the Philippine islands with the Twenty-third and Forty-fourth regiments, respectively. Captain Livengood is a former coast artilleryman.

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



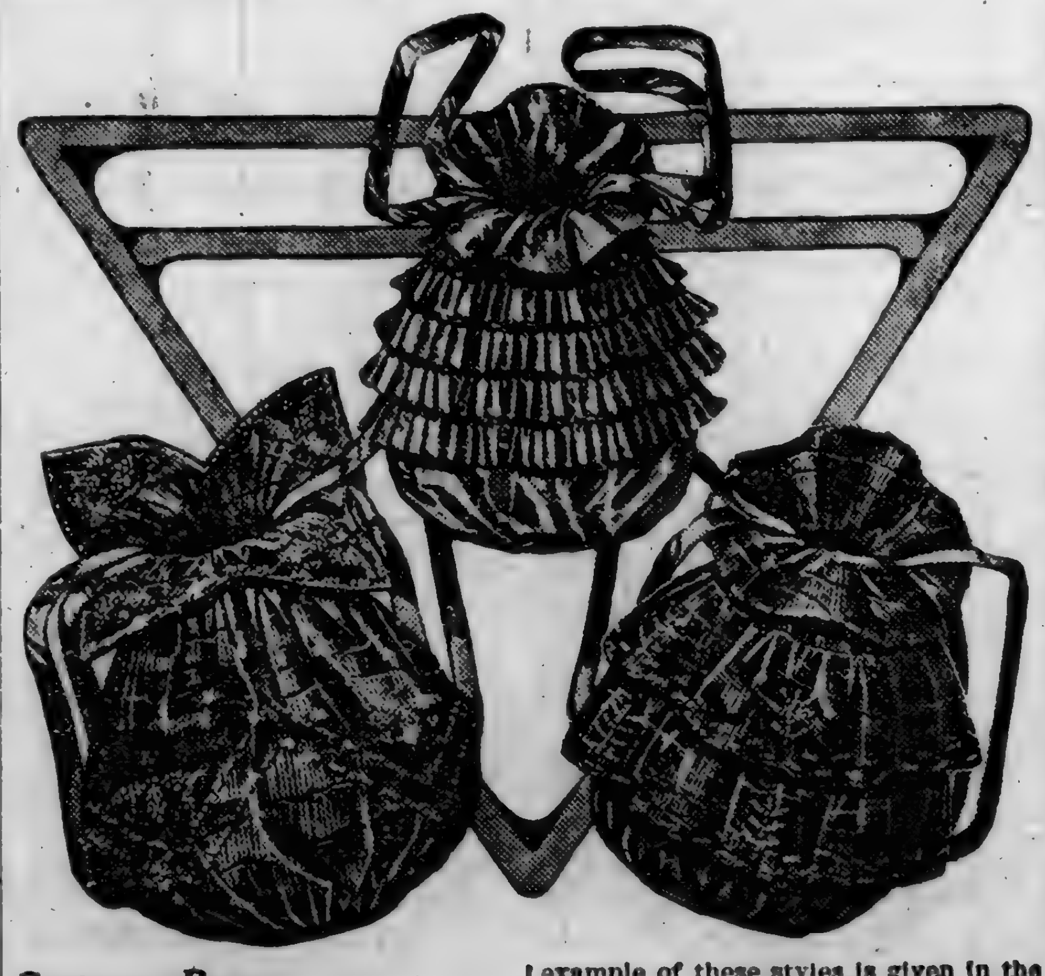
Wash Suits the Pinnacle of Smartness

Those linens and cottons that do not muss—the heavier crashes and similar weaves—in those colors that do not fade, make up street suits for midsummer wear that stand at the pinnacle of smartness. They contribute comfort and trim appearance and elegance, all in one, to the summer wardrobe, and they are the delight of the fine-grained lady. The best designers love to work with these simple materials, and they strive for beauty of line and effectiveness of color in them with results that are as admirable a any to be reached in richer stuffs.

In the picture a coat suit is shown of heavy linen crash in a clear, strong blue. The skirt is moderately full and is laid in plaits at the sides. The plaits are stitched down to the hip line and hang free below, forming a panel, fairly wide, at the front and one at the back. It is finished with a three-inch hem.

The coat bespeaks an expert in designing, for it is a marvel of fine adjustment by means of simple but clever cutting. It is a summer coat in cut as well as in material, with loose-hanging, shapely body and moderately full peplum. It is decorated with a small scroll design, done in the narrowest of white braid, and having the effect of embroidery. This design appears at each side of the front and at each side of the back. The coat opens with revers, which are overlaid by other revers of soft pique in white. It fastens with two large pearl buttons. The designer has allowed his fancy some license in finishing the sleeves in an unexpected fashion. The flaring cuffs of blue are supplemented with additional inside cuffs of white pique.

A suit of this kind calls for a wash blouse of equal elegance, and nothing commonplace will do. The sailor hat, worn with it, is of fine black and white satin made in the best manner of the milliner. A fine Panama is in the same class and might be worn with it. In an outfit of this kind one is dressed well enough for almost any demand the summer may make. There is nothing better in suits.



Costume Bags, Fashionable and Convenient

Saddle-bag pockets, reticules and vanity bags of many sorts have provided fashionable receptacles this summer for all the small necessities of feminine comfort. Wherever she goes the lady of today carries some sort of a vanity bag along, and even at home she provides herself with reticules and pockets, for convenience. Many of these are made of the same material as the frock or skirt but separate from it. For the sports-skirt patch-pockets are usually attached, or practical pockets are supplied, with another management. But for the house gown and the visiting toilet, the costume bag to match or to harmonize is proper wear.

The last newcomer to make its appearance is the pretty Betsy Ross bag. It is the simplest of silk bags, from 9 to 12 inches long, gathered into a small circular mirror, incased in silk at the bottom and having a scalloped or pointed frill at the top. The mouth of the bag is closed with narrow satin ribbon which serves to suspend it from the arm.

These Betsy Ross bags are decorated with flounces of the material or with designs wrought in bead work. An example of these styles is given in the picture. Messaline, satin, taffeta, or moire are used for making them, and narrow plaited frills or bead work for decorating them. The frills are edged with cut hemstitching, and picot-edged ribbon may be used for making them.

The first moire bag shown in the picture is marked off into points by two parallel rows of steel beads and decorated with a leaf design done in beads. There are models among moire bags trimmed with two or three gathered ruffles of the silk, each edged and decorated with bead work like that shown in the illustration.

Reticules, to match house frocks, are small and flat, shaped like a square envelope, having the flap fastened with a snap fastener. They hang from the belt by straps of the same material. They are especially pretty when worn with lace or net fichus from the same period.

Favorite Sunshade.

The favorite sunshade so far seems to be the one of taffeta, the top of which is covered with graded width taffeta ruffles, generally four or five. Sometimes they have the new strap handle, sometimes the ivory or translucent knobs. The one which swings from an ivory ring over the arm is also carried a good deal.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

WEEDS AND FLOWERS.

"The Elves," commenced Daddy, "were playing in a Garden one morning just at the break of day when all the Flowers were opening their sleepy heads, and the ones which had not been sleeping were looking about them more brightly than ever.

"'Good morning, Flowers,' said the Elves. 'Fine day, nice sun, good warm breeze too—not one of those cross, cool little breezes we dislike so much. Yes, we're sure you think it's a nice day. You must think so because of the best frocks you are wearing today. Such glorious colors! You're all in your best! What's up today, Flowers? A festival of some sort?'

"Our Generals Are Very Fine."

"The Flowers nodded their heads and smiled and waved about in the warm breeze. But the Elves heard some very strange sounds—they did not quite talk like the Flowers—for to the Elves and Fairies, you know, there is a Flower language, and a Flower's way of talking.

"'What could these other sounds mean?' they asked each other.

"'We'll tell you,' said these voices. 'We're the Weeds. And some of us are beautiful, but all of us are strong. Yes, we're so strong that no matter how they try to dig us up and throw us away we're up again in no time. We're little fighters—yes, we are. We have our Army headquarters. Indeed we do! And our Generals are very fine. They're the great, tall Weeds you often see and my, but it's hard to get them out of the earth. If they are beaten more Generals take their places for the motto of the Weeds is, "We'll always be strong—there will always be Weeds."

"And so they chatted on. The Elves were very much interested, but still they couldn't quite see when the Weeds were doing so much talking and bragging how the Flowers could seem so happy.

"So they whispered to the Flowers very gently:

"'Tell us, Flowers, why are you so happy?'

"Then in lovely, soft rustling voices they said:

"'We are going to have a Book written about us today. Yes, a real Book, and our pictures are going to be painted. We're very proud and happy. We have a Mistress who comes out every morning and most of the day she is with us. She bends over us and digs up the earth around us so it is nice and soft and comfortable. And every evening after Mr. Sun has gone to bed she gives us cool drinks of water.

"'It was only yesterday she told us that some Noble Grownup was going to write a Book about us and call it "The Ideal Garden." We think that ideal means something like perfect—anyway it's something extremely nice. And so she has been making us ready for the Book. Oh, we're very proud indeed.'

"'But what about the Weeds?' asked the Elves.

"'Well,' the Flowers continued, 'our Mistress says she sometimes can't help thinking many of the Weeds are pretty. And though sometimes they crowd us out of our Homes, and are rather rude, we feel sorry for them. It's hard to always have to fight for a Home instead of being looked after as we are—we have our Homes fixed up for us each day. But then, of course the Book won't say anything about Weeds!'

"The next day again came the Elves to ask the Flowers about the Book.

"'Yes,' they whispered, 'it will be a beautiful Book. The Noble Grownup who is to write it talked to our Mistress and told her she was going to say a word for all of us and put in most lovely Pictures—all in the colors we wear.'

Flowers Nodded Their Heads and Smiled.

"And then the queer sounds came again, and the Weeds spoke up:

"'Yes, and we're going to have a Chapter about us. We don't quite understand yet what a Chapter is—but it's a good deal—we're sure of that. The Grownup told our Mistress that she was going to say something about pretty Weeds in a Garden—that are almost as pretty as Flowers.'

"The Weeds were so happy because now they were not only proud of their wonderful Armies but they had been called pretty and were going to be put in a Garden Book.

"'Well,' said the Elves, 'so you are all happy! And we can't help saying ourselves that some of the Weeds in this Garden are pretty—very pretty and we like you all—Flowers and Weeds.'"

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, backache, headaches, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mail Us Your

KODAK

Films for Finishing

We pay return postage.

M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

Anyway, an ounce of prevention costs much less than a pound of cure.

Most particular women use Red Cross Ball Blue. American made. Sure to please. At all good grocers. Adv.

What He'll Get.

"The world owes me something."

"Well, you'll probably collect those ills that flesh is heir to."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Baker's Dozen.

"Father, what is a baker's dozen?" asked Charlie.

"One more tha na dozen, thirteen, you know; but why do you want to know?"

"Mr. Moore asked me whose little boy I was, and his wife said, 'Don't you know? That is one of the Brown children.' And Mr. Moore said, 'Yes, I remember; they have a baker's dozen.' Now what have we got thirteen of, papa? We have only five children, and counting you and mamma seven, and that does not make thirteen."

Five Giant Fingers Bind Cities.

The five giant spans of steel, which, like gargantuan fingers clutch the two sides of East river, binding New York and Brooklyn together, cost America's metropolis half as much as the Panama canal cost the federal government. Three of them are suspended from cables, the wires of which, if placed end to end, would more than twice girdle the earth. If placed side by side, these five great structures would provide a roadway as wide as the Washington monument is high, and if placed end to end they would make a great bridge over six miles long. Across the Brooklyn bridge alone 125,000 surface cars travel every 24 hours, with other vehicular traffic in proportion.—National Geographic Magazine.

Grape-Nuts

embodies the full, rich nutriment of whole wheat combined with malted barley. This combination gives it a distinctive, delicious flavor unknown to foods made from wheat alone.

Only selected grain is used in making Grape-Nuts and through skillful processing it comes from the package fresh, crisp, untouched by hand, and ready to eat.

Through long baking, the energy producing starches of the grain are made wonderfully easy of digestion.

A daily ration of this splendid food yields a marvelous return of health and comfort.

"There's a Reason"

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

JULY

L 908

0234

WHO'S GOT THE MONEY

In Four Staples Alone the Farmers of Western Canada Produced 408 Million Dollars in 1915.

The Calgary (Alberta) printers have a house organ, called "The Magnet," and in its columns a few weeks ago appeared an article entitled "Who's Got the money?" It was cleverly written, and but for its length, the writer would have been pleased to have copied the article in its entirety. The purpose for which this article is published, however, that of letting the readers of the paper know of the great progress that is being made in agriculture in Western Canada, will be served by copying a portion of the article. Many of the readers of this paper doubtless have friends in one of the three provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta, and they will be interested in feeling that their friends are enjoying a portion of the wealth that has come to Western Canada farmers as a result of careful tilling of a soil prodigal in everything that goes to make good, grain, cattle, horses, hogs and sheep.

Reproducing from the article:

The Government does not produce money. It can stamp "One Dollar" on a slip of white paper, and we accept it at a dollar's worth, but neither the paper nor the printing are worth a copper. What gives it value is the promise of the people of Canada which stands behind the printed slip, and our faith in that promise.

Now do you know who's got the money?

Let us put it into figures. The farmers of Alberta Saskatchewan and Manitoba last year raised 342,948,000 bushels of wheat. If we take for an average 85 cents a bushel in Manitoba, 81 cents in Saskatchewan and 79 cents in Alberta the season's wheat crop was worth $280,629,000. Add to this an oat crop of 334,840,000 bushels, worth $95,457,000; a barley crop of 35,254,200 bushels, worth $15,871,000, and a flax crop of 10,559,000 bushels worth $15,843,000, and you find that on these four staples alone the farmers of Western Canada produced a wealth of $407,800,000.

Please note that this wealth is in money. It is not in real estate at inflated values, industrial stocks that are half water and the rest air, fictitious goodwills or unsaleabe merchandise. It is in hard cash, or—which is better—hard wheat.

These figures are only for the staple grain productions. They do not include the millions of dollars represented by the live stock and dairying industries, or the additional millions included in the root, fruit, and garden crops. The creameries of Saskatchewan, for instance produced more buttermilk and ice cream last year than their total production amounted to six years ago. The milk, butter, and cheese production of Alberta for 1915 was valued at over eleven million dollars. The potato crop of the three provinces was worth five millions and a half. Corn and alfalfa—comparatively new crops, charged with tremendous possibilities—amounted to over a round million. Even honey—you didn't know we raised honey (the bee kind) in this country, did you? Manitoba produced 105,000 pounds in 1915, and there isn't a bee in the province that doesn't swear he's a better honey-sorter than anything in California or Washington.

That's where the money is; in the jeans of our honest friend the farmer, who was too slow to get into the cities when the rest of us saw short-cuts to wealth; who hadn't imagination enough to think a man can make money without earning it, and who was too dull to know that hard work is foolish. Well, he has the laugh now. Likewise the money.—Advertisement.

One observant woman may be a whole public opinion in herself.

No bother to get summer meals with these on hand

Vienna Style Sausage and Potted Meats

Libby's

Just open and serve. Excellent for sandwiches.

Insist on Libby's at your grocer's.

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

Libby's
Vienna Style Sausage Water and Cereal
Libby McNeill & Libby Chicago

Libby's
Potted Ham

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE

NEW HOME

NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME

Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts.

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS.

PRETTY BUNGALOW WELL DESIGNED

Arrangement of Dwelling Which Is Constantly Growing in Popularity.

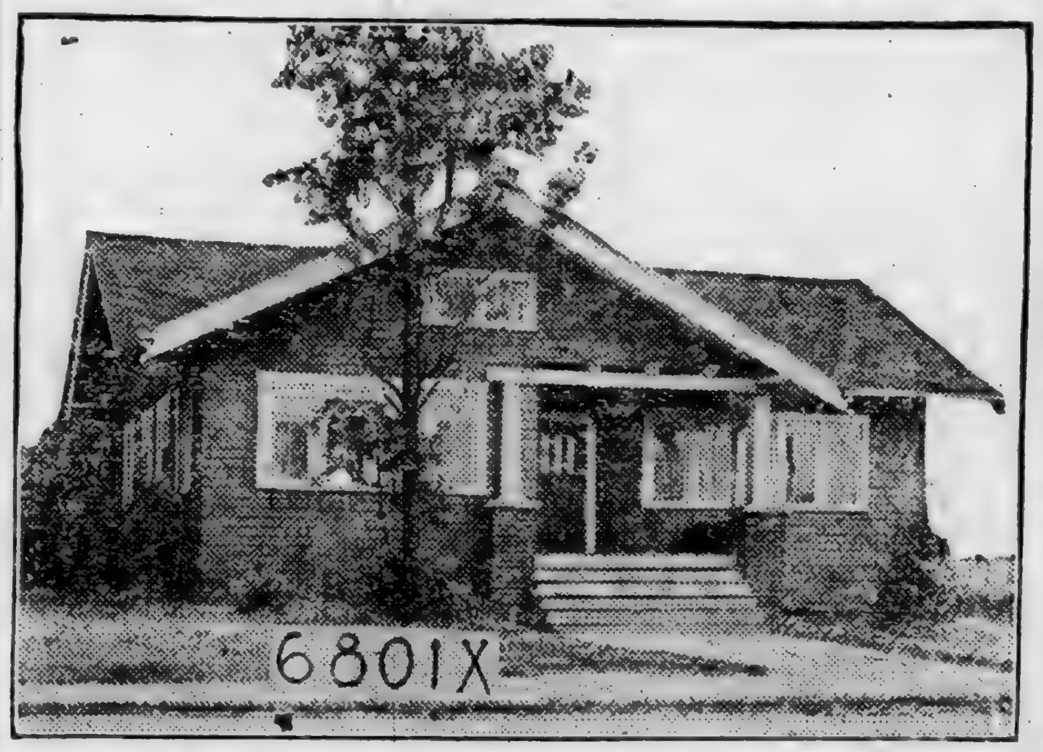
AFFORDS AN IDEAL HOME

For the Small Town This Type of Residence Is the Best That Can Be Devised—Maximum Comfort and Usefulness Combined.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

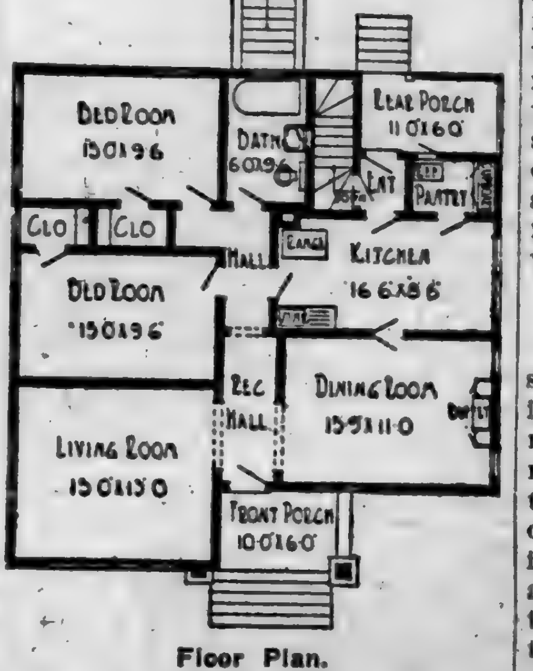
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The rapidly growing popularity of the modern bungalow type of home for the average-sized family is a striking evidence of the tendency of the American home-builder to get away from the old stately mansion with its many rooms, only a few of which were ever of any real use; a home in which the family was spread over the entire house and the work required to maintain order was no small item. This new tendency is one which brings the family closely together and by the concentration of all their efforts upon the improvement of a few well-designed rooms a new standard of home life is set in which each member of the family has his little part to play, and where the results of his labor will be evident to anyone who happens to come into the little bungalow home. Not only this, but the bungalow offers the family, tired of climbing two or three flights of stairs, an opportunity to be snugly assembled in a house all to themselves, where they may almost forget that such a thing as a stair exists.



To the small town or village resident the bungalow offers its advantages at their best. This type of construction is never so well exhibited as where the prices of land are inducive to the purchase of a large piece of land on which to build. Here the bungalow may be designed to carry out the low, broad lines which are so attractive in this type of construction, and with a well-laid-out lawn the resulting home is one which anyone may be proud to exhibit to his friends.

The design shown here is intended to incorporate as much of the truly bungalow style as may be placed in a house of this size. Incidentally the cozy simplicity, size and arrangement of all of the rooms, the large and convenient basement, and the numerous windows cannot help but combine to make a home which will be of the maximum comfort and usefulness to its occupants.



Floor Plan.

The roof and walls are finished in shingles stained a dark color in the illustration, but if it is desired, the walls may be finished in dark-colored stucco. This finish gives very good satisfaction since it is now possible to color the stucco by either a mixture of the coloring with the material when the house is being constructed, or one of the stucco paints may be used, which will also serve as a waterproofing material. It is desirable to finish the walls in some dark color in this design on account of the pleasing contrast with the white trim of the windows and roof. On account of the large number of windows, with their white frames and sashes, there are no broad expanses of wall surface to present a monotonous appearance.

Following the type of construction used in the cooler parts of this country this house is built well above the ground, which not only allows large basement space but also protects the house against the cold and dampness of the ground, which may be a very desirable feature in some climates. It also allows enough headroom in the furnace room so that the heating apparatus may be easily installed.

In a one-story house the importance of the basement is considerable, and on account of the nearly square design of this bungalow and its generous proportions the basement may be divided off in a manner which will render it of maximum value. Not only is there room for the usual cold-storage room, furnace room, and laundry, but a very handy little workroom may be fitted up with bench and other useful equipment. Such a little workshop is not only of value in repairing and building articles for the home, but it offers the younger generation a means of spending time at something which will later prove to be of considerable value in the training which it gives.

The interior arrangement of this bungalow shows the results of careful thought on the part of the designer. The entrance is into the reception hall, which continues back through the house, leading off into the various rooms. A cased opening on one side of the reception hall leads into the living room, while a similar opening on the other side leads into the dining room.

The living room offers an exceedingly pleasant gathering place for the family, with its six windows to assure a room which will be bright and cheerful. There is plenty of room for some atractive rugs, wall decorations and furniture.

The dining room is well lighted and with its well-placed buffet and generous floor and wall space, could be made into a very attractive room by a careful selection of finish and furniture.

The kitchen contains many features which should be of interest to the housewife. It is hard to overestimate the convenience of the little pantry, with its cupboard and refrigerator, which is iced from the rear porch. Although this kitchen is large enough to be well ventilated and far from stuffy, the arrangement gives it all of the advantages of the small kitchen.

The front porch is very cleverly placed back under the main roof with fancy exposed rafters and two neat posts. The broad steps blend well with the other parts of the house and have an inviting appearance from the thoroughfare.

A few well-placed trees and shrubs and a carefully graded lawn would surround this house with an atmosphere as homelike as anyone could wish for.

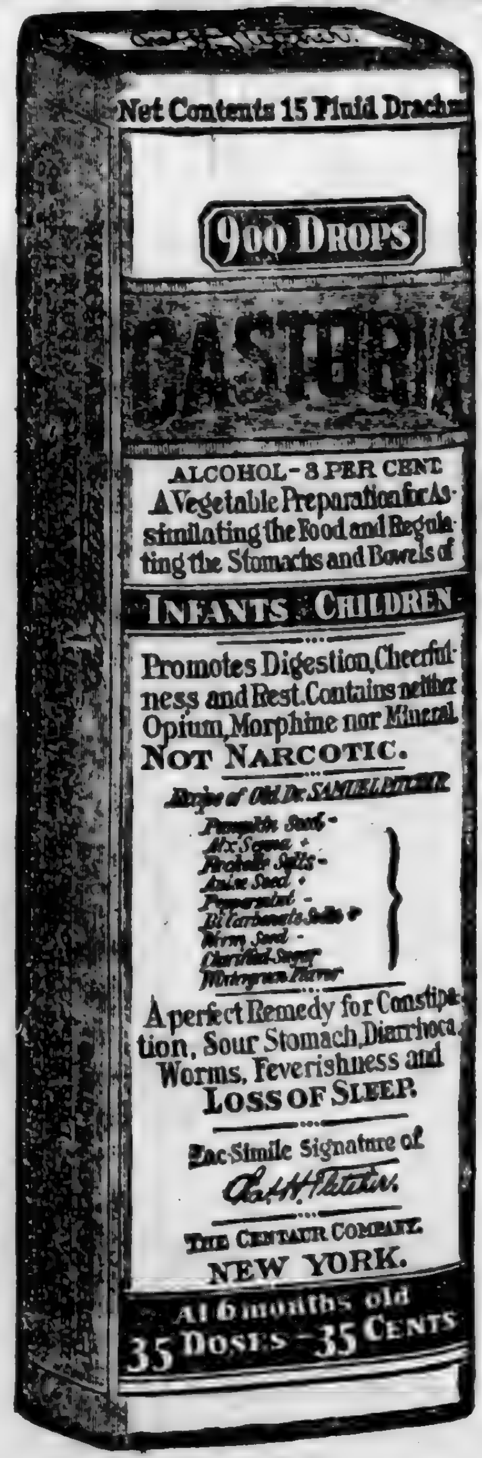
If you have never experienced the pleasure of arising early on a summer's morning to go out into your own garden to work for an hour or two in the refreshing air, or if you have never been able to come home, tired from the day's labor, to be welcomed into a snug little home surrounded by the products of your co-operation with nature, then you have not found all the pleasure there is in life. A home such as the one discussed here is not extremely expensive, and it furnishes a satisfaction which cannot be estimated in terms of the money cost which it involves.

A Plea.

I would make a plea against the one-sidedness of our present endeavor, leaning over to the external world; I would make a plea for a deeper culture; for more widespread study of the humanities; for more determined use, in our colleges and our schools, of the idealist's opportunity in a world drunk with a sense of physical fact. A plea for the study of history; for the pure intellectual discipline of philosophy; and, because of our special need, for literature as a necessary discipline in all school work and college work wheresoever. The work with the classics is steadily decreasing; alas for the dimming of the torch that has guided our way! Since ancient literature, with its superb power of shaping young civilization, has been largely driven out—with what incalculable loss!—let us study and teach our own, still permitted and, in places, even encouraged; let us have our English literature taught in the wisest and profoundest way ascertainable, wherever anything is taught.—Margaret Sherwood, in the Atlantic.

Avoid Taking Chances.

In times like these it is well to do the safe thing as often as possible and take that chance as seldom as possible



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher
THE CENTAUR COMPANY. NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES - 35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic, all Teething Troubles and Diarrhœa. It regulates the Stomach and Bowels, assimilates the Food, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years

The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Every time a man's wife buys him a tie his vanity gets it in the neck.

Always use Red Cross Ball Blue. Delights the laundress. At all good grocers. Adv

A man of experience says getting married is about the same as filing a petition in bankruptcy.

WHY SUFFER SKIN TROUBLES

When a Postcard Will Bring Free Samples of Cuticura?

Which give quick relief for all itching, burning, disfiguring skin troubles. Bathe with the Cuticura Soap and hot water. Dry and apply Cuticura Ointment to the affected part. They stop itching instantly and point to speedy healment often when all else fails.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Shop Talk.

She—I've heard that men prefer to make love to short girls rather than to tall girls.

He (a broker)—Yes, it's the shorts that you always hear of as getting squeezed.—Boston Transcript.

SWAMP-ROOT STOPS SERIOUS BACKACHE

When your back aches, and your bladder and kidneys seem to be disordered, remember it is needless to suffer—go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. It is a physician's prescription for diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

It has stood the test of years and has a reputation for quickly and effectively giving results in thousands of cases.

This prescription was used by Dr. Kilmer in his private practice and was so very effective that it has been placed on sale everywhere. Get a bottle, 50c and $1.00, at your nearest druggist.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Husband's Protest.

With a view to advertising his business, a certain dentist announced that he would supply artificial teeth to the first twelve aged ladies in poor circumstances who applied for them.

The earliest application on the appointed day was an elderly woman in shabby but respectable clothes, who was politely ushered into the waiting room.

Scarcely was she seated when a red-faced old man came to the place, and announced that he had come "about them teeth."

"You are making a mistake," the dentist replied. "I only made my offer to ladies. In fact, there's one lady waiting now."

"Ay, an' it's about 'er I've come," retorted the old man, gruffly. "Tell, 'er 'er 'usband's waitin' for 'er, and if she don't 'op out quick, there'll be trouble. She's got a happetite like an 'oss already, and if you set 'er up wi' a strong lot of teeth, she'll eat both me an' 'er into the work'us in a week. Send 'er out at once!"—London Tit-Bits.

Making Quick Time.

Small Nellie had been to an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" matinee. After the show was over she said: "Mamma, does little Eva play again tonight?"

"Yes, dear, I suppose so," replied the mother.

"Well," continued Nellie, after a moment's thought. "I don't see how she can die and go to heaven at four o'clock and get back in time to die again at eight."

An ex-spinster says it is almost as hard to live with a husband as it is to live without one.

Kill All Flies! They Spread Disease

Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for

Daisy Fly Killer

Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb Ave. Brooklyn, N. Y

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 31–1916.

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical.

Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

HOME YEARNING TOO STRONG

Wanderer Unable to Resist the Impulse That Bade Him Turn His Steps to Shelter and Peace.

The lone traveler plodded wearily onward, sighing sorely, panting pitifully.

"I'm homesick, that's what's the matter with me," he groaned. "Only been gone a month and homesick. I'm a fine one, I am!"

And he trudged tearfully.

The wind whistled "Tipperary" through the naked branches, a few dry sturgeon leaves fluttered down, everything spoke of approaching winter.

"Homesick!" he muttered resentfully. "I'm a softie, I am, Homesick!"

And he murmured mournfully, muttering.

Overhead the sky was gray and cold, and with the exception of a few shivering titolinks no birds were visible.

"I can't stand it!" cried the lone traveler. "I give in. Oh, what a softie!"

And the tramp knocked on the door of the next jail he passed and asked please to be pinched over the cold weather.—Louisville Times.

What's in a Name?

Bacon—I see they are advertising now Zeppelin socks.

Egbert—Isn't there danger of their coming down at the wrong time?

Went With the Load.

An Irishman, having arrived in New York a few days ago, got employment with a lumber merchant. Later he was ordered to take a load of lumber some distance away. Having gone half his journey, he came to a steep hill, and while the horses were struggling to get to the top his boss happened to meet him, and seeing the horses in such a difficulty, and Pat standing on top of the load, he stopped him and exclaimed:

"Do you think the horses haven't got enough to do without hauling you up this hill?"

Pat, fixing himself more comfortably on top of the load, said:

"Is that what you stopped me for?"

Then, with a crack of his whip, Pat concluded:

"Gee up, it's a poor ship that can't carry the captain."

Ouch!

They were seated in a secluded corner of the veranda. For a long time neither of them had spoken. Suddenly he took her little hand in his. His voice was choked with emotion as he said:

"Do you think you could ever learn to love a man—"

"Yes," she interrupted in a soft whisper. "Bring on your man."

And those chaps who think that they ought to get pay for being good probably wouldn't draw much of a salary at that.

Post Toasties

For Ten—

A package of New Post Toasties provides servings for ten people—a delicious breakfast dish—corn flakes with new form and new flavour.

New Post Toasties are known by tiny bubbles raised on each flake by the quick, intense heat of the new process of manufacture.

They bear the full, true flavour of prime, white Indian corn, not found in corn flakes of the past; and they are not "chaffy" in the package; and they don't mush down when milk or cream is added, like ordinary corn flakes.

Try some dry—a good way to test the flavour, but they are usually served with rich milk or cream—

New Post Toasties

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

JULY

L 908

0235

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - - $1.00
Six Months, - - - .50
Three Months, - - .25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

NEWVILLE

Blanche Wyatt, of Ft Wayne, was the guest of Elmer Wyatt and wife, last week.

Rev. J. T. Keesey and wife and Dan Bice was the Sunday dinner guests of John Miller and family.

Mrs. Susan Engle and neice, of Auburn, were the guests of Mrs. Leah Blood and family, Wednesday of last week.

Sam Wyatt and wife, and Elmer Wyatt and wife were Hicksville visitors the Sunday guests of Manford Smith and wife, the latter is quite poorly in health.

Claud Tarney moved the cane mill shed from the Smith farm to his residence to make a kitchen.

Byron Miller and Dannie Bice called on Elmer McDonald and family in Butler, Sunday afternoon.

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Grant Ames, Friday. Twenty were present.

Harry Fuller, of Garrett, was the guest of John Miller and wife, from Monday until Wednesday.

The U. B. Aid Society met with Mrs. J. H. Benner, last Wednesday. 46 dinners were served and one birthday offering of 58 cents. The proceeds were $5.08.

Miss Florence Clark and little Grace Dickerhoff, of near Hicksville took dinner with the Ladies Aid, last Wednesday.

George Haines and wife, and the Misses Lotus, Ruth and Helen Berry and their 2 little brothers were Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

Mrs. Maude Palmer was taken seriously ill, last Wednesday at the Ladies Aid held at the Benner home. Dr. Kramer, of Butler, was called and found her suffering with acute indigestion. We learned Sunday that Mrs. Palmer was much better and able to be about.

COLETOWN

Mrs. Wm. Craig, of Newville, and Mrs. Wall Jackson spent Wednesday with Mrs. J. E. Newton.

Fred Pierman and family, of Harlan, Sundayed with E. S. Ginther and family.

Blanche Sowers returned home from Angola, Saturday evening.

M. W. Conine and wife, and Carl Conine and daughter Helen, called on John Palmer and family, of Scipio, Sunday.

Francis Borden called on Wm. Sowers, Tuesday evening.

Ralph and Morris Conine and George Brown called on W. E. Jacksons', Sunday afternoon.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Mrs. Eva Mills is some better at this writing.

D. M. Kelley and daughters, Lena and Nellie, Verna Kelley, wife and daughter, spent Sunday the guests of Ed Wann and wife, at Harlan.

Martin Beery and wife, and Lewis Markle and wife spent Sunday evening with Henry Beerys'

Elmer Smith and family were Sunday afternoon guests of John Koch and wife.

Lemm Farver and family, of near Hopewell, were Sunday guests of Chas. Essley and wife.

Albert Glass, of Ft. Wayne, was a Thursday visitor of his aunt, Mrs. Chas. Essley and husband.

Frank Wertman and wife, Ed Billiman and wife, Walter Perkins, wife and son, Lloyd Perkins, Earl Stiman, wife and children motored to Hamilton Lake, Sunday, and spent the day.

John Beninghoff and wife and Mr. King visited Sunday with W. O. Lake and wife.

Mrs Bird, Ola Braybrook, Carl Ostermeyer, and Wm. Miller and wife were Sunday visitors at the home of W. O. Miller and wife.

The Penny Social given at the Brick church, Saturday night, was very well attended. A nice sum was realized.

Lewis Markle and wife visited Sunday at Grabill the guests of Frank Markle and wife.

J. M. Shutt and wife, of Wayne, are visiting with C. M., and G. W Wearley and families, for a few days.

The Gossip Say-

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 1[illegible] cents at NEWS office

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

WANTED your Poultry, for which we will pay the highest market price. Call us and we will come and get it. Phone 13-1.
J. P. BUCKINGHAM.

Frank Bowman, wife and daughter Eloise, Mrs. Mary Bowman and son Ray, and Carl Leighty motored to Cold Springs, Saturday evening returning Sunday. Mrs. Mary Bowman and son remained for a while.

THINK!

DOES the Church and Sunday School mean anything to this community? Would you like to live here without them?

DOES your influence count on the side of the Church and the Sunday School?

DOES your entire family go but YOU? Be Patriotic to your GOD and heed the call for VOLUNTEERS and enlist yourself for work in this community. A cordial WELCOME awaits you at the

METHODIST PROTESTANT
SUNDAY SCHOOL
AT ST. JOE

Good live classes for all ages. Special Days observed in attractive ways. You will get it-"The Sunday School Spirit" if you come.

New People Attending Every Sunday
Publicity Committee.

How a Duelist Was Eliminated

By ELINOR MARSH

During the reign of Louis XIII. France was one vast dueling ground. Dueling was especially in vogue in the army. A practice of this sort is, of course, sure to be abused. A good swordsman who desired to be rid of one who stood in his way would pick a quarrel with him and kill him. Then, too, there were men who had a passion for killing other men.

Mlle. Louise d'Alger, a girl of that period, very beautiful, much beloved, was a resident of Paris. One of her relatives, a young man of great promise, was killed in a duel, and his death rendered her very bitter against the custom. She could not understand why when a man was challenged by a person who was perfectly capable of killing him and intended to kill him the victim should be considered bound in honor to accept the challenge. Nevertheless such was the custom of the times, and the challenged party had to choose between death and social ruin.

At this time in Paris was a man who had been "out" a great many times and always killed his antagonist. Scarcely a week passed but it was announced that some man prominent socially had fallen before his sword. A terror fell upon mothers, sisters and lovers lest one whose life was precious to them would be added to his victims. For a time it was hoped that some man more skillful than he would put him out of the way. But not one of the most admirable fencers in Paris seemed disposed to tackle him, and he did not trouble any of them.

Louise d'Alger declared that any means of getting rid of the Scourge, as he was called, would be excusable and wondered why some man did not stab him in the back. She was told that one who would do that would be regarded as a murderer.

"But," she replied, "he commits murder all the while."

"True, but there is no law to punish him. Should any one stab him in the back the person doing so would fall under the ban of the statute covering murder. Besides, he would be ostracised by his friends."

There seemed no justice, but great injustice, in this to Mlle. D'Alger, and she could not divert her mind from a feeling that such an enormity was suffered to exist merely by opinion. She brooded upon it till it seemed to her that she must do something to stop the Scourge's murders, just as Charlotte Corday at a later period rid France of Marat.

Mlle. D'Alger possessed a fortune and, though she was not noble, held a high position in Paris society. One day the elite received invitations to a ball to be given by her. What was the Scourge's surprise to receive an invitation. He was not accustomed to receiving invitations unless he dropped a hint to some man of the family about to entertain that he would like one. Then the bid was forthcoming, for a refusal would be regarded as an insult and would cost a life. The Scourge was much flattered at receiving Mlle. D'Alger's invitation without any action on his own part. Then, too, he inferred that possibly she had fallen in love with him.

When he appeared among Mlle. D'Alger's guests every one was astonished. The hostess had no man relative through whom he might have forced an invitation, and it was not to be expected that she would invite him of her own free will. All eyes were turned upon her when the duelist on entering the ballroom stepped up to her to make the formal greeting due the hostess, and every one marveled at her cordial reception of him.

The Scourge was beside himself with pride and arrogance at having been invited to the house of a lady of prominence in face of the prejudice, as he called it, of all Paris. The first few dances he chose for partners some lady who had a brother, well knowing that she would not dare refuse him. Later he made his bow to the hostess. She smiled upon him graciously and took position on the floor beside him.

Every eye was turned upon the couple. Mlle. D'Alger's views with regard to dueling were well known, and no one knew of any way by which he could force such cordial treatment. Could it be that she had been fascinated by this man on account of the power he possessed through his sword?

When in the dance the Scourge took his partner's hand in his he felt something prick his finger. He paid no attention to it. Indeed, he could not well do so under the circumstances. Then he was seen to stagger and raise his hand to his head. Instead of conducting his partner to another locality in the room he tottered away by himself, but before he had gone a dozen steps sank down upon the floor. A circle formed about him, all wondering what could have happened to him.

Mlle. D'Alger called for lackeys and directed them to carry out the fallen man who was already dead. Then turning to her guests said:

"Let not this episode interfere with your amusement."

She gave a sign to the musicians, who played another dance.

No investigation was made as to the cause of the death of a man that all Paris hated and feared. On one of his fingers something like a pin prick was noticed, from which had exuded a drop of blood. It was known that his partner wore a ring on the hand he clasped, the setting of which was turned inward.

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31 70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado - -	$36.60
California -	$78.75
Yellowstone -	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

Local Briefs

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c.

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

Rousseau Thought It Might Come, but the Problem Stumped Him.

A curious little book is an old, old treatise on aeronautics by Jean Jacques Rousseau, called "Le Nouveau Dedale."

Like Leonardo da Vinci and Cyrano de Bergerac, Rousseau was haunted by the dream of aerial navigation. We read in his treatise: "Men walk on the earth, they sail on the water and swim in it. Is not the air an element, like the others? What business have the birds to shut us out of their premises while we are made welcome in those of the fishes?"

Rousseau took no stock in any theories propounded by the Darius Greens of his day. He sifted the matter for himself and thought it involved two problems. First, to find a body lighter than air, so that it would rise. He imagined that sooner or later such a body might present itself. There was no telling.

But what stumped him was his second problem—how to make that obliging body stop rising and how in creation to make it come down. This was too tough a problem for Jean Jacques, and he wound up his book by admitting it.

For a long time "Le Nouveau Dedale" remained unpublished, appearing only in 1801.

BE FAIR WITH THE DOG.

Give It a Square Deal and It Will Repay You For Your Care.

Only muzzle a dog if it is absolutely necessary. The wearing of a muzzle tends to make dogs cross and snappish.

It does not prove that a dog has rabies or is mad because it froths at the mouth. It may have a sore throat or a fit.

Clipping the ears is a cruel and barbarous practice, wholly unnecessary, depriving the animal of its natural comfort and beauty and injuring its hearing.

If you must tie up the dog have the end of the chain secured to a ring on a long wire so that it can have the run of at least twenty or thirty feet.

Don't blame the dog for showing no ambition if it is overfed on meats and sweets. Its health and spirits will be of the best if it is given simple but substantial food and allowed the freedom of outdoor life.

Train the dog with firmness and fairness. The animal is eager to learn what is wanted of it and when once it understands will follow instructions with almost human intelligence.—Our Dumb Animals.

"A Right and Lawful Rood."

An example of the old rough and ready methods of arriving at a measurement is the Elizabethan way of getting the "feet." Falentin Leigh, who wrote on surveying, records that after service on Sunday sixteen men were stopped at the church door, just as they happened to come out, and drawn up in line, left foot to left foot. The length thus obtained was taken as "a right and lawful rood to measure and survey the land with," and a sixteenth part of it as "a right and lawful foot." Although big and little men were thus roughly averaged against each other, the results naturally varied to some extent. Hence it is, as Shaw Sparrow notes in treating of this "rood" as the architectural "bay" which gives us the "bay window," that a bay is sometimes found to be rather less than sixteen feet of twelve inches.—London Chronicle.

A Sad Mistake.

A neglected cough has undoubtedly caused more deaths than any other agency. A lingering cough should be promptly treated. If allowed to continue until cold weather the tissues of the lungs will be weakened and the power to resist epidemics of cold and grip is lessened. By getting three ounces of GLANDO PINE you can make one pint of excellent cough syrup. Keep it on hands and use it freely. Stop that cough before it has too firm a grip upon you. Don't be careless and make a mistake that may cost you your life. If you can not get GLANDO PINE of your druggist send 50 cents to the The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind., and it will be sent you.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

DRINK A GLASS OF REAL HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST.

Says we will both look and feel clean, sweet and fresh and avoid illness.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

R U Superstitious

Do You Believe In Signs ?

If you do you are a judicious advertiser and a good business man. Judicious advertising Always Pays and especially when you advertise in a paper that is read by everybody in its territory.

This newspaper reaches the eye of everybody who might be a possible buyer in this section.

JULY

L-908

0236

Preparedness

✻ ✻

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE

Paid for Your POULTRY

SEE

W. G. ERICK

Mrs. J. C. Vallieu received word of the serious illness of her brother, Ralph Wise, of Garrett, caused by a sun stroke, Monday.

George Jenkins and wife entertained Sunday, the following guests Samuel White and wife, and Golden Beninghoff, of Ft. Wayne; Chas Pepple and family, and Perry Miller and wife, of LaOtto; Mrs. Bert Bowman and daughter Helen, of St. Joe; Master Wellington Shull, of Hart, Mich.; Frank Steward and family, of Garrett; Mary Jane Silberg and son Walter, Merwood Rhodes and wife, and Dr. Frank Silberg.

Sell Your POULTRY TO

ZONKER BROTHERS

St. Joe, Indiana.

Highest Prices Paid.

Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.

PHONE NO. 12

Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

Slide in the $1.00 Do it now.

Sell your Chickens to Jack Beams.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Envelopes
Leaflets
Bill Heads
Calling Cards
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Circulars
Posters
Blotters
Invitations
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

SPENCERVILLE

The Rayo Class of the M. E. Sunday School held an Ice Cream Social on the parsonage lawn, Saturday evening. A neat amount of $20.00 was cleared. The Loyal Workers Class of the Lutheran S. S., held an ice cream social also Saturday evening. We did not learn the proceeds realized.

The Girls Pansy Club met on Saturday afternoon at the home of the Misses Cleo and Ada Bowser, and reorganized their club for the coming year under the direction of Mrs. John Beninghoff. Twenty-one girls were present. The following officers were elected: Miss Josephine Doll, President; Cleo Bowser, Vice-president; Margie Spitler, Secretary; Florence Beams, Asst. Secy; Helen Lake, Treasurer; Nellie Kelley, Asst. Treas. Red lemonade and candy were served by the hostesses.

The Golden Hour Class of the Lutheran Church were entertained on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Henderson.

Jason Keyes and wife, of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of Wm Allen and family.

Mrs. Bert Fischer entertained the F G M N Club at her home on Friday afternoon.

A tennis court has been completed at the Lutheran parsonage, which promises healthful recreation to the young people of this place.

Dr. Carey and family were in town, Tuesday, enroute to Hamilton Lake, where they will spend a week with Mrs. Dr. Bowman.

C. A. Rhoades and wife went to Wayne, Tuesday, and from there they went to Defiance to spend a week with Walter Newman and family. They were perhaps anxious to see the new baby girl that came on Monday of last week.

Ethel Metcalf was at Garrett, Tuesday and Wednesday.

New canvass awnings were put in front of Ericks store and the bank, this week. Samuel Markle and Beams & Co., built new awnings also. The latter store is being painted which gives our business section a different appearance.

Ready-to-wear Dresses, Waists and Scrim Goods, a new lot to be in this week. Call and see them first before the choice colors and patterns are selected. Cheaper than you can make them at Beams & Co., store.

Miss Arminta Steward left Saturday morning to spend a few days visiting her sister, Mrs. Roscoe Walter and husband, of Laporte, Ind.

The Ladies Guild will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Sam Markle, Thursday afternoon.

J. M. Beams and wife, and G. M. Shutt motored to the home of the latter's sister, Mrs. Arthur Harter and family, Sunday, and brought home their mother, Mrs. Mary Shutt, who will make her home with them for a few weeks.

Class No. 13 met at the M. E. Parsonage, Saturday evening and organized their class and named it the "Progress" Class, with the Rev. Paul Barton as teacher. The officers are as follows:-Mrs. Ethel Bowser, President; Mrs. George Watson, Vice-president; and Mrs. Minta Rhodes, Secretary-Treasurer.

The funeral of Henry Mumaw, of near Butler, was held Monday afternoon from the home. Rev. A. K. Mumma, of this place, officating. Interment in the Butler cemetery.

Merwood Rhodes is driving a new Ford runabout and Edward Billman is the owner of a Ford touring car.

A Friend in Need.

When Glando Gargle is used for a cold in the head it is surprising to see how quickly the clogged nostrils are opened. Adenoids are caused by a neglected cold. If the mucus which forms is allowed to remain in the nostrils, a diseased condition will result, which causes chronic catarrh and adenoids. Glando Gargle was prepared to meet these special needs. Equally effective for sore mouth or sore throat. Price 50 cents. For sale by All Druggists.

Isadore Badiac and family, of near Ft. Wayne; F. J Osborn and family, of Roanoke, Ind.; and Rev. Barton and family were Sunday guests of Geo. Gloyd and family.

Phone Jack Beams if you have any Chickens for sale.

The C C Club was entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nancy Chaney. Sixteen members were present. An excellent program was rendered. The hostess served a dainty luncheon. Several guests were present:- Mrs. Ada White, of Garrett; Mrs. Rose Beams, and the Misses Nellie Scott, Cleo and Ada Bowser, Florence and Doris Beams, and Garrett Beams.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.]

For Sale: 7 year old horse and a good 1-horse wagon. J. B. Haifley.

For Service: Poll Angus bull at $1.50 cash. Francis Lothamer.

Notice

Persons who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The ninth presidential election in 1820 came during the so-called "era of good feeling." Five new states took part, making 24 altogether, with 235 electoral votes. President Monroe had no opposition and received every electoral vote but one, that of a New Hampshire elector, who cast his vote for John Quincy Adams. Three electors died between the general election and the meeting of the electors. Vice President Tompkins was re-elected, receiving 218 of the 232 votes cast.

Come in and pay that overdue subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, . . . IND

Slipped Back Ten Years!

When asked the secret of her youthful and healthful appearance, a well known woman of Paulding county, Ohio, said: "For several years I was in poor health, I felt tired and achy, was nervous and irritable, my digestion was poor, I had dizzy spells, was troubled considerable with constipation, and had an ugly, splotchy complexion. A friend persuaded me to use GLANDO Tonic. One box helped me so I tried another, and some weeks later I took the third box. Now my liver and kidneys are working nicely and I feel like a new person. My complexion has cleared wonderfully. I can heartily recommend GLANDO to others, as I am sure it can do as much for them as it has for me." By writing to The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind., names and addresses of persons who have been helped by GLANDO will be given. GLANDO is sold by druggists. A 50c. package contains a week's treatment.

FERTILE TASMANIA.

Nicknames Applied to the One Time Convict Settlement.

"Tasmania is perhaps the most interesting of the states of our commonwealth," remarked the Australian. "It is a large triangular island lying to the south of Melbourne and was once a convict settlement.

"The climate is delightful and the soil remarkably fertile. The island is practically one large orchard. As fruit trees do not require much tending, leisure is a notable characteristic of the inhabitants, and Tasmania is known throughout the antipodes as 'the land of lots of time' or 'the land of sleep a lot.' Is is also called 'the jam country' and its natives familiarly termed 'jam eaters.' This is on account of the presence of an enormous cannery on the island, where some of the orchard products are converted into jams, jellies and preserved fruits.

"But this by no means ends the list of Tasmanian nicknames. Two Dutch explorers, Tasman and Van Dieman, had to do with the discovery of the island, and, although the name Tasman is now used, it is often referred to in old schoolbooks as Van Dieman's Land. We find it amusing to twist the latter name a bit and call the Tasmanians 'demons,' which is a shame, as they are the mildest and best fellows in the world. They speak of themselves as 'Tasies,' and that may be accepted as their unofficial designation."

Shannon's Show Next Week.

Harry Shannon's Big Tent Show, will be in St. Joe, all next week. The Shannon Stock Company has the reputation of being one of the best dramatic shows on the road, and this year it lives right up to its past record. In fact the show is bigger and better than ever. Thirty people are carried with the show. New plays and vaudeville and new scenery have been added this season. Among the plays are to be found such well known successes as: "The Net," "By Order of the Court," "An Editor's Romance," "Twin Bachelors," "A Fight for Honor," "Kentucky Sue" and "A Woman of Society."

The prices will be the same as usual; adults 25 and children 10 cents.

A Band Concert will be given Monday at 3 p m., and each evening at 7 o'clock. Performance begins at 8 o'clock.

The big tent will be located on the Chas. Koch lots, opposite the Christian Church, at the southwest part of town.

Don't fail to see "The Net," a beautiful story of the stock exchange. Beautifully gowned. The opening performance at Shannon's Big Tent, Monday night.

The Shannon's are coming! All next week, with their excellent Band and Orchestra.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Frank W. Silberg
Veterinarian

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
— ON —
Main Street
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7
(31) Residence No. 101

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

Office Day—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
— AND —
Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 64.

Oldest in America Strongest in the World

Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. [illegible]

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

808-810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JULY

L 908

0237

News of the Week Cut Down for Busy Readers

European War News

The Prussian casualties up to the present are 2,801,521, according to the London Daily Telegraph, which claims these figures are official.

* * *

Effective renewal of the Russian drive in the Volhynian region, with the passage of the River Styr, the capture of 1,600 prisoners, and the occupation of the two towns of Berestecak and Werben, is officially announced by the Russian war office at Petrograd and admitted in an official statement from Vienna.

* * *

An attack by British forces against the Germans at Fromelles, north of La Bassee, on Wednesday, resulted in the loss by the attackers of more than 2,000 men killed and nearly 500 men taken prisoner, according to a statement given out by the Berlin war office.

* * *

Despite the fact that the Germans are developing a strong counter offensive against the new front won by the Franco-British troops in Picardy, General Haig's forces have further increased their gains carrying the greater part of the strongly fortified Foureaux wood, north of the Bazentin-Longueval line, says a London dispatch.

* * *

Ten thousand Canadian soldiers are to proceed overseas soon, says an Ottawa (Ont.) dispatch.

* * *

Dispatches form Amsterdam state the British sea forces confiscated all the first-class mail on the Dutch liner Noordam while en route to New York.

* * *

The Russian government has given orders that all emigration from Russia to the United States via Archangel is to be stopped, according to a Petrograd dispatch.

* * *

The Russians have opened powerful offensives in the Carpathians, toward Kovel, at Vladimir-Volynski and in the Riga sector, says a wireless dispatch from Rome. It adds that a big battle is developing at Jablonitza at the head of Jablonitza pass through the Carpathians into Hungary.

* * *

Renewing their offensive with a smashing onslaught south of the Somme, the French captured 2,900 prisoners, the largest number yet taken in a single action in Picardy since the initial offensive, and took the entire first line of German trenches on the three-mile front from Estrees to Vermandovillers, says a Paris official statement.

* * *

A dispatch form Petrograd says 24 women have been elected to the Finnish diet. This represents 12 per cent of the entire membership.

* * *

Successful fighting above the snow line by the Russian troops in Turkish Armenia is reported by the Petrograd war office.

* * *

Official advices received from Saloniki say that cannonading is in progress along the entire Saloniki front.

* * *

Belgian troops operating in German East Africa have reached the shore of Lake Victoria Nyanza and in a seven-hour engagement fought July 7 they dispersed the Germans opposing their advance, taking the German commandant prisoner and inflicting a number of losses on the Germans, according to an official statement issued by the Belgian war office.

* * *

Reports from Rome say that the retirement of the Teutonic allies on the Lipa has caused a panic in Galicia, where towns are being evacuated.

* * *

Domestic

Clayton McDonald, son of a prominent Floridan, was killed and all but his hands and feet eaten by a ferocious panther in the San Pedro swamp.

* * *

During a thick fog the incoming steamer Comus from New Orleans collided with a coal barge off Sea Girt, N. J. The barge's crew of seven men were rescued. The barge sank rapidly. The damage to the Comus was slight.

* * *

Forty persons, including a number of soldiers and women, were killed during a severe lightning and rain storm in the suburbs of Mexico City. Most of the deaths occurred at San Gregorio, Atlapulco and near Xochimilco.

* * *

Miss Lizzie Lyndon, Miss True Eshelman and Arthur Larson are dead as a result of an accident when their automobile turned turtle four miles east of Kewaunee, Ill. Frank Van Hecker, the fourth occupant of the car, is in a hospital with his legs broken.

* * *

The First National bank of Alpha, Mich., a small town in Iron county about 35 miles from Iron Mountain, Mich., was robbed of $6,000 by two highwaymen. The cashier was the only one in the bank at the time.

Two hundred and eighty-one women in Kansas are running for office. Ten want state or district offices. Two hundred and seventy-one are out for county offices. Ninety-two of these are candidates for re-election.

* * *

The Cedar river at Muscatine, Ia., has claimed three more victims. John Donderly, twenty-nine, an official of the First National bank; Miss Myrtle Foster, twenty-five, a nurse and fiancee of Wonderly, and Miss Marguerite Guathard, thirty, were drowned while in bathing.

* * *

J. Frank Hanly, former governor of Indiana, was nominated for the presidency at St. Paul, Minn., by the Prohibition convention. Dr. Ira J. Landrith of Nashville, Tenn., was named as Hanly's running mate by acclamation.

* * *

Infantile paralysis showed a sudden and marked increase in figures issued by the New York health department, proving unfounded the hope that the crisis of the epidemic had been passed. One hundred and twenty-one new cases and 22 deaths were announced, as compared with 95 cases and 14 deaths the previous day.

* * *

Seventeen additional deaths have brought the southeastern flood toll to 32, but all rivers are falling and something like normal conditions obtain in many sections.

* * *

Frank O'Connor, thirty-one, a prominent business man of Mount Pleasant, Ia., killed himself at his residence by shooting himself in the head with a rifle. A widow and a child survive him.

* * *

Two boys, Ralph Hatch and George Anthony, were killed when a train struck an automobile in which they were riding at Woodstock (Ill.) grade crossing.

* * *

When Charles Richards, aged twelve, became exhausted and sank in the river at Des Moines, Ia., his brother Williams, aged seven, went to his rescue, and the two were drowned.

* * *

Maj. C. M. Butler of the Sixth United States cavalry and Mrs. H. J. Spannell, with whom he was out riding in an automobile at Alpine, Tex., were shot and killed by M. J. Spannell, husband of the woman.

* * *

Floods which have already drowned 200 persons in the district about Queretaro, Mex., are becoming worse hourly, according to official dispatches. Thousands of families have been driven from their homes.

* * *

Six persons are dead and three wounded as the result of a pitched battle between 150 policemen and a negro maniac and his wife, barricaded in a house on Irving avenue, Chicago. The battle was ended only when the police dynamited the flat building in which the negroes were quartered, after hundreds of shots had been fired.

* * *

Mexican War News

First Chief Carranza has submitted to the government of the United States in a formal note to Secretary Lansing at Washington the proposal that the de facto government and the United States government, each appoint a commission of three members to meet and arrange a basis for the settlement of the differences between the two countries.

* * *

An El Paso dispatch says "Pancho" Villa's advance guard is riding on a raid north of Chihuahua City and less than 150 miles from the American border. Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commander of the Carranza army of the north, admitted that the Villistas had broken through and that he seemed powerless to stop them.

* * *

Carranza troops engaged a detachment of the Ninth Massachusetts infantry in a sharp skirmish fight on the border near El Paso. More than 100 shots were fired. One Mexican is believed killed. No casualties on the American side.

* * *

Personal

Ambassador Walter H. Page and Mrs. Page have left London for New York on a month's vacation, the first in four years.

* * *

Washington

The senate at Washington confirmed Abram I. Elkus, New York, as ambassador to Turkey.

* * *

President Wilson sent the nomination of Abram I. Elkus of New York to succeed Henry Mergenthau as ambassador to Turkey to the senate at Washington.

* * *

President Wilson is to go to Wisconsin's lake country for at least two weeks of fishing and to hide away from the cares of office preliminary to his fall presidential campaign, according to a Rhinelander (Wis.) dispatch.

* * *

President Wilson and his cabinet at Washington determined to insist that England shall remove American firms from her "blacklist."

* * *

The senate at Washington passed a resolution appropriating $185,000 for fighting infantile paralysis. The measure has been passed by the house.

* * *

President Wilson has asked Secretary of Commerce Redfield and Secretary of Labor Wilson to try to settle the strike of 40,000 garment workers in New York city.

ORIENTALS LEARNING TO BE AVIATORS

This photograph, taken at the Christofferson school of aviation in California, shows, left to right, Gong Key of Canton, China; Louis Kinson of Manila, P. I., and Albert N. F. Tom of Honolulu.

PERSHING'S MEN GET MAIL FROM HOME

Some of the troops of General Pershing's expedition in Mexico receiving a quantity of mail from home.

MRS. SAYRE AND ELEANOR

©BY WM. S. ELLIS

Recent photograph of Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, daughter of President Wilson, and her little daughter, Eleanor Paxson Sayre, taken at the Sayre residence in Williamstown, Mass.

Of Course.

Mr. Taylor was relating to a group of friends the accomplishments of his new hunting dog. After he had told of some wonderful things his dog was able to do, he said proudly:

"And that's what I call some dog."

"That dog is no dog at all compared to mine," was the unexpected reply of an Irishman present.

"Me dog can do all of them tricks, and beside that and in addition he can sing."

"Cut that stuff, Pat. A dog that sings! What breed of a dog is he, anyway?"

"A burrd dog, of course," said Pat, without batting an eye.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Reassurance.

Gen. William A. Mann, commanding the Second brigade, was talking in Laredo about the Mexican situation.

"Reassuring?" he said. "Well, that bulletin is just about as reassuring as the barber's remark.

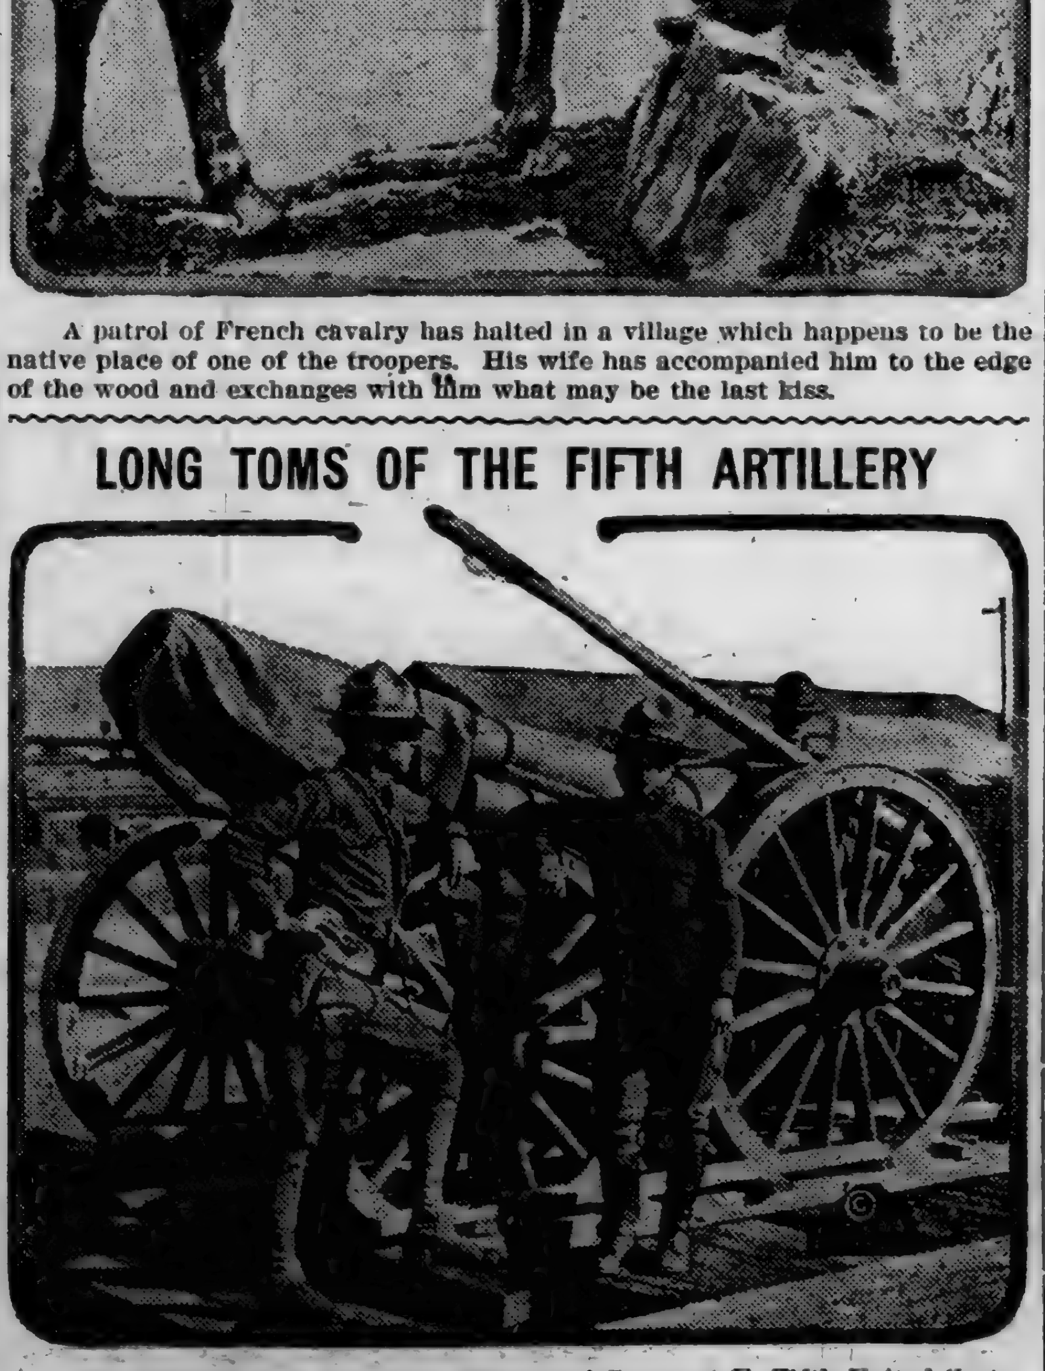
"'Here, you be careful!' a patient growled to a barber. 'That's the second time you've cut me!'

"'Yes, yes!' said the barber, in soothing tones, 'so it is, but there! I always deduct a nickel for every cut. Why, sir, it's nothing unusual for a man to leave here a quarter to the good!'"

IT MAY BE THEIR LAST KISS

A patrol of French cavalry has halted in a village which happens to be the native place of one of the troopers. His wife has accompanied him to the edge of the wood and exchanges with him what may be the last kiss.

LONG TOMS OF THE FIFTH ARTILLERY



One of the 4.7-inch guns (Long Toms) of Company E, Fifth United States artillery, on a flat car at El Paso.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 30

"THE WORD OF THE CROSS."

LESSON TEXT—I Cor. 1:1; 2:5. Print 1-18—2-2.

GOLDEN TEXT—Far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ.—Gal. 6:14.

Paul's letter to the church at Corinth was written from the city of Ephesus some four of five years after Paul had left Corinth. We have seen some of the difficulties which surrounded this church. It was a small body of believers in a great city of four hundred thousand. It was surrounded by all kinds of liscentiousness and excess so that to maintain a Christian moral ideal was difficult in the extreme. That is why this first epistle has so much to do with church government and such questions as the marriage relation, the conduct of public assemblies, spiritual gifts, the resurrection from the dead, different factions, the love feasts of the rich and the poor, eating meat offered to idols, law suits conducted before the heathen, the Lord's supper and church dicipline are discussed. Paul did not himself write the letter. Sosthenes acted as his amanuensis. In this letter is the wonderful and immortal love chapter (Ch. 13), and the magnificent resurrection chapter (Ch. 15).

The only unity desirable or possible is that which Christ prayed for (John 17:21). This is not a unity of opinion or of organization, but a unity of purpose and power, the working together of belivers in harmony to attain the great purposes of Christianity.

I. The Power and Wisdom of God. (vv. 18-25). To a sin-blinded mind the preaching of the cross is foolishness. Even some professed Christians reject the doctrine of substitution which is found everywhere in the Bible. (Isa. 53:6; Gal. 3:13; I Cor. 5:21). If the doctrine of the cross is foolishness to anyone it is to "them that perish." The Jews require a sign (v. 22) but the cross puts them to shame (v. 27). God is made unto us wisdom, not the wisdom of men but the wisdom of the Spirit. It is such preaching as this that is "the power of God." It has proven itself the power of God in our lives. It will "destroy the wisdom of the wise" and "bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent" (Isa. 29:14 cf. Jer. 8:9). God is constantly making foolish the power and wisdom of this world. Philosophic research after the unknowable "tries to make a God of its own pattern but does not satisfy the longings of the human heart," and God through the foolishness of the thing preached is pleased to "save them which believe." The performing of a miracle (Math. 12:38), and the Greeks seeking after wisdom, or philosophical reasoning, is no match for the Christ crucified whom Paul preached.

II. The Preaching and Power of Paul (vv. 26 to Ch. 2:2). Taking the Bible as a whole, we see in it God's plan and purpose with regard to the goal of mankind. The problem was by what means this purpose could be performed. The whole of the Old Testament is a story of God working to this end. Then at the best time in all history came Jesus, the son of God, into the world, and, by his death on the cross and his resurrection, we are all bound together in one, summed up in the cross as the power and the wisdom of God for salvation. The symbol of the cross is a common sight, yet the great truth which it symbolizes is often obscured by scholars, and fails to be lived by disciples. God chooses those whom the world rejects, "the foolish," and whom the world rejects as "the weak." These are the ones that were called even in Paul's day. The purpose of this call is to confound (or to put to shame) the wisdom of men. The most powerful motive in existence is the motive of the cross. (1) The cross is the highest proof and the strongest expression of the love of God for man. (2) the cross was the agent whereby atonement was made for sin. (3) The cross shows us the terrible evils of sin and the demand of such a sacrifice as God's son in order to save us from it. (4) It shows us that God wants us to come to him and to be saved, and that there is joy in heaven over every repentant sinner. (5) It shows the supreme value of right and duty in that Christ went to the cross at the terrible cost of his life. (6) It shows the value of the human soul. (7) From the cross, through the resurrection and the ever-living Saviour, God has given us the fullness of the Spirit to inspire and transform.

We are nothing in ourselves, and God has made Christ unto us "wisdom and righteousness," that is, God's righteousness is provided for us in Christ (I Cor. 5:21; Rom. 5:1; Phil. 3:9 R. V.); also sanctification and redemption, that is, we are separated from the world unto God and in him we are redeemed from sin and its consequences.

There is left no room for glorying in ourselves.

This was the preaching upon which Paul depended, not upon rhetoric nor philosophy nor argument with which to convict and convert men.

JULY

L 908

0238

The Turmoil

By

BOOTH TARKINGTON

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—7—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Mary shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.

Love has awakened in the bosom of Bibbs—shy, hopeless love for something unattainable. The emotion is reflected in his gentleness with his grief-stricken father. Will it stir his ambition and impel him to activity that will help him win the girl finally? Will Old Sheridan come to understand and appreciate?

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

There came a second explosion, and Uncle Gideon ran out into the hall. Bibbs went to the head of the great staircase, and, looking down, discovered the source of the disturbance. Gideon's grandson, a boy of fourteen, had brought his camera to the funeral and was taking "flashlights" of the Moor. Uncle Gideon, reassured by Bibbs' explanation, would have returned to finish his quotation from Bildad the Shuhite, but Bibbs detained him, and after a little argument persuaded him to descend to the dining room whither Bibbs followed, after closing the door of his father's room.

He kept his eyes on Gideon after dinner, diplomatically preventing several attempts on the part of that comforter to reascend the stairs; and it was a relief to Bibbs when George announced that an automobile was waiting to convey the ancient man and his grandson to their train. They were the last to leave, and when they had gone Bibbs went sighing to his own room.

He stretched himself wearily upon the bed, but presently rose, went to the window, and looked for a long time at the darkened house where Mary Vertrees lived. Then he opened his trunk, took therefrom a small notebook half filled with fragmentary scribblings, and began to write:

Laughter after a funeral. In this reaction people will laugh at anything and at nothing. The band plays a dirge on the way to the cemetery, but when it turns back, and the mourning carriages are out of hearing, it strikes up, "Darktown Is Out To-Night." That is natural—but there are women whose laughter is like the whirring of whips. . . .

Beauty is not out of place among gravestones. It is not out of place anywhere. But a woman who has been betrothed to a man would not look beautiful at his funeral. A woman might look beautiful, though, at the funeral of a man whom she had known and liked. And in that case, too, she would probably not want to talk if she drove home from the cemetery with his brother; nor would she want the brother to talk. . . . Nevertheless, too much silence is open to suspicion. It may be reticence, or it may be a vacuum. It may be dignity, or it may be false teeth. . . .

Silence can be golden? Yes. But perhaps if a woman of the world should find herself by accident sitting beside a man for the length of time it must necessarily take two slow old horses to jog three miles, she might expect that man to say something of some sort! If he did not even try, but sat every step of the way as dumb as a frozen fish, she might think him a frozen fish. And she might be right. She might be right if she thought him about as pleasant a companion—as Bildad the Shuhite!

Bibbs closed his notebook, replacing it in his trunk. Then, after a period of melancholy contemplation, he undressed, put on a dressing gown and slippers, and went softly out into the hall—to his father's door. Upon the floor was a tray which Bibbs had sent George, earlier in the evening, to place upon a table in Sheridan's room—but the food was untouched. Bibbs stood listening outside the door for several minutes. There came no sound from within, and he went back to his own room and to bed.

In the morning he woke to a state of being hitherto unknown in his experience. Sometimes in the process of waking there is a little pause—sleep has gone, but coherent thought has not begun. It is the moment, as we say, before we "remember;" and for the first time in Bibbs' life it came to him bringing a vague happiness. However, it was a brief visitation and was gone before he had finished dressing. It left a little trail, the pleased recollection of it and the puzzle of it, which remained unsolved. And, in fact, waking happily in the morning is not usually the result of a drive home from a funeral. No wonder the sequence evaded Bibbs Sheridan!

His father had gone when he came downstairs. "Went on down to 's office, jes' same," Jackson informed him. "Came sat breakfas' table, all by 'mself; eat nothin'. George bring nice breakfas', but he di'n' eat a thing. Yessuh, went on downtown, jes' same he yoosta do. Yessuh, I reckon putty much ev'ything goin' on same as it yoosta do."

It struck Bibbs that Jackson was right. The day passed as other days had passed. Mrs. Sheridan and Edith were in black, and Mrs. Sheridan cried a little, now and then, but no other external difference was to be seen. Bibbs went for his drive, and his mother went with him, as she sometimes did when the weather was pleasant. Altogether, the usualness of things was rather startling to Bibbs.

During the drive Mrs. Sheridan talked fragmentarily of Jim's childhood. "But you wouldn't remember that," she said, after narrating an episode. "You were too little. He was always a good boy, just like that. And he'd save whatever papa gave him, and put it in the bank. I reckon it'll just about kill your father to put somebody in his place as president of the Realty company, Bibbs. I know he can't move Roscoe over; he told me last week he'd already put as much on Roscoe as any one man could handle and not go crazy. Oh, it's a pity—" She stopped to wipe her eyes. "It's a pity you didn't run more with Jim, Bibbs, and kind o' pick up his ways. Think what it'd meant to papa now! You never did run with either Roscoe or Jim any, even before you got sick. Of course you were younger; but it always did seem queer—and you three bein' brothers like that. I don't believe I ever saw you and Jim sit down together for a good talk in my life."

"Mother, I've been away so long," Bibbs returned, gently. "And since I came home I— He was busy, you see, and I hadn't much to say about the things that interested him, because I don't know much about them."

"It's a pity! Oh, it's a pity!" she moaned. "And you'll have to learn to know about 'em now, Bibbs. I haven't said much to you, because I felt it was all between your father and you, but I honestly do believe it will just kill him if he has to have any more trouble on top of all this! You mustn't let him, Bibbs—you mustn't! You don't know how he's grieved over you, and now he can't stand any more—he just can't! Whatever he says for you to do, you do it, Bibbs, you do it! I want you to promise me you will."

"I would if I could," he said, sorrowfully.

"No, no! Why can't you?" she cried, clutching his arm. "He wants you to go back to the machine shop and all on earth he asks is for you to go back in a cheerful spirit, so it won't hurt you! That's all he asks. Look, Bibbs, we're gettin' back near home, but before we get there I want you to promise me that you'll do what he asks you to. Promise me!"

In her earnestness she cleared away her black veil that she might see him better, and it blew out on the smoky wind. He readjusted it for her before he spoke.

"I'll go back in as cheerful a spirit as I can, mother," he said.

"There!" she exclaimed, satisfied. "That's a good boy! That's all I wanted you to say."

"Don't give me any credit," he said, ruefully. "There isn't anything else for me to do."

"No, don't begin talkin' that way!"

"No, no," he soothed her. "We'll have to begin to make the spirit a cheerful one. We may—" They were turning into their own driveway as he spoke, and he glanced at the old house next door. Mary Vertrees was visible in the twilight, standing upon the front steps, bareheaded, the door open behind her. She bowed gravely.

"'We may'—what?" asked Mrs. Sheridan, with a slight impatience.

"What is it mother?"

"Of all the queer boys!" she cried. "You always were. Always! You haven't forgot what you just promised me, have you?"

"No," he answered, as the car stopped. "No, the spirit will be as cheerful as the flesh will let it, mother. It won't do to behave like—"

His voice was low, and in her movement to descend from the car she failed to hear his final words.

"Behave like who, Bibbs?"

"Nothing."

But she was fretful in her grief. "You said it wouldn't do to behave like somebody. Behave like who?"

"It was just nonsense," he explained, turning to go in. "An obscure person I don't think much of lately."

"Behave like who?" she repeated, and upon his yielding to her petulant insistence, she made up her mind that the only thing to do was to tell Dr. Gurney about it.

"Like Bildad the Shuhite!" was what Bibbs said.

CHAPTER XIII.

The outward usualness of things continued after dinner. In the library, while his wife sat in her customary chair, gazing at the fire, Sheridan let the unfolded evening paper rest upon his lap, though now and then he lifted it, as if to read. Bibbs came in noiselessly and sat in a corner, doing nothing; and from a "reception room" across the hall an indistinct vocal murmur became just audible at intervals. Once, when this murmur grew louder, under stress of some irrepressible merriment, Edith's voice could be heard—"Bobby, aren't you awful!" and Sheridan glanced across at his wife appealingly.

She rose at once and went into the "reception room;" there was a flurry of whispering, and the sound of tiptoeing in the hall—Edith and her suitor changing quarters to a more distant room. Mrs. Sheridan returned to her chair in the library.

"They won't bother you any more, papa," she said, in a comforting voice. "She told me at lunch he'd 'phoned he wanted to come up this evening, and I said I thought he'd better wait a few days, but she said she'd already told him he could." She paused, then added, rather guiltily: "I got kind of a notion maybe Roscoe don't like him as much as he used to. Maybe—maybe you better ask Roscoe, papa." And as Sheridan nodded solemnly, she concluded, in haste: "Don't say I said to. I might be wrong about it, anyway."

He nodded again, and they sat for some time in a silence which Mrs. Sheridan broke with a little sniff, having fallen into a reverie that brought tears. "That Miss Vertrees was a good girl," she said. "She was all right."

Her husband evidently had no difficulty in following her train of thought, for he nodded once more, affirmatively.

"Did you— How did you fix it about the—the Realty company?" she faltered. "Did you—"

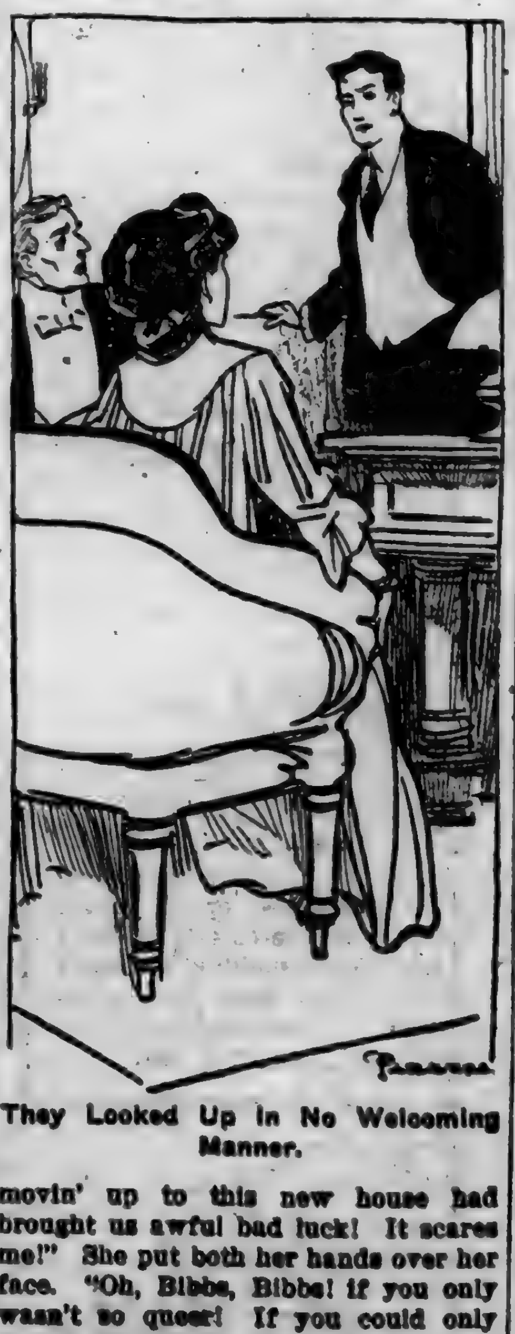
He rose heavily, helping himself to his feet by the arms of his chair. "I fixed it," he said, in a husky voice. He went to her, put his hand upon her shoulder, and drew a long, audible, tremendous breath. "It's my bedtime, mamma; I'm goin' up." When he reached the door he stopped and spoke again, without turning to look at her. "The Realty company'll go right on just the same," he said. "It's like—it's like sand, mamma. It puts me in mind of chuldren playin' in a sand-pile. One of 'em sticks his finger in the sand-pile and makes a hole, and another of 'em 'll pat the place with his hand, and all the little grains of sand run in and fill it up and settle against one another; and then, right away it's flat on top again, and you can't tell there ever was a hole there. The Realty company 'll go on all right, mamma. There ain't anythings anywhere, I reckon, that wouldn't go right on—just the same."

And he passed out slowly into the hall; then they heard his heavy tread upon the stairs.

Mrs. Sheridan, rising to follow him, turned a piteous face to her son. "It's so forlorn," she said, chokingly. "That's the first time he spoke since he came in the house this evening. I know it must 'a' hurt him to hear Edith laughin' with that Lamhorn. She'd oughtn't to let him come, right the very first evening this way; she'd oughtn't to done it! She just seems to lose her head over him, and it scares me. You heard what Sibyl said the other day, and—and you heard what—what—"

"What Edith said to Sibyl?" Bibbs finished the sentence for her.

"We can't have any trouble o' that kind!" she wailed. "Oh, it looks as if movin' up to this new house had brought us awful bad luck! It scares me!" She put both her hands over her face. "Oh, Bibbs, Bibbs! if you only wasn't so queer! If you could only been a kind of dependable son! I don't know what we're all comin' to!" And, weeping, she followed her husband.



They Looked Up In No Welcoming Manner.

Bibbs gazed for a while at the fire; then he rose abruptly, like a man who has come to a decision, and briskly sought the room—it was called "the smoking room"—where Edith sat with Mr. Lamhorn. They looked up in no welcoming manner, at Bibbs' entrance, and moved their chairs to a less conspicuous adjacency.

"Good evening," said Bibbs, pleasantly; and he seated himself in a leather easy-chair near them.

"What is it?" asked Edith, plainly astonished.

"Nothing," he returned, smiling.

She frowned. "Did you want something?" she asked.

"Nothing in the world. Father and mother have gone upstairs; I sha'n't be going up for several hours, and there didn't seem to be anybody left for me to chat with except you and Mr. Lamhorn."

"'Chat with'!" she echoed, incredulously.

"I can talk about almost anything," said Bibbs with an air of genial politeness. "It doesn't matter to me. I don't know much about business—if that's what you happened to be talking about. But you aren't in business, are you, Mr. Lamhorn?"

"Not now," returned Lamhorn, shortly.

"I'm not, either," said Bibbs. "It was getting cloudier than usual, I noticed, just before dark, and there was wind from the southwest. Rain tomorrow, I shouldn't be surprised."

He seemed to feel that he had begun a conversation the support of which had now become the pleasurable duty of other parties; and he sat expectantly, looking first at his sister, then at Lamhorn, as if implying that it was their turn to speak. Edith returned his gaze with a mixture of astonishment and increasing anger, while Mr. Lamhorn was obviously disturbed, though Bibbs had been as considerate as possible in presenting the weather as a topic. Bibbs had perceived that Lamhorn had nothing in his mind at any time except "personalities"—he could talk about people and he could make love. Bibbs, wishing to be courteous, offered the weather.

Lamhorn refused it, and concluded from Bibbs' luxurious attitude in the leather chair that this half-crazy brother was a permanent fixture for the rest of the evening. There was no reason to hope that he would move, and Lamhorn found himself in danger of looking silly.

"I was just going," he said, rising.

"Oh no!" Edith cried, sharply.

"Yes. Good night! I think I—"

"Too bad," said Bibbs, genially, walking to the door with the visitor, while Edith stood staring as the two disappeared in the hall. She heard Bibbs offering to "help" Lamhorn with his overcoat and the latter rather curtly declining assistance, these episodes of departure being followed by the closing of the outer door. She ran into the hall.

"What's the matter with you?" she cried, furiously. "What do you mean? How did you dare come in here when you knew—"

Her voice broke; she made a gesture of rage and despair, and ran up the stairs, sobbing. She fled to her mother's room, and when Bibbs came up, a few minutes later, Mrs. Sheridan met him at his door.

"Oh, Bibbs," she said, shaking her head woefully, "you'd oughtn't to distress your sister? She says you drove that young man out of the house. You'd ought to been more considerate."

Bibbs smiled faintly, noting that Edith's door was open, with Edith's naive shadow motionless across its threshold. "Yes," he said. "He' doesn't appear to be much of a 'man's man.' He ran at just a glimpse of one."

Edith's shadow moved; her voice came quavering: "You call yourself one?"

"No, no," he answered. "I said 'just a glimpse of one.' I didn't claim—" But her door slammed angrily; and he turned to his mother.

"There," he said, sighing. "That's almost the first time in my life I ever tried to be a man of action, mother, and I succeeded perfectly in what I tried to do. As a consequence I feel like a horse thief!"

"You hurt her feelin's," she groaned. "You must 'a' gone at it too rough, Bibbs."

He looked upon her wanly. "That's my trouble, mother," he murmured. "I'm a plain, blunt fellow. I have rough ways, and I'm a rough man."

For once she perceived some meaning in his queerness. "Hush your nonsense!" she said, good-naturedly, the astral of a troubled smile appearing. "You go to bed."

He kissed her and obeyed.

Edith gave him a cold greeting the next morning at the breakfast table.

"You mustn't do that under a misapprehension," he warned her, when they were alone in the dining room.

"Do what under a what?" she asked.

"Speak to me. I came into the smoking room last night 'on purpose,'" he told her, gravely. "I have a prejudice against that young man."

She laughed. "I guess you think it means a great deal who you have prejudices against!" In mockery she adopted the manner of one who implores. "Bibbs, for pity's sake promise me, don't use your influence with papa against him!" And she laughed louder.

"Listen," he said, with peculiar earnestness. "I'll tell you now, because—because I've decided I'm one of the family." And then, as if the earnestness were too heavy for him to carry it further, he continued, in his usual tone, "I'm drunk with power, Edith."

"What do you want to tell me?" she demanded, brusquely.

"Lamhorn made love to Sibyl," he said.

Edith hooted. "She did to him!"

"No," he said, gravely. "I know."

"How?"

"I was there, one day a week ago, with Roscoe, and I heard Sibyl and Lamhorn—"

Edith screamed with laughter. "You were with Roscoe—and you heard Lamhorn making love to Sibyl!"

"No. I heard them quarreling."

"You're funnier than ever, Bibbs!" she cried. "You say he made love to her because you heard them quarreling!"

"That's it. If you want to know what's 'between' people, you can—by the way they quarrel."

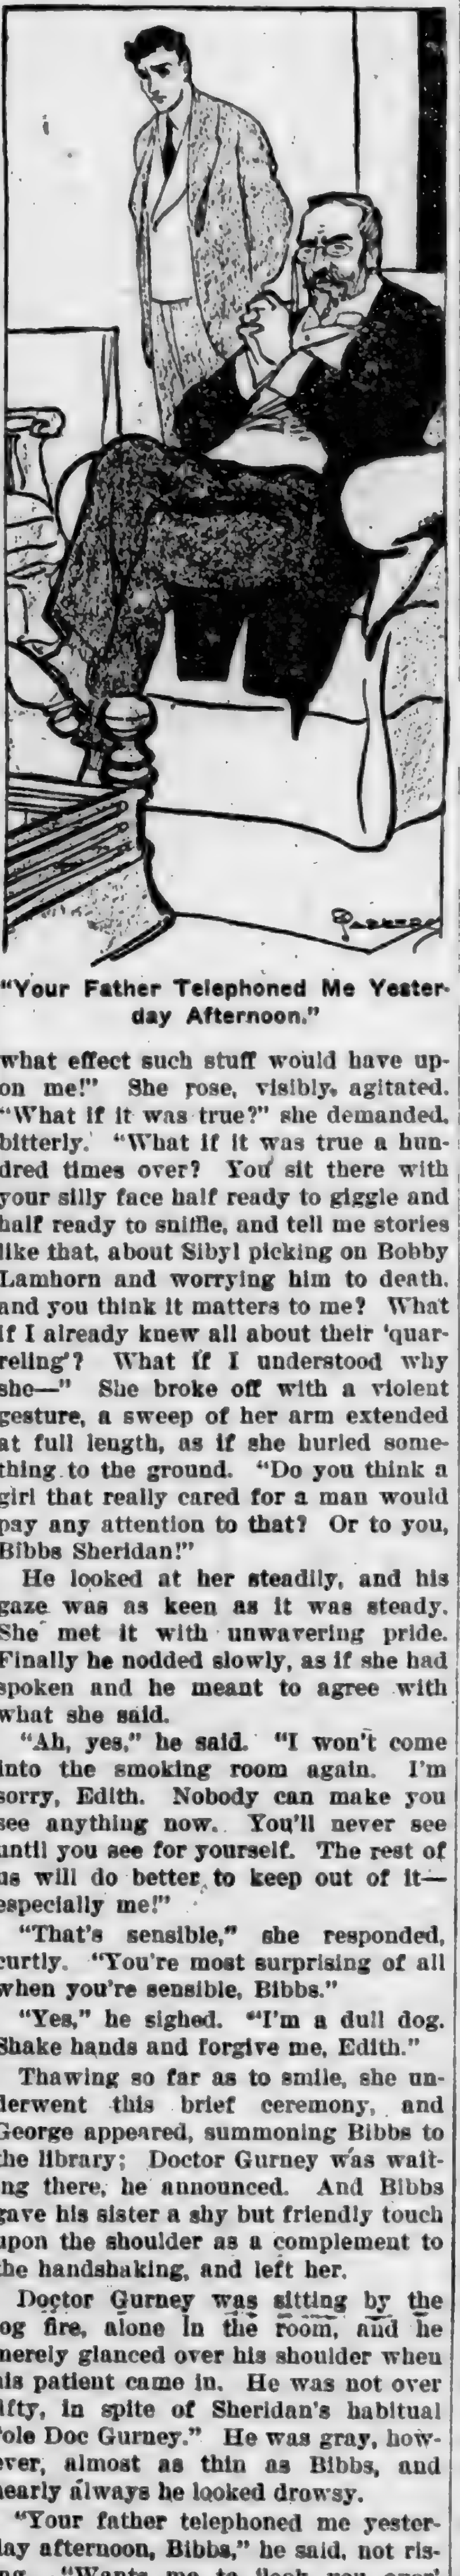
"You'll kill me, Bibbs! What were they quarreling about?"

"Nothing. That's how I know. People who quarrel over nothing!—it's always certain—"

Edith stopped laughing abruptly, but continued her mockery. "You ought to know. You've had so much experience, yourself!"

"I haven't any, Edith," he said. "My life has been about as exciting as an incubator chicken's. But I look out through the glass at things."

"Well, then," she said, "if you look out through the glass you must know what effect such stuff would have upon me!" She rose, visibly agitated. "What if it was true?" she demanded, bitterly. "What if it was true a hundred times over? You sit there with your silly face half ready to giggle and half ready to sniffle, and tell me stories like that, about Sibyl picking on Bobby Lamhorn and worrying him to death, and you think it matters to me? What if I already knew all about their 'quarreling'? What if I understood why she—" She broke off with a violent gesture, a sweep of her arm extended at full length, as if she hurled something to the ground. "Do you think a girl that really cared for a man would pay any attention to that? Or to you, Bibbs Sheridan!"



"Your Father Telephoned Me Yesterday Afternoon."

He looked at her steadily, and his gaze was as keen as it was steady. She met it with unwavering pride. Finally he nodded slowly, as if she had spoken and he meant to agree with what she said.

"Ah, yes," he said. "I won't come into the smoking room again. I'm sorry, Edith. Nobody can make you see anything now. You'll never see until you see for yourself. The rest of us will do better to keep out of it—especially me!"

"That's sensible," she responded, curtly. "You're most surprising of all when you're sensible, Bibbs."

"Yes," he sighed. "I'm a dull dog. Shake hands and forgive me, Edith."

Thawing so far as to smile, she underwent this brief ceremony, and George appeared, summoning Bibbs to the library; Doctor Gurney was waiting there, he announced. And Bibbs gave his sister a shy but friendly touch upon the shoulder as a complement to the handshaking, and left her.

Doctor Gurney was sitting by the log fire, alone in the room, and he merely glanced over his shoulder when his patient came in. He was not over fifty, in spite of Sheridan's habitual "ole Doc Gurney." He was gray, however, almost as thin as Bibbs, and nearly always he looked drowsy.

"Your father telephoned me yesterday afternoon, Bibbs," he said, not rising. "Wants me to 'look you over' again. Come around here in front of me—between me and the fire. I want to see if I can see through you."

"You mean you're too sleepy to move," returned Bibbs, complying. "I think you'll notice that I'm getting worse."

"Taken on about twelve pounds," said Gurney. "Thirteen, maybe."

"Twelve."

"Well, it won't do." The doctor rubbed his eyelids. "You're so much better I'll have to use some machinery on you before we can know just where you are. You come down to my place this afternoon. Walk down—all the way. I suppose you know why your father wants to know."

Bibbs nodded. "Machine shop."

"Still hate it?"

Bibbs nodded again.

"Don't blame you!" the doctor grunted. "Yes, I expect it'll make a lump in your gizzard again. Well, what do you say? Shall I tell him you've got the old lump there yet? You still want to write, do you?"

"What's the use?" Bibbs said, smiling ruefully. "My kind of writing!"

"Yes," the doctor agreed. "I suppose if you broke away and lived on roots and berries until you began to 'attract the favorable attention of editors' you might be able to hope for an income of four or five hundred dollars a year by the time you're fifty."

"That's about it," Bibbs murmured.

"Of course I know what you want to do," said Gurney, drowsily. "You don't hate the machine shop only; you hate the whole show—the noise and jar and dirt, the scramble—the whole bloomin' craze to 'get on.' You'd like to go somewhere in Algiers, or to Taormina, perhaps, and bask on a balcony, smelling flowers and writing sonnets. You'd grow fat on it and have a delicate little life all to yourself. Well, what do you say? I can lie like sixty, Bibbs! Shall I tell your father he'll lose another of his boys if you don't go to Sicily?"

"I don't want to go to Sicily," said Bibbs. "I want to stay right here."

The doctor's drowsiness disappeared for a moment, and he gave his patient a sharp glance. "It's a risk," he said. "I think we'll find you're so much better he'll send you back to the shop pretty quick. Something's got hold of you lately; you're not quite so lackadaisical as you used to be. But I warn you: I think the shop will knock you just as it did before, and perhaps ever harder, Bibbs."

He rose, shook himself, and rubbed his eyelids. "Well, when we go over you this afternoon what are we going to say about it?"

"Tell him I'm ready," said Bibbs, looking at the floor.

"Oh no," Gurney laughed. "Not quite yet; but you may be almost. We'll see. Don't forget I said to walk down."

And when the examination was concluded, that afternoon, the doctor informed Bibbs that the result was much too satisfactory to be pleasing. "Here's a new 'situation' for a one-act farce," he said, gloomily, to his next patient when Bibbs had gone. "Doctor tells a man he's well, and that's his death sentence, likely. Dam' funny world!"

Bibbs decided to walk home. It was a dingy afternoon, and the smoke was evident not only to Bibbs' sight, but to his nostrils, though most of the pedestrians were so saturated with the smell that they could no longer detect it. This incited a train of thought which continued till he approached the new house. As he came to the corner of Mr. Vertrees' lot Mr. Vertrees' daughter emerged from the front door and walked thoughtfully down the path to the picket gate. She was unconscious of the approach of the pedestrian and did not see him until she had opened the gate and he was almost beside her. Then she looked up, and as she saw him she started visibly. And if this thing had happened to Robert Lamhorn, he would have had a thought far beyond the horizon of faint-hearted Bibbs' thoughts. Lamhorn, indeed, would have spoken his thought. He would have said:

"You jumped because you were thinking of me!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Mary was the picture of a lady flustered. Bibbs had paused in his slow stride, and there elapsed an instant before either spoke or moved—it was no longer than that, and yet it sufficed for each to seem to say, by look and attitude, "Why, it's you!"

Then they both spoke at once, each hurriedly pronouncing the other's name as if about to deliver a message of importance. Then both came to a stop simultaneously, but Bibbs made a heroic effort, and as they began to walk on together he contrived to find his voice.

"I—I—hate a frozen fish myself," he said. "I think three miles was too long for you to put up with one."

"Good gracious!" she cried, turning to him a glowing face from which restraint and embarrassment had suddenly fled. "Mr. Sheridan, you're lovely to put it that way. It was an imposition for me to have made you bring me home, and after I went into the house I decided I should have walked. Besides, it wasn't three miles to the car line. I never thought of it!"

"No," said Bibbs, earnestly. "I didn't, either. I might have said something if I'd thought of anything. I'm talking now, though; I must remember that, and not worry about it later. I think I'm talking, though it doesn't sound intelligent even to me. I made up my mind that if I ever met you again I'd turn on my voice and keep it going, no matter what it said. I—"

She interrupted him with laughter, and Mary Vertrees' laugh was one which Bibbs' father had declared, after the house-warming, "a cripple would crawl five miles to hear." And at the merry lilting of it Bibbs' father's son took heart to forget some of his trepidation. "I'll be any kind of idiot," he said, "if you'll laugh at me some more. It won't be difficult for me."

She did; and Bibbs' cheeks showed a little actual color, which Mary perceived. They had passed the new house without either of them showing—or possessing—any consciousness that it had been the destination of one of them.

"I'll keep on talking," Bibbs continued, cheerfully, "and you keep on laughing. I'm amounting to something in the world this afternoon. I'm making a noise, and that makes you make music. Don't be bothered by my bleating out such things as that. I'm really frightened. I don't remember talking as much as this more than once or twice in my life. I suppose it was always in me to do it, though, the first time I met anyone who didn't know me well enough not to listen."

"But you're not really talking to me," said Mary. "You're just thinking aloud."

Do you think that Mary's warm friendship for Bibbs will help him to endure the machine shop long enough to impress his father with his usefulness in a better job?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Gasoline 19c at Patterson's Garage,
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Notice of Ditch Letting.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, That the Trustee of Spencer Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, will at the Spencerville High School Building, on the 29th., day of July, 1916 at 2 o'clock P. M., receive bids for the improvement by cleaning and repairing the following ditches:

Geo. Wade, No. 281
Elias Kline, No. 7723
E. L. Dilley, No. 383
Franklin P. Hart, No. 434
James B. Gibford, No. 710
Geddes, No. 890

Plans and specifications are on file in my office showing the number of cubic yards of excavation where excavation is necessary, and the work to be performed in making such repairs, by sections of one hundred feet.

The successful bidder shall, within 5 days, be required to enter into a contract and give bond with two freehold sureties in a sum not less than double the amount of the contract so awarded

Percy A. Walker,
31— Trustee.

STAR OF THE MOVIES

Mabel Normand.

Popular comedienne who now heads her own company and has a studio of her own.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

There were remarkable coincidences in the lives of Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis. Both were born in Kentucky, Lincoln in 1809, Davis in 1808. Both removed from their native state in childhood, Lincoln to the northwest, Davis to the southwest. Lincoln was a captain of volunteers and Davis a second lieutenant of regulars in the Black Hawk war in 1832. They began their political careers the same year, 1844, Lincoln being a presidential elector for Clay, and Davis an elector for Polk. They were elected to congress about the same time, 1845 and 1846. They were called to preside over their respective governments the same year, Davis in February 8, 1861, Lincoln on March 4, 1861.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Preaching, 7:30 p m ;Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:30.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

Christian Church Announcements.

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Preaching services, 7:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

Tale of a Lost Engagement Ring

By ETHEL HOLMES

"What do you mean, Clara, by associating with that thief Ralph Cummings? Do you wish to be ostracised by all your friends?"

A singular expression came over Miss Rathbone's face, an expression that cannot be described, though some idea of it may be formed by an understanding of what caused it.

"That thief, as you call him, is my fiance."

"Your fiance?"

"Yes, we will be married next month. I shall acquaint you with the story attending Ralph's being considered a thief, after which you will be able to form an opinion of my reasons for marrying a man so branded. You are my sister and have a right to know them."

"Why may not all the world know them?"

"That you will understand when you have heard the story. When the Tophams gave their house party the episode occurred which branded Ralph as a thief. You were not there; I was. One afternoon all the automobiles on the place were got out, and the whole party was taken on a ride. I wore a short astrakhan jacket with a pocket on each side. Of course we were plentifully supplied with robes. When we returned, before taking off our wraps Alfred Topham asked us into the dining room to 'warm up,' as he expressed it. We all gathered around the sideboard and were warming up when a servant stepped up to Alf and handed him a little box that had come by express during his absence on the auto ride. We all knew that Alf had been attentive to Evelyn Mansfield, and one of the men very indelicately cried out:

"'It's the engagement ring. Let's see it, Alf.'

"Alf opened the box and took out a ring set with a ruby between two diamonds. It was passed from one to another for inspection while the men continued to warm up. We spent some fifteen or twenty minutes in the dining room, and when we were about to separate Alf sang out:

"Who's got my ring?"

Every one looked at every one else, but no one produced the ring. For a time it was supposed that it would be forthcoming, but since it did not appear Alf's brows began to knit. We all joined in a search for it, on the floor, under the furniture. The ring was not found. The matter began to look serious. Had some one of the guests purloined it? Alf, being host, of course could not suggest such a thing, but his chum, Ned Thurston, presently said:

"I offer myself to be searched, and I daresay that all of you will volunteer for the same thing."

Everybody volunteered except Ralph. He said that he must demur to such a process. We were all supposed to be ladies and gentlemen, and it would be an insult to each and every one of us to search us.

It took the party some time to digest what he had said, but the prevailing opinion was against it. Alf settled the matter by saying that he would rather lose the ring than put an indignity on any guest of his and forbade the search. Nearly every one considered Ralph's objection a virtual admission of guilt. It was believed that he had taken the ring, not foreseeing that he would so soon be caught with it on his person, and was obliged to choose between the course he took and full exposure. He did not wait to receive the cold shoulder, but left during the afternoon.

The blow fell as hard on me as it did on him. I had received nearly all his attention while at the Tophams, and the announcement of our engagement was expected before the party broke up. I didn't know what to do or say in the matter, so I took no course whatever, declining to express an opinion. But it was not pleasant for me to remain after what had occurred, and I made an excuse to go away the next day. They were all very nice to me, urging me to stay it out.

"Soon after my arrival at home I was called to the telephone, and Ralph spoke to me.

"'Have you found Alf Topham's ring?' he asked.

"'Have I found a ring? Do you mean to accuse me of being the thief?'

"'Look in the pocket of the jacket you wore on the auto ride. I have hoped you had found it. God grant it's there!'

"I was thunderstruck. On entering the dining room after the ride my jacket being too warm for the heated room I had taken it off and laid it on a chair in a corner of the room. Telling Ralph to hold the wire, I ran to a closet in my room, thrust my hand into the pocket of my astrakhan jacket and took out the ring.

"Running back to the phone, I told Ralph what I had done. He begged me not to utter a word to any one about finding the ring till I saw him. He would come right over.

"And now, Belle, I shall tell you how the ring got into my pocket only on your promise never to reveal it without my permission."

"I give it."

"You know you warned me against Rebecca Townsend."

"I did."

"Ralph, while the others were intent on warming up, saw Beck put the ring in the pocket of my jacket. Ralph saved me from her venom by taking the blame himself."

Epictetus.

The "Discourses of Epictetus" were written not by the philosopher himself, but by his faithful pupil Arrian, afterward the historian of Alexander the Great. Arrian tells us that he took down the sayings of his master at the time they were delivered, and thus we may rely upon the substantial correctness of the discourses. Epictetus wrote nothing, and but for the thoughtfulness of his affectionate disciple we would have known nothing of his wonderful teachings—teachings which have inspired many of the greatest men who have lived during the past 2,000 years.

Mother's Cook Book.

Date Bars.

Take a cupful of dates chopped fine add a cupful of walnut meats, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar to two well beaten yolks, then add six tablespoonfuls of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder, teaspoonful of salt, and add the dates and nuts, then fold in the beaten whites. Bake in a sheet and cut in bars the size of a nabisco wafer.

Plain cottage cheese well seasoned and served on lettuce with a boiled dressing makes a most satisfying salad and one easy to prepare.

Cheese Custard.

Butter a baking dish, put in a layer of bread cut in inch squares, sprinkle with thinly sliced cheese, dust with salt and paprika and a few grains of cayenne. Add other layers of bread and cheese, seasoning as before until half of a small loaf is used, one cupful of cheese and a half teaspoonful of salt. Beat two eggs slightly, add one pint of milk and pour the mixture over the bread and cheese. Bake half an hour in a moderate oven.

Aberdeen Sandwiches.

Heat one-fourth of a cupful of chopped cold tongue and half a cupful of veal or chicken with a half cupful of gravy and two tablespoonfuls of curry powder, mixed with enough water to form a paste, simmer together five minutes, then cool. Cook slices of bread until brown in a little butter, drain and spread with the mixture and heat over hot water. Serve hot.

Lyonnaise String Beans.

Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter add a finely sliced onion and saute to a delicate brown; add a quart of string beans, cooked, a dash of pepper, a grating of nutmeg and a little salt; heat thoroughly, tossing the beans occasionally; add a teaspoonful of minced parsley, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and another tablespoonful of butter in bits, and serve at once.

Minced Ham.

To each cupful of finely minced ham add a tablespoonful of fine bread crumbs softened with milk or cream. Season with salt and pepper, heat thoroughly and spread on rounds of moist buttered toast. Place a poached egg on each slice.

Corn Oysters.

Take a cupful of kornlet, add two well beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, and a dash of paprika. Drop by spoonfuls into a hot buttered frying pan, brown on both sides.

Nellie Maxwell

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have bladder trouble—Take glass of Salts.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

Daily Jots

Read the Free Column.

For the benefit of our customers through the busy harvest, we will keep open evening.
St. Joe Mills.

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Eleven room house on West Main St., for sale or rent. Other well located residence properties and vacant lots for sale on easy terms. S. S. WIDNEY.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

For Outdoor Wear.

Washable satin skirts are prettily finished by belts and folds of colored corduroy.

Some of the quiet, prim-looking little dress bodices are almost childlike in simplicity.

Among leather handbags favored colors are brown, blue, green, amethyst, gray and purple.

A well-cut, very simple suit of navy serge is given undeniable smartness by white braid bindings.

The military belt is fashionably made of suede, with strappings of black patent leather and a small buckle.

Some of the prettiest sports suits have coats of gray silk stockinet, trimmed with the same material as the skirt—striped Japanese crepe, heavy weight.

Get Rid of the Flies.

Flies are a menace to health as well as an extreme annoyance. They thrive and propagate themselves in filth. Therefore, clean up every place about the premises, especially manure piles, that might furnish a breeding spot.

A Mystery of the Sea.

Tilefish are again being caught in sufficient numbers to become a staple article of food in America. They are handsomely colored fish, and very good to eat, but thirty years ago millions of them died in a mysterious way, and it was thought that they thus became extinct. In the beginning of 1882 fishermen and others made amazing reports of having sailed through miles of dead and dying tilefish by the coast of the United States. The whole area covered by dead fish was reckoned to be 170 miles long and 25 miles wide. More than 1,400,000,000 fish had died. The actual reason was never proved, but from temperature tests it was assumed that a sudden chill in the water accounted for the blight.

Camel and Mule in Team.

Over one of the trails of the Sahara desert the queerest team is employed in drawing a two-wheeled cart, which carries light freight. The team consists of a camel and a small mule, and while the loads may be unevenly distributed between them, the mates never disagree. Each draws his portion of the load, the camel loping along with great strides while the mule trots beside him.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

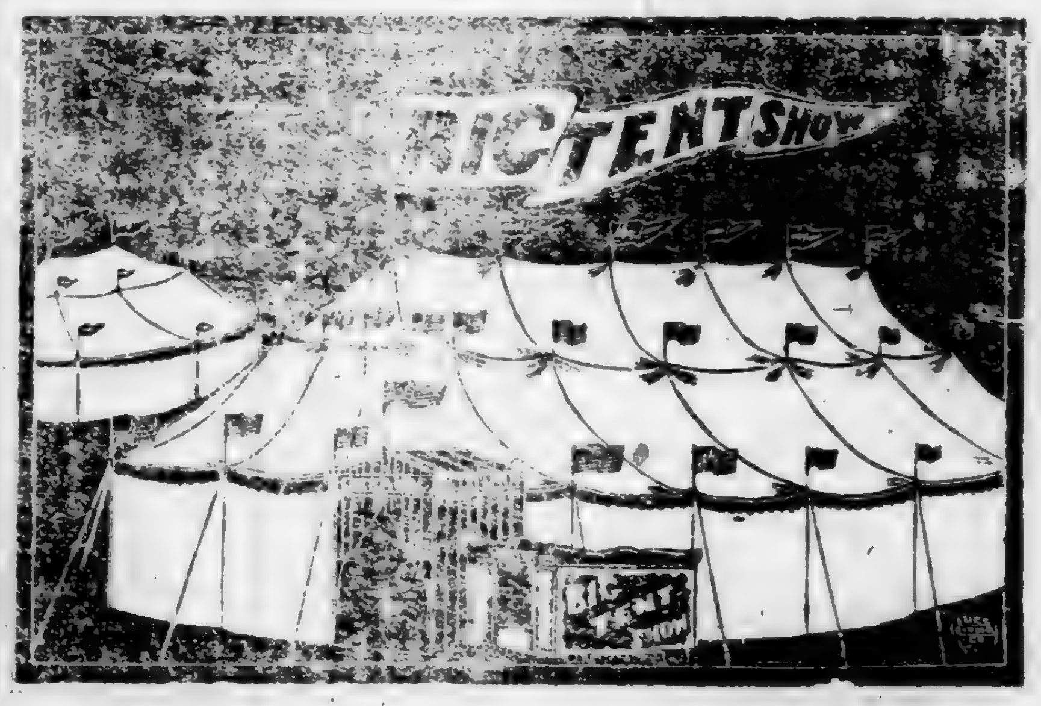
In the fourth presidential election, 1800, 16 states took part, having 138 electoral votes, the same as in 1796. The count resulted in a tie for president, Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr receiving 73 votes each, John Adams 65, Charles C. Pinckney 64, John Jay 1. There being a tie vote between Jefferson and Burr, the election was carried to the house of representatives. Jefferson there received the votes of 10 states, and Burr the votes of four—two voting blank, making Jefferson president and Burr vice president. They were inaugurated in Washington, March 4, 1801.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,..............No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

Week Commencing
Monday, July 31, 1916
THE SHOW OF QUALITY
Positively One Week Only
HARRY SHANNON'S



In All New Plays and Vaudeville
30 PEOPLE 30
Supberb Band and Orchestra
New Play Each Night Band Concert Monday, 3:00 P. M.
MONDAY NIGHT
"THE - NET"
A Great Four Act Comedy Drama
PRICES: Adults 25c; Children under 12,10
Tent on CHAS. KOCH LOT.

100 Per Cent.
INCREASED EARNINGS.

The following is fac-simile of certificate of Bond issued to each Depositor in this Bank.

No. ________ Grabill, Ind., ________ 19___
Mr. ________________
THIS IS TO CERTIFY that your DEPOSITS in this bank are INSURED under a bond of THE AMERICAN GUARANTY COMPANY of Columbus, Ohio.
THE GRABILL STATE BANK.
PRESERVE THIS. By Albert Egly, Cashier.

Postal Savings pay 2 per cent. Interest and the money is placed in banks who have to furnish a Bond to the government to guarantee that the funds are safe in that Bank:

We pay 4 per cent. Interest and give you the same guarantee. An increased earning of 100 per cent.

THIS is the only Bank in this community thus insuring its depositors.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

Joseph Witmer, President Joseph A. Grabill, Director
David Klopfenstine, v. pres. Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Albert Egly, Cashier Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

It Will Pay You to become a regular advertiser in =This Paper=

Yes, We Do Job Work
You will find our prices satisfactory
Come in

JULY
L 908
0240

The Turmoil

By

BOOTH TARKINGTON

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—7—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. At the Sheridan housewarming banquet Sheridan spreads himself. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Mary shocks her mother by talking of Jim as a matrimonial possibility. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her.

Love has awakened in the bosom of Bibbs—shy, hopeless love for something unattainable. The emotion is reflected in his gentleness with his grief-stricken father. Will it stir his ambition and impel him to activity that will help him win the girl finally? Will Old Sheridan come to understand and appreciate?

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

There came a second explosion, and Uncle Gideon ran out into the hall. Bibbs went to the head of the great staircase, and, looking down, discovered the source of the disturbance. Gideon's grandson, a boy of fourteen, had brought his camera to the funeral and was taking "flashlights" of the Moor. Uncle Gideon, reassured by Bibbs' explanation, would have returned to finish his quotation from Bildad the Shuhite, but Bibbs detained him, and after a little argument persuaded him to descend to the dining room whither Bibbs followed, after closing the door of his father's room.

He kept his eyes on Gideon after dinner, diplomatically preventing several attempts on the part of that comforter to reascend the stairs; and it was a relief to Bibbs when George announced that an automobile was waiting to convey the ancient man and his grandson to their train. They were the last to leave, and when they had gone Bibbs went sighing to his own room.

He stretched himself wearily upon the bed, but presently rose, went to the window, and looked for a long time at the darkened house where Mary Vertrees lived. Then he opened his trunk, took therefrom a small notebook half filled with fragmentary scribblings, and began to write:

> Laughter after a funeral. In this reaction people will laugh at anything and at nothing. The band plays a dirge on the way to the cemetery, but when it turns back, and the mourning carriages are out of hearing, it strikes up, "Darktown Is Out To-Night." That is natural—but there are women whose laughter is like the whirring of whips. . . .
>
> Beauty is not out of place among gravestones. It is not out of place anywhere. But a woman who has been betrothed to a man would not look beautiful at his funeral. A woman might look beautiful, though, at the funeral of a man whom she had known and liked. And in that case, too, she would probably not want to talk if she drove home from the cemetery with his brother; nor would she want the brother to talk. . . . Nevertheless, too much silence is open to suspicion. It may be reticence, or it may be a vacuum. It may be dignity, or it may be false teeth. . . .
>
> Silence can be golden? Yes. But perhaps if a woman of the world should find herself by accident sitting beside a man for the length of time it must necessarily take two slow old horses to jog three miles, she might expect that man to say something of some sort! If he did not even try, but sat every step of the way as dumb as a frozen fish, she might think him a frozen fish. And she might be right. She might be right if she thought him about as pleasant a companion—as Bildad the Shuhite!

Bibbs closed his notebook, replacing it in his trunk. Then, after a period of melancholy contemplation, he undressed, put on a dressing gown and slippers, and went softly out into the hall—to his father's door. Upon the floor was a tray which Bibbs had sent George, earlier in the evening, to place upon a table in Sheridan's room—but the food was untouched. Bibbs stood listening outside the door for several minutes. There came no sound from within, and he went back to his own room and to bed.

In the morning he woke to a state of being hitherto unknown in his experience. Sometimes in the process of waking there is a little pause—sleep has gone, but coherent thought has not begun. It is the moment, as we say, before we "remember;" and for the first time in Bibbs' life it came to him bringing a vague happiness. However, it was a brief visitation and was gone before he had finished dressing. It left a little trail, the pleased recollection of it and the puzzle of it, which remained unsolved. And, in fact, waking happily in the morning is not usually the result of a drive home from a funeral. No wonder the sequence evaded Bibbs Sheridan!

His father had gone when he came downstairs. "Went on down to 's office, jes' same," Jackson informed him. "Came sat breakfas' table, all by 'mself; eat nothin'. George bring nice breakfas', but he di'n' eat a thing. Yessuh, went on downtown, jes' same he yoosta do. Yessuh, I reckon putty much ev'ything goin' on same as it yoosta do."

It struck Bibbs that Jackson was right. The day passed as other days had passed. Mrs. Sheridan and Edith were in black, and Mrs. Sheridan cried a little, now and then, but no other external difference was to be seen. Bibbs went for his drive, and his mother went with him, as she sometimes did when the weather was pleasant. Altogether, the usualness of things was rather startling to Bibbs.

During the drive Mrs. Sheridan talked fragmentarily of Jim's childhood. "But you wouldn't remember that," she said, after narrating an episode. "You were too little. He was always a good boy, just like that. And he'd save whatever papa gave him, and put it in the bank. I reckon it'll just about kill your father to put somebody in his place as president of the Realty company, Bibbs. I know he can't move Roscoe over; he told me last week he'd already put as much on Roscoe as any one man could handle and not go crazy. Oh, it's a pity—" She stopped to wipe her eyes. "It's a pity you didn't run more with Jim, Bibbs, and kind o' pick up his ways. Think what it'd meant to papa now! You never did run with either Roscoe or Jim any, even before you got sick. Of course you were younger; but it always did seem queer—and you three bein' brothers like that. I don't believe I ever saw you and Jim sit down together for a good talk in my life."

"Mother, I've been away so long," Bibbs returned, gently. "And since I came home I— He was busy, you see, and I hadn't much to say about the things that interested him, because I don't know much about them."

"It's a pity! Oh, it's a pity!" she moaned. "And you'll have to learn to know about 'em now, Bibbs. I haven't said much to you, because I felt it was all between your father and you, but I honestly do believe it will just kill him if he has to have any more trouble on top of all this! You mustn't let him, Bibbs—you mustn't! You don't know how he's grieved over you, and now he can't stand any more—he just can't! Whatever he says for you to do, you do it, Bibbs, you do it! I want you to promise me you will."

"I would if I could," he said, sorrowfully.

"No, no! Why can't you?" she cried, clutching his arm. "He wants you to go back to the machine shop and all on earth he asks is for you to go back in a cheerful spirit, so it won't hurt you! That's all he asks. Look, Bibbs, we're gettin' back near home, but before we get there I want you to promise me that you'll do what he asks you to. Promise me!"

In her earnestness she cleared away her black veil that she might see him better, and it blew out on the smoky wind. He readjusted it for her before he spoke.

"I'll go back in as cheerful a spirit as I can, mother," he said.

"There!" she exclaimed, satisfied. "That's a good boy! That's all I wanted you to say."

"Don't give me any credit," he said, ruefully. "There isn't anything else for me to do."

"No, don't begin talkin' that way!"

"No, no," he soothed her. "We'll have to begin to make the spirit a cheerful one. We may—" They were turning into their own driveway as he spoke, and he glanced at the old house next door. Mary Vertrees was visible in the twilight, standing upon the front steps, bareheaded, the door open behind her. She bowed gravely.

"'We may'—what?" asked Mrs. Sheridan, with a slight impatience.

"What is it mother?"

"Of all the queer boys!" she cried. "You always were. Always! You haven't forgot what you just promised me, have you?"

"No," he answered, as the car stopped. "No, the spirit will be as cheerful as the flesh will let it, mother. It won't do to behave like—"

His voice was low, and in her movement to descend from the car she failed to hear his final words.

"Behave like who, Bibbs?"

"Nothing."

But she was fretful in her grief. "You said it wouldn't do to behave like somebody. Behave like who?"

"It was just nonsense," he explained, turning to go in. "An obscure person I don't think much of lately."

"Behave like who?" she repeated, and upon his yielding to her petulant insistence, she made up her mind that the only thing to do was to tell Dr. Gurney about it.

"Like Bildad the Shuhite!" was what Bibbs said.

CHAPTER XIII.

The outward usualness of things continued after dinner. In the library, while his wife sat in her customary chair, gazing at the fire, Sheridan let the unfolded evening paper rest upon his lap, though now and then he lifted it, as if to read. Bibbs came in noiselessly and sat in a corner, doing nothing; and from a "reception room" across the hall an indistinct vocal murmur became just audible at intervals. Once, when this murmur grew louder, under stress of some irrepressible merriment, Edith's voice could be heard—"Bobby, aren't you awful!" and Sheridan glanced across at his wife appealingly.

She rose at once and went into the "reception room;" there was a flurry of whispering, and the sound of tiptoeing in the hall—Edith and her suitor changing quarters to a more distant room. Mrs. Sheridan returned to her chair in the library.

"They won't bother you any more, papa," she said, in a comforting voice. "She told me at lunch he'd 'phoned he wanted to come up this evening, and I said I thought he'd better wait a few days, but she said she'd already told him he could." She paused, then added, rather guiltily: "I got kind of a notion maybe Roscoe don't like him as much as he used to. Maybe—maybe you better ask Roscoe, papa." And as Sheridan nodded solemnly, she concluded, in haste: "Don't say I said to. I might be wrong about it, anyway."

He nodded again, and they sat for some time in a silence which Mrs. Sheridan broke with a little sniff, having fallen into a reverie that brought tears. "That Miss Vertrees was a good girl," she said. "She was all right."

Her husband evidently had no difficulty in following her train of thought, for he nodded once more, affirmatively.

"Did you— How did you fix it about the—the Realty company?" she faltered. "Did you—"

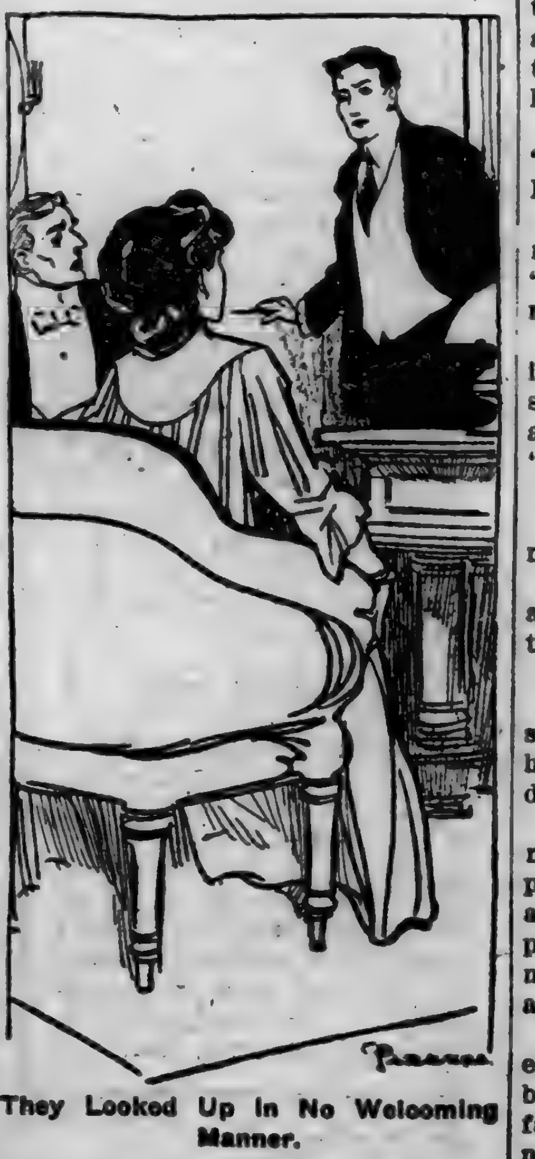
He rose heavily, helping himself to his feet by the arms of his chair. "I fixed it," he said, in a husky voice. He went to her, put his hand upon her shoulder, and drew a long, audible, tremendous breath. "It's my bedtime, mamma; I'm goin' up." When he reached the door he stopped and spoke again, without turning to look at her. "The Realty company'll go right on just the same," he said. "It's like—it's like sand, mamma. It puts me in mind of children playin' in a sandpile. One of 'em sticks his finger in the sand-pile and makes a hole, and another of 'em 'll pat the place with his hand, and all the little grains of sand run in and fill it up and settle against one another; and then, right away it's flat on top again, and you can't tell there ever was a hole there. The Realty company 'll go on all right, mamma. There ain't anythings anywhere, I reckon, that wouldn't go right on—just the same."

And he passed out slowly into the hall; then they heard his heavy tread upon the stairs.

Mrs. Sheridan, rising to follow him, turned a piteous face to her son. "It's so forlorn," she said, chokingly. "That's the first time he spoke since he came in the house this evening. I know it must 'a' hurt him to hear Edith laughin' with that Lamhorn. She'd oughtn't to let him come, right the very first evening this way; she'd oughtn't to done it! She just seems to lose her head over him, and it scares me. You heard what Sibyl said the other day, and—and you heard what—what—"

"What Edith said to Sibyl?" Bibbs finished the sentence for her.

"We can't have any trouble o' that kind!" she wailed. "Oh, it looks as if movin' up to this new house had brought us awful bad luck! It scares me!" She put both her hands over her face. "Oh, Bibbs, Bibbs! If you only wasn't so queer! If you could only been a kind of dependable son! I don't know what we're all comin' to!" And, weeping, she followed her husband.



They Looked Up In No Welcoming Manner.

Bibbs gazed for a while at the fire; then he rose abruptly, like a man who has come to a decision, and briskly sought the room—it was called "the smoking room"—where Edith sat with Mr. Lamhorn. They looked up in no welcoming manner, at Bibbs' entrance, and moved their chairs to a less conspicuous adjacency.

"Good evening," said Bibbs, pleasantly; and he seated himself in a leather easy-chair near them.

"What is it?" asked Edith, plainly astonished.

"Nothing," he returned, smiling.

She frowned. "Did you want something?" she asked.

"Nothing in the world. Father and mother have gone upstairs; I sha'n't be going up for several hours, and there didn't seem to be anybody left for me to chat with except you and Mr. Lamhorn."

"'Chat with'!" she echoed, incredulously.

"I can talk about almost anything," said Bibbs with an air of genial politeness. "It doesn't matter to me. I don't know much about business—if that's what you happened to be talking about. But you aren't in business, are you, Mr. Lamhorn?"

"Not now," returned Lamhorn, shortly.

"I'm not, either," said Bibbs. "It was getting cloudier than usual, I noticed, just before dark, and there was wind from the southwest. Rain tomorrow, I shouldn't be surprised."

He seemed to feel that he had begun a conversation the support of which had now become the pleasurable duty of other parties; and he sat expectantly, looking first at his sister, then at Lamhorn, as if implying that it was their turn to speak. Edith returned his gaze with a mixture of astonishment and increasing anger, while Mr. Lamhorn was obviously disturbed, though Bibbs had been as considerate as possible in presenting the weather as a topic. Bibbs had perceived that Lamhorn had nothing in his mind at any time except "personalities"—he could talk about people and he could make love. Bibbs, wishing to be courteous, offered the weather.

Lamhorn refused it, and concluded from Bibbs' luxurious attitude in the leather chair that this half-crazy brother was a permanent fixture for the rest of the evening. There was no reason to hope that he would move, and Lamhorn found himself in danger of looking silly.

"I was just going," he said, rising.

"Oh no!" Edith cried, sharply.

"Yes. Good night! I think I—"

"Too bad," said Bibbs, genially, walking to the door with the visitor, while Edith stood staring as the two disappeared in the hall. She heard Bibbs offering to "help" Lamhorn with his overcoat and the latter rather curtly declining assistance, these episodes of departure being followed by the closing of the outer door. She ran into the hall.

"What's the matter with you?" she cried, furiously. "What do you mean? How did you dare come in here when you knew—"

Her voice broke; she made a gesture of rage and despair, and ran up the stairs, sobbing. She fled to her mother's room, and when Bibbs came up, a few minutes later, Mrs. Sheridan met him at his door.

"Oh, Bibbs," she said, shaking her head woefully, "you'd oughtn't to distress your sister? She says you drove that young man out of the house. You'd ought to been more considerate."

Bibbs smiled faintly, noting that Edith's door was open, with Edith's naive shadow motionless across its threshold. "Yes," he said. "He doesn't appear to be much of a 'man's man.' He ran at just a glimpse of one."

Edith's shadow moved; her voice came quavering: "You call yourself one?"

"No, no," he answered. "I said 'just a glimpse of one.' I didn't claim—" But her door slammed angrily; and he turned to his mother.

"There," he said, sighing. "That's almost the first time in my life I ever tried to be a man of action, mother, and I succeeded perfectly in what I tried to do. As a consequence I feel like a horse thief!"

"You hurt her feelin's," she groaned. "You must 'a' gone at it too rough, Bibbs."

He looked upon her wanly. "That's my trouble, mother," he murmured. "I'm a plain, blunt fellow. I have rough ways, and I'm a rough man."

For once she perceived some meaning in his queerness. "Hush your nonsense!" she said, good-naturedly, the astral of a troubled smile appearing. "You go to bed."

He kissed her and obeyed.

Edith gave him a cold greeting the next morning at the breakfast table.

"You mustn't do that under a misapprehension," he warned her, when they were alone in the dining room.

"Do what under a what?" she asked.

"Speak to me. I came into the smoking room last night 'on purpose,'" he told her, gravely. "I have a prejudice against that young man."

She laughed. "I guess you think it means a great deal who you have prejudices against!" In mockery she adopted the manner of one who implores. "Bibbs, for pity's sake promise me, don't use your influence with papa against him!" And she laughed louder.

"Listen," he said, with peculiar earnestness. "I'll tell you now, because—because I've decided I'm one of the family." And then, as if the earnestness were too heavy for him to carry it further, he continued, in his usual tone, "I'm drunk with power, Edith."

"What do you want to tell me?" she demanded, brusquely.

"Lamhorn made love to Sibyl," he said.

Edith hooted. "She did to him!"

"No," he said, gravely. "I know."

"How?"

"I was there, one day a week ago, with Roscoe, and I heard Sibyl and Lamhorn—"

Edith screamed with laughter. "You were with Roscoe—and you heard Lamhorn making love to Sibyl!"

"No. I heard them quarreling."

"You're funnier than ever, Bibbs!" she cried. "You say he made love to her because you heard them quarreling!"

"That's it. If you want to know what's 'between' people, you can—by the way they quarrel."

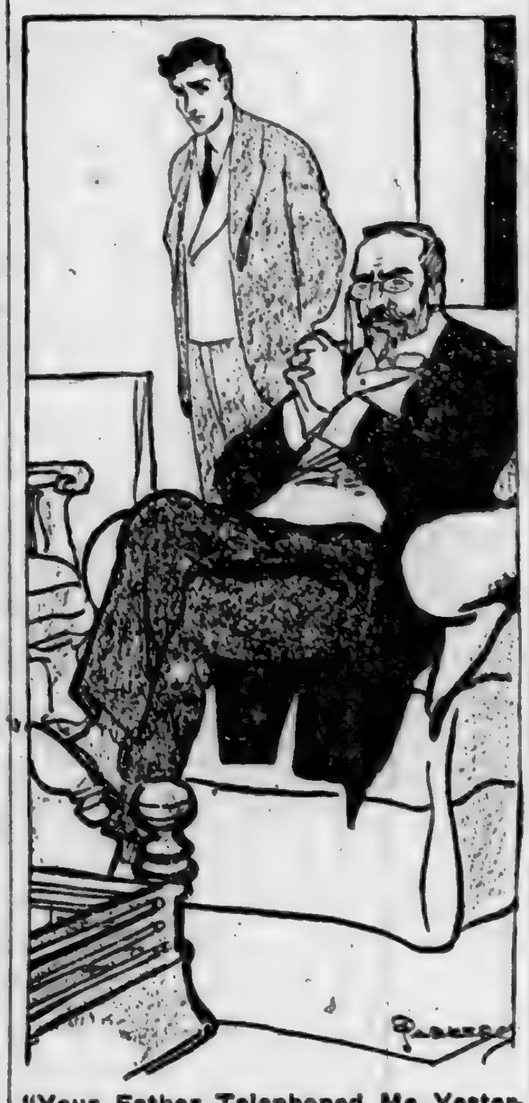
"You'll kill me, Bibbs! What were they quarreling about?"

"Nothing. That's how I know. People who quarrel over nothing!—it's always certain—"

Edith stopped laughing abruptly, but continued her mockery. "You ought to know. You've had so much experience, yourself!"

"I haven't any, Edith," he said. "My life has been about as exciting as an incubator chicken's. But I look out through the glass at things."

"Well, then," she said, "if you look out through the glass you must know what effect such stuff would have upon me!" She rose, visibly agitated. "What if it was true?" she demanded, bitterly. "What if it was true a hundred times over? You sit there with your silly face half ready to giggle and half ready to sniffle, and tell me stories like that, about Sibyl picking on Bobby Lamhorn and worrying him to death, and you think it matters to me? What if I already knew all about their 'quarreling'? What if I understood why she—" She broke off with a violent gesture, a sweep of her arm extended at full length, as if she hurled something to the ground. "Do you think a girl that really cared for a man would pay any attention to that? Or to you, Bibbs Sheridan!"



"Your Father Telephoned Me Yesterday Afternoon."

He looked at her steadily, and his gaze was as keen as it was steady. She met it with unwavering pride. Finally he nodded slowly, as if she had spoken and he meant to agree with what she said.

"Ah, yes," he said. "I won't come into the smoking room again. I'm sorry, Edith. Nobody can make you see anything now. You'll never see until you see for yourself. The rest of us will do better to keep out of it—especially me!"

"That's sensible," she responded, curtly. "You're most surprising of all when you're sensible, Bibbs."

"Yes," he sighed. "I'm a dull dog. Shake hands and forgive me, Edith."

Thawing so far as to smile, she underwent this brief ceremony, and George appeared, summoning Bibbs to the library; Doctor Gurney was waiting there, he announced. And Bibbs gave his sister a shy but friendly touch upon the shoulder as a complement to the handshaking, and left her.

Doctor Gurney was sitting by the log fire, alone in the room, and he merely glanced over his shoulder when his patient came in. He was not over fifty, in spite of Sheridan's habitual "ole Doc Gurney." He was gray, however, almost as thin as Bibbs, and nearly always he looked drowsy.

"Your father telephoned me yesterday afternoon, Bibbs," he said, not rising. "Wants me to 'look you over' again. Come around here in front of me—between me and the fire. I want to see if I can see through you."

"You mean you're too sleepy to move," returned Bibbs, complying. "I think you'll notice that I'm getting worse."

"Taken on about twelve pounds," said Gurney. "Thirteen, maybe."

"Twelve."

"Well, it won't do." The doctor rubbed his eyelids. "You're so much better I'll have to use some machinery on you before we can know just where you are. You come down to my place this afternoon. Walk down—all the way. I suppose you know why your father wants to know."

Bibbs nodded. "Machine shop."

"Still hate it?"

Bibbs nodded again.

"Don't blame you!" the doctor grunted. "Yes, I expect it'll make a lump in your gizzard again. Well, what do you say? Shall I tell him you've got the old lump there yet? You still want to write, do you?"

"What's the use?" Bibbs said, smiling ruefully. "My kind of writing!"

"Yes," the doctor agreed. "I suppose if you broke away and lived on roots and berries until you began to 'attract the favorable attention of editors' you might be able to hope for an income of four or five hundred dollars a year by the time you're fifty."

"That's about it," Bibbs murmured.

"Of course I know what you want to do," said Gurney, drowsily. "You don't hate the machine shop only; you hate the whole show—the noise and jar and dirt, the scramble—the whole boomin' craze to 'get on.' You'd like to go somewhere in Algiers, or to Taormina, perhaps, and bask on a balcony, smelling flowers and writing sonnets. You'd grow fat on it and have a delicate little life all to yourself. Well, what do you say? I can lie like sixty, Bibbs! Shall I tell your father he'll lose another of his boys if you don't go to Sicily?"

"I don't want to go to Sicily," said Bibbs. "I want to stay right here."

The doctor's drowsiness disappeared for a moment, and he gave his patient a sharp glance. "It's a risk," he said. "I think we'll find you're so much better he'll send you back to the shop pretty quick. Something's got hold of you lately; you're not quite so lackadaisical as you used to be. But I warn you: I think the shop will knock you just as it did before, and perhaps ever harder, Bibbs."

He rose, shook himself, and rubbed his eyelids. "Well, when we go over you this afternoon what are we going to say about it?"

"Tell him I'm ready," said Bibbs, looking at the floor.

"Oh no," Gurney laughed. "Not quite yet; but you may be almost. We'll see. Don't forget I said to walk down."

And when the examination was concluded, that afternoon, the doctor informed Bibbs that the result was much too satisfactory to be pleasing. "Here's a new 'situation' for a one-act farce," he said, gloomily, to his next patient when Bibbs had gone. "Doctor tells a man he's well, and that's his death sentence, likely. Dam' funny world!"

Bibbs decided to walk home. It was a dingy afternoon, and the smoke was evident not only to Bibbs' sight, but to his nostrils, though most of the pedestrians were so saturated with the smell that they could no longer detect it. This incited a train of thought which continued till he approached the new house. As he came to the corner of Mr. Vertrees' lot Mr. Vertrees' daughter emerged from the front door and walked thoughtfully down the path to the picket gate. She was unconscious of the approach of the pedestrian and did not see him until she had opened the gate and he was almost beside her. Then she looked up, and as she saw him she started visibly. And if this thing had happened to Robert Lamhorn, he would have had a thought far beyond the horizon of faint-hearted Bibbs' thoughts. Lamhorn, indeed, would have spoken his thought. He would have said:

"You jumped because you were thinking of me!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Mary was the picture of a lady flustered. Bibbs had paused in his slow stride, and there elapsed an instant before either spoke or moved—it was no longer than that, and yet it sufficed for each to seem to say, by look and attitude, "Why, it's you!"

Then they both spoke at once, each hurriedly pronouncing the other's name as if about to deliver a message of importance. Then both came to a stop simultaneously, but Bibbs made a heroic effort, and as they began to walk on together he contrived to find his voice.

"I—I—hate a frozen fish myself," he said. "I think three miles was too long for you to put up with one."

"Good gracious!" she cried, turning to him a glowing face from which restraint and embarrassment had suddenly fled. "Mr. Sheridan, you're lovely to put it that way. It was an imposition for me to have made you bring me home, and after I went into the house I decided I should have walked. Besides, it wasn't three miles to the car line. I never thought of it!"

"No," said Bibbs, earnestly. "I didn't, either. I might have said something if I'd thought of anything. I'm talking now, though; I must remember that, and not worry about it later. I think I'm talking, though it doesn't sound intelligent even to me. I made up my mind that if I ever met you again I'd turn on my voice and keep it going, no matter what it said. I—"

She interrupted him with laughter, and Mary Vertrees' laugh was one which Bibbs' father had declared, after the house-warming, "a cripple would crawl five miles to hear." And at the merry lilting of it Bibbs' father's son took heart to forget some of his trepidation. "I'll be any kind of idiot," he said, "if you'll laugh at me some more. It won't be difficult for me."

She did; and Bibbs' cheeks showed a little actual color, which Mary perceived. They had passed the new house without either of them showing—or possessing—any consciousness that it had been the destination of one of them.

"I'll keep on talking," Bibbs continued, cheerfully, "and you keep on laughing. I'm amounting to something in the world this afternoon. I'm making a noise, and that makes you make music. Don't be bothered by my bleating out such things as that. I'm really frightened. I don't remember talking as much as this more than once or twice in my life. I suppose it was always in me to do it, though, the first time I met anyone who didn't know me well enough not to listen."

"But you're not really talking to me," said Mary. "You're just thinking aloud."

Do you think that Mary's warm friendship for Bibbs will help him to endure the machine shop long enough to impress his father with his usefulness in a better job?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

L 908

AUGUST

AUGUST

L 908

0242

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY AUG. 3 1916 NO. 32

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Marshal Rickett is busy ordering weeks cut over town.

WANTED–To buy your Hay. C. E. Frye, Phone 73-31, St. Joe.

Mrs. Ann Abel spent from Saturday until Monday with her brother, Mort Milliman.

The Lutheran Home and Foreign Missionary Society will meet Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Charles Reasoner. Subject, "Home Missions and Educative Force".

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Thornton left Wednesday on a 2 or 3 week vacation, visiting her sister and husbank, Rev. and Mrs. G. M. Richter, at the home of Mr. Richter's parents, near Harrisburg, Pa., on the Susquehanna River, and with Mr. Thornton's brothers and sisters at Flint and Battle Creek, Mich.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	96	$3.76
M. P	81	3.07
Christian	64	2.21
Concord	97
Fairview	20	.54
M. E. Spencer	95	4.75
Lutheran	73	2 09

Best Talcuim and toilet preparations at Dunkle.

Ed Krafft threshed wheat on his farm, last week, which yielded over 38 bushels to the acre.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hissong, of Hicksville, spent Sunday with the latter's brother and wife, Clarence Dorsey and wife.

Miss Maude Zonker returned to her home in Corunna, Tuesday, after visiting her brothers, Clarence and Walter Zonker, at this place for sometime.

Boys and Girls bring us your paper sacks. For good clean sacks we will pay 1c. for 25 lb. sacks, and 2c. for 50lb. sacks.
ST. JOE MILLS.

A number from here was at Hicksville, Tuesday evening, attending the Chautauqua. Richard Pearson Hobson closed the weeks session there.

Reasoner reunion will be held August 10th., in Hamilton's grove, weather permitting. The Place reunion will be held August 19th., at the home of Olen Dermott and wife, east of town.

Plays billed for the balance of the week at Shannon's Show are as follows:–Thursday night, "Twin Bachelors"; Friday, "Ishmael"; and Saturday, "What Money Will Do". The crowd is increasing from night to night.

What you are getting in this issue:-The important news events of the world, sumarised; State news in brief; the Militia at Marcedes, Texas; Turmoil, the latest and best story written; Review of the second year of the war; Fads and fancies for the Ladies; Sunday School lesson and besides the local happenings of the neighborhood.

Kodak supplies. Dunkle.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson of Concord, were Sunday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jackson.

Mrs. J. H. St. Clair of Auburn, spent Thursday and Friday the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Pepple, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Brown and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Stewart at Spencerville.

F. A. Patterson of Hicksville, and Miss Krepps of Pennsylvania, were guests of W. C. Patterson and wife Monday afternoon.

Mr. ad Mrs. H. M. Widney, daughter, Doris, and Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Widney were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adams near Angola, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Borthwick and children, Priscilla and Russell, and the former's mother, Mrs. Emma J. Borthwick, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Clara Green at Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Pepple, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and son, DuWayne, motored to Lake Hamilton Sunday and called on Mrs. Mary Bowman. On their way leaving the lake they went through Pleasant Lake, Waterloo and Auburn.

Trustee Hathaway had his ditch sale at his office last Monday forenoon and a fine representation of the farmers interested, were present. The justice and injustice of the law was fully discussed and the sale was held according to the law and the ditches were sold.

Some rain Monday!

Cups and Saucers, and Plates at Dunkle's.

A daughter was born to Glenn Freeburn and wife Monday evening.

Dr. Farnham has a very sore lip as a result of a spider bite. His lip is swollen considerable.

Henry Hathaway and Merritt Hull were at Clear Lake Monday evening and Tuesday fishing.

Ice cream has made an advance in price this week. No doubt the war is to blame for this.

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

Wm. Curie was the first man in this community to buy a new Ford at the new price. He will use a trailer so as to be able to make deliveries.

Mr. and Mrs. Frote Melton celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Sunday at their home northwest of town. The following guests were present to spend the day with them: Don Van Fleit, wife, son and the latter's lady friend, all of Garrett; Bertha Winebrenner and son of Fort Wayne; James Smith, Mrs. Rebecca Smith, Frank Messe, Will Clouse and family, Fred Hefty and family, Libbie Wasson, Mattie Wasson, Frank Johnson and wife, Sam Fellers, wife and son, Ira Bone and wife and Dan McCann and wife. In the afternoon C. C. Bassett was called and took pictures of those present.

Ford Jackson has a Ford.

Watch your Lambs, use Sal-Vet. It pays you. Ask Dunkle.

The Butler Homecoming drew many people from this section of the county last week, and it was surely a success as far as the weather was concerned.

Mrs. Jane Hull and two sons, Walter Baker, wife and baby, Roy Koch and wife, Mrs. Hursey, Lloyd Draggoo, Golden Benninghoff and Miss Helen Bowman were at Island Park Sunday.

Germany enters upon the third year of the war with her forces in nearly all portions of the defensive, and with her lines at numerous places in France and Russia pressed back from where they stood a year ago.

Tuesday noon the fire bell rang, giving the call for help. The Craig Sheffer building had caught on fire in the roof. Help was soon on the job and as the building was low the water was easily applied. The fire was unler control when the fire department arrived. The boys responded quickly at the ring of the bell and the fire was soon out. Mrs. Sheffer was at home packing the goods for moving to Butler on Thursday of this week. The damages were small.

Mrs. Craig Sheffer desires in this public manner to express to the Fire Department and neighbors her appreciation and thanks for their prompt action in extinguishing the fire at their house on last Tuesday.

Time to use Shoo-fly. Dunkle has it.

Isaac Meese is crippling about with an attack of lumbago.

Get one of our Stock Dr. Books. Free for the asking.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Frank Betz of Wayne and Joel Betz of Spencerville, spent the day last Friday with their brother, John.

Hamilton citizens we are told are soon to haul another bunch of blind piggers to court. Serves them right.

Princess Foote returned to her home at Harlan Tuesday accompanied by Master Harry Smith of Auburn.

Anyone receiving word from the soldier boys, we would be pleased to reproduce their letters for the benefit of our readers.

A number of our Auburn friends were in town Monday on business, namely: Attorney Atkinson, Miller and Life and O. H. Widney.

Guy C. Miller of Findlay, traveling demonstrator of the Wear-Ever Aluminum, returned last Saturday morning to be the guest of his family until Thursday of this week when he will return to St. Joe and finish making his delivery. He reports a fine business in this community.

Miss DeVeta Bayman gave a "weinie" and Marshmallow roast Monday night. The following friendsbeing present :-Miss Maude Zonker, of Corunna; Helen Bowman, Pauline Barney, Avis Sechler, Ethel Wallace, Flossie Sechler and Mrs. Esther Bowman.

FORD
The Universal Car
New Prices August 1, 1916
The following prices for Ford cars will be effective on and after August 1st., 1916

Chassis	$325.00
Runabout	345.00
Touring Car	360.00
Coupelet	505.00
Town Car	595.00
Sedan	645.00

f. o. b. Detroit
These prices are positively guaranteed against any reduction before August 1st., 1917, but there is no guarantee against an advance in price at any time.

JOHN LANTZ, Agent
LEO, INDIANA

AUGUST

L 908

0243

Important News Events of the World Summarized

European War News

Capt. Charles Fryatt of the British steamship Brussels, which was captured by the Germans, has been executed following the passage of a death sentence upon him by a naval field court sitting at Zeebrugge, says a Berlin dispatch. The charge against him was that he tried to ram the German submarine U-33 on March 28, 1915, in the North sea.

* * *

According to a London dispatch the Russians delivered three great blows against the Teutonic forces on the east front. The czar's troops captured the important railway town of Brody on the northern Galician border, the chief obstacle to their advance on Lemberg, capital of Galicia; smashed the entire Teutonic first line west of Lutsk, and swept the forces of General von Linsingen from the line of the Rivers Slonevka and Buldurovka, in southern Volhynia.

* * *

The last German strongholds in Longueval have been captured by the British troops, according to the official statement given out by the London war office. The British also have possession of the entire Delville wood, the fifth Brandenburg division, the last Germans in the wood, being cleared out with the capture of three officers and 158 men.

* * *

A Turkish army, estimated at 70,000 strong, is concentrated in the Hungarian plains for the defense of Hungary, says a dispatch to the London Exchange Telegraph company from Lausanne, Switzerland.

* * *

A Petrograd dispatch says all of Turkish Armenia is now in possession of the Russians as a result of the capture of Erzingan by the army of Grand Duke Nicholas.

* * *

Advices from Smyrna state that an entire Turkish regiment mutinied at Sevelkeny, taking refuge in a forest on Mount Mimiolou. Loyal Turks gave chase, setting the forest on fire.

* * *

A London Dispatch says intense fighting, which resulted in slight progress for the Italians, took place on the Tennezzo plateau. Strongly intrenched positions were wrested from the Austrians north of Monte Cimone. On the remainder of the front heavy artillery engagements continue.

* * *

"A French military court at Marseilles on May 18," says the Berlin Overseas News agency, "sentenced a woman named Pfadt to death for treason and espionage. The supreme court, having rejected the appeal, the sentence of death against the woman has become valid."

* * *

Gen. Vladimir Sukhomlinoff, former Russian minister of war, is seriously ill at Petrograd. It is feared he is afflicted with insanity.

* * *

An Austrian withdrawal before superior Russian pressure north of Brody, in northeastern Galicia, is announced by Austro-Hungarian army headquarters at Vienna.

* * *

Following official announcement both from London and Berlin of the capture of the important village of Pozieres, the British war office at London reported in its statement that there was no further fighting of any consequence.

* * *

The war is costing the Dominion of Canada $1,000,000 a day, an official announcement issued at Ottawa said.

* * *

Six civilians have been executed by the Germans at Ghent, charged with "war treason," according to a Reuter Amsterdam dispatch quoting the Telegraaf.

* * *

An Austrian official statement received at London says that 12,500 Italians were killed in an attack in the Sugana valley Monday.

* * *

Domestic

The building of the Salmondsport Vintage company at Penn Yan, N. Y., was destroyed by fire. The loss is $50,000.

* * *

Dr. Arthur Warren Waite, awaiting electrocution in Sing Sing prison for the murder of his father-in-law, John E. Peck of Grand Rapids, Mich., was found in his cell in the "death house" bleeding from a wound in his chest made in the shape of a cross.

* * *

The Nebraska State bank at Sunol, Neb., was robbed of $1,200 by two robbers, who locked Cashier W. C. Smith in the vault and in escaping killed Ira Paup and Paul Vacik, farmers, who tried to stop them. Later the bandits were captured by a posse.

* * *

That the material wealth of the Salvation army is $8,353,179.97, was disclosed in a petition of the army for permission to mortgage property filed in the Kings county, New York, clerk's office.

Mrs. William Ritchie of St. Louis killed herself and two babies when her husband failed to return home. He had been out drinking and slept on the rear porch.

* * *

Seventy-two thousand cats and 8,000 dogs have been put to death in New York by the S. P. C. A. since July 1 in the fight against infantile paralysis.

* * *

Unable to stand criticism which he felt the public directed at him because of his connection with the disbarment proceedings against Attorney J. H. Thompson on an alleged tax title fraud, Henry M. Gardiner, probate judge of Ingham county, Michigan, threw himself into Grand river and was drowned.

* * *

Junk men in the United States collected $114,000,000 worth of scrap iron and other metals last year, the geological survey at Washington announces.

* * *

As a result of a quarrel over the race for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, Jim Smith shot and instantly killed Robert Nabors in crowded Main street at Ringling, Okla.

* * *

Net earnings of the Steel corporation in the June quarter were at the rate of 47 per cent per annum on the $508,312,500 common stock—after allowing for interest charges, sinking fund requirements and the regular disbursements on the preferred stock. An extra dividend of one per cent was declared on the junior issue.

* * *

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat has announced an increase in the price of its daily edition in St. Louis from one cent to two cents, effective August 1.

* * *

Mexican War News

Santiago Ramizez, a former governor of the Mexican state of Coahuila, and later a Villista general, was publicly executed on the plaza at Saltillo, Mex., according to news reaching Nuevo Laredo from an authentic source.

* * *

General Funston has ordered trial by court-martial for all negro soldiers of the Eighth Illinois infantry that were engaged in a riot at San Antonio, in which three of the militiamen were shot by the provost guard.

* * *

Foreign

Sir Roger Casement, convicted of treason because of his part in the rebellion in Ireland, will be executed publicly, according to the London Daily Chronicle.

* * *

A dispatch to the London Exchange Telegraph company from Dresden says that Dr. Ernest George Gertel, leader of the Agrarian party in the reichstag, is dead.

* * *

The Amsterdam Telegraaf is authority for the statement that bread tickets will shortly be introduced in Holland.

* * *

Washington

The American protest against the British boycott now is in the hands of the British foreign office, says a Washington dispatch. The protest, it is understood, as announced by the British government, is in direct opposition to the trade treaties between the two governments.

* * *

The interstate commerce commission at Washington found proposed increased rates on bituminous coal from Illinois and Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan points justified. The suspended rates are effective September 1.

* * *

The agreement of the United States to the proposal of General Carranza for a settlement of the border problem was announced by Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk at Washington.

* * *

Foreign trade of the United States closed its greatest year in history June 30 with a balance of $2,136,000,000 in favor of American exporters. The year's exports aggregated $4,334,000,000, the department of commerce announced, and imports were valued at $2,198,000,000, says a Washington dispatch.

* * *

President Wilson has signed the river and harbors bill, carrying an appropriation of $42,886,085.

* * *

To "weed out" the disgruntled militiamen along the border, Maj. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss will recommend to the war department that a most liberal construction be placed on its policy of releasing guardsmen with dependent relatives, according to an El Paso dispatch.

* * *

The Democrats of the senate at Washington yielded to President Wilson's demand that the child labor bill be taken up and passed at this session.

* * *

Nearly $700,000,000 for national defense in the fiscal year 1917 is the aggregate of proposed appropriations reached in the senate at Washington with the passage of the army appropriation bill, carrying in round numbers $314,000,000.

* * *

The senate foreign relations committee at Washington voted to make an adverse report to the senate on Senator Martin's resolution and all substitutes providing for the president to intercede in Sir Roger Casement's behalf.

$15,000 HOSPITAL FOR MILITIAMEN

Detail of Medical Experts From Every Regiment Will Direct Work in Llano Grand Camp.

NO DRILLING IN HOT SUN

More Tents Arrive and Another Difficulty Is Overcome—Indiana May Have Model for All the Border Troops.

Mercedes, Tex.—The war department, Brigadier General Lewis, commandant of the Llano Grande camp, the commanding officers of the Indiana troops, all the surgeons and doctors of the Indiana units, the National Y. M. C. A., the Indianapolis Red Cross society, and citizens of this locality all are trying to make the camp the pattern of the Rio Grande valley, to guard the health of the soldiers and to take care of them when they are sick and to look after their moral welfare when they are well.

The war department has ordered the erection of a camp hospital, with all modern improvements and appliances. This will cost about $15,000, and a detail of medical experts from every regiment will look after the work, which probably will be in charge of a regular army officer. At the present time the very sick are being sent to the base hospital at Brownsville or to the hospital at San Antonio, but it is expected that the new camp hospital and the field hospitals will be able to take care of all here. It is not expected that the low sick rate of three-tenths of one per cent will continue, and no one can tell when a great deal of sickness may appear. It is to be prepared for such an emergency that the $15,000 camp hospital is to be built.

Brig. Gen. E. M. Lewis, the camp commander, has issued strict orders that the troops are not to be worked or made to drill in the extreme heat in the middle of the day. Under his direction, the camp is being put into a perfect sanitary condition as rapidly as possible. The mess shacks and the kitchens are screened, a great many filters have been put in, and while the supply of ice is not as large as it should be, General Lewis is making every effort to get an adequate supply.

Tents for Troops Arrive.

There is plenty of water, although at times the pressure is weak, but General Lewis has ordered that remedied. The tents for the eight companies of the Third infantry, which have been sleeping in pup tents, have arrived, and these companies have plenty of shelter. There has been some complaint about the meat, but that has been remedied. For a few days considerable of the bread shipped to the camp from Brownsville was sour, but since General Lewis took the matter up the bread is better. There are a number of places where food and soft drinks are sold, and a barber shop. Under General Lewis' orders a sanitary officer makes an inspection twice daily.

Shower Baths for the Men.

Colonel Naftzger of the First; Colonel Coulter of the Second, Colonel Kuhlman of the Third Indiana regiments, and Major Tyndall, commander of the Indiana artillery, are untiring in their efforts to take good care of their men and see that they are properly clothed and fed. Colonel Kuhlman cut a lot of red tape when he ordered the officers' shower baths turned over to the enlisted men in order that they might have a bath without marching through the hot sun to Llano lake. And at Llano lake the commanding officers have placed life guards to protect the swimmers.

Indiana Regiments Designated.

The Indiana infantry received good news when each commanding officer was informed by the war department that the Indiana regiments should be known as the First, Second and Third regiments. The order of Governor Ralston numbering them the One Hundred and Sixty-First, One Hundred and Sixty-Second, and the One Hundred and Sixty-Fourth, was not approved by the secretary of war. The Indiana boys, for sentimental reasons, did not wish the numbers of their regiments changed.

Must Tuck It In.

Uncle Sam provides an excellent tent bar, but until one learns how to tuck the edges in properly the net is very apt to work on the same principle as the wire screen fly traps and act as a collecting cage. Seven Texas mosquitoes and a night moth make one's tent entirely too thickly populated.

Bliss Makes Inspection.

The three batteries of the Indiana artillery at Llano Grande let loose all at once the other morning at nine o'clock, and those who were miles away and heard the cracking of the guns must have wondered what it was all about. The sound of the guns easily could have been heard over in Mexico, but it was not war. Major Tyndall was firing a salute of 18 guns to Major General Bliss, who was making an inspection of the camp. General Bliss was sent out from Washington to inspect all border camps.

Beware the Bugs.

C. O. No. 16.—All men will shake out bed clothing before retiring each night. Also before putting on clothing or shoes men will shake them thoroughly.—Captain Nicholas.

What is the reason for such an order? Just this: the "stranger folk" in the vicinity of Llano Grande are entirely too familiar. If one does not form the habit of unconsciously shaking shoes and the like, one is likely to find some truculent little customer in possession and ready to argue. Now arguments in this part of Texas are generally brief and pointed, and there are points, stingers, hooks, barbs and pincers on everything from the profanity to the scenery. You can bank on it, then, that the little stranger in your shoe will be prepared.

Of course scorpions and tarantulas and such creatures are not the sure death that the dime novels used to describe so graphically, but—well, you would not care to share the same blanket with a bald-faced Indiana hornet, would you?

If hornets were among the things that creep and crawl in Indiana they would have as hot a reputation among campers as scorpions in Texas.

Not So Many Scorpions.

The scorpions are not so numerous, everything considered, and an entomologist in Battery B has hunted diligently for one ever since camp started, without success. They are no respecters of persons when they are found. A colonel in the Minnesota outfit found one the morning after he made camp, and the scene that followed was lively.

To one who is interested in odd forms of life this country is a paradise, because interesting things are always happening. The boys in Company M, Second Indiana, who are from Princeton, found a lady tarantula while they were grading their company street. She was about five inches across and carried her family of several hundred youngsters along with her. They were pale yellow and about the size of a large pinhead, but before long they, too, will have a rich brown color and will be covered with the hairy fur that makes them such delightful bedfellows.

Get Auto Out of Mud.

Company A, First Indiana, which is from Indianapolis, is composed largely of automobile men and they have a company automobile. And this is how they got it: When the road between Mercedes and Llano Grande was almost impassable, an auto was stuck in the gumbo mud and left there by its disgusted owner. This was reported by a trooper of the Third cavalry and W. T. Bell, first sergeant, sent a detail to bring the machine to camp and this was done. Privates Vernon and Rausch, who were mechanicians in several speedway races, and Bill Payne, famous among the speeders of Indianapolis, are working on the machine and expect to chase coyotes with it in a short time.

Have Wireless Working.

Company A, signal corps, from Indianapolis, has its wireless up and working. Messages have been received from Brownsville, Harlingen and San Antonio, and they talk daily with the New York signal corps at McAllen. The atmospheric conditions on the border are difficult for wireless and the operators are troubled constantly. During the bandit raids the Mexicans had a wireless across the river that interfered with the wireless of the Third cavalry at Mercedes. When the Indianapolis company got to working the Third cavalry officers thought that the Mexicans were at it again.

Has Troubles Building Road.

These are the glad summer days when Major Noble of the Third battalion, Second regiment, has his worries. The major came from the sylvan shades of Culver and the aromatic breezes of Lake Maxinkuckee to the sun-baked soil of Hidalgo county Texas, and his first job was to superintend the building of a military road between Llano Grande camp and Mercedes. His detail consists of companies from every regiment in the camp. Nearly an entire Minnesota regiment came to the work without any water, and when Major Noble discovered it he sent a Minnesota lieutenant back to camp for the water. An hour later the major discovered a Minnesota captain wandering about in the locality. The captain said he understood the troops working on the road wished some water.

"Water," the major exclaimed. "Why, these men will die if they don't get it."

"What shall I get it in?" the captain said, looking helpless.

"You might get it in pop bottles," the major answered sarcastically, "or you might bring out a couple of tincups full. You have canteens and other things to carry water in. You get busy and mighty busy, too, and have the water for your troops out here."

But that's just a part of the major's troubles. Just as soon as he gets part of the road made out of the Texas gumbo, along comes one of those big army trucks and scrambles all the work that the major and his men have done.

Truck Breaks Through Bridge.

Just as the road was becoming passable between Mercedes and Llano Grande camp, a huge army truck loaded with supplies broke through a bridge, and after it was hauled out of the bridge wreck it went into a ditch, tearing up the roadway and blocking all traffic. Company B, Second Indiana, in command of Lieut. Harry Hall, was sent out with picks and shovels to rebuild the road and start the truck on its way. If the people at Laporte could have seen these boys at work they would have felt proud.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Indianapolis.—Death took James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, Saturday night, July 22. He had suffered a violent stroke of paralysis early in the day. Physicians did not expect the end immediately, however, and only the nurse was with the patient when he died. He was sixty-two years old and a bachelor.

One of the most unusual celebrations in the country was held in his honor October 7, 1915, when "Riley Day" was observed by a banquet in Indianapolis and in schools of the country, attended by more than 1,000,000 children.

The poet was the son of Reuben A. Riley, a lawyer and political speaker of Greenfield. The boy could not be brought to the dull routine of school days, but he was wise in the lore of streams and fields.

In the early '80s he began writing verses in "Hoosier" dialect for the old Indianapolis Journal. A volume was published and "the Hoosier poet" began to win a public.

Publication of books of poems year after year brought Riley a fortune and wide recognition of his literary genius.

Indianapolis.—The public service commission has granted the petition of the Logansport Heating company to issue $250,000 worth of preferred stock.

Fort Wayne.—Twenty-two of Fort Wayne's leading stores will close Saturday evenings at six o'clock during the remainder of July and all of August.

Indianapolis.—So far as Adjutant Bridges knows, the Third regiment of the Indiana National Guard still lacks shelter tents for a large number of its men at Mercedes, Tex.

Shelbyville.—J. Oscar Hall, who was nominated by the Progressive state convention for judge of the supreme court, has announced he would decline the nomination.

Kendallville.—Rev. F. H. Bayles has tendered his resignation as pastor of the First Baptist church to engage in Evangelistic work. His resignation became effective October 1.

Peru.—Dr. Claire Taylor has given $1,200 to the Miami County Hospital association and the money is to be used to buy real estate adjoining the hospital.

Bloomington.—Indiana university has established a branch library in Texas. It is located at Mercedes, has 100 volumes, and is for the particular use of the university students in Company I, Indiana National Guard.

Boonville.—The county commissioners have decided that the wet and dry election here June 30, and carried dry, was illegal and will issue licenses to applicants who have been running open without licenses.

Indianapolis.—Two fires, both of unknown origin, caused $45,000 loss here. The Gibson Wholesale Automobile company's warerooms were gutted by fire which caused $40,000 loss and the Citizens' ice plant was damaged $5,000.

Evansville.—The Anti-Cult Lecture and Publication bureau has been organized here as a successor to the Anti-Infidel league. Rev. B. W. Lile, pastor of the Park Memorial Presbyterian church, is the secretary-treasurer of the bureau.

Indianapolis.—The Pottawattomie Golf club of Michigan City and the Hill Crest Golf club of Batesville have been admitted to the Indiana Gold club and will have representatives in the state tournament at Laporte the week of August 14.

Lafayette.—O. J. Chapman of Eaton will continue to head the Indiana State League of Postmasters for another year. Other officers selected are: C. B. Neale, Montgomery, vice president; W. C. Wesner, Campbellsburg, secretary-treasurer.

Gary.—The post offices at New Chicago and Clarke station have been abolished and the territory will be served by two 50-mile auto rural mail routes out of Gary. Clarke station, which has had a post office for a half century, is the last of the three independent post offices that existed in Gary besides the main one.

Hammond.—James Alfonzo, aged seventy-five, and Gastova Gentele, seventy-two, both Sicilians, fought a duel with stilettos in a box car here over an Italian lass whom they both loved 50 years ago and who had been dead half a century in Sardinia. Both men were cut into ribbons and the box car looked like a slaughter pen. Neither is expected to live.

Hammond.—Sixteen-year-old Lelia Tanner of Jackson, Mich., was found hidden by the police in the room of John R. Pollard, son of Rev. I. Pollard. She was doped and declares that Pollard, on a trip to Whiting, induced her to dring some "funny fizzy stuff." Lelia is a beauty and engaged to Guyle Mathews of Jackson. She quarreled with her mother and ran away to Hammond. Pollard met and befriended her. He will be tried before Judge Barnett with a statutory charge.

Indianapolis.—Following receipt of information that the members of the Indiana National Guard in camp at Mercedes, Tex., had received with wild joy gifts of delicacies from home folks, the Women's Press club redoubled its efforts to provide "a carload of comfort" for the soldiers.

Indianapolis.—The public service commission promise an early decision on the compromise offer of the Northern Indiana Gas and Electric company for a ten-cent reduction on gas in South Bend and Mishawaka, after it had been presented by attorneys for the company.

RANCHING

Cattle and Horse Ranching in Western Canada—Steers Brought 10 Cents a Pound on the Seattle Market.

That big money is made by the large cattle rancher in Western Canada, and also by the small farmer as well, is shown by the undisputable facts presented from time to time. A rancher, near Gleichen, Alberta, who commenced in a small way nine years ago, recently disposed of 1,243 cattle at a total of $101,304.50, and this was only his surplus stock for the present season.

A December shipment of 217 head of ranch steers brought the owner an average of over $80 per head. They were taken straight from the range without any grain feeding and were in excellent condition to be sold for the Christmas trade. Another shipment of 100 head, averaging $70 each, was made to Seattle. The highest price paid on the Seattle market was for an Albertan steer, which weighed 1,700 lbs., and brought the fancy price of 10c per lb., or $170.

Six carloads of live stock from ranches 65 miles from Pincher, Alberta, shipped to Spokane, excited keen competition there on account of their exceptional quality. The price realized was $10,028. American dealers say they must look to Canada for beef supplies.

A livestock firm, which has shipped over 2,000 head of beef cattle to the American farmer since the middle of November, reports a splendid reception of Alberta stock in the United States.

A carload of choice Alberta steers were sold early in January for shipment to the British Columbia coast at $6.70 per 100 lbs. and, later on, a lot from Carstairs brought $6.90—the highest price paid since the spring of 1915. Shipments from Calgary livestock yards during 1915 were: Horses, 8,675; cattle, 30,577; hogs, 144,515; sheep, 12,410. A course in agriculture and livestock demonstration which has been conducted by the Provincial Dept. of Agriculture here was well attended, showing the interest taken by city residents in agricultural progress.

John Young, of Sidney, Man., gives his experiences in sheep-raising as follows, as quoted in a local paper:

"I bought a bunch of fifty ewes, which cost me $262.50. With this little flock I demonstrated just what can be done in the sheep business. This fall I sold fifty fat lambs at $6.50 per head, $325, and 18 of the best ewe lambs, which I kept, I value at $8.00 per head, $144. The wool sold at an average of $2.07 per head, $103.50. This makes the very nice total of $572.50."

"They ran out nearly every day all winter. The value of hay and oats was small, and one can make them very comfortable through the winter with very little expense. For shelter I have a shed, about 125 feet long and 14 feet wide, which I cover with straw. This gives them protection from the cold winds; yet it is always cool enough to be healthy."

"I intend going in more for sheep this fall, as I believe them to be the most profitable stock on the farm."

Desire of farmers and ranchers to increase their sheep-holdings is indicated by the sale of 2,500 head recently at $9.00 each. High wool prices and profitable demand for mutton are the reason given for such a figure.

Manitoba sheep breeders arranged last year for the Provincial Department of Agriculture to handle their wool output on a co-operative basis and obtained most satisfactory results. About 75,000 lbs. of wool were handled, netting the shippers over 25c per lb.—Advertisement.

Maybe.

"Reforms are being carried on everywhere just now."

"Yes, and after we have reformed some of our reforms we will probably have matter in pretty good shape again."

ITCHING, BURNING SCALPS

Crusted With Dandruff Yield Readily to Cuticura. Trial Free.

Cuticura Soap to cleanse the scalp of dandruff crustings and scalings, and Cuticura Ointment to soothe and heal itchings and irritations. Nothing better, surer or more economical than these super-creamy emollients for hair and scalp troubles of young or old.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Love Is Blind.

Another proof that love is blind is that no decent husband ever sees a freckle or wrinkle on the face of the wife who has just put a bait of fried chicken, hoecake, roas'n'ears, sliced tomatoes and sparrow grass in front of him.—Houston Post.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Warned.

"Is old Skinflint an approachable man?"

"Yes, very provided you don't care what happens to you after you approach him."

Chinese call China Ta-Tsing-Kwo.

AUGUST

L 908

U 244

MEN AND WOMEN Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness often disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. For good results use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists. Sample size bottle by Parcel Post, also pamphlet.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents. When writing mention this paper.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S ASTHMA MEDICINE
Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

DAISY FLY KILLER placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. All dealers or 6 sent express paid for $1.00.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.
Will reduce Inflamed, Strained, Swollen Tendons, Ligaments, or Muscles. Stops the lameness and pain from a Splint, Side Bone or Bone Spavin. No blister, no hair gone and horse can be used. $2 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Describe your case for special instructions and interesting horse Book 2 M Free. ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Strained, Torn Ligaments, Swollen Glands, Veins or Muscles; Heals Cuts, Sores, Ulcers. Allays pain. Price $1.00 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Book "Evidence" free.
W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple Street, Springfield, Mass.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 32--1916.

The Little Matter.

A certain captain of industry, complimented on an immense war contract, said in New York:

"One beauty about these contracts is their strict honesty. There are no palms to grease."

"It wasn't always so in war contracts. In fact, they tell a story about a war contractor who once broke the silence of his club reading room with a dreadful sigh.

"'What's the matter?' a brother contractor asked.

"'Alas, alas!' said the first contractor. 'I've just bought five million pairs of shoes at a dollar a pair and sold them to the army for six dollars, and I'm afraid the loss will ruin me.'

"'Loss? Loss?' said the other contractor. 'What are you talking about, man? On five million pairs of shoes, with a five-dollar profit, how can there be a loss?'

"'My dear fellow,' said the first contractor, sadly, 'you forget the little matter of commissions.'"—Washington Star.

The Ladies Are Learning.

"Cut out speeches," Miss Mary Garrett Hay, chairman of the Woman's Suffrage party, is reported to have demanded at the recent meeting when the clerks were overworked recording subscriptions to the new campaign fund.

"Cut out the speeches; money talks best," this wise chairman is said to have declared.

The late blind Boss Buckley of San Francisco, however, gained nothing in public esteem when he told his workers upon an occasion of pre-election funds allotment:

"Don't waste this good dough buying talk, but results."—New York Sun.

You may have a way of your own, but you will not always have your own way.

Tea and Coffee
For Children?

These beverages contain drug elements that hinder development of both body and mind, especially in children.

Nowadays, for their children, wise parents choose

POSTUM

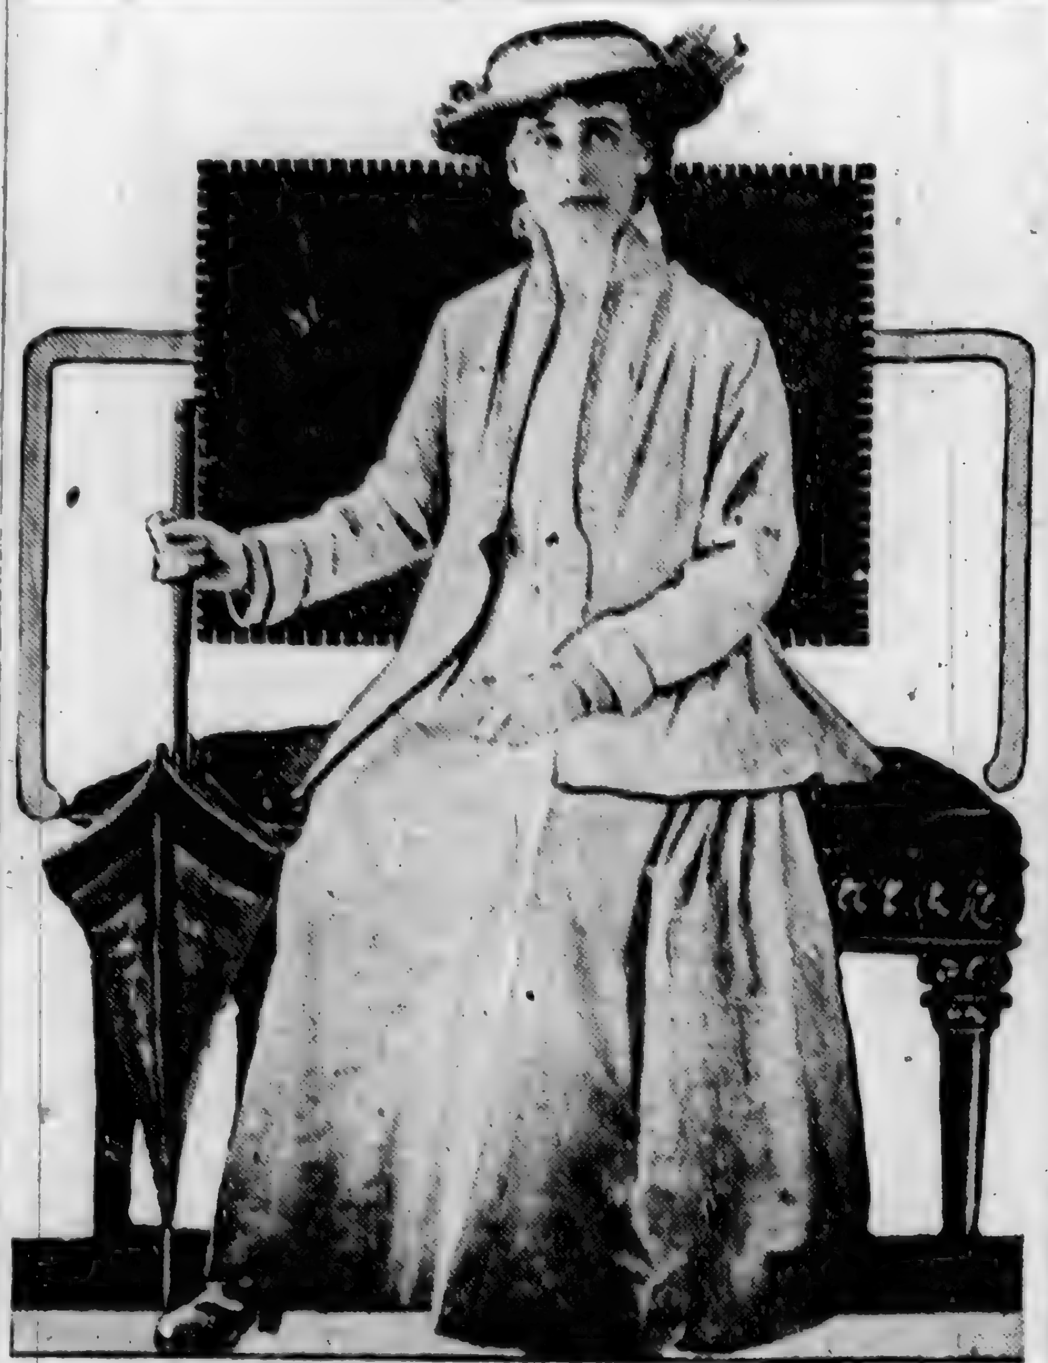
This delicious table beverage, made of cereals, has a wonderfully satisfying flavor—a flavor much like the higher grades of coffee (but without any of coffee's harm.) Postum is a true, pure food-drink that has helped thousands to forget the coffee habit.

"There's a Reason"

Grocers everywhere
sell POSTUM

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



Visiting Toilette of Embroidered Pongee

The painstaking and patient labor of faraway China enriched some yards of fine pongee with exquisite embroidery. The fabric was in the natural unbleached color of the silk, and the embroidered floral pattern was in the same tint exactly, so the material lent itself perfectly to the making of a luxurious suit. It is the last word in elegance.

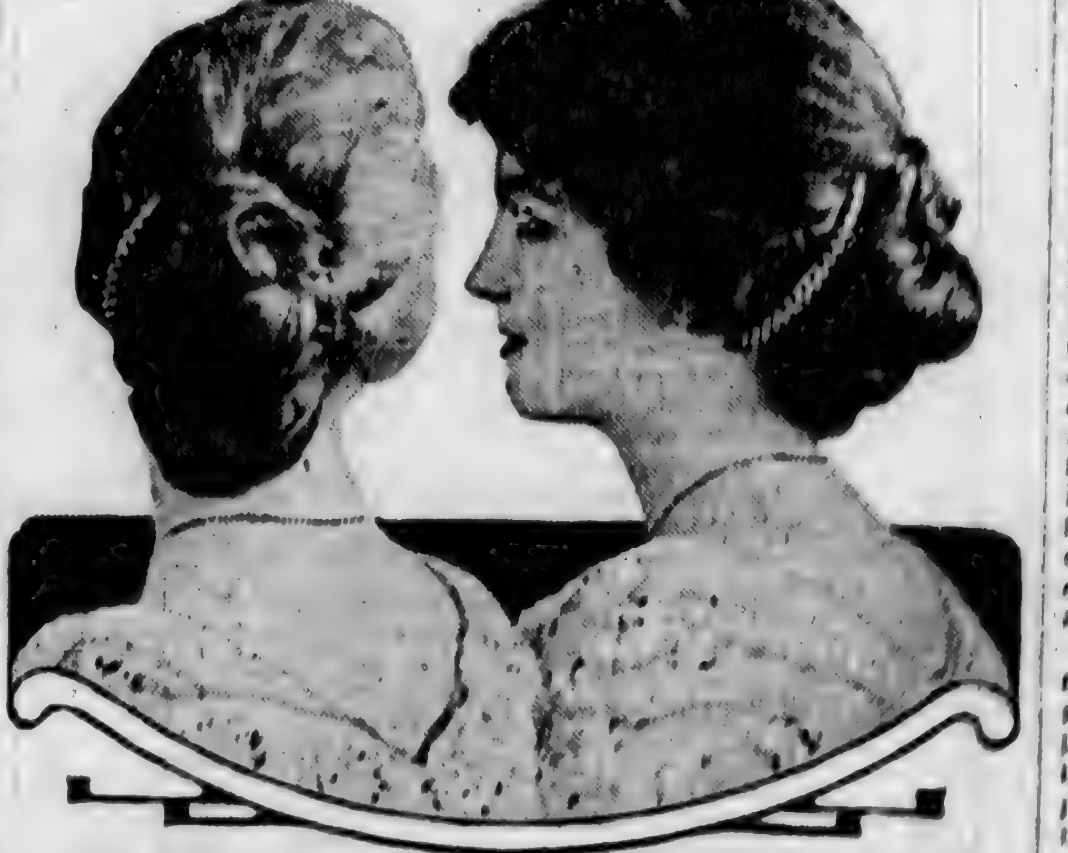
Someone who understands the needs of Europe and America, and is familiar with current styles, must have directed the labor of those oriental needlework artists. The embroidered patterns are placed in the best manner for good effect on skirt and coat, and the amount of material nicely calculated for present fashions. The skirt is cut in seven gores and these were sewed together and the skirt hemmed before the embroidery was done. This allows the pattern to run uninterrupted about the skirt.

The embroidered flowers almost cover the front gore and are extended part way up on the gores at each side of the back breadth. The masses of embroidery are joined by sprays of small leaves and blossoms and lines of dots that extend entirely round the skirt. The gores are laid in deep inverted plaits at the top, except across the back, where the fullness is gathered under a short belt.

The coat is made with a panel at the back and a moderately flaring peplum set on at the sides and front. Embroidered sprays appear on the lower part of the panel and on each side of the peplum at the front. It is lined with bright green satin. Embroidered bands of the pongee are combined with this satin for the cuffs and collar, and pongee and satin make the acorn buttons that are set on the coat, in groups of three, at each side of the front.

A narrow vest of black satin, covered with embroidery in gold thread, with rose, green, and blue silk, carries out the oriental suggestion as a finish for the coat.

Such a suit will prove a source of satisfaction to any owner, and more especially to the woman who looks best in tailored styles. It is a visiting toilette which may be used for many other things, as the informal dinner, for example.



Less Simple Styles In Coiffures

Hairdressing is not so simple as it was a few months ago, because the coiffures of today are dressed with waved hair. But the neatness of those plain styles was their chief charm, and the hairdresser is called upon to preserve that feature in the curled and waved coiffures that engage his attention now. Straight, unwaved hair may be becomingly dressed for a pretty and youthful face. Even so, it is prettier when it catches the light in waves, and as for curls, they have been the admiration of mankind for ages. They have returned and there are several pretty fashions in wearing them.

Younger women are wearing the hair waved and combed back in the manner of a small pompadour, with a Psyche knot at the back. In this style the ears are almost covered and there are a few curled locks about the forehead. The knot may be made up of several soft puffs and very short curls. However, wavy and curly, straggling ends or strands of hair blowing about the face are not to be tolerated. The hair net or invisible pins must hold them in place.

Another pretty style, for young women particularly, shows the hair coiled at the nape of the neck, as in the illustration. There are several clever ways of managing the coil, depending upon the abundance of hair which it must dispose of. It is pinned closer to the head than in the Psyche or other styles where the coil is higher. In this the hair is slightly waved and is brought back loosely, as in the preceding coiffure.

For older women, or those that find a high coiffure most becoming, the hair is waved or marcelled all around the head and the knot or coil is brought well forward on top. In this and in the styles already described, three or more short curls are pinned in about the knot or coil.

In the matter of hairdressing women can afford to be somewhat independent. An individual style which suits the face of the wearer better than any other is not to be abandoned to follow a fashion. Women who have very long and abundant hair must nearly always dispose of it in coiffures of their own invention.

Linen Hoods.

Hooded coats have linings of silk striped like peppermint candy. The hood turns completely inside out to show its lining.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUG. 6

GREATEST THING IN THE WORLD.

(Temperance Lesson.)

True ministry is in the exercise of spiritual gifts (Eph. 4:7-15). Every believer is a member of the body of Christ, and therefore has a definite ministry. Though the gifts are diverse, all are equally honorable because they are bestowed, administered and energized by the Holy Spirit. Love alone gives value to the ministry of any gift.

I. Fill the Gift With Love (vv. 1-3). Just as the body is dead unless a living soul abides in and inspires it, so is the gift unless filled with the spirit of love. This is the "more excellent way" to which Paul makes reference at the conclusion of Chapter 12. In praising love Paul does not fall into the error of criticizing others, not even his followers, and suggests that each he may be wanting in this trait. The Corinthians were eager to attain excellence and to be prominent in wisdom and philosophy; to understand the world in which they lived, to be scholars and teachers and improve and correct society. Paul therefore shows how vain are such things unless filled with the motive of love. (1) The gift of tongues. The saints in the church at Corinth seem to have been particularly gifted in this direction, and to have been proud of it (Ch. 14:2-23) and eager to outstrip the others. Paul tells them that such boasting amounts to little. The grace of love is a far more excellent way. (2) The gift of prophecy. The New Testament prophet was a forth-teller not a teller of the future. To be a forth-teller was a thing to be coveted and admired, but not unless accompanied by love. (3) Miracle working. A man can have this in the most powerful form conceivable, and yet if he has not love he is nothing.

II. Love Is Known by Its Manifestations (vv. 4-7). Having shown the absolute necessity of love Paul shows how we may recognize it. The behavior of love can be seen and known. Paul set for us 15 manifestations. (1) Love suffereth long. Love is no passing emotion, but a fixed thought. (2) It is kind. Kindness in action, love at work. (3) Love envieth not. It does not grow out of selfishness, for selfishness is the very opposite of love. (4) Love vaunteth not itself, does not climb to the housetops to proclaim its glory. (5) Is not puffed up. There is no inflation, like a soap bubble to dazzle the eye. (6) Does not behave itself unseemly, that is without delicacy of feeling. Unseemly conduct grows from pride and selfishness, whereas love is the foundation of true courtesy. (7) Seeketh not her own. Is not looking out for self first of all. (8) Is not easily provoked; good tempered, not irritable. To lose one's temper is a dangerous evil. The evil is not so much in the temper but in our failure to control it. (9) Thinketh no evil. Puts the best construction upon the acts of others, making all possible allowances. (10) Rejoiceth not in iniquity. (11) Rejoiceth in the truth, that is, is in sympathy with all that is true. (12) Beareth all things; endureth hardships and trials for the working out of the kingdom. (13) Believeth all things; not credulous but putting the best construction upon the words of others, and having faith in the final outcome of every good cause. (14) Hopeth all things; is not discouraged in the dark and shadowy days. (15) Endureth all things; it goes on believing and hoping to the end; no obstacle can stop it. Surely such a catalogue of the marks of love is enough to make us all pause and meditate.

III. The Permanence of Life (vv. 8-13). The word "faileth" here denotes falling in the sense of cessation, and love is contrasted with three typical but passing forms of Christian expression. (1) "Prophecies;" not the things prophesied but the gift or act of prophesying (v. 8) which at best can only partially express God's word. Prophecy will pass away in the fuller vision and wider knowledge of God "Who is love." (2) "Tongues." The time will come when they will not be needed as a sign nor to enable us to express our varied emotions. The divinely inspired prophecies tell but a part of what is yet to be. (3) "Knowledge." It shall be done away in the fuller knowledge of the eternal world as the light of the stars vanish before the rising sun. When that which is perfect is come these lights will be seen to be only like the separate stones of a quarry which can only be fully understood when the whole building stands before us in its completion.

Real Love Powder.

A young woman who thought she was losing her husband's affection went to a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter for a love powder. The mystery woman told her: "Get a raw piece of beef, cut flat, about an inch thick. Slice an onion or two, and rub the meat on both sides with it. Put on pepper and salt, and toast it on each side over a good coal fire. Drop on it three lumps of butter and one sprig of parsley, and get him to eat it." The young wife did so, and her husband loved her ever after.

Libby's Hot Weather Meats

Veal Loaf, to serve cold; Cooked Corned Beef, select and appetizing. Chicken Loaf, Ham Loaf and Veal Loaf, delicately seasoned. Vienna Sausage, Genuine Deviled Ham and Wafer Sliced Dried Beef for sandwiches and dainty luncheons.

Insist on Libby's at your grocer's

Libby, McNeill & Libby, Chicago

MAKE CHUM OF YOUR CHILD

Boy Will Welcome Companionship of Father Who He Feels Can Understand Him.

The influence of a man's companionship in a child's life is [illegible]

You notice I have said whom he can trust and who really understands him. [illegible]

It is a pitiful commentary that so many children, [illegible] —Laura Spencer Porter, in Mother's Magazine.

Simplicity of the Fathers.

Mr. Everett M. [illegible] of New York, president general of the Daughters of the Revolution, said at a luncheon:

"There are many anecdotes in illustration of the simple living of the Fathers.

"One of our country's pre-Revolutionary fathers [illegible] on the governor of the province, and was invited to stay to luncheon.

"Luncheon began, and a liveried servant moved busily about, serving the wine, carrying the food, and so forth.

"The guest watched the servant for some minutes, and then said to him irritably:

"'What are you doing dancing about the room for, man? Can't you pull up a chair and sit down? Surely there's enough for the three of us.'"

Modern Villain.

Through the shrubbery Marcus Pelf the wealthy rejected suitor, watched Harry Harrison, the village blacksmith, clasp Ruth Roberts in his strong young arms.

"Curse 'em!" he hissed. "I'll have me revenge! I'll buy 'em an automobile for a wedding present, and then look on gloatingly while they mortgage the blacksmith shop to buy gasoline!"

Shocking.

"He kissed me and promised not to tell."

"And then?"

"It wasn't two minutes before he repeated it."

STAFF AFTER REAL MONEY

Temptation Was More Than Any Newspaper Men Could Be Expected to Resist.

A visitor to a small country town in [illegible]

Daughter's Idea.

[illegible]

PREPAREDNESS.

Prepare for next washday by taking home Red Cross Ball Blue. Ask any good grocer. Red Cross Ball Blue imparts a clear white [illegible] when you see the basket of beautiful, snowy white clothes. Red Cross, the blue that's true blue.—Adv.

Drill America.

[illegible]

He Meant Well, but—

[illegible]

Toastmaster (in hoarse whisper)—Go easy; we've got only two hills in town. The insane asylum is on one, and the sewage works on the other.

A self-made man imagines that he used up all the really good material.

Bumper Grain Crops
Good Markets—High Prices
Prizes Awarded to Western Canada for Wheat, Oats, Barley, Alfalfa and Grasses

The winnings of Western Canada at the Soil Products Exposition at Denver were easily made. The list comprised Wheat, Oats, Barley and Grasses, the most important being the prizes for Wheat and Oats and sweep stake on Alfalfa.

No less important than the splendid quality of Western Canada's wheat and other grains, is the excellence of the cattle fed and fattened on the grasses of that country. A recent shipment of cattle to Chicago topped the market in that city for quality and price.

Western Canada produced in 1915 one-third as much wheat as all of the United States, or over 300,000,000 bushels.

Canada in proportion to population has a greater exportable surplus of wheat this year than any country in the world, and at present prices you can figure out the revenue for the producer. In Western Canada you will find good markets, splendid schools, exceptional social conditions, perfect climate and other great attractions. There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

Send for illustrated pamphlet and ask for reduced railway rates, information as to best locations, etc. Address Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.; C. W. Aird, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Canadian Government Agents

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

AUGUST

L 908

0245

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jord Jeighty, Associate

One Year, - - - $1.00
Six Months, - - - - .50
Three Months, - - - .25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

County Agent Employed.

The DeKalb county board of education met in the assembly hall of the court house Monday afternoon, the object of the meeting being to act on the application of A. Z. Arehart for the position of county agent.

County Agent Henry of Allen county, represented Prof. Coleman of Purdue, and brought with him a letter in which Mr. Arehart was recommended for the position.

Superintendent Dr. Lida Leasure presided and called on Mr. Henry for a talk. The speaker discussed briefly the duties of an agent and said that this official would be of direct help to more people in the county than any other official. Mr. Arehart, the applicant, he said, was a graduate of Purdue university and has been engaged in the county agent work in the state of Minnesota.

Mr. Arehart was then called upon and told of the work he had done and what he thought DeKalb county needed. The farmers here he said, should first of all organize a county farm club, divided into departments, such as live stock, crops, schools, markets, etc., which would ultimately mean better farming, better business and better living.

A boys' and girls' club should be organized in every school in the county for the study and investigation of agricultural topics, he said, and these clubs should be auxiliary to the county club. The school clubs would stimulate interest and enthusiasm among the children and make them loyal to the farm. He showed by charts and pictures what he had done in this line in his Minnesota work.

H. M. Widney of St. Joe, H. D. Boozer of Waterloo, M. Boland of Auburn, and Dr. Showalter of Waterloo, men who had pushed the agent movement in this county and had secured the necessary funds, all made talks on the subject and urged action. They called attention to this great movement all over the United States and DeKalb county they said, must not be a back number.

Trustee Edson Beard of Franklin township, made the motion to employ Mr. Arehart as agent for this county and the motion was seconded by Dr. J. E. Showalter of Waterloo. The voting was by ballot. The result showed nine votes "yes" and six votes "no" and the motion was declared carried.

The Purdue university by law fixes the salary and Mr. Arehart is to receive $1,600 a year and the expenses of the county agent are limited to $30 a month. The state pays half of the salary and the county the other half. The county must provide the office room for the agent and he will be given one of the rooms in the court house. This matter will no doubt be decided by the board of commissioners at the regular meeting next week.

Mr. Arehart will begin his active work some time this month and will take a part in the coming teachers' institute.

The new county agent was born on a farm three miles west of Kendallville, on the Brimfield road, on the place entered by his grandfather in 1850. He received his education in the country schools of Noble county and graduated from the Kendallville high school in 1908. The same year he entered Purdue and after four years of work he graduated from the agricultural department. He spent a part of 1912 in the Purdue experimental farm and then accepted a position as instructor and agricultural demonstrator at the high school at Benson, Minnesota, where he also became the assistant of the county agent of that county. Mr. Arehart's age is 31 years.

Mr. Arehart was married in June, 1915, to a young lady who resided near Kenyon, Minnesota. Mrs. Arehart's parents are Norwegian, but she was born in Minnesota. She has been engaged in high school work for seven years and has taught English, German, Latin, Norwegian and music. The Arehart's will move to Auburn some time this month and will be welcomed by our people.

Infantile Paralysis!

The germ that causes the disease enters the body through the nose and mouth. Mothers should do all within their power to save the child from the serious ailments of childhood. This can best be done by keeping the mouth, nose and throat in a clean and healthy condition. Glando Gargle is antiseptic and hydroscoptic, cleansing and healing to the mucous membrane.

It is a splendid preventative for sore mouth in babies, and is highly recommended for catarrhal conditions, hay fever and adenoids. Its use two or three times a day may save your child.

Procurable at drug stores or from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

* * *

The Gossips Say—

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

A number of the local girls had a picnic supper Friday evening in honor of the Misses Helen Woodard of Plymouth, and Ruth Zonker of Corunna.

The Boys and Girls classes of the Lutheran Sunday school had a picnic in Dills grove. Their teachers, Gray Woodcox and Mrs. Grace Dilley accompanied them and helped to make the day a pleasant one.

Mrs. C. R. Brunson and daughters, Wanda and Beulah, returned to their home at Chicago Junction, Ohio, Saturday noon after a two weeks visit with relatives in this vicinity. Miss Wanda had been here since April.

Mr. and Mrs. Coral Hamilton and daughters, Cecile and Doris, of Detroit, and Mrs. John Hamilton of Butler, were Friday afternoon callers of James Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

Henry Hathaway motored to Fort Wayne Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Fred Gibson and daughters, Mary Jane, Dana and Margaret Ann, accompanied him and took the train there for their home in Peru after several days visit with the lady's cousin, Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

Mrs. H. L. Dunkle assisted by Mrs. L. Kelsey, Mrs. Sherm Anstett and Miss Ella Rahe all of Fort Wayne, entertained the following little folks in honor of the birthdays of her daughter, Miss Rhea, and her nephew, Master Earl Kelsey, Thursday afternoon: Katherine and Elizabeth Bayman, Alice Tustison, Catherine, Lucile and Grace Curie, Eloise Bowman, Marie and Ida Kinsey, Marguerite and Phillis Kosht, Jessie Engle, Mary Jane, Dana and Margaret Ann Gibson, of Peru, Alice Anstett, of Fort Wayne, Glenn Kinsey, Joe Woodcox, Carl Tustison and Frank Caw. The children were served with ice cream.

JOHN DEERE FARM IMPLEMENTS

I desire to announce to the farmers of this vicinity, that I am the John Deere agent in this territory and am well pleased with the sales made this year. We handle all of their machinery and are always ready to call and wait upon you.

Corn Planters, Mowers, Binders, Hay Loaders, Potato Diggers, Potato Planters.

J. I. Case Tractors

saves the horses, and besides makes farm work easier and a pleasure. Most useful piece of machinery on the farm.

B. A. Baker, Agt.
LEO, INDIANA.

Viberg & Co., Fort Wayne, Headquarters.

HOW ABOUT THIS?

ARE YOU MAKING THINGS AGREEABLE TO THE HESSIAN FLY?

"The farmers should be no more anxious to provide food, nesting places, and costly care for this pest than they are to invite typhoid fever, smallpox, or the foot-and-mouth disease into their communities and homes, yet this very thing is being done in hundreds of communites by a few careless farmers who remain indifferent to their neighbors' pleas, to the warnings of agricultural authorities, and to their own responsibilities," are the words of a noted institute worker at a farmers' meeting in the wheat belt a few days ago.

He further declared that co-operation among farmers by late sowing, good seedbed preparation, and the use of available plant food to hasten the growth and resistant qualities of the crop, were the methods of saving the millions of dollars lost annually through this pest.

The reason for late sowing is that, since the life of the fly is so short, it will have either died or have been killed by the first frost. But late sowing takes care of the fall brood only, and other steps are necessary to forestall the spring brood.

This leads to the matter of seedbed preparation and the good found in a fine and well-prepared seed bed lies in the increased root system and feeding ability of the plant, for no plant can be better than its root system since the roots are the plant's mouths. Hardness, shallowness, dryness and looseness of the ground spell a poor crop in advance.

Late in the fall, at the time of sowing, less plant food is being made available than in the warm summer months. Particularly is this so of ammonia, that indispensible element which makes the rank vegetative growth possible. It is also ammonia that puts the rich, green healthy color in the young plants, and without which the yield of grain cannot be high.

Here is where the commercial fertilizer containing at least two per cent ammonia has been returning one and two dollars and even more in profit, for every dollar invisted.

The fly does not thrive on healthy, vigorous, growing wheat. The plant juice is so diluted that it does not hold enough to furnish the nutriment it requires. Consequently it turns its attack to the weaker plants, those with sap more concentrated, and the damage to the crop increases with the larger number of sickly plants. Sickly, weak and unhealthy plants are the cause of more injury from the pest than result from the fly's attack.

FEED-UP YOUR FIELDS INCREASE YOUR YIELDS

There is a farmer whom I know who shows that he is wise,
He knows that larger yields of wheat
  come when you fertilize,
With crop reports much lower than last year and prices high,
The farmer easily can see that plant food is his best buy,
Some nitrogen will help the growth,
  phosphoric acid, too,
A little potash strengthens straw and plumps the kernels, too.
Let's help the plants make good stalk growth and fill the kernels plump,
By feeding them with plant food (Sir)
  —Then watch the profits jump!
The profits come with larger yields,
  the average crops don't pay
So why not get your share of gain—
  the fertilizer way?
With wheat you have a high priced crop and extra bushels count,
Fertilize your fields, bring up your yields and watch your profits mount,
And when you see just how it pays
  this year to fertilize your wheat,
Next year you'll feed your other crops and all your records beat.
For farming is a game in which the Golden Rule applies,
You feed your crops and they feed you, so, therefore fertilize.

—Melvin Ryder.

NEARLY AS MUCH THE SECOND SEASON.

"The increase in yields of the crops following the one to which fertilizer is applied is often nearly as much as that secured in the crop fertilizer. In one experiment at the Ohio Station when fertilizer was used on wheat, it caused an increase in yield of the other four crops in rotation, of 86 per cent of that secured in the wheat crop," says J. F. Hudson, a well-known farm writer. "Fertilizers applied to the corn crop will not be entirely used up and will benefit the crops following especially when applied broadcast or drilled in evenly where the field is in sod.

NO ONE WOULD WORK A SICK HORSE.

No one would think of working a sick horse, yet there are farmers in almost every community who are continuing to work their sick soils, and with the usual result of poor crops."

Fertilizing will help some, and lime is the corrective agent; but for the best results both should be used. With wheat, when limestone and fertilizer are used on the same land the yield is larger than when either one of these is used alone.

STAMP OUT THE FLY

"Three things are necessary in waging a successful warfare against the Hessian fly, viz.:—thorough preparation of the soil, so as to form the best possible conditions for germination; heavy fertilization, if the soil is not already in good condition so as to insure a quick and rapid growth; and late sowing so as to compel the flies to go elsewhere to deposit their eggs."

This extract from bulletin 194 of the Indiana experiment station contains in a nutshell the main conditions to be handled in the control of the pest. The Illinois circular 146 also makes a good point when it declares: "A vigorous wheat plant is much better able to react against an attack of the fly, especially by stooling freely or throwing out an abundance of new shoots from the root. Whatever tends, consequently, to give vigor to the plant reduces proportionally the percentage of loss."

This leads to the conclusion that a fertilizer containing at least two per cent ammonia may be the salvation of the crop, and the experience of many users bears this out. With such crop insurance so cheap compared with results obtained, the enhanced chances for a successful clover catch always greater by its use, fertilizer will play a very important part in this fight on the Hessian fly.

DOUBLE YOUR PROFITS FROM WHEAT.

Millers pay more per bushel for high quality wheat than they do for that which only grades number four or five, according to a Chicago Board of Trade Member. Ohio Experiment Station Bulletin 243 shows that high quality wheat and large yields go together, thus giving the farmer double profits. The experiments reported in Bulletin 243 show a yield of 8.45 bushels of wheat per acre with 51 per cent plump and 49 per cent shriveled kernels, where no fertilizer was used, against a yield of as high as 34.15 bushels per acre of which 94 per cent of the kernels were plump and but 6 per cent shriveled when the wheat was fertilized.

WHEAT YIELDS, AND BEEF PRODUCTION.

"Those 50 to 55 bushels to the acre wheat yields don't 'just grow' any more than does a load of prime finished baby beeves. The cattle are never allowed to lose their calf fat, and are fed liberally of a balanced ration from the day they are born until they go into the car for market," says Clyde A. Waugh, in Farm and Fireside. "Record wheat crops must have plenty of a balanced plantfood ration to give them a quick start in the fall, to enable them to resist disease and insect attacks, to make enough growth in the fall to cover the ground before winter sets in, to start out early in the spring and to make a straight standing, early maturing bumper crop of first quality."

POOR SEED WHEAT EXPENSIVE

Poor seed wheat cannot produce a good crop. If but four seeds out of five grow, it means four heads of wheat where there might have been five. Poor seed wheat is so dear in the long run that no one can afford to drill it. The biggest profits come from a wheat that yields well, grades high, and sells well on the market.

PROMPT ATTENTION.

"I can't wait a second. Can you give me a light fruit lunch at once?"

"Certainly, sir. I'll turn on the electric currents."

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado - -	$36.60
California -	$78.75
Yellowstone -	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind. J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Mrs. Will Smith was a Friday guest of Mrs. Elmer Smith.

Mrs. Margaret Koch spent the fore part of the week with her daughter, Mrs. Will Smith.

Harold Beams and sisters, Lola and Delphia, visited Sunday at Scipio, the guests of Mildred and Victor King.

Miss Hermonie Elder of Fort Wayne, is visiting with G. W. and C. M. Whearley.

Mr. Delta McKinley left Monday morning for Michigan for the treatment of hay fever, also will work in a pickle factory while there. He has made frequent trips there before this.

Frank Markle and wife and children of Grabill, visited Saturday night and Sunday the guests of Lewis Markle and wife.

Evelyn and Marie Markle of Grabill are visiting with Lewis Markle and wife.

Harley Berry, wife and two children of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with Lewis Markle and wife.

A crowd of people from Rehobeth came Sunday and held baptismal services at this place in the St. Joe River.

There will be a picnic held at Scipio August 5, to which everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gray, Mrs. Jennie Johnson, Mr. George Drindle and Earl Johnson spent Sunday at the home of Del Kelley and family.

Mr. John Doll, wife and children, Frank Beams, wife and children motored to Hamilton Lake Sunday and spent the day.

Miss Nora Cook visited Thursday with Mrs. Chester Loucks at Scipio.

Local Briefs

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c.

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

T. H. Shoub of Pascagoula, Mississippi, was here over Sunday the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jenkens.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton, little daughter, Margaret Elnor, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee O. Tustison and little son, Keith, motored to Hicksville Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Northrup, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Northrup were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton. Saxe Hadsel and family were afternoon guests.

Miss Edna Jackson spent from Sunday until Tuesday the guest of her uncle and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson, at Concord.

Mrs. Delia Wade of Petoskey, Michigan, accompanied her sister, Mrs. Amanda Shafer, home for a visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. David Furnish of Detriot, Michigan, are here for a visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Andress. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh of Garrett, were also over Sunday guests in the Andress home.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

To-morrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

"TIZ" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters and bunions.

"TIZ" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, or how long you remain on your feet, "TIZ" brings restful foot comfort. "TIZ" is wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now from any druggist or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy.

AUGUST

L 908

0246

Preparedness

❋ ❋

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank
Capital Stock $25,000.00
Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET
PRICE

Paid for Your
POULTRY
SEE
W. G. ERICK

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

Mr. Fred High and Golden Murray were Sunday guests of Miss Gertrude Shutt.

Rev. W. Paul Barton will deliver a sermon lecture "Four P's in a Pod" on next Sunday evening at the M. E. church. All young people are especially invited.

The Ladies Guild of the M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. Samuel Markle on Thursday afternoon. About twenty ladies were present to enjoy the fine program.

Seil Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 12
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

Subscribe for this paper.
Patronize the advertisers.
Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Envelopes
Leaflets
Bill Heads
Calling Cards
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Circulars
Posters
Blotters
Invitations
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

SPENCERVILLE

Mr. Martin Koch is the owner of a new Overland touring car.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

Miss Minnie Wilmott is spending several weeks at the home of Adam Shilling and family.

C. A. Davis of Kalamazoo, who has been visiting friends at this place, left for home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Benninghoff spent Sunday the guests of the latter's brother, A. L. Lake, and family of Butler.

Rev. J. C. Valentine will deliver a sermon at Butler on next Sunday morning and at Meese Chapel Sunday evening.

Mr. Fred Osbourne of Roanoke, came Monday evening and his wife, Mrs. Gladys Osborne, and babe returned home with him.

On Sunday evening the Lutheran Christian Endeavor society held their meeting in the open air. Ten new members were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wise and Mrs. Manerva Wise of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Baltzer Koontz.

Mrs. Bardon, the nurse, who has been caring for Mary Shutt at the home of Mrs. Hattie Beams, returned to her home at Fort Wayne Saturday evening.

Dr. B. O. Shook moved his household goods into the Henry Murray residence last week and Dr. Emine of Grabill, who recently bought his property on Main street, moved into it.

The Girls' "Pansy" club will be entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Marjoria Hollabaugh. All girls between the ages of 6 and 15 that are interested are invited.

On Monday evening the Lutheran C. E. society held a marshmallow roast along the river from 6 to 8 o'clock. On the way home they serenaded some of the sick and shut-in ones of the town.

Our new shipment of Ladies' Ready-to-wear dresses and waists are now in. Call and see them first before the choice colors and patterns are selected. Cheaper than you can make them at Beams & Co., store.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gloyd and sons, Geary and Ralph, and Master Edwin Harwood, Mrs. Gladys Osborne and daughter, Lucile, of Roanoke, Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Badica and sons and Mrs. Charles Badica of near Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Gloyd's sister, Mrs. James Dickson, and family of Waterloo.

The Picnic season is now at hand. The Lutheran Sunday school of this place and the Lutheran Sunday school of St. Joe will hold a picnic at Erick's grove on Thursday for their schools and on Sunday two classes the "True Blue" and "Up Streamers" with their teachers, Mrs. Orange Carnahan and Miss Lena Kelley, will enjoy an outing. On Saturday picnics will be held both at Scipio and Leo.

A family reunion was held on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Menassa Ruppert of east of town. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott and daughter, Nellie, of this place; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Ruppert and daughters, Unice, Mildred, Vera, Alto and Golda, of Antwerp, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Dorsey and Mr. Melvin Borden of North Scipio; Mr. and Mrs. Perry Long and children, Vesta Rosell, Walldo, Ruppertt, Percilla and Maryetta of Auburn, and Mrs. Frank Packer and daughters, Lucille and Pauline, of Ashley, Michigan, and Mr. John Ruppertt.

Mr. J. M. Beams and son, Argyl and G. M. Shutt motored to Fort Wayne on Sunday.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Miss Deech of Edon, came Sunday to visit her uncles, John Webb and Joe Weebb and families.

Many people viewed the large row boat which is owned by Alfred Bachmann on Sunday. It is quite a curiosity.

Master Kenneth Jenkins and brother of Auburn, spent Sunday at the home of their uncle, George Jenkins and wife.

The C. C. Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Nettie Steward and daughter, Hazel, on Friday afternoon.

R. U. Bowser and son, Roy, erected lightning rods on the buildings on the L. U. Steward farm and also on the barn in town on Friday.

Mrs. Robert Beams and son, James, returned home Sunday after spending several days visiting the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James of Harlan.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Summers and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Rolley Moffet and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baltz of Auburn, motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Baltz and spent the evening and took Miss Jessie Moffet, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Summers, to her home at Auburn.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night. To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

Come in
and pay that overdue subscription account.
Don't wait until the paper stops.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can. "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

NEWVILLE NEWS.

W. D. Magginis is here at this writing visiting old time friends.

Miss Mabel Hapner of Basemen, Montana, was the guest of her uncle, Rev. J. L. Veesey, and Mrs. Veesey a part of last week.

A. L. Gengnagle bought a new Overland car last week.

Arthur Rhoads and family of Peoria, Illinois, were here last week visiting his parents and other relatives.

Frank Siler and wife of Auburn, came to see Mary Andress Tuesday. They found her visiting at the preachers.

Mr. L. W. Yeiser presented the U. B. minister with a big load of hay last week.

The U. B. quarterly conference will meet at Newville August 26.

Elsworth Traxler threshed eighty-seven and two-thirds bushels of wheat off three acres.

Claud Tarney's little four-year-old boy met with an experience last Monday afternoon that he will not care to repeat. He got the funnel shaped top of an oil can fast on the middle finger of his left hand. After trying every device one could think of, such as filing, using the penknife and soap, and even the hammer and chisle was resorted to, the latter being in danger of breaking the child's wrist, it was decided best to just force the instrument of torture off, this was done, lascerating the dear little finger very much, but the torture was the more quickly over with and he is getting along fine.

Mrs. John Miller and son, Byron, were the Sunday guests of Elmer McDonald and family of Butler.

Mrs. Sarah King spent last week in Butler the guest of her son, Jess King, and wife.

Last Tuesday the five ladies mentioned here accepted the invitation to take dinner with Rev. and Mrs. Keesey: Mrs. Julie Wyatt, Mrs. Catherine Nicholls, Mrs. Mary Andress, Mrs. Elizabeth Benner and Mrs. Mary Miller. All enjoyed a good time and a good dinner.

Cured of Terrible Cough.

Mrs. John Polter of 359 S. Williams street, Paulding, Ohio, says: "I took a severe cold in August which acted like hay fever, I thought the cold would soon wear off so I neglected to doctor for it. It went to my lungs and from that time on I coughed almost continually day and night until I began to spit blood. I lost in weight and looked so bad that people thought I had tuberculosis. I tried Glando Pine. The first bottle helped me. I used three bottles straight, then less frequent until I was cured. I am now perfectly well and firmly believe Glando Pine saved my life. I would not think of being without this wonderful medicine in my home. My throat and catarrhal trouble has also ceased to bother me."

Glando Pine can be secured at drug stores. Accept no substitute. For sale by All Druggists.

Notice

Persons who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

ST. JOE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Goldsmith, Miss Laura Shutt and Miss Lola Reichelderfer all of Harlan, were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, }
Lucas County. } ss.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township
OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser
Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.
Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest In America
Strongest In the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP
Fort Wayne, Ind.

AUGUST

L 908

0247

SECOND YEAR OF THE WAR REVIEWED

Germany Holds More Territory in Europe Than It Did Twelve Months Ago.

LOSER IN OTHER RESPECTS

Entente Allies Now Hammering Teutons Hard on All Sides.

AUSTRIA SEEMS WEAKENING

British Naval Blockade Still Effective After Great Battle of Jutland—Chief Developments of Year in Terrific World Conflict.

PRESENT MILITARY AND NAVAL FORCES OF THE WARRING POWERS.

Great Britain (Asquith's statement less losses)	4,500,000
France	2,500,000
Russia (little definite known)	7,000,000
Italy	1,500,000
Belgium	150,000
Serbia	200,000
Montenegro	Practically none
Portugal (little definite known)	75,000
Japan (only officers at front)	300,000
Total, entente allies	15,225,000
Germany	5,000,000
Austria-Hungary	2,500,000
Turkey	1,500,000
Bulgaria	700,000
Total, central powers	9,700,000

TOTAL KILLED, WOUNDED AND PRISONERS.

(In considering the losses it must be remembered that many listed as wounded are only slightly hurt and return to the front. Some are wounded several successive times and each time appear in the casualties.)

Russia	5,500,000
France (about 900,000 killed)	2,300,000
Great Britain	800,000
Italy	400,000
Belgium	180,000
Serbia	230,000
Total, entente	9,410,000
Germany, (estimated 700,000 killed)	4,000,000
Austria-Hungary	2,750,000
Turkey	500,000
Bulgaria	50,000
Total, Teutonic allies	7,300,000
Grand total, killed, wounded, prisoners	16,710,000

In the Napoleonic wars, 1793-1815, 1,900,000 men were killed; in the American Civil war 494,400; in the Russo-Japanese war 555,900.

What the War Is Costing.

The war is now costing in direct governmental expenditure $110,000,000 a day; $4,580,000 an hour; $76,000 a minute; and $1,270 a second.

The end of the second year of the great war finds the Germans in possession of more of Europe than they held on August 1, 1915, the first anniversary of the start of the great conflict.

This is practically the only respect in which the situation is more favorable to them. Russia, her vast man power at last organized and furnished with implements of destruction in plenty, is battering the Teuton lines on the east and has already won back 4,500 square miles. Great Britain boasts five million men in her army and navy. France fights as strongly as ever. Italy is increasing her formidableness.

Austria appears to be losing heart and efficiency. Bulgaria refuses to send re-enforcements to the west or Russian fronts. Turkey shows slight offensive power.

The British navy, following the much-disputed naval battle of Jutland, still shuts off Germany from use of the seas. One German merchant submarine has reached America, but the supplies which can be carried over to the besieged nations in U-boats will be of little account.

Germany and Austria both feel the pinch of hunger. Their armies are sufficiently fed, but their industrial workers complain of lack of nourishment. The present harvest is watched with anxiety, and if it fails or is only of fair size, famine will stalk into the situation next spring, or earlier.

Germany Seeks "Reasonable Peace."

The German chancellor three times in the reichstag has offered peace to the entente. On account of this, formidable opposition has arisen to him at home, although he is the kaiser's "other self." His friends are rallying to his defense, and on August 1 of the present year begins the curious country-wide lecture campaign to prepare the minds of the hitherto docile German people for a "reasonable peace."

Meanwhile, with the sky brightening, the entente allies reaffirm their resolution, taken in the dark hours of last winter, never to cease their efforts till Germany is crushed. The Teutons not only must be beaten in war, according to the allied formula, but must be repressed economically for many years after the signing of a treaty of peace.

On August 1, 1915, the Germans and Austrians were in the midst of their brilliant campaign against Russia. The "pincers" were closing in irresistibly. That day Lublin, an important city in southern Poland, fell.

Von Mackensen, with Galicia conquered, was pressing northward, while on the north side of the Polish salient Von Hindenburg bore with his host of field-gray warriors.

Without guns, without ammunition, with nothing except myriads of Slav giants, some of whom resisted charges with sharpened sticks in their hands, Russia was forced to fall back rapidly.

Twice it seemed the flower of the czar's army would be surrounded, once in the vicinity of Warsaw, and again in the great battle near Vilna.

The tale of the taking of great towns grew almost tedious. It seemed the Germans would never stop. Whether they did stop of their own accord or were finally checked by the Russians is not yet clear. They settled down for the winter on a long line stretching from the Baltic just west of Riga southeast along the Dvina river, and then almost due south through Polessie, the Pinsk marsh district, to the Roumanian frontier.

Reawakening of Russia.

On September 8 Czar Nicholas took command of all his armies in the field, sending his cousin, the Grand Duke Nicholas, to the less important command of the Caucasus operations.

With their "Little Father" at their head, the Russians forgot their long, discouraging retreat. Millions of new young soldiers joined them, drawn from Russia's great reservoir of human beings, which produces three and a half million men of military age every year.

On September 10 the Russians won a success near Tarnopol and Trembowla, and two days later they drove the Teutons back 14 miles in Galicia. In other parts of the front the Germans were still seizing large slices of territory, but their enemies were regaining their energy. On September 26 the Russians recaptured Lutsk, but were driven out in a short time. On October 20 they recaptured Czartorysk, but they were not able to prevent the Germans storming Illuxt five days later. Czartorysk was lost and again taken by the czar January 8.

Meanwhile the conquest of Serbia, the greatest tragedy of the war, excepting only the massacre of 800,000 Armenians, was being enacted.

Invasion of Serbia.

The real invasion of Serbia started in the first days of October. A great diplomatic battle had been fought in Sofia, and the allies had lost. On October 7 Bulgaria in an ultimatum to King Peter of Serbia, peremptorily demanded the immediate cession of the Macedonian lands in dispute between the two countries and then in the possession of the Serbs.

After a general bombardment the Teutons crossed the river boundaries of Serbia in many places on October 8. Two days later they occupied Belgrade. On the thirteenth Bulgaria invaded her neighbor at three points.

The successes of the Teutons and the Bulgarians were almost unbroken. The invading forces consisted of a vast amount of heavy artillery, with small infantry supporting forces. They shelled the Serbians out of position after position in an avalanche of steel to which the Serbians could make no reply.

Small forces of French and English landed at Saloniki, a Greek port to which Serbia had certain entry privileges, and did something to cover the retreat of the Serbians by engaging the Bulgarians in the South.

At the beginning of winter, November 22, the Serbian soldiers crossed their western border and struck the trails of the dreary, snow-covered mountains of the coast. Great numbers perished of cold and hunger on the way. On November 29 Germany proudly announced that the Serbian campaign had ended, having met with complete success.

Two Blows to the British.

The winter also saw the humiliation of the British in Mesopotamia. The Indian government recklessly pushed a small, poorly supplied expedition up the Tigris valley and actually penetrated to within seven miles of Bagdad. Here the Turks, with German officers directing them, administered a defeat and the invaders fell back with the enemy harassing them to the town of Kut-el-Amara, where they were besieged December 10.

Another expedition, also insufficient, was sent to relieve the first. It was beaten off with large losses a few miles below Kut, a flood of the river and swamps assisting the Turks, and on April 30 the 12,000 defenders of Kut capitulated by order of the British higher command.

A further British humiliation was the evacuation of Gallipoli peninsula, where the British held on doggedly month after month, losing perhaps 200,000 men, until they were finally withdrawn in confession of failure the first week of January.

These two British fiascos were what was needed to arouse the sluggish fighting blood of John Bull. They finally brought England into the war fully and uncompromisingly, to the same extent as the other great powers.

On August 10 Great Britain started her national register, or census of all men of fighting age. The result showed a vast reserve of man power. Certain sections demanded immediate conscription, but they were not successful. Instead the earl of Derby was commissioned to start a vast recruiting campaign. This produced a number of classes of "attested men," who bound themselves to come into the ranks with their age groups. But there were still hundreds of thousands unreached, and the public began to see that it was discriminating in favor of the "slackers" and the cowards.

On December 21 David Lloyd-George, the minister of munitions and greatest man the war has produced in Great Britain, declared the country faced defeat unless greater efforts were made. A week later he threatened to resign from the cabinet unless conscription was adopted.

Conscription was fiercely fought, but on January 6 a bill introducing it passed its first reading in the house of commons by a large majority. The bill was finally signed by King George May 26.

Allies Get Together.

Their defeats finally taught the allies that their efforts must be co-ordinated, like their enemies', if they were to be effective. A new war council, with all the allies represented, met in Paris December 7 and a kind of international general staff was organised. It is known that General Joseph Joffre, French commander in chief since the beginning of the war, and the hero of the battle of the Marne, was the presiding genius. The effects of the council were not to be seen for several months, but now they are being realized in full measure.

To check a simultaneous allied offensive, which they clearly saw coming, the Teutons decided on two attacks of their own. This follows the well-known axiom of German military strategy that the best defense is an energetic attack.

The first of these offensive defensives was the attack on the French fortress of Verdun, where the works were subjected to a whirlwind of fire beginning February 21.—The gains of the first week were great, and German critics foretold the collapse of the French. Two of the defending forts, Vaux and Douaumont, fell, and important positions were taken west of the Meuse river as well.

But Joffre rallied his men in splendid fashion and sold each yard of ground at an awful cost in German blood. Step by step the crown prince's men pushed forward, but today they are still more than two miles from the ruined fortress town and the resistance of the French is as strong as ever.

Austrian Drive Checked.

The second Teutonic offensive was organized by the Austrians in the Trentino, and they struck in the direction of Vicenza with the object of cutting off the northern end of Italy from the main portion. On May 26, as the result of several days' violent artillery fire followed by infantry rushes, they were able to announce the capture of 24,000 Italians.

General Count Cadorna hurried about a hundred thousand men in motor cars to the scene, while many more arrived on foot or trains. Just when it seemed the Austrians must reach the lowlands the counter-attacks were delivered.

On June 30 Rome announced a splendid victory. In bloody fighting the Austrians, perhaps weakened by drafts to bolster up their Russian front, were driven from peak to peak almost to where their lines had stood throughout the winter.

In March the Russians delivered vast but futile attacks on the German front at many points, probably to distract attention from Verdun. The Germans seemed to have been lulled into security by these efforts, which they probably considered the best the czar could do. But the tens of thousands of Muscovite bodies lining the Germans' barbed wire were but a patter of rain compared with the storm that was brewing behind the Russian lines.

At the beginning of June this storm broke with full force and, following the principle of attacking the weakest point, the Austrians holding the line from the marsh district southward were forced to bear the brunt of it.

Russia's Big Push.

Millions of shells, manufactured largely in British, Japanese and American factories, blasted away wire, trenches, dugouts and observation points. Then the hordes of Siberians, Cossacks and others swept over the field. The Austrians could not withstand the impact and they gave way steadily.

June 6, General Brusiloff announced the capture of 13,000 Austrians; June 8, the number for the three succeeding days alone was 43,000, and the numbers kept mounting until on July 20 General Shoovaieff, Russian minister of war, estimated the number of Austro-Hungarian prisoners at 270,000. The killed and wounded are untold, but the number must be large enough to bring the total loss well over half a million.

German support was rushed to the Austrians, but the foe captured Lutsk and Dubno, and reached the Stokhod and Lipa rivers in Volhynia; overran all Bukowina to the Carpathians and sent patrols of Cossacks into Hungary to ravage the country.

That the czar is anticipating further great gains of territory is seen from Russia's action in mobilizing the males of the island of Saghalien, Turkestan, and one other district to build roads, dig trenches and do other work of organizing the ground won.

Allies' Drive in Somme Region.

Almost a month to a day following the beginning of the great Russian offensive French and British opened their drive in the vicinity of the Somme river. They have gained gradually but steadily, and the official reports assert the losses of the attackers are comparatively small.

It is also the claim of the allies that the Franco-British offensive can be kept up at its present rate indefinitely, and will not have to be slackened for lack of shells, guns or men. The rate of progress is much greater than the Germans' at Verdun, but the country traversed is less difficult. On the other hand, the Verdun assailants have the advantage of attacking from the outside of a curve, while the French and British now attack from inside the salient they have made in the line. Meanwhile the Verdun offensive of the Germans continues.

Outside of Europe the Germans have lost their Cameroon colony on the west coast of Africa, the remaining defenders having crossed into Spanish territory and been interned. The army of East Africa still resists the converging columns of Belgians, French and British but, shut off from re-enforcements, its doom would seem to be sealed.

On April 25 Sir Roger Casement, Irish knight, tried to land from a German warship on the coast of Ireland, but was captured. The next day a revolt in Dublin and other Irish cities broke out and the center of the Irish capital was burned. The revolt was easily quelled, the British announcing resistance had ceased on May 1.

More successful was the revolt of the Arabs, led by the grand shereff, against their Turkish overlords. Mecca, Medina and others towns have been captured and are held still, probably with British assistance.

Doings in the Air.

Recent months have seen a cessation of Zeppelin raids on undefended British and French towns. The cause of this is somewhat of a mystery, as the Germans have claimed important military results from their attacks.

On September 7-8 there were two raids on London, thirty persons being killed and a proportionate number wounded. Fifty-five were killed by Zeppelins in a raid on London October 13.

On January 20 the German dirigibles bombarded Paris, killing 23 and on February 1 Liverpool and other English centers were visited and 59 slain.

On April 2 a Zeppelin killed 28 in England and was destroyed on the British coast as it returned. On March 6 13 were killed.

On April 6 it was announced that the fifth Zeppelin raid in six days on the British coast had been made. The Germans declared that war munition factories and supply depots had been destroyed.

Since then England apparently has been immune from the Zeppelins. This may be due to the large number of dirigibles lost, or to the outcry against the inhumanity of the practices of the Germans which was raised in neutral countries.

One other important moral defeat was sustained by the Germans when they hurried Edith Cavell, a British nurse, to execution, as announced by Brand Whitlock, American minister of Belgium, on October 22.

The greatest naval engagement of history in number of men engaged and number slain was fought June 3 near the Skaggerrak, in the North sea. The result was inconclusive, each side claiming a great victory and the reports varying widely in estimates of losses on the two sides.

If the Germans, as they assert, seriously crippled the British grand fleet, we will probably soon see them come out of Kiel again, to finish their task. At present, however, the British blockade is broken only by the merchant submarine Deutschland, which reached Baltimore July 9.

Kaiser Yields to America.

The year has also been the culmination of the submarine dispute between the United States and Germany, which terminated in the kaiser's capitulating and promising to warn merchantmen before attacking.

A U-boat sank the liner Arabic August 20, two Americans being among the slain. Two more of our nationals died when the Hesperian was torpedoed September 6. On November 10 several Americans died in the torpedoing of the Italian liner Ancona. It is thought two Americans were lost in the sinking of the Persia in the Mediterranean January 2. The crisis was precipitated March 26, when the British channel ferry steamer Sussex was torpedoed without warning. Two hundred and thirty-five persons were killed and several Americans were injured.

This flagrant violation of the rules of war caused President Wilson to press Germany for sweeping assurances, which were given in a note May 6 on condition that the United States force Great Britain to conduct her blockade legally. Mr. Wilson answered he would accept the promise, but without the proviso.

The many times heralded Turco-German invasion of Egypt has not yet materialized and probably never will. On the other hand, the Russian grand duke has added to his laurels by capturing the important inland city of Erzerum February 17, Bitlis March 4 and the seaport of Trebizond April 19.

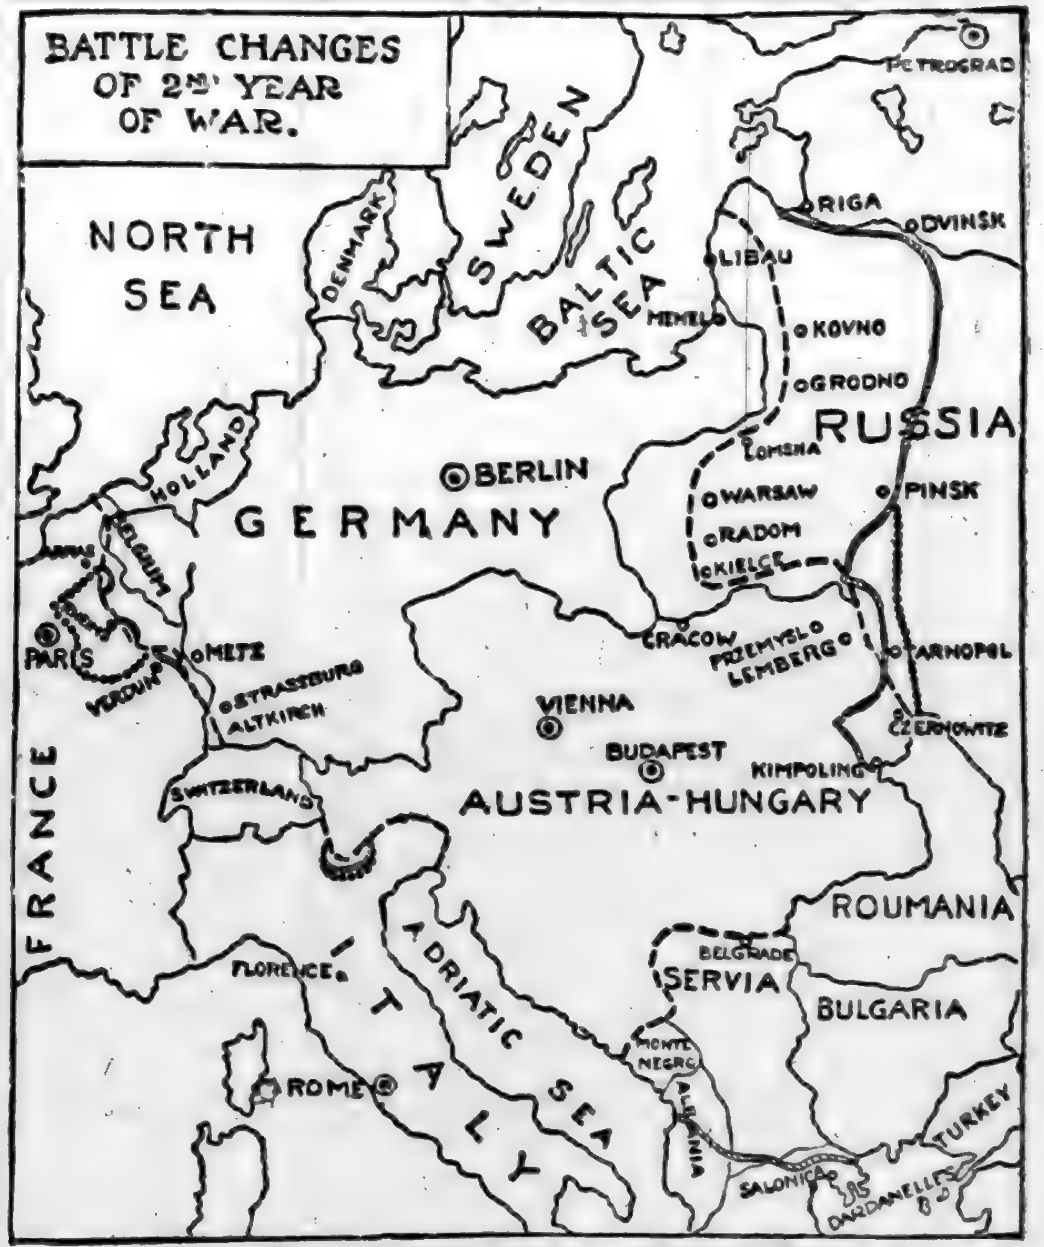
The Turks in counter-attacks pressed back the Russians in Persia, but recently the czar's men have advanced rapidly in the northern part of Asia Minor and the resistance of the Turks seems to have been broken.

Exploits of the Moewe.

Only one German commerce raider not a submarine distinguished itself in the year. The fast Moewe sank many allied ships off the coast of Africa and reached a home port in safety March 6. On February 2 a German prize crew brought the Appam, a British capture, into Hampton Roads, having come all the way across the Atlantic with her. The ownership of this vessel is still in the American courts.

Two more nations have been drawn into the war. The entrance of Bulgaria has been described. On March 10 Germany declared war on Portugal. Portuguese and German troops had clashed in Africa some time before and Portugal had just seized the German ships in her harbors. The actions of the republic were induced by a treaty according to which she promises to come to Great Britain's assistance whenever requested to do so.

The British lost the equivalent of several army corps when Lord Kitchener was drowned June 7 in the sinking of the cruiser Hampshire by a mine while on his way to Russia.



---- LINE AUG. 1, 1915; ━━ PRESENT LINE; ----- FARTHEST TEUTON ADVANCE

CHIEF EVENTS OF WAR'S SECOND YEAR

Aug. 1—Teutons take Lublin.

Aug. 2—Teutons take Cholm; announce 170,000 Russians captured in July.

Aug. 6—Germans capture Warsaw.

Aug. 7—Teutons take Ivangorod.

Aug. 9—Germans take Serock.

Aug. 10—Great Britain starts register of all men.

Aug. 11—Germans take Lomza.

Aug. 12—Allies land 50,000 more men on Gallipoli.

Aug. 14—Germans take Siedice and Sokolow.

Aug. 16—Teutons start Belgrade bombardment.

Aug. 19—Russians lose Kovno. Zeppelins kill ten in London suburbs.

Aug. 20—U-boat sinks liner Arabic, two Americans killed.

Aug. 21—German seize Novogeorgievsk.

Aug. 24—Germans capture Ossowiec.

Aug. 25—Germans take Kovel.

Aug. 27—Brest-Litovsk falls.

Aug. 28—Germans take Olita.

Aug. 29—Teutons cross Zlota Lipa.

Sept. 2—Germany announces 1,100,000 Russians captured since May 1. Lutsk is taken. New York sterling exchange drops to $4.50.

Sept. 3—Russians lose Brody.

Sept. 4—Russians give up Grodno. British slaughtered in attempt to storm Hill 70.

Sept. 6—Hesperian torpedoed, 2 Americans killed. Russians check Teutons on the Dvina and Sereth rivers.

Sept. 8—Czar Nicholas takes command of all the Russian armies in the field.

Sept. 7-8—Two Zeppelin raids on London; 30 killed.

Sept. 10—As Teutons take Dubno, czar wins victory near Tarnopol and Trembowla.

Sept. 12—Russians drive Teutons back 14 miles in Galicia.

Sept. 17—Von Mackensen seizes Pinsk.

Sept. 20—Germans take Vilna.

Sept. 26—Russians recapture Lutsk.

Sept. 27—French in two day battle advance on wide front in Champagne, while British attack south of La Bassee Canal.

Oct. 2—Germans announce 95,000 Russians were captured in September.

Oct. 5—Germans estimate allied loss in futile West front offensive at 190,000 men.

Oct. 7—Bulgaria sends ultimatum to Serbia.

Oct. 8—Teutons begin great invasion of Serbia.

Oct. 10—Teutons occupy Belgrade.

Oct. 13—Bulgaria invades Serbia at three points. Fifty-five killed by Zeppelin raid on London.

Oct. 20—Russian recapture Czartorysk. Serbians lose Vranja.

Oct. 22—Brand Whitlock, U. S. minister to Belgium, reports hurried execution of Edith Cavell, English nurse.

Oct. 25—Bulgarians capture Uskub.

Oct. 25—Germans storm Illuxt.

Oct. 28—Bulgarians and Teutons effect junction in Serbia.

Nov. 2—Austro-Germans take Kragujevac.

Nov. 4—First of German "no meat" days.

Nov. 7—Bulgarians take Nish, Serbian war capital.

Nov. 10—Italian liner Ancona sunk with large loss of life.

Nov. 22—Serbians begin retreat into Montenegro.

Nov. 25—British defeated 18 miles from Bagdad.

Nov. 27—Italians land at Avlona, Albania.

Nov. 29—Germans announce operations against Serbia have ended in complete success.

Dec. 7—New war council with all allies represented meets at Paris.

Dec. 10—German chancellor makes peace bid in reichstag speech.

Dec. 10—Turks begin siege of Kut-el-Amara.

Dec. 16—Sir Douglas Haig assumes command of British in France.

Dec. 20—Ford peace band reaches Christiania with delegates quarreling.

Dec. 21—Lloyd-George declares Britain faces defeat unless greater efforts are made.

Dec. 28—Lloyd-George threatens to resign unless conscription is adopted.

Dec. 31—Italians occupy Durazzo, Albania.

Jan. 2, 1916—Word received liner Persia sunk in Mediterranean; two Americans lost.

Jan. 4—Germans abandon Cameroon colony, West Africa. Russians take Czernowitz.

Jan. 6—Conscription bill passes first reading in house of commons.

Jan. 7—British complete evacuation of Gallipoli.

Jan. 8—Russians take Czartorysk.

Jan. 20—Zeppelins kill 23 in Paris. Germans take two miles of trenches at Peronne.

Feb. 1—Zeppelins raid Liverpool and other British cities; kill 59.

Feb. 2—Germans bring British prize steamer Appam into Hampton Roads.

Feb. 17—Russians capture Erzerum

Feb. 21—German drive at Verdun begins.

Feb. 22—Czar visits Duma for first time in history.

Feb. 24—Germans announce two mile advance at Verdun.

Feb. 27—Germans capture Fort Douaumont, Verdun. Austrians capture Durazzo. Russians take Kermanshah.

Mar. 4—Russians take Bitlis by storm.

Mar. 6—The Moewe, German raider, reaches home port. Zeppelins kill 13 in England.

Mar. 7—Germans take Forges, near Verdun.

Mar. 10—Germany declares war on Portugal.

Mar. 11—Relieving force repulsed seven miles from Kut-el-Amara.

Mar. 25—Channel steamer Sussex destroyed by submarine; 235 killed; several Americans injured.

April 1—Germans capture Malancourt, near Verdun.

April 2—Zeppelin destroyed on British coast after killing 28. Germans take Vaux.

April 6—Germans make fifth Zeppelin raid in six days on British coast.

April 7—Germans capture Haucourt.

April 19—Russians capture Trebizond, on Black sea.

April 21—First Russian contingent disembarks in France.

April 25—Sir Roger Casement, Irish plotter, captured attempting to land in Ireland from submarine.

April 26—Irish revolutionaries seize Dublin.

April 29—British battleship Russell sunk by mine in Mediterranean.

April 30—British in Kut-el-Amara capitulate.

May 1—British announce Irish revolt is quelled.

May 6—Germany in note agrees to modify submarine warfare. Allied warships bring down two Zeppelins.

May 20—Austrians drive into Italy near Lake Garda.

May 21—Austrians announce capture of 13,000 Italians.

May 22—Cossacks from Russian army in Asia Minor join British in Mesopotamia.

May 26—Compulsion bill signed by King George.

May 26—Austrians advance in Italy, taking 24,000 prisoners.

June 1—Russians begin great offensive against Austrians.

June 3—Greatest naval battle in history off Skaggerrak. Both sides claim victory.

June 6—Russians announce capture of 13,000 Austrians.

June 7—Kitchener and staff drown when cruiser Hampshire strikes mine north of Scotland.

June 8—Germans capture Vaux Fort at Verdun. Russians announce capture of 43,000 Austrians in three days.

June 9—Russians take Lutsk. Greece disbands army at command of entente powers.

June 10—Russians have forced back Austrian 26 miles.

June 11—Russians take Buczacz, Galicia.

June 12—Russians take Dubno.

June 13—Italians rally and check Austrian drive.

June 19—Austrians evacuate Czernowitz, Bukowina capital.

June 21—Allies in Paris conference agree on boycott of Germany after the war. German re-enforcements halt Russian drive in Volhynia.

June 24—All Bukowina swept clear of Austrians by Russians.

June 25—Russians seize Kuty 15 miles from Kolomea.

June 26—Russians capture Kimpolung, Bukowina.

June 28—Italians recapture Corsiero and Posina.

June 30—Russians in battle near Kolomea take 10,000 prisoners.

July 1—Anglo-French "big push" on Somme begins.

July 2—British and French continue advance on Somme.

July 5—Russian patrols crowd Carpathians into Hungary.

July 6—French take German second line south of the Somme. Turks drive Russians from Kermanshah, Persia.

July 9—British and French gain in West. Russians advance toward Kovel. German submarine merchantman Deutschland enters Chesapeake Bay.

July 10—Russians advance 15 miles in Volhynia.

July 11—French storm hill one mile from Peronne. Russians reach Stokhod river.

July 12—British capture German trenches on eight-mile front.

July 13—Russians capture Marnakhatum, 50 miles west of Erzerum.

July 15—British announce advance of a mile on four mile front.

July 16—Widespread peace agitation in Germany. Russians take Baiburt, Armenia.

July 17—Russians capture 15,000 men. Force foe over Lipa river in Volhynia.

July 18—Great Britain publishes blacklist of pro-German American firms.

July 19—Russians drive Austrians back into Hungary.

July 20—Allies make big advance on west front. Russians resume offensive before Kovel.

July 21—British reach German third line in Foureaux wood. Russian left wing drives Von Linsingen back 15 miles.

July 22—British cavalry defeated near Suez.

July 23—British patrol squadron routs six German destroyers off Holland coast. British renew great drive in Somme region, entering Pozieres.

July 24—Anzacs and Germans fight fiercely in Pozieres. Russians pierce German front south of Riga and drive Austrians into mountains on Hungary frontier.

July 25—Turkey sends troops to aid Teutons against Russia. Terrific fighting continues on Somme front. British states blacklist was not directed against neutrals.

AUGUST

L 908

0248

The TURMOIL

A NOVEL

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

AUTHOR OF—
"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"
"THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN"
"PENROD" ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1915 BY HARPER & BROTHERS.

SYNOPSIS.

—8—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife.

Bibbs Sheridan, the physical weakling, the "queer one," and Mary Vertrees, the aristocrat, the husband-hunter, get acquainted while hearing organ music. They exchange spiritual messages on the wings of melody. Do you think this acquaintance will awaken in their breasts a mutual recognition of love's first symptoms?

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

"No," he returned, gravely. "I'm not thinking at all; I'm only making vocal sounds. I seem to be the subject of what little meaning they possess, and I'd like to change it, but I don't know how to manage it."

"You needn't change the subject on my account, Mr. Sheridan," she said. "Not even if you really talked about yourself." She turned her face toward him as she spoke, and Bibbs caught his breath; he was pathetically amazed by the look she gave him. It was a glowing look, warmly friendly and understanding, and, what almost shocked him, it was an eagerly interested look. Bibbs was not accustomed to anything like that.

"I—you—I—I'm—" he stammered, and the faint color in his cheeks grew almost vivid.

She was still looking at him, and she saw the strange radiance that came into his face. There was something about him, too, that explained how "queer" many people might think him; but he did not seem "queer" to Mary Vertrees; he seemed the most quaintly natural person she had ever met.

He waited, and became coherent. "You say something now," he said. "I don't even belong in the chorus, and here I am, trying to sing the funny man's solo! You—"

"No," she interrupted. "I'd rather play your accompaniment."

"I'll stop and listen to it, then."

"Perhaps—" she began, but after pausing thoughtfully she made a gesture with her muff, indicating a large brick church which they were approaching. "Do you see that church, Mr. Sheridan?"

"I suppose I could," he answered in simple truthfulness, looking at her. "But I don't want to. I have a feeling it's where you're going, and where I'll be sent back."

She shook her head in cheery negation. "Not unless you want to be. Would you like to come with me?"

"Why—why—yes," he said. "Anywhere!" And again it was apparent that he spoke in simple truthfulness.

"Then come—if you care for organ music. The organist is an old friend of mine, and sometimes he plays for me. He's a dear old man. That's he, waiting in the doorway. He looks like Beethoven, doesn't he? I think he knows that, perhaps, and enjoys it a little. I hope so."

"Yes," said Bibbs, as they reached the church steps. "I think Beethoven would like it, too. It must be pleasant to look like other people."

"I haven't kept you?" Mary said to the organist. "This is Mr. Sheridan, Doctor Kraft. He has come to listen with me."

The organist looked bluntly surprised. "Iss that so?" he exclaimed. "He iss musician himself, of course."

"No," said Bibbs, as the three entered the church together. "I—I played the—I tried to play—" Fortunately he checked himself; he had been about to offer the information that he had failed to master the jews' harp in his boyhood. "No, I'm not a musician," he contented himself with saying.

"What?" Doctor Kraft's surprise increased. "Young man, you are fortunate! I play for Miss Vertrees; she comes always alone. You are the first. You are the first one ever!"

They had reached the head of the central aisle, and as the organist finished speaking Bibbs stopped short, turning to look at Mary Vertrees in a dazed way that was not of her perceiving; for, though she stopped as he did, her gaze followed the organist, who was walking away from them toward the front of the church, shaking his white Beethovian mane roguishly.

"It's false pretenses on my part," Bibbs said. "You mean to be kind to the sick, but I'm not an invalid any more. I'm so well I'm going back to work in a few days. I'd better leave before he begins to play, hadn't I?"

"No," said Mary, beginning to walk forward. "Not unless you don't like great music."

He followed her to a seat about halfway up the aisle while Doctor Kraft ascended to the organ. "This afternoon some Handel!" he turned to shout.

Mary nodded. "Will you like that?" she asked Bibbs.

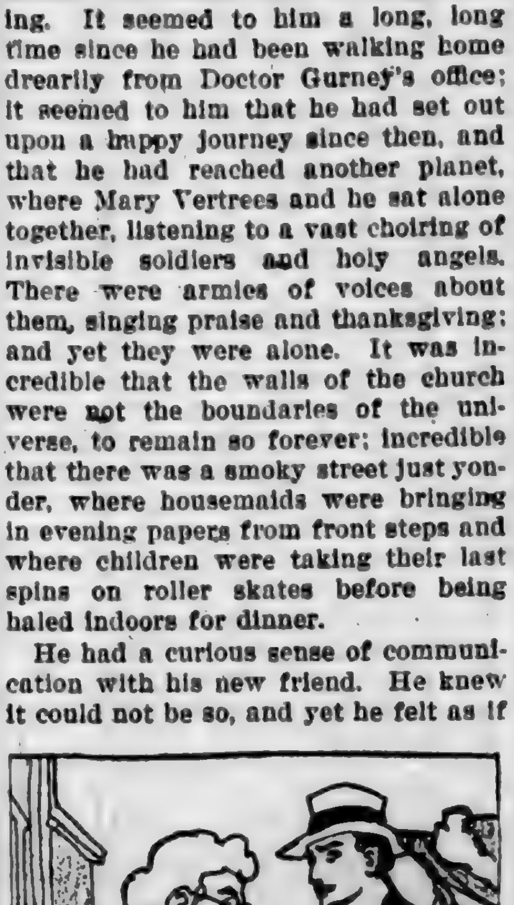
"I don't know. I never heard any except 'Largo.' I don't know anything about music. I don't even know how to pretend I do. If I knew enough to pretend, I would."

"No," said Mary, looking at him and smiling faintly, "you wouldn't."

She turned away as a great sound began to swim and tremble in the air; the huge empty space of the church filled with it, and the two people listening filled with it; the universe seemed to fill and thrill with it. The two sat intensely still, the great sound all round about them, while the church grew dusky, and only the organist's lamp made a tiny star of light. His white head moved from side to side beneath it rhythmically, or lunged and recovered with the fierceness of a duelist thrusting, but he was magnificently the master of his giant, and it sang to his magic as he bade it.

Bibbs was swept away upon that mighty singing. Such a thing was wholly unknown to him; there had been no music in his meager life. Unlike the tale, it was the Princess Bedrulbudour who had brought him to the enchanted cave, and that—for Bibbs—was what made its magic dazing. It seemed to him a long, long time since he had been walking home drearily from Doctor Gurney's office; it seemed to him that he had set out upon a happy journey since then, and that he had reached another planet, where Mary Vertrees and he sat alone together, listening to a vast choiring of invisible soldiers and holy angels. There were armies of voices about them, singing praise and thanksgiving; and yet they were alone. It was incredible that the walls of the church were not the boundaries of the universe, to remain so forever; incredible that there was a smoky street just yonder, where housemaids were bringing in evening papers from front steps and where children were taking their last spins on roller skates before being haled indoors for dinner.

He had a curious sense of communication with his new friend. He knew it could not be so, and yet he felt as if all the time he spoke to her, saying: "You hear this strain? You hear that strain? You know the dream that these sounds bring to me?" And it seemed to him as though she answered continually: "I hear! I hear that strain, and I hear the new one that you are hearing now. I know the dream that these sounds bring to you. Yes, yes, I hear it all! We hear—together!"



"Young Man, You Are Fortunate."

And though the church grew so dim that all was mysterious shadow except the vague planes of the windows and the organist's light, with the white head moving beneath it, Bibbs had no consciousness that the girl sitting beside him had grown shadowy; he seemed to see her as plainly as ever in the darkness, though he did not look at her. And all the mighty chanting of the organ's multitudinous voices that afternoon seemed to Bibbs to be chorusing of her and interpreting her, singing her thoughts and singing for him the world of humble gratitude that was in his heart because she was so kind to him. It all meant Mary.

But when she asked him what it meant, on their homeward way, he was silent. They had come a few paces from the church without speaking, walking slowly.

"I'll tell you what it meant to me," she said, as he did not immediately reply. "Almost any music of Handel's always means one thing above all others to me: Courage! That's it. It makes cowardice or whining seem so infinitesimal—it makes most things in our hustling little lives seem infinitesimal."

"Yes," he said. "It seems odd, doesn't it, that people downtown are hurrying to trains and hanging to straps in trolley cars, weltering every way to get home and feed and sleep so they can get downtown tomorrow. And yet there isn't anything down there worth getting to. They're like servants drudging to keep the house going, and believing the drudgery itself is the great thing. They make so much noise and fuss and dirt they forget that the house was meant to live in. The housework has to be done, but the people who do it have been so overpaid that they're confused and worship the housework. They're overpaid, and yet, poor things! they haven't anything that a chicken can't have. Of course, when the world gets to paying its wages sensibly that will be different."

"Do you mean 'communism'?" she asked, and she made their slow pace a little slower—they had only three blocks to go.

"Whatever the word is, I only mean that things don't look very sensible now—especially to a man that wants to keep out of 'em and can't! 'Communism?' Well, at least any 'decent sport' would say it's fair for all the strong runners to start from the same mark and give the weak ones a fair distance ahead, so that all can run something like even on the stretch. And wouldn't it be pleasant, really, if they could all cross the winning line together? Who really enjoys beating anybody—if he sees the beaten man's face? The only way we can enjoy getting ahead of other people nowadays is by forgetting what the other people feel. And that," he added, "is nothing of what the music meant to me. You see, if I keep talking about what it didn't mean I can keep from telling you what it did mean."

"Didn't it mean courage to you, too—a little?" she asked. "Triumph and praise were in it, and somehow those things mean courage to me."

"Yes, they were all there," Bibbs said. "I don't know the name of what he played, but I shouldn't think it would matter much. The man that makes the music must leave it to you and what it can mean to you, and the name he puts to it can't make much difference—except to himself and people very much like him, I suppose."

"I suppose that's true, though I'd never thought of it like that."

"I imagine music must make feelings and paint pictures in the minds of the people who hear it," Bibbs went on, musingly, "according to their own natures as much as according to the music itself."

The musician might compose something and play it, wanting you to think of the Holy Grail, and some people who heard it would think of a prayer meeting, and some would think of how good they were themselves, and a boy might think of himself at the head of a solemn procession, carrying a banner and riding a white horse. And then, if these were some jubilant passages in the music, he'd think of a circus."

They had reached her gate, and she set her hand upon it, but did not open it. Bibbs felt that this was almost the kindest of her kindnesses—not to be prompt in leaving him.

"After all," she said, "you didn't tell me whether you liked it."

"No. I didn't need to."

"No, that's true, and I didn't need to ask. I knew. But you said you were trying to keep from telling me what it did mean."

"I can't keep from telling it any longer," he said. "The music meant to me—it meant the kindness of—of you."

"Kindness? How?"

"You thought I was a sort of lonely tramp—and sick—"

"No," she said, decidedly. "I thought perhaps you'd like to hear Doctor Kraft play. And you did."

"It's curious; sometimes it seemed to me that it was you who were playing."

Mary laughed. "It's a strum! Piano. A little Chopin—Grieg—Chaminade. You wouldn't listen!"

Bibbs drew a deep breath. "I'm frightened again," he said, in an unsteady voice. "I'm afraid you'll think I'm pushing, but—" He paused, and the words sank to a murmur.

"Oh, if you want me to play for you!" she said. "Yes, gladly. It will be merely absurd after what you heard this afternoon. I play like a hundred thousand other girls, and I like it. I'm glad when anyone's willing to listen, and if you—" She stopped, checked by a sudden recollection, and laughed ruefully. "But my piano won't be here after tonight. I—I'm sending it away tomorrow. I'm afraid that if you'd like me to play to you you'd have to come this evening."

"You'll let me?" he cried.

"Certainly, if you care to."

"If I could play—" he said, wistfully, "if I could play like that old man in the church I could thank you."

"Ah, but you haven't heard me play. I know you liked this afternoon, but—"

"Yes," said Bibbs. "It was the greatest happiness I've ever known."

It was too dark to see his face, but his voice held such plain honesty, and he spoke with such complete unconsciousness of saying anything especially significant, that she knew it was the truth. For a moment she was nonplused, then she opened the gate and went in. "You'll come after dinner, then?"

"Yes," he said, not moving. "Would you mind if I stood here until time to come in?"

She had reached the steps, and at that she turned, offering him the response of laughter and a gay gesture of her muff toward the lighted windows of the new house, as though bidding him to run home to his dinner.

That night, Bibbs sat writing in his notebook:

Music can come into a blank life and fill it. Everything that is beautiful is music, if you can listen.

There is no gracefulness like that of a graceful woman at a grand piano. There is a swimming loveliness of line that seems to merge with the running of the sound, and you seem, as you watch her, to see that you are hearing and to hear what you are seeing.

There are women who make you think of pine woods coming down to a sparkling sea. The air about such a woman is bracing, and when she is near you, you feel strong and ambitious; you forget that the world doesn't like you. You think that perhaps you are a great fellow, after all. Then you come away and feel like a boy who has fallen in love with his Sunday school teacher. You'll be whipped for it—and ought to be.

There are women who make you think of Diana, crowned with the moon. But they do not have the "Greek profile." I do not believe Helen of Troy had a "Greek profile;" they would not have fought about her if her nose had been quite that long. The Greek nose is not the adorable nose. The adorable nose is about an eighth of an inch shorter.

Much of the music of Wagner, it appears, is not suitable to the piano. Wagner was a composer who could interpret into music such things as the primitive impulses of humanity—he could have made a machine shop into music. But not if he had to work in it. Wagner was always dealing in immensities—a machine shop would have put a majestic lump in so grand a gizzard as that.

There is a mystery about pianos, it seems. Sometimes they have to be "sent away." That is how some people speak of the penitentiary. "Sent away" is a euphuism for "sent to prison." But pianos are not sent to prison, and they are not sent to the tuner—the tuner is sent to them. Why are pianos "sent away"—and where?

Sometimes a glorious day shines into the most ordinary and useless life. Happiness and beauty come cajoling out of the air into the gloomy house of that life as if some stray angel just happened to perch on the roof-tree, resting and singing. And the night after such a day is lustrous and splendid with the memory of it. Music and beauty and kindness—those are the three greatest things God can give us. To bring them all in one day to one who expected nothing—ah! the heart that received them should be as humble as it is thankful. But it is hard to be humble when one is so rich with new memories. It is impossible to be humble after a day of glory.

Yes—the adorable nose is more than an eighth of an inch shorter than the Greek nose. It is a full quarter of an inch shorter.

There are women who will be kinder to a sick tramp than to a conquering hero. But the sick tramp had better remember that's what he is. Take care, take care! Humble's the word!

CHAPTER XV.

That "mystery about pianos" which troubled Bibbs had been a mystery to Mr. Vertrees, and it was being explained to him at about the time Bibbs scribbled the reference to it in his notes. Mary had gone upstairs upon Bibbs' departure at ten o'clock, and Mr. and Mrs. Vertrees sat until after midnight in the library talking.

"She needn't to have done that about her piano," vapored Mr. Vertrees. "We could have managed somehow without it. At least she ought to have consulted me, and if she insisted I could have arranged the details with the—the dealer."

"She thought that it might, be—annoying for you," Mrs. Vertrees explained. "Really, she planned for you not to know about it until they had removed—until after tomorrow, that is, but I decided to—to mention it. You see, she didn't even tell me about it until this morning. She has another idea, too, I'm afraid. It's—it's—"

"Well?" he urged, as she found it difficult to go on.

"Her other idea is—that is, it was—I think it can be avoided, of course—it was about her furs."

"No!" he exclaimed, quickly. "I won't have it! You must see to that. I'd rather not talk to her about it, but you mustn't let her."

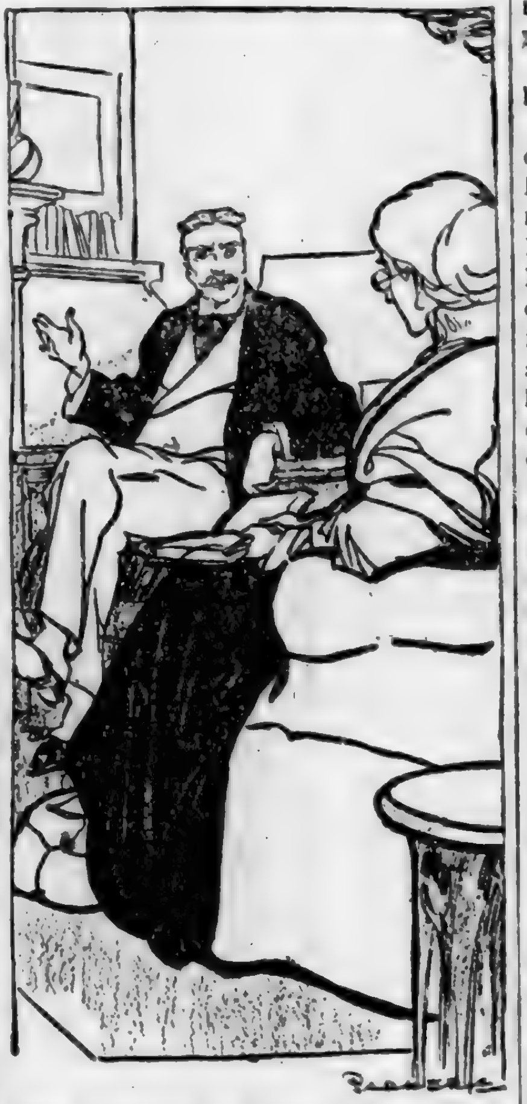
"I'll try not," his wife promised. "She seems to be troubled about the—the coal matter and—about Tilly. Of course the piano will take care of some things like those for a while and—"

"I don't like it. I gave her the piano to play on, not to—"

"You mustn't be distressed about it in one way," she said, comfortingly. "She arranged with the—with the purchaser that the man will come for it about half after five in the afternoon. The days are so short now it's really quite winter."

"Oh, yes," he agreed, moodily. "So far as that goes I don't suppose our neighbors are paying much attention just now, though I hear Sheridan was back in his office early the morning after the funeral."

Mrs. Vertrees made a little sound of commiseration. "I don't believe that was because he wasn't suffering, though. Mary told me he seemed wrapped up in his son's succeeding. He isn't vulgar in his boasting, I understand; he doesn't talk a great deal about his—his actual money. No, his bragging usually seemed to be about his family and the greatness of this city."



"She Needn't to Have Done That About the Piano."

"'Greatness of this city'!" Mr. Vertrees echoed, with dull bitterness. "It's nothing but a coal hole. Of course Sheridan says it's 'great.'"

Mrs. Vertrees seemed unaware of this outburst. "I believe," she began, timidly, "he doesn't boast of—that is, I understand he has never seemed so interested in the—the other one."

Her husband's face was dark, but at that a heavier shadow fell upon it; he looked more haggard than before. "'The other one,'" he repeated, averting his eyes. "You mean—you mean the third son—the one that was here this evening?"

"Yes, the—the youngest," she returned, her voice so feeble it was almost a whisper.

And then neither of them spoke for several minutes. Nor did either look at the other during that silence.

At last Mr. Vertrees contrived to cough, but not convincingly. "What—ah—what was it Mary said about him this afternoon? I didn't ah—happen to catch it."

"She—she didn't say much. All she said was this: 'He's the most wistful creature I've ever known.'"

"Well?"

"That was all. He is wistful-looking; and so fragile. If I hadn't known about him I'd have thought he had quite an interesting face."

"If you 'hadn't known about him'? Known what?"

"Oh, nothing, of course," she said, hurriedly. "Nothing definite, that is. Mary said decidedly, long ago, that he's not at all insane, as we thought at first. It's only—well, of course it is odd, their attitude about him. I suppose it's some nervous trouble that makes him—perhaps a little queer at times, so that he can't apply himself to anything—or perhaps does odd things. But, after all, of course, we only have an impression about it. We don't know—that is, positively. I—" She paused, then went on: "I didn't know just how to ask—that is—I didn't mention it to Mary. I didn't—I—" The poor lady floundered pitifully, concluding with a mumble. "So soon after—after the—the shock."

"I don't think I've caught more than a glimpse of him," said Mr. Vertrees. "I wouldn't know him if I saw him, but your impression of him is—" He broke off suddenly, springing to his feet in agitation. "I can't imagine her—oh no!" he gasped. And he began to pace the floor. "A half-witted epileptic!"

"No, no!" she cried. "He may be all right. We—"

"Oh, it's horrible! I can't—" He threw himself back into his chair again, sweeping his hands across his face, then letting them fall limply at his sides.

Mrs. Vertrees was tremulous. "You mustn't give way so," she said, inspired for once almost to direct discourse. "Whatever Mary might think of doing, it wouldn't be on her own account; it would be on ours. But if we should—should consider it, that wouldn't be on our own account. It isn't because we think of ourselves."

"Oh God, no!" he groaned. "Not for us! We can go to the poorhouse, but Mary can't be a stenographer!"

Sighing, Mrs. Vertrees resumed her obliqueness. "Of course," she murmured, "it all seems very premature, speculating about such things, but I had a queer sort of feeling that she seemed quite interested in this—" She had almost said "in this one," but checked herself. "In this young man. It's natural, of course; she is always so strong and well, and he is—he seems to be, that is—rather appealing to the—the sympathies."

"Yes!" he agreed, bitterly. "Precisely. The sympathies!"

"Perhaps," she faltered—"perhaps you might feel easier if I could have a little talk with someone?"

"With whom?"

"I had thought of—not going about it too brusquely, of course, but perhaps just waiting for his name to be mentioned, if I happened to be talking with somebody that knew the family—and then I might find a chance to say that I was sorry to hear he'd been ill so much, and— Something of that kind perhaps?"

"You don't know anybody that knows the family."

"Yes. That is—well, in a way, of course, one of the family. That Mrs. Roscoe Sheridan is not a—that is, she's rather a pleasant-faced little woman, I think, and of course rather ordinary. I think she is interested about—that is, of course, she'd be anxious to be more intimate with Mary, naturally. She's always looking over here from her house; she was looking out of the window this afternoon when Mary went out, I noticed—though I don't think Mary saw her. I'm sure she wouldn't think it out of place to—to be frank about matters. She called the other day, and Mary must rather like her—she said that evening that the call had done her good. Don't you think it might be wise?"

"Wise? I don't know. I feel that the whole matter is impossible."

"Yes, so do I," she returned, promptly. "It isn't really a thing we should be considering seriously, of course. Still—"

"I should say not! But possibly—"

Thus they skirmished up and down the field, but before they turned the lights out and went upstairs it was thoroughly understood between them that Mrs. Vertrees should seek the earliest opportunity to obtain definite information from Sibyl Sheridan concerning the mental and physical status of Bibbs. And if he were subject to attacks of lunacy, the unhappy pair decided to prevent the sacrifice they supposed their daughter intended to make of herself. Altogether, if there were spiteful ghosts in the old house that night, eavesdropping upon the woeful comedy, they must have died anew of laughter!

CHAPTER XVI.

Mrs. Vertrees' opportunity occurred the very next afternoon. Darkness had fallen, the piano movers had come. They had carried the piano down the front steps, and Mrs. Vertrees was standing in the open doorway behind them, preparing to withdraw, when she heard a sharp exclamation; and Mrs. Roscoe Sheridan, bareheaded, emerged from the shadow into the light of the doorway.

"Good gracious!" she cried. "It did give me a fright!"

"It's Mrs. Sheridan, isn't it?" Mrs. Vertrees was perplexed by this informal appearance, but she reflected that it might be proverbial. "Won't you come in?"

"No. Oh no, thank you!" Sibyl panted, pressing her hand to her side. "You don't know what a fright you've given me! And it was nothing but your piano!" She laughed shrilly. "I just glanced out of the window, a minute or so ago, and saw your door wide open and black figures of men against the light, carrying something heavy. And I thought I'd seen your daughter start for a drive with Bibbs Sheridan in a car about three o'clock—and—They aren't back yet, are they?"

"No. Good heavens!"

"And the only thing I could think of was that something must have happened to them, and I just dashed over—and it was only your piano!" She broke into laughter again. "I suppose you're just sending it somewhere to be repaired, aren't you?"

"It's—it's being taken downtown," said Mrs. Vertrees. "Won't you come in? Id really—"

"Thank you, but I must be running back. My husband usually gets home about this time, and I make a little point of it always to be there."

"That's very sweet." Mrs. Vertrees descended the steps and walked toward the street with Sibyl.

"I'm afraid Miss Vertrees will miss her piano," said Sibyl, watching the instrument disappear into the big van at the curb. "She plays wonderfully, Mrs. Kittersby tells me."

"Yes, she plays very well. Mr. Sheridan came last evening to hear her play because she had arranged with the—that is, it was to be removed this afternoon. He seems almost well again."

"Yes." Sibyl nodded. "His father's going to try to start him to work."

"He seems very delicate," said Mrs. Vertrees. "I shouldn't think he would be able to stand a great deal, either physically or—" She paused and then added, glowing with the sense of her own adroitness—"or mentally."

"Oh, mentally Bibbs is all right," said Sibyl, in an odd voice.

"But has he always been?" The question came with anxious eagerness.

"Certainly. He had a long siege of nervous dyspepsia, but he's over it."

"And you think—"

"Bibbs is all right. You needn't wor—" Sibyl choked, and pressed her handkerchief to her mouth. "Good night, Mrs. Vertrees," she said, hurriedly.

Will Sybil help along the match between Bibbs and Mary in order to link up the Sheridan family with the aristocrats? Or will she set about to poison Old Man Sheridan's mind against the girl?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Bananas can be ripened in a room kept at 110 degrees.

AUGUST

L 908

0249

Gasoline 19c at Patterson's Garage,
ST. JOE, INDIANA

NOTICE OF DITCH LETTING.

Notice is hereby given, That the Trustee of Spencer Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, will at the Spencerville High School building, on the 12th day of August, 1916, at 2:00 o'clock p. m., receive bids for the improvement by cleaning and repairing the following ditches, including ditch banks:

Geo. Wade, No. 281.
E. L. Dilley, No. 383.
Franklin P. Hart, No. 434.
James B. Gibford, No. 710.
George Geddes, No. 890.

If ditches are not all sold on the above date, the sale will continue at my office from day to day until all are sold.

Plans and specifications are on file in my office showing the number of cubic yards of excavation, where excavation is necessary and the work to be performed in making such repairs, by sections of one hundred feet.

The successful bidder shall, within 5 days, be required to enter into a contract and give bond with two freehold sureties in a sum not less than double the amount of the contract so awarded.

Percy A. Walker,
Trustee.

—Mrs. H. D. Provines and son, James, of Duncan, Oklahoma, came Saturday night for several weeks visit with the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hamilton, and other relatives.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons. Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching 10:00 a. m., Communion.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching Services, 7:30 p. m.

Our last Quarterly Conference for this conference year will be held at Concord on Saturday afternoon. We would like for every official member to be present, that we may close in a satisfactory way the work for this year and plan wisely for the work of next.

Christian Church Announcements.
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Preaching services, 10:30 a. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

Former Citizen Dies.

The many friends of Mrs. Fred Johnson who resided in Seattle, Washington, will be pained to know that she passed away on the 18th of July. News of her death was received by her brothers and sisters last Friday. Mrs. Johnson was very badly injured by being struck by a street car early last spring and while she had so far recovered as to be taken home from the hospital, a concussion of the brain had developed an abscess which caused her death. She was 69 years of age. A strange coincidence happened in her death in that it occurred just five days after her sister, Mrs. James Johnson, died here, the husbands being brothers. It is also remarkable that these two deaths were the first in a family of eight children, the oldest, Martin Tustison, being past 70 and the youngest, Emma Tustison, being past 50.

St. Joe Locals

Miss Ella Rahe of Ft. Wayne, left Friday noon for a visit with friends at Sherwood after being the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. L. Dunkle, and family for some days.

O. J. Burnier and family of Auburn and ye editor and family, spent Saturday and Sunday at Island park. The trip was a most enjoyable one as a vacation is seldom known in the News office and then two days is just an agravation. The extremely hot weather makes business pretty good at the lakes, everything is full of visitors and fishing is quite good. Mr. and Mrs. Will Thomas of Auburn, offered us the use of their cottage and we certainly appreciate their kindness. The Island is building up quite rapidly and the accommodations afforded the public is superb.

The National Tractor Forming Demonstration will be held July 31-August 4, at Kinloch Park, St. Louis County, located on the St. Louis Railway, and three miles from the city limits. Fifty-one manufacturers of farm tractors have entered as well as twenty makers of power-operated plows, and more than thirty accessories houses. Two thousand acres of land is under contract to be plowed, harrowed, pulverized and made ready for seeding. Demonstrations of road making every day. Two demonstrations daily, 9:30 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. Private demonstrations morning and afternoon. Convenient train service from Union Station and foot of Olive Street, via Wabash Railway, and frequent street cars, will take visitors direct to the grounds. Refined entertainment will be provided during the week. No admission charge.

BEATING THE HESSIAN FLY

At this time, when the fight on the Hessian Fly is becoming so widespread, and every implement of warfare is being used, any word or method of control is eagerly sought. To the "pestered" wheat growers nothing is more acceptable than news of the success of other practical farmers, and because of this the experience of Mr. P. I. Simons of Calhoun county, Michigan, is worthy of note. It is not a one year's test, but observations from three crops that the conclusion is based upon.

As Mr. Simons tells it: "The wheat field was severely attacked by the Hessian fly, and the average yield that year was 3 to 5 bushels per acre. Right across the fence from my wheat field was another on the same kind of ground that had been prepared in practically the same way.

"The difference was that I used 200 pounds of fertilizer per acre. The application was made with a fertilizer attachment to the grain drill at the time of sowing. At four different places across the field strips were untreated and the entire field was seeded to clover.

"Up to June 10th the fly had not attacked my fertilized wheat, but had attacked the unfertilized wheat in the same field to such an extent that the drill rows where no fertilizer was used appeared as wagon roads across the field. At this time the field across the fence from mine had practically been destroyed, yielding only 8 bushels per acre. My wheat threshed out 21 bushels per acre. The fertilizer that year meant an increase of at least 15 bushels per acre to me.

"Now, when it came to the seeding where no fertilizer was applied I failed to get a clover stand, while on the fertilized portion of the field I had the best clover in the neighborhood."

It should not be taken that fertilizer will kill the fly. It isn't an insecticide, but it fulfills its mission when the increased health and vigor of the plants results, and thus the fly turns to the weaker, sicklier plants to carry on the destruction. Sowing late will help avoid the fall brood, but no recourse other than having good strong healthy plants can be turned to so that the spring brood will not have the chance of profit-taking.

HALF THE BATTLE BEFORE PLANTING.

With wheat as with many other crops, the proper treatment of the seedbed and the supplying of plant-food to carry along the crop with a good start and a steady growth, may be considered half the battle. As wheat is not cultivated after seeding, whatever cultivation is necessary must be done before the seed is put into the ground.

In Society

The W. C. T. U. met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Ada Bassett. In spite of the hot day eleven members were present, also Mrs. Elma Brown, Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick and two children were guests. The topic was "Mothers and White Ribbon Recruits," Mrs. Mary Buchanan led the devotional exercises. Miss Pearl Shurts read a leaflet, "Alcohol Injures Children," and Mrs. Alice Warner read "How He Learned," both were very interesting. Another good leaflet was read by Mrs. Retta Hathaway, "A Tactful Mother." A round table discussion was led by Mrs. Lillian Buckingham on "Training Children in Temperance and Truthfullness in the Home," many good things were brought out in this discussion. Several songs interspereed the afternoon's program. Light refreshments were served.

Alyce is a seven and one-half pound baby daughter born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caw at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss, Saturday afternoon.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mrs. Sherm Anstett, little daughter, Alice, and Mrs. L. Kelsey spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dunkle. Master Earl Kelsey returned with them after visiting with his cousin, Miss Rhea Dunkle, since Sunday,

LOCAL NEWS

Ralph Sechler was at Angola over Sunday.

Harry Smith of Auburn came Monday to be the guest of S. S. Widney.

Sam Keesler and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coburn.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gee were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee.

Mrs. Kate Leighty and grandson, Carl Leighty, of Kansas City, are at Clear Lake this week.

For the benefit of our customers through the busy harvest, we will keep open evening.

St. Joe Mills.

Mrs. Melvina Alton of Elwood, Nebraska, and Mrs. Walter Abel were Friday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel.

The Shannon's tent show is at St. Joe all this week located in the Chas. Koch lot. This is their first appearance in St. Joe.

Last Saturday evening was a great evening for ice cream socials, St. Joe, Spencerville, Concord, and Rehobeth were all holding festivals.

Roy Gibford and family of Wayne, spent a few days last week with D. W. Baker and family north of Concord, returning home Monday evening.

C. T. Bayman and two daughters left Saturday evening on B. & O. train No. 6, for Troy, Ohio, where the girls expect to stay for a two weeks visit with his parents. Mr. Bayman made a trip to Eaton, Ohio, on business also.

The band concerts each evening this week gives new life to St. Joe. The Shannon show is here and the boys are a fine bunch of players. The equipment is nice and new and the people are ladies and gentlemen. The show is reported as being the best of its kind ever showing in St. Joe.

John Knight lost one of his work horses Sunday morning, due to the extreme hot weather. Horses and hands and other laborers have suffered severely. The thermometer registers on an average of 98 degrees in The News office, no wonder we can't work.

Mr. Smalley Tells of Wonderful Cure.

A. Smalley, a prosperous farmer living six miles south-east of Antwerp, Ohio, says: "I was troubled with glandular inactivity for some time. My liver and kidneys had ceased to act until I was nearly as yellow as the yolk of an egg. My appetite was poor. What I did eat did not seem to digest. I lost flesh and was hardly able to drag around. When I begun to use Glando I soon got better. In eight weeks I had gained in flesh until I weighed as much as I ever weighed. My complexion cleared, and I feel as good as I ever did in my life." Mr. Smalley is a man fifty-three years old. He is only one of the many who have received wonderful help by using Glando. Glando starts glandular activity and throws the poison out of the system. Poisons retained in the body will in time break down the strongest constitution and destroy health. Don't let your glands shirk, keep them active and save your health.

Glando can be secured at drug stores or of the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. For Sale by All Druggists.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA
Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office, ... No. 2

Office at Residence, Second House west of Widney Opera House.

FEEDERS
Stop, Look and Listen
✻ ✻
Place orders now for your Bran and Middlings, we have a car on the way.
Come in when in town, you are always welcome, and we are glad to greet you at
St. JOE ELEVATOR
SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

AUGUST 1st, 1916
ends 3 years of our existance as a State Bank. Our last published statement shows that our deposits have increased during that time nearly 60 per cent., and we are now well above the $100,000 mark in assetts. We owe it to our friends in this community who appreciate handy Bank facilities. The same careful and conservative management will be exercised in the future to safeguard your interests as in the past. To those who wish to begin Banking, we welcome your deposits, small and large. Begin now.
St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank
4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000
The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906
4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.
Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

WANTED!
YOUR POULTRY
For which we will pay the highest market price.
Call us and we will call and get them.
J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

JOT IT DOWN
That we do the very best line of Commercial Printing and at reasonable prices. Give us your next order and let us prove our assertion.
Bear in mind, we want your business, and we propose making ourselves deserving. Are you with us?
THANK YOU

Yes, We Do
Job Work
You will find our prices satisfactory
Come in

Legal Blanks for Sale at This Office

AUGUST

L 908

0250

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY AUG. 10 1916 NO. 33

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

WANTED–To buy your Hay. C. E. Frye, Phone 73-31, St. Joe.

Wealthy and Maiden Blush Apples for cooking at Bear Creek orchard.

Miss Doris Thompson returned to her home in Kendallville after spending two weeks in the M. E Leighty family.

The Misses Margurite Leighty, Dorothy Bowman and Pauline Barney, formed the trio, which motored to Paulding, Friday, to participate in the piano recital held there by Miss Cory, of Auburn, Ind.

Thursday evening about 7:30, the fire bell made the second call for the week of help. Quite a good sized crowd was on the streets and the threatening storm caused a little excitement. The mind blew some limbs against the electric light wires near the Jacob Sechler house, and cause a blaze and through excitement the fire alarm was given and everyone was more excited, as the wind was blowing at a teriffic rate. The show and business houses were all without lights for the evening.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	91	$3.27
M. P	75	2 54
Christian	57	1.98
Concord	104
Fairview	30	.65
M. E. Spencer	80	3.62
Lutheran	90	3 06
U. B.	97	2.92

D. J. Baker, of Wayne, visited his daughter, Mrs Frank Bowman and family, Monday.

Ray Reasoner, wife and son spent Sunday with his parents, Charles Reasoner and wife.

Get one of our Stock Dr. Books. Free for the asking.
ST. JOE MILLS.

The Misses I[illegible]a and Dorothy Scholes are making their sister Mrs. Henry Dehner and family, a two weeks visit near Monroeville.

Mrs. W. E. Ingalls and daughter Wilma, of Portland, Oregon, spent from Wednesday until Saturday the guests of William Randall and wife.

A. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and Levi Mumma, of Detroit, Mich., accompanied the latter's parents here Sunday evening while Rev. Mumma filled his appointment at the Lutheran Church.

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

Mrs. M. E Leighty entertained the Coburntown Aid, Thursday afternoon, Aug. 3, and although it was warm there was a good crowd and a very enjoyable time was had. Light refreshments consisted of ice cream and cake, after which they voted their thanks to their hostess for the royal way in which she entertained them. The following guests were present:-Mesdames Reed Place and daughter Gladys, Kell Hart, Emma Hart, Clyde Hart and daughter, Fred Hart, Reuben Detrick, Walter Abel, Wilmot Coburn and daughter Delpha Dell Coburn, Danny Burley, W. Beaber, Delia Dermott, Matie Gee, Will Maxwell and son Gordon, Ross Abel, Chas. Tustison, Earl Tustison and daughter Irma, Dell Nelson and daughter Opal, Mr. and Mrs. Waltz, Miss Bertha Platter, and Mrs. Wm. Cheek and William Wendel. Other guests ware:-Mesdames Laura Willard, of Iowa; Cyrus Alton, of Michigan; B. C. Thompson and little son, of Kendallville, Ind.; and Ruby Coburn, of Michigan.

FORD

The Universal Car

New Prices August 1, 1916

The following prices for Ford cars will be effective on and after August 1st., 1916

Chassis	$325.00
Runabout	345.00
Touring Car	360.00
Coupelet	505.00
Town Car	595.00
Sedan	645.00

f. o. b. Detroit

These prices are positively guaranteed against any reduction before August 1st., 1917, but there is no guarantee against an advance in price at any time.

JOHN LANTZ, Agent
LEO, INDIANA

Where Open-Minded People and Tight-Minded People Differ

By EVERETT DEAN MARTIN

There are just two kinds of people in the world, open-minded people and tight-minded people. Open-minded people are naturally born generous. They are tolerant. They are not easily scandalized. They do their own thinking, and they let others do the same. They are not afraid of names or party labels, and when it comes to a final test, they think more of a living human being than they do of an abstract idea. Their ideas are not like little hard wads of truth, but are streams of life, free and flowing. Somehow, open-minded people have a way of feeling that life is bigger and more reliable than our little human notions, and so they are not worried for fear the world is going to the dogs every time the spiritual atmosphere changes.

But tight-minded people do not feel quite at home in this universe. They go through life all cramped up and shivering, so to speak. They are afraid of everything strange. New ideas shock them. Naked truths embarrass them. They are such strangers to the great realities of life that they never recognize them walking around in new millinery. Tight-minded people are a little suspicious of progress; they always take their intellectual silverware to bed with them. They are afraid to trust reality in the dark. They also want to keep everything in this universe tied up in neat little bundles and stored away in bandboxes. They are very "old-maidish" in their methods of mental housekeeping, never having given birth to any new ideas whose play upsets the perfect orderliness of their minds. Tight-minded people are like cooky cutters. They throw away all of life that does not come within their own little circle, and yet they call the frightful wastefulness "conservatism." Tight-mindedness is a kind of spiritual convulsion. It is a disease.

J. L. Rhodenbaugh and family spent last Sunday at Rome City the guests of relatives.

Ed Leighty and wife, Lloyd Draggoo and wife, and James Draggoo were Sunday guests of Sam Openlanders' at Sherwood.

The pickle industry is opening up in fine shape, having opened up last week to receive them. Frank Tustison has brought in the largest amount thus far.

If you have trouble getting good butter, try "Moxleys Special" a butter substitute. Cheaper and better than butter. Price 23c. per pound, at BASSETTS' on Widney Ave.

Mrs. Isaiah Davis returned to her daughter, Mrs. M. E. Leighty, after an absence of three months spent with her daughter, Mrs. Neal Platter, of Cecil Ohio.

The Coburntown Sunday School are planning for a picnic to be held on September 2.

Frank Shaffer and family Sundayed with Mrs. Shaffer's mother, Mrs. Mary Allwine, at Benton, Ind.

Will Curie, wife and son Paul, went to Hamilton Lake, Tuesday, for a two weeks outing. Lester arrived home Tuesday evening from Tulsa, Okla., and will visit them at the lake.

Frank J. Lothamer, wife and family, his sister, and Mr. and Mrs. Ella Rousey and family, of Monroeville, were Sunday guests of Morris Lothamer and family, east of St. Joe,

A Synopsis of the Federal Farm Loan Act, passed by the House of Representatives and Senate on June 27-28—Turmoil, the latest serial—Important news of the world—War photographs–Fashions etc., will be found in this issue. All good live features.

The Lutheran Sunday Schools of this place and Spencerville had an enjoyable time in the Erick Grove, last Thursday. Games, races, swimming and other sports were features for the young folks. At the noon hour a big basket dinner was spread for everyone, and it was an outing long to be remembered. A good attendance was had.

$10.00 Fine.

For persons committing misdemeanors in Riverside Cemetery. The Association has taken great pride in keeping up Riverside cemetery and making it a nice clean spot, affording a pleasant place to go. The tool house is being marked up by persons writing their names on the white cement blocks. You can see who they are by making a trip there and you will be surprised too. Ice cream parties are being held on the lawn, and the boxes and papers are left scattered on the lawn. Benches are moved about at the pleasure of the visitors and then left for the sexton to replace. Young folks are climbing on monuments and damaging them. All such conduct is prohibited and a fine of $10 will be imposed upon all offenders. Your co-operation in enforcing these rules will be appreciated, and offenders should be reported to the Trustees. We welcome everyone to the cemetery but we cannot allow such conduct to continue as has been in the past.

Riverside Cemetery Assn.

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c.

Mrs. Charles Bishop and children, of Garrett, came Saturday for a visit with relatives.

Smith Bailey was at Auburn from Wednesday visiting with friends until Monday.

Sam Crawford and wife, of Ft. Wayne, were guests of B. F. Terman and wife, Monday.

Miss Ruth Perry is home for a month's vacation from her school work at the Business College at Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. Jennie Abel spent Friday afternoon and Saturday, the guest of her son, Glen and wife, at Spencerville.

William Hamilton returned home Thursday from a ten days visit with his brother, John Hamilton and wife, at Butler.

For the benefit of our customers through the busy harvest, we will keep open evening.
St. Joe Mills.

Miss Agnes Sechler came home the last of the week from her school work at Angola to visit over Sunday with her parents.

Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick very pleasantly entertained the Martha Society, Thursday, all day, at her pleasant country home. Those who were in attendance report a splendid time.

Rev. Byrnes, of Chicago, Ill., a blind preacher, spoke morning and evening, at the Christian Church, Sunday. His sermons were printed on heavy paper and he read them with the finger-tips.

Boys and Girls bring us your paper sacks. For good clean sacks we will pay 1c. for 25 lb. sacks, and 2c. for 50lb. sacks.
ST. JOE MILLS.

The Shannon Show is located at Edgerton, this week. They are as nice, clean and orderly bunch of show people as ever visited St. Joe, and their equipment surpasses anything. The class of performance was superb. The attendance was small, due possible to the extremely busy season with the farmers.

Born to John Dove and wife, a daughter, Saturday.

Bert Bowman was home over Sunday from Chicago

Clarence Zonker spent Sunday and Monday in Corunna

Rolland Bearss and wife were Ft. Wayne shoppers, Friday afternoon.

Notice to the Members of the W. C. T. U.—A way will be provided for all members of the local organization who wish to go to Newville Temperance Day and hear Mrs. Culla J. Vayhinger speak afternoon and evening, Wednesday Aug 16, meet at the J. P. Buckingham residence at 12:30 promptly.

NOTICE OF DITCH LETTING.

Notice is hereby given, That the Trustee of Spencer Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, will at the Spencerville High School building, on the 12th day of August, 1916, at 2:00 o'clock p. m., receive bids for the improvement by cleaning and repairing the following ditches, including ditch banks:

Geo. Wade, No. 281.
E. L. Dilley, No. 383.
Franklin P. Hart, No. 434.
James B. Gibford, No. 710.
George Geddes, No. 890.

If ditches are not all sold on the above date, the sale will continue at my office from day to day until all are sold.

Plans and specifications are on file in my office showing the number of cubic yards of excavation, where excavation is necessary and the work to be performed in making such repairs, by sections of one hundred feet.

The successful bidder shall, within 5 days, be required to enter into a contract and give bond with two freehold sureties in a sum not less than double the amount of the contract so awarded.

Percy A. Walker,
Trustee.

Farmers—See This Big Field

WORTH SEEING Demonstration EVERYBODY WELCOME

$725 Mogul 8-16 $725
Kerosene-Burning Tractor

See the Grand Prize Tractor at
The C. CURIE Farm
Just South of St. Joe, at 2:00 o'clock, on SATURDAY, AUGUST 19th.
In Field Just East of Barn

THERE are many good reasons why you should see this tractor in actual operation. The Mogul 8-16 is an all-the-year-'round, all-purpose tractor. Farmers in all sections of the country are now using it. Why? Because it does all kinds of work. It does the plain harrowing, disking, and drilling. During harvest and haying it pulls binders, mowers, a hay loader, etc. It does the hauling, drags the road, in fact, nearly everything that horses are used for.

So far, we have only told you the half. There is also the belt work—grinding feed, pumping water, threshing, filling the silo, shelling and shredding corn, etc. It does all these and more too.

Be sure to see the Mogul 8-16, the successful kerosene-burning tractor. This feature will cut your fuel bills nearly in half. Find out how simple the Mogul 8-16 is, how easy to operate; see the big points that have already sold thousands.

Wm. CURIE,
Implement Dealer
St. Joe, - - - - Indiana.

AUGUST

L 908

0251

WESTERN CANADA

Co-Operative Creameries Show Tremendous Increase in Butter Production.

The Dairy Commissioner, at first annual convention of Saskatchewan Dairymen's association, reviewed progress of 1915 which shows a great increase in the butter production of the co-operative creameries amounting to 1,500,000 lbs. He also said the improvement in quality is shown by the preference accorded Saskatchewan butter in outside markets. Shipments out of the province for the year totaled 52 carloads.

According to bulletin just issued by the Manitoba department of agriculture, the dairy industry had a very successful year in 1915. There was an increase of over 1,000,000 lbs. of creamery butter produced, as against the previous year, about 260,000 lbs. increase in dairy butter and over 25,000 lbs. increase in the cheese output. The increase of the total value of milk and milk products was over $427,000. The production of dairy butter for Manitoba during the year was 4,150,444 lbs. and it brought an average price of 23c per lb.; of creamery butter 5,839,667 lbs. were produced which commanded 29c per lb. on the average; cheese production was 720,725 lbs. which sold at an average price of 15c—the total value of these three products is given as 32,760,698, in addition to which the milk produced is valued at $925,659 and the cream at $158,827, the average price of the milk being reckoned at 2.1c per lb. and of sweet cream at 32c per lb. butter-fat. In connection with the dairy industry it is interesting to note that almost the most important fodder crop now is corn, of which the 1915 production amounted to 190,132 tons. The biggest cultivated fodder crop is timothy which for last season produced 193,357 tons and the next most popular crop was brome grass with 45,815 tons; of alfalfa and clover there were produced some 38,000 tons. The number of cattle in the province is given as 631,005, which is an increase of 130,000 over the previous year.

The fact that the Red Deer, Alberta, cheese factory is handling four times as much milk this season as last winter shows the growing improvement in the dairy industry. On Feb. 14, it was announced the factory had just shipped two tons of cheese for Calgary market.

Cardston, Alberta, creamery in 1915 paid its patrons a rate of 27½c per lb. for butter fat and had a profit remaining over all expenses of $5,584. The creamery during season distributed among farmers $61,117 and manufactured 256,000 lbs. butter and 13,000 lbs cheese. Average price realized for butter was 28¼ cents.

The development of the dairy industry of Northern Alberta is well indicated by the growth of a prominent dairy business here, which in 1915 produced 2,525,000 lbs. butter, an increase of 400,000 lbs. over the previous year. This product has found a market in all parts of Canada and this year will enter the export trade. Advertisement.

The Rassano dam, in Alberta, Canada, one of the greatest irrigation works in the world, has been completed.

RED, ROUGH, SORE HANDS

May Be Soothed and Healed by Use of Cuticura. Trial Free.

Nothing so soothing and healing for red, rough and irritated hands as Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Soak hands on retiring in hot Cuticura soapsuds. Dry, and gently anoint hands with Cuticura Ointment. A one-night treatment works wonders.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Uncle Pennywise Says:

The auto business must be a grand one, with everybuddy saving up to buy a machine.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE FINEST KIDNEY REMEDY IN THE COUNTRY

I have been handling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for two years and over and my customers are always satisfied with the results obtained from its use. I know of a case of Liver trouble where Swamp-Root proved very beneficial. I believe it is one of the finest kidney remedies in the country.

Very truly yours,
H. H. BROWN,
Druggist,
Pinnacle, N. C.

November 12th, 1915.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Fliers.

"Do you ever take a flyer in the market?"

"No," replied the munitions speculator. "Nothing doing with airships. I'm for submarines."

Every woman's pride, beautiful, clear white clothes. Use Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers. Adv.

It takes more than a visit from his wife's mother to make a man happy.

Never meddle with a hornet or a man who is minding his own business.

The Federal Farm Loan Act

Synopsis of Its Salient Features Prepared by H. M. Hanson, Secretary-Treasurer Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association of America

FEDERAL FARM LOAN ACT

Passed by the House of Representatives and the United States Senate June 27 and 28, 1916, Respectively.

Signed by the President July 17, 1916.

8.—Provides for a federal land bank system in the continental United States (exclusive of Alaska), dividing the country into twelve land bank districts composed of whole states.

3.—The system is operated as a bureau of the United states treasury department and supervised by the federal farm loan board. The secretary of the treasury is ex-officio chairman of the board with four other members appointed by the president for eight years at an annual salary of $10,000. One member is designated farm loan commissioner and is the active executive officer.

3—Appointees of Board: (a) Farm loan registrar for each land bank district and

(b) One or more land appraisers for each land bank district. Salaries paid by federal land bank or joint stock land bank for which they act.

(c) Land bank examiners; salaries paid by the United States.

(d) Attorneys, experts, assistants and other employees to be paid by the United States.

17.—Powers of the Board: (a) To organize and charter federal land banks, joint stock land banks and national farm loan associations.

(b) To review and alter the rate of interest to be charged by federal land banks for loans.

(c) To approve or reject any or all loans for bond issue and to grant or refuse any specific issue of farm loan bonds of federal land banks and joint stock land banks.

(d) To regulate charges for appraisal, examining titles and recording.

(e) To appraise land securing mortgages for bond issue.

(f) To exercise general supervisory authority over the federal land banks, farm loan associations and joint stock land banks.

30.—The farm loan commissioner shall examine the laws of every state and if on examination the laws of any state are shown to afford insufficient protection to holders, its mortgages shall be declared ineligible under this act during the continuance of the laws in question.

32.—The secretary of the treasury is authorized to deposit United States funds in federal land banks at current government rates of interest, the aggregate of such funds not to exceed $6,000,000 at any one time.

FEDERAL FARM LOAN BANKS

ORGANIZATION.

Section 4.—One in each land bank district. Branches permitted within its district. Officers: President, vice president, secretary and treasurer; directors; six representatives of farm loan associations and three representing the public interest. Attorneys, assistants, experts and other employees. All salaries fixed by farm loan board and paid by bank. Subject to semiannual examinations by land bank examiner.

CAPITAL STOCK.

Sec. 5.—$750,000. May be owned by individuals, firms, corporations and the United States and state governments.

Sec. 5.—Shares, $5 each.

Sec. 5.—All stock remaining unsubscribed 30 days after subscription books are opened shall be subscribed by the United States and thereafter only the United States government and borrowers may acquire shares of stock.

Sec. 5.—United States government not to participate in dividends. All other stockholders share dividends equally.

Sec. 5.—The original capital stock shall be gradually retired after the stock held by farm loan associations shall amount to $750,000.

Sec. 5.—Not less than 5 per cent of capital shall be invested in United States government bonds.

POWERS.

Sec. 13.—To buy first farm mortgages within its district and to issue and sell farm loan bonds.

Sec. 13.—To receive from farm loan associations interest and amortization payments on mortgages and farm loan bonds.

Sec. 13.—To acquire and dispose of real and personal property necessary for the convenient transaction of business; and land taken in satisfaction of debts or purchased under judgments, decrees or mortgages held by it. Shall not hold title exceeding five years.

Sec. 13.—To accept deposits of securities or current funds from member associations but pay no interest thereon.

Sec. 13.—To borrow money on, security and pay interest thereon.

Sec. 13.—To buy and sell United States bonds.

Sec. 13.—To appraise lands for bond issue and to charge applicants and borrowers the cost of land appraisal, examining titles, recording and other legal fees, said fees to be paid in cash or be made part of loan and paid in amortization payments.

Sec. 14.—To accept mortgages only from farm loan associations and approved agents.

Sec. 14.—To accept deposits of current funds only from its stockholders.

Sec. 6.—To become financial agents of United States government and depository of public money. Public deposits cannot be invested in mortgages or farm loan bonds.

Sec. 13.—To deposit its securities and current funds subject to check with any member bank of the federal reserve system and to receive interest thereon.

BONDS.

Sec. 20.—Issued in series of $50,000 or more, in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000.

Sec. 20.—May bear a maximum rate of 5 per cent interest per annum.

Sec. 19.—Mortgages and United States government bonds equal in amount to the farm loan bonds issued are retained as collateral security by the land bank registrar.

Sec. 14.—The outstanding farm loan bonds shall not exceed 20 times the capital and surplus.

Sec. 21.—Shall be guaranteed by bank of issue and all other federal land banks.

Sec. 17.—No issue is authorized without the approval of the farm loan board.

Sec. 22.—Substitution of mortgages and United States government bonds held as collateral to farm loan bonds is permitted.

TAXATION.

Sec. 26.—The capital stock, surplus, mortgages and farm loan bonds and all income derived therefrom are exempt from federal, state, municipal and local taxation.

Sec. 26.—Real property taken and held under the provisions of sections 11 and 13 is not tax exempt.

AGENTS.

Sec. 15.—Incorporated banks, trust companies, mortgage companies or chartered savings institutions may act as agents for federal land banks if no farm loan association has been formed in a given locality after one year.

Sec. 15.—Borrowers securing loans through agents are required to subscribe 5 per cent of the loan to the capital of the federal land bank.

Sec. 15.—Agents are entitled to a commission of one-half of 1 per cent per annum on unpaid principal of each loan they negotiate and the bank shall pay agent for actual expenses for appraising, land, examining titles, executing and recording the mortgage papers which shall be added to the face of the loan.

Sec. 15.—Agents shall indorse and become liable for the payment of the loans they negotiate and the aggregate unpaid principal of such loans shall not exceed ten times the agent's capital and surplus.

Sec. 15.—Agents are required to make good any default within 30 days after notice.

Sec. 15.—All collections made shall be remitted without charge.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 22.—Amortization and other payments constitute a trust fund to be invested as follows:

(a) To pay off maturing farm loan bond issues.

(b) To purchase farm loan bonds.

(c) To lend on first farm mortgages within the district.

(d) To buy United States government bonds.

Sec. 23.—Reserve and dividends: No limit is placed on dividend distributions after a reserve account has been built up from earnings equal to 20 per cent of the capital stock and after 5 per cent of the net earnings annually thereafter are added to the reserve account.

Sec. 23.—Reserve funds to be invested as prescribed by the federal farm loan board.

Sec. 27.—Farm loan bonds are lawful investments for fiduciary and trust funds and security for all public deposits.

Sec. 27.—Federal reserve bank may buy and sell farm loan bonds.

Sec. 29.—Provision is made for dissolution and the appointment of a receiver.

Sec. 14.—No commission or charge not specifically authorized in this act shall be demanded or received.

NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

ORGANIZATION.

Section 7.—Ten farm owners desiring loans aggregating $20,000 or more may form such an association.

Sec. 7.—Its affairs are administered by five directors, including president, vice president and a loan committee of three serving without compensation, and by a secretary treasurer with salary fixed by the farm loan board and paid by the association.

CAPITAL STOCK.

Sec. 8.—Shares, $5 each; (9) carrying double liability; (8) may be owned only by borrowers who are required to subscribe 5 per cent of their loan to the capital stock of the association which in turn subscribes an equal amount of stock in the federal land bank.

Sec. 8.—Shares are paid for in cash or (9) the amount may be added to the face of the loan and retired in amortization payments at par. In such case the face of the loan shall not exceed the 50 per cent and 20 per cent limitation.

Sec. 7.—Assessment on shares may be levied for operating expenses if funds are not otherwise available.

POWERS.

Sec. 10.—To appraise land for mortgage through its loan committee of three.

Sec. 11.—To indorse and become liable for the mortgages of its shareholders.

Sec. 11.—To receive and deliver the proceeds of loans to borrowers.

Sec. 11.—To acquire and dispose of property necessary for the convenient transaction of its business.

Sec. 11.—To issue certificates of deposit for not longer than one year and to pay 4 per cent interest thereon, convertible into farm loan bonds at the federal land bank of its district.

Sec. 7.—To receive and transmit to the federal land bank payments of interest and principal and amortization payments.

LOANS.

Sec. 12.—Loans shall be secured by first mortgages on land within its land bank district.

Section 12.—To run from 5 to 40 years with amortization and with additional optional prepayments after five years.

Sec. 12.—Interest on loans shall not exceed 6 per cent per annum on the unpaid principal.

Sec. 12.—Borrowers shall pay 8 per cent simple interest on defaulted payments.

Sec. 12.—Loans may be made for the following purposes and for no other under penalty:

(a) To purchase land for agricultural purposes.

(b) To purchase equipment, fertilizer and live stock for the operation of the mortgaged farm.

(c) To provide buildings and for the improvement of farm lands.

(d) To pay debts existing at time of organization of the first national farm loan association within the county.

Sec. 12.—Maximum loan $10,000; minimum loan $100.

Sec. 12.—No loan shall exceed 50 per cent of the value of the land mortgaged and 20 per cent of the permanent insured improvements.

Sec. 12.—No loans shall be made to any person who is not at the time or shortly to become engaged in the cultivation of the farm mortgaged.

Note.—All applications for loans originate with the national farm loan associations or agents and all loans are made and closed by the federal land banks. This does not apply to joint stock land banks.

TAXATION.

Sec. 26.—Same as applies to federal land banks.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 9.—Associations may retain as commission one-eighth of 1 per cent semiannually from interest payments on the unpaid principal of loans.

Sec. 9.—Associations may borrow from federal land banks at 6 per cent annual interest up to one-fourth of its total stockholdings in said bank.

Sec. 24.—Reserves and dividends: No limit is placed on dividend distributions after the reserve account, built up from net earnings equals 20 per cent of the capital stock and after 2 per cent of the net earnings annually thereafter are added to the reserve account.

Sec. 25.—Defaults must be made good within 30 days after notice.

Sec. 29.—Provision is made for dissolution and the appointment of a receiver.

JOINT STOCK LAND BANKS

ORGANIZATION.

Section 16.—A private corporation subject to the requirements under this act which may be formed by ten or more persons with a board of directors of five or more.

Sec. 16.—May operate within the state in which its principal office is located and within some one contiguous state.

Sec. 28.—Subject to semiannual examinations by the federal land bank examiner.

CAPITAL STOCK.

Sec. 16.—$250,000 minimum.

Sec. 16.—Double liability of shareholders.

Sec. 16.—The United States government shall own none of the shares of stock.

Sec. 16.—No farm loan bonds can be issued until the capital stock is fully paid, although the bank may begin business when one-half of the capital is subscribed and paid in cash.

POWERS.

Sec. 16.—To lend money on farm mortgage security.

Sec. 16.—To issue and sell farm loan bonds.

Sec. 16.—To issue farm loan bonds up to 15 times the amount of its capital and surplus.

Sec. 16.—Except as otherwise provided it has the powers of and is subject to the restrictions imposed on federal land banks.

PRIVILEGES.

Sec. 16.—May lend more than $10,000 to any one borrower, but not beyond 50 per cent of the value of the land and 20 per cent of the permanent insured improvements.

Sec. 16.—Loans are not restricted to the purposes prescribed for national farm loan associations.

Sec. 16.—Loans may be made to farm owners regardless of whether engaged in cultivation of the land mortgaged or not.

Sec. 16.—Interest on loans shall not exceed more than 1 per cent, the interest rate established for its last series of bonds, nor more than 6 per cent in any case.

Sec. 16.—Commissions or other charges not specifically authorized by this act shall not be demanded or received.

BONDS.

Sec. 20.—Issued in series of $50,000 or more, in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1,000.

Sec. 20.—May bear maximum rate of 5 per cent interest per annum.

Sec. 16.—Bonds shall be so engraved as to be readily distinguishable from federal land bank bonds.

Sec. 19. — Mortgages and United States government bonds equal in amount to the farm loan bonds issued are retained as collateral security by the land bank registrar.

Sec. 17.—No issue is authorized without the approval of the farm loan board.

Sec. 27.—Federal reserve banks are authorized to buy and sell the bonds of joint stock land banks.

Sec. 22.—Substitution of mortgages and United States government bonds held as collateral to farm loan bonds is permitted.

Sec. 27.—Its bonds are lawful investments for fiduciary and trust funds and security for all public deposits.

TAXATION.

Sec. 26.—The capital stock, surplus and earnings are subject to the taxing powers of the state.

Sec. 26.—Its mortgages executed under this act and its farm loan bonds and all income derived therefrom are exempt from federal, state and municipal and local taxation.

Sec. 26.—Real property taken and held under the provisions of sections 11 and 13 is not tax exempt.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS.

Sec. 6.—Joint stock land banks are made public depositories and financial agents of the United States government.

Sec. 6.—Public deposits cannot be invested in farm mortgages or in farm loan bonds.

Sec. 16.—Rates of interest for loans under 6 per cent are not subject to review or alteration by the farm loan board.

Sec. 13.—Shall receive no deposits except public deposits.

Sec. 22.—Amortization and other payments constitute a trust fund to be invested as follows:

(a) To pay off its maturing farm loan bonds.

(b) To purchase farm loan bonds.

(c) To lend on first mortgages within its prescribed field.

(d) To purchase United States government bonds.

Sec. 23.—Reserve and dividends provided for as in the case of federal land banks.

Sec. 29.—Provision is made for dissolution and the appointment of a receiver.

THIS DEALER HAD REAL TACT

Stout and Thin Customers Use Special Mirrors in Wearing Apparel Establishment.

A dealer in wearing apparel, noticing that his stout customers and his very thin customers often were sensitive as to their figures, installed two full length mirrors of special design, says Popular Mechanics magazine. One was slightly concave and the other slightly convex. When a stout customer tried on a suit she was led to the concave mirror for self-inspection, and was able to see her figure as it would appear with its measurements reduced. When a thin person came in to try on clothes she was taken to the convex mirror, where the opposite effect was produced.

Only Moistened His Lips.

Omer Scudder, a Columbus real estate and insurance agent, told some of the other business men who have offices in the Bassett building that he was hot. They agreed that they were just as hot as he was.

"I can eat all the ice cream you fellows are willing to buy," Scudder declared.

The others made up 60 cents and sent out for a half gallon of cream. They had a notion that Scudder would eat about a quart after which they would divide the remaining quart among themselves. Scudder surrounded the entire half gallon of ice cream, smacked his lips and asked them whether they were not going to get him enough ice cream for a real taste. The business men looked at each other, smiled sickly and returned to their places of business. — Indianapolis News.

The Three Philosophers.

For the first time in their lives three genuine, simon-pure philosophers went out riding in a motor car. After they had ridden about twenty miles out in the country the car broke down. Said the first philosopher: "I have long wanted to study certain aspects of nature, and this affords me the particular prospect I most admire." Said the second philosopher: "I observe there is a farmhouse over there where food can doubtless be obtained in sufficient quantities." Said the third philosopher: "I have long wanted to be in a situation where, without moving, sustenance would be brought to me by one friend, while the other discoursed on the beauties of nature."—Life.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas. — "After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly do my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's step-sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get your medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any form of female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence the treatment without delay.

Revenge.

"I've been calling this number for five minutes," said the irate subscriber.

"What number?"

"I'm so irritated I'm almost tempted not to satisfy your feminine curiosity."

Always proud to show white clothes. Red Cross Ball Blue does make them white. All grocers. Adv.

"Magnet Bill."

He doesn't look like a very important part of a big automobile organization this stooped, grizzled man, but the president of a great motor car company says that "Magnet Bill" saves his salary a dozen times over every day he works. Rain or shine, summer or winter, "Magnet Bill" may be seen walking slowly about the automobile plant, his eyes on the ground. "Magnet Bill" gets his nickname from the fact that his tools consist solely of one tin bucket and a big steel magnet strapped to the end of a shovel handle. It is his duty to save automobile tires by removing from the roadway every nail and bit of metal that might cause a puncture. Thousands of cars are run over the roadway to the testing place and it is figured that without the precaution taken by "Magnet Bill" the cost for cut and punctured tires would be $20,000 every year.—Popular Science Monthly and World's Advance.

A Wise Provision.

A good story is being told, apropos of preparedness, on a clever labor orator who lately spoke in Baltimore. In a speech made in another city he absentmindedly put his finger in his mouth and in an outburst of energetic eloquence inadvertently bit it. Later on, exigencies more or less common to suffering humanity caused him to part with the offending teeth and replace them with a good brand of artificial ones. But the rememberance of the former still rankled, and when he began his preparations to speak in Baltimore he removed the teeth carefully, and putting them on the table beside him, looked at the audience and quietly remarked: "Safety first."

As the acorn grows to be the mighty oak, so children when rightly nourished, grow to be sturdy men and women.

Good flavor and the essential nourishing elements for mental and physical development of children are found in the famous food —

Grape-Nuts

Made of whole wheat and malted barley, this pure food supplies all the nutriment of the grains in a most easily digested form.

It does the heart good to see little folks enjoy Grape-Nuts and cream.

"There's a Reason"

Sold by Grocers.

AUGUST

L 908

0252

Going It Too Hard

We are inclined nowadays to "go it too hard;" to overwork, worry, eat and drink too much, and to neglect our rest and sleep. This fills the blood with uric acid. The kidneys weaken and then it's a siege of backache, dizzy, nervous spells, rheumatic pains and distressing urinary disorders. Don't wait for worse troubles. Strengthen the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

An Ohio Case

Oscar Fagan, Pendleton, St., Columbus Grove, O., says: "My back ached constantly, keeping me from sleeping. I had awful headaches and dizzy spells and my kidneys were irregular in action. During one attack I was confined to bed and the doctor was unable to relieve me. Someone suggested Doan's Kidney Pills and they restored me to good health. I gained in weight and was rid of all the ailments."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S

ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co, for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

MAKE BIG GUNS OBSOLETE

Western Inventor Devises an Aerial Torpedo That Gives Promise of Effectiveness.

What may eventually prove to be a highly effective war implement, and, if so, possibly render present heavy artillery obsolete for long-range operations, is a self-controlled aerial torpedo that has lately been developed in Colorado. It is described in the August number of Popular Mechanics Magazine. In a general way, the instrument attempts to accomplish over land what the United States navy's new wireless torpedo does at sea. Its principle and method of operation, of course, are entirely different. As is to be inferred, it consists of a small aircraft—much like an ordinary biplane—carrying a large, high-explosive torpedo which it is designed to drop at any predetermined spot within a certain radius. The projectile, which is about twelve feet in length, forms the body of the machine and is divided into two compartments. The propeller is mounted at the front end of it, while the shaft extends through the entire torpedo to the rear compartment, where an 18-horsepower motor is housed. The speed and course of the machine are regulated by means of a gyroscopic mechanism, while a timing device of some sort releases the engine containing missile at the proper instant for it to strike its target.

Some of the finest tapestry ever woven in Japan is to be seen in the peace palace of The Hague.

Sometimes it is easy, and sometimes it is impossible to raise money on a bond of sympathy.

Porto Rico has just had the most profitable tourist season it has ever experienced.

A girl likes to listen to soft nothings—when they mean something.

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE

NEW HOME

NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME

Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts.

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS

Kill All Flies! They Spread Disease

Placed anywhere, Daisy Fly Killer attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, and cheap.

Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Ask for

Daisy Fly Killer

Sold by dealers, or 6 sent by express, prepaid, $1.00.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 DeKalb Ave. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mail Us Your

KODAK

Films for Finishing

We pay return postage.

M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

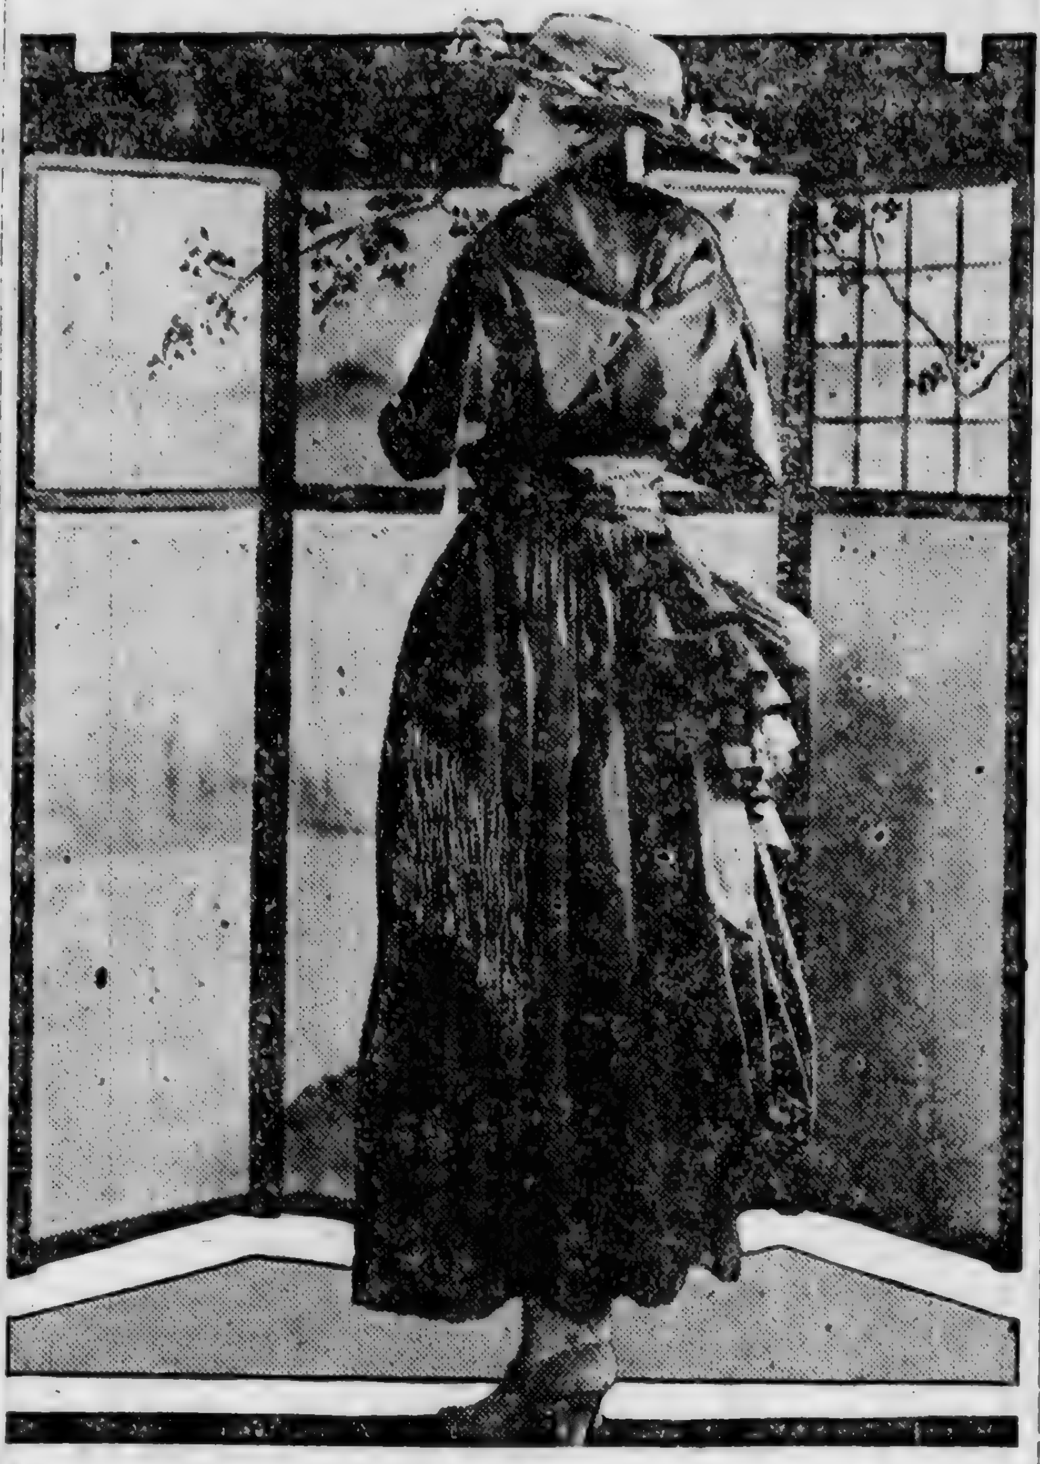
PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D.C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

GALLSTONES

Avoid operations. Positive Liver & Stomach remedy (No Oil)—Results sure; home remedy. Write today. Gallstone Remedy Co., Dept. W-1, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



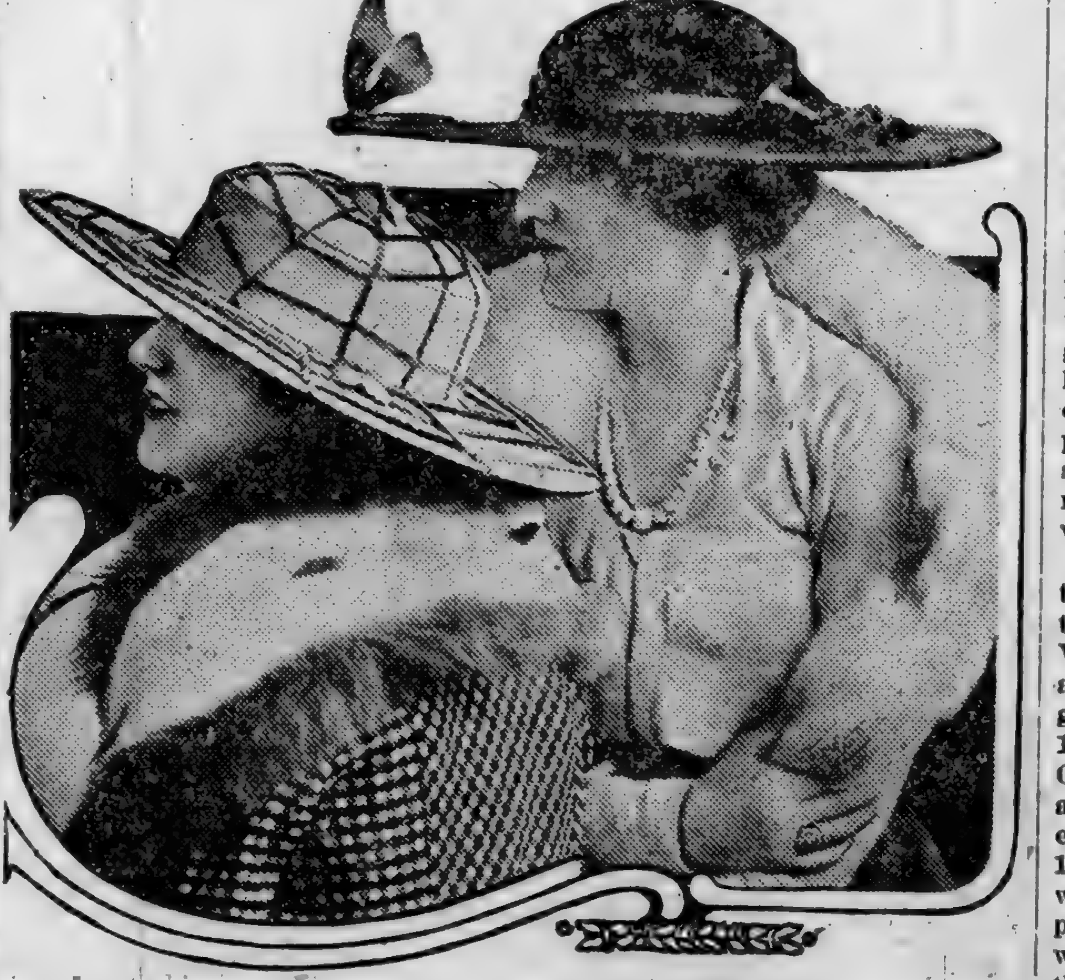
Afternoon Frock of Taffeta

One might believe that everything that can be done has been done so far as taffeta afternoon gowns are concerned. They have had a tremendous vogue and it is only by oddities in drapery or coloring or cut that any newcomer among them can hope for a second glance. But designers are resourceful and they have seen to it that their last models in taffeta embody clever new touches to compel us to admire and envy their originality.

The gown pictured above manages to confine its fullness at the waist by means of narrow plaits laid close together. At the right of the back a cascade drapery is placed made of plaited silk, over a long hanging loop of a width of it. The wide girdle, ornamented with a broad stripe of embroidery, is finished with a deep fringe on the bias end. This hangs at the left, balancing the drapery at the right. The skeleton waist of silk is worn over an underbodice and sleeves of crepe. The cape collar is of crepe also.

A pretty onepiece of taffeta is made in one piece with the full blouse and straight skirt shirred over a narrow band at the waistline. It fastens at the front with three buttoned straps above the waistline and two below. The sleeves are cut in the regular fashion and widen toward the band, where they are shirred over a band, forming a hanging puff at the elbow.

Deep saddlebag pockets are shirred to the skirt at each side. Long rows of small silk-covered buttons are set on the side seams of the skirt at the center of the pockets. They outline the collar, which opens in a "V" at the front and flares outward at the sides and back. It is made of the taffeta. These small buttons are set in the bodice, in close rows, where the sleeves are let in. The bottom of the skirt is trimmed with a band covered with shirred silk.



Late Summer Hats and Summer Furs

Late summer hats hold a premonition of fall and winter, for they are of felt and velvet materials, which belong to cold weather headwear. Fashion is done with straw hats and anticipates the coming of a new season in those newly arrived sports hats of bright, gay-colored felts and in the picturesque black velvet dress hats which we have learned to expect in August, when they are not due until October. But these are really to be classed as between-seasons millinery, and with the incoming of cold weather their day is done, for they are destined to be replaced by the more formal dress hats of midwinter.

Soft and bright-colored felts for sports and street wear, especially those made in what are known as "sweater" colors, seem destined for a long-lived popularity. To start with, they have beauty to recommend them, and then the devotee of outdoor sports is likely to dwell in summery climes during a great part of the year.

In the accompanying illustration a new felt sailor is shown, having the entire top covered with a big spider web made of chenille. A similar model is made of gold-colored felt with wheels of chenille, in several bright hues, applied about the crown. The scarf of ermine bordered with smoke-gray fox, shown in the picture, is a favored bit of neckwear for cool evenings.

The best-liked fur for summer wear remains a scarf made of the pelt of the white fox, or of some other skin that looks like it. One of these is pictured, worn with the very wide-brimmed sailor of black velvet, which foreshadows the coming of many wide-brimmed hats for fall and winter. Its sole trimming is a gorgeous dragon fly with body of irridescent beads and wings of gauze. He peers from the brim-edge—and will not depart, for, along with other bright-winged bugs, he has taken his position somewhere near the head of beautiful woman, to remain all winter as the most cherished of millinery ornaments.

For Her Coiffure.

Much attention to the tresses is paid these days.

To wear the smart hats one's hair must be fashionably arranged.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 13

THE GRACE OF LIVING.

LESSON TEXT—II Cor. 9.

GOLDEN TEXT—In all things I gave you an example, that so laboring ye ought to help the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, it is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

Paul's letters to the church in Corinth are a divine commentary upon church government. A stricter adherence to the principles enunciated and a clearer interpretation of those principles to the church of Jesus Christ would save us from many errors and heartaches. In this rich and populous nation the lesson for consideration today is most vital, for it concerns one of the fundamental principles which underly the progress of mankind as well as the kingdom of God.

I. Cheerful Giving (vv. 1-7). One of the dangers assailing the early Christian church was that of division between the Jewish and Gentile believers. One party suggested that the Gentiles ought to have a closer union with the Jews; on the other hand, certain Gentiles could not see the necessity of the Jewish ceremonial, and in this Paul agreed with them, and therefore they refused to assume any unnecessary burden. The great feasts at Jerusalem were crowded with pilgrims, both Jews and Jewish Christians. The pilgrims were often very poor, and fatigue must have fostered diseases. Here then was a place where a work of ministry to the needy might be done with the money which had been systematically gathered through the weekly contributions of Christian believers. Note how skillfully Paul appealed to these Corinthians. He recognizes their forwardness of mind and their zeal (vv. 1 and 2, Am. R.). Most delicately does he compliment them upon their work, for, said he, "I glory in your behalf."

He desired their collections to be a matter of bounty, and not of covetousness or extortion. Paul's principle of giving is that it shall be a matter of free and beneficent gifts, not a matter of covetous greed; not a quid pro quo. He says that they who sow sparingly shall reap sparingly.

II. The Results of Giving (vv. 8-15). The law of reaping according to the seed we sow and of reaping in proportion to the quality and quantity of the seed sown is also to be supplemented by the law of the necessity of systematic giving (See I Cor. 16:2). One of the sweetest and most cheerful and inspiring promises of the Bible is found in verse 8 of this section, "God is able." He is able to make all grace abound, and he does this "to the bountiful giver." Nothing more surely limits the measure of grace that we receive than our penurious, niggardly giving (Phil. 4:19 and context). This giving of grace is "in order that ye always having all sufficiency in all things may abound unto every good work." God's abundant grace is bestowed upon us that we may work for others, and live abounding, sufficient lives in everything. How poor indeed our lives must appear when measured by the standard of this verse. Literally this is "hilarious giving." God loves the full-souled, hilarious giver who gives time and money. Such giving is like unto God's giving, who gave his only begotten son. If we sow as God provides, he will multiply the seed for sowing and increase the fruits of our righteousness. If we do not sow, he will cease to supply.

This liberality will work through us to others and thanksgiving to God on the part of those who receive (v. 11, R. V.). Such giving abounds to his honor and glory through the many thanksgivings which it will occasion (Heb. 13:15). The more we give, the more God will increase our power to give, and in this way we will be enriched in everything unto all liberality (Prov. 11:24-25). The church in Jerusalem, when the saints of Corinth had given proof by the ministration to their need, would glorify God for the obedience of the saints in Corinth and their confession of the gospel of Christ, and also for the liberality of their contribution unto them (v. 13, R. V.). They would repay their generosity with prayer (v. 14, R. V.) and they would long after them by reason of the grace of God which was in them.

Paul's words about our giving with thanksgiving to God for his unspeakable gift—(See Ch. 8:9) the unspeakable gift of God, Jesus Christ (John 3:16; Rom. 8:32)—is an exhortation to us. Nothing should so move us to give to others as the thought of what God has given of his very best and dearest for us.

The Sunday school, as the training school of the church, ought to give instruction not alone in salvation truth and life teaching, but also in systematic giving. Train the children early to give to the church a portion of their substance, and they will learn to love it and support it in the years to come. Persistent practice is the secret of mastery here as in everything else. We say: "When a rich man dies he leaves all his wealth behind him."

True, but it is also true that we change into the currency of the country to which we are going the gifts which we have given here.

Homogenized Ice Cream.

We are indebted to the board of health of the City of New York for the information that homogenized ice cream may lawfully be sold in that city, and for the further information that homogenized ice cream may be made of powdered skim milk and water. Among those things in the names of which crimes are committed ice cream ranks right along with liberty and futurist art.—St. Louis Republic.

An Unproductive Visitor.

"Say, young feller," said Broncho Bob, "have you got a gun on you?"

"No, sir," replied the man with the brand-new cowboy uniform. "I was told that it was better to be unarmed, so as to avoid any impression that I was seeking a quarrel."

"Well, that's a big disappointment. I needed a brand-new gun an' thought you'd be bringin' along at least a pair of 'em. Don't you let anything like this occur again."

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

WANTED 30,000 MEN

For Harvest Work Western Canada

Immense crops; wages $3.00 per day and board. Cheap railway rates from boundary points. Employment bureaus at Winnipeg, Regina, North Portal, Saskatoon, Fort Frances, Kingsgate, B. C., Coutts and Calgary, Alberta.

No Conscription—
Absolutely No Military Interference

For all particulars apply to

W. S. Netbery, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.; G. W. Aird, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Canadian Government Agents

Frog Catchers Busy.

It seems that the home side of the frog-catching industry is looking up, because there are disadvantages to people hunting for frogs on parts of France that are battlefields. A handful of men, whose fathers were in the business before them, work frog catching in Epping forest with Seven Dials as base, and it is one of the most highly specialized industries in London. With frog catching snail catching is allied; the frogs go to some restaurants and to the anatomical laboratories of the hospitals, and the snails are chiefly bought as cleaners of suburban domestic aquariums. The snail that is eaten in Soho comes from the vineyards of France.—London Chronicle.

Danger From Mosquitoes.

The most dangerous of the biting insects is said by most entomologists to be the mosquito, and the species which is the chief carrier of malaria is found very widely distributed throughout the world. As a rule individuals do not wander far on their own account, but they can be blown considerable distances by a wind, and they have a habit of traveling about in trains and ships. The female hibernates throughout the winter, and, it is reported, has been found under the frozen snows of Siberia, mingled with the moss and snow.

A human being cannot breathe at a height of seven miles from the earth.

A Ton-Weight Turtle.

That turtle "weighing nearly a ton" (fisherman's weight?) lately landed at Penzance cannot be either the green turtle, associated with civic feasts, or the hawk's bill, from which we get tortoise shell. These two belong to tropical seas, and are of smaller dimensions. The ponderous "hinseck" caught off Scilly must be a "loggerhead" turtle, which occurs in the Mediterranean and sometimes visits our southern coasts. The "loggerhead" is the only carniverous turtle, and distinguished from the green variety by size, shape of head, and number of plates on the armor. But he is occasionally cooked in mistake for his edible cousin, with disastrous results to the diners.—London Chronicle.

Imitation Pearls.

Clever imitation pearls have been made by filling thin glass bulbs with a solution of fish scale nacre. Another method is to coat the inside of the glass bulbs with a ten per cent gelatin solution which is allowed to become only partially dry before a small amount of sodium phosphate is added, then the drying process is continued slowly. The imitations look much like genuine pearls, but they can be detected by noting the place where the bulbs have been sealed.

One seed of cotton planted and replanted will produce 40,000,000,000 seeds in six years.

Three Words To Your Grocer—

"New Post Toasties"

will bring a package of breakfast flakes with a delicious new corn flavour—flakes that don't mush down when milk or cream is added, nor are they "chaffy" in the package like the ordinary kind.

These New Post Toasties are manufactured by a new process using quick, intense heat which raises tiny bubbles over each flake, the distinguishing characteristic. And the new process also brings out a new corn flavour, never tasted in corn flakes of the past.

Try a handful dry—they're good this way and the test will reveal their superior flavour. But they're usually served with milk or cream.

New Post Toasties

—for tomorrow's breakfast.

Sold by Grocers everywhere.

AUGUST

L 908

0253

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - - $1.00
Six Months, - - - - .50
Three Months, - - .25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

LOCAL NEWS

Lee Tustison was a Defiance visitor, Thursday and Friday.

Mervin Widney, wife and daughter Doris, were at Wayne, Monday.

Mrs. Belle Barney and daughter, Miss Pauline, attended the Benner reunion held at Bryan, O., Thursday.

Mrs. Josie VanFleit, of Garrett, returned home after visiting her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Smith, for several days.

Mrs. Otto Cannon and little son Morris, left Monday for a two or three weeks visit with relatives at Pebbles, Ohio.

Mr. Bauer and family, of Hicksville, and Mrs. Anthony, of Sherwood, were Sunday guests of Chas. Anthony and wife.

John George, John Y. Davis, A. Rinehart and C. H. Sailer are each driving a new Ford car purchased through C A. Patterson.

Will Hamilton, wife and daughter Margaret Eleanor, Mrs. Ben Hamilton, and Mrs. H. G. Provines were Ft. Wayne visitors, Monday.

Jacob Baltz and wife, of Spencerville; Will Sommers and wife, of Coburn's Corners; and Henry Sechler and family, of Butler, were all Sunday guests of Jacob Sechler and wife.

The Misses Flossie Sechler, DeVeta Bayman and Avis Sechler will form part of a company of ten girls who will be chaperoned by Miss Hadley, Domestic Science teacher of the Tri-State College, for a weeks outing at Lake James.

Infantile Paralysis!

The germ that causes the disease enters the body through the nose and mouth. Mothers should do all within their power to save the child from the serious ailments of childhood. This can best be done by keeping the mouth, nose and throat in a clean and healthy condition. Glando Gargle is antiseptic and hydroscoptic, cleansing and healing to the mucous membrane.

It is a splendid preventative for sore mouth in babies; and is highly recommended for catarrhal conditions, hay fever and adenoids. Its use two or three times a day may save your child.

Procurable at drug stores or from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Daily Jots

Tim Agler is a new reader of the News.

Jesse Copp and wife of New Heven were home Sunday.

Mrs. Buckingham was at Hicksville Wednesday on business.

Fred Jenkins and Fred Elson were at Hamilton Lake over Sunday.

Mrs. Eliza Krafft visited a few days with her sister, Mrs Maude Jenkins.

Frank Melton, wife and little son, of Elkhart, came Tuesday to visit until Friday with the former's parents, Faurot Melton and wife.

F. M. Monroe was relieved Monday for a two weeks vacation. He will spend his time in fishing and working about his property making some improvements.

Rev. J. C. Coons will leave for Annual Conference Monday, which meets at Griffin Chapel, 1 mile east of the Soldiers Home at Marion. At the quarterly meeting held Saturday at Concord, Frank May was chosen delegate with J. W. Sherer as alternate.

Expenditures and Tax Levies for the Year 1916.

The trustee of Concord township DeKalb county, proposes for the yearly expenditures and tax levies by the Advisory Board at its annual meeting, to be held at the schoolhouse of School Listrict No 6, on the 5th. day of September 1916, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. the following estimates and amounts for said year:

Township expenditures, $1175, and township tax, 12 cents on the hundred dollars

Local tuition expenditures, $3950 and tax 40 cents on the hundred dollars.

Special school tax expenditures, $3950, and tax 40 cents on the hundred dollars.

Road tax expenditures, $465, and tax, 6 cents on the hundred dollars.

Additional Road tax expenditures, Work, and tax, 25 cents on the hundred dollars.

Library expenditures, $100, and tax, 1 cent on the hundred dollars.

Poor expenditures for preceding year, $100, and tax, 1 cent on the hundred dollars.

Bond sinking expenditures, $1975 and tax, 20 cents on the hundred dollars.

Total expenditures, $11715, and total tax, $1.45 cents on the hundred dollars.

Amount of credit on account of mortgage exemptions, ... $28750

Net taxable property of the township............ $989460

H. C. HATHAWAY,
August 5, '16 Trustee.

Notice

Persons who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

JOHN DEERE FARM IMPLEMENTS

I desire to announce to the farmers of this vicinity, that I am the John Deere agent in this territory and am well pleased with the sales made this year. We handle all of their machinery and are always ready to call and wait upon you.

Corn Planters, Mowers, Binders, Hay Loaders, Potato Diggers, Potato Planters.

J. I. Case Tractors

saves the horses, and besides makes farm work easier and a pleasure. Most useful piece of machinery on the farm.

B. A. Baker, Agt.
LEO, INDIANA.

Viberg & Co., Fort Wayne, Headquarters.

Wondrous Ways of Cupid

No Masculine Heart Is So Stubborn That It Cannot Be Tamed Into Subjection

By LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

(Copyright, 1916.)

Who shall say where love begins,
How its subtle way it wins?
Gods, who love the race they frame,
Cannot tell whence springs the flame,
Man may reason long and well,
But can never break the spell.

No man should rail at or sneer at the remark that married life is the happiest in the world, for the single man never knows at what place or time he will meet the one woman who will cause all his determination and theories to melt like fog before the sunshine. Even the men who are the most strenuously opposed to matrimony have their secret ideals—some one type of woman interests them more than others do — but they are frank enough with themselves to scout the idea that their ideals can be met with on this mundane sphere.

It is equally useless for a man deliberately to refuse to go to a place which women frequent or refuse pointblank to be introduced to the sex for which he has no use. Cupid does not take him into consultation when he lays his plans, jotting the name of this man and that woman whom he purposes to pair off down upon his reference book. It's all cut and dried for him. A man may balk and run away, but he is caught and rounded up another day.

No masculine heart is so stubborn or fractious that Cupid cannot tame it into subjection in his own unique way. The one unfortunate part of it is that Cupid gives no hint or sign that might put a man on his guard or warn him to be in readiness. Men meet their future brides when they least expect and they are not always duly impressed with their future heart mate at that. One young man who had to be fairly coaxed and dragged to a ball, accompanying his chum, saw there a young woman so plain of face that he marveled why the good-looking young man dancing with her should be eager to secure her for the next waltz, the next and yet others. During the course of the evening, the young man who had fought so hard against coming was introduced by the friend he had accompanied to the very plain young woman. She looked up with a smile and that smile so radiated her whole face that her new acquaintance looked upon her in wonder. It charmed him, interested him, made her almost beautiful. Her gracious personality, sweetness and wholesomeness captured the citadel of his heart in that first moment of meeting. He could not forget her or the sound of her voice or the touch of her hand. He who had laughed at matrimony and the notion that it took a woman's love to make a man really happy and life worth living was manly enough to confess that he had erred in his judgment, when he thought the careless life of a bachelor free lance was happier than that of the man who had placed himself in the hands of a good woman to be loved and cared for in the married state.

Cupid very often allows a man to go a great length ere he halts him. He can only run the length of his rope—finding the matrimonial noose at the end of it.

"If we live, we love."

A FEW SMILES

Going Too Far.

"A man should try to have a good opinion of himself."

"Perhaps."

"I mean a certain amount of self-respect."

"Oh, that's all right, but some people don't seem able to distinguish between self-respect and self-admiration."

A Close Shave.

"Don't tell me you can't find work," said the hard-faced housekeeper.

"Well, mum," replied the tramp at the door, "it's true a man offered me a job only las' week, but I could not take it."

"And why not?"

"I wuz paralyzed."

"You seem all right now."

"Yessum. Ye see, I wuz paralyzed wid fright."

A Matter of Pride.

"Motoring is enjoyable, but it isn't the best form of exercise," said the health expert.

"What do you consider the best exercise?"

"Walking."

"The chief objection some people have to walking is that they have no way of indicating to strangers as they hike along that they could ride if they wanted to."

Feminine Diplomacy.

"I spoke a few words with Mrs. Dubwaite this morning," said Mrs. Gadder.

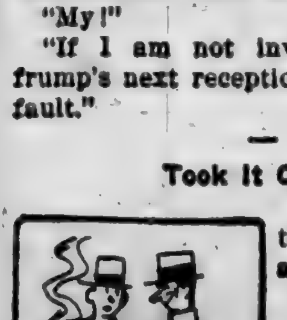
"And what did you say?" asked Mr. Gadder.

"Oh, I raved about her gown, and told her how well she was looking."

"My!"

"If I am not invited to the old frump's next reception it won't be my fault."

Took It Coolly.



"You proposed to Miss Gadder in a canoe?"

"Yes."

"That's dangerous."

"Why so?"

"Well—er — an embrace or a kiss under such circumstances is apt to upset the boat."

"There was no danger in this case. She didn't even do me the honor to stop humming a little tune while I was proposing to her."

Political Strategy.

"I have just discovered that our candidate plays the pipe organ during his leisure moments."

"It would never do for the other side to get hold of that."

"What steps must we take?"

"Well, if the truth leaks out, we'll square him with the voters by saying it isn't a pipe organ he plays, but a mouth organ."

"Little Orphant Annie" Says "Jim" Riley Was the Meanest of Boys

Many will be surprised to learn that there ever was a real "Orphant Annie." "Orphant Annie" is now Mrs. Wesley Gray. Although not a great many miles from the poet's birthplace, Greenfield, Ind., Mrs. Gray's farm is situated in the real, old-fashioned back country.

It was a raw, bleak day when little "Orphant Annie" was brought to the Riley home. She came from a primitive country settlement in a rough wagon, riding on a heavy board laid across it for a seat. . . . She recalled the happenings at the Riley home with amusement and delight.

"Jim Riley," she declared, "was the biggest tease and the meanest boy I ever seen. I used to wonder how he learnt it all; how in the world a boy only twelve years old could be so full of mischief, and such an awful tease.

"He would draw ugly pictures of us and write mean things beneath 'em, and I tell you, he just nachurly worried the life out of us. Then he would make his eyes red by rubbing them, and pretend he was sticking gun caps in them. Then he'd pull the gun caps out of his nose. You can't guess how he scared us.

"Then he had a hateful way of doing a trick that a circus man taught him, with a button and a handkerchief, by folding the handkerchief around the button, and then undoing it, and the button wasn't there. That made us awful curious, and we made him do it again and again, until one time he dropped it out of his sleeve."—Ladies' Home Journal.

To Curl Feathers.

Try this method of curling your feathers. Take a round stick and hold the feathers close to it lengthwise and fold the down carefully around the wood. Next slip over it a closely fitting bag of any material; this bag should be a trifle larger than the curling stick. Hold this bag in the steam of a kettle until thoroughly dampened, after which place in a warm spot to dry. When the bag is removed it will be found that the feather is nicely curled.

Wise and Otherwise.

Time may be money to everybody but the loafer.

And often the shoplifter finds it difficult to take things easy.

Dead men tell no tales, but some of their widows may draw pensions.

As long as a man can keep his temper he isn't his own worst enemy.

A bachelor says that matrimony is one of the blanks in love's lottery.

A woman's idea of an entertaining man is one who says nothing and listens.

Spendthrifts may be so called because they have nothing in common with thrift.

A girl's best insurance against trouble is to make a confidant of her mother.

It's a woman's natural faith that enables her to believe only the things she wants to when she knows she doesn't.

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summerfares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15 70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31 70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado - -	$36.60
California -	$78.75
Yellowstone -	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind. J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

The Gossips Say—

Joseph Koch, Jr., was at Woodburn, Monday.

Elmer Wyatt, of Newville, was a St. Joe visitor, Monday.

C. A. Patterson made a business trip to Ft. Wayne, Thursday.

John Stevens, of Genoa, Ohio, is a guest in the Jacob Sechler home.

Miss Amarette Lott, of Hicksville, spent Tuesday with Margaret Tustison.

Stanley Koch took a load of flour to Antwerp, Tuesday, from the local flour mill.

Mrs. W. C Patterson spent Friday the guest of her sister, Mrs Esther Karn of Ft. Wayne.

Miss Alene Miller, of Harlan, came Sunday to spend the week with Wm Randall and wife

Elza Kinsey, Bert Jackson, Chas. Koch and Clarence Zonker motored to Sherwood, Tuesday, on business.

Howard Williams, of Auburn, came Tuesday for a visit with his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Scholes and other relatives.

The Misses Inez and Anna Hart returned home Thursday evening, from a three weeks outing at Diamond Lake in Michigan.

Mrs. A. D. Brunson returned home Saturday from a six weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. Malissia Powell, and other relatives at Muncie. Mr. Brunson met her at Ft Wayne.

Hiram Bradley, of Wichita, Kan., and his brother, Simon Bradley, of Dement, Ill, were Tuesday guests of Thomas Rickett and wife. They will visit relatives in this vicinity for the coming two weeks.

Don P. Hindman, of Concord township, was the plaintiff Friday in a proceedings to have his father Samuel Hindman, declared of unsound mind. The father was present during the hearing and while he thought that he could look after his own business he admitted that it might be best to have a guardian to look after his personal and real property and he asked that his son, Don P. Hindman, be appointed such guardian and the court made the appointment.—Star.

34th. Annual Reunion of the 88th. Regt. Ind. Vol. Inft.

Will be held in the Assembly Room in the DeKalb County Court House, in Auburn, Ind., Wednesday, Aug. 30, 1916. It is urged that every member of the regiment and his lady will attend. All "Old Soldiers" are invited to attend and reune with us. Ample provisions will be made to entertain all while in the city.

The W. R. C. No. 2, of Auburn, will furnish dinner and supper. Come and stay for the "Camp Fire," which will be a prominent feature of the reunion. Programs published later, Auburn welcomes you.

D. D. Deihl, Adj.
O. H. Widney, Col.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

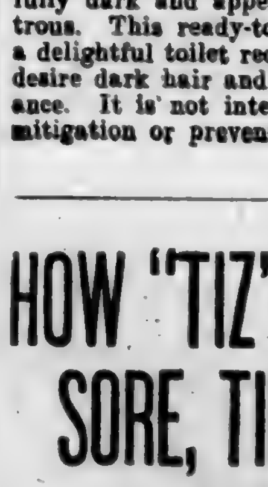
That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

HOW "TIZ" HELPS SORE, TIRED FEET

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.



Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

AUGUST

L 908

0254

Preparedness

❋ ❋

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25.000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE

Paid for Your POULTRY

SEE

W. G. ERICK

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

Mrs. Leavitt Akey and children spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Jacob Lochner and wife, of Huntertown.

Mrs. Leila L. Hart vs George B. Hart is the title of a divorce case filed Monday. The parties reside in Spencer township. Alimony is asked in the sum of $2,000. Harry H. Hilgemann of Ft. Wayne, and Nyce & Ketcham are the attorneys for Mrs. Hart.—Star.

Sell Your

POULTRY

TO

ZONKER

BROTHERS

St. Joe, Indiana.

Highest Prices Paid.

Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.

PHONE NO. 12

Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

Subscribe for this paper.

Patronize the advertisers.

Slide in the $1,00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Bill Heads
Envelopes
Calling Cards
Leaflets
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Blotters
Circulars
Invitations
Posters
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

SPENCERVILLE

Ett Walker and wife spent Sunday with Henry Beams and family.

Many from this place attended the picnics at Scipio and Leo, last Saturday.

Elroy Kimes, of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday at the home of John Hobaugh and wife.

The Forget-me-not Club was entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Glen Abel.

William Brown and wife, of Auburn, and Stephen Brown and wife were Sunday guests in the George Howey home.

John Koontz, wife and children, Ruth and Robert, and two friends, of Sturgis, Mich., motored to this place, Sunday, and visited the former's parents, Baltzer Koontz and wife.

Amusement Day for the Cradle Roll of the M. E Church will be observed next Sunday under the direction of Mrs. John Beninghoff. Special invitation to mothers to come and bring the children.

The Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church will be entertained at the home of Mrs. John Beninghoff, this afternoon (Thursday) The meeting will be under the direction of Mrs. A. K. Mumma.

Our new shipment of Ladies' Ready-to-wear dresses and waists are now in. Call and see them first before the choice colors and patterns are selected. Cheaper than you can make them at Beams & Co., store.

The C C Club was entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Nettie Steward and daughter Hazel. A dainty two-course luncheon was served. The following guests were present:-Lemoise Elder, of Ft. Wayne; Mrs. Ernest Steward, Mrs. Merwood Rhodes and Mrs. Clarence Steward.

News was received from the bedside of Mrs Mary Grill, who is staying at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Sherman Adams, of near Butler, that she is suffering with cancer, and on account of her age is considered incurable.

Mrs. Mary A. Shutt died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jack Beams, Thursday night at 11:00 o'clock, at the age of 76 years, 11 months and 8 days. She had been a sufferer for many years. She was the widow of the late George Shutt and leaves to mourn her departure five children:-1 son, George Shutt, of this place; 4 daughters, Mrs. Hattie Beams, of Spencerville; Mrs. W. W. Carey, of Ft. Wayne; Mrs. Ella Harter, of Hicksville; and Mrs. Lillie Benninghoff, of Newville; 11 grandchildren, 4 great grandchildren, 2 sisters, Mrs. Katherine Hamilton, of St. Joe; and Mrs. Belle Goldsmith, of this place Funeral was held from the Lutheran Church, Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Rev. A. K. Mumma, officiating. Interment in the White City Cemetery.

Mesdames Jennie Chaney, John Beninghoff, Minta Rhodes, Louie Beam, Jack Henderson, Rose Beams, Jane Butler, Anna Henderson and daughter Ruth, and Minnie Tyndall and daughter Violette, motored to Auburn, Tuesday, and assisted Mrs. Lydia Kressler of that place, celebrate her birthday. A bounteous dinner was served. Other guests that were present were Mrs. Emma Keyes, of Ft. Wayne; Laton Lake, of Butler; and Mesdames Mary Scott, Frank Wise, Susie Silberg and Lizzie Bishop, all of Auburn.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

It is usual in other countries to have a special ensign to designate the presence on a vessel of the ruler of the nation. It was not until lately that the United States had such a flag. President Arthur suggested it in the early part of 1882, and, as his cabinet concurred in his suggestion, decided on the design of a blue ground with the arms of the United States in the center. The navy department ordered that this flag should be displayed at the mainmast of any vessel that bore the president. Arthur first used it in 1883.

Porch Cushions.

Porch cushions are the gayest of the gay. And they are striped, in conformity with the general trend toward striped effects in decorations and home accessories of every sort. All the colors of the rainbow are seen in these cushions for the swinging seat, the settee, the rocker, and general utility, but the combination of tints have been made so skillfully that the result, while undeniably vivid, is by no means unpleasing or crude. In the khaki-hued couch hammock, or in one of awning stripes in black or white, a group of these bright toned cushions presents a desirable contrast.

Fashion's Decrees.

Charmeuse gowns are prettily worn with small flower-trimmed hats.

A great deal of shantung is used for summer costumes.

A simple frock or coat is set off by a double cape collar of muslin.

Many of the new collars amount to capes, being full and reaching to the waistline.

Feather-stiching makes a dainty finish for the edges of the wee tot's frock.

Charming sports hats are of straw and trimmed with worsted cords and tassels.

Heavy washing silk is used for the serviceable and graceful cross-over blouses.

Finish the round neck with a piece of narrow ribbon tied in a fetching little bow in front.

The soft pile fabrics in the most beautiful jewellike colorings are constantly being used for big, loose wraps.

Yellow organdie and white tulle make a charming frock.

Very demure is the child's frock of organdie with tiny bows of velvet ribbon set all the way down the front.

We now have skirts designed especially for gardening. They are made of linen and have many large pockets.

Frills of tulle complete some of the new roll collars of muslin and crepe de chine to be worn with tailored suits.

There are nightgowns of pongee, and they are trimmed with bands of linen in contrasting colors.

Silk basques finished with cavalier tabs are charming with flowered voile skirts for bridesmaids' frocks.

Cause Explained.

"There was great commotion on the pier as the junior officer of the marine corps stepped ashore."

"What's the matter?" asked a curious bystander?

"Sub marine's just arrived in port," was the reply.

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat and take Salts for Backache or Bladder trouble—Neutralizes acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Kenneth Miller purchased a new buggy, last week.

Lola Beams was a Sunday afternoon caller of Miss Lois Smith.

Victor King, of Scipio, spent Sunday the guest of Delphia Beam

Gerry Wasson and family Sundayed with Frank Wertman and wife.

Rev. Valentine visited Thursday afternoon with Will Smith and wife.

W. O. Miller and family visited Sunday with Ad Miller and wife, at Scipio.

Dan Markle and wife spent Sunday afternoon with Henry Beery and wife.

Lewis Markle and wife, Clint Webb, wife and niece spent Sunday at Antwerp.

Miss Grace Cook took supper Thursday evening with Frank Beams and family.

Olen Dermott, wife and daughter spent Sunday evening at the D. M. Kelley home.

Vinton Miller and family, and Mrs. Wm. Rhodes spent Sunday with Wm. Miller and wife.

Miss Hermoine Elder, of Fort Wayne, who has been visiting at G. M. Wearleys' returned home Sunday.

James Stewart, who was taken to the Lutheran Hospital and operated on last week, is getting along very nicely.

Mrs. Martin Beery and Mrs. Harley Berry, of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday the guests of Mrs. James Oberholtzer.

Paul Teagarden, wife and daughter Helen, of Wayne, and Ellen Lake spent Sunday with C. M. Wearley and family.

Chas. Essley and wife, and Ed Billman and wife spent Monday night with the former's daughter, Mrs. Courkney, at Auburn.

The "Golden Hour" Class met at the home of Miss Gaylon Markle, Wednesday afternoon. Those present were:—Margaret Lake, Mary and Esther Henderson, Edna Armstrong, Grace Cook, Esther Doll, Leone Widdifield and Fannie Vallieu. Ice cream and cake was served.

Mr. Smalley Tells of Wonderful Cure.

A. Smalley, a prosperous farmer living six miles south-east of Antwerp, Ohio, says: "I was troubled with glandular inactivity for some time. My liver and kidneys had ceased to act until I was nearly as yellow as the yolk of an egg. My appetite was poor. What I did eat did not seem to digest. I lost flesh and was hardly able to drag around. When I begun to use Glando I soon got better. In eight weeks I had gained in flesh until I weighed as much as I ever weighed. My complexion cleared, and I feel as good as I ever did in my life." Mr. Smalley is a man fifty-three years old. He is only one of the many who have received wonderful help by using Glando. Glando starts glandular activity and throws the poison out of the system. Poisons retained in the body will in time break down the strongest constitution and destroy health. Don't let your glands shirk, keep them active and save your health.

Glando can be secured at drug stores or of the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. For Sale by All Druggists.

S. S. Widney

Justice of the Peace

Insurance and Real Estate

Phone No. 10

ST. JOE - - - IND

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can, "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, } ss.
Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.
Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

P. A. Walker

Trustee

Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—

Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.

Phone—St. Joe, 21-6

Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART

"The Expert"

House Mover

—AND—

Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

DENTIST

C. R. PRICE

ST. JOE, IND.

Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.

Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest In America — Strongest In the World

Mutual life

INSURANCE COMPANY of New York

J. C. HULL, Agent

Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

808-810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

AUGUST

L 908

0255

MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF WORLD

BIG HAPPENINGS OF THE WEEK CUT TO LAST ANALYSIS.

DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN ITEMS

Kernels Culled From Events of Moment in All Parts of the World—Of Interest to All the People Everywhere.

European War News

One more Italian, a Japanese and three British ships have been sunk as a result of the renewal of the war on commerce by the Germans. The kaiser's U-boats are active on the English channel.

* * *

The war office at Petrograd admits withdrawal from the town of Rudka-Mirynaskaia on the Stokhod river front after a desperate battle. Capture of 1,300 prisoners in a desperate battle south of Brody is claimed.

* * *

The Italian mail steamer Letimbro has been sunk by a submarine and 28 survivors have arrived at Malta, says a Reuter dispatch to London from that place. Two boatloads with survivors also have arrived at Syracuse. The Letimbro carried a crew of 57 and her passengers numbered 113. One hundred persons are believed to have perished.

* * *

The battle which has been raging on the Verdun front for three days turned in favor of the French. As the result of the day's fighting the entire village of Fleury is again in French hands as well as the whole system of trenches from Thiaumont to the village and extending as far as Hill 320. Berlin admitted the advance of the French on a large portion of this front.

* * *

The raid by German Zeppelins resulted in the dropping of a great number of explosive and fire bombs on London, on the fleet base at Harwich, and on industrial establishments in the county of Norfolk, says an official statement given out at Berlin.

* * *

A dispatch to the Amsterdam Handelsblad from Berlin says Italy has given notice to Germany of the termination of the German-Italian commercial treaty of 1891, which would have expired at the end of 1917. It asserted that the existence of the treaty was the only reason which had prevented Germany from declaring war on Italy.

* * *

England regards as an essential part of any peace conditions the restoration by Germany of Belgium and Serbia, both materially and economically, and the repairing of devastated portions of France and Russia, Premier Asquith declared in a speech in the house of commons at London.

* * *

Several Russian attacks on the Stokhod salient northeast of the Kovel-Rovno railway were broken down completely under the Germans' curtain of fire, according to the official statement issued by the German war office in Berlin.

* * *

Domestic

Reports that President Wilson is contemplating reversing his position on woman suffrage and coming out in favor of an amendment to the Federal Constitution giving women the ballot were denied at the White House at Washington. The president favors woman suffrage, but believes that it is a matter for each state to decide for itself.

* * *

The waters which overran the banks of Blair's creek, near Tazewell, Tenn., have not receded, yet it was definitely established, according to reports from the stricken district, that the lives of 25 persons are known to have been snuffed out as the result of the cloudburst.

* * *

Damage estimated at $200,000 was done at Peoria, Ill., when a terrific thunderstorm, coming as an end to 38 days of drought, swept over the business and factory sections of the city.

* * *

For the twelfth time without opposition in his own party Speaker Champ Clark was nominated for congress by the Democrats of Montgomery, Mo. Attorney Walter L. Cole was nominated by the Republicans.

* * *

It is expected that all milk dealers in Chicago will have advanced the price of milk to nine cents a quart by the end of the week. The Bowman company announced to its customers that it had raised the price to nine cents.

* * *

The employees of the New York Railways company are on strike. The men on practically all the surface lines of the city are out. It is likely that the employees of both the "L" and subway may follow the surface lines men out.

* * *

Wheat prices advanced six cents a bushel on the Chicago board of trade and in two days have gone up 11 cents. Black rust and blight have knocked from 75,000,000 to 85,000,000 bushels off the spring wheat prospect in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Capt. David Thomson, who arrived at Baltimore, Md., with the British steamship Strathness, said his vessel had sunk a German submarine which attacked it in the Mediterranean. The submarine was hit by a shell.

* * *

Raymond Robins, who was chairman of the Progressive's national convention, issued a statement at Chicago that he had decided to support Charles E. Hughes for the presidency, and urging them to do likewise.

* * *

John M. Parker, Progressive candidate for vice-president, has become the head of the party and the idol of all faithful anti-Hughes Bull Moose. The Progressive conference was held at Indianapolis, Ind.

* * *

Five desperadoes, armed with revolvers and rifles, held up and robbed the pay car of the Burroughs Adding Machine company at Detroit, Mich., within full view of hundreds of persons in the street and escaped with $37,000 in cash. One of the Burroughs guards was wounded.

* * *

Robert F. Wagner of New York city for governor and Calvin J. Huson of Yates county for lieutenant governor was the ticket agreed on at a conference at New York of 15 prominent New York city Democrats.

* * *

The Lake Carriers' association at Cleveland, O., marked wages up $10 a month for all men on the boats below the grade of licensed officers, making the second general advance to be made by the association this season.

* * *

The German merchant submarine Deutschland departed from Baltimore, Md., on her perilous voyage to her home port. The subsea boat was escorted by several government boats.

* * *

The greatest transportation tieup in the history of the country is inevitable unless President Wilson should interfere. The declaration was made in a letter addressed to President Wilson at Washington by Harry A. Wheeler of Chicago, chairman of the committee on the railroad situation of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

* * *

Failing to reach an agreement in conferences over increases in rates of pay and adjustment of working conditions of telegraphers of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, a letter was sent to the United States board of mediation, asking for the good offices of the federal authorities in adjusting the differences.

* * *

Sporting

Single G won the free-for-all pace, feature of the Grand Circuit races, at Kalamazoo, Mich., and in doing so paced the fastest mile ever negotiated during a race on a Michigan mile track. The average for the three heats was 2:00 2-3, making it the fastest three-heat race ever seen in Michigan.

* * *

Mexican War News

General Carranza's reply to the latest American note accepting his suggestion for a joint commission to adjust border differences, but proposing a broader scope for the commission's work, was delivered to the state department at Washington by Eliseo Arredondo, the Mexican ambassador designate. It announces the appointment of three Mexican commissioners.

* * *

The explosion of a car filled with dynamite killed 60 and wounded 40 Carranzista soldiers at Empalme, near Guaymas, Sonora, according to reports received at Nogales, Ariz.

* * *

It was officially announced at Mexico City at the Mexican foreign office that Luis Cabrera, Ygnacio Bonillas and Alberto Pani have been selected as commissioners to negotiate with the United States commissioners regarding the questions at issue between Mexico and the United States.

* * *

Washington

It was announced at Washington that Secretary of State Lansing and Minister Brun of Denmark in New York signed the treaty between the United States and Denmark under which this country purchases the Danish West Indies for $25,000,000.

* * *

The Business Men's league of St. Louis won a big victory when the interstate commerce commission at Washington handed down a decision that the passenger rates between St. Louis and all Illinois points are unreasonable to the extent that they exceed 2.4 cents a mile.

* * *

President Wilson instructed Acting Secretary of State Polk to forward from Washington to the British foreign office immediately the resolution adopted by the senate in which the hope was expressed that the British government "may exercise clemency in the treatment of Irish political prisoners."

* * *

It was announced at Washington President Wilson accepted the resignation of Capt. Victor Blue as chief of the bureau of navigation. He has been assigned to command the battleship Texas.

* * *

It was announced at Washington that Great Britain has already taken steps to meet any trade reprisals which may be attempted either by the United States or a combination of neutral nations. She has adopted a new trade policy which is to be fostered by the home government.

BRITISH BATTERY HURRYING TO THE FRONT

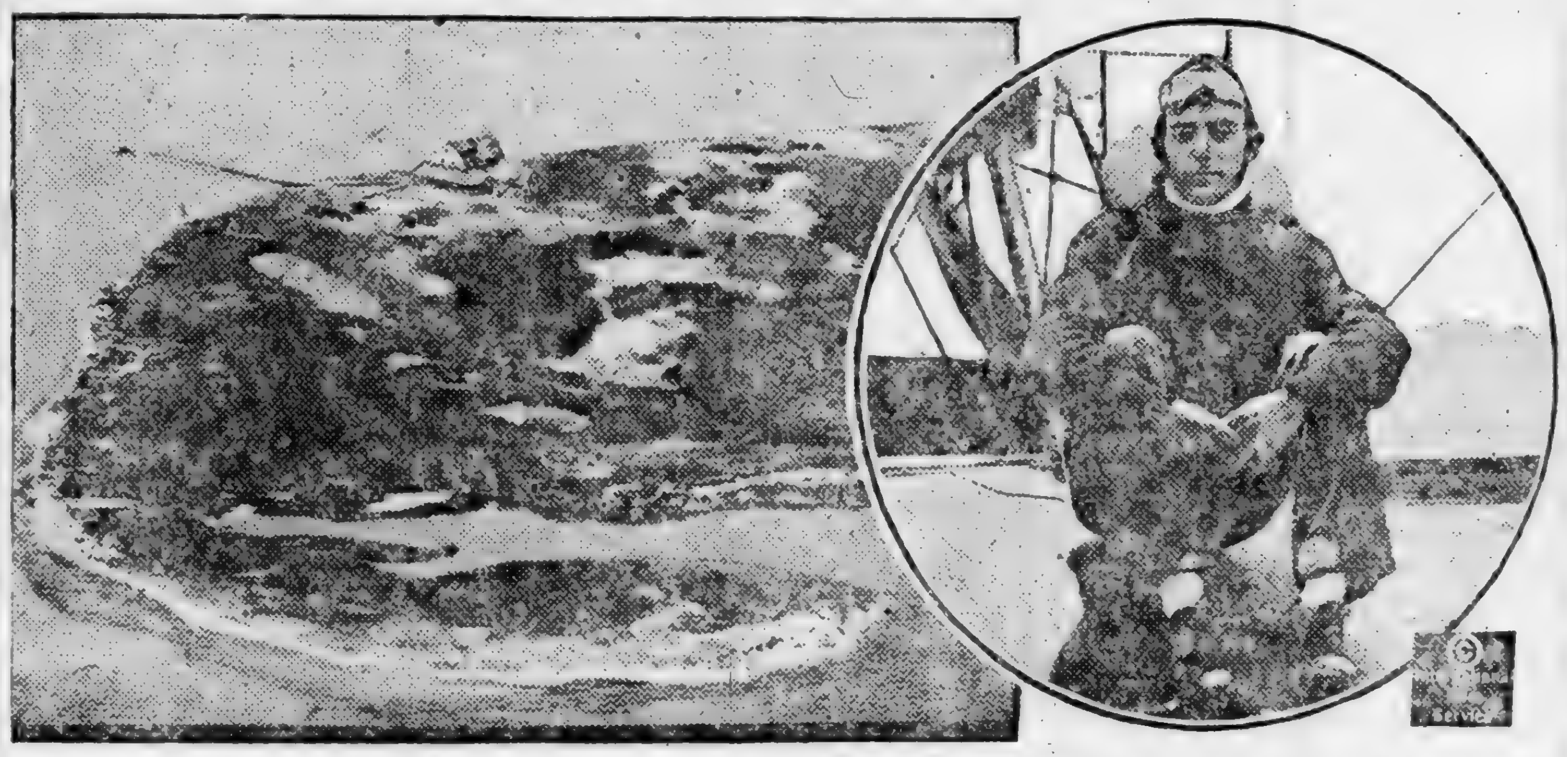
This clean-looking British battery, rattling over the dirt road and crossing the country stream, is [illegible] its way to the front to re-enforce the troops along the British line and to do its share in furthering the great British drive. The country shown in the photograph is typical of much of that to the rear of the fighting lines.

ROYAL WELSH FUSILIERS ON WESTERN FRONT

© International Film Service

An official photograph showing the bivouac of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers on the western front.

NAVAL MILITIA LEARN AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY



That the men of the aviation section of New York's naval militia are successfully learning the art of photographing from aeroplanes is shown by this photograph of the "hook" of Sexton island, Great South bay, made by one of the aviators. At the right is Lieut. H. Harris, commander of the section.

WOUNDED IN THE TRENCHES

© International Film Service

An official photograph from the western front made during the advance of the allies on the Teuton lines, showing wounded British defenders of one of the trenches. Note the mushroom steel helmets worn by the men.

Getting a Goat.

A whole platoon of English soldiers vote that the bravest thing they saw in the fighting line was the taking in, by a Sikh, of a regimental goat that had wandered out into the open and was being made a target of by the Germans. Cheers greeted the return of that goat to safety. Indeed, it might have been the lamb which had strayed away from the ninety and nine lying in the safety of the fold.

SUBMARINE CREW GETTING THE AIR

© International Film Service

A scene aboard one of the British submarines showing the men from the engine room taking a whiff of fresh air and a cigarette.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Covington.—The [illegible] Teachers' institute will be held here August 21 to 25.

Hamlet.—Robert Leeras, [illegible], is dead as the result of injuries received when he tumbled headlong from a second story window.

Vincennes.—While attempting to pass in front of a moving freight train on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, James Hardy, twenty-six, was instantly killed.

Gary.—The seven Turks who lost their lives in an automobile accident at Miller, Lake county, were buried at the Gary Oak Hill cemetery with Mohammedan religious rites performed by their countrymen.

Bloomington.—Because they say college students voted the town dry at the last local option election the wets began an effort to have another election before college opens. A petition bearing 700 names was filed.

Elkhart.—Andrew Burkhart, nearly ninety-nine years old, and an inmate of the Elkhart infirmary, was instantly killed when struck by the New York Central's twentieth century limited.

Bedford.—Automobile owners here are very angry because of [illegible] tires from tacks thrown in the road south of the city. The Bedford [illegible] club has offered a reward of $50 for any evidence that will result in the conviction of the persons who are guilty.

Crawfordsville.—Prof. and Mrs. Jasper A. Cragwall celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary here. Professor Cragwall is head of the department of mathematics at Wabash college, and also is city engineer of Crawfordsville.

Logansport.—Sixty members of the troop of Boy Scouts went to Lake Maxinkuckee for a week's outing. They were accompanied by 40 scouts from Fort Wayne, 16 from Winamac and 16 from North Manchester. The camp will be run in accordance with military discipline.

Tell City.—An automobile driven by Oscar Hoing struck a telephone pole near Cannelton and Miss Lala Gaesser was thrown through the windshield, suffering severe cuts about her face. The driver and Miss Hildah Gaesser, Clarence Hoyt and Catherine Ludwig escaped injury.

Peru.—Jefferson township, Miami county, held an interesting centennial celebration. Rev. W. A. Bender of Valparaiso, a native of Mexico, and Rev. G. R. Work of Warren, formerly pastor at Denver, and Miss Lucy Elliott of the state centennial commission were speakers.

Aurora.—The annual convention of the Odd Fellows and the Daughters of Rebekah of this district will be held here August 17. Among members of the orders who will be present are Jesse Macbeth of Fort Wayne, grand master, and Mrs. Florence McGregor of Mount Vernon, the president of the Rebekah assembly.

Indianapolis.—Choosing to remain in prison rather than accept a parole on the condition that she go back to her husband and children, Mrs. Lydia Hartman of Nappanee informed Governor Ralston that she wished the parole revoked. The governor acceded to her request. She had been convicted in the Elkhart circuit court on a statutory charge.

Indianapolis. — Adjutant General Bridges announced the appointment of Lieut. Col. Julius F. Blum, retired, as captain of the Indiana National Guard and assigned him to recruiting duty at Evansville; Lieut. Edgar Kidwell of Gary, in charge of a recruiting office there, and Lieut. Leroy Bibler to be attached to the Indianapolis recruiting office.

Hammond.—A $12,000,000 mortgage held by the Continental Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, Frank H. Jones, trustee, has been filed in the recorder's office by the Mark Manufacturing company, who have purchased 116 acres on the Indiana Harbor canal from Clayton H. Mark to be used in development of the property for manufacturing purposes.

Indianapolis.—Edward Toner, former Progressive state chairman, is named by Republican Chairman Will H. Hays as one of the advisory committee of five to serve during the life of the state committee. The other members announced are: William G. Irwin, Columbus; Charles Artes, Evansville; Walter Riley, Indiana Harbor; Judge Vernon Van Fleet, South Bend.

Franklin.—Authorities planned to have Ralph Barger, twenty-six, examined by a sanity commission to determine whether he is responsible for the killing of his father near Whiteland. Following a quarrel young Barger seized a shotgun and shot his father. Barger is a cripple and hunchback and often has displayed his peculiarities by appearing in Franklin dressed in knee length skirts. He declared in jail the shooting was accidental.

Indianapolis.—Finding the Indianapolis Water company is a paying proposition but that the Indianapolis Baseball club is a losing proposition, the state board of tax commissioners announced its decision on appeals, raising the assessment of the water company nearly $2,000,444 but refusing to raise the assessment of the baseball club.

Westfield.—The community chautauqua will be held here August 9 to 13. Lecturers on the program are [illegible] E. L. Williams, Dr. J. H. Sowerby, [illegible]bert Edward Wiggam and W. Powell Hale.

AUGUST

L 908

0256

The Turmoil

By

BOOTH TARKINGTON

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—9—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old-town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife. Doctor Gurney finds Bibbs well enough to go back to the machine shop. Mary and Bibbs meet by accident and form a pleasant friendship. Roscoe Sheridan and his wife quarrel desperately about Bobby Lamhorn.

Imagine the feelings of a hard-working, dutiful husband when he learns that his wife is dangerously flirting with a worthless bachelor—and when his wife defies him to do anything about the matter. Does such a situation justify divorce, notwithstanding the "until death do us part" vow?

CHAPTER XVI—Continued.

"Won't you come in?" urged Mrs. Vertrees, cordially, hearing the sound of a cheerful voice out of the darkness beyond the approaching glare of automobile headlights. "Do! There's Mary now, and she—"

But Sibyl was half-way across the street. "No, thanks," she called. "I hope she won't miss her piano!" And she ran into her own house and plunged headlong upon a leather divan in the hall, holding her handkerchief over her mouth.

The noise of her tumultuous entrance was evidently startling, for there followed the crash of a decanter upon the floor of the dining room, and, after a rumble of indistinct profanity, Roscoe came forth, holding a dripping napkin in his hand.

"What's your excitement?" he demanded. "What do you find to go into hysterics over? Another death in the family?"

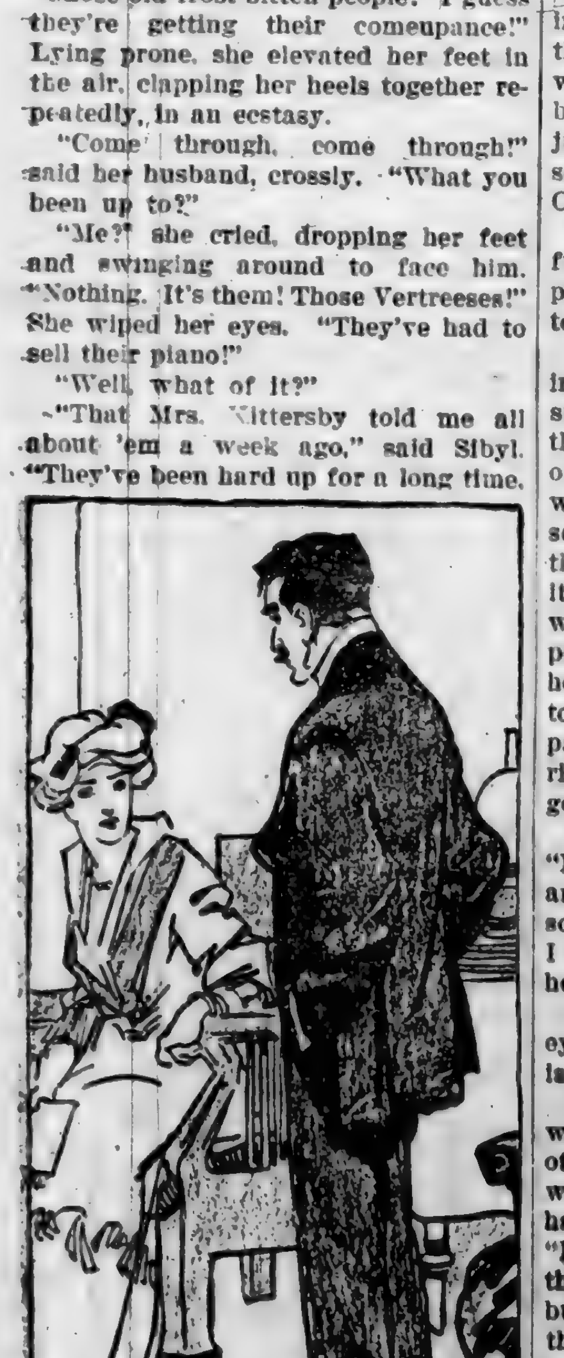
"Oh, it's funny!" she gasped. "Those old frost-bitten people! I guess they're getting their comeupance!" Lying prone, she elevated her feet in the air, clapping her heels together repeatedly, in an ecstasy.

"Come through, come through!" said her husband, crossly. "What you been up to?"

"Me?" she cried, dropping her feet and swinging around to face him. "Nothing. It's them! Those Vertreeses!" She wiped her eyes. "They've had to sell their piano!"

"Well, what of it?"

"That Mrs. Kittersby told me all about 'em a week ago," said Sibyl. "They've been hard up for a long time, and she says as long ago as last winter she knew that girl got a pair of walking shoes re-soled and patched, because she got it done the same place Mrs. Kittersby's cook had hers!"



"I Want to Know What You Say Over the Telephone to Lamhorn."

"Well, well?" he urged, impatiently.

"Well, I'm telling you! Mrs. Kittersby says they haven't got a thing! Just absolutely nothing—and they don't know anywhere to turn! She says the whole town's been wondering what would become of 'em. The girl had plenty chances to marry up to a year or so ago, but she was so indifferent she scared the men off. Gracious! they were lucky! Marry her? The man that found himself tied up to that girl—"

"Terrible funny, terrible funny!" said Roscoe, with sarcasm. "It's so funny I broke a cut glass decanter and spilled a quart of—"

"Wait!" she begged. "You'll see. I saw a big wagon drive up and some men go into the house. Well, I thought I'd see, so I slipped over—and it was their piano! They'd sold it and were trying to sneak it out after dark, so nobody'd catch on!" Again she gave way to her enjoyment, but resumed, as her husband seemed about to interrupt the narrative, "Wait a minute, can't you? Yes, they'd sold it; and I hope they'll pay some of their debts. They owe everybody, and last week a coal dealer made an awful fuss at the door with Mr. Vertrees. Their cook told our upstairs girl, and she said she didn't know when she'd seen any money, herself! Did you ever hear of such a case as that girl in your life?"

"What girl! Their cook?"

"That Vertrees girl! Don't you see they looked on our coming up into this neighborhood as their last chance? They were just going down and out, and here bobs up the green, rich Sheridan' family! So they send her out to get a Sheridan—she's got to get one! And she just goes in blind; and Jim was landed—there's no doubt about that! But Jim was lucky; he didn't live to stay landed, and it's a good thing for him!" Sibyl's mirth had vanished, and she spoke with virulent rapidity. "Well, she couldn't get you, because you were married, and she couldn't get Jim, because Jim died. And there they were, dead broke! Do you know what she did? Do you know what she's doing?"

"No, I don't," said Roscoe, gruffly.

Sibyl's voice rose and culminated in a scream of renewed hilarity. "Bibbs! She waited in the graveyard, and drove home with him from Jim's funeral! Never spoke to him before! Jim wasn't cold!"

She rocked herself back and forth upon the divan. "Bibbs!" she shrieked. "Bibbs! Roscoe, think of it! Bibbs!"

He stared unsympathetically, but her mirth was unabated for all that. "And yesterday," she continued, between paroxysms—"yesterday she came out of the house—just as he was passing. She must have been looking out—waiting the chance; I saw the old lady watching at the window! And she got him there last night—to 'play' to him; the old lady gave that away! And today she made him take her out in a machine! And the cream of it is that they didn't even know whether he was insane or not—they thought maybe he was, but she went after him just the same! The old lady set herself to pump me about it today. Bibbs! Oh, my Lord! Bibbs!"

But Roscoe looked grim. "So it's funny to you, is it? It sounds kind of pitiful to me. I should think it would to a woman, too."

"Oh, it might," she returned, sobering. "It might, if those people weren't such frozen-faced smart Alecks. If they'd had the decency to come down off the perch a little I probably wouldn't think it was funny, but to see 'em sit up on their pedestal all the time they're eating dirt—well, I think it's funny! That girl sits up as if she was Queen Elizabeth, and expects people to wallow on the ground before her until they get near enough for her to give 'em a good kick with her old patched shoes—oh, she'd do that, all right!—and then she powders up and goes out to mash—Bibbs Sheridan!"

"Look here," said Roscoe, heavily; "I don't care about that one way or another. If you're through, I got something I want to talk to you about. I was going to, that day just before we heard about Jim."

At this Sibyl stiffened quickly; her eyes became intensely bright. "What is it?"

"Well," he began, frowning, "what I was going to say then—" He broke off, and, becoming conscious that he was still holding the wet napkin in his hand, threw it pettishly into a corner. "I never expected I'd have to say anything like this to anybody I married; but I was going to ask you what was the matter between you and Lamhorn."

Sibyl uttered a sharp monosyllable. "Well?"

"I felt the time had come for me to know about it," he went on. "You never told me anything—"

"You never asked," she interposed, curtly.

"Well, we'd got in a way of not talking much," said Roscoe. "It looks to me now as if we'd pretty much lost the run of each other the way a good many people do. I don't say it wasn't my fault. I was up early and down to work all day, and I'd come home tired at night, and went to go to bed soon as I'd got the paper read—unless there was some good musical show in town. Well, you seemed all right until here lately, the last month or so, I began to see something was wrong. I couldn't help seeing it."

"Wrong?" she said. "What like?"

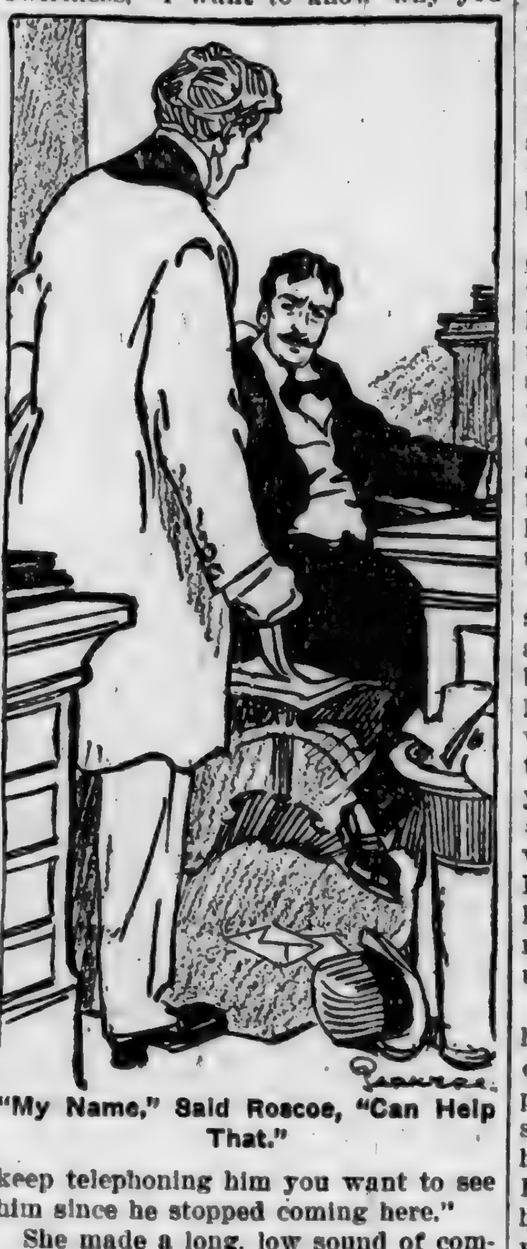
"You changed; you didn't look the same. You were all strung up and excited and fidgety; you got to looking peakid and run down. Now then, Lamhorn had been going with us a good while, but I noticed that not long ago you got to picking on him about every little thing he did; you got to quarreling with him when I was there and when I wasn't. I could see you'd been quarreling whenever I came in and he was here."

"Do you object to that?" asked Sibyl, breathing quickly.

"Yes—when it injures my wife's health!" he returned, with a quick lift of his eyes to hers. "You began to run down just about the time you began falling out with him." He stepped close to her. "See here, Sibyl, I'm going to know what it means."

"Oh, you are?" she snapped. "That was what you were going to say the other day. Yes. What else have you to say tonight?"

"Tonight," he replied, with grim swiftness, "I want to know why you keep telephoning him you want to see him since he stopped coming here."



"My Name," Said Roscoe, "Can Help That."

She made a long, low sound of comprehension before she said, "And what else did Edith want you to ask me?"

"I want to know what you say over the telephone to Lamhorn," he said, fiercely.

"Is that all Edith told you to ask me? You saw her when you stopped in there on your way home this evening, didn't you? Didn't she tell you then what I said over the telephone to Mr. Lamhorn?"

"No, she didn't!" he vociferated, his voice growing louder. "She said, 'You tell your wife to stop telephoning Robert Lamhorn to come and see her, because he isn't going to do it!' That's what she said! And I want to know what it means. I intend—"

A maid appeared at the lower end of the hall. "Dinner is ready," she said, and, giving the troubled pair one glance, went demurely into the dining room. Roscoe disregarded the interruption.

"I intend to know exactly what has been going on," he declared. "I mean to know just what—"

Sibyl jumped up, almost touching him, standing face to face with him.

"Oh, you do!" she cried, shrilly. "You mean to know just what's what, do you? You listen to your sister insinuating ugly things about your wife, and then you come home making a scene before the servants and humiliating me in their presence! Do you suppose that Irish girl didn't hear every word you said? You go in there and eat your dinner alone! Go on! Go and eat your dinner alone—because I won't eat with you!"

And she broke away from the detaining grasp he sought to fasten upon her, and dashed up the stairway, panting. He heard the door of her room slam overhead, and the sharp click of the key in the lock.

CHAPTER XVII.

At seven o'clock on the last morning of that month, Sheridan, passing through the upper hall, found a couple of scribbled sheets of note paper lying on the floor. He recognized the handwriting and put the sheets in his coat pocket, intending to give them to George or Jackson for return to the owner, but he forgot and carried them downtown with him. At noon he found himself alone in his office, and, having a little leisure, remembered the bits of manuscript, took them out, and glanced at them. Having satisfied himself that Bibbs' scribblings were only a sample of the kind of writing his son preferred to the machine shop, he decided, innocently enough, that he would be justified in reading them.

> It appears that a lady will nod pleasantly upon some windy generalization of a companion, and will wear the most agreeable expression of accepting it as the law, and then—days afterward, when the thing is a mummy to its promulgator—she will inquire out of a clear sky: "Why did you say that the people downtown have nothing in life that a chicken hasn't? What did you mean?" And she may say it in a manner that makes a sensible reply very difficult—you will be so full of wonder that she remembered so seriously.
>
> Yet, what does the rooster lack? He has food and shelter; he is warm in winter; his wives raise not one fine family for him, but dozens. He has a clear sky over him; he breathes sweet air; he walks in his April orchard under a roof of flowers. He must die, violently perhaps, but quickly. Is Midas' cancer a better way? The rooster's wives and children must die. Are those of Midas immortal? His life is shorter than the life of Midas, but Midas' life is only a sixth as long as that of the Galapagos tortoise.
>
> The rooster is a dependent; he depends upon the farmer and the weather. Midas is a dependent; he depends upon the farmer and the weather. The rooster thinks only of the moment; Midas provides for tomorrow. What does he provide for tomorrow? Nothing that the rooster will not have without providing. The rooster and the prosperous worker: they are born, they grub, they love; they grub and love grubbing; they grub and they die. Neither knows beauty; neither knows knowledge. And after all, when Midas and the rooster dies, there is one thing Midas has had and rooster has not. Midas has had the excitement of accumulating what he has grubbed, and that has been his life and his love and his god. He cannot take that god with him when he dies. I wonder if the worthy gods are those we can take with us.
>
> Midas must teach all to be as Midas; the young must be raised in his religion—

The manuscript ended there, and Sheridan was not anxious for more. He crumpled the sheets into a ball, depositing it (with vigor) in a wastebasket beside him; then, rising, he consulted a Cyclopedia of Names, which a book agent had somehow sold to him years before; a volume now first put to use for the location of "Midas." Having read the legend, Sheridan walked up and down the spacious office, exhaling the breath of contempt. "Dam' fool!" he mumbled.

He felt very lonely, and this was, daily, his hardest hour. For a long time he and Jim had lunched together habitually at a small restaurant near the Sheridan building, where they spent twenty minutes in the consumption of food, and twenty in talk, with cigars. But now Sheridan remained alone in his office; he had not gone out to lunch since Jim's death, nor did he have anything sent to him—he fasted until evening.

It was the time he missed Jim personally the most—the voice and eyes and handshake, all brisk and alert, all businesslike. But Sheridan's sense of loss went far deeper. Jim was the one who would have been surest to keep the great property growing greater, year by year. Sheridan had fallen asleep, night after night, picturing what the growth would be under Jim. He had believed that Jim was absolutely certain to be one of the biggest men in the country. Well, it was all up to Roscoe now!

That reminded him of a question he had in mind to ask Roscoe. It was a question Sheridan considered of no present importance, but his wife had suggested it—though vaguely—and he had meant to speak to Roscoe about it. However, Roscoe had not come into his father's office for several days, and when Sheridan had seen his son at home there had been no opportunity.

He waited until the greater part of his day's work was over, toward four o'clock, and then went down to Roscoe's office, which was on a lower floor. He found several men waiting for business interviews in an outer room of the series Roscoe occupied; and he supposed that he would find his son busy with others, and that his question would have to be postponed, but when he entered the door marked "R. C. Sheridan. Private," Roscoe was there alone.

He was sitting with his back to the door, his feet on a window-sill, and he did not turn as his father opened the door.

"Some pretty good men out there waitin' to see you, my boy," said Sheridan. "What's the matter?"

"Nothing," Roscoe answered indistinctly, not moving.

"Well, I guess that's all right, too. I let 'em wait sometimes myself! I just wanted to ask you a question, but I expect it'll keep, if you're workin' something out in your mind."

Roscoe made no reply; and his father, who had turned to the door, paused with his hand on the knob, staring curiously at the motionless figure in the chair. Usually the son seemed pleased and eager when he came to the office. "You're all right, ain't you?" said Sheridan. "Not sick, are you?"

"No."

Sheridan was puzzled; then, abruptly, he decided to ask his question. "I wanted to talk to you about that young Lamhorn," he said. "I guess your mother thinks he's comin' to see Edith pretty often, and you know him longer 'n any of us, so—"

"I won't," said Roscoe, thickly—"I won't say a dam' thing about him!"

Sheridan uttered an exclamation and walked quickly to a position near the window where he could see his son's face. Roscoe's eyes were bloodshot and vacuous; his hair was disordered, his mouth was distorted, and he was deathly pale. The father stood aghast.

"By George!" he muttered. "Roscoe!"

"My name," said Roscoe. "Can' help that."

"Roscoe!" Blank astonishment was Sheridan's first sensation. Probably nothing in the world could have more amazed him than to find Roscoe—the steady old wheel-horse—in this condition. "How'd you get this way?" he demanded. "You caught cold and took too much for it?"

For reply Roscoe laughed hoarsely. "Yeuh! Cold! I been drinkun all time, lately. Firs' you notice it?"

"By George!" cried Sheridan. "I thought I'd smelt it on you a good deal lately, but I wouldn't 'a' believed you'd take more'n was good for you. Bob! To see you like a common hog!"

Roscoe chuckled and threw out his right arm in a meaningless gesture. "Hog!" he repeated, chuckling.

"Yes, a hog!" said Sheridan, angrily. "In business hours! I don't object to anybody's takin' a drink if he wants to, out o' business hours; nor, if a man keeps his work right up to the scratch, I wouldn't be the one to baste him if he got good an' drunk once in two, three years, maybe. It ain't my way. I let it alone, but I never believed in forcin' my way on a grown-up son in moral matters. I guess I was wrong! You think them men out there are waitin' to talk business with a drunkard? You think you can come to your office and do business drunk? By George! I wonder how often this has been happening and me not on to it! I'll have a look over your books tomorrow, and I'll—

Roscoe stumbled to his feet, laughing wildly, and stood swaying, contriving to hold himself in position by clutching the back of the heavy chair in which he had been sitting.

"Hoo—hoorah!" he cried. "'S my principles, too. Be drunken all you want to—outside business hours. Don' for Gossake le'n'thing innerfere business hours! Business!! Thassit! You're right, father. Drink! Die! L'everything go to hell, but don't let innerfere business!"

Sheridan had seized the telephone upon Roscoe's desk, and was calling his own office, overhead. "Abercrombie? Come down to my son Roscoe's suite and get rid of some gentlemen that are waitin' there to see him in room two-fourteen. You needn't come in to let me know they're gone; we don't want to be disturbed. Tell Pauley to call my house and send Claus down here with a closed car. We may have to go out. Tell him to hustle, and call me at Roscoe's room as soon as the car gets here. 'T's all!"

Roscoe had laughed bitterly throughout this monologue. "Drunk in business hours! Thass awf'l! Mus'n' do such thing! Mus'n' get drunk, mus'n' gamble, mus'n' kill 'nybody—not in business hours! All right any other time. Kill 'nybody you want to—'s long 'tain't in business hours! Fine! Mus'n' have any trouble 't 'll innerfere business. Keep your trouble 't home. Don' bring it to th' office. Might innerfere business! Don't let your wife innerfere business! Keep all, all, all your trouble an' your meanness, an' your trad—your tragedy—keep 'em all for home use! If you got die, go on die 't home—don' die round the office! Might innerfere business!"

Sheridan picked up a newspaper from Roscoe's desk, and sat down with his back to his son, affecting to read. Roscoe seemed to be unaware of his father's significant posture.

"You know wh' I think?" he went on. "I think Bibbs only one the fam'ly any 'telligence at all. Won' work, an' di'n' get married. Jim worked, an' he got killed. I worked, an' I got married. Look at me! Jus' look at me. I ask you. Fine 'dustriss young business man. Look whass happen' to me! Fine!" He lifted his hand from the sustaining chair in a deplorable gesture, and immediately losing his balance, fell across the chair and caromed to the floor with a crash, remaining prostrate for several minutes, during which Sheridan did not relax his apparent attention to the newspaper. He did not even look round at the sound of Roscoe's fall.

Roscoe slowly climbed to an upright position, pulling himself up by holding to the chair. He was slightly sobered outwardly, having progressed in the prostrate interval to a state of befuddlement less volatile. He rubbed his dazed eyes with the back of his left hand.

"What—what you ask me while ago?" he said.

"Nothin'."

"Yes, you did. What—what was it?"

"Nothin'. You better sit down."

"You ask' me what I thought about Lamhorn. You did ask me that. Well, I won't tell you. I won't say dam' word 'bout him!"

The telephone bell tinkled. Sheridan placed the receiver to his ear and said, "Right down." Then he got Roscoe's coat and hat from a closet and brought them to his son. "Get into this coat," he said. "You're goin' home."

"All ri'," murmured Roscoe, obediently.

They went out into the main hall by a side door. Roscoe walked out of the building without lurching, and twenty minutes later walked into his own house in the same manner, neither he nor his father having spoken a word in the interval.

Sheridan did not go in with him; he went home, and to his own room without meeting any of his family. But as he passed Bibbs' door he heard from within the sound of a cheerful young voice humming jubilant fragments of song:

Who looks the mustang in the eye? . . .
With a leap from the ground
To the saddle in a bound,
And away—and away!
Hi-yay!

It was the first time in Sheridan's life that he had ever detected any musical symptom whatever in Bibbs—he had never even heard him whistle—and it seemed the last touch of irony that the useless fool should be merry today.

To Sheridan it was Tom o' Bedlam singing while the house burned; and he did not tarry to enjoy the melody, but went into his own room and locked the door.

CHAPTER XVIII.

He emerged only upon a second summons to dinner, two hours later, and came to the table so white and silent that his wife made her anxiety manifest and was but partially reassured by his explanation that his lunch had "disagreed" with him a little.

Presently, however, he spoke effectively. Bibbs, whose appetite had become hearty, was helping himself to a second breast of capon from white-jacket's salver. "Here's another difference between Midas and chicken," Sheridan remarked, grimly. "I reckon you overlooked that. Midas looks to me like he had the advantage there."

Bibbs retained enough presence of mind to transfer the capon breast to his plate without dropping it and to respond. "Yes—he crows over it."

Having returned his antagonist's fire in this fashion, he blushed—for he could blush distinctly now—and his mother looked upon him with pleasure, though the reference to Midas and roosters was of course jargon to her. "Did you ever see anybody improve the way that child has!" she exclaimed. "I declare, Bibbs, sometimes lately you look right handsome!"

"He's got to be such a gadabout," Edith giggled.

"I found something of his on the floor upstairs this morning, before anybody was up," said Sheridan. "I reckon if people lose things in this house and expect to get 'em back, they better get up as soon as I do."

"What was it he lost?" asked Edith.

"He knows!" her father returned. "Seems to me like I forgot to bring it home with me. I looked it over—thought probably it was something pretty important, belongin' to a busy man like him." He affected to search his pockets. "What did I do with it, now? Oh yes! Seems to me like I remember leavin' it down at the office—in the waste basket.

"Good place for it," Bibbs murmured, still red.

Sheridan gave him a grin. "Perhaps pretty soon you'll be gettin' up early enough to find things before I do!"

It was a threat, and Bibbs repeated the substance of it later in the evening, to Mary Vertrees—they had come to know each other that well.

"My time's here at last," he said, as they sat together in the melancholy gas light of the room which had been denuded of its piano. But the gas light, though from a single jet, shed no melancholy upon Bibbs, nor could any room seem bare that knew the glowing presence of Mary. He spoke lightly, not sadly.

"Yes, it's come. I've shirked and put it off, but I can't shirk and put off any longer. It's really my part to go to him—at least it would save my face. He means what he says, and the time's come to serve my sentence. Hard labor for life, I think."

Mary shook her head. "I don't think so. He's too kind."

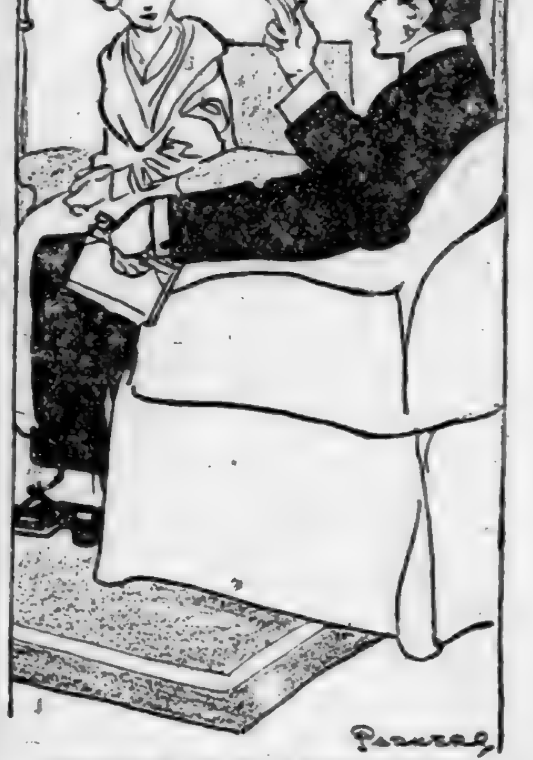
"You think my father's kind?" And Bibbs stared at her.

"Yes. I'm sure of it. I've felt that he has a great, brave heart. It's only that he has to be kind in his own way—because he can't understand any other way."

"Ah yes," said Bibbs. "If that's what you mean by 'kind'!"

She looked at him gravely, earnest concern in her friendly eyes. "It's going to be pretty hard for you, isn't it?"

"Oh—self-pity!" he returned, smiling. "This has been just the last flicker of revolt. Nobody minds work if he likes the kind of work. There'd be no loafers in the world if each man found the thing that he could do best; but the only work I happen to want to do is useless—so I have to give it up. Tomorrow I'll be a day laborer."



"Tomorrow I'll Be a Day Laborer."

"What is it like—exactly?"

"It wasn't muscularly exhausting—not at all. They couldn't give me a heavier job because I wasn't good enough."

"But what will you do? I want to know."

"When I left," said Bibbs, "I was 'on' what they call over there a 'clipping machine,' and that's what I'll be sent back to. It's very simple and very easy. I feed long strips of zinc into a pair of steel jaws, and the jaws bite the zinc into little circles. And yet I was a very bad hand at it."

He had kept his voice cheerful as he spoke, but he had grown a shade paler, and there was a latent anguish deep in his eyes. He may have known it and wished her not to see it, for he turned away.

"You do that all day long!" she exclaimed. "No wonder—" She broke off, and then, after a keen glance at his face, she said: "I should think you would have been a 'bad hand at it'!"

He laughed ruefully. "I think it's the noise, though I'm ashamed to say it. You see, it's a very powerful machine, and there's a sort of rhythmical crashing—a crash every time the jaws bite off a circle."

Do you believe that delicate, high-strung Bibbs will be able to stand the din and monotony of work in the shop—how long do you think he will last at the job?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

AUGUST

L 908

0257

Gasoline 19c at Patterson's Garage,
St. JOE, INDIANA

Coburn's Corners

Miss Fern Walker was the guest of Miss Gladys Conine, Sunday afternoon.

Mark Shull and Gail Hadsell spent Saturday evening at I. S Hadsells' at Bicksville.

Mrs. Cordelia Dermott and son Victor, were Sunday afternoon callers at J. M. Dermotts'.

Master Wellington Shull, who has been visiting in this vicinity, returned to his home at Hart, Mich., Saturday.

Mrs. W. M. Abel, Mrs. Alice Hart and Mrs. Melvina Alton were afternoon and supper guests of Mrs. T. H. Shull, Friday.

W. M. Abel and wife, R. H. Abel and wife, and Mrs Melvina Alton were Sunday visitors at Philip Carpers' near Auburn.

Charley Coburn, wife and daughters, Mona and Myra, and son Elgin, of Fremont, Mich., are expected the first of the week to visit in the home of their daughter, Mrs. Winifred Hart. Their daughter, Miss Ruby, who has spent several weeks in this vicinity will return with them.

Mrs. Jennie Lynn, son Kenneth, daughter Mrs. Francis Gebhart, Mrs. Potts and Mrs Deitrick, all of Ft. Wayne, were guests of P. A. Walker and family, on Wednesday of last week. Leroy Walker also of Ft. Wayne, spent Saturday and Sunday with the same family.

The Misses Vera and Mabel Smith, of Helmer, were Saturday and Sunday guests in the home of T. H. Shull and family. The Sunday afternoon callers were:-S P. Hadsell and family, the Misses Gail Hadsell, Audrey Coburn, Ruby Coburn and Gladys Place, the Messrs. Fay Wilmot, Marvin Cole and Roscoe Place.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons. Pastor.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m.; Prayer Meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Preaching, 7:30 p. m ;Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:30.

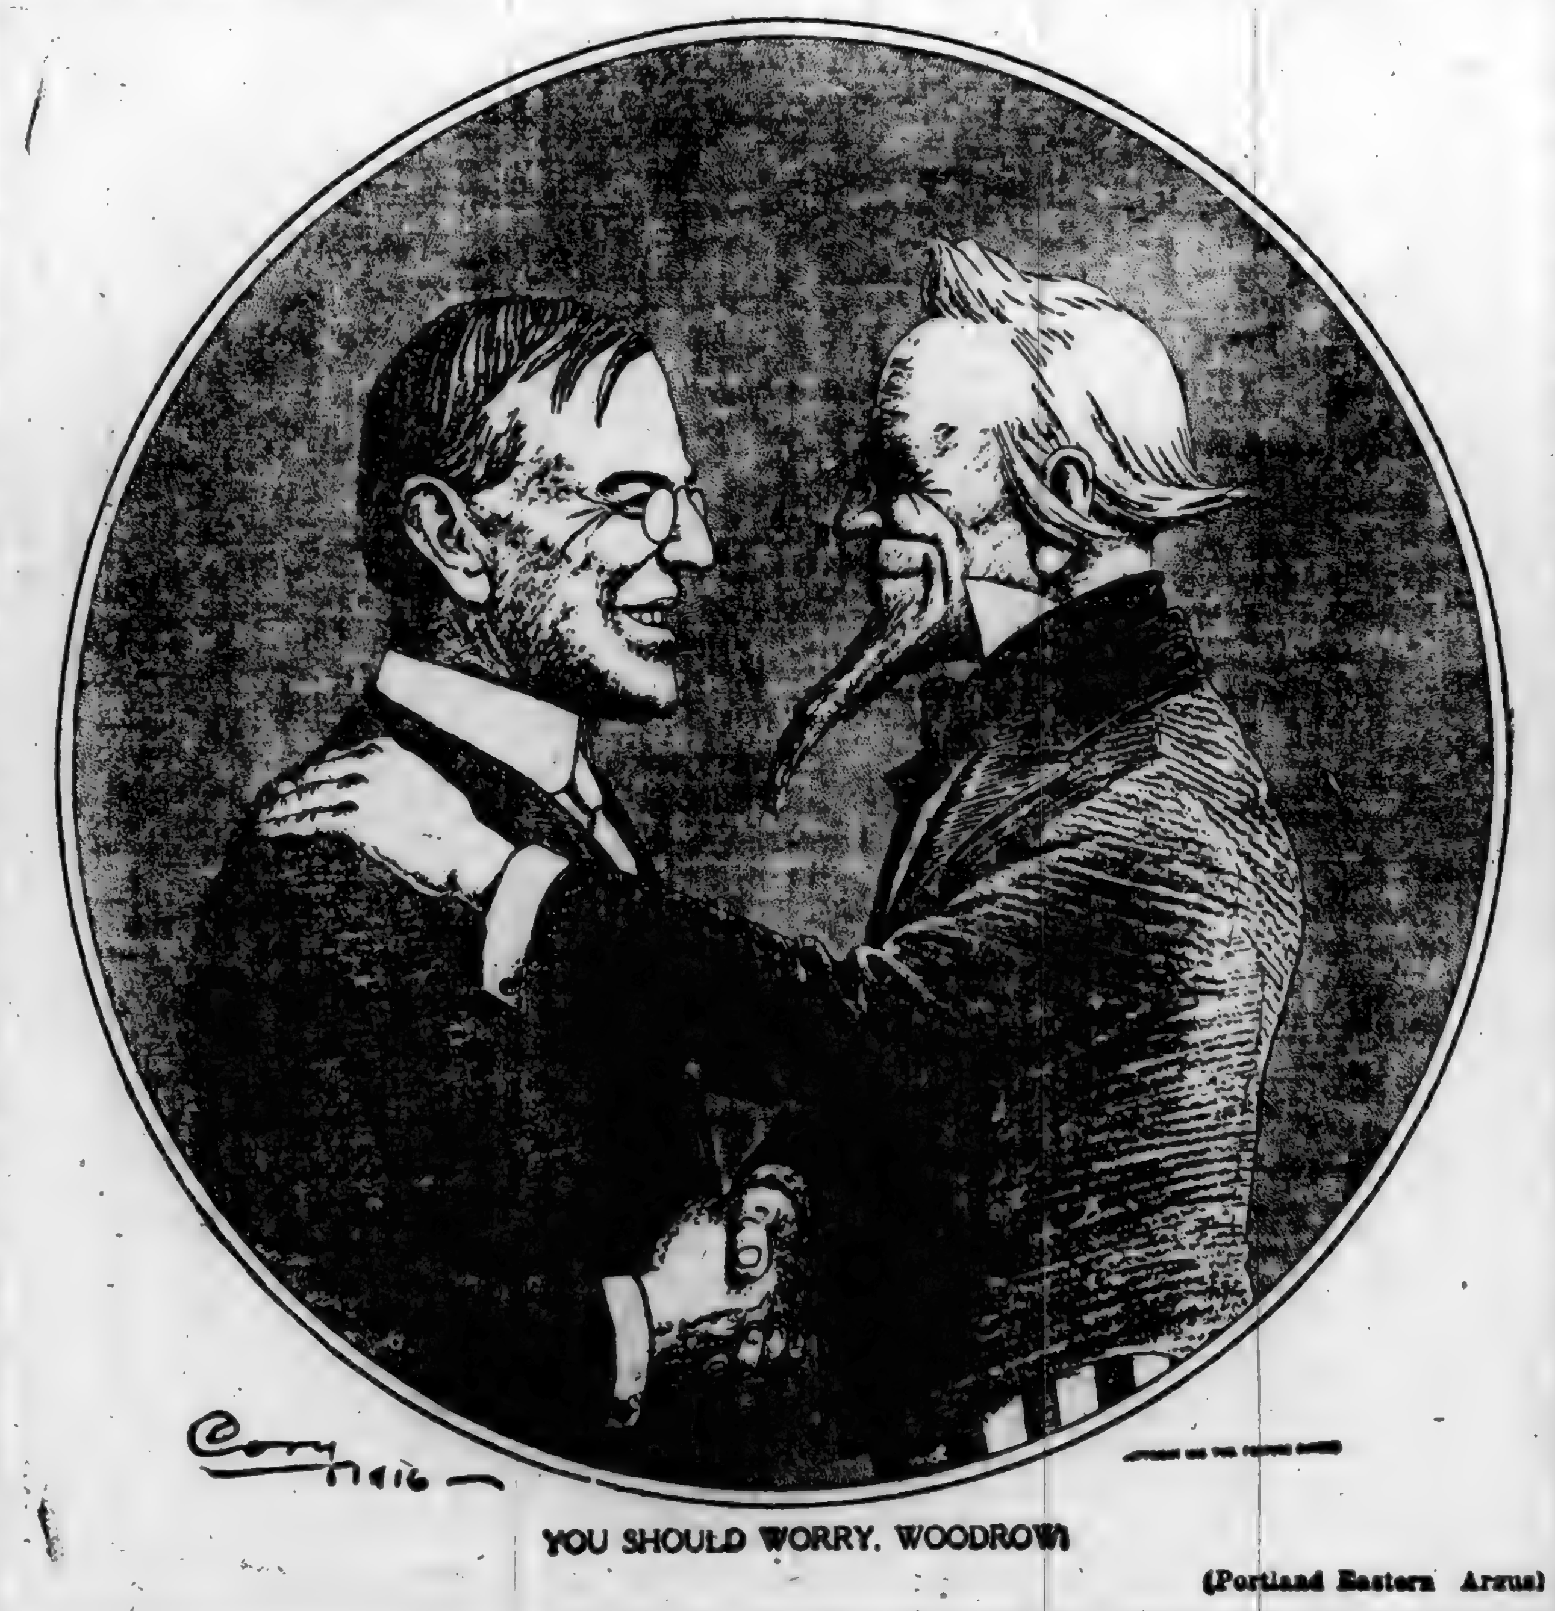
Christian Church Announcements.

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma. Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Preaching services, 10:30 a. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

WANTED!
YOUR POULTRY
For which we will pay the highest market price.
Call us and we will call and get them.
J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana



YOU SHOULD WORRY, WOODROW!

(Portland Eastern Argus)

Local Briefs

C. T. Bayman was at Wayne, Monday, on business.

Francis Skilling came Tuesday to visit relatives.

Mrs. Anna Bachtol and little daughter Josephine, visited Auburn friends over Sunday.

Will Hamilton, wife and daughter, and James Provines were Sunday dinner guests of Otto Cannon and wife.

Mrs. Laura Willard, of Union Iowa, came Wednesday to visit her parents, W. P Coburn and wife, and other relatives in this vicinity

Rev. S. D. Dunican and wife, of Cecil, Ohio, and Paul Dunican, of Grand Rapids, spent the first of the week with the Goldsmith Sisters.

Mrs. Emma Abel spent from Friday until Monday with her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Woodcox and family. Little Miss Mildred and Master Blaine Woodcox returned to Auburn with Mrs. Abel after a visit with St. Joe relatives.

Mrs. Josephine Coburn, who was called to the home of her parents, Mr. Carnes and wife, at Bloomington sometime ago on account of the illness of her sister, writes friends here that her sister is much improved.

Family reunions are getting quite numerous. The Walter reunion will be held at Robison Park, Thursday, Aug. 31st., while the White family reunion will convene at Auburn, at the High School grounds on September 2nd.

Mother's Cook Book.

Spanish Rice.

Take a cupful of boiled rice, four tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, four tablespoonfuls of sifted tomato, one teaspoonful of onion, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful each of chutney, mustard and curry powder, salt and a dash of pepper. Melt the butter in a saucepan, put in the onion and curry and cook for a few minutes. Add the rice, cheese, tomato pulp, mustard and chopped chutney; mix and beat well together. Season and turn into a baking dish. Sprinkle with browned crumbs and put into the oven to heat. Serve very hot with brown bread and butter.

Raspberries In Snow.

Pour a cupful of cold water and a cupful of sugar over a package of gelatine, stir until the sugar is dissolved, and let stand until stiff. Add a cupful of boiling water and the juice of two lemons. Beat the whites of four eggs until frothy, add to the gelatine and continue to beat until white, when it is ready to set; fold in a pint of ripe berries, pour into a mold and set away to harden. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Frozen Dainties.

Even a cupful of fruit juice may be combined with a little orange or lemon juice, some cream and sugar, and when frozen make a most delicious dessert for a hot day. Grape juice, one cupful, a tablespoonful of lemon juice to make the color more brilliant, and sugar to taste, with a pint of cream frozen, is the most delightful bit of color served in sherbet cups, and tastes every bit as good as it looks.

Good Things for Warm Days.

Rice lends itself in many ways to give us attractive dishes. The simplest of these is rice baked with milk. Two or three tablespoonfuls of rice added with the same amount of sugar and a little salt to one or two quarts of milk, with or without raisins, and baked in a slow oven for three or four hours, makes a most satisfying pudding, good for little people as well as their elders.

Nellie Maxwell

Susie Sechler visited with Byron Widney and wife over Sunday.

Cured of Terrible Cough.

Mrs. John Polter of 359 S. Williams street, Paulding, Ohio, says: "I took a severe cold in August which acted like hay fever; I thought the cold would soon wear off so I neglected to doctor for it. It went to my lungs and from that time on I coughed almost continually day and night until I began to spit blood. I lost in weight and looked so bad that people thought I had tuberculosis. I tried Glando Pine. The first bottle helped me. I used three bottles straight, then less frequent until I was cured. I am now perfectly well and firmly believe Glando Pine saved my life. I would not think of being without this wonderful medicine in my home. My throat and catarrhal trouble has also ceased to bother me."

Glando Pine can be secured at drug stores. Accept no substitute. For sale by All Druggists.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Emma Marrow was a Hicksville visitor, Wednesday.

The threshing machine made music in our neighborhood, last week.

Mrs. Estella Sherman, of Chicago, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Ayers and other relatives.

Mrs. Frank Snellbaker, of Swanton, Ohio, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Harter.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Mrs. Jane Hatch is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Sarah Ellery, of Albion, who recently buried her husband.

J. H. Benner and wife and Eveline Engle attended the Benner reunion at Bryan, on Thursday of last week.

Mrs. Mattie Crouse and children, of Auburn, were guests of Mrs. Nancy Fell and family, the latter part of the week.

Mrs. Boren and daughter, Miss Grace Fee, and Mrs. Nellie McDonald, of Butler, were guests of John Miller and wife, Wednesday.

John Washler and wife motored to LaGrange, Saturday, and was the over night guest of the latter's sister, Mrs. Sylvia Walter and family.

The U. B. Services were held in the open Sunday evening. The preacher talking from the top step this made it quite comfortable for the audience but a little difficult about the singing. Chairs were brought out and the audience comfortable seated.

Mrs. John Friend, an aged lady, who has been an invalid for a couple of years, died Sunday afternoon at her home about 2 miles south of town. The funeral was held Wednesday with interment in the Sherwood (Ohio) Cemetery.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA
Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,................No. 2
Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

St. Joe Locals

The Wyatt Family Reunion will be held in Auburn on Thursday, Aug. 31, in the Eckhart Park All relatives are invited.

Rev. Joe Scholes, of Johnstown, Pa., came Monday for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Mary Scholes, and other relatives.

Class 3 and 4 of the Concord Sunday School desire to thank the public for their patronage at the Bake sale held last Saturday in the Kinsey room, also Mr. Kinsey for his room.

The Defiance County Fair will be held at Hicksville, Aug. 22—26.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale:-Acme Washer and Wringer. All in good shape. Will sell cheap.
MRS. H. L. DUNKLE.

LOST:-Black Leather Music Roll, north of School House. Roll contained Etude and a sheet of music with Ruth Eckright name on it. Finder please return same to ETHEL METCALF, Spencerville.

LOST:-A Tie Clasp, with letter B. Finder return to F. R. Bowman. Lost last Thursday evening in making run to fire.

FEEDERS
Stop, Look and Listen
Place orders now for your Bran and Middlings, we have a car on the way.
Come in when in town, you are always welcome, and we are glad to greet you at
St. JOE ELEVATOR
SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

Your Silent Fartner In Business-
THIS BANK.
A good business man is an item of wealth to a community. Obviously, If a Bank can add to its customer's ability and thereby increase his business, the Bank is multiplying community wealth. That is what we are endeavoring to accomplish.
We can help you in perhaps a larger way than you have yet realized. It is our purpose to do all that we can to make your relations with us profitable to you. Will you do your part?
St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank
4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.
Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.
Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.
Total Assets, over $175,000
The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906
4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.
Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

AUGUST

L 908

0258

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY AUG. 17 1916 — NO. 34

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Chas. Bills and family, of Auburn, visited relatives here a few days the past week.

WANTED—To buy your Hay. C. E. Frye, Phone 73-31, St. Joe.

C. H. Sailer, wife, daughter Luzerne, and son Ray, also Elgin and Grover Curie were at Hamilton Lake, Sunday.

Miss Mary Welsh, of Ft. Wayne, came Saturday and spent a few days with Miss Edith Berry, who accompanied her home on Wednesday.

The White Family Reunion will be held at the Eckhart park, Auburn, Saturday, September 2, instead of at the School Grounds. All relatives will please take notice.

Wealfhy and Maiden Blush Apples f o r cooking at Bear Creek orchard.

Chas. Koch is the owner of a new Ford. He has always held to the fact that when he wanted to go in a hurry he would take his horses, and he made good a number of times. But, he had the fever and the only relief was a Ford car.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	112	$3.69
M. P	88	4 04
Christian	54	1.85
Concord	113
Fairview	21	.68
M. E. Spencer	83	7.95
Lutheran	84	2 25
Coburntown	92	3.—

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c.

E. R. Kinsey made a business trip to Detroit, last Monday.

The Harriett Bills and Ed Leighty residences are being painted, this week.

Get one of our Stock Dr. Books. Free for the asking.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Lessie Meek has a very neat barber pole in front his shop and an electric light illuminates it in fine shape.

H. F. Garton and wife were Sunday guests of her parents at Harlan. Miss Zora returned with them after spending a few days there.

John Ulm and family, Emanuel Ulm and wife, and Chas. Jackson and family, of Concord, were guests of Mrs. Jane Sturgis at Sturgis, Mich., last Sunday.

The editor is in receipt of a most cordial invitation to attend the Democratic Barbecue at Robison Park, next Saturday, and also to be entertained at dinner at the Anthony Hotel. This meeting will open the state campaign and a large crowd is expected.

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

A delegation of men from the Christian Church at Auburn visited the St. Joe, Coburntown and Newville churches, Sunday morning, in the interest of the Yearly Meeting of the Churches of Christ to be held the last Saturday and Sunday in August, at Eckhart Park, Auburn.

750,000 cigarettes are sold weekly to the soldiers at Llano Grande Camp, Texas, where 11,000 soldiers are stationed, and of this number one-third are from Indiana. It is suggested by the County Sunday School Association that August 27th., be set aside as Patriotic Day in the Sunday Schools and an offering be taken and sent to the boys. What for—to buy cigarettes? Better send them some literature to read that would get those things out of their head.

Your Silent Fartner In Business-

THIS BANK.

A good business man is an item of wealth to a community. Obviously, If a Bank can add to its customer's ability and thereby increase his business, the Bank is multiplying community wealth. That is what we are endeavoring to accomplish.

We can help you in perhaps a larger way than you have yet realized. It is our purpose to do all that we can to make your relations with us profitable to you. Will you do your part?

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

FEEDERS

Get Your Bran and Middlings NOW.

They are advancing and will advance more.

Try a barrell of our salt and ask to see our rock block salt. It is great for cattle.

We are making St. Joe headquarters for all grains. You are always sure of getting the highest market price for whatever kind of grain you bring in.

Come in and pay us a visit. We will always be pleased to see you and you can always expect only the most courteous treatment, at

* *

St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

On and After August 31st. the Price for Shaving will be raised to 15 cents Straight.

SIGNED, Barbers of St. Joe.

Wesley Husselman and wife, of Butler, were St. Joe visitors, Friday afternoon.

Harold Dunlap, of North Manchester, came Friday evening for a visit with St. Joe friends.

Mrs. Delia Wade, of Petoskey, Mich., spent Monday with her sister, Mrs. Amanda Shaffer.

Mrs W. L. Webster and daughter, of Chicago, were Thursday guests of Mrs. Flora Simanton.

Mrs. C. D. Reasoner and children, of Elkhart, are visiting the former's mother, Mrs. Anna Dilley.

Mrs. John Beard and daughter Muriel, of Waterloo, were Thursday guests of Will Randall and wife.

R. Bearss and H. M. Widney have the contract for two miles of the William Knight ditch. It is a big job but is being pushed through rapidly.

Mrs. Delia Wade, of Petoskey, Mich., and Mrs. Nellie Perry were Friday dinner guests of Mrs. Jennie Abel, and supper guests of Mrs Flora Gee.

Floyd Dean and family, of Hawkeye, Iowa, have purchased the Dwyer farm, three miles south of Spencerville, and will move their goods in the near future.

About eighteen St. Joe ladies of the Lutheran Missionary Society met at the country home of Mrs. Charles Reasoner, Saturday afternoon, and after the lesson each one brought forth something good to eat when a fine pot luck supper was served and enjoyed by all.

Benjamin Hamilton and wife, O. K. Shull and family, Lee O. Tustison, wife and little son, Will Hamilton, wife and little daughter, and Mrs. H. G. Provines and son James, enjoyed a picnic dinner and the afternoon at Robison Park, Sunday.

The following boys from here joined the Y. M. C. A., Camp at Lake Hamilton, Monday, for a week's outing:—Clayton and Russell Hathaway, Richard Bayman, Joseph Koch, Gerald Kinsey, Merritt Milliman, Henry Reinoehl and George Kees. Gray Woodcox went to look after the boys from this place.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR KIDNEYS ACT BADLY

Take tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers—Drink lots of water.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

Wm. Randall was a Ft. Wayne visitor, Saturday.

Miss Alice Richmondt was an over Sunday guest of Waterloo friends.

Mark Moor and wife, and Ross Abel and wife spent Sunday at Hamilton Lake.

James Rhodenbaugh and Elmer Hart made a business trip to Hicksville, Thursday.

Mrs. Winnie Moore and daughter, of Auburn, visited in the Reeder home from Saturday to Wednesday.

Miss Fae Manning, of Hicksville, spent several days last week with Mrs. Lillian Buckingham and other friends.

Charles M. Coburn, wife and daughters, Ruby and Mauna, and son Elgin, returned by motor to their home in Fremont, Mich., Monday morning.

The Carnahan family reunion will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Bishop, four and one-half miles northwest of Spencerville today. The reunion will be held in the grove adjoining the Bishop home.

Farmers from the neighborhood will be in St. Joe, Saturday afternoon, to witness the demonstration of the Mogul 8-16 tractor, by Wm. Curie, on the C. Curie farm just south of town. It's an opportunity to see the machine in operation and everyone is invited to the field. Read the advertisement in this issue.

Special Judge C. M. Brown has rendered a decision in the case of the Savings Loan & Trust company of Auburn, vs. David R. Kohst, S. P. Kohst and J. R. Shilling. The court on the warranty deed executed by D. R., and Donna Kohst to S. P. Kohst decreed that this deed was a mortgage and that the plaintiff is entitled to have execution issued to sell the redemption of the defendant, David R Kohst, in lots 17 and 18, Leighty's add. to St. Joe, and the plaintiff is also entitled to his costs.—Star.

Organdies in High Favor.

Some of the loveliest frocks of the summer are of organdie. Organdie lends itself well to the billowy effects in fashion and yards and yards of the crisp, sheer fabric go into ruffles, flounces, puffings and shirrings for the new organdie dresses. An organdie frock for a young girl has a skirt eight yards around, tucked from hem to belt by hand; the bodice is also tucked across to match and the sleeves are little puffs with hand-hemmed ruffles. The complete effect is delightfully girlish and charming. There is youthfulness also in a second organdie frock, a model with rows of shirring around the hips. Only a slender, girlish figure could stand this very bouffant frock, with its full, gathered waist drawn down into a tiny ribbon sash. The sash is violet in color.

Lingerie Frocks Worn.

There is an effort being made to make lingerie frocks fashionable again by some of the fine dressmakers. Now that laces and embroidery are in again this seems to be the moment. Some lovely frocks are seen made of finest white batiste with heavy French embroideries in very high relief and combined with flounces of eight or ten-inch filet, or lace of the valenciennes type. The loose fencelike collar, attached to a wide shallow decollete, and made of lace lightly wired, is generally seen on these frocks.

The Rural Chautauqua is on at Newville, this week.

J. K. Stafford, of Auburn, was in town, Saturday.

Tim Agler and family were Saturday and Sunday visitors at Lake George.

Clark Roberts and wife, and Floyd Dean and wife were Thursday visitors, at Ft. Wayne.

F. M. Monroe, wife and son Vernie, spent a few days the past week at McCool, the guests of her folks.

For the benefit of our customers through the busy harvest, we will keep open evening.
St. Joe Mills.

The Misses Alene Miller and Princess Foote, of Harlan, returned nome Saturday after a weeks visit in the Frank Sechler and Wm. Randall homes.

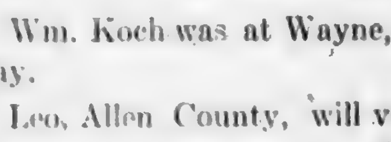
Boys and Girls bring us your paper sacks. For good clean sacks we will pay 1c. for 25 lb. sacks, and 2c. for 50lb. sacks.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Mary Sechler and daughter Avis, left St. Joe last Thursday, for a weeks trip. They went to Angola and from there to South Haven, Mich., and then to Goshen and home.

Frank Keesler, of Spencerville, has made application for a divorce. He was married in 1914 in Chicago and his wife Mae, left him the same year. He has been living with his parents for the past two years.

Fred Reeder and family left yesterday for Delphos, Kan., over the Wabash, having secured a pass for the trip. When but 4 years old Fred went to Kansas and spent 17 years there. When but 5 months old his mother died and he was cared for by his foster-mother, Mrs. H. C. Bigbee, up until he came east. The trip will be a most enjoyable one for them as he had not had the privilege of visiting there since leaving. He will also visit about Lamar. They expect to be gone for a month.

Daily Jots



Wm. Koch was at Wayne, Monday.

Leo, Allen County, will vote on the Local Option question, August 29th.

Mrs. Garton, of Wayne, was a guest of her son, H. F. and family, this week for a few days.

Hazel Timmerman, of Auburn, was a guest of Roy Koch and family, last Saturday and Sunday.

O. L. Widney and family, of Hicksville, spent the past week with Byron Widney and wife, on the farm.

John Feathers, wife and five children, and his mother, of Garrett; and Guster Baker, of Wayne, were Sunday guests of Morris Lothamers'.

An appropriation of $45,000 will be asked of the County Council at their September session, to erect a new jail for this county, next year. It is stated that no raise in the tax levy will be necessary. No plans will be made until the appropriation has been granted.

If you have trouble getting good butter, try "Moxleys Special" a butter substitute. Cheaper and better than butter. Price 23c. per pound, at BASSETTS' on Widney Ave.

St. Joe will soon have all the pleasures of a Lakeside Summer Resort. The men and boys of the town have contributed and built a tobbogan slide just south of Riverside Cemetery, which is 25 feet above the surface of the water with a 60 foot slope. There is also a spring board and a wire a pulley. They plan soon to build two dressing rooms, for ladies and men. Mr. C. C. Curie gave them the privilege of using his land. The boys thank one and all who have helped in any way to make the "Old Swimmin Hole" a success.

Farmers—See This Big Field

WORTH SEEING — Demonstration — EVERYBODY WELCOME

GRAND PRIZE WINNER
AT SAN FRANCISCO
EXPOSITION

$725 Mogul 8-16 Kerosene-Burning Tractor $725

See the Grand Prize Tractor at

The C. CURIE Farm

Just South of St. Joe, at 2:00 o'clock, on SATURDAY, AUGUST 19th.

In Field Just East of Barn

THERE are many good reasons why you should see this tractor in actual operation. The Mogul 8-16 is an all-the-year-'round, all-purpose tractor. Farmers in all sections of the country are now using it. Why? Because it does all kinds of work. It does the plain harrowing, disking, and drilling. During harvest and haying it pulls binders, mowers, a hay loader, etc. It does the hauling, drags the road, in fact, nearly everything that horses are used for.

So far, we have only told you the half. There is also the belt work—grinding feed, pumping water, threshing, filling the silo, shelling and shredding corn, etc. It does all these and more too.

Be sure to see the Mogul 8-16, the successful kerosene-burning tractor. This feature will cut your fuel bills nearly in half. Find out how simple the Mogul 8-16 is, how easy to operate; see the big points that have already sold thousands.

Wm. CURIE,

Implement Dealer

St. Joe, - - - - Indiana.

AUGUST

L 908

0259

HOOSIERS TAKE LEAD AT FRONT

Lewis, Carleton and Turnock Help Sustain Reputation of State.

SOLDIERS LIBERAL SPENDERS

Buy Carload of Ice Cream From Houston and Smoke 750,000 Cigarettes Every Week—Consume Oceans of Various Beverages.

Mercedes, Tex.—No matter where you go you always will find Indiana taking the lead. Brig. Gen. E. M. Lewis is the general in command at Llano Grande camp, an Indiana man. Captain Carleton, the camp quartermaster, is an Indiana man, and the new government hospital is to be built under the direction of Indiana men. The hospital, which will cost unequipped about $15,000, is to be built under the direct supervision of Lieut. L. A. Turnock, Third Indiana, of Elkhart. Lieutenant Turnock supervised the erection of the warehouses and other government buildings on the grounds.

Capt. A. C. Arnett of Ambulance company No. 2 of Indianapolis will have the supervision of installing the equipment in the hospital except the X-ray room, which will be built under the supervision of Capt. A. G. Chittick of Ambulance company No. 1 of Frankfort. A great deal of work will be done by skilled workmen from Indiana. The hospital, when finished, will be one of the finest in the Rio Grande valley and will relieve the congestion at Brownsville and San Antonio hospitals.

Much of the work on the Indiana Y. M. C. A. building, which is the finest on the grounds, was done by Indiana soldiers, who took great pride in their work and who are members of the Young Men's Christian association at their homes.

It was announced that the war department has ordered three noncommissioned officers to assist the regular army officers who are instructing the different Indiana units.

Have you any idea how much cold stuff is disposed of in Llano camp every day? The figures, as supplied by the officers of the post exchanges and the concessionaries, are startling. A case of pop contains about 24 bottles, and an average of 400 cases are sold each day. An average of 1,000 ice cream cones are sold; 200 cases of root beer and 55 cases of another beverage are sold. More than 50 barrels of lemonade are sold. There are 175 lemons in a case, and the average sale is 11 cases a day. Oranges do not sell so well and only a few of them are disposed of.

The officers' tents alone have more than 100 gallons of ice water daily and two carloads of ice are distributed daily.

Going Home for Recruiting Work.

Under orders from the war department the Indiana commanders have detailed a squad from each organiztion for recruiting service in Indiana. They are to report to the mustering office at Fort Benjamin Harrison and will then go on recruiting service all over the state. This is taken to mean that the troops are to be filled to war strength and indicates a long stay on the border.

Col. Leslie R. Naftzger of the First Indiana Infantry has designated William H. Miller, Sergt. Walter Harris, Company A; Sergt. Joseph R. Nay, Company F; Corp. Charles F. Seib, Company G; Corp. Martin E. Barger, Company K; Othnell Chambers, private, Company I; F. G. Taylor, private, Company B.

Colonel Coulter of the Second regiment has not announced all his details, but the following are the officers:

First Lieut. Paul T. Talbott, Company B; First Lieut. Guy Haggerty, Company G.

Col. Aubrey L. Kuhlman of the Third regiment has detailed Capt. Carl F. Byer, Company H; Lieut. Lewis B. Hershey, Company B; Sergt. Grant T. Wynneger, Company M; Sergt. Boyd Bunnall, Company C; Corp. Leroy Likens, Company K; Corp. Charles J. Gibbs, Company L; Patsey Perchit, private, Company E, and Harry Barrows, private, Company F.

Major Tyndall, Indiana field artillery, detailed the following:

First Lieut. H. C. Mahin, Battery B; Sergeant Frank T. Hastings, Battery A; Corporal Abner Wermoff, Battery C; C. H. Libbert, Battery B.

It is not known how long these men will be on recruiting service, but they will leave here for Indianapolis.

Rejected Men Lose Out.

The central department of the war department has sent orders to Franklin L. Bridges, adjutant general, in which it is set out that all officers and men now doing recruiting duty in Indiana shall be immediately mobilized at Fort Benjamin Harrison for discharge, their places to be taken by detachments of Guardsmen sent here from the federalized troops on the Mexican border.

Governor Ralston said orders had been sent under a misunderstanding as to the men now employed in recruiting in Indiana. He said he believed as soon as the war department understood that the men doing recruiting here were still members of the National Guard, although they have been rejected as federalized Guardsmen, the orders from the war department would be so changed that the present recruiting forces would be left in Indiana and that supplemental forces would be brought in from the federalized Guardsmen on the Mexican border.

Smuggling Lasts for Years.

The United States secret service men have evidence that has been placed in the hands of federal authorities and if the federal grand juries consider this evidence there will be indictments returned against men living in Texas. There are Mexicans on this side of the river whose grandfathers and great-grandfathers were smugglers. It has been going on for years and will go on for years and all the cavalry patrols of the United States and Mexico and all the customs inspectors of both countries cannot stop it, but it can be reduced to a minimum and guerrila warfare can be reduced to almost nothing if the United States polices both sides of the border. In the opinion of well informed men, this is what will be done. Of course, this will not be satisfactory to the people living along the American border.

Hardened for Border Service.

It no longer is believed that the Indiana troops were sent to Texas to drill. They could have drilled just as well at Fort Harrison and belief is that they were sent here to be hardened to the tropical climate for service. It does not make a particle of difference what agreement is made between the United States and Mxico, so far as this part of the two countries is concerned.

A peace compact may be signed at Washington and Mexico City, but that pact will have no binding effect on either side of the Rio Grande for many miles back. There may be no war with Mexico, but the border feud will continue and the only thing that keeps the Mexicans from crossing into this territory is the presence of the soldiers. To be sure, these Mexicans may be classed as bandits, but a bandit is a dangerous proposition. It will take six months perhaps to put the Indiana troops, as a unit, in fighting shape, except perhaps the artillery. Washington evidently has a lot of information it is not giving out and a man who is in a position to know what is going on at the national capital said:

"President Wilson is preparing for eventualities; it is only a question of time and not a long time until an army is sent into Mexico and not very far but far enough to police the border and prevent the gigantic system of smuggling now going on and to prevent bandit raids. Should a commission be appointed by the two countries, the United States will ask permission to send its soldiers into Mexico far enough to police the border and if this permission is not granted the troops will go any way. It is known definitely that all of the smugglers are not on the Mexican side of the river."

Big Increase in Industries.

Indianapolis.—A report compiled by the department of commerce and given out at the office of the Indiana state statistician, shows a very large increase in the output of the industries of Indiana in 1914, as compared with 1909 and 1904. The report is the summary of a complete survey of Indiana's industries, made by the department of commerce.

The total number of industrial establishments in Indiana in 1914, as shown by the report, was 8,022, compared with 7,969 in 1909 and 7,044 in 1904. The total value of their products in 1914 was $730,795,000; in 1909 it was $579,075,000, and in 1904 it was $393,954,000.

The total amount of wages paid out in all of these industries in the same years was as follows:

1914	$119,258,000
1909	96,511,000
1909	96,511,000
1904	72,058,000

The total cost of materials used in these industries in the three years was as follows:

1914	$423,857,000
1909	334,375,000
1904	220,507,000

The total number of wage earners engaged in all of these industries in the three years was as follows:

1914	197,503
1909	186,084
1904	154,174

THE SOLDIER'S DIARY.

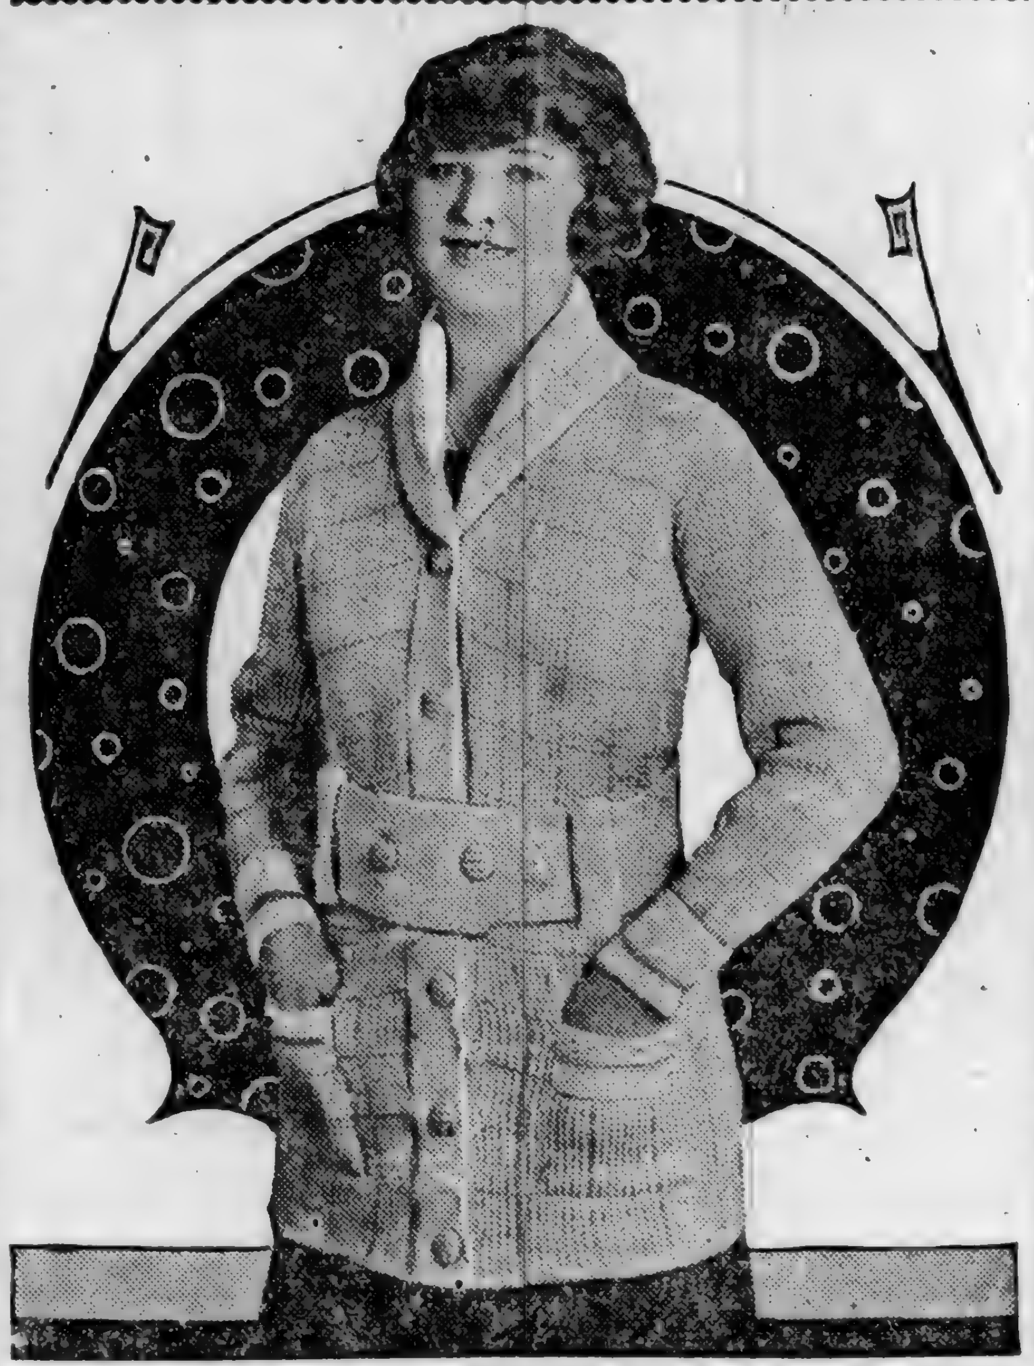
James Gribben of the artillery is one of the handy men around the exchange, and Jimmy is working harder than he ever did in his life, and likes it.

E. Watts, who once was a copy cutter in an Indianapolis composing room, now is the superintendent of the irrigation canals at Donna. His brother, Harold Watts, formerly with the Associated Press at Indianapolis, is connected with a big land company at San Benito.

The people of Newcastle may wonder what has become of their fellowtownsman, Leonard Wiles. Well, Leonard is here driving a jitney and pulling down a "bunch of kale" each day. He tried to enlist, and could not. As the train was en route someone reported to Lieutenant Motley that Wiles was stowed away in a baggage car, and for the first time in his life the young lieutenant was hard of hearing and had defective vision, and Wiles got here.

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



Sweater Coats in Many Fabrics

The sweater coat which is a sports coat ranges through all degrees of the substantial and the unsubstantial this summer, for it has been developed in many fabrics. Beginning with knitted wool it progresses through knitted silk and silk fiber to woven silks. Having played a dainty and colorful part in these supple stuffs it ascends to the exquisite refinement of sheer white in coats of crepe georgette. It 's seen in white and colored cotton corduroys and in ratine in white and many modish tints.

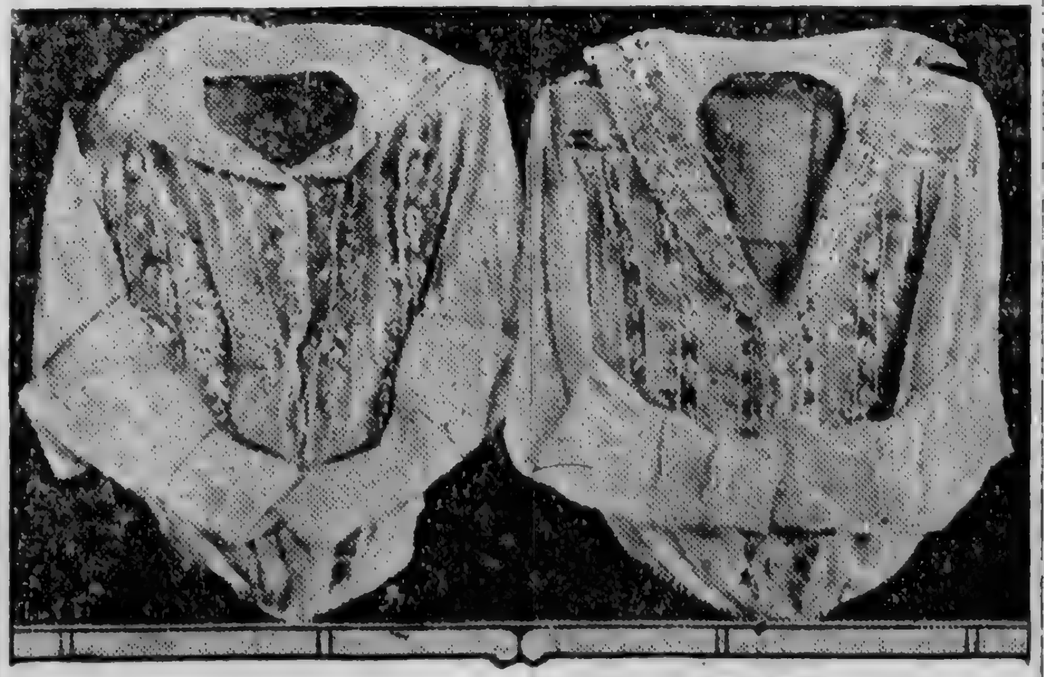
The immense success of sports style in clothes has brought about a new order of things. They are expressive of the up-to-date woman and are not a passing fad, hence the ever-increasing varieties in sweater coats and in sports hats, skirts and shoes.

A sweater coat in white fiber silk, cross-barred with narrow stripes in greenish gold, is a fine choice for the young girl. It has a collar of white, bordered with a narrow gold stripe, and cuffs to match. The tops of the pockets are finished with white and the wide belt of it is unstriped. It slips through straps at each side of the front and back. The covered buttons are crossed with stripes of gold. This same design is shown in several color combinations and among them blue and gold is a pretty favorite.

This is the prototype of far less practical coats, but altogether charming ones made to keep cool in. For the hottest days there are coats of georgette crepe, with short yokes of white serge. They are bordered and belted with serge and worn over white serge skirts. The crepe is plaited or shirred to the heavier yoke, and the long coat sleeves are finished with cuffs of the serge, which also does duty for pockets and collar.

Fur-Trimmed Wraps.

For midsummer evenings are wraps of lace trimmed with fur. Airy trifles these, of a surety, but things of fascination for all that. They do not give a great deal of warmth, to be sure, but who desires warmth on an August evening? What they do add to a thin summer frock is a matchless suggestion of elegance and formality—the frock showing through at every point so that none of its prettiness is lost. One of these wraps is of black imitation chantilly, in loose coat effect with bell sleeves edged like the foot of the wrap with a tiny band of skunk fur. A featherbone hoop runs under the fur all around the foot of the wrap so that its fur and lace edge swings out gracefully at every step. The collar is of fur and may be worn open or closed. A similar model in white lace has beaver fur trimming.



Two New Voile Blouses

It is the creed of the blouse to achieve daintiness along with durability and therefore those blouses made of voile outnumber other kinds. This soft and delicate-looking fabric, not quite so limp and thin but just as beautiful as crepe, has an amazing durability and it is worth elaborating with good laces. It is not changed by laundering, and continues to look like new as often as it is well done up.

Two of the newest blouses are shown in the illustration. They are of white voile and employ transparent organdie, embroidery and lingerie laces along with hemstitching in their construction. They are about as elaborate as a costume blouse and will serve the tourist for almost any occasion.

In the blouse at the left, panels of embroidered organdie are set in at each side of the front. A rather wide val lace edging of the simplest sort of pattern borders these panels at the sides. It forms a narrow vest at the front and edges the small sailor collar. The back is plain and extended into a short yoke at the front, where it is joined to the fronts with hemstitching. The sleeves are plain and set in with hemstitching. There are narrow turnback cuffs. But the appearance of deep cuffs is given by inserts of the val edging which are hemstitched in about six inches above the wrist.

The blouse at the right is designed on the same lines but uses a narrower val insertion to border the embroidered panels. It is much enriched by narrow Venetian lace finished with a val edging that forms the little vest at the front and the border of the collar. The sleeve decoration is managed with a small turned-back cuff edged with lace and an insert of lace above it, as in the first waist.

Tips for Sewers.

Make your piece bags of mosquito netting. You can find the location of any piece without dumping out the whole bag.

Keep your crochet needles in old fountain pen cases.

Two pasteboard tubes around which waxed paper is wrapped may be gummed together to form the foundation of a centerpiece roll.

A centerpiece which is stamped too close to the edge should have a bit of muslin basted to the edge so that it may be caught in the embroidery hoops.

Patching and darning can be done in a much more artistic and neater manner when embroidery hoops are used.

PLEASES BECAUSE OF INDIVIDUALITY

Type of Home, of Bungalow Construction, That Has Distinctive Features.

CORNER ENTRANCE IS UNIQUE

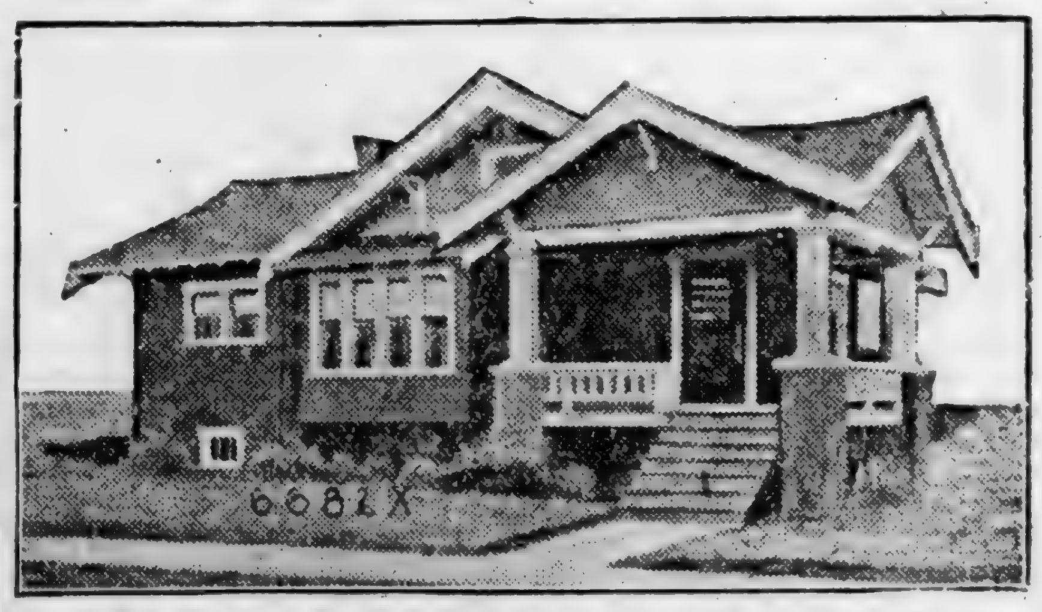
That and the Use of Novel Hardware Fittings for Doors and Windows Give a Very Pleasing Effect—Interior Arrangement Embodies New Ideas.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Nearly all people are gifted with a desire to possess a home, which is different from that of their neighbors. As a result there are a great variety of ways in which a house may be finished: Wood, brick, stone of all kinds, concrete blocks, stucco and all combinations of these have aided in the conquest for variety; the architects and contractors have worked overtime to produce new and distinctive details of house design. The work of all ages and all lands is gathered together to contribute to the satisfaction of the modern home builder.

At various times a type of construction is found which seems to be particularly suited to some certain locality, but it is invariably only a short time when this type is found to be applicable to other localities, after a few changes have been made to adapt it to a different climate. An illustration may be taken from the wide use of the bungalow type of home, which, although especially adapted to the needs of the California home builder, is nevertheless furnishing a very satisfactory type of construction for those building in the middle and eastern states. This type of home is no longer a novelty in its newer locations, and it is now necessary for the home builder who appreciates the convenience of the bungalow but who still wishes to obtain a distinctive house, to call upon the designer to incorporate some novel features into his plans which will mark the finished structure as decidedly different from the bungalows usually constructed.



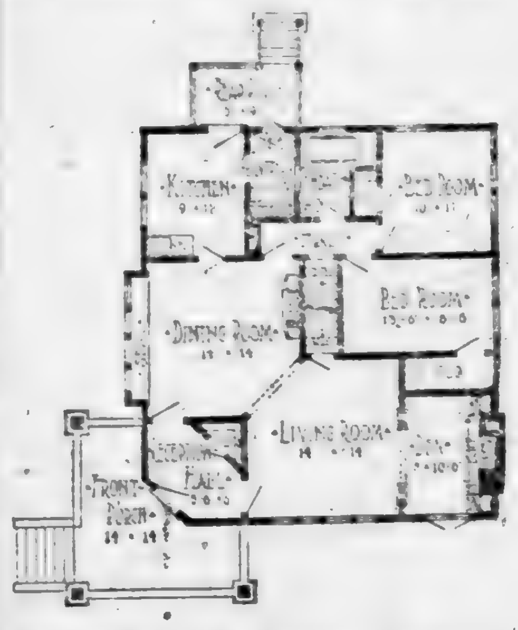
One means of obtaining individuality in a house, which is usually overlooked, is by the use of novel hardware fittings for doors and windows. Although a scrutiny of the pictures of old castles and other structures of bygone days will offer many a suggestion which might be used in obtaining novel hardware fittings, especially for door hinges, it is seldom that any of these unique fittings are used in home building. Perhaps it is because the massive hinges and locks of those olden days were used, not for their appearance, but for their strength, and their use is still associated with that same idea. If so, it is a mistaken idea, for it is possible to use just such fittings on even a little bungalow with a very pleasing effect. A bungalow is shown here which has more than the ordinary individuality and yet there is nothing which is not attractive in its uniqueness.

The appearance of the front door is an indication of what may be obtained by the use of distinctive hardware. The hinges are of heavy brass and extend nearly across the width of the door. The door knob and plate are also of heavy, substantial construction, in harmony with the hinges. The windows at the top of the door are narrow strips of plate glass running parallel to the hinges. This door has a very massive appearance, but it blends well with the other features of this little structure.

The front porch is set around one corner of the house and the door is built into this corner. The portion of the roof covering the porch is supported by three pillars set upon rough brick columns, and a low railing is carried around the porch at the level of the top of the brickwork. The sides of the bungalow are covered with rough siding up to the gables, which are shingled in alternate wide and narrow rows. There is a decided contrast between these two methods of finishing, but the effect is very pleasing. The many gables give a roof effect which emphasizes the broad solidity of the design and also adds a further note of distinction to the bungalow. The chimney is of rough brick to correspond to the porch columns. The exterior is quite different from the usual examples of this type and lends itself well to a finish which will force it upon the attention of the casual observer. Trim should be white around all windows and doors. The porch railings and pillars should be finished in the same way. With the rough siding finished in some dark color and the shingled portion a few shades lighter, the finished appearance of the bungalow is all that anyone looking for individuality in a home could ask for.

What is more, the interior arrangement of this house is in thorough keeping with the general idea, embodying many unique features not commonly found in the bungalow type. The front door opens into a little reception hall having doors into the living room and the dining room. The triangular closet in this hall with shelves and hooks for wraps, is a point of interest.

The door to the right as you enter the reception hall leads into the generous living room. Four windows in the one wall of this room flood it with light and make it always bright and cheery. At the far end of the room, from the reception hall, is a colonnade with a cased opening into a little den which is one of the most inviting features of the entire house. The rear wall of the den is occupied with a big brick fireplace having a bookcase built against the wall on each side. Light enters through a double casement window in the other wall.



Arrangement of Corner Entrance, Five-Room Bungalow, Size 32 Feet 6 Inches by 35 Feet 6 Inches.

The dining room is connected to the living room through a 45-degree cased opening, which really makes these two rooms into one large room extending around the corner at the staircase. In the dining room is a bay with four windows and a seat in front of them. Across from this seat is a buffet built against the wall. The dining room and living room are of the same size and together are sufficient to provide room for the entertainment of quite a few guests.

The kitchen is back of the dining room and is equipped with a model pantry. While working at the table in this pantry the shelves are handily located to the right and the refrigerator to the left. No time and energy are wasted in moving about a large room in the preparation of a meal. The refrigerator is iced from the rear porch, thus preventing the tracking of mud into the kitchen by the iceman. This pantry will prove to be as interesting a feature to the women as the little den is to the men who visit the owners of this bungalow home.

The corner of the house opposite to the porch is occupied with two bedrooms and a bathroom, all of which open into a hall leading to the dining room. Each bedroom has a generous closet with shelves, and is well lighted. The bathroom is well arranged and is provided with a built-in medicine closet.

The stairs into the basement are reached through the hall in the rear of the house. The basement is large and may be used in many ways to add to the utility of the house. It is lighted with grade windows made possible by carrying the foundation walls up above the ground level. Storage space is provided in the attic, which may be reached from the living room.

Taken in its entirety, this bungalow has an unusual number of very interesting features, both in interior and exterior design, and it is particularly well suited to the man who enjoys individuality in a home.

Some Noise.

Church—An American-made piano now on exhibition in London is the largest in the world. It has 522 keys, and six pianists can play on it at once.

Gotham—When the Londoners hear that awful noise they must think a Zeppelin's coming.

AUGUST

L 908

0260

Buy materials that last

Certain-teed

Roofing

Fully guaranteed —best responsibility

For sale by dealers everywhere at reasonable prices

General Roofing Manufacturing Company

World's largest manufacturers of Roofing and Building Papers

New York City Chicago Philadelphia St. Louis Boston Cleveland Pittsburgh Detroit San Francisco Cincinnati New Orleans Los Angeles Minneapolis Kansas City Seattle Indianapolis Atlanta Richmond Houston London Sydney

We sell Certain-teed and Metal Roofing

Schaab Roofing & Supply Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WANTED 30,000 MEN

For Harvest Work Western Canada

Immense crops; wages $3.00 per day and board. Cheap railway rates from boundary points. Employment bureaus at Winnipeg, Regina, North Portal, Saskatoon, Fort Frances, Kingsgate, B. C., Coutts and Calgary, Alberta.

No Conscription—

Absolutely No Military Interference

For all particulars apply to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.; G. W. Aird, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Canadian Government Agents

PORT OF MISSING WHEELS

Writer Throws Some New Light on the Eventual Fate of Bicycles.

Perhaps you have wondered what has become of all the old bicycles. Not so long ago everybody had one—father, mother, children and aunts from the country. And then, in the night, motor cars got cheaper and all the bicycles disappeared. Like the Palm Beach suits they are all here in Florida. There are bicycles everywhere, on the flat, hard, beautiful roads, on the curbstones, leaning against the piazzas, in the streets. If the motor car has swept them from the northern streets, it has not done that here. Men, women and children on bicycles whirl about the streets, tingling their little bells and the motor-car drivers look out for them. Just beyond the veranda at Palm Beach were hundreds of bicycles waiting to be hired. Out on the shaded roads were other hundreds bearing their gayly attired burdens.

In the lobby, where I was making my way to the desk, were dozens of women dressed for wheeling.—Margaret Tuttle, in Saturday Evening Post.

Consistency.

"I have no sympathy with female emancipation stuff. The man was made the head of the woman, and the women ought to accept their own place with meekness and submission."

"I am glad to hear you say so, Mrs. Tartleigh. Does your husband share your views?"

"You bet he does. I'd like to hear him dare express any other kind."

Love may never die, but it gets seasick at times.

Aerial Insurance.

A German insurance company has organized a department of aerial insurance. The company is issuing policies covering damage to all property, real or movable, caused by explosive bodies or other objects thrown or falling from flying machines or caused by airships or aeroplanes themselves in making voluntary or involuntary landings, or parts thereof falling from them. The policies, however, make no provision for injury to or loss of life. It is said that numerous air raids over German cities and towns near the battle fronts, particularly in the West, have caused a demand for such policies.

RED CROSS BALL BLUE

Makes clothes whiter than snow. Delights the housewife. Large package 5 cents at all good grocers.—Adv.

Generating Animation.

The professor was trying to demonstrate a simple experiment in the generation of steam.

"What have I in my hand?" he asked.

"A tin can," came the answer in concert.

"Very true. Is the can an animate or an inanimate object?"

"Inanimate."

"Exactly. Now, can any little boy or girl tell me how, with this tin can, it is possible to generate a surprising amount of speed and power, almost beyond control?"

One little boy raised his right hand.

"You may answer, Rutherford."

"Tie it to a dog's tail."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Logical.

Parson—How is it I haven't seen you at church lately?

Hodge—I ain't been.

A Burroughs for Your Work

No matter what line of business you are in there is a Burroughs Figuring Machine to fit your requirements. And the Burroughs best suited to your business will handle your figure work in less time and at a lower expense than is now required. Accuracy is assured, for the Burroughs cannot make a mistake.

Business men in every line have found them to be practical, dependable and durable. Many of the concerns you know are saving money by handling their figure work with Burroughs Machines.

A Burroughs representative will gladly bring a machine to your place of business and show you how you can save on your bookkeeping expense.

FIGURING AND BOOKKEEPING MACHINES PREVENT COSTLY ERRORS - SAVE VALU LE TIME

Burroughs

PRICED AS LOW AS

The Wheat Yield

Tells the Story

of Western Canada's Rapid Progress

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

The heavy crops in Western Canada have caused new records to be made in the handling of grains by railroads. For, while the movement of these heavy shipments has been wonderfully rapid, the resources of the different roads, despite enlarged equipments and increased facilities, have been strained as never before, and previous records have thus been broken in all directions.

The largest Canadian wheat shipments through New York ever known are reported for the period up to October 15th, upwards of four and a quarter million bushels being exported in less than six weeks, and this was but the overflow of shipments to Montreal, through which point shipments were much larger than to New York.

Yields as high as 60 bushels of wheat per acre are reported from all parts of the country; while yields of 45 bushels per acre are common.

Thousands of American farmers have taken part in this wonderful production. Land prices are still low and free homestead lands are easily secured in good localities, convenient to churches, schools, markets, railways, etc.

There is no war tax on land and no conscription.

Write for illustrated pamphlet, reduced railroad rates and other information to Superintendent Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio
G. W. AIRD, 215 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Indiana

Canadian Government Agents

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 20

RIOT AT EPHESUS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:23-41.

GOLDEN TEXT—The love of money is the root of all kinds of evil.—I Tim. 6:10.

Teachers ought to have good maps and keep before the minds of their classes both the ancient and modern names of the places Paul visited. Paul resided at Ephesus nearly three years, A. D. 53 to 56. The events of this lesson occurred about three years after our last lesson in Acts.

I. The Missionary Work of Paul (vv. 1-10). How long Paul remained at Antioch after his second journey we do not know, but having passed through the "upper coast" he came to this city of Ephesus, which was an important city and a great mission field. In Revelations 2 and 3 is a list of the churches which he evangelized from this center. It was a great and effectual door for him (I Cor. 6:9; read also Acts 20:17; 2:35). In this city Paul found a religious guild of 12 members (see vv. 2-7), whose religious experience needed the enrichment of the Holy Spirit; a like need is ever before the Christian church.

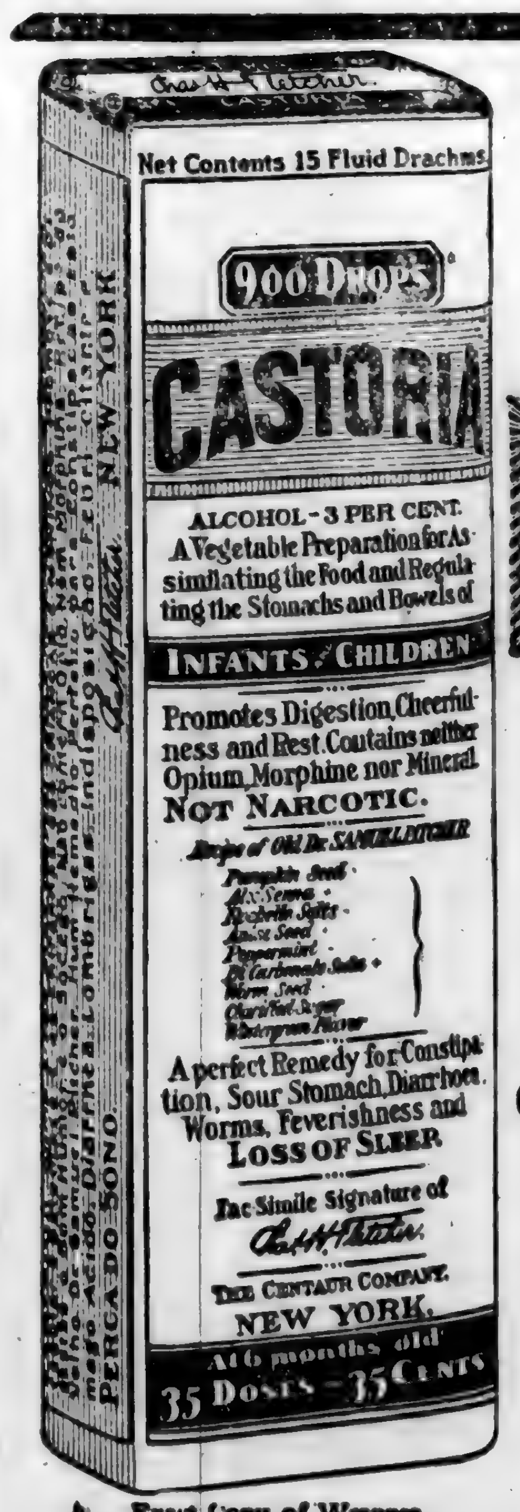
II. The Miracles Wrought by Paul (vv. 11-20). Ephesus was a center of magic and witchcraft, and special power was given Paul to work miracles which confounded the magicians in this, their stronghold. The Gospel proves its power most and best by transforming the characters of men. Deeds of love and service are the best proofs of Christianity, and these are the things which awaken heathen nations to seek after the Christian religion. But such deeds are often imitated as in this case. (See v. 13.) However, only the real spirit of Christ can work the true workings of the Gospel, and thus the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified in Ephesus. Imitation is often the sincerest form of flattery.

III. The Mob's Attack Upon Paul's Work (vv. 21-41). The first result of Paul's work was the burning of the books of magic (vv. 18-20). Many who had been dupes of the magicians ceased their secret practices and declared their wrongdoings in this public manner. Literally, book after book was thrown into the fire, much the same as in Florence Savonarola had his "bonfire of vanities." Paul's wonderful success had to have its testing before he left. The Gospel "way," the way of salvation, of true living, is sure to create a stir sooner or later. Preach the Gospel faithfully and fully, and it will stir up any community. It is not necessarily a bad sign when things begin to be disturbed. It may simply indicate that the fire is getting hot. The good results of revivals do not hurt business, but they do hurt the devil. So that "big business" was intensely stirred up in the city of Ephesus. Demetrius, their leader, uttered a striking and truthful commendation of Paul (v. 26), although it was entirely unintentional. (See I Thess. 1:9-10). Demetrius does not seem to seek to controvert the preaching of Paul, or that it did not square with the word of God, but rather that it would interfere with financial considerations. The modern world is full of descendants of the Ephesian silversmiths,—politicians and business interests which defend the saloon, and fairly respectable citizens who receive rents from such business, or from immoral or unsanitary properties, and who cry out against any reform which interferes with trade and money making. There are many today who are very enthusiastic religionists if they can coin money out of it or get into an office.

At this theater meeting (Paul was not present, vv. 29, 31) Demetrius appealed (1) to wealth, (2) to religion, (3) to the honor and fame of the city, and (4) he also made an esthetic appeal, (vv. 25, 26, 27). The Jews put forward one of their number, Alexander, to make a defense unto the people, and to show that they were not in sympathy with Paul and his companions in their preaching against the worship of Diana or that as Jewish Christians they did not maliciously hope to destroy the worship of Diana and the business interests of that city. Their effort, however, only stirred the mob to a larger shout, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians," which lasted for two hours.

Those who yell the loudest think they are sure to prove their point, though in such a way the point does not stay proved. Paul combines fearless courage and humble common sense, and, while he fain would appeal to the mob (v. 30), he refrained. The mob must soon awaken to the manliness and spirit of Paul's soul. It was the town clerk who interfered (v. 35-41) and by skillful management quelled the excited mob. He was the temple keeper and showed that the worship of Diana was so settled in Ephesus that no company of Jews could overthrow it, and that they did not have any real cause for violence.

He also emphasizes the fact that the image of Diana, their chief god, had been miraculously sent to them by Jupiter. He called attention to the fact that Paul had not committed the wrong of which he was charged.



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP
Fac Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES - 35 CENTS
NEW YORK

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic, all Teething Troubles and Diarrhoea. It regulates the Stomach and Bowels, assimilates the Food, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS

Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years

The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

MOST ACCIDENTS IN HOMES

Majority of Injuries Can Be Traced to the Carelessness of Individuals.

The "safety first" movement is ordinarily understood to mean caution in public, in crossing streets or boarding cars, or carefulness in the factory in handling tools or machinery, but, according to the report of the coroner of Cook county, Illinois, there is more need for "safety first" methods in the home than in the street or factory. In 11 years of the Chicago coroner's incumbency the total number of deaths by accident investigated by his office was 29,854. Of these 15,241 were "accidents at home" and 14,623 "outside the home."

Most of the accidents at home are traceable to carelessness. Burns and scalds caused many deaths. Asphyxiation, poisoning, suffocation, falls, exposure and neglect, careless use of matches, firearms, gas and oil stoves gasoline, liquid stove polish, defective stovepipes and flues, soot, etc., cost thousands of lives. In Cook county in 1915, 105 children under five years of age were killed by scalds and burns.

Perfectly Simple.

"Charles, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "this article says that the old-fashioned stump speaker has almost disappeared."

"Yes?"

"Well, it's easily explained. The government has imposed so many restrictions on cutting down trees that the supply of stumps has probably given out."

His Choice.

"A bad beginning means a good ending."

"That may be, but if I can have my choice I'll take the fine start every time."

It takes a clever woman to obtain information without asking questions.

Does Coffee Disagree

?

Many are not aware of the ill effects of coffee drinking until a bilious attack, frequent headaches, nervousness, or some other ailment starts them thinking.

Ten days off coffee and on

POSTUM

—the pure food-drink—will show anyone, by the better health that follows, how coffee has been treating them.

"There's a Reason"

for

POSTUM

Sold by Grocers

Filtration.

If all urban population of the United States were supplied with filtered water, or water of equal purity, the urban typhoid fever death rate would be 14 per 10,000, states George A. Johnson, consulting engineer of New York city. A reduction of 67 per cent in the typhoid rate immediately following filtration has been amply demonstrated.

BANISH PIMPLES QUICKLY

Easily and Cheaply by Using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

Smear the pimples lightly with Cuticura Ointment on end of finger and allow it to remain on five minutes. Then bathe with hot water and Cuticura Soap and continue some minutes. This treatment is best upon rising and retiring, but is effective at any time.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Taken at His Word.

A commercial traveler on the first trip called upon a well-known chemist. He was nervous as he put his hand in his pocket and drew out a card.

"I represent that concern," said he.

"You are fortunate," replied the chemist.

The traveler was encouraged.

"I think so, sir," he said, "and the chemist who trades with us is even more so. My firm has the finest line of cosmetics in the world."

"I shouldn't have thought it," slowly responded the man of medicines. "Her complexion looks natural." And he handed back the photograph which the young man had given him in mistake.

The traveler didn't wait for his order.

Cockroach a Troubler.

Recently while inspecting a large plant attention was called to a peculiar incident. On a branch circuit there was some peculiar trouble. Fuses would blow out at various intervals running from one-half to twenty-four hours, sais the Popular Science Monthly. At first no attention was paid, but when the ground detector started to show signs of trouble, first on one side and then on the other, investigation was made. Covers were removed from the outlet boxes and from one box a shower of live and dead cockroaches fell on the head of the examiner. On looking into the box, it was found that the insulation around the joints and especially at the points had been entirely eaten away, the vibration doing the rest toward creating the trouble.

Saved an Empress.

With the filing of the will of Mrs. Sarah Gray Crane in the Surrogate's court a trust fund of $75,000 became available for the trustees of Amherst college. Dr. Edward A. Crane, her husband, had left the bulk of his estate in trust for the benefit of his widow. After her death it was to go to Amherst. How Doctor Crane saved the life of Empress Eugenie from a Paris mob of September 4, 1870, was told in the will. He planned the secret flight of the empress from Paris to Deauville when the republic was proclaimed after the news of the Sedan surrender. He arranged passage on Lord Burgoyne's yacht and took her to England. The empress rewarded Doctor Crane with a handsome pearl.—New York Times.

Swift Matrimony.

First Stage Hand—What was the row out in front during the first scene, Bill?

Second Stage Hand—The understudy nursemaid got excited and carried in the heroine's baby when it wasn't due to appear until three years later in the fourth act.—Punch Bowl.

FLAG SEEN IN THE CLOUDS

Superstitious in Pennsylvania Town Believed the Omen Foretelling War's Approach.

The spectacle of the American flag depicted in its natural colors vividly on low, overhanging clouds one night caused a sensation among superstitious people of Pottsville, Pa., many of whom considered the national emblem in the heavens to be an omen of approaching war.

Courthouse officials have been keeping a searchlight trained upon a big flag flying from a staff on the top of the courthouse, and believe the unusual spectacle was the reflection of the colors of the flag on the low-lying clouds.

Yale to Admit Women.

Women have beaten their way into old Yale. The school of medicine at that university has guardedly, cautiously let down the sex bars and will admit a limited number of girl students. They must, however bring testimony that they have "an equipment which will insure continuance of the high standard of the institution," says the New York Sun.

About.

"What did your baby cry about last night," asked the man next door.

"About five hours," replied Mr. Youngpop.

Makes No Difference.

"Dearest, isn't love blind?"

"Yes, even when one has the love-light in his eyes."

Ask for and Get

SKINNER'S

THE HIGHEST QUALITY

SPAGHETTI

36 Page Recipe Book Free

SKINNER MFG. CO., OMAHA, U.S.A.

LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

Mail Us Your

KODAK

Films for Finishing

We pay return postage.

M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S

ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

WHO IS TO BLAME

Women as well as men are made miserable by kidney and bladder trouble. Thousands recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great kidney remedy. At druggists in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. You may receive a sample size bottle by Parcel Post, also pamphlet telling about it. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents, also mention this paper.

THICK, SWOLLEN GLANDS

that make a horse Wheeze, Roar, have Thick Wind or Choke-down, can be reduced with also other Bunches or Swellings. No blister, no hair gone, and horse kept at work. Economical—only a few drops required at an application. $2 per bottle delivered. Book 3 M free. ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Cysts, Wens, Painful, Swollen Veins and Ulcers. $1 and $2 a bottle at dealers or delivered. Book "Evidence" free. W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

ABSORBINE

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 34--1916.

AUGUST

L 908

0261

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

The Family Reunions.

The Annual Reunion of the Reasoner-Boyle families was held at St. Joe, in Hamilton grove, Aug. 10th., with an attendance of 128. Those from a distance were:-J. R. Reasoner and wife, of Urbana, Ill.; Brice Reasoner, Sr., and Brice Reasoner, Jr. and wife, of Beconsfield, Iowa; Mrs. Nettie Strasser, of Thornsburg, Iowa; Chas Reasoner and wife, of Columbus, O.; Hiram Reasoner, of Zion City, Ill.; Alvin Reasoner and children, and Winfield Reasoner, of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. C. D. Reasoner and family, of Elkhart; Mrs. Norwood, of Goshen; Herman Reasoner and family, Chas Lawhead, and Dan Baker, of Ft. Wayne; and others from Butler, Waterloo, Auburn, Spencerville, Newville and Concord. The officers for the following year are:-

OFFICERS.

President:-Ray Reasoner, St. Joe.
Vice-president:-John George, St. Joe.
Secretary:-Mrs. Stella Norwood, Goshen.
Treasurer:-James Harter, St. Joe.

On Thursday of last week, in the beautiful Erick grove, one-half mile south of St. Joe, and 1¾ miles west of Coburn's Corners occurred the first Annual Reunion of the descendants of Asher, Sybil, Ebenezer and Gurden Coburn, among the earliest and most active pioneers in the history of DeKalb County in her making.

This reunion, though somewhat belated, did not lack in enthusiasm and good will, if the bounteous repast and happy smiles are any criterion from which to judge. The program for the day was under the supervision of J. E. Dermott, of Coldwater, Mich., and consisted of a welcome address and response to the same by a member of each of the four branches of the Coburn family. The song, "America" was the first number on the program, which was followed by a prayer by Rev. J. N. Scholes, of Johnstown, Pa. Full program consisted of songs and recitations, original poems, etc., and though not long, it was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Routine business in which it was decided to make this affair an annual event with officers appointed to further the interests of this association. The place of meeting for next year has not been named we believe. The names of those who came from a distance to attend this reunion are as follows:

Otis B. Coburn, Indianola, Neb.; Rev. J. N. Scholes, Johnstown, Pa.; Lucile Loomis, of Fostoria, Ohio; Mrs. Delia Wade and Donald Wade, of Petoskey, Mich.; Wesley Keen and wife, of Garrett, Ind.; Henry Ackley, of Toledo, Ohio; Almira S. Coburn and Clarence A. Coburn, of Muskegon, Mich.; Chas. F. Coburn and Matilda Coburn, of Hillsdale, Mich.; Chas. Coburn, wife and daughters, Ruby and Mauna, and son Elgin, Merrick Waters and wife Henrietta, of Fremont, Mich.; J. E. Dermott, wife and daughter, Claudia Abel, of Coldwater, Mich.; Dr. and Mrs. G. E Emanuel, Edward Emanuel, Jennie Hendrickson, Dora Hendrickson and Doris Hendrickson, of Edgerton, Ohio; J. E. Coburn, Mrs. E. E. Hale, Winnie Hale, Mrs. Lulu Rossman, Winifred Rossman, M. Hill Coburn, Al Monroe and wife, Ralph Monroe, wife and children, Lucy Koch, Wayne Hughes, wife and children, of Hicksville, Ohio; Edna Jenkins and children, and Vernon Frank, wife and children, of Auburn, Ind.; Bertha, Delbert and Cora Jennings, Mrs. Lester Pugsley and Carl Pugsley, of Butler, Ind.; William Meek and wife, of Waterloo, Ind.; Warren Coburn and wife, of Fort Wayne; Laura Coburn Willard, of Auburn, Ind.; Olive Cunningham and Phoebe Cunningham Simmons address not given.

Infantile Paralysis!

The germ that causes the disease enters the body through the nose and mouth. Mothers should do all within their power to save the child from the serious ailments of childhood. This can best be done by keeping the mouth, nose and throat in a clean and healthy condition. Glando Gargle is antiseptic and hydroscoptic, cleansing and healing to the mucous membrane.

It is a splendid preventative for sore mouth in babies, and is highly recommended for catarrhal conditions, hay fever and adenoids. Its use two or three times a day may save your child.

Procurable at drug stores or from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

DeFiance County

FAIR

AEROPLANE 2 flights daily

Wednesday Childr'n's Day
All children under 12 years Admitted Free

Baby Contest Wednesday

Horseshoe Pitching Contest- Unusual Attraction.
A chance for a free trip to Columbus, Ohio, also to get a piece of the $250, to be given to the champions.

Thursday, Old Soldiers
All old Soldiers, their wives and old Soldiers Widows
ADMITTED FREE

Horse Racing- Every day
a big day. For information write secretary.

$150 Special Prem. on farm displays

AUGUST 22-26,
HICKSVILLE, Ohio.

B. P. Dorsey, President C. W. Zeis, Secretary

LOCAL ITEMS.

Robert Bailey began work at Churubusco, Monday, driving a cream route.

Mary Comesky, of Spencerville, was a Sunday guest of Daniel McCann and wife.

John George and family spent Sunday afternoon with Sam Wyatt and wife, near Newville.

Miss Claudiua Burns, of West Unity, Ohio, is the guest of Elizabeth and Katherine Bayman.

Dick Monroe and wife are visiting a few days with their daughter, Mrs. Jesse Copp, of New Haven.

Mel Herrick and wife, and Mrs. G. M. Barney were over Sunday guests of friends in Toledo, making the trip by automobile.

Rev. Joe Scholes, of Johnstown, Pa., will preach at St. Joe Christian Church, Sunday evening, Aug. 20. He will preach at Coburntown in the morning.

Gathel and Russell Leonard have been visiting their grandmother below Ft. Wayne. The former returned Saturday evening while the latter remained for a longer visit.

The Hadsell reunion was held Wednesday at the home of Chas. Jackson and wife on the ridge road. Dr. Sheffers' and John Knights' attended.

We suggest that the lady readers of The News watch carefully Mrs Bottomley's style articles which appear in the next few issues of this paper. She will tell with words and photographs what fashionable folks will wear during early autumn

Poultry Pointers.

(By H. L. KEMPSTER, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

As the chicks grow they need more room. It does not pay to let them crowd.

Beware of musty, moldy, sour or decayed food. It is sure to cause trouble.

Tough grass is of no value as a green food. Better sow some quick-growing crop.

Feed hoppers greatly reduce the work. If they are kept filled, the chicks will never go hungry.

If your chicks are not doing well something is wrong. Look out for lice and for worms in the intestines.

Two-year-old hens had better be sent to the market. They seldom pay for their feed if kept over a third season.

Grit and oyster shell should be included in the ration for both young and old. To neglect this would be poor economy.

Young stock will do better if not compelled to pick their living with the old. There will also be less trouble from lice.

Shade is one of the most important essentials during the hot months. Get the chicks into the orchard and cornfield.

A growing chick will not thrive on short rations. If the right kind of food is fed, there is little danger of overfeeding, especially if they are given plenty of range.

Supplement the regular feeds with a wet mash—fed crumbly. Feed all the chicks will clean up before going to roost, but none should be left in the trough, for it will sour.

Mark the pullets this fall so that you will know just how old your hens are. A leg band on the right leg one year and on the left leg the next will assist in culling the flock. A hog ring will serve the purpose.

WILD BILL'S FAMOUS SMILE CAN CHANGE INTO A FROWN

Hugh Jennings Tells How "Fighting" Disposition of New York Manager Showed at Times.

According to Hugh Jennings, the Detroit manager, who had several years' experience with the subject of this sketch, back of that famous smile of Wild Bill Donovan there was a mighty "fighting" disposition.

"Bill has lost his smile on any number of occasions," says Hughie. "I can recall numerous instances when the Tigers were fighting for the pennant in the years 1907, 1908, 1909, that Bill frowned quite as often as did any of the rest of us.

"Wild Bill" Donovan.

"For several weeks in the season of 1907 the Tigers were in front, but they couldn't gain on the Mackmen. Then came a series with Cleveland. Just prior to the Tiger-Nap engagement the Cleveland team had played three games with the Athletics and had used second-string pitchers. When Detroit showed up, the Naps had Joss, Rhoades, Moore, Hess and Bernhard ready and we were beaten in three games.

"After the third game I spent a few minutes jawing with Addie Joss. Bill joined us and right afterward Rhoades lipped in. Then Doc Payne, the Cleveland trainer, inserted his voice. This was too much for Bill.

"Turning toward Payne, he yelled:

"'Now, you get out of this argument—and stay out. I know you have a reputation as a fighter, but either show something now or get on your way.'

"Payne left."

Ten Health Commandments.

1. Keep windows open day and night.
2. Do not spit.
3. Breathe through the nose by keeping the mouth shut.
4. Drink pure water.
5. Eat slowly, take well-cooked meals, and cultivate regular habits.
6. Wear loose clothing of reasonable material.
7. Take regular open-air exercises in sunshine if possible.
8. Wash whole body at least once a week.
9. Work, but do not worry.
10. Get house drains certified by sanitary authority.—Elizabeth Gregg in Health.

Accidents on Common Carriers.

Fifteen thousand accidents on steam railroads, street railways and other common carriers during the year ended May 31, 1916, is the record in Pennsylvania, says the public service bureau of accidents.

Passing of Virginia City Recalls Its Old Glories

Despairing of a revival of Virginia City, Nev., the Enterprise, a newspaper on which Mark Twain once worked, has given up the ghost. In dying it recalls attention to a city once as familiar on men's tongues as Verdun is today, but for reasons quite other. The city of fabulous riches, the city where millions came and went in an hour, the city whose earth yielded the coveted metal as in geyser floods, the city that had a life and a luxury which today amid its sagebrush seem mythical, is now a collection of shacks, no longer able to support a newspaper. Only yesterday, it seems, Virginia City was the most populous in Nevada, though Carson City, as we all learned in our geographies, was the capital. Few things in American history are more romantic than the rise and fall of Virginia City. The state of Nevada survives—a sovereign state is indestructible. In area it equals all of New York and New England combined; Staten Island is more populous. Nevada has had its Reno and its Goldfields, for one thing or another famed, as it has the husk of the once dazzling mining camp, now bereft of its newspaper. But Nevada, with all its vast extent, has not yet learned to graft cactus with cabbages, and until it does its Bedouin cities will fold their tents like the Arabs.—New York Globe.

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado	$36.60
California	$78.75
Yellowstone	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind, J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

The Gossips Say-

Earl Smith and wife, of North Baltimore, are here the guests of parents.

John Milliman moved this week from north of Concord, into the house occupied by Pete Milliman.

Mrs. Thomas Rickett entertained the M. P. Ladies Aid, Saturday afternoon.

Harry Kinsey was at home from Tri-State College over Sunday.

Harry Whitcomb, of South Milford, came Tuesday to visit with his sister, Mrs. John Milliman and family.

P. A. Shurts and daughter, Miss Pearl, motored to Auburn, Monday to take Rev. Coons that far on his journey to the M. P. Conference.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price returned home Sunday afternoon, after a three weeks visit with relatives at Ft. Wayne, Pierceton, and other points.

Frank Sechler spent Saturday and Sunday visiting relatives at Auburn and Butler.

H. L. Dunkle, wife and daughter Rhea, and Ralph Sechler were Ft. Wayne visitors, Sunday afternoon.

Frank Terman and wife motored to Sherwood and spent Sunday with the latter's brother, Stewart Crawford.

Mrs. Mary Lockwood, of Auburn, is here visiting relatives.

Mrs. Mary Hale, of Bluffton, came Tuesday to remain in the Bayman home during the illness of her grand-daughter, Miss DeVeta Bayman.

Miss DeVeta Bayman was taken to the Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne, Monday afternoon, where she submited to an operation at 6:00 o'clock for appendicitis. She was accompanied by C. T. Bayman and wife, her parents, and Dr. Harry Farnham.

Mrs. Anna Dilley entertained Sunday beside her daughter, Mrs. Reasoner and children, of Elkhart, who have been here for several days, Rev. and Mrs. Frank Osbun and children, of Shidler; and Frank Baker and children, of near Mudsock.

MARRIED.—Herbert S. Sherer and Miss Inez Osburn at Crown Point, Ind., on July 30th., 1916, in the presence of the bride's parents and groom's brother, Earl. The groom is the youngest son of J. W. Sherer and wife, of Fairview, and the bride the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Osburn, a passenger conductor on the Rock Island railway. The young people spent part of their honeymoon at the groom's parents leaving Tuesday morning for VanWert, Ohio, from whence they will return to Chicago, where they will make their future home.

Notice

Persons who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gases and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have bilious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK AND BEAUTIFUL

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED SORE, ACHING FEET

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet, swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more pain in corns callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug or department store, and get relief

AUGUST

L 908

0262

25

Preparedness

❋ ❋

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE

Paid for Your POULTRY

SEE

W. G. ERICK

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

The Girls Pansy Club will be entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Leatha Baker.

Chas. Boston and wife, of Grabill; Mrs. Mae Sayers and babe, of Three Rivers, Mich.; Edward Billman and wife, Glen Steward, and Mrs. Frank House and son John, were Saturday guests of Joel Betz and wife.

Sell Your POULTRY TO

ZONKER BROTHERS

St. Joe, Indiana.

Highest Prices Paid.

Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.

PHONE NO. 12

Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

Subscribe for this paper.
Patronize the advertisers.
Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Bill Heads
Envelopes
Calling Cards
Leaflets
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Blotters
Circulars
Invitations
Posters
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

SPENCERVILLE

Miss Grace Wyatt, of Auburn, is visiting at the home of Miss Ruth Hay.

Clyde Fredrick and family spent Sunday at the home of William Zehnerdner and family, of near Auburn.

Mrs. John Fairfield and son Doral, of Ft. Wayne, spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Lucy Fairfield.

A. E. Zander and family, Mr. Van Winkle and Levi Mumma, of Detroit, spent the week end with Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma.

Mrs. Alice Beach, of Edon, brought Little Wynetta Webb home, Sunday, and spent the day at the home of her brother, John Webb.

Wm. Benninghoff and wife, and Golden Benninghoff, of Ft. Wayne; and Miss Helen Bowman, of St. Joe, were Sunday guests of John Beninghoff and wife.

Mrs. Vern Wilmot and son Geo., who has been spending several weeks at the home of Henry Milliman and wife, north of St. Joe, returned Saturday to spend a few days at her home.

J. M. Beams and wife, G. M. Shutt and daughter Gertrude, and Miss Daisy Lewis motored to Newville, Sunday, and visited Mrs. Lillie Benninghoff, who is slowly improving from her recent illness.

Our new shipment of Ladies' Ready-to-wear dresses and waists are now in. Call and see them first before the choice colors and patterns are selected. Cheaper than you can make them at Beams & Co., store.

On Tuesday evening, the Ladies Quartette of the M. E. church of this place, furnished the music for the Rural Chautauqua at Newville. The quartette is composed of the Mesdames Raymond Rhodes, Audra Wade, Princess Rectenwal and Paul Barton.

Little Virgil Koch, son of John Koch and wife, was taken to the Lutheran Hospital at Ft. Wayne, the latter part of last week, where he was found to be suffering, with appendicitis. An operation was performed at once by Dr. Dumling of Ft. Wayne, and Dr. Farnham of St. Joe. The little fellow is resting easy at this writing, and hopes are entertained of his recovery.

Among those from this vicinity who attended the Boston Family Reunion which was held at Robison Park, Sunday, were:-Joel Betz and wife, Mrs. Frank House, Edward Billman and wife, Glen Steward, Miss Libbie Knapp, Walter Betz and wife and Wm. Dumm and family. The following officers were elected:-Josiah Smith, of Ossian, President; Chas. Boston, of Grabill, Vice-president; Miss Edith Glock, of Roanoke, Secy.-Treas.

Mrs. Minerva Stoffer, wife of John Stoffer, died on Tuesday evening at her home on the County Line, of kidney and heart trouble, at the age of 74 years. She leaves to mourn her departure a husband, two daughters, Mrs. Horn, of Ohio, and Mrs. Schlatter, of near Woodburn; one brother, David Steel, of near Auburn. Mrs. Stoffer fell several years ago and since that time had been unable to walk. The funeral was held on Thursday at 2:00 p. m., conducted by Rev. A. K. Mumma of the Lutheran church at the home. Interment at the White City cemetery.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Harvey Kimes Sr., spent Thursday at Toledo, Ohio.

Joseph Haifley, wife and children, of St. Joe, visited Sunday with their son, Chas. Haifley and wife.

Ira Smith and wife, and Elmer Smith, wife and two children were Sunday guests of Geo. Bauman and wife, near Leo.

Jesse and Lewis Schuler, of Baltimore, Ohio, and Margaret Thornberg were Sunday visitors at the C. M. Wearley home.

Mr. Courtney and wife, of Auburn; Earl Stiman and wife, and Elmer Goldsmith were Sunday visitors of Chas. Easley and family.

Mrs. Bird, of Illinois, is visiting with Wm. Miller and wife, this week.

Messrs. Melvin and Frank Cook and Roy Mann spent Sunday at Hicksville, Ohio.

Frank Wertman and wife, and Stephen Brown and wife were Robison Park, Sunday.

W. O. Miller and wife visited Sunday with Chas. Moore and wife at Hicksville, Ohio.

Verna Kelley, wife and daughter, and Ray Baker and wife visited Sunday with Geo. Jenkins and wife.

Elmer Smith and family, and Wm. Smith and wife were Saturday evening guests of Ira Smith and wife. Ice cream and cake was served.

Frank Hughes, wife and children and Mrs. Walters and 2 sons, of Roanoke, Ind., visited Sunday with Theo. Dinius and family.

Henry Beery and wife entertained the following guests Sunday:- Marvin Rhinehart, wife and daughter, of Kemp, Ohio; Lewis Markle and wife, Harley Beery, wife and 2 children, Martin Beery and family, and Bessie Boger, of Craigsville, Mich Mr. Rhinehart and wife remained until Tuesday.

COLETOWN

Edwin Guthrie and wife spent Friday evening at W. E. Jacksons'.

Berneice Sowers spent last week with her parents, Wm. Sowers and wife.

Hazel and Gladys Evans spent last week in Michigan, the guests of Mark Murphy.

Merritt Maxwell and family, and Roscoe Rickett and family Sundayed at E. D. Nelsons'.

Olive Jackson spent Sunday in Ft. Wayne, the guest of Bert Kessler and family.

Carson Mercer and family, and Beatrice Murphy Sundayed at Lester Piermans'.

Wm. Sowers and wife spent Monday evening at Francis Bordens'.

R. H. Conine and family motored to Robison Park, Sunday.

Obituary

Amanda Huntsman was born in Ashland County, Ohio, Dec. 16th., 1855, and departed this life Aug. 10th., 1916. Age 61 years, 8 month and 25 days. She was one of a family of 8 children of which 6 still survive. She moved to this county with her parents in 1857, and lived in this county the remainder of her life. She leaves to mourn her loss 4 brothers and 2 sisters, and a host of friends. Funeral services were held from the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Keesey, officiating. Interment in the Mt. Pleasant Cemetery.

Come in and pay that overdue subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale:-Acme Washer and Wringer. All in good shape. Will sell cheap. MRS. H. L. DUNKLE.

LOST:-Black Leather Music Roll, north of School House. Roll contained Etude and a sheet of music with Ruth Eckright name on it. Finder please return same to ETHEL METCALF, Spencerville.

LOST:-A Tie Clasp, with letter B. Finder return to F. R. Bowman. Lost last Thursday evening in making run to fire.

FOR SALE:-Fresh cow with heifer calf by side. Dell Coburn.

Life Bright for "Kiddies" Whose Parents Follow the Advice of Luther Burbank

Luther Burbank, the famous wonder worker among flowers, fruits and vegetables, has not forgotten to study the rearing of children as well. According to his advice the child's education should be largely of his own working out in a happy world of mud-pies, grasshoppers, tadpoles, and frogs. There should be trees to climb, brooks to wade in, various animals to pet, and all kinds of little creatures to study. "Any child who has been deprived of these has been deprived of the best part of his education," says Mr. Burbank.

Many mothers agree with this idea, and would discourage any actual book work for very young children beyond perhaps reading and writing. Little girls should be sent off to skip and dance and cook instead of to do sums and dictation. The oculists tell us that no child should read type in which the capitals are under a quarter of an inch high and that he should use his eyes if possible on large things and out in the open. Eye-strain and effort of attention are source of the nerve disorders too common in children.

Colleges of Presidents.

Three presidents of the United States have been Harvard men, the Adamses and Roosevelt. Two have been Princeton men, Madison and Wilson. Jefferson, Monroe and John Tyler were from William and Mary. Polk was graduated from the University of North Carolina, Pierce from Bowdoin, Buchanan from Dickinson, Hayes from Kenyon, Garfield from Williams, Arthur from Union, Benjamin Harrison from Miami and Taft from Yale. Although there have been a dozen soldiers elected to the presidency because of their military achievements, Grant is the only West Point graduate.

Mrs. Flora Gee spent Tuesday with her daughter, Mrs. Lucile Provines, near Auburn.

Mr. Smalley Tells of Wonderful Cure.

A. Smalley, a prosperous farmer living six miles south-east of Antwerp, Ohio, says: "I was troubled with glandular inactivity for some time. My liver and kidneys had ceased to act until I was nearly as yellow as the yolk of an egg. My appetite was poor. What I did eat did not seem to digest. I lost flesh and was hardly able to drag around. When I begun to use Glando I soon got better. In eight weeks I had gained in flesh until I weighed as much as I ever weighed. My complexion cleared, and I feel as good as I ever did in my life." Mr. Smalley is a man fifty-three years old. He is only one of the many who have received wonderful help by using Glando. Glando starts glandular activity and throws the poison out of the system. Poisons retained in the body will in time break down the strongest constitution and destroy health. Don't let your glands shirk, keep them active and save your health.

Glando can be secured at drug stores or of the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. For Sale by All Druggists.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can, "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, } ss.
Lucas County.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.

Phone—St. Joe, 21-6

Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest in America — Strongest in the World

Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

808-810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

AUGUST

L 908

U263

WORLD'S EVENTS IN SHORT FORM

BEST OF THE NEWS BOILED DOWN TO LIMIT.

ARRANGED FOR BUSY PEOPLE

Notes Covering Most Important Happenings of the World Compiled in Briefest and Most Succinct Form for Quick Consumption.

European War News

Following the evacuation of Mush and Bitlis, Turkish Armenia, Russian troops, under Turkish pressure, have withdrawn from Hamadan, Persia, says a dispatch from Petrograd.

* * *

The 24-days' battle which resulted in the capture of Goritz by the Italians cost the Austro-Hungarians 70,000 men in killed and wounded, not counting the prisoners, it is estimated in dispatches received from the front.

* * *

London reports a heavy battle raging near the Graeco-Serbian frontier, with the allied troops from Saloniki attacking the Bulgarians. Already the allies have captured the station of Doiran and the high ground near by.

* * *

Stanislau, the Austro-Hungarian base in Galicia, was captured by the Russians, it was officially announced by Petrograd. The capture of Stanislau gives the Russians another gateway through which they can march toward Lemberg.

* * *

Two hundred and sixty-eight Austro-German officers and 14,000 unwounded men were captured by the Russians in battle on the Sereth river (Galicia) between August 4 and August 10, the war office announced at Petrograd.

* * *

Gen. Alexis Kuropatkin has been relieved of the command of the Russian armies on the Riga front. The man who was defeated by the Japanese in Manchuria has been appointed governor general of Turkestan, a Central News dispatch to London from Petrograd states.

* * *

The capture by the Russians of the railway station of Kryplin, on the Stanslau-Nadvorna railroad, was announced officially at Petrograd.

* * *

With King Victor Emanuel and the duke of Rosta, commander of the Italian third army, established in headquarters in the capturerd Austrian city of Goritz, the sweep of the Italians into Austria continued for a distance of more than five miles beyond the fortress.

* * *

The Italians captured the villages of San Martino and Boschini, according to Rome.

* * *

"A French torpedo-boat destroyer torpedoed an Austrian submarine north of the Island of Corfu," says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company at London from Athens.

* * *

Turkish troops captured from the Russians the Armenian towns of Bitlis and Mush, it was officially announced by the Turkish war office at Constantinople.

* * *

The Echo Belge of Amsterdam reports that allied airmen have successfully bombarded the German aerodrome at Etterbeck, near Brussels.

* * *

The Italians have captured Goritz. Official announcement of this victory, the greatest won by the Italians since the war against Austria-Hungary was begun, was announced by the war office at Rome. The Italians captured 10,000 prisoners.

* * *

The Russians broke the Teutonic defenses and drove the Teutons back on the entire line from Tiumacz to Ottynia. An advance averaging more than two miles on a front of approximately five miles was made by the victorious Slavs. Berlin admits a retreat before this Russian onslaught.

* * *

Domestic

William H. Blanchard, special agent for the state for the Wells-Fargo Express company, was drowned when an automobile which he was driving plunged into the river at Milwaukee, Wis.

* * *

Miss Helen Stewart, a teacher and prominently connected, shot and fatally wounded Dr. J. G. Barnsdale, a well-known physician and surgeon at Superior, Wis. She claims that the doctor mistreated her.

* * *

Returns from Ohio primary elections show that both the Republican and Democratic state slates headed by Gov. Frank B. Willis and ex-Gov. James M. Cox, respectively, carried practically without a break.

* * *

That a federal investigation of an alleged conspiracy formed a month ago between a number of big milling interests with a number of grain operators to manipulate the wheat market has been under way for four weeks became known at Chicago.

It was learned at Washington that President Wilson practically has decided to make a speaking trip across the continent.

* * *

Bainbridge Colby of New York, who nominated Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency at the Progressive national convention in Chicago, has declared himself in favor of the re-election of President Wilson.

* * *

Colonel Roosevelt will make his first campaign speech in behalf of the candidacy of Justice Hughes in Lewiston, Me., on August 31. This was announced at New York.

* * *

Prompt action on the part of George W. Schneider of St. Joseph, Mich., a member of the Michigan state pardon board, saved the lives of three St. Joseph girls from drowning.

* * *

Establishment of a school for teaching girls motherhood is provided for in the will of Mrs. Lizzie Merrill Palmer, filed at Detroit, Mich., for probate. Mrs. Palmer was the widow of former United States Senator Palmer. Probate court officials say the estate amounts to upward of $1,000,000.

* * *

Ida Torkelson, twenty-one years old, of Newark, Ill., was shot twice and probably fatally wounded by Guy O'Brien, a young farmer who lives near Helmar.

* * *

Leaping 15 stories from an office building in St. Louis, George K. Smith, secretary of the Yellow Pine Manufacturers' association, was instantly killed.

* * *

Acceptance by the railroad brotherhoods of New York of the proposal for mediation by the federal board of mediation and conciliation averted a strike of 400,000 railway employees. Announcement of the acceptance of the offer was made by A. B. Garretson, head of the conductors' brotherhood.

* * *

Matthew Hale of New York, acting chairman of the Progressive national committee, came out for President Wilson in a statement in which he declared he would support the Progressive electors in all states where they are put in the field, but would work for the re-election of the president in all other states.

* * *

Statements made by Charles E. Hughes, Republican nominee for the presidency, in speeches at Detroit were characterized as "false as to facts and of misleading substance," in telegrams sent by administration officials at Washington after a discussion of the subject by President Wilson and his cabinet. The charges related to changes in the coast and geodetic survey and the census bureau.

* * *

Mexican War News

Three bandits have been put to death at Chihuahua City, on orders of Gen. Jacinto Trevino. They are believed to be members of the band which clashed with United States troops near Fort Hancock, Tex.

* * *

Formal anouncement was made at Washington by Acting Secretary Polk of the acceptance of Geenral Carranza's proposal for a joint international commission to seek a solution of border disputes. Secretary Lane will head the American commission, supported by Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the Supreme court.

* * *

Washington

President Wilson has sent to the senate at Washington for ratification the treaty with Denmark for the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States.

* * *

W. P. G. Harding was designated by President Wilson as governor of the federal reserve board at Washington to succeed Charles S. Hamlin, and Paul Warburg was named vice-governor to succeed Frederic A. Delano.

* * *

The crisis in the news print paper situation, which already has cut down newspaper profits enormously, will not be reached before late October, when contracts come up for renewal, according to reports received at Washington from many sources by the federal trade commission.

* * *

John E. Kinnana was confirmed by the senate at Washington as a United States district attorney for the eastern district of Michigan.

* * *

President Wilson sent to the senate at Washington the nomination of Commander Leigh Palmer, U. S. N., to be chief of the bureau of navigation of the United States, succeeding Rear Admiral Blue, resigned.

* * *

Without debate the senate at Washington agreed to the conference report on the army appropriation bill carrying $267,597,000 for maintenance of the reorganized regular army and National Guard.

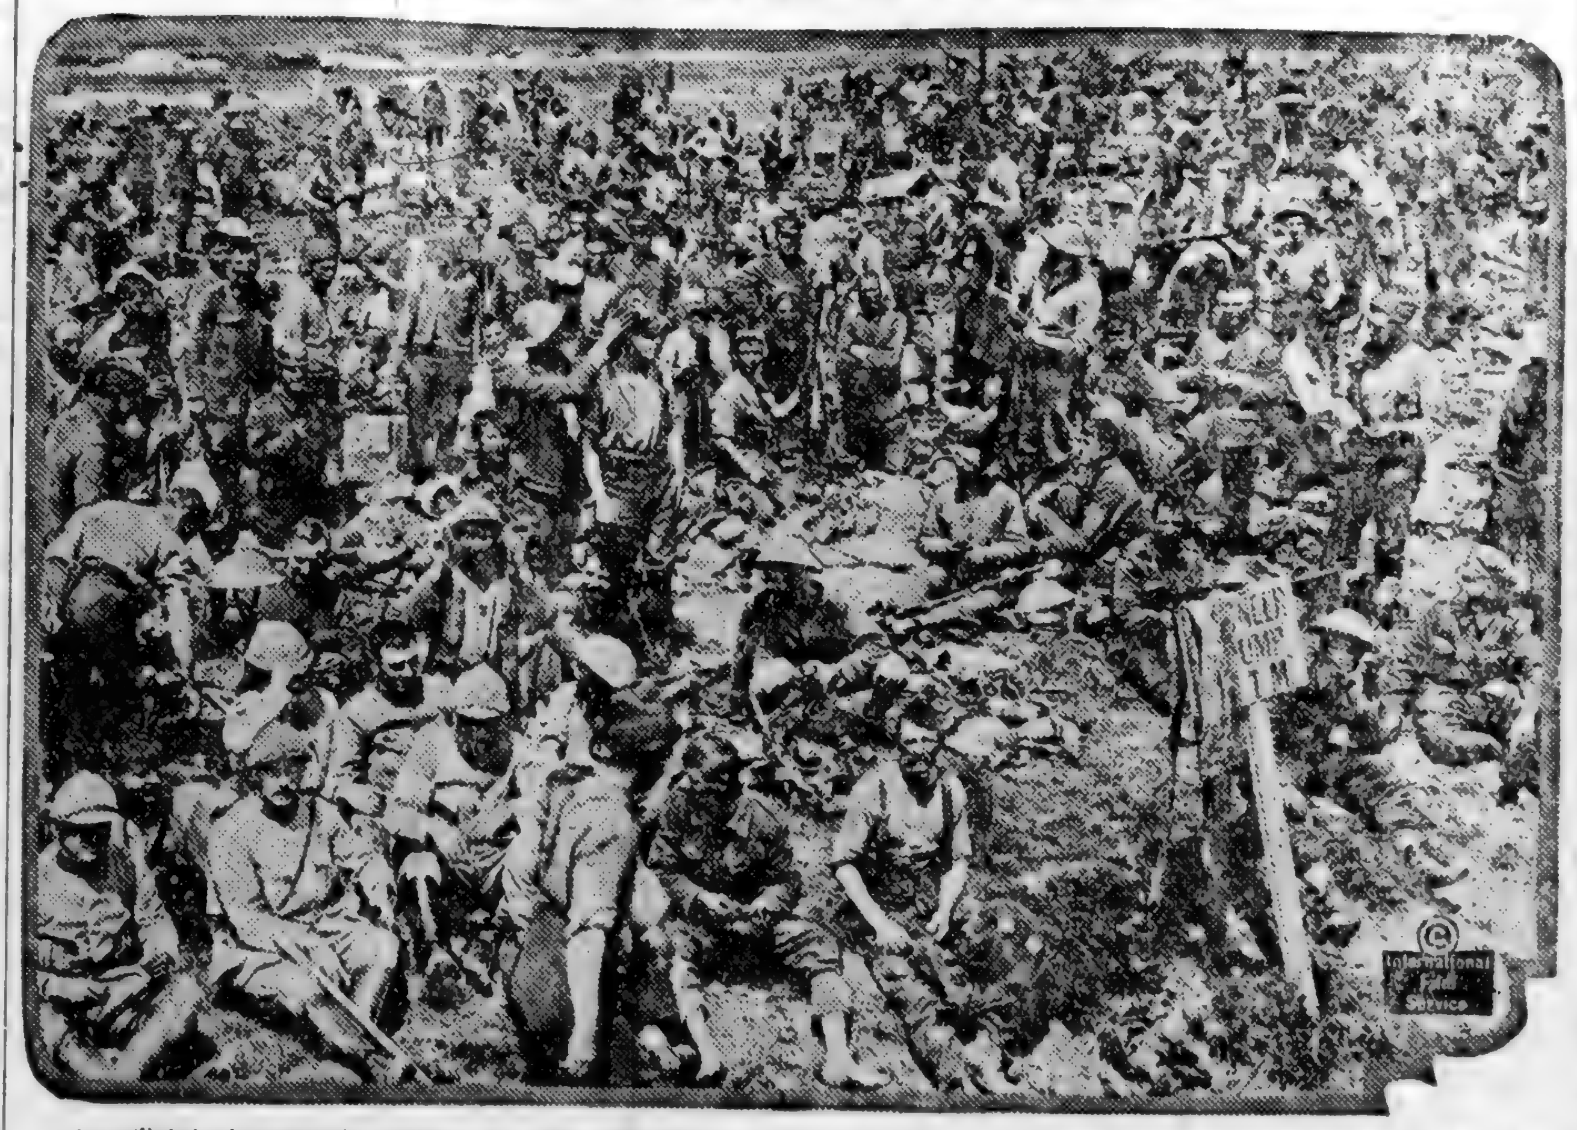
* * *

The child labor bill was passed in the senate at Washington, 52 to 12. The bill prohibits the shipment in interstate and foreign commerce of the product of the proscribed child labor. Children under sixteen are prohibited from working in quarries and mines.

* * *

The total yield of the leading cereal crops of the United States this year will be nearly 1,000,000,000 bushels less than last year. The government estimates of the crop issued at Washington showed sensational losses in the spring wheat crop in the northwest.

AFTER THE STORMING OF LA BOISSELLE



An official photograph showing the Royal Fusiliers resting after the storming of La Boisselle. Many of the men are fitting on helmets which were left on the battlefield by the Germans. In the background may be seen the smokestacks of the "goulash" kitchens.

SENATOR JAMES A. REED

Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, here seen in his cool summer garb in Washington, was renominated by the Democrats of his state.

BEAUTIFUL INDIAN PRINCESS

This is her highness, the Maharanee of Tikari, one of the most beautiful of Indian princesses. Her husband is at the head of a contingent of his own people on the British front in France.

A Utopian Dream.

"Some men actually show more solicitude over a damaged automobile than they do over a human being who is hurt," said the humanitarian.

"Don't you understand the psychology of that?"

"I can't say that I do."

"Everybody knows that there are charity hospitals where a person who is hurt can get patched up free of charge, but nobody has ever opened up a charity garage."

Precautionary.

Mrs. Bacon—I see washerwomen in Albania are compelled to register their names with the city health departments.

Mr. Bacon—Why don't they vaccinate them?

"What for?"

"So they won't take it."

"Take what?"

"The wash."

Reason for Joy.

Bill—Why feeling so happy?

Jill—I was just down to the pond and saw a frog croaking.

"Why should that make you happy?"

"I'm glad it was the frog that croaked, and not me."

WILL REPRESENT AMERICA IN TURKEY

© International Film Service

Abram I. Elkus of New York, appointed ambassador to Turkey to succeed Mr. Morgenthau, and Mrs. Elkus. The new ambassador is a lawyer and one of the leaders of American Jewry as well as in philanthropy and social welfare work.

AMMUNITION FOR FRENCH MORTARS

© International Film Service

An official photograph from the British western front showing the moving of mortar ammunition up to the trenches. A bridge has been built over a trench where the men had "dug in."

FIELD KITCHEN OF ILLINOIS TROOPS

© International Film Service

The Illinois National Guard boasts of being the only outfit possessing the luxury of a field kitchen. This field kitchen was bought with money raised by private subscription and presented to the First cavalry of Illinois.

INDIANA BREVITIES

Fort Wayne.—The third case of infantile paralysis in this city has been reported. The first two victims are recovering.

Sullivan.—The home of Fred Reid of Merom was burned to the ground with a loss of $2,000. The house was unoccupied.

Franklin.—A Riley memorial meeting was held in Grace Methodist church under the auspices of the Kappa Kappa Kappa sorority.

Hagerstown.—A barn on the farm of Harry Thornburg was struck by lightning and burned, destroying 25 tons of hay and many farming implements.

Peru.—The city township centennial celebration, held in the Kling grove, was attended by 2,000 persons. An interesting collection of relics was shown.

Evansville.—Floyd C. Ragland, for several years county superintendent of schools, has resigned to accept a position as principal of the Fulton Avenue school here.

Corydon.—The board of county commissioners set September 2 for a local-option election in Taylor township. There is one saloon in the township, at New Boston.

Lyons.—W. B. Van Gorder, for the last six years superintendent of the Lyons school, left this week to become superintendent of the Albion schools. School will open here September 1.

Warsaw.—Reports that fish in Palestine lake have been poisoned have caused much agitation among fishermen here. During the last week the lake has been covered with dead fish.

Fort Wayne.—The county commissioners have set August 29 for the local-option election in Clear Creek township. Two saloons are in the township, one at Leo and one at Grabill.

Newcastle.—Frank Blubaker celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday anniversary. He was born in Reddington, Pa., August 5, 1822. He is a veteran of both the Mexican and Civil wars.

Kokomo.—Frank Sneider, a Pole, was stabbed and severely wounded and another Pole was stabbed in a fight with two men who escaped. All the men involved in the fight were foreigners.

Laporte.—Two hundred entries have been received for the State Golf association tournament which will begin in this city August 14 and continue until finals are played Saturday, a continuous program of six days.

Shelbyville.—The Manufacturers' association has appropriated money to buy equipment for the public playground in the city park. The Elks' lodge is considering a proposal to build a bathing pool in the park.

Muncie.—Alexander Pouset, who is wanted in many parts of the country on charges of passing forged checks, has refused the services of the county attorney, Walter Gray, to defend him on a charge of forgery against him here.

Rushville.—A barn on the farm of Jefferson Lantz near Moscow, Rush county, was destroyed by fire after being hit by lightning. Thirty tons of hay and 250 bushels of wheat burned. Seven horses were saved. The loss was $3,000.

Muncie.—A man giving his name as R. C. Craig of Danville, Ill., was walking along the railroad tracks here when he was stabbed by a man who, he said, tried to rob him. An artery in his face was severed, but medical attention saved Craig from serious injury. A man giving his name as John Barrett is held pending an investigation.

Monticello.—Mrs. Mary Carr of West Point township celebrated her ninety-second birthday anniversary Monday. She is the only living mother of the Civil war veterans in White county. Both sons are living. They are Walter Carr of West Point, who served in the Forty-fourth Ohio infantry, and S. B. Carr, who was a member of the Eighth Ohio volunteer cavalry.

Danville. — Commencement visitors of the Central Normal college witnessed a big scrap between lower class students in the streets here. The streets had been freshly oiled and as the college boys wrestled on the ground their clothing, faces and hair were covered with oil. The scrap was ended by President Laird. Some of the boys are still trying to get the oil out of their hair.

Terre Haute.—Thomas Payton, formerly of this city, committed suicide in Greensburg, Kan., according to a message received by his sister, Mrs. Maude Nois. Despondency over the disappearance of his son, Albert, age fourteen, is said to have been the cause. The boy lived with Mrs. Nois; he left the house two weeks ago, saying he was going swimming. When he failed to return at night his aunt notified the police, who dragged several swimming places, but the body was not found.

Indianapolis.—J. Frank Hanly, Prohibition candidate for president, will make his campaign in a special train, it was stated after a meeting of the national committee. The Prohibitionists will wage their biggest fight in Colorado, Missouri, Iowa, Montana, South Dakota and Michigan.

Knox.—The body of the man taken from Bass lake has been identified as that of Edward Fabian, twenty-one, of Fort Wayne, who had come to the lake to spend a few days vacation. He could not swim and venturing beyond his depth sank before assistance could reach him.

AUGUST

L 908

0264

The Turmoil

By
BOOTH TARKINGTON

The Story of a Big Man in a Big Town

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—10—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old-town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bibs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife. Doctor Gurney finds Bibbs well enough to go back to the machine shop. Mary and Bibbs meet by accident and form a pleasant friendship. Roscoe Sheridan and his wife quarrel desperately about Bobby Lamhorn. Bibbs decides to go to work.

One of the greatest boons of friendship is that it means understanding. Each of us has in his soul fancies, dreams, reveries, which only one other person, perhaps, can appreciate. Very often we must go beyond the lines of family ties to find the beautiful sympathy of friendship.

CHAPTER XVIII—Continued.

"How often is that?"

"The thing should make about sixty-eight disks a minute—a little more than one a second."

"And you're close to it?"

"Oh, the workman has to sit in its lap," he said, turning to her more gayly. "The others don't mind. You see, it's something wrong with me. I have an idiotic way of flinching from the confounded thing—I flinch and duck a little every time the crash comes, and I couldn't get over it. I was a treat to the other workmen in that room; they'll be glad to see me back. They used to laugh at me all day long."

Mary's gaze was averted from Bibbs now; she sat with her elbow resting on the arm of the chair, her lifted hand pressed against her cheek. She was staring at the wall, and her eyes had a burning brightness in them.

"It doesn't seem possible anyone could do that to you," she said, in a low voice. "No. He's not kind. He ought to be proud to help you to the leisure to write books; it should be his greatest privilege to have them published for you—"

"Can't you see him?" Bibbs interrupted, a faint ripple of hilarity in his voice. "No. It's just as well he never got the— But what's the use? I've never written anything worth printing, and I never shall."

"You could!" she said.

"That's because you've never seen the poor little things I've tried to do."

"You wouldn't let me, but I know you could! Ah, it's a pity!"

"It isn't," said Bibbs, honestly. "I never could—but you're the kindest lady in this world, Miss Vertrees."

She gave him a flashing glance, and it was as kind as he said she was. "That sounds wrong," she said, impulsively. "I mean 'Miss Vertrees.' I've thought of you by your first name ever since I met you. Wouldn't you rather call me 'Mary'?"

Bibbs was dazzled; he drew a long, deep breath and did not speak.

"Wouldn't you?" she asked, without a trace of coquetry.

"If I can!" he said, in a low voice.

"Ah, that's very pretty!" she laughed. "You're such an honest person, it's pleasant to have you gallant sometimes, by way of variety." She became grave again immediately. "I hear myself laughing as if it were someone else. It sounds like laughter on the eve of a great calamity." She got up restlessly, crossed the room and leaned against the wall, facing him. "You've got to go back to that place?"

He nodded.

"And the other time you did it—"

"Just over it," said Bibbs. "Two years. But I don't mind the prospect of a repetition so much as—"

"So much as what?" she prompted, as he stopped.

Bibbs looked up at her shyly. "I want to say it, but—but I come to a dead balk when I try. I—"

"Go on. Say, it, whatever it is," she bade him. "You wouldn't know how to say anything I shouldn't like."

"I doubt if you'd either like or dislike what I want to say," he returned, moving uncomfortably in his chair and looking at his feet—he seemed to feel awkward, thoroughly. "You see, all my life—until I met you—if I ever felt like saying anything, I wrote it instead. Saying things is a new trick for me, and this—well, it's just this. I used to feel as if I hadn't ever had any sort of a life at all. I'd never been of use to anything or anybody, and I'd never had anything, myself, except a kind of haphazard thinking. But now it's different—I'm still of no use to anybody, and I don't see any prospect of being useful, but I have had something for myself. I've had a beautiful and happy experience, and it makes my life seem to be—I mean I'm glad I've lived it! That's all; it's your letting me be near you sometimes, as you have, this strange, beautiful, happy little while!"

He did not once look up, and reached silence, at the end of what he had to say, with eyes still awkwardly regarding his feet. She did not speak, but a soft rustling of her garments let him know that she had gone back to her chair again. The house was still; the shabby old room was so quiet that the sound of a creaking in the wall seemed sharp and loud.

And yet, when Mary spoke at last, her voice was barely audible. "If you think it has been—happy—to be friends with me—you'd want to—to make it last."

"Yes," he gulped.

"But you make that kind of speech to me because you think it's over."

He tried to evade her. "Oh, a day laborer can't come in his overalls—"

"No," she interrupted, with a sudden sharpness. "You said what you did because you think the shop's going to kill you."

"No, no!"

"Yes, you do think that!" She rose to her feet again and came and stood before him. "Don't deny it, Bibbs. Well, if you meant what you said—and you did mean it, I know it!—you're not going to go back to the sanitarium. The shop shan't hurt you. It shan't!"

And now Bibbs looked up. She stood before him, straight and tall, splendid in generous strength, her eyes shining and wet.

"If I mean that much to you," she cried, "they can't harm you! Go back to the shop—but come to me when your day's work is done. Let the machines crash their sixty-eight times a minute, but remember each crash that deafens you is that much nearer the evening and me!"

He stumbled to his feet. "You say—" he gasped.

"Every evening, dear Bibbs!"

He could only stare, bewildered.

"Every evening. I want you. They sha'n't hurt you again!" And she held out her hand to him; it was strong and warm in his tremulous clasp. "If I could, I'd go and feed the strips of zinc to the machine with you," she said. "But all day long I'll send my thoughts to you. You must keep remembering that your friend stands beside you. And when the work is done—won't the night make up for the day?"

Light seemed to glow from her; he was blinded by that radiance of kindness. But all he could say was, huskily, "To think you're there—with me—standing beside the old zinc-eater—"

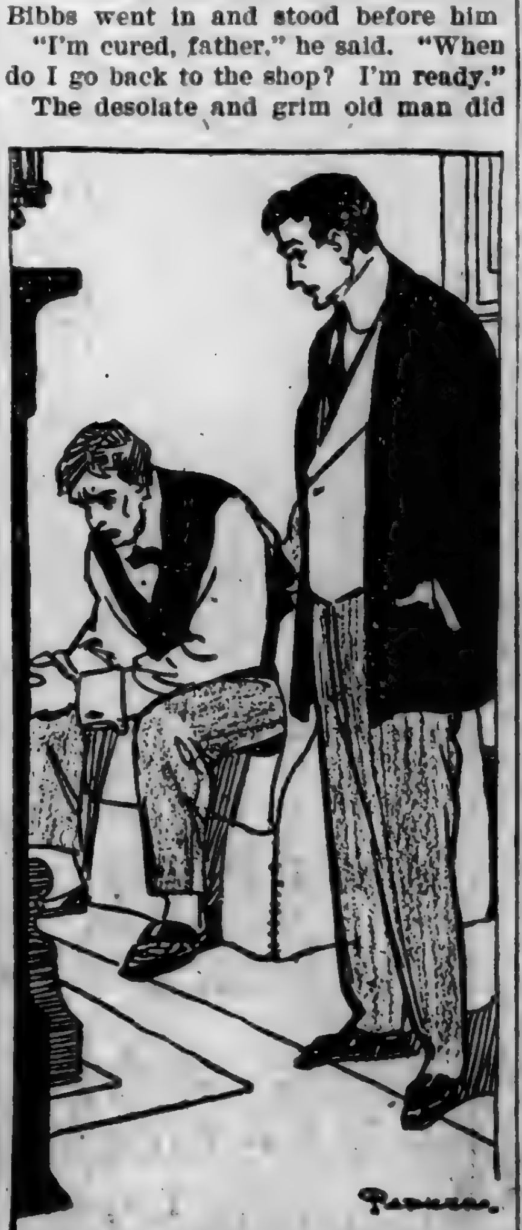
And they laughed and looked at each other, and at last Bibbs found what it meant not to be alone in the world. He had a friend.

CHAPTER XIX.

When he came into the new house, a few minutes later, he found his father sitting alone by the library fire. Bibbs went in and stood before him

"I'm cured, father," he said. "When do I go back to the shop? I'm ready."

The desolate and grim old man did not relax. "I was sittin' up to give you a last chance to say something like that. I reckon it's about time! I just wanted to see if you'd have manhood enough not to make me take you over there by the collar. Last night I made up my mind I'd give you just one more day. Well, you got to it before I did—pretty close to the eleventh hour! All right. Start in tomorrow. It's the first o' the month Think you can get up in time?"



"I'm Cured, Father," He Said.

"Six o'clock," Bibbs responded briskly. "And I want to tell you—I'm going in a 'cheerful spirit.' As you said. I'll go and I'll 'like it!'"

"That's your lookout!" his father grunted. "They'll put you back on the clippin' machine. You get nine dollars a week."

"More than I'm worth, too," said Bibbs, cheerily. "That reminds me, I didn't mean you by 'Midas' in that nonsense I'd been writing. I meant—"

"Makes a hell of a lot of difference what you mean!"

"I just wanted you to know. Good night, father."

"G'night!"

The sound of the young man's footsteps ascending the stairs became inaudible, and the house was quiet. But presently, as Sheridan sat staring angrily at the fire, the shuffling of a pair of slippers could be heard descending, and Mrs. Sheridan made her appearance, her oblique expression and the state of her toilette being those of a person who, after trying unsuccessfully to sleep on one side, has got up to look for burglars.

"Papa!" she exclaimed, drowsily. "Why'n't you go to bed? It must be goin' on 'leven o'clock!"

She yawned, and seated herself near him, stretching out her hands to the fire. "What's the matter?" she asked, sleep and anxiety striving sluggishly with each other in her voice. "I knew you were worried all dinner time. You got something new on your mind besides Jim's bein' taken away like he was. What's worryin' you now, papa?"

"Nothin'."

She jeered feebly. "N' tell me that! You sat up to see Bibbs, didn't you?"

"He starts in at the shop again tomorrow morning," said Sheridan.

"Just the same as he did before?"

"Just pre-cisely."

"How—long you goin' to keep him at it, papa?" she asked, timidly.

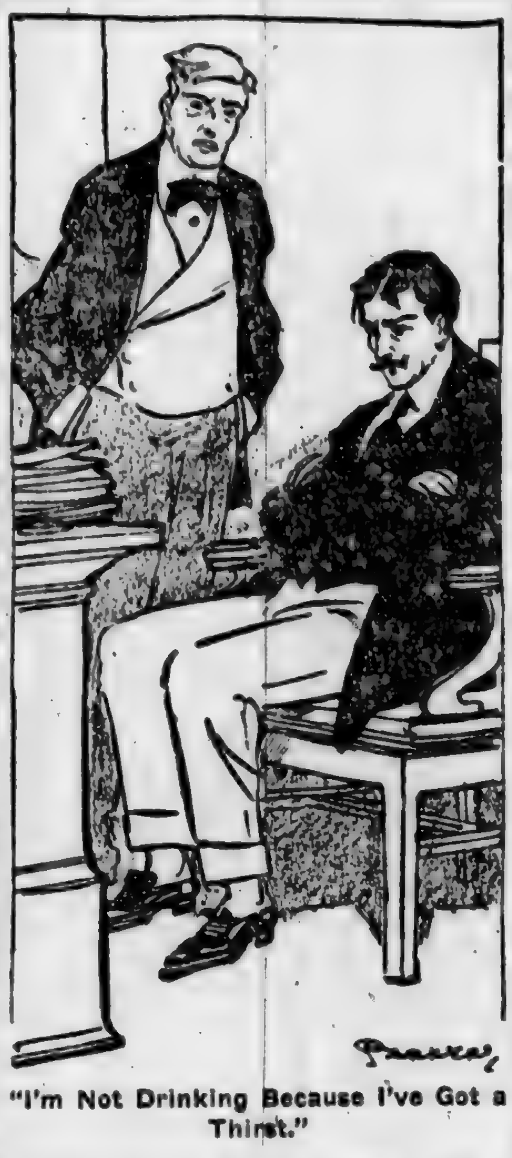
"Until he knows something!" The unhappy man struck his palms together, then got to his feet and began to pace the room, as was his wont when he talked. "He'll go back to the machine he couldn't learn to tend properly in the six months he was there, and he'll stick to it till he does learn it! That boy's whole life, there's been a settin' up o' something mulish that's against everything I want him to do. I don't know what it is, but it's got to be worked out of him. Now, labor ain't any more a simple question than what it was when we were young. My idea is that, outside o' union troubles, the man that can manage workin' men is the man that's been one himself. Well, I set Bibbs to learn the men and to learn the business, and he set himself to balk on the first job! That's what he did, and the balk's lasted close on to three years. If he balks again I'm just done with him! Sometimes I feel like I was pretty near done with everything, anyhow!"

"I knew there was something else," said Mrs. Sheridan, blinking over a yawn. "You better let it go till tomorrow and get to bed now—'less you'll tell me?"

"Suppose something happened to Roscoe," he said. "Then what'd I have to look forward to? Then what could I depend on to hold things together? A lummix! A lummix that hasn't learned how to push a strip o' zinc along a groove!"

"Roscoe?" she yawned. "You needn't worry about Roscoe, papa. He's the strongest child we had. I never did know anybody keep better health than he does. I don't believe he's even had a cold in five years. You better go up to bed, papa."

"Suppose something did happen to him, though. You don't know what it means, keepin' property together these days—just keepin' it alive, let alone makin' it grow the way I do. I tell you when a man dies, if that dead man's chuldern ain't on the job, night and day, everything he built 'll get carried off. My Lord! when I think o' such things comin' to me! It don't seem like I deserved it—no man ever tried harder to raise his boys right than I have. I planned and planned and planned how to bring 'em up to be guards to drive the wolves off, and how to be builders to build, and build bigger. I tell you this business life is no fool's job nowadays—a man's got to have eyes in the back of his head. You hear talk, sometimes, 'd make you think the millennium had come—but right the next breath you'll hear somebody hollerin' about 'the great unrest.' You bet there's a 'great unrest!' There ain't any man alive smart enough to see what it's goin' to do to us in the end, nor what day it's got set to bust loose, but it's frothin' and bubblin' in the boiler. This country's been fillin' up with it from all over the world for a good many years, and the old campmeetin' days are dead and done with. Church ain't what it used to be. Nothin's what it used to be—everything's turned up from the bottom, and the growth is so big the roots stick out in the air. There's an awful ruction goin' on, and you got to keep hoppin' if you're goin' to keep your balance on the top of it. And the schemers! They run like bugs on the bottom of a board—after any piece o' money they hear is loose. Fool schemes and crooked schemes; the fool ones are the most and the worst! You got to fight to keep your money after you've made it. And the woods are full o' mighty industrious men that's only got one motto: 'Get the other fellow's money before he gets yours!' And when a mans' built as I have, when he's built good and strong, and made good things grow and prosper—those are the fellows that lay for a chance to slide in and sneak the benefit of it and put their names to it! And what's the use my havin' ever been born, if such a thing as that is goin' to happen? What's the use my havin' worked my life and soul into my business, if it's all goin' to be dispersed and scattered soon as I'm in the ground?"



"I'm Not Drinking Because I've Got a Thirst."

He strode up and down the long room, gesticulating—little regarding the troubled and drowsy figure by the fireside. His throat rumbled thunderously; the words came with stormy bitterness. "You think this is a time for young men to be lyin' on beds of ease? I tell you there never was such a time before; there never was such opportunity. The sluggard is despoiled while he sleeps—yes, by George! if a man lays down they'll eat him before he wakes!—but the live man can build straight up till he touches the sky! This is the business man's day; it used to be the soldier's day and the statesman's day, but this is ours! And it ain't a Sunday to go fishin'—it's turmoil! turmoil!—and you got to go out and live it and breathe it and make it yourself, or you'll only be a dead man walkin' around dreamin' you're alive. And that's what my son Bibbs has been doin' all his life, and what he'd rather do now than go out and do his part by me. And if anything happens to Roscoe—"

"Oh, do stop worryin' over such nonsense," Mrs. Sheridan interrupted, irritated into sharp wakefulness for the moment. "There ain't anything goin' to happen to Roscoe, and you're just tormentin' yourself about nothin'. Aren't you ever goin' to bed?"

Sheridan halted. "All right, mamma," he said, with a vast sigh. "Let's go up." And he snapped off the electric light, leaving only the rosy glow of the fire.

"Did you speak to Roscoe?" she yawned, rising lopsidedly in her drowsiness. "Did you mention about what I told you the other evening?"

"No. I will tomorrow."

• • • • • • •

But Roscoe did not come downtown the next day, nor the next; nor did Sheridan see fit to enter his son's house. He waited. Then, on the fourth day of the month, Roscoe walked into his father's office at nine in the morning, when Sheridan happened to be alone.

"They told me downstairs you'd left word you wanted to see me."

"Sit down," said Sheridan, rising.

Roscoe sat. His father walked close to him, sniffed suspiciously, and then walked away, smiling bitterly. "Boh!" he exclaimed. "Still at it!"

"Yes," said Roscoe. "I've had a couple of drinks this morning. What about it?"

"I reckon I better adopt some decent young man," his father returned. "I'd bring Bibbs up here and put him in your place if he was fit. I would!"

"Better do it," Roscoe assented, sullenly.

"When'd you begin this thing?"

"I always did drink a little. Ever since I grew up, that is."

"Leave that talk out! You know what I mean."

"Well, I don't know as I ever had too much in office hours—until the other day."

Sheridan began cutting. "It's a lie. I've had Ray Wills up from your office. He didn't want to give you away, but I put the hooks into him, and he came through. You were drunk twice before and couldn't work. You been leavin' your office for drinks every few hours for the last three weeks. I been over your books. Your office is way behind. You haven't done any work, to count, in a month."

Roscoe's head was sunk between his shoulders. "I can't stand very much talk about it, father," he said, pleadingly.

"No!" Sheridan cried. "Neither can I! What do you think it means to me?" He dropped into the chair at his big desk, groaning. "I can't stand to talk about it any more'n you can to listen, but I'm goin' to find out what's the matter with you, and I'm goin' to straighten you out!"

Roscoe shook his head helplessly.

"You can't straighten me out."

"See here!" said Sheridan. "Can you go back to your office and stay sober today, while I get my work done, or will I have to hire a couple o' huskies to follow you around and knock the whisky out o' your hand if they see you tryin' to take it?"

"You needn't worry about that," said Roscoe, looking up with a faint resentment. "I'm not drinking because I've got a thirst."

"Well, what have you got?"

"Nothing. Nothing you can do anything about. Nothing, I tell you."

"We'll see about that!" said Sheridan, harshly. "Now I can't fool with you today, and you get up out o' that chair and get out o' my office. You bring your wife to dinner tomorrow. You didn't come last Sunday—but you come tomorrow. I'll talk this out with you when the women-folks are workin' the phonograph, after dinner. Can you keep sober till then? You better be sure, because I'm goin' to send Abercrombie down to your office every little while, and he'll let me know."

Roscoe paused at the door. "You told Abercrombie about it?" he asked.

"Told him!" And Sheridan laughed hideously. "Do you suppose there's an elevator boy in the whole dam' building that ain't on to you?"

Roscoe settled his hat down over his eyes and went out.

CHAPTER XX.

Who looks a mustang in the eye?
Changety, chang, chang! Bash! Crash!
Bang!

So sang Bibbs, his musical gayeties inaudible to his fellow workmen because of the noise of the machinery. He had discovered long ago that the uproar was rhythmical, and it had been intolerable; but now, on the afternoon of the fourth day of his return, he was accompanying the swing and clash of the metals with jubilant vaquero fragments, mingling improvisations of his own among them, and mocking the zinc eater's crash with vocal imitations:

Fearless and bold,
Chang! Bash! Behold!
With a leap from the ground
To the saddle in a bound,
And away—and away!
Hi-yay!

The long room was ceaselessly thundering with metallic sound; the air was thick with the smell of oil; the floor trembled perpetually; everything was implacably in motion—nowhere was there a rest for the dizzied eye. The first time he had entered the place Bibbs had become dizzy instantly, and six months of it had only added increasing nausea to faintness. But he felt neither now. "All day long I'll send my thoughts to you. You must keep remembering that your friend stands beside you." He saw her there beside him, and the greasy, roaring place became suffused with radiance. The poet was happy in his machine shop; he was still a poet there. And he fed his old zinc eater, and sang:

Away—and away!
Hi-yay!
Crash, bash, crash, bash, chang!
Wild are his eyes,
Fiercely he dies!
Hi-yay!
Crash, bash, bang! Bash, chang!
Ready to fling
Our gloves in the ring—

"I like the machine," said Bibbs. "I've made a friend of it. I serenade it and talk to it, and then it talks back to me."

"Indeed, indeed? What does it say?"

"What I want to hear."

He was unaware of a sensation that passed along the lines of workmen. Their great master had come among them, and they grinned to see him standing with Doctor Gurney behind the unconscious Bibbs. Sheridan nodded to those nearest him—he had personal acquaintance with nearly all of them—but he kept his attention upon his son. Bibbs worked steadily, never turning from his machine. Now and then he varied his musical program with remarks addressed to the zinc eater.

"Go on, you old crash-basher! Chew it up! It's good for you, if you don't try to bolt your vittles. Fletcherize, you pig! That's right—you'll never get a lump in your gizzard. Want some more? Here's a nice, shiny one."

The words were indistinguishable, but Sheridan inclined his head to Gurney's ear and shouted fiercely: "Talkin' to himself! By George!"

Gurney laughed reassuringly, and shook his head.

Bibbs returned to song.

Chang! Chang, bash, chang! It's I!
Who looks a mustang in the eye?
Fearless and bo—

His father grasped him by the arm. "Here!" he shouted. "Let me show you how to run a strip through there. The foreman says you're some better'n you used to be, but that's no way to handle— Get out the way and let me show you once."

"Better be careful," Bibbs warned him, stepping to one side.

"Careful? Boh!" Sheridan seized a strip of zinc from the box. "What you talkin' to yourself about? Tryin' to make yourself think you're so abused you're goin' wrong in the head?"

"'Abused?' No!" shouted Bibbs. "I was singing—because I 'like it!' I told you I'd come back and 'like it.'"

Sheridan may not have understood. At all events, he made no reply, but began to run the strip of zinc through the machine. He did it awkwardly—and with bad results.

"Here!" he shouted. "This is the way. Watch how I do it. There's nothin' to it, if you put your mind on it." By his own showing then his mind was not upon it. He continued to talk. "All you got to look out for is to keep it pressed over to—"

"Don't run your hand up with it," Bibbs vociferated, leaning toward him.

"Run nothin'! You got to—"

"Look out!" shouted Bibbs and Gurney together, and they both sprang forward. But Sheridan's right hand had followed the strip too far, and the zinc eater had bitten off the tips of the first and second fingers. He swore vehemently, and wrung his hand, sending a shower of red drops over himself and Bibbs, but Gurney grasped his wrist, and said, sharply:

"Come out of here. Come over to the lavatory in the office. Bibbs, fetch my bag. It's in my machine, outside."

And when Bibbs brought the bag to the washroom he found the doctor still grasping Sheridan's wrist, holding the injured hand over a basin. Sheridan had lost color, and temper, too. He glared over his shoulder at his son as the latter handed the bag to Gurney.

"You go on back to your work," he said. "I've had worse snips than that from a pencil sharpener."

"Oh, no, you haven't!" said Gurney.

"I have too!" Sheridan retorted, angrily. "Bibbs, you go on back to your work. There's no reason to stand around here watchin' ole Doc Gurney tryin' to keep himself awake workin' on a scratch that only needs a little courtplaster. I slipped or it wouldn't happened. You get back on your job."

"All right," said Bibbs.

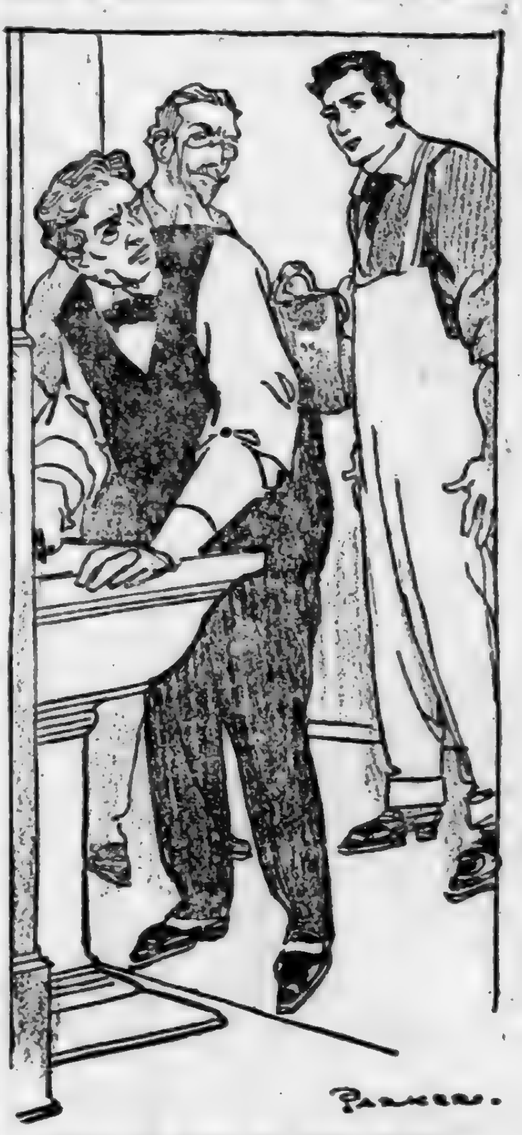
"Here!" Sheridan bellowed, as his son was passing out of the door. "You watch out when you're runnin' that machine! You hear what I say? I slipped, or I wouldn't got scratched, but you—you're liable to get your whole hand cut off! You keep your eyes open!"

"Yes, sir." And Bibbs returned to the zinc eater thoughtfully.

Half an hour later Gurrey touched him on the shoulder and beckoned him outside, where conversation was possible. "I sent him home, Bibbs. He'll have to be careful of that hand. Go get your overalls off. I'll take you for a drive and leave you at home."

"Can't," said Bibbs. "Got to stick to my job till the whistle blows."

"No, you don't," the doctor returned, smothering a yawn. "He wants me to take you down to my office and give you an overhauling to see how much harm these four days on the machine have done you. I guess you folks have got that old man pretty thoroughly upset, between you, up at your house! But I don't intend to go over you. I can see with my eyes half shut—"



"You Go Back to Your Work."

"Yes," Bibbs interrupted, "that's what they are."

"I say I can see you're starting out, at least, in good shape. What's made the difference?"

"I like the machine," said Bibbs.

"Well, well!" The doctor stretched himself and stamped his foot repeatedly. "Better come along and take a drive with me. You can take the time off that he allowed for the examination, and—"

Will Old Man Sheridan come to himself and appreciate Bibbs' real value now—will he take his son out of the machine shop and give him a chance to live his own life?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

AUGUST

L 908

0265

Gasoline 19c at Patterson's Garage,
St. JOE, INDIANA

Yearly Meeting.

The yearly meeting of the Christian Churches of DeKalb County, is to be held at Auburn, on Saturday and Sunday, Aug 26 and 27 It will be held at the new Eckhart Park, and Grant W. Speer, of Toledo, Ohio, will deliver all the addresses. This event has been a yearly one for over sixty years, in this county, and it is held with the different congregations, ten in number, in the county. This year it is to be at Auburn, and the Christian Church there is making great preparations for its entertainment.

The Eckhart Park is an ideal place for the meeting. A large pavillion, in case of rain, plenty of shade, good running water, tables from which the great basket dinner can be eaten, toilets, wash-rooms, places for parking autos and for hitching teams, with plenty of seats, will render the meeting a most delightful one. There will be a service on Saturday night, on the lawn of the Auburn church Then, on Sunday at 9:30, a monster Bible school, at the Park, followed by the morning sermon. At 2 p. m., the Communion services will be held, and Rev. Speer will give an address after the communion. Then at night the services will again be held on the church lawn.

There are about 1500 members of the Christian Church in the county. The first church was organized at Coburn's Corners, in the south-east corner of the county over eighty years ago. The yearly meeting of this church is purely for devotional, social and inspirational purposes and at such times one of the best speakers of the church is asked to give the addresses. Rev. Speer, the speaker for this year, is pastor of the Central Christian Church, Toledo, Ohio, and for many years was pastor at Hicksville, Ohio. It is the custom among the churches to dismiss all services for that day, and unite with the church where the Yearly Meeting is to be held. This year, it is expected that more than one thousand people will be in attendance.

..Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

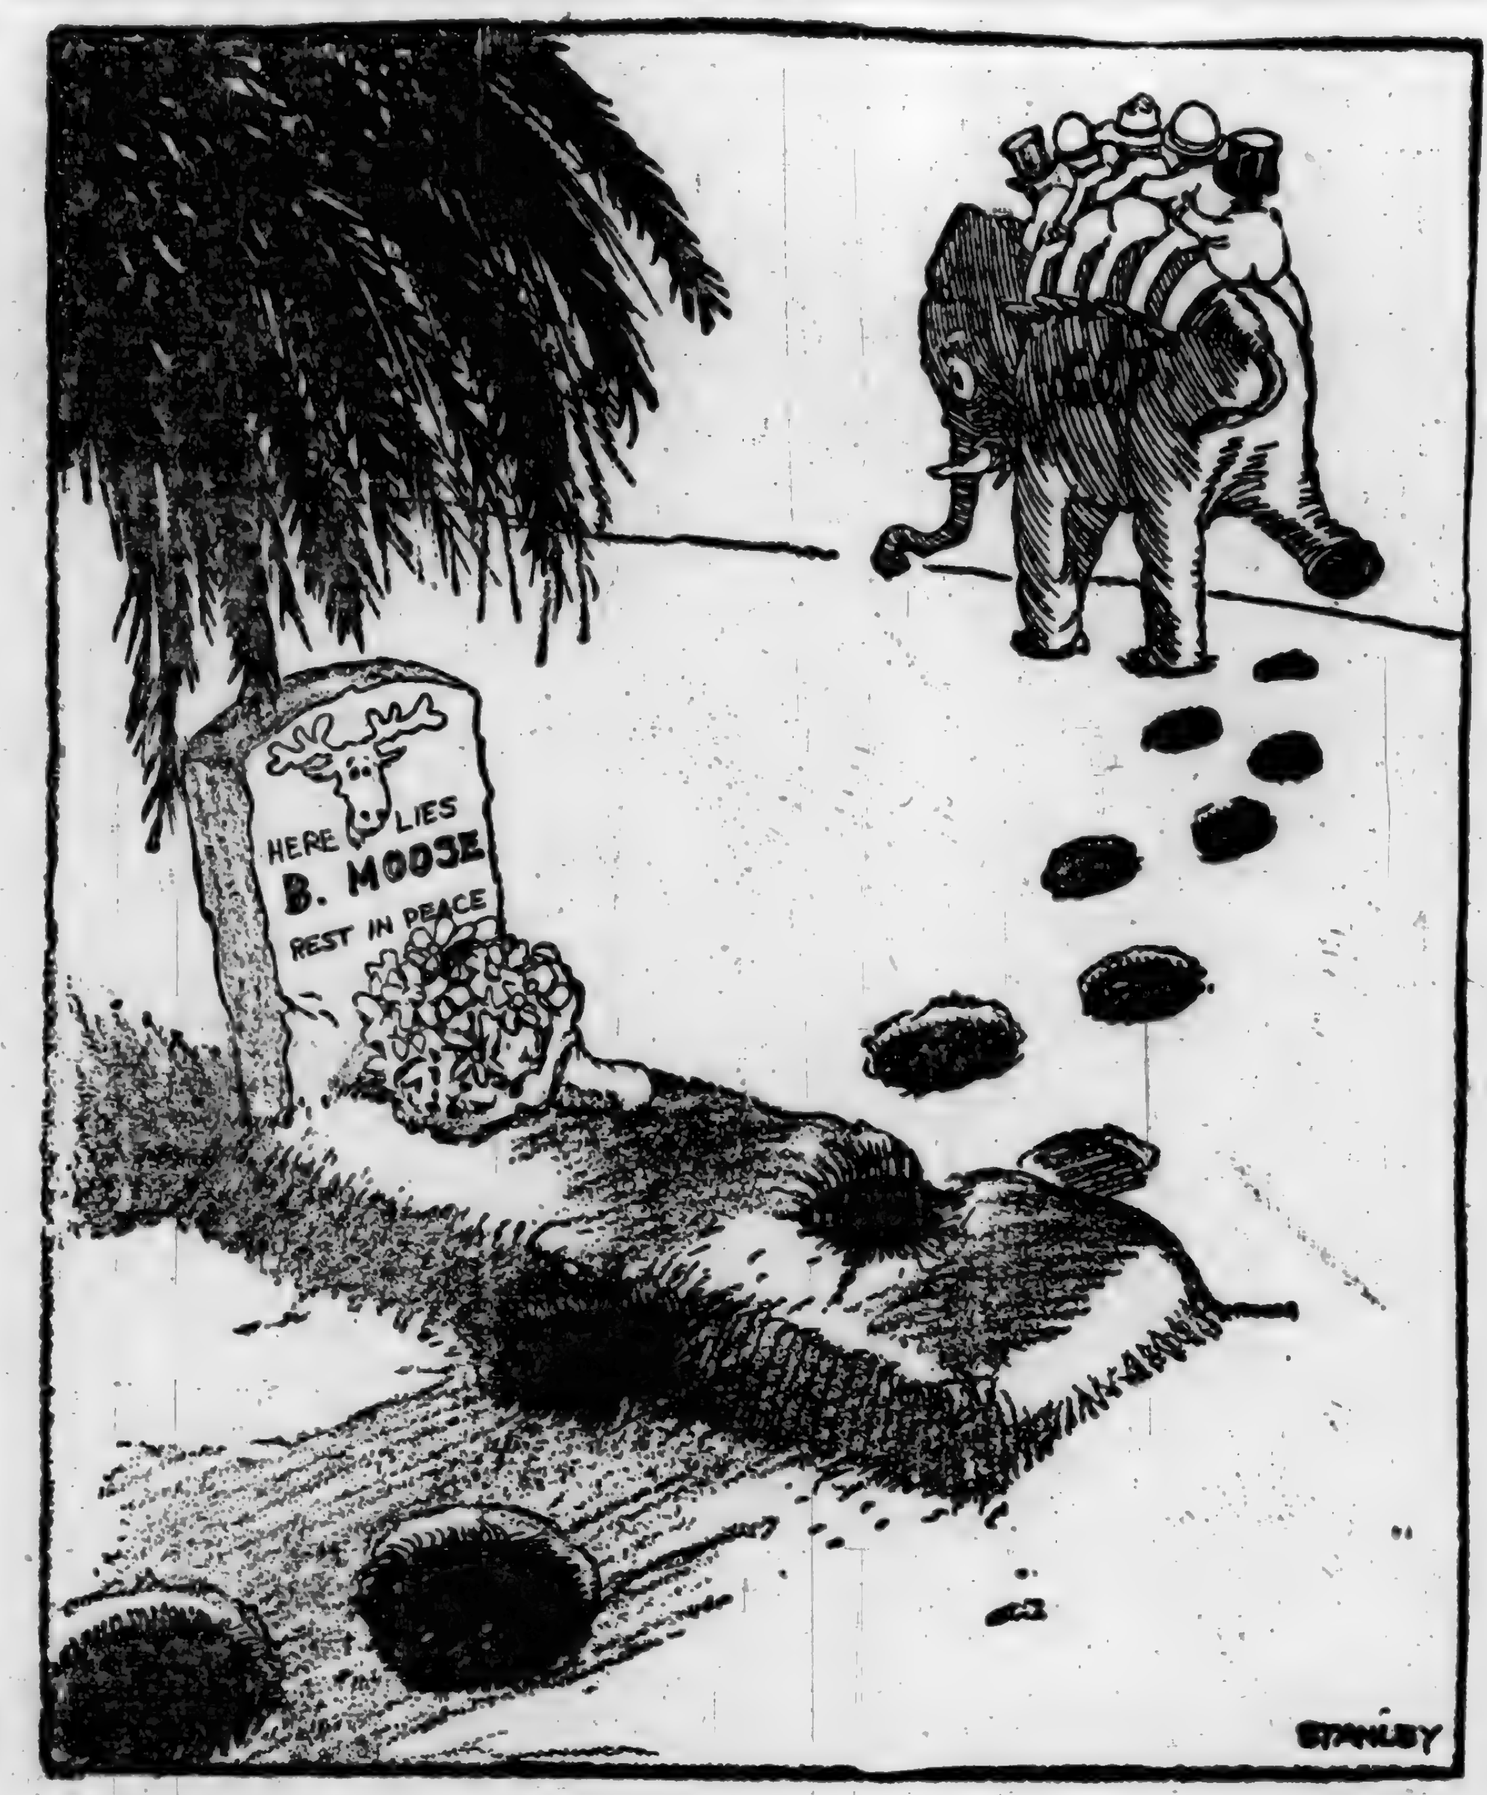
Church Notes

Christian Church Announcements.
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Preaching by Elder Joseph Scholes at 7:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Preaching services, 7:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

WANTED!
YOUR POULTRY
For which we will pay the highest market price.
Call us and we will call and get them.
J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

FOOTPRINTS ON THE SANDS OF TIME



(Elizabeth Evening Times)

Who Shall Register.

DeKalb county voters who have moved from one precinct to another since the election of 1914 should not lose sight of the fact that they are required to register this year if they expect to vote at the election in November. Men who voted at the 1914 election and have not moved will not be required to register. New voters who have reached the age of 21 will also be required to register this year, the registration day coming early in October. Both the democrat and republican state organizations are working on the registration matter and are making plans to see to it that their voters are all registered.

Personal Items

Miss Clara Bash, of near the State Line, Sidney Brunson, of Newville, and Mrs. Ada Bassett were Sunday visitors of A. D. Brunson and family.

John Betz and wife, Mrs. Martha Shearer, and the Misses Edith Berry and Mary Welsh were dinner guests of Sol Shearer and wife, at Auburn, Sunday.

Mother's Cook Book.

"We pension a soldier who loses a leg in battle against a man-foe. But do we pension a mother who wears out her eyesight mending half the night, keeping the wolf from the door, fighting off that elemental foe of the race—Hunger Fright?"

Oatmeal Scones.

Take a cupful of oatmeal, one-third of a cupful of wheat flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Mix together thoroughly. Cut into this one tablespoonful of butter and hot milk to make a stiff dough. Roll out to a half inch in thickness. Cut in rounds with a biscuit cutter and bake on a griddle until brown, then turn on the other side. Tear apart and butter generously. Serve at once.

Broiled Lamb's Kidney.

Split as many kidneys as are needed and remove the fat and sinew, then soak in acidulated water. Drain and wipe dry. Immerse in olive oil and broil. Serve on toast, garnished with parsley and lemon.

Curried Chicken With Coconut.

Parboil a chicken cut in pieces, then roll in flour in which a teaspoonful of curry has been mixed, fry in butter and drippings until brown. Have a fresh grated coconut with two cupfuls of water and a dash of lemon and the coconut milk added to the chicken, thicken and serve with riced potatoes.

Scotch Fancies.

Take one egg, well beaten, add a half cupful of sugar, one-third of a cupful of coconut, a dash of salt and a half teaspoonful of vanilla, a two-thirds of a cupful of rolled oats, mix and drop on a baking sheet. Let stand a few minutes when taken from the oven to make them firm.

Rice.

Cook unpolished rice until tender in plenty of boiling water, season with salt and serve with cream and sugar. This rice is much more nourishing than the polished rice commonly on the market.

Mixed Fruit Ice Cream.

Take the juice of three oranges, three lemons, three bananas, and a cupful of cooked apricots, three cupfuls of sugar and three cupfuls of rich milk, put the apricots and bananas through a sieve and mix the other ingredients until the sugar is dissolved. Freeze as usual.

Nellie Maxwell

Mrs. Job Smith, of Garrett, came Monday for a brief visit with her sister, Mrs. Wilson Sanders.

ST. JOE.

Mrs. Elmer Hart was at Wayne, Friday.

Rev. and Mrs. O. P. Givens, of near Peru, were in town, Monday morning, calling on old friends.

James Rhodenbaugh, wife and daughter, Miss Irma, were Friday guests of A. D. Brunson and wife.

Peter Amstutz, wife and daughter Viola, of Grabill, were Sunday afternoon callers of Wm. Randall and wife.

Mrs. Alice Hart and Mrs. Malvina Alton spent Saturday night and Sunday the guests of Clarence Hart and family.

Jacob Baltz and wife, of Spencerville; and Will Sommers and wife, of Coburntown, were Sunday afternoon guests of Frank Kinsey and wife.

J. Smith, Hugh Smith, wife and sons, Bob, Dick and Morris, and Mrs R. J. Hillegass, all of Huntertown, were Sunday guests of J. P Buckingham and wife.

Cured of Terrible Cough.

Mrs. John Polter of 359 S. Williams street, Paulding, Ohio, says: "I took a severe cold in August which acted like hay fever, I thought the cold would soon wear off so I neglected to doctor for it. It went to my lungs and from that time on I coughed almost continually day and night until I began to spit blood. I lost in weight and looked so bad that people thought I had tuberculosis. I tried Glando Pine. The first bottle helped me. I used three bottles straight, then less frequent until I was cured. I am now perfectly well and firmly believe Glando Pine saved my life. I would not think of being without this wonderful medicine in my home. My throat and catarrhal trouble has also ceased to bother me."

Glando Pine can be secured at drug stores. Accept no substitute. For sale by All Druggists.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA
Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,..............No. 2
Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

Sheriff's Sale.

No. 4182
In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana.

Savings Loan and Trust Company, of Auburn, Indiana, vs. George C. Treece, Nora E. Treece, commonly known as Delliah E Treece.

By virtue of an Order of Sale, to me directed and delivered by the Clerk of said Court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the Court House Door, in said County, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m, and 4 o'clock p. m., of the 9th., day of September, 1916 the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following described premises, viz:

A piece of land fifty-three (53) feet wide at the north-west end and fifty (50) feet at the south-east end off of the piece of land conveyed to said mortgagors this day by Benjamin B. Baltz, the same being in section twenty-eight (28) in Township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, said strip being nine (9) rods and four (4) feet north-west and south-east and containing 17-100 acres more or less, situated in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs, I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

John P. Hoff,
Sheriff of DeKalb Co.
E. W. Atkinson, Atty.
37—

St. Joe Locals

Clarence Coburn, of Muskegon, Mich, is here visiting relatives, east of town.

Willis Baker and wife spent Sunday afternoon the guests of Thomas Rickett and wife.

Mrs. Howard Northrup spent the weeks end with her daughter, Mrs. Pluma Hamilton.

Mrs. Lloyd Draggoo spent Saturday night and Sunday with her parents, Ed Leighty and wife.

Mrs. H. G. Provines and son James, spent from Tuesday until Friday with Auburn relatives.

Joseph Caw, of Detroit, Mich., spent from Saturday until Tuesday with his family, who are in the Bearss home.

$17.20
Kansas City and Return
VIA
WABASH
Tickets on sale August 27 and 28, good returning until September 9th.

Baltimore & Ohio
EXCURSION
To Cedar Point, $1.65
and Return
SUNDAY, Aug. 20
Special train leaves St. Joe at 5:24 a. m., returning, a special train leaves Sandusky at 6:15 p. m. For full information, consult agent.

Be Careful Hereafter.

Marshal Rickett states that he has received orders to give special warning to fast drivers of automobiles on our streets. While it may seem unnecessary to be so strict in small towns, yet it is necessary for the safety of the public. Among the other traffic regulations as stated is that each machine must keep to the right. Your assistance in observing these rules will be appreciated.

Patronize
the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000
The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906
4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.
Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

AUGUST

L 908

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY AUG. 24 1916 NO. 35

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

The Misses Helen and Dorothy Bowman visited friendsatHamilton last week.

Wealthy and Maiden Blush Apples f o r cooking at Bear Creek orchard.

Paul Maxwell began working with Frank Scholes, last week, on the new road, south of Auburn.

William Brown and wife, of Auburn, came Wednesday for a visit with their son, DeForest Brown and family.

Miss Anna Hart returned home with Mrs. Chas. Bills, Wednesday, to visit the remainder of the week at Auburn.

Mrs. J. R. Skilling and son Jack, of Baltimore, Md., came last Wednesday for a visit with her parents, C. C. Curie and wife.

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

Simeon Maurer, wife and son, of Spencerville, were supper guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Anna Dilley, last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Flora Gee accompanied her son, Howard Gee, home to Hicksville, Wendesday afternoon and remained until Thursday noon.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	98	$3 65
M. P	70	3 06
Christian	56	1.19
M. E. Spencer	71	3 45
Lutheran	88	3 05

Order Saturday Evening Post,5c.

Miss Olive Ridgeway was at Walkerton, last week, visiting friends.

H. Garton put a new concrete wall underneath his barn in the west end of town.

We are now ready to bid on New Hay. C. E. Fry, Phone 78-31. St. Joe, Ind.

Mrs. H. G. Provines and son, returned home Tuesday to Oklahoma, after making a visit with her parents here for several weeks.

Get one of our Stock Dr. Books. Free for the asking.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Mrs. George Milliman and son Lysle, returned home Thursday night from a five weeks visit with relatives in various parts of Michigan.

Mrs. C. T. Bayman was at Ft. Wayne visiting with her daughter, Miss DeVeta until Saturday. Miss DeVeta is doing very nicely since her operation on August 14.

If you have trouble getting good butter, try "Moxleys Special" a butter substitute. Cheaper and better than butter. Price 23c. per pound, at BASSETTS' on Widney Ave.

C. A. Patterson and wife returned from a weeks trip through Ohio, at New London, North Fairfield and Tiffin. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. Crebbs, of Michigan, and N. S. Crebbs, of Grand Junction, Colorado. They made the trip in auto.

H. C. Hathaway and wife, Rolland Bearss and wife and Merritt Millimen motored to Hamilton Lake, Thursday, and visited the boys camp there. They report the boys all well and having a fine time. Thursday was visitors day and the boys had all kinds of stunts for their amusement. St. Joe took first prize on the best decorated boat, and second prize in the 100-yd. swim race Clayton Hathaway was the one who received second prize, losing first by just a few inches.

The Merchants Advertise to get the people to spend their money. Bankers Do Not.

They advertise to get people to save their money and pays them for saving it.

People must buy the merchants goods.

They should not spend all of their money but heed the Bankers advice and save a part of it.

Are You Saving Any.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

FEEDERS

Get Your Bran and Middlings NOW.

They are advancing and will advance more.

Try a barrell of our salt and ask to see our rock block salt. It is great for cattle.

We are making St. Joe headquarters for all grains. You are always sure of getting the highest market price for whatever kind of grain you bring in.

Come in and pay us a visit. We will always be pleased to see you and you can always expect only the most courteous treatment, at

* *

St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

On and After August 31st. the Price for Shaving will be raised to 15 cents Straight.

SIGNED, Barbers of St. Joe.

Sheriff's Sale.

No. 4182
In the DeKalb Circuit Court,
State of Indiana.

Savings Loan and Trust Company, of Auburn, Indiana, vs. George C. Treece, Nora E. Treece, commonly known as Delliah E. Treece.

By virtue of an Order of Sale, to me directed and delivered by the Clerk of said Court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the Court House Door, in said County, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m, and 4 o'clock p. m., of the 9th, day of September, 1916 the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following described premises, viz:

A piece of land fifty-three (53) feet wide at the north-west end and fifty (50) feet at the south-east end off of the piece of land conveyed to said mortgagors this day by Benjamin B. Baltz, the same being in section twenty-eight (28) in Township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, said strip being nine (9) rods and four (4) feet north-west and south-east and containing 17-100 acres more or less, situated in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs, I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

JOHN P. HOFF,
Sheriff of DeKalb Co.

E. W. ATKINSON, Atty.
37—

ORDINANCE No. 16.

An ordinance granting John H. Reinoehl, his successors and assigns, the right and privilege to erect and maintain poles and string wires and cable thereon and to lay conduit to conduct electricity for the operation and maintenance of a telephone system, over, upon, along and under the sidewalks, streets and alleys and public grounds of the town of St. Joe, Indiana

WHEREAS, John H. Reinoehl has presented to the Board of Trustees of the town of St Joe, Indiana, a petition petitioning said Board of Trustees to grant the right, privilege and authority to said John H. Reinoehl, his successors and assigns, to erect and maintain poles and to string wires and cable thereon and to lay conduit, over, along, upon and under the sidewalks, streets and alleys and public grounds of said town of St. Joe, Indiana, therefore—

BE IT ORDAINED, by the Trustees of the town of St. Joe, DeKalb County and State of Indiana:

Section 1—That in consideration of the acceptance hereof and the undertaking of said John H. Reinoehl, his successors and assigns, to comply with the provisions hereinafter contained, permission and authority are hereby granted to, and duly vested in, said John H. Reinoehl, his successors and assigns, to erect and maintain poles and guy poles and to string wire and cable thereon and to lay conduit over, along, upon and under the sidewalks, strees and alleys and public grounds of said town of St. Joe, Indiana, for the purpose of operating and maintaining a telephone system to transmit messages, oral, written or in other form, by electricity.

Section 2—All poles and guy poles erected upon and along the streets and alleys and public grounds of said town of St. Joe, Indiana, to be so placed as not to interfere with the proper egress and ingress to private property and to be so located as not to obstruct any public street or alley or public grounds in said town of St. Joe, Indiana.

Section 3—The town of St. Joe, Indiana, is hereby given the right and privilege to use the telephone poles to string wires thereon to conduct electricity for the purpose of operating a fire alarm system, it being agreed and understood that there shall be not over one circuit on any open overhead lead.

Section 4—This ordinance shall become binding as a contract on the said town of St. Joe, Indiana, in the event that said John H. Reinoehl, his successors and assigns, shall within thirty days from the passage and approval of this ordinance, file with the Clerk of the town of St. Joe, Indiana, a written acceptance of the terms, conditions and obligations of this ordinance, and upon such acceptance this ordinance shall be the measure of the rights and liabilities of the said town and the said John H. Reinoehl, his successors and assigns.

Section 5—This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its publication and passage as required by law

The Board of Trustees of said Town of St. Joe, Indiana, has fixed Monday the 11th., day of September, 1916, at the town hall in said town at 7:30 o'clock P. M., as the time and place for the public consideration of the above and foregoing Ordinance as required by law. By order of Board of Trustees of Town of St. Joe, Indiana.

HOLLIS DILLEY,
Town Clerk.

Dated this 22nd., Day of Aug. '16.

Legal Notice.

State of Indiana, } ss:
Co. of DeKalb. }

J. M. Beams, vs. Chas. Martin.
To Charles Martin.

Whereas J. M. Beams has filed in this Court his complaint, affidavit and bond for attachment of certain property alleged to belong to you, and also that you are a non-resident of the State of Indiana. You are therefore notified that said cause has been set for hearing on the 13th., day of Sept, 1916, and that unless you appear at that time and answer his complaint, said cause will be heard in your absence, and an order made for the sale of the said property.

L. O. WADE,
Justice of the Peace,
Spencer Township.

Local Briefs

Miss Susie Sechler was a Saturday night guest of Mr. and Mrs. Orange Herrick.

Avis Sechler and Lena Wallace were Sunday evening supper guests of Merrit Sechler.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Abel of Spencerville, were the Sunday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Copp and daughter, Mrs. Flossie Widney, went to Hamilton Saturday for a few days visit.

Mr. and Mrs. John Houk, two daughters and son of Decatur, Indiana, Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma, daughter and son of Spencerville, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jackson, daughter, Edna, Charles Jackson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rickett, Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Ulms, P. A. Shurts, Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm and son, Fred, attended the Lockhart reunion held in Eckhart park at Auburn Sunday.

Spices, etc., are Best at Dunkies'.

Miss Pearl Shurts spent Sunday at Concord the guest of Miss Ida Widney.

For the benefit of our customers through the busy harvest, we will keep open evening.
St. Joe Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee and children attended the Carper family reunion held at Eckhart park in Auburn, Sunday.

Harry Kees and family of Marion, were in town several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Simonton of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Rhodenbaugh. Miss Irma Rhodenbaugh returned home with them for a week's visit.

Boys and Girls bring us your paper sacks. For good clean sacks we will pay 1c. for 25 lb. sacks, and 2c. for 50lb. sacks.
ST. JOE MILLS.

Will Brown of Auburn, came Saturday for a few days visit with his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Jackson, north of town, and his brother, D. F. Brown, and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes, son, Clark, and daughters, Irma and Dorotha, and Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Perry attended the Steuben county yearly meeting of the Churches of Christ held on Sunday at Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benninghoff, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wallace, Jas. Rhodenbaugh, Frank Terman, Frank Sechler and Fred Jenkins, all of this place, attended the democratic barbecue held at Robison park Saturday.

Daily Jots

There will be no preaching at the Lutheran church next Sunday.

Walter Zonker and J. L. Rhodenbaugh made a trip to Corunna and Kendallville last week.

The W. C. T. U. will meet on Friday afternoon with Mrs. Addie Patterson. The topic will be "Franchise."

Mrs. Ada Bassett spent Monday afternoon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brunson, north of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stewart of Spencerville, were Sunday guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeForrest Brown.

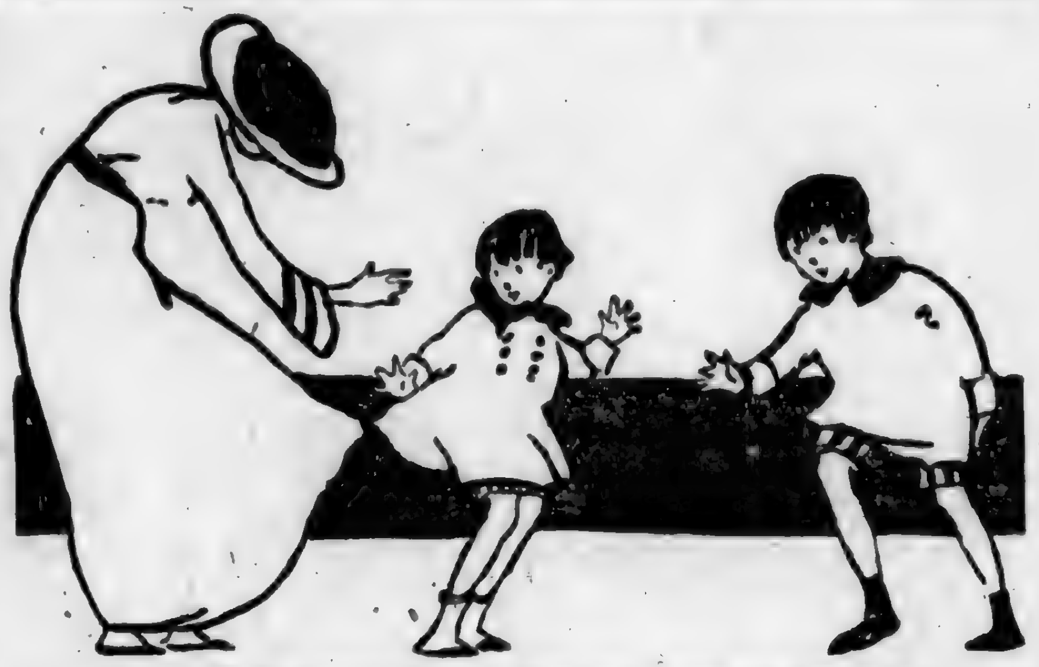
Mrs. H. D. Provines and son, James, left Tuesday for their home at Duncan, Oklahoma, after a few weeks visit with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hamilton.

Mrs. Mary Scholes and daughter, Mrs. Emma Abel, entertained Sunday the former's sister, Mrs. Lucinda Braybrook, also Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gorrell and daughter, all of Springfield Center.

M. T. Bishop was at Chicago and Alexandria, Indiana, last week. At the latter place he attended the state meeting of the Holliness Association of that church. He reports some great meetings and Bud Robison was one of the big speakers.

Mother Should Have a Vacation

By SIDONIE MATZNER GRUENBERG



She Is Their Companion and Constant Source of Inspiration.

HAVE you seen that woman lately—you know her name—who is so devoted to her children that she has not left them for a single day in these many years? Did you again envy and admire her devotion as you used to? Or, now that you know something more about children and about mothers, did you rather pity the children—and the mothers?

At first thought it does seem so admirable that a mother, in her conscientious devotion, should be continuously looking after the details of her children's welfare, so that they are hardly ever out of her sight. But when we consider the purpose of such devotion we may well question whether, after all, the thought and care of such mothers are wisely applied. If we were to be merely the tenders and housekeepers for our children it would be well, in the interests of the children, that we took an occasional day for resting and refreshing the spirit.

The mother who assumes her task in meek resignation may glory in her martyrdom; but she is likely to become dreadfully monotonous—which is not very good for the children. For we expect the mother to be more than a nurse or housekeeper. She is to be their companion and constant source of inspiration. This she cannot be if she allows herself to become a slave to detail and routine.

In emergencies we all know that it is possible to arrange for a hurried departure and an indefinite absence from our regular duties. With a little forethought it should be possible to arrange for a more pleasant excursion in search of new strength and new spirit. The co-operation of relatives and neighbors would seem to be as welcome and as available when there is a reasonable purpose in view as when there is grief or dismay to be relieved.

In thinking of the beneficial effects of an occasional vacation, we must not let ourselves accept this as a satisfactory compensation for years of monotonous and colorless drudgery. The vacation should not be a substitute for a life's program that has in it enough variety to insure constant freshness and interest, but it should supplement such a program. The mother who has some serious occupation in affairs not directly connected with her domestic problem is likely to that extent to be a better mother. Even where a woman is obliged to do all of her housework in addition to caring for her children she is likely to neglect them so much that she will come to them a little fresher than she would if she gave them all of her attention. Of course, for mothers in this situation there is the danger that they will be too tired physically to give up the energy that profitable companionship with children requires.

We must find ways for mothers to have "vacations," for a little while daily, and for complete relief at longer intervals. In the meantime, the overburdened mother should realize that her sense of duty must be guided by an intelligent appreciation of the needs of her children.

AUGUST

L 908

0267

MACHINE GUN GETS GOOD TEST IN TEXAS

LEWIS TYPE UPHOLDS NAME OF "BELGIAN RATTLESNAKE," SERGEANT SAYS.

COOL AFTER CONSTANT FIRING

Fires 950 Shots a Minute and Weighs Only Twenty-Five Pounds and Has Only Sixty-Two Parts—Springfield Rifle Has 105.

Mercedes, Tex.—Lieuts. B. W. Leving and Sidney Miller of the Indiana field artillery have returned from Brownsville, where they went to take instruction in the mountain battery service. Several other officers who had been on detail for instruction in machine gun service also have returned. Among them was Sergt. Roy Underwood of the First regiment machine gun company. "I can say that the Lewis machine gun with which we are to be equipped is certainly some gun," said Sergeant Underwood, enthusiastically.

"It certainly upholds the name given it by the Germans, who call it the Belgian rattlesnake. It fires 500 and 600 shots a minute easily, and in tests has made 950 shots a minute. The gun weighs only 25 pounds, and can be handled easily by one man, not being much larger than our Springfield rifles. It has only 62 parts, while the Springfield has 105, and yet there is nothing complicated about it and a man can dissemble it in five minutes, the only tool he needs being a dummy cartridge.

"In the instructions a man is required to handle and name all the parts blindfolded so as to teach him to make any repairs or replacements in the darkness. This is because much of the machine gun's work is in repelling surprises, most of which take place at night. In order that it can be quickly placed in action or taken away quickly, it will be carried in small automobiles.

"The coming system of the gun is absolutely perfect," continued Sergeant Underwood, "the air being drawn the entire length of the barrel by vacuum pressure, the vacuum being formed by the gas that follows every shot. After firing from 1,500 to 2,000 shots, the entire gun is so cool that it can be easily handled with the bare hands."

While some of the soldiers are studying machine guns, others are studying baseball, and the Indiana fans who think they are having all of the good games are much mistaken. For example, there was a hot game between a team from the First Indiana and the Third Minnesota. They played 12 innings and only broke up the game when the mess call sounded. The score was 7 to 7 and some playing just as good as you will see at Washington park. These are mighty fast teams and are made up of the best players from each company in the First regiment.

Soldier of Fortune.

James Messenger, trumpeter of the Indiana battalion, field artillery, is a typical soldier of fortune. He served in the Boer war, attached to the staff of General French as a bugler and was wounded in action for which he wears the queen's service medal. He was in the Somali campaign and was wounded again. He served with the American forces in the war with Spain and when the call came volunteered in the Indiana artillery.

He has five brothers fighting with the French troops and his father recently wrote him finding fault because he was not with his brothers. Messenger wrote back that he was in the American army and later he received a letter from his father and mother congratulating him.

First Indiana Woman Arrival.

Life in the tropics is all right with Capt. N. A. Cary, assistant chief sanitary inspector of Llano Grande. Mrs. Cary arrived here and has a pleasant room in Mercedes. Mrs. Cary is the first of the Indiana colony to reach here.

The Third regiment continues to get its tentage. When it got here eight companies, because of someone's blunder in Indianapolis, had no shelter tents. The wires were kept hot. Five requisitions for tents were sent in and now each of these requisitions is being filled, with the result that the Third is able to supply the whole Indiana outfit with shelter tents.

To First Lieutenant Koster, First Indiana, has been assigned the job of building the rifle range for the Indiana infantry and he has a force of surveyors at work. The butt will be 1,600 feet long, 20 feet wide at the base and 10 feet high and against this the targets will be placed. If the rain stops long enough to complete the work, Lieutenant Koster will have the range ready in a short time, and target practice will begin immediately.

Two Kinds of Cowgirls.

A girl wearing a superb sombrero, braided and tasseled, khaki suit and high riding boots, dashed through the streets on a black horse.

"That's a cowgirl from Philadelphia," remarked an old timer, "we don't have 'em like that around here—there comes the real thing," and he pointed down the street. A young woman, perhaps twenty years old, wearing a flapping wide hat that once had been white, sitting astride a cow pony loped up to the post office, hitched up her double skirts, gave the handkerchief at her throat a twist, patted her waist, of course, and walked into the office.

"You-all got any mail for us?" she asked. She got the mail, vaulted into her saddle, struck the pony with her whip and was off to Rabbus ranch, ten miles away, within half a mile of the Rio Grande river. She was not pretty, but she looked healthy and she certainly could ride a horse.

Snakes and Gnats.

It is not the heat that bears down on Indiana soldiers in Camp Llano Grande. The rattlesnakes, many of them, are less than six feet long, and it is not every morning that we awaken with a scorpion or a tarantula as a bedfellow. Even the mosquitoes that were so bad at first, have drawn off and are not attacking in brigades and divisions any more.

There is good food and plenty. There is good water and even, now and then, one can slip over to the Second regiment for a shower bath. Ice may be obtained at times, and one day last week the officers' mess had a fresh egg for every member of the mess. What, then, is the fly in the ointment? Why, it's gnats (little, measly, inoffensive (seemingly) gnats. They do not swarm the air sufficiently to cut off the glare of the sun. They do make so much noise that talk is impossible at officers' conference. They might be worse. But not much. Thousands of them are ready to pounce on you the minute you sit down. You wouldn't mind it so much if they confined their attention to your hands and face. Talking to them is to no purpose. Treat them kindly and they abuse your confidence. All you can do is to wave wildly and flap your hands until you fall asleep from exhaustion.

Only Three Men Punished.

Col. E. F. Branch, who is the summary officer of the Second regiment, the court that tries minor offenses, says that of the 1,000 men in the Second regiment only three have been punished for intoxication.

"There is no liquor in the camp," Colonel Branch said, "and these men were not drunk, but they showed that they had been drinking, and each of them got ten days at hard labor, and hard labor is hard labor, believe me. It doesn't take away any of their pay. They need that, but the punishment is severe enough to keep them from repeating the offense." The Indiana artillery is engaged in pistol practice. Maj. R. H. Tyndall sends out a battery each day and keeps them at it all day long, and there are some expert pistol shots in the three Indiana batteries.

Norcross a Veteran.

Lieut. Orion Norcross, adjutant of the Second battalion of the First regiment, has seen considerable service. He served through the Spanish-American war and had as his "bunk" an adventurous spirit named Felix Wellman of Louisville, Ky., who has fought all through South America and Mexico. Lieutenant Norcross received a letter from Wellman in which the Kentuckian said: "If you find a fellow down there who calls himself Jose Conte, tell him you are a friend of mine, and then 'bust' him one. He will understand."

Protected From Snipers.

In the lowland you travel at the water's edge in sand full of all sorts of crawling things and punctured with cracks made by the sun and holes dug by water rats, snakes and "varmints" beyond number and description. At no time are you farther than twenty feet from the river, but in the underbrush you have some protection from the snipers across the way. It is when you reach the lowland and are in the open that they have a chance to "pot" you.

Water Must Be Boiled.

On orders issued by Brigadier General Lewis, all water used for drinking and domestic purposes must be boiled. Maj. F. W. Foxworthy of the First regiment ordered the water used by his regiment boiled before General Lewis officially had promulgated his order.

"Matters are settling down to a basis of monotony," Colonel Coulter of the Second Indiana remarked as he smashed a long-billed mosquito that was taking liberties with his fat arm.

THE SOLDIER'S DIARY.

Corporal Palm is the biggest man in Llano Grande, and that camp is not inhabited by dwarfs, either. Palm, who is a member of Company G, First regiment, from Michigan City, is six feet six inches tall and weighs in proportion. He is good-natured, too. The other day a chap that the corporal could wear as a watch-charm called him a liar. "There you go," laughed the corporal, "getting cross again."

Corporal Williams of the machine gun squad of the Third regiment is business manager of the Warsaw Times, when he is in civil life.

Ramond Hayworth, Company L, Third regiment, has been discharged and sent to his home at Valparaiso.

W. H. Overstreet, who was teller of the old Meridian National bank and later with the Merchants' bank of Indianapolis, is secretary and manager of the La Noria Irrigation and Development company at Raymondaville, a few miles from Mercedes.

BRICK BUNGALOW OF NEAT DESIGN

As Attractive as When Made of Wood, and Less Expensive in Long Run.

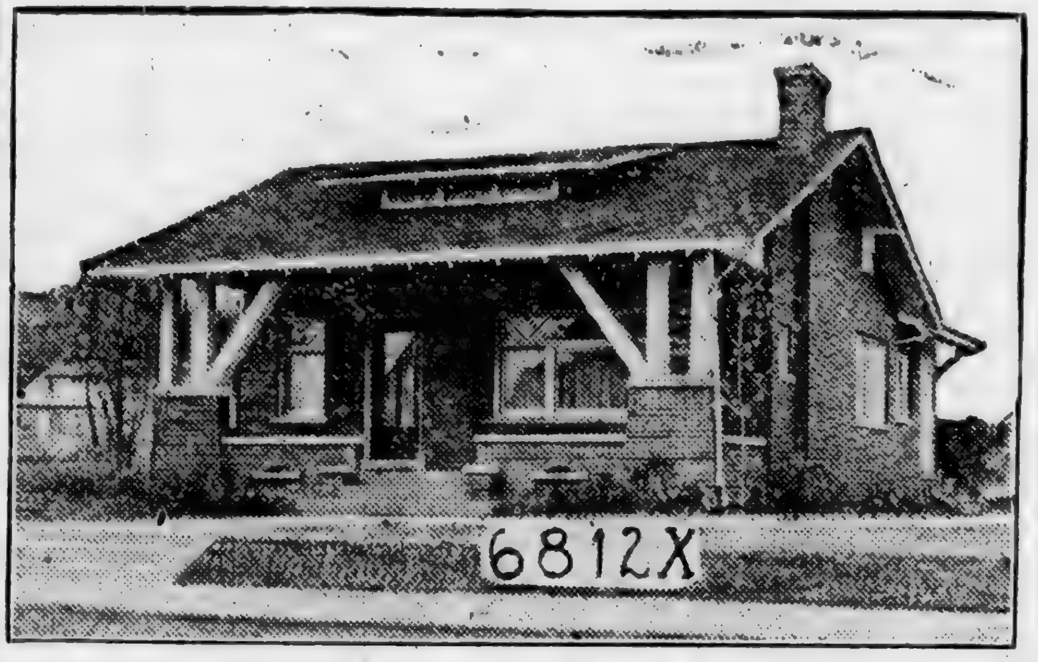
ODD PORCH ROOF SUPPORT

Peculiar Method Adds Note of Distinction to the Front—Living Room Designed to Be Pleasant Both Day and Evening.

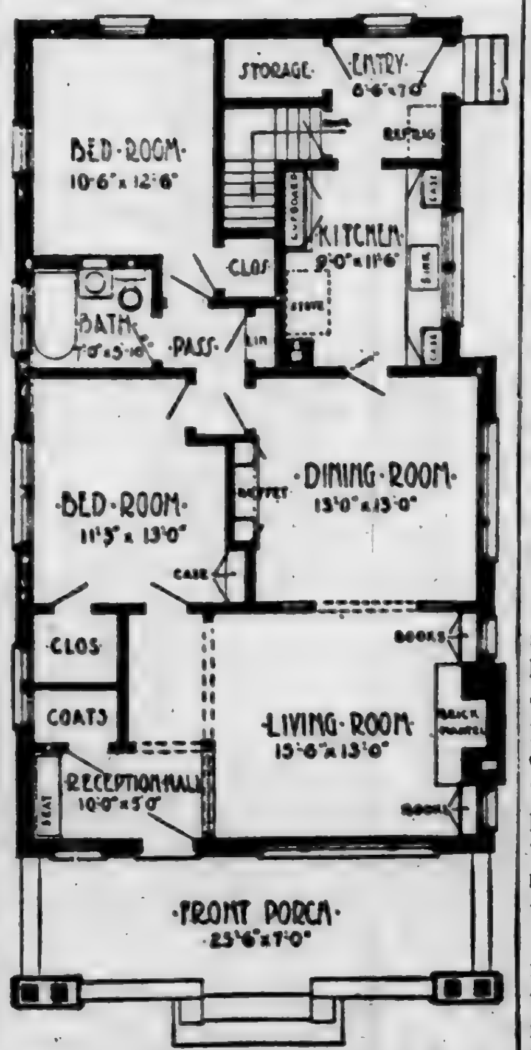
By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The value of brick as a building material has been established and, during recent years, a great deal has been done to promote the possibilities of beauty in this type of construction. Decorative brick of many tints blended together to produce a pleasing effect when used in the construction of the proper kind of a house may now be obtained in almost any brickyard. The various color schemes used are greatly aided by the effect produced in roughening the surface of the brick. A very soft-appearing finish may be obtained, the old, monotonous, flat colored walls of the earlier brick houses being no longer a necessity in brick construction.



Pretty Five-Room Bungalow of Brick.



Floor Plan.

The original bungalow idea seemed to imply the use of some form of distinctive wooden siding, but this idea has long since passed out of existence and the modern bungalow is just as attractive with a permanent type of construction and a great deal less expensive in the long run. In fact, there are a great many bungalow designs which would entirely lose their charm if not dressed in an exterior finish of brickwork. Further than the pleasing appearance which is obtained when the house is just finished, the fact that this appearance will remain a permanent part of the house for an indefinitely long time with very little attention being paid to it, is an assurance which means a great deal to its owner. This is one of the greatest recommendations which brick used for house construction can find. When once properly laid a brick wall is a finished and permanent structure in itself, without anything being added to it. The owner of a little bungalow built of brick does not have to think about upkeep cost because it is too small an item to require planning. A coat of paint over the little wooden surface which is necessary for window frames, door frames and roof construction in all that is necessary to keep the house in excellent condition for a year. The many advantages of brick or other such permanent materials are responsible for the fact that nearly all people who build more than one house in the course of their lives, never go back to any less permanent material when once they have tried the long-lived construction.

A five-room bungalow which has many distinctive features in addition to its permanency is illustrated here. The white trim of the woodwork furnished a good contrast to the brick and its maintenance will require the expenditure of very little money and energy. The peculiar method of porch roof support adds a note of distinction to the front of the house which is carried out to greater degree by the exceptional expanse of wall taken up by windows. The porch has a low rail around it except at the corners, where solid brick columns run higher up to receive the wooden columns and braces of the roof support. The concrete floor of the porch is drained through two unique little arched openings on either side of the steps. The broad expanse of roof is broken by a low dormer placed in the center with three paneled windows running nearly across the front of it.

The arrangement of rooms is very convenient and a great many special devices are employed to make the home as cozy and inviting as possible. A very useful little reception hall is entered from the front porch. This hall has a seat built into the end to the left of the door. At one end of this seat a closet is provided for wraps. A large window at the other end of the seat allows plenty of light to enter. A cased opening leads into a hallway which is really a part of the living room.

One end of the living room is taken up across its entire length by a massive brick fireplace and mantel on either side of which is a built-in bookcase set beneath a small window. The front wall of the living room is practically all given up to the large window seen from the street. This room is large enough to permit the use of some carefully selected furniture which will harmonize with the fireplace and other architectural details of the room. With proper wall finish and furniture the living room should be very pleasant both during the day and throughout the evening. Living rooms are quite often especially attractive at night with a fireplace grate covered with glowing coals, but during the day the pleasing effect is lost because of insufficient light or light directed into the wrong part of the room. The living room of this little brick bungalow is sure to be inviting at all times.

A colonnade and cased opening is built between the living room and the dining room. The latter is a pleasant square room fitted with a buffet set into a nook in the center wall of the building. A swinging door leads to the kitchen, which is a special feature of this house. The outside wall of the kitchen has a bench built along its entire length with the sink placed directly below the two windows. Two cases are set into the corners at either end of this bench. Across the room is the cupboard in one corner and the stove in the other. This kitchen is so well arranged that no pantry is necessary. The refrigerator is placed in the rear entry where it is easily iced, being only a step from the rear door. A storage room is provided which is entered from the rear entry. Stairs into the basement also lead from this room.

The other side of the house contains two bedrooms with a bath between them. Each bedroom has a large closet and is lighted with two windows. In the passage between the bedrooms is a linen closet. The bathroom is entered from this passage. The bath is fitted out in accordance with modern practice.

A large storage space is furnished in the attic which is lighted through narrow paneled windows. The basement may also be used to advantage in furnishing a place for the various articles which accumulate in every house. The usual handy arrangement of basement rooms is furnished, supplying accommodations for the laundry, furnace, coal storage and vegetable storage. By the use of proper precautions in the construction of the walls and floor, the basement may be made dry, increasing its usefulness materially.

A home of this type is an investment in pleasure and comfort which will pay dividends during the life of its owner and still stand a welcome inheritance to the younger generation.

Force of Habit.

"How rapidly that member of the militia is going up in his command."

"Yes; he was a blacksmith before he joined, so that may account for the way he is forging ahead."

Paradoxical Plight.

"What do you think those striking bakers are declaring?"

"What?"

"That they'll want bread before they'll knead it."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

CORN ROAST.

"Billy Brownie had been wondering all day long why People spoke about 'Ears of Corn,'" commenced Daddy.

"'To my mind,' said Billy, 'it is very foolish. Most absurdly, extremely foolish.' And he put his head on one side and looked as though he were going to say something very wise.

"'I suppose you want me to ask you why you think it's so foolish, eh Billy?' asked Peter Gnome.

"'The very thing. I have a very wise speech to make,' said Billy.

"'Oh, very well, then,' sighed Peter Gnome. 'I will ask you why you think it's so foolish to say "Ears of Corn," but before I ask you—' and here Peter Gnome paused as he saw Billy Brownie growing very impatient to begin talking—'I would like to ask you to the Corn Roast we Gnomes are giving in a very short time. Will you come—all the Brownies?'

"'Yes, we'll come,' shouted the other Brownies who were standing around. 'We don't care,' said one of them, 'whether you speak of Ears of Corn or Toes of Corn, as long as we can eat it at a Corn Roast given by the Gnomes.'

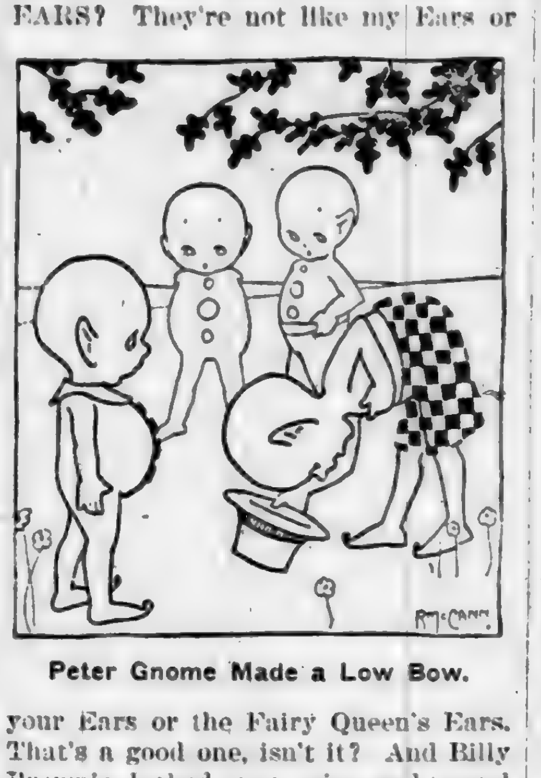
"Peter Gnome made a low bow and fell on his head. When he got up again he saw Billy Brownie looking at him with a very sad expression in his funny, round eyes.

"'Ah, yes, Billy,' he said. 'I beg your pardon for falling on my head—but I was trying to make a bow.'

"'Well, for goodness sake,' said Billy Brownie, 'don't make another.'

"'And now we want to hear your reason for thinking it's so very foolish to say Ears of Corn. You wouldn't have us say Eyes of Corn, or Noses of Corn, would you?'

"'Not at all, Peter Gnome,' said Billy Brownie. 'All those names are very silly, too. But what I've been thinking about is this: Why should they say EARS? They're not like my Ears or your Ears or the Fairy Queen's Ears. That's a good one, isn't it? And Billy Brownie looked very wise and proud of himself.



Peter Gnome Made a Low Bow.

"'Well,' said Peter Gnome, thoughtfully, 'I would like to know how you can say that, just as if all Ears were like yours, and mine, and the Fairy Queen's. I'm sure my Ears are not like a Donkey's, or a horse's—and think of the different kinds of Ears Dogs have? So why can't we say Ears of Corn and mean quite different Ears altogether?'

"'True, true, Peter Gnome,' said Billy Brownie. 'How very wise you are—without even having to think. And, oh dear me, I was trying so hard to be wise, and I thought I'd found out something very wonderful. Now you show me I haven't at all. I don't believe I can do anything besides rolling and turning somersaults.'

"'Well, why try to be wise, when you were meant to be jolly and round and good fun? If you think so much you will grow thin—and imagine how dreadful it would be to be a thin Brownie. Let's ask the Fairy Queen about it. Here she comes!'

"Just then the Fairy Queen came along in a chariot made out of the husks of corn and drawn by four Black Crows. 'What's the trouble?' she asked.

"Peter Gnome told her all about it, and Billy Brownie said:

"'I've quite a headache from thinking so hard.'

"'Well, turn a somersault and get rid of it—then we'll have the Corn Roast.' And sure enough, as soon as Billy Brownie turned a somersault his headache went away, and he was quite happy again.

"'Caw— Caw—' went the Crows—for they had drawn the Fairy Queen to the Corn Roast because they had been promised four big Ears of Corn apiece and they wanted their reward.

"'Ah, here's the Corn for my four fine Crows.' They each took an Ear at a time and then came back until with another 'Caw-Caw' of thanks they were off again.

"'Well, now,' said Peter Gnome, 'we are ready to begin.'

"And the Brownies danced around the bonfire Peter Gnome had made, with Billy Brownie leading the fun. And to have seen him eat the Corn you would never, never have thought he had worried as to its name!"

Greatest Evils.

The greatest evils are from within us, and from ourselves also we must look for our greatest good.—Jeremy Taylor.

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE
NEW HOME
NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME
Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS.

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

State Banks Pay Better Than Good Gold Mines
In the Northwest they often pay 40% dividends per year. Money is scarce and interest high. Over 2,000 homesteads are being taken up in one section of this State. A bank is needed and lots of good, live business will be handled by it. Shares in the bank are offered for sale at par, $100 each. Buy some; own part of the bank and share the profits
C. P. STEWART, 515 Newell St., Walla Walla, Wash.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

Candor.

"In one respect she's like all other women."

"Meaning she thinks she's so different?"

OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK KIDNEYS

A medicinal preparation like Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that has real curative value almost sells itself. Like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a physician's prescription. It has been tested for years and has brought results to countless numbers who have suffered.

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Do not suffer. Get a bottle of Swamp-Root from any druggist now. Start treatment today.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

RAW BEEF AS ILLUMINANT

Scientist Proves It Is Possible to Read by Light Given Off by Meat.

There is electric light, gas light, candle light, and there are other well known methods of illumination, but the strangest of all lights is that discovered by Professor Molisch, a well-known Austrian scientist.

He has recently demonstrated that it is possible to read a newspaper by the light of a raw beef or pork sausage! All unminced meat contains a microbe which gives off light, and with sausages, when the microbe is present, the light is much stronger than that given off by whole joints. These particular microbes do not indicate decay. Indeed, in no case have they been found in meat which was unfit for human consumption. So you can read by your sausage first—and then eat it, according to Professor Molisch.

The stumps of old trees often give off a precisely similar light, which scientists say is due to microscopic animals which die as soon as the wood is sapless. The phosphorescent light on the ocean comes from minute animals which live on seaweed.

It is said that the Cuban firefly provides a satisfactory light. The secret of the light which this beetle gives is undiscovered. Its great peculiarity is that it appears and disappears spasmodically, so that the Cubans need to keep about a dozen insects in a bottle at once, in order to be sure of getting a light bright enough to read by.

An optimist says that good intentions are better than no pavements.

Grape-Nuts
"Stored-Up Energy"

Everybody needs it—stored for emergency in a well-developed, well-preserved, well-nourished body and brain.

Grape-Nuts food stands preeminent as a builder of this kind of energy. It is made of the entire nutriment of whole wheat and barley, two of the richest sources of food strength.

Grape-Nuts also includes the vital mineral elements of the grain, so much emphasized in these days of investigation of real food values.

Crisp, ready to eat, easy to digest, wonderfully nourishing and delicious.

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts

AUGUST

L 908

0268

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S

ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Sold.

"We sold our pup."

"What did you sell him for?"

"Why, er—he bit holes in the carpet."—Punch Bowl.

Always sure to please, Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers sell it. Adv.

No Damage.

"Oh, tell me quick, officer, was my husband shot in that saloon fight?"

"No, madam, only half shot."

DON'T LOSE ANOTHER HAIR

Treat Your Scalp With Cuticura and Prevent Hair Falling. Trial Free.

For dandruff, itching, burning scalp, the cause of dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most effective. Touch spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Then shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. No treatment more successful.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Far Behind the Times.

Penelope—Marcella is years and years behind the times.

Percival—What makes you think that?

Penelope—Just now she wanted to know if her hat was on straight.

Housework Is a Burden

It's hard enough to keep house if in perfect health, but a woman who is weak, tired and suffering from an aching back has a heavy burden.

Any woman in this condition has good cause to suspect kidney trouble, especially if the kidney action seems disordered.

Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands of suffering women. It's the best recommended special kidney remedy.

An Ohio Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

Mrs. Laura E. Mook, 130 E. Maple St., Clyde, Ohio, says: "I was so bad with kidney trouble that doctors advised an operation. The pain was terrible and for a year and a half I was helpless. My nerves were all unstrung and I wished for death. On a friend's advice I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they restored me to good health."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

APPENDICITIS

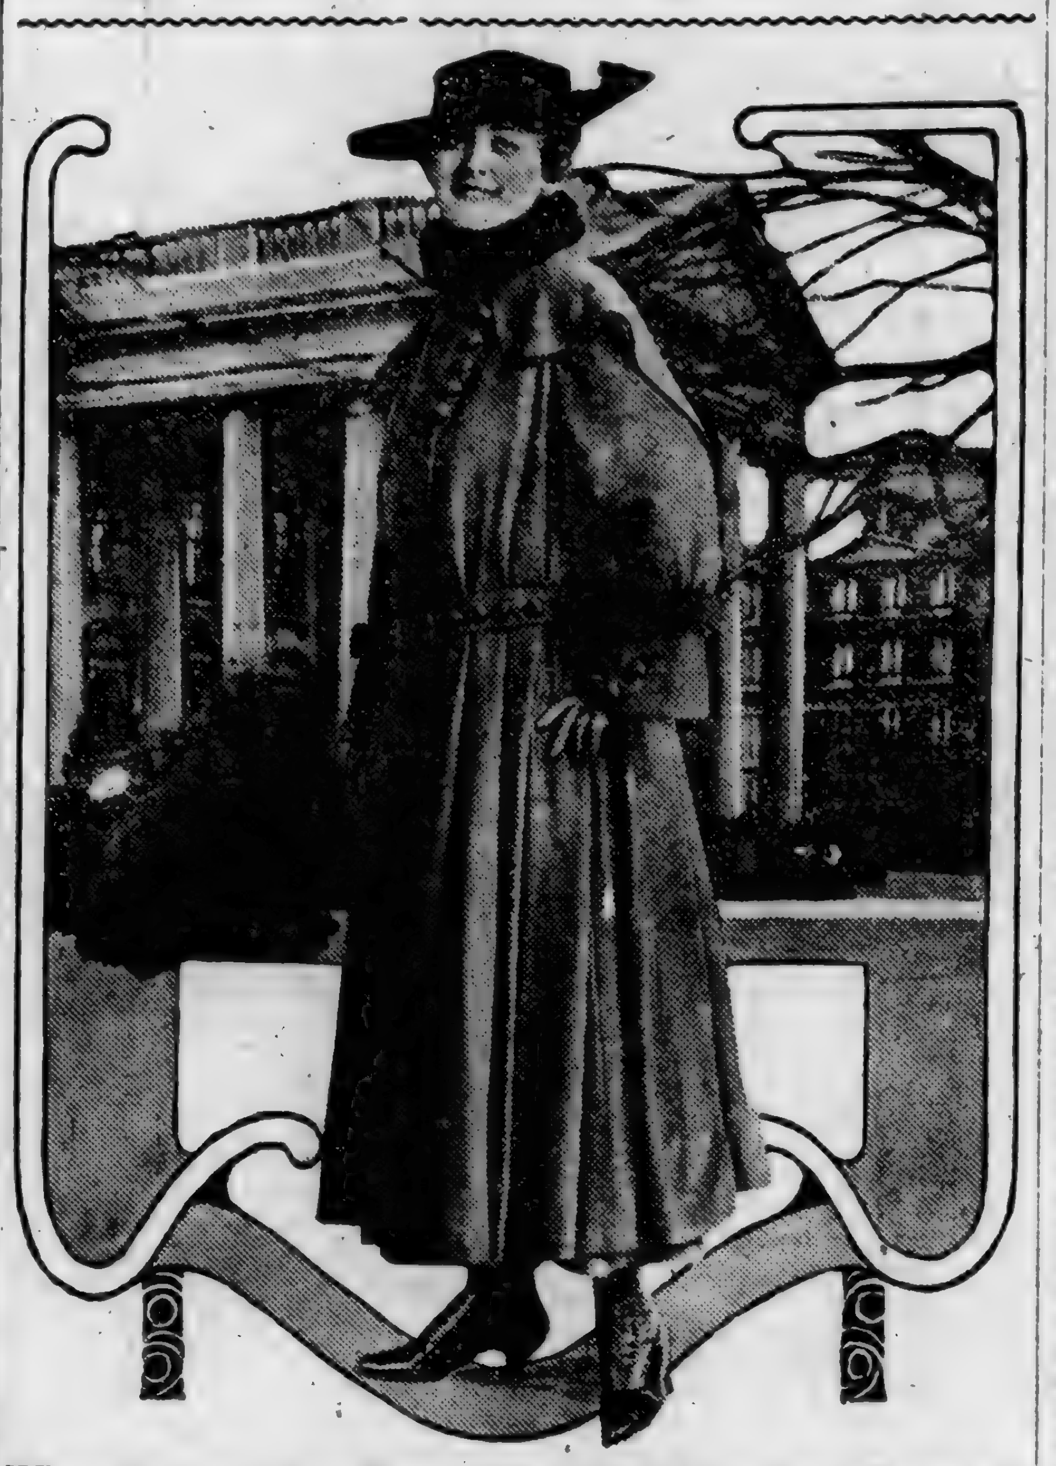
If you have been threatened or have GALLSTONES, INDIGESTION, GAS or pains in the right side write for valuable Book of Information FREE

E. E. BOWERS, DEPT. W-6, 210 S. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 35–1916.

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



When Autumn Has Blown

Will they be wider than they have been or will they be slimmer and is it true that they are to be longer? These are the questions that are asked about the new coats and frocks for autumn, and they wait an authoritative answer. The new models in coats are just as ample in width as those of the past season, and they are longer. And, since many costumers have already presented designs incorporating these features, it is evident that they are pinning their faith to a mode not greatly changed.

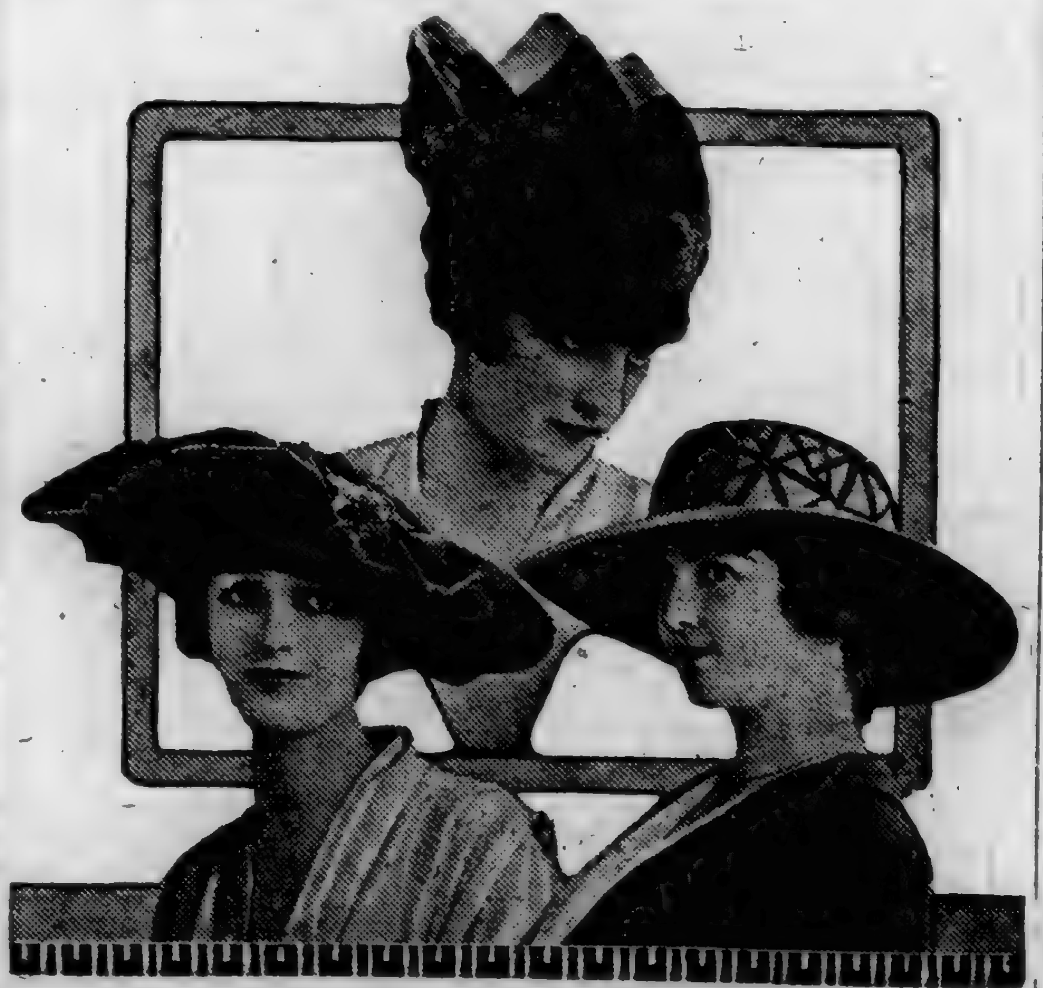
As to coats, in some of them, bodies are a little closer fitting, but skirts are full—very full—and longer than they have been. But the coat cut on full lines, with loose adjustment to the figure, like that shown in the picture, need not concern itself about the latest whim of style, because it is always good style. This is one of the first of the new models, and one need not fear that any other, however original, will discredit it.

There are several cloths, tried and true, for a coat like that in the picture. Cheviot, jersey, broadcloth, velours and other standard weaves are the best choice for it. Buttons, covered with silk or satin matching the cloth in color, and narrow but full bands of fur at the neck and cuffs give it just the right kind of finish. The narrow belt, which makes a pretense of confining the wrap at the waistline, really holds the fullness of the garment in carefully disposed plaits. It fastens at the front with a big hook and eye of metal.

At the left front buttons, and loops made of silk cord, make a secure fastening. Besides its increased length this coat introduces us to the latest idea in capes—short at the front and very much lengthened at the back. Thus, by displaying two new style features, it proclaims its acceptance of them and its place in the styles of tomorrow.

To Clean Kid Shoes.

Those who are troubled with the expense of keeping their white kid shoes clean will find gasoline to which a little cornstarch has been added quite an improvement on many prepared cleansers.



Millinery of Tomorrow

Even before September begins, and while August proclaims the high tide of summer, velvet and felt hats make their entrance into the world of fashion. For several years past black velvet has shared with white satin, and other all-white hats, a midsummer vogue. The combination of these two fabrics makes the coolest-looking and most sparkling millinery and comes in its logical elegance, when women have grown tired of all the beautiful, colorful hats with which they welcome the spring.

But black and white are used for street and dress hats and not for sports and outing hats. These are in vividly colored felts with many-colored, odd, not to say fantastic, trimmings. Many of them, especially those designed for young women and girls, content themselves with a band and bow, or rather simple trim, of ribbon.

Three of the handsomest new hats for late summer and early fall are shown in the picture above. At the top a beautiful design for the matron is represented in a moderately large turban covered with taupe gray velvet edged with malines. A feather band ending in small wings, makes a lovely finish for it. At the left a big, black velvet, off-the-face tam is one of the most picturesque and artistic of the new season's designs. The wide puff of velvet is held back at the front by an ornament made of small beads.

The hat at the right is of gold-colored velours, in a beautiful shade with a greenish cast. Its crown is decorated with wheels of chenille in several brilliant colors. Among the many models brought out for immediate and future wear these three have already scored a success that is emphatic.

Smock of the Moment.

Made of heavy blue cotton crepe with a shallow collar and snug protective waistbands is the smock of the moment. It reaches the skirt hem and as far as looks is concerned there is no need of a skirt beneath. It may serve as an overall and keep a dainty dress from garden stains and kitchen grime, for the bottom of the hem is sewn together, leaving slits for the feet to go through, producing thus a sort of bloomer.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 27

JOURNEYING TO JERUSALEM.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 20:16-38.

GOLDEN TEXT—I commend you to God and to the word of his grace.—Acts 20:32.

After his experience in Ephesus Paul went to Corinth, where, amidst much sickness and affliction, he cared for the churches, corrected their wrong conduct and probably wrote several of his letters and epistles (II Cor. 4:7-11; 11:28; 12:20). From Corinth he journeyed by way of Phillipi to Troas where he preached his famous long sermon (v. 5-12), that sermon which had such a tragic result. It is recorded as a witness to the power of the prayer of faith and Paul's readiness to serve in time of need. In his haste to reach Jerusalem before the Day of Pentecost (A. D. 58) Paul did not return to Ephesus, but, in order to save time, he had the elders of that church meet him at Miletus (See a good map).

I. A Great Review (vv. 17-28). Paul's statesmanship and genius for organization is nowhere more clearly set forth than here. He had plans for a great evangelistic campaign of Latin lands, (Ch. 19:21). Before pursuing his plan he decided to visit Jerusalem, carrying with him the collections which had been systematically taken up in the various churches on this tour (Rom. 15:26; I Cor. 16:1-5; Acts 24:17) and he was accompanied by a considerable number of pilgrims. (See v. 4.) It is a good thing to pause occasionally and to take stock, to review our lives and to see what progress we have made. This Paul did, and to this Ephesian delegation he enumerates (1) his character among them (vv. 18-19). They knew his manner of life, how that, as a bond servant, and "with all lowliness of mind," he had served their church. They also knew that with tears he had wept over their hard and impenitent hearts (v. 31) and all of this amidst many testings; (2) his method of work (v. 20). Paul not only worked at his trade of tentmaking, but found time for the public proclamation of the gospel and also house to house visitation. He was after men, not notoriety. He was always and ever at it, amidst trials, self-denial and the "lying in wait," (Am. R. V.) of men; (3) his methods (v. 21). He had the same message for Jew and Gentile, "repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." Repentance is not for Jews alone. Paul shrank not from declaring all that was profitable for their encouragement, reproof, warning, help, training in service and hard study. He had taught them publicly in classes, and had visited them from house to house and had invited them to his own home. Paul's aim, as is the teacher's aim, was to make all people patriotic citizens of the kingdom of heaven while on earth, that they might fight the good fight of faith against all evils, even the principalities and powers of evil.

It was a great undertaking, and he knew not what might befall him, but he did know that bonds and affliction awaited him; however, none of these things could move him from his purpose.

He "counted not his life as dear unto himself" if so be he might hold out until the end and accomplish his course and ministry. This epoch-making journey, one of the greatest in history, suggests in many points our Savior's last journey towards that same city (Luke 9:51). Like his master, Paul knew that ahead of him were trials, but he also knew that God was leading him in obedience to the Spirit's guidance, though it was over the protests of his friends.

II. A Great Charge (vv. 28-38). It is a great experience when one can declare himself pure from the blood of all men (v. 26), and that he has not shrunk from declaring the whole counsel of God. Such conduct always brings an obligation upon those who know and hear such men, viz., that it should be emulated. These elders were to return to the church at Ephesus, not to be servants of themselves but to feed the church of God (v. 28). Paul knew, as a prophet, what would be in store for them (vv. 29-30). Therefore he exhorts them to watch, and warns them how by his own hands he had supported himself and had lived a righteous life among them (v. 34).

We have here rescued from oblivion a new saying of our Lord Jesus Christ, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," one not found in the gospels.

It is this giving which produces a higher quality of happiness and a more noble character.

A Caricature.

"What is your new teacher like, Kitty?"

"She's nice, but she's awful homely. I never can tell whether she's makin' a face at me or not."—Browning's Magazine.

Held by the Enemy.

"Tommy, when that little Jimpson boy struck you, why didn't you come home at once?"

"I couldn't, ma."

"Nonsense!"

"He was sitting on me."

When You Follow The Trail Go Equipped With

WINCHESTER

Guns and Ammunition

Made for all kinds of shooting

SOLD EVERYWHERE

ASK FOR THE W BRAND

WANTED 30,000 MEN

For Harvest Work Western Canada

Immense crops; wages $3.00 per day and board. Cheap railway rates from boundary points. Employment bureaus at Winnipeg, Regina, North Portal, Saskatoon, Fort Frances, Kingsgate, B. C., Coutts and Calgary, Alberta.

No Conscription—

Absolutely No Military Interference

For all particulars apply to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.; G. W. Aird, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Canadian Government Agents

Spunky.

The Lawyer—The precedents are against you, madam.

The Lady—Well, sue them, too, then.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

A Gratification.

"You go to church more frequently than you used to."

"Yes. And apart from the instruction I derive a great deal of satisfaction from my attendance. It's a great comfort to be where people sing and play fine music without anybody's spoiling it by putting in ragtime words or wanting to dance."

Refuted.

"I've been told that every cent Dubwaite makes goes on Mrs. Dubwaite's back."

"That isn't so."

"I'm glad to hear it."

"Don't I see Dubwaite smoking stogies every day that he buys himself?"

You Bet Paw Knows.

Little Lemuel—Say, paw, what is the difference between a statesman and a politician?

Paw—A statesman, son, is a politician who has made his pile and a politician is a statesman who is still poor.

The German Mind.

Knicker—What is the German mind?

Bocker—It is composed of field gray matter.

Vices are among the oldest things on record, yet history doesn't mention the loss of a single one.

Conversational Pitfalls.

First Girl—You remember Kitty Fowler, don't you?

Second Girl—No.

First Girl—Oh, you must remember Kitty. She was the plainest girl in Blankville. But I forgot—that was after you left.

Millions of particular women now use and recommend Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers. Adv.

The Beneficiary.

"Professor Diggs has just succeeded in deciphering an ancient papyrus given up by half a dozen savants."

"Well, what good will that do humanity?"

"Perhaps it won't benefit humanity in general, but it will enable Professor Diggs to sign a few more lecture contracts."

Overheard in the Zoo.

Eagle—How are things with you?"

Owl—On the blink.

We believe that any man who attempts to match his logic against a woman's tears is one kind of a padded cell candidate.

If your boss is dissatisfied, just mention the fact to him and perhaps he will permit you to resign.

A merchant can get along without advertising and so can a wagon without grease, but it goes slow.

A homely girl is always willing to admit that a pretty rival hasn't any sense.

Don't imagine that there is anything harder to keep than an umbrella.

A woman should never go out walking in a driving rain.

Many a ballroom gown in covering a warm heart reaches its limit.

Fresh From the Ovens—

New Post Toasties represent the most appetizing form in which choice, nutritious Indian corn has ever been prepared.

A new patented process which includes rotary toasting under quick, intense heat gives these flakes a delicious, new and distinctive flavour.

The New Toasties are featured by the bubbly appearance of the surface of the flakes—due to this new art of toasting which releases the wonderful new and attractive true corn taste.

New Post Toasties are not "chaffy" in the package; and they don't mush down when milk or cream is added like common "corn flakes."

For tomorrow's breakfast—

New Post Toasties

—your Grocer has them.

AUGUST

L 908

0269

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - - $1.00
Six Months, - - - .50
Three Months, - - .25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

Hadsell Reunion

The Hadsell Family Reunion was held last Wed., at the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Jackson on the ridge road, 2½ miles southwest of Hicksville, with an attendance of seventy-five. The day was perfect and with the beautiful surroundings prepared the members of the family to partake of the spirit of the occasion. The hours of the dey seemed not to contain their usual numbers of minutes, but in some freakish manner they passed by with a swiftness that allowed the shades of night to arrive all too soon.

It is needless to say that the "tables groaned beneath the weight" of the many food stuffs that had been so skillfully prepared by so many excellent cooks, and as "the proof of the pudding is in the eating", sufficient it is to say that plenty of evidence is at hand. Much of the credit for such a successful reunion must go to Mrs B. S. Sheffer and her efficient corps of assistants, and it is the desire of the members of the family to thank all those who so very kindly gave their assistance to help make this one of the best reunions the family has ever held. During the afternoon an excellent program was given by members of the family.

We desire to publicly thank Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Jackson, who so kindly opened their home for the occasion, and their effort to make the day one that will ever remain fresh in every mind.

LOCAL NEWS

Grace Wyatt of Auburn, and Ruth Hay spent Thursday with Mrs. Verna Kelley.

W. H. Grimes, of Kendallville, spent from Friday until Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kinsey.

H. L. Dunkle, wife and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Casebeer of near Butler, motored to Toledo Monday returning Tuesday. While there the former purchased goods for his holiday trade.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers you—Meat forms uric acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Madonna Kinsey is visiting this week in the home of Roscoe Sechler at Butler.

Mr and Mrs. Carl Altschul and son and Mr. and Mrs. Drupy, all of Fort Wayne, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Widney.

H M. Widney, wife and daughter Dorris, spent Thursday attending a Horticulture meeting held at the home of W. S. Becker, in Noble county.

The Paint Gang of the B. & O., began Wednesday to paint the depot and other buildings. Clay and Allen Coburn, and Ora Wilmot joined the gang.

"WANTED—Men who desire to earn over $125 per month write us to-day for position as salesman; every opportunity for advancement CENTRAL PETROLEUM CO., CLEVELAND, OHIO."

Mrs. J. P. Buckingham has been ailing for sometime, and Monday evening she was taken to the hospital at Ft. Wayne, and yesterday she underwent an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Nelson, the Misses Jessie Nelson and Mary Jane Fddy of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mr. Fremont Wolf, of Hamler, Ohio, were Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patterson and S. W. Tustison and family.

If your eyes trouble you have them examined by Dr. C. S. Stewart, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, Auburn, Ind. He can tell you whether it is disease or the need of glasses that is causing the trouble.

Thirty-one members of the local W. C. T. U., and twenty who were not members attended the Newville Rural Chautauqua Temperance Day, August 16, and listened to two splendid addresses by Mrs. Culla J. Veyhinger, State W. C. T. U. President. A County W. C. T. U. Convention was also held there in the forenoon with Mrs. Minnie Husselman, County president, presiding. Splendid reports of the work were given by various Unions, also the following officers to serve the County W. C. T. U., organization were chosen:-President, Minnie Husselman, Butler; Vice-president, Ada Lane, Auburn; Recording-Secretary, Addie Patterson St. Joe; Corresponding Secretary, Ada Bassett, St. Joe. The following County Superintendents were also appointed Suffrage, Mrs. Jennie Sechler, St. Joe; Sunday School Department, Mrs. Bohls, Garrett; Sunday School Observance and Christian Citizenship Mrs. Maude Palmer, (Newville Union) Butler, Rt. 4; Medal Contest, Mrs. Inez Turner, Auburn; Fair and Open Air Meetings, Mrs. Ada Lane, Auburn; Flower Mission, Mrs. Minnie Kagey, Auburn; Medical Temperance, Mrs. Ollie Showalter, Waterloo; Anti-Narcotic, Mrs. Allen Wolff, Waterloo; Purity, Mrs. Dora Weaner, (Newville Union) Hicksville, Ohio, R F. D.; Scientific Temperance, Miss Gladys Kain, (Newville Union) St. Joe; Press, Mrs. Ada Bassett, St. Joe; Jail and Prison, Mrs. Norman Donaldson, Auburn; Literature, Eva Wood, Garrett; Mother's Meetings, Mrs. Ethyl Broderick, Butler; Loyal Temperance Legion, Miss Flossie Sechler, St. Joe.

Public Sale.

The undersigned will sell at public sale at his residence 1½ mile west of St. Joe on the Geo. Wade farm, on Wednesday, August 30. beginning at 10 a. m. the following 2 Belgium Geldings 5 and 7 years old weighing 1450 and 1460 lbs, one 2-yr old draft colt. 4 milk cows due to be fresh this fall and winter, 2 Jersey heifers, Durham heifer, Holstein bull 15 mo old. 2 brood sows due to farrow this fall, Duroc-Jersey boar, 40 shoats. 17 acres good corn almost out of way of frost. 4 ton of hay. 70 laying hens. Birdsell wagon, buggy, new Daine one-man hay loader, Deering ideal mower, McCormick binder, Sulky Bryan plow, 7x16 ft. hay rack, Bryan walking plow, spike tooth drag, level drag, riding corn plow, new double shovel plow, 2 good set double work harness, 4 collars size 19 to 22, set buggy harness. Lunch served on the ground.

Roscoe D. Rickett.
J. L. Rhodenbaugh, Auct.
A. D. Brunson, Clerk.

COLETOWN.

Fred Martins took dinner at Louis Hollopeters Sunday.

Clara Allen and Etta Casebeer called on W. E. Jackson and family Tuesday afternoon.

Fred Pierman and family of Harlan, and Mrs. Andrew Pierman and E. S. Ginther and family Sundayed at Lester Pierman's.

Frank Hart of Indianapolis, and J. W. Hart and wife spent Thursday evening at R. H. Conine's.

Grace Showers and Bea Murphy spent Sunday at Carson Mercer's.

Mrs. W. E. Jackson called on Mrs. Laura Thompson of Hicksville, Thursday afternoon.

E. D. Nelson and family were Auburn visitors Sunday.

The Dream Ship

By H. STANLEY HASKINS.

Sleep is the gangplank for me, it seems,
From the everyday world to my ship of dreams,
And faith as I cross it I leave my mind
Safe with its thoughts, on the wharf behind.
Pixie and goblin and fairy and elf,
All are aboard for a voyage, like myself,
And each has for baggage, the journey to start,
A happy go lucky, go plucky gay heart.
'Tis often we sail by the light of a moon
That hangs in the sky like a paper balloon,
Yet sometimes the harbor is dappled and bright,
And never we leave it for all of the night.
The ship has no crew and no helmsman to steer,
No compass to guide from the Where to the Here,
But always, at morning, our journey is o'er,
And it's over the gangplank of sleep to the shore.

What Women Are Doing.

Dr. Katherine Bement Davis, head of the department of corrections in New York city, has charge of over 5,500 prisoners.

Selma Lagerlof, the Swedish authoress and only woman to ever receive the Nobel prize for literature, makes nearly as much from her herd of Jersey cows as she does from her books.

Miss Frances Weiser, who is employed as a paleontologic draftsman in the United States geological survey, makes most of her drawings under a microscope, as accuracy is essential.

Dr. Anna Manning Comfort is the only surviving member of the first graduating class of the New York Medical college for women. The first batch of doctors were turned out just 50 years ago.

Mrs. Fred A. Busse, wife of the late mayor of Chicago, is now working for that city as a collector at a salary of $30 per week.

Investigations among the three great industries—the Southern cotton group, the glass industry and the Pennsylvania silk group—show that more than two-thirds of the girls employed are under twenty years of age, while the proportion of married women runs from 10 per cent up to 60 per cent.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - - IND

Some New Ways of Getting Best of That Tricky Memory.

The old method of tying a string about the finger to recall to mind some task to be done at a certain time has been done away with. The new way is to transfer a ring from one finger to another. On the accustomed finger the ring feels natural and does not cause annoyance, but on any other finger it slightly irritates. This irritation constantly will aid in recalling the task to be done. Just try it once.

Another and more novel way is to carry a colored ribbon in the coat pocket. Suppose, now, you are in your office. Your wife phones you to be sure and bring home a certain thing. Go to your coat hanging on the office rack, take out the ribbon, and tie it tightly around a sleeve. At night when you start to go home your fist will jam itself against the tied sleeve. "Oh, yes," you will say to yourself, "there's that cough sirup Molly told me to be sure and bring home tonight," and off you will go at once to make the purchase.

POULTY POINTERS

Dispose of all the old stock you do not need. This had best be done now, while prices are good and before the annual molt starts.

The feeding of milk to young chicks has a most favorable influence on the growth and on lessening the mortality. It tends to prevent mortality from all causes, and if fed soon enough and for a sufficiently long period greatly reduces the death rate caused by bacillary white diarrhea.

An open-front poultry house is better than too much glass, even in our cold northern climate.

The hot weather is already giving the plumage a rusty appearance, and it will grow worse from now on until molting time.

Keep the chicks free from lice; keep them growing, for every little attention tells and brings nearer the coveted blue ribbon.

A splendid mixtre for laying hens is equal parts of cracked corn, wheat and oats, which should be scattered in the litter.

Be sure to give plenty of water and see that the chickens, both large and small, have plenty of green food. If your yards do not have plenty of grass, try dividing the runs and sowing part to rye or rape.

Greatness.

We can be great by helping one another,
We can be loved for very simple deeds,
Who has the grateful mention of a brother
Has really all the honor that he needs.

We can be famous for our works of kindness,
Fame is not born alone of strength or skill,
It sometimes comes from deafness and from blindness
To petty words and faults and loving still.

We can be rich in gentle smiles and sunny,
A jeweled soul exceeds a royal crown,
The richest men sometimes have little money,
And Croesus oft's the poorest man in town.

—Edgar A. Guest in Detroit Free Press.

Use of Jersey.

It is likely that when jersey, both silk and wool, at last finds its proper level it will appear among the trimmings. As broad or narrow bandings, as the foundation for hats and as collars and cuffs and scarfs it will never have an equal, but where American women at any rate are consulted no lasting vogue will ever be conferred upon a material which sags incorrigibly and stretches in every direction at the same time.

Birds That Talk

In England more than in this country do we find birds that are taught to talk. The raven, the jackdaw, the magpie and the jay may all be trained to imitate sounds and to utter words and even sentences distinctly; but more familiar to most people are the talking birds of the parrot tribe, which acquire the gift of speech in far greater perfection than any other of their species. The voice of the parrot is also much more human in its tone; the raven is too hoarse, the jay and the magpie are too shrill; but there are modulations in the parrot's notes when speaking that are sometimes absolutely uncanny in their weird resemblance to the "human voice divine." This superiority is due to the construction of its beak, its tongue and head. The parrot, too, has a wonderful memory, and rarely forgets what it has once thoroughly learned.

Woman Cooks for Front.

Five hundred more women have been accepted by the British war office as army cooks and will soon be sent to the front to join 1,500 others who have been satisfying Tommy's appetite. These women wear khaki, live in camps and barracks, mess, draw rations and are the nearest approach the army has yet seen to Thomasina Atkins.

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15 70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31 70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip
Colorado - - $36 60
California - $78.75
Yellowstone - $51.60
Salt Lake City $51.60
Portland, Seattle $79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

Infantile Paralysis!

The germ that causes the disease enters the body through the nose and mouth. Mothers should do all within their power to save the child from the serious ailments of childhood. This can best be done by keeping the mouth, nose and throat in a clean and healthy condition. Glando Gargle is antiseptic and hydroscoptic, cleansing and healing to the mucous membrane.

It is a splendid preventative for sore mouth in babies, and is highly recommended for catarrhal conditions, hay fever and adenoids. Its use two or three times a day may save your child.

Procurable at drug stores or from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2.

Mrs. Vernie Kelley and daugher, MaDonna, also Nellie Kelley visited Saturday with Mr. and Mrs John Stafford at Milan Center.

Elmer Smith, wife and two children, Ira Smith and wife motored to Auburn and spent the afternoon with Ralph Wise, wife and baby.

Mrs. Della Smith, Lena and Nellie Kelley, Frank and Earl Glass spent Sunday with Mrs. Jerome Cook and family. Ice cream and cake were served.

Henry Berry and wife, Lewis Markle and wife spent Sunday at Grabill, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Billman visited Sunday with Frank Wertman and wife. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stiman spent the evening with Mr. Wertman and wife.

Tella Farver of Hopewell, visited last week with her sister, Mrs. Earl Stiman, and husband. Vernon Stiman returned home with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Ort Wearly of Akron, Ohio, are here visiting with Mr. Wearly's parents, G. W. Wearly and wife.

John Emerick and family, B. O. Parker and family of Huntertown, Ort Wearly and wife visited Sunday with G. W. Wearly and wife.

The Golden Hour class met at the home of Miss Leona Widdifield Thursday. A social meeting was held after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haifley are rejoicing over a baby girl born one day last week.

A hunters reunion was held Sunday at the Harvey Kimes, Sr., home of which a good time was had by all. Those present were: Dr. Fanning and wife, Dr. Cramer and wife of Butler, M. H. Widney, wife and daughter of St. Joe, Neff Culler, wife and son, of Newville, Jim Simons, wife and daughter, Gladys, Lewis Cutshall of Huntertown, Jake Huffmaster and son, Lewis, Byron Miller of Hicksville, O., Clyde Brice, Sam Smith, wife and son, Clara Smith, Audrey Smith, son and daughter, Ed. Eley, wife, son and daughter, of Milan Center, Horatuis Squires and wife, Theo. Dinius, wife and children of this place.

Notice

Persons! who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particulary those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG, PRETTY

Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens So Naturally that Nobody can tell.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her looks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

For Sale:-Acme Washer and Wringer. All in good shape. Will sell cheap.
MRS. H. L. DUNKLE.

LOST:-Black Leather Music Roll, north of School House. Roll contained Etude and a sheet of music with Ruth Eckright name on it. Finder please return same to ETHEL METCALF, Spencerville.

LOST:-A Tie Clasp, with letter B. Finder return to F. R. Bowman. Lost last Thursday evening in making run to fire.

FOR SALE:-Fresh cow with heifer calf by side. Dell Coburn.

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

AUGUST

L 908

0270

Preparedness

❊ ❊

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants
State Bank
Capital Stock $25,000.00
Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET
PRICE

Paid for Your
POULTRY
SEE
W. G. ERICK

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

It is reported that Dr. Frank Silberg, agent for the Ford automobile at this place, had sold ten new cars last week.

Miss Jessie Steward and brother came last week to visit their grandparents, Mrs. Nettie Steward and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Markle and family.

Subscribe for this paper.
Patronize the advertisers.
Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Envelopes
Leaflets
Bill Heads
Calling Cards
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Circulars
Posters
Blotters
Invitations
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

Sell Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 19
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

SPENCERVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cole were Sunday guests of relatives at Garrett.

Dr. and Mrs. B. O. Shook and family left on Thursday for a ten days trip through Ohio.

Mrs. Nancy Rummel left last week to visit her daughter, Mrs. Lizzie Frederick and husband.

Mrs. Nancy Kennedy is quite ill at her home west of town. Mrs. Mandy Bowman is assisting in caring for her.

Miss Ada Markle of Fort Wayne came Saturday to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Markle and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Betz left Wednesday to visit her brother, Will Boston, and family and other relatives in Michigan.

Mrs. C. A. Rhoads, who has been caring for her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Furnish, who has been sick, returned home on Saturday.

Mr. Adams from Fremont, Charles Grill and Mrs. Devon of Fort Wayne, were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Hobaugh.

Miss Cleo Bowser left Monday morning to make a visit at the home of her grandfather, Theodore Bowser, and family of near Huntertown.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lochner and family spent Sunday the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Akey, and family and also visited Miss Mary Comesky.

On September the first Miss Golden Murray will move her drug store into the brick building owned by Mrs. John Provines, known as the drug store.

Little Virginia Koch, who is a patient at the Lutheran hospital, is improving nicely and it is thought will be able to be moved home the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Farner and daughter, Mrs. Saul Goldsmith and son, Harold and Mr. and Mrs. George Vanzile left Thursday to visit relatives at Howe, Indiana.

Mr. William Markle while working in the ditch was seized with a stitch in his side and back on Tuesday. Mr. Markle is compelled to use crutches at present to walk.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Butler had as their Sunday dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Close of Kalamazoo, Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner, Irean Webb and Jenice and Mary Wade.

The Christian Endeavor of the Lutheran church enjoyed a corn roast at the river on Friday evening and on their return home they serenaded the shut-ins of the town.

Our new shipment of Ladies' Ready-to-wear dresses andwaists are now in. Call and see them first before the choice colors and patterns are selected. Cheaper than you can make them at Beams & Co., store.

Many real estate transfers have been made recently. Mortie Widderfield sold his farm to an Illinois man, Israel Horn sold his farm to Ezra Horn and J. S. Hollobaugh purchased the old Beam residence on River street.

The Central Union Telephone company entertained the managers and their wives and the telephone operators of DeKalb and Steuben counties on Tuesday to a chicken dinner at the Lake James hotel at Lake James. Plates were laid for 63 guests. Many toasts were enjoyed by speakers from Angola, Auburn and other places. After dinner the guests were treated to boat rides and many other amusements. Those that attended from this place were: The Manager Frank Beams, and wife and the Misses Mary Comesky, Francis Webb and Grace Cook.

Mr. Israel Horn will occupy the Rummel tenent house on Pearl street.

Clyde Rectenwald and wife and Lloyd Wade and wife spent Sunday at Robison park.

Mr. John Benninghoff and Lewis Berry spent Saturday at Fort Wayne on business.

Mr. Frank Ryan of west of town, was a Sunday guest of W. M. Allen and family.

The Metcalf family reunion will be held on Thursday at the home of D. D. Metcalf, south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Close of Kalamazoo, Michigan, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner.

Miss Julia Baker left Monday to spend a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Fred Viland, of near Edgerton.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Rhoads and family of Auburn, visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rhoads, on Sunday.

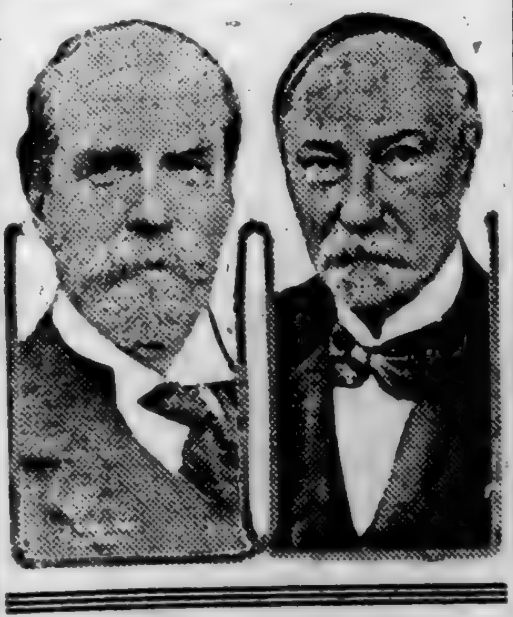
Mr. and Mrs. James Furgerson of Cleveland, Ohio, were the Friday and Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Wilmot and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Maurer and son, William, were Thursday supper guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Anna Dilly, of St. Joe.

Cecil Metcalf and family, Elworth Eakright and family were Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Metcalf and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Houk and family, Erma, Thelma and Vernon, from Decatur, Indiana, spent the week-end with Rev. A. K. Mumma and family also visiting relatives at this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Willmot had as their guests on Sunday the Misses Anna and Ellen Saverty, Miss Winfred Cavrney and Miss Etta Brooks, all of Cleveland, and Mrs. Wallas Willard, of Iowa, Walter Coburn of Coburntown, Lee Wilmot and family of Garrett, Elva Wilmot, John House and Russell Gratz, Mr. and Mrs. George Baker and two children and Edith Baker.



HUGHES and FAIRBANKS.

Come in
and pay that overdue subscription account.
Don't wait until the paper stops.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hollabaugh and family of Auburn, came Saturday and were over Sunday guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hollabaugh and family, and on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hollabaugh and family, Mr. Frank Hollabaugh, wife and babe, and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hollapeter and son, Cecil, were the dinner guests.

NEWVILLE NEWS.

Mrs. Effie Huchings of Fort Wayne, was the guest of her brother, Alfred Smith, and family the latter part of last week.

Many from the surrounding towns and country attended the rural chautauqua here last week.

Levon McDonald of Butler, is the guest of his grandparents here at this writing.

Ella Thomas has purchased the property formerly the home of Mrs. Woodrings mother, Mrs. Esther Stepelton. Mrs. Thomas expects to move and take posession in the near future.

Mrs. J. S. Kain and daughter spent last week at Lake Michigan and Kalamazoo.

Mrs. J. T. Keesey visited relatives at Silver Lake and Manchester, Indiana, last week.

Mrs. John Miller was the guest of her son and family near Edon, Ohio the first end of the week and returning on the Wabash spent Wednesday at home of her daughter in Butler, returning home Thursday.

Sam Wyatt and wife and Elmer Wyatt and wife went to Fort Wayne Wednesday to see Mrs. Manford Smith who is taking treatment at the hospital.

Mr. Moses found a loaded revolver on the step of the restaurant one day last week we have no authority to advertise for the owner.

A good rain, is what Newville wants, all signs fail in dry weather but here is one sign that never fails so far as our memory serves us, that is the Hicksville fair; it always rains. We hope it won't fail this time.

Mrs. Ella Richmond was the guest of her son, Omo and wife in Hicksville the latter part of last week.

Mr. Smalley Tells of Wonderful Cure.

A. Smalley, a prosperous farmer living six miles south-east of Antwerp, Ohio, says: "I was troubled with glandular inactivity for some time. My liver and kidneys had ceased to act until I was nearly as yellow as the yolk of an egg. My appetite was poor. What I did eat did not seem to digest. I lost flesh and was hardly able to drag around. When I begun to use Glando I soon got better. In eight weeks I had gained in flesh until I weighed as much as I ever weighed. My complexion cleared, and I feel as good as I ever did in my life." Mr. Smalley is a man fifty-three years old. He is only one of the many who have received wonderful help by using Glando. Glando starts glandular activity and throws the poison out of the system. Poisons retained in the body will in time break down the strongest constitution and destroy health. Don't let your glands shirk, keep them active and save your health.

Glando can be secured at drug stores or of the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. For Sale by All Druggists.

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can, "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, } ss.
Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.
Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township
OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser
Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.
Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest In America Strongest In the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP.
Fort Wayne, Ind.

L 908

0271

Happenings of the World Tersely Told

European War News

Maj. Norton Mattos, the Portuguese minister of war, announced at Lisbon that Portugal soon will participate in the war, fighting on the side of the entente allies.

* * *

General von Bothmer's Austro-German army, which retreated from the Strypa river, is making a strong stand north of the Dniester, between the Zlota Lipa and the Narajowka rivers, and furious fighting is in progress in that district, according to a dispatch from Petrograd.

* * *

Passengers on the Cunarder Alaunia, which arrived at New York from London, told of seeing a damaged British destroyer enter, followed by a British cruiser against whose free board was lashed a shell-torn German submarine.

* * *

Since the Russian offensive was inaugurated, and up to August 12, General Brusiloff's forces captured more than 358,000 men, the war office announced at Petrograd.

* * *

The French and British, striking with terrific force in three directions on the Somme front, have stormed nearly three miles of German trenches, driving forward at points to a depth of 300 to 500 yards, according to an official statement from London.

* * *

Five villages have been captured from the Bulgarians by the Serbians and French forces in the Balkans during the last fortnight, according to the official statement issued by the war office at Paris.

* * *

The Italian advance guard is only 13 miles from Trieste, according to dispatches to London from Geneva. The greater part of the Austrian fleet has sailed from Trieste for an unknown destination. Italian troops have entered the suburbs of Tolmino.

* * *

The Russians have captured Jablonitza, one of the most important gateways through the Carpathians to the Hungarian plains, and have taken nearly 1,500 additional prisoners, according to Petrograd.

* * *

The Italian dreadnaught Leonardo da Vinci has been blown up in Taranto harbor, Italy, with a loss of 300 members of her crew, according to a Paris dispatch. The explosion followed the outbreak of fire aboard.

* * *

Domestic

Public health experts from 38 states, continuing their meeting with the federal public health service at Washington, drew up a code of regulations for combating further spread of infantile paralysis by interstate travel, and developing methods of co-operating in a study of causes and treatment of the disease.

* * *

Two guards at the German-American cement plant at La Salle, Ill., Joseph Burkhart and W. A. Davy, were arrested as a result of the killing of a Polish worker, who was discovered prowling around the plant.

* * *

Two British submarines with a submarine depot ship and a British cruiser chased the submarine merchantman Deutschland after it passed out the Virginia capes on its return to Germany, according to information received at New York from a source considered reliable.

* * *

Two attempts were made to blow up the wharf of the Pacific Coast Steamship company at Seattle, Wash. Prompt action by firemen, nonunion dock workers and the police prevented serious loss.

* * *

Two persons are missing and a score were injured when a section of the temporary bleachers at the fair grounds at Warren, O., collapsed while a big crowd was watching a boxing match.

* * *

Participation of Progressives in President Wilson's campaign was discussed at a conference held at Washington between the president and members of the Progressive campaign committee.

* * *

United States soldiers and National Guardsmen stationed at Fort Brown, Tex., have been driven from their quarters and have taken refuge in the city hall and other public buildings at Brownsville, on account of the gulf coast storm which hit that section.

* * *

A few hours after a minister had made them man and wife Mrs. Sallie Gildmore Van Auken dropped dead in the arms of her husband, James Van Auken, a farmer, as he was lifting her from a buggy at the home of her parents in Kilbourne, Ill.

* * *

Union machinists employed by the Winchester Repeating Arms company at New Haven, Conn., are expected to strike to obtain an eight-hour day without wage reductions, and other concessions requested by a shop committee.

The laboratory of the Rock Island government arsenal on Arsenal island blew up. The three explosions were felt four miles. The damage is not believed to have been large.

* * *

How to check the $1,000,000,000 waste in the marketing of farm products will be the dominant theme of the fourth national conference on marketing and farm credits called to meet in Chicago December 4 and 5.

* * *

Through her attorney, Charles J. O'Connor of Chicago, Helen Morton Bayly, daughter of Mark Morton, a wealthy resident of Lake Forest, Ill., has sued for divorce in the Lake county circuit court, charging desertion.

* * *

Reconciliation with her husband, after a year of estrangement, came to Mrs. Q. A. Gilmore of Maryville, Mo., who shot and killed Ella Shipps because of jealousy.

* * *

Samuel Gompers made reply to Senator Sherman at Washington. Sherman denounced him in the senate as a "public nuisance." "It is impossible for me to be arbitrary or tyrannical," said Mr. Gompers, "for there are no such powers vested in the president of the American Federation of Labor."

* * *

Lawrence Crist, eleven years old, and Arthur Stanford, eight, were drowned in Pike lake, Indiana. Mrs. A. H. Stanford, mother of Arthur, and Mrs. Elmer Crist, mother of the other boy, were dragged from the lake unconscious. Lelia Crist reached the shore unaided. The five were bathing.

* * *

William R. Willcox, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced that Colonel Roosevelt will speak in Maine September 5 and 6 and in Battle Creek, Mich., September 30.

* * *

The first consignment of dyes brought from Germany by the submarine freighter Deutschland has been received by a coloring company in New York. The Deutschland's cargo is estimated to have included about 200 tons of dyes, valued in excess of $1,000,000.

* * *

Mexican War News

General Funston in a telegram received at the war department at Washington recommends the immediate withdrawal of the Pershing expeditionary force from Mexican territory.

* * *

A bond issue of $130,000,000 to meet extraordinary government expenditures due to the Mexican situation was unexpectedly recommended to congress at Washington by members of the senate finance committee, with the concurrence of the treasury department.

* * *

Washington

President Wilson vetoed the army appropriation bill at Washington. He sent to the house a message making it plain that this action was entirely due to the incorporation into the measure of the provision that retired officers should not be subject to the articles of war.

* * *

The chairmen of the "big four" railway brotherhoods by a vote of approximately 3 to 1 accepted President Wilson's plan to avert the threatened railway strike. Thirty-one executives, representing as many individual railroads, heard this plan outlined by the president at the White House at Washington. The executives declared they stood by the managers' committee and were opposed to settlement by any means other than arbitration.

* * *

The child labor bill was finally passed without debate or record vote in the house at Washington. It now goes to the president.

* * *

The administration bill, creating a shipping board and appropriating $50,000,000 for its use in government purchase or operation of ships, was passed by the senate at Washington by a strict party vote of 38 to 21.

* * *

The publication at Washington of the note sent to the British government on April 25 by Secretary Lansing protesting against the presence of English war vessels in American waters shows that the state department at that time considered the matter of graver consequence than was generally believed.

* * *

The Philippine bill as reported from conference, with the Clarke amendment providing for independence of the islands within four years eliminated but containing a promise of freedom whenever the Filipinos have demonstrated their ability to maintain a stable government, finally was approved by the senate at Washington.

* * *

President Wilson at Washington nominated F. J. H. von Engelken of East Palatka, Fla., to be director of the mint, succeeding Robert W. Woolley, now director of publicity for the Democratic campaign committee.

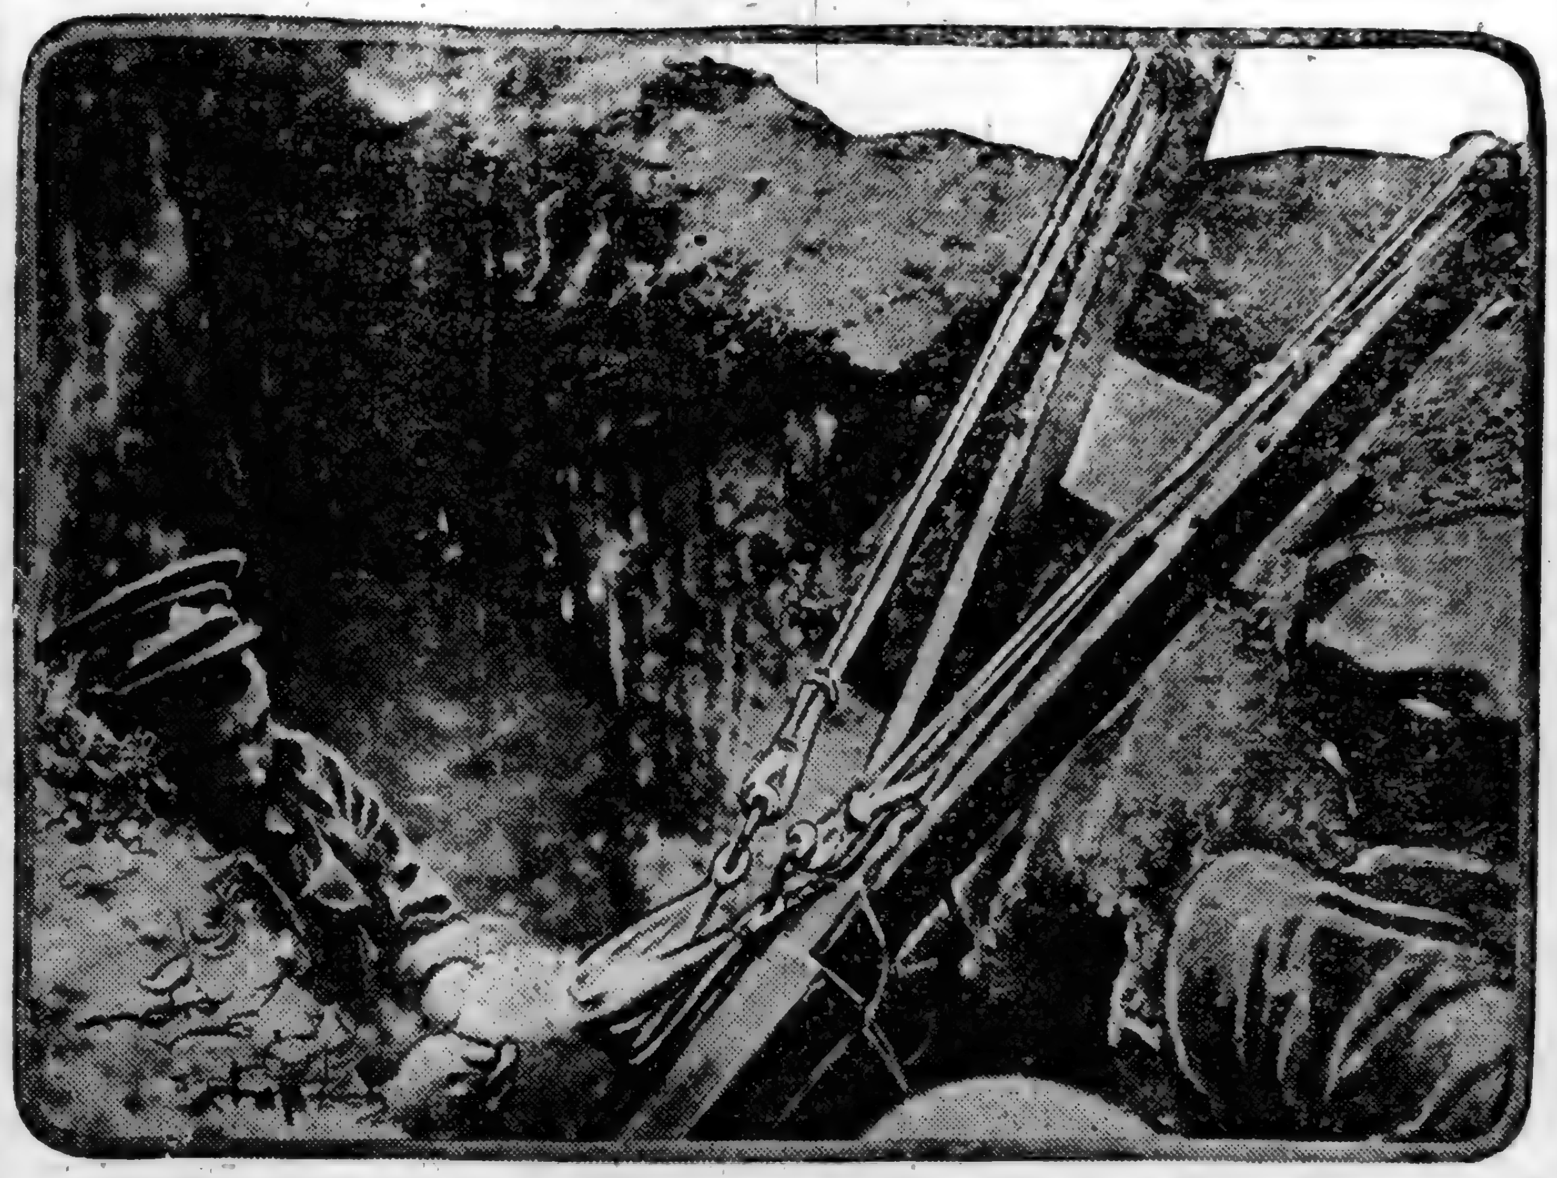
* * *

President Wilson at Washington formally accepted for the United States the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln at Hodgensville, Ky., authorised by a recent act of congress.

* * *

President Wilson's latest proposition to settle the railroad dispute is, according to reports from Washington, for the roads to grant the men temporarily the eight-hour day and also the time and a half for overtime, this to be tried for several months and its effect on the earnings of the lines to be examined by federal investigators.

AUSTRALIAN CATAPULT FOR TRENCH BOMBS



Australians in a trench using a catapult to throw bombs at the enemy. Fashioned on a larger scale after the schoolboy's "bean-shooter," the machine speeds the explosive bombs on their way to the enemy trenches, spreading death and destruction.

INDIAN CAVALRY ON THE WEST FRONT

© International Film Service

An official photograph from the British western front showing a division of Indian cavalry waiting "somewhere" along the lines for the order to advance to the attack.

HE FLEW ACROSS GERMANY

© International Film Service

This is Sublieutenant Marchal, who flew across Germany in his aeroplane, covering 812 miles and dropping proclamations in Berlin. Engine trouble forced him to alight at Cholm, Poland, where he was made prisoner.

SNIPING AS A RECREATION

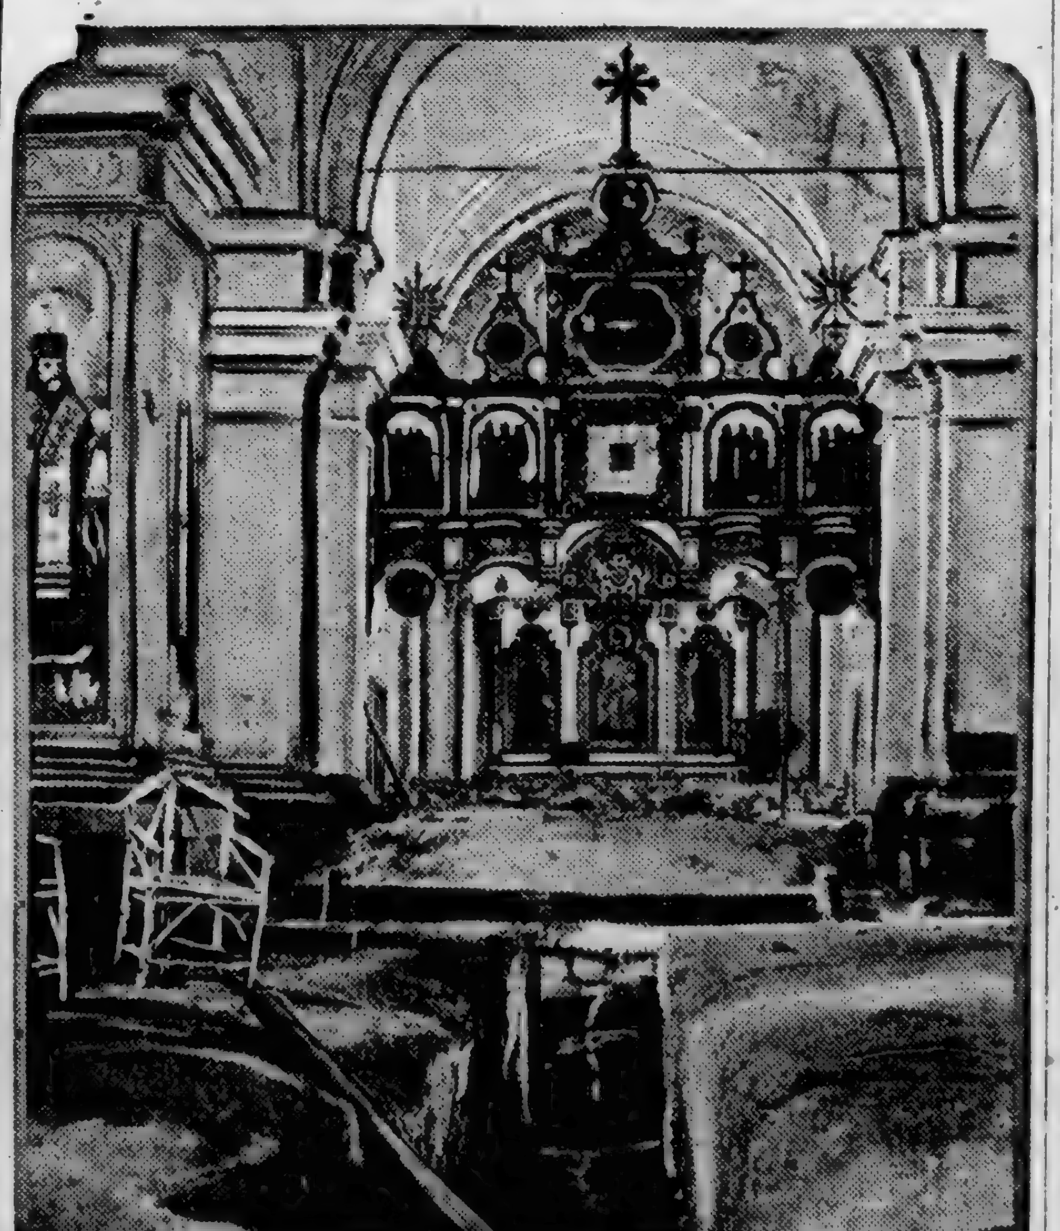
Canadian Soldier Says It Is One Way of Breaking Monotony of Trench Life.

A Canadian soldier tells of his experience as a sniper. "It is one way," he says, "among too few ways, of breaking the monotony of trench life. I have been a sniper. Sniping is another way to break the terrible monotony of trench life. I have spent a whole day in a tree, directing in that way the operations of the men in the trenches.

"The soldier at the front does three times the amount of work at night that he does in the daytime. In ordinary trench life the day is quiet, with little firing except that of the machine guns; and few men are wounded or killed by day.

"Much of the fighting we did in the early morning before it was full daylight. Every morning and every evening we went through what we called the 'stand-to' movement—a movement of preparedness—getting ready for attack. We would keep at the work two and even three hours, awaiting an attack."

AUSTRIAN DUGOUT UNDER A CHURCH



View of a dugout built by the Austrians under a church which had been partly wrecked by shell fire.

TAKEN FROM EXCHANGES

A well-known American writer thinks that the signing of peace will lead to an emigration movement that will amaze the world. After the Franco-American war in 1870, 200,000 Germans settled in three American states—Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa.

The male heart weighs from 10 to 12 ounces. Its average size is about five inches long, three and one-half inches wide and two inches in greatest depth.

French army officers have solved the problem of traveling over desert sands with a light sledge, driven by an aerial propeller, which makes fair speed and climbs grades easily.

The perfume industry of Italy annually makes use of 1,860 tons of orange blossoms and 1,000 tons of roses.

Persia has increased its demand for cameras in the last two years.

Chicago is said to have the lowest death rate from typhoid fever of any American city of more than half a million population, 5.4 being its index number, as compared with Boston's 5.5, New York's 6 and larger figures for the rest of them.

Although there is in Barcelona, Spain, a supply of electricity available for charging electric trucks and passenger automobiles, such vehicles are not to be seen there.

David Guessford, 30 years mourned as dead, recently returned to his parental home in Townsend, Del.

An ordinance enacted in Dawson, Ga., some time ago reads: "It shall be unlawful for any cook to take from her place of employment any victuals in a pan or bucket without written permission from her employer."

HOOSIER NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD

Jeffersonville.—Friends here and in Louisville and New Albany have given a cottage in Ohio Falls, a suburb of Jeffersonville, to Mrs. Lillian Owens Munz, widow of John Munz of this city, who lost his life June 27 when serving as a member of a life-saving crew of the United States station on the Kentucky bank of the river. The life-savers' boat went over a dam when they were attempting to rescue several men whose boat had capsized and Munz was drowned.

Evansville.—Miss Mamie Hoffman of St. Louis visited Evansville, met Capt. Harry Davis of the steamer Golden Fleece, listened with kindly ear to "his systematic love making," and then loaned him $4,900, which she wants back. In a suit filed in circuit court she asks a receiver be appointed for the steamer, saying she owns one-third interest in the boat given her as security for the loan. She says the engagement is broken.

Hammond.—Warning its trainmen that if they strike the company's purpose will be to place employees who refuse to go out at the head of the respective service rosters, the Monon Railway company has notified these men that they will be the senior employees of the company. Employees joining strikers will forfeit rights and privileges of years of service, if ever employed again.

Muncie.—Graduation exercises for the Muncie National institute began Sunday with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. William J. Sayers, pastor of the Friends' Memorial church. The faculty concert Monday night, the senior recital Tuesday evening and alumni celebration Wednesday will be features of the week preceding the commencement Friday.

Logansport.—Ten cantons of Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F., comprising the First regiment of Indiana and composed of uniform rank of Goshen, Gary, Elkhart, South Bend, Laporte, Peru, Kokomo, Hammond, Fort Wayne and Logansport, will meet in their annual camp at Fletcher's lake, September 2 to 6.

Columbus.—An indemnifying bond has been filed in the office of the Bartholomew county recorder in favor of A. F. Spalding to protect Spalding in giving bond for the release of Wiley from the jail at Hartford City, where Wiley is accused with Hector A. McQuarrie of conspiracy to commit arson.

Aurora. — Benjamin F. Scranton, president of the Rising Sun Library association, has announced that arrangements to obtain $10,000 for a library building from the Carnegie library fund have been completed, and the application is before the Carnegie Library association.

Bloomington.—Relatives here have received word of the death in a hospital at Calexico, Cal., of Ralph S. Robertson, age twenty-three, formerly of Bloomington, who was wounded by a Mexican sniper when on duty with Troop M, First California cavalry, on the border.

Petersburg.—During an electrical storm here lightning struck a barn on the farm of George Elkins, six miles east of here, and it burned, destroying 1,200 bushels of wheat and much farm machinery. One horse was burned. The loss was $3,000, partly covered by insurance.

South Bend.—The sixtieth wedding anniversary of Prof. and Mrs. Lorenz Elbel and Mrs. Elbel's eighty-second birthday anniversary was celebrated at their home. The couple were serenaded by Elbel's band, which Professor Elbel organized more than 60 years ago.

Crawfordsville. — J. Truitt Maxwell, a former Crawfordsville boy, who has been secretary of the Young Men's Christian association at Grand Island, Neb., has resigned to become director of the physical department of the association at Oakland, Cal.

Shelbyville.—Physicians here have reported several cases of sickness accompanied by a high fever, and five cases of typhoid fever, which are attributed to the admission of river water to the city mains because of a fire several weeks ago.

Gary.—The city council has decided to increase the police force by the addition of 20 more patrolmen and another motor patrol wagon. Because of the increase in population Chief William Forbis had asked for 40 additional officers.

Clinton.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McGuinness have received word that their son, Corporal Thomas McGuinness, was killed in action in France July 1. Four brothers and two sisters in this city, and the widow and three children in France survive.

Newcastle. — The fifty-first anniversary of the dedication of the First Christian church was observed here. The first pastor was Alexander Johnson. When the church was dedicated there were 90 members.

Indianapolis.—Rev. Edward D. Curtis, sixty-five, founder of many Congregational churches in Indiana, is dead at his home here. He formerly was secretary of the Indiana Church-building society.

Greencastle.—George Herring was found guilty of "bootlegging" by Mayor Cooper and was sent to the penal farm for 60 days and fined $25.

Marion.—Lyle Courtney of Newcastle was detained here by the police at request of his parents until he agreed to return to Newcastle and cease his efforts to marry Florence Hill, eighteen, colored.

AUGUST

L 908

0272

The Turmoil

By

BOOTH TARKINGTON

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—II—

Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old-town family next door and impoverished, call on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bills is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he mets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife. Doctor Gurney finds Bibbs well enough to go back to the machine shop. Mary and Bibbs meet by accident and form a pleasant friendship. Roscoe Sheridan and his wife quarrel desperately about Bobby Lamhorn. Bibbs goes to work. Old man Sheridan hurts his hand.

If your daughter was deeply infatuated with a good-for-nothing young man who wanted to marry her, and you wanted to break up the affair, would you let the girl see so much of her lover she would become sick of him or would you forbid him the premises and try to keep her from meeting him out? Do you believe that Edith's father handled a delicate situation of this kind properly?—as described in the following installment.

CHAPTER XX—Continued.

"Not at all," said Bibbs. "I'm going to stand by the old zinc eater till five o'clock. I tell you I like it!"

"Then I suppose that's the end of your wanting to write."

"I don't know about that," Bibbs said, thoughtfully; "but the zinc eater doesn't interfere with my thinking, at least. It's better than being in business; I'm sure of that. I don't want anything to change. I'd be content to lead just the life I'm leading now to the end of my days."

"You do beat the devil!" exclaimed Gurney. "Your father's right when he tells me you're a mystery. Perhaps the Almighty knew what he was about when he made you, but it takes a lot of faith to believe it! Well, I'm off. Go on back to your murdering old machine." He climbed into his car, which he operated himself, but he refrained from setting it immediately in motion. "Well, I rubbed it in on the old man that you had warned him not to slide his hand along too far, and that he got hurt because he didn't pay attention to your warning, and because he was trying to show you how to do something you were already doing a great deal better than he could. You tell him I'll be around to look at it and change the dressing tomorrow morning. Goodby."

But when he paid the promised visit the next morning he did more than change the dressing upon the damaged hand. The injury was severe of its kind, and Gurney spent a long time over it, though Sheridan was rebellious and scornful, being brought to a degree of tractability only by means of horrible threats and talk of amputation. However, he appeared at the dinner table with his hand supported in a sling, which he seemed to regard as an indignity, while the natural inquiries upon the subject evidently struck him as deliberate insults. Mrs. Sheridan, having been unable to contain her solicitude several times during the day, and having been checked each time in a manner that blanched her cheek, hastened to warn Roscoe and Sibyl, upon their arrival at five, to omit any reference to the injury and to avoid even looking at the sling if they possibly could.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Sheridans dined on Sundays at five. Sibyl had taken pains not to arrive either before or after the hand was precisely on the hour, and the members of the family were all seated at the table within two minutes after she and Roscoe had entered the house.

It was a glum gathering, overhung with portents. The air seemed charged, awaiting any tiny ignition to explode; and Mrs. Sheridan's expression, as she sat with her eyes fixed almost continually upon her husband, was that of a person engaged in prayer. Edith was pale and intent. Roscoe looked ill; Sibyl looked ill, and Sheridan looked both ill and explosive. Bibbs had more color than any of these, and there was a strange brightness, like a light, upon his face. It was curious to see anything so happy in the tense gloom of that household.

Edith ate little. She never once looked at Sibyl, though Sibyl now and then gave her a quick glance heavily charged, and then looked away. Roscoe ate nothing. He did not once look at his father, though his father gazed heavily at him most of the time. And between Edith and Sibyl, and between Roscoe and his father, some bitter wireless communication seemed continually to be taking place throughout the long silences prevailing during this enlivening ceremony of Sabbath refection.

"Didn't you go to church this morning, Bibbs?" his mother asked, in the effort to break up one of those ghastly intervals.

"I think so," he answered, as from a roseate trance.

"You think so! Don't you know?"

"Oh, yes. Yes, I went to church!"

"What was the sermon about?"

"What, mother?"

"Can't you hear me?' she cried. "I asked you what the sermon was about."

He roused himself. "I think it was about—" He frowned, seeming to concentrate his will to recollect. "I think it was about something in the Bible."

White-jacket George was glad of an opportunity to leave the room and lean upon Mist' Jackson's shoulder in the pantry. "He don't know they was any suhmon!" he concluded, having narrated the dining-room dialogue. "All he know is he was with 'at lady lives nex' do'!" George was right.

"Did you go to church all by yourself, Bibbs?" Sibyl asked.

"No," he answered. "No, I didn't go alone."

"Oh?" Sibyl gave the ejaculation an upward twist, as of mocking inquiry, and followed it by another, expressive of hilarious comprehension. "Oh!"

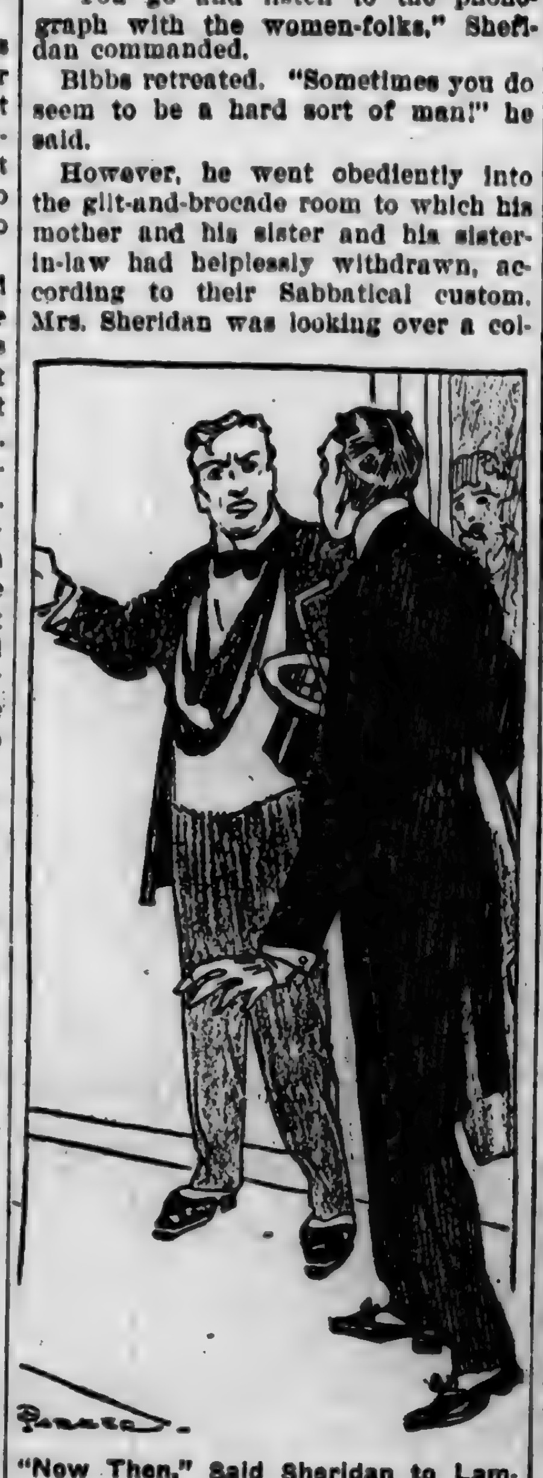
Bibbs looked at her studiously, but she spoke no further. And that completed the conversation at the lugubrious feast.

Coffee came finally, was disposed of quickly, and the party dispersed to other parts of the house. Bibbs followed his father and Roscoe into the library, but was not well received.

"You go and listen to the phonograph with the women-folks," Sheridan commanded.

Bibbs retreated. "Sometimes you do seem to be a hard sort of man!" he said.

However, he went obediently into the gilt-and-brocade room to which his mother and his sister and his sister-in-law had helplessly withdrawn, according to their Sabbatical custom. Mrs. Sheridan was looking over a collection of records consisting exclusively of Caruso and ragtime. She selected one of the latter, remarking that she thought it "right pretty," and followed it with one of the former and the same remark.



"Now Then," Said Sheridan to Lamhorn.

As the second reached its conclusion, George appeared in the broad doorway, but he did not speak. Instead, he favored Edith with a benevolent smile; and she immediately left the room, George disappearing after her in the hall with an air of successful diplomacy. He made it perfectly clear that Edith had given him secret instructions and that it had been his pride and pleasure to fulfill them to the letter.

Sibyl stiffened in her chair; her lips parted, and she watched with curious eyes the vanishing back of the white jacket.

"What's that?" she asked, in a low voice, but sharply.

"Here's another right pretty record," said Mrs. Sheridan, affecting—with patent nervousness—not to hear. And she unloosed the music.

Sibyl bit her lip and began to tap her chin with the brooch. After a little while she turned to Bibbs, who reposed at half length in a gold chair, with his eyes closed.

"Where did Edith go?" she asked, curiously.

"Edith?" he repeated, opening his eyes blankly. "Is she gone?"

Sibyl got up and stood in the doorway. She leaned against the casing, still tapping her chin with the brooch. Her eyes were dilating; she was suddenly at high tension, and her expression had become one of sharp excitement. She listened intently.

When the record was spun out she could hear Sheridan rumbling in the library, during the ensuing silence, and Roscoe's voice, querulous and husky: "I won't say anything at all. I tell you, you might just as well let me alone!"

But there were other sounds: a rustling and murmur, whispering, low, protesting cadences in a male voice. And as Mrs. Sheridan started another record, a sudden, vital resolve leaped like fire in the eyes of Sibyl. She walked down the hall and straight into the smoking room.

Lamhorn and Edith both sprang to their feet, separating. Edith became instantly deathly white with a rage that set her shaking from head to foot, and Lamhorn stuttered as he tried to speak.

But Edith's shaking was not so violent as Sibyl's, nor was her face so white. At sight of them and of their embrace, all possible consequences became nothing to Sibyl. She curtsied, holding up her skirts and contorting her lips to the semblance of a smile.

"Sit just as you were—both of you!" she said. And then to Edith: "Did you tell my husband I had been telephoning to Lamhorn?"

"You march out of here!" said Edith, fiercely. "March straight out of here!"

Sibyl leveled a forefinger at Lamhorn.

"Did you tell her I'd been telephoning you I wanted you to come?"

"Oh, good God!" Lamhorn said. "Hush!"

"You knew she'd tell my husband, didn't you?" she cried. "You knew that!"

"Hush!" he begged, panic-stricken.

"That was a manly thing to do! Oh, it was like a gentleman! You wouldn't come—you wouldn't even come for five minutes to hear what I had to say! You were tired of what I had to say! You'd heard it all a thousand times before, and you wouldn't even come! No! No! No!" she stormed, "you wouldn't even come for five minutes, but you could tell that little cat! And she told my husband! You're a man!"

Edith saw in a flash that the consequences of battle would be ruinous to Sibyl, and the furious girl needed no further temptation to give way to her feelings. "Get out of this house!" she shrieked. "This is my father's house. Don't you dare speak to Robert like that!"

"No! No! I mustn't speak—"

"Don't you dare!"

Edith and Sibyl began to scream insults at each other simultaneously, fronting each other, their furious faces close. Their voices shrilled and rose and cracked—they screeched. They could be heard over the noise of the phonograph, which was playing a brass-band selection. They could be heard all over the house. They were heard in the kitchen; they could have been heard in the cellar. Neither of them cared for that.

"You told my husband!" screamed Sibyl, bringing her face still closer to Edith's. "You told my husband! This man put that in your hands to strike me with! He did!"

"I'll tell your husband again! I'll tell him everything I know! It's time your husband—"

They were swept asunder by a bandaged hand. "Do you want the neighbors in?" Sheridan thundered.

There fell a shocking silence. Frenzied Sibyl saw her husband and his mother in the doorway, and she understood what she had done. She moved slowly toward the door; then suddenly she began to run. She ran into the hall, and through it, and out of the house. Roscoe followed her heavily, his eyes on the ground.

"Now then!" said Sheridan to Lamhorn.

The words were indefinite, but the voice was not. Neither was the vicious gesture of the bandaged hand, which concluded its orbit in the direction of the door in a manner sufficient for the swift dispersal of George and Jackson and several female servants who hovered behind Mrs. Sheridan. They fled lightly.

"Papa, papa!" wailed Mrs. Sheridan. "Look at your hand! You oughtn't to been so rough with Edie; you hurt your hand on her shoulder. Look!"

There was, in fact, a spreading red stain upon the bandages at the tips of the fingers, and Sheridan put his hand back in the sling. "Now then!" he repeated. "You goin' to leave my house?"

"He will not," sobbed Edith. "Don't you dare order him out!"

"Don't you bother, dear," said Lamhorn, quietly. "He doesn't understand. You mustn't be troubled." Pallor was becoming to him; he looked very handsome, and as he left the room he seemed in the girl's distraught eyes a persecuted noble, indifferent to the rabble yawping insult at his heels—the rabble being enacted by her father.

"Don't come back, either!" said Sheridan, realistic in this impersonation. "Keep off the premises!" he called savagely into the hall. "This family's through with you!"

"It is not!" Edith cried, breaking from her mother. "You'll find out what'll happen! What's he done? You don't know anything about it. Don't you s'pose he told me? She was crazy about him soon as he began going there, and he flirted with her a little before he met me! After that he wouldn't. She was bound she wouldn't give him up. He told her long ago he cared about me, but she kept persecuting him and—"

"Yes," said Sheridan, sternly; "that's his side of it! That'll do! He doesn't come in this house again!"

"You look out!" Edith cried.

"Yes, I'll look out! I'd 'a' told you today he wasn't to be allowed on the premises, but I had other things in my mind. I had Abercrombie look up this young man privately, and he's no 'count. He's no 'count on earth! He's no good! He's nothin'! But it wouldn't matter if he was George Washington, after what's happened and what I've heard tonight!"

"But, papa," Mrs. Sheridan began, "if Edie says it was all Sibyl's fault, makin' up to him, and he never encouraged her much, nor—"

"'S enough!" he roared. "He keeps off these premises! And if any of you so much as ever speak his name to me again—"

But Edith screamed, clapping her hands over her ears to shut out the sound of his voice, and ran upstairs, sobbing loudly, followed by her mother. However, Mrs. Sheridan descended a few minutes later and joined her husband in the library. Bibbs, still sitting in his gold chair, saw her pass, roused himself from reverie, and strolled in after her.

"She locked the door," said Mrs. Sheridan, shaking her head woefully. "She wouldn't even answer me. They wasn't a sound from her room."

"Well," said her husband, "she can settle her mind to it. She never speaks to that fellow again, and if he tries to telephone her tomorrow—Here! You tell the help if he calls up to ring off and say it's my orders. No, you needn't. I'll tell 'em myself."

"Better not," said Bibbs, gently.

His father glared at him.

"It's no good," said Bibbs. "Mother, when you were in love with father—"

"My goodness!" she cried. "You ain't a-goin' to compare your father to that—"

"Edith feels about him just what you did about father," said Bibbs. "And if your father had told you—"

"I won't listen to such silly talk!" she declared, angrily.

"So you're handin' out your advice, are you, Bibbs?" said Sheridan. "What is it?"

"Let her see him all she wants."

"You're a—" Sheridan gave it up. "I don't know what to call you."

"Let her see him all she wants," Bibbs repeated, thoughtfully. "You're up against something too strong for you. If Edith were a weakling you'd have a chance this way, but she isn't. She's got a lot of your determination, father, and with what's going on inside of her she'll beat you. You can't keep her from seeing him, as long as she feels about him the way she does now. You can't make her think less of him, either. Nobody can. Your only chance is that she'll do it herself, and if you give her time and go easy she probably will. Marriage would do it for her quickest, but that's just what you don't want, and as you don't want it, you'd better—"

"I can't stand any more!" Sheridan burst out. "If it's come to Bibbs advisin' me how to run this house I better resign. Mamma, where's that nigger George? Maybe he's got some plan how I better manage my family. Bibbs, for God's sake go and lay down! 'Let her see him all she wants!' Oh, Lord! Here's wisdom; here's—"

"Bibbs," said Mrs. Sheridan, "if you haven't got anything to do, you might step over and take Sibyl's wraps home—she left 'em in the hall. I don't think you seem to quiet your poor father very much just now."

"All right." And Bibbs bore Sibyl's wraps across the street and delivered them to Roscoe, who met him at the door. Bibbs said only, "Forgot these," and, "Good night, Roscoe," cordially and cheerfully, and returned to the new house. His mother and father were still talking in the library, but with discretion he passed rapidly on and upward to his own room, and there he proceeded to write in his notebook.

There seems to be another curious thing about love (Bibbs wrote). Love is blind while it lives and only opens its eyes and becomes very wide awake when it dies. Let it alone until then.

You cannot reason with love or with any other passion. The wise will not wish for love—nor for ambition. These are passions and bring others in their train—hatreds and jealousies—all blind. Friendship and a quiet heart for the wise.

What a turbulence is love! It is dangerous for a blind thing to be turbulent; there are precipices in life. One would not cross a mountain-pass with a thick cloth over his eyes. Lovers do. Friendship walks gently and with open eyes.

To walk to church with a friend! To sit beside her there! To rise when she rises, and to touch with one's thumb and fingers the other half of the hymn book that she holds! What lover, with his fierce ways, could know this transcendent happiness?

Friendship brings everything that heaven could bring. There is no labor that cannot become a living rapture if you know that a friend is thinking of you as you labor. So you sing at your work. For the work is part of the thoughts of your friend; so you love it!

Love is demanding and claiming and insistent. Friendship is all kindness—it makes the world glorious with kindness. What color you see when you walk with a friend! You see that the gray sky is brilliant and shimmering; you see that the smoke has warm browns and is marvelously sculptured—the air becomes iridescent. You see the gold in brown hair. Light floods everything.

When you walk to church with a friend you know that life can give you nothing richer. You pray that there will be no change in anything forever.

What an adorable thing it is to discover a little foible in your friend, a bit of vanity that gives you one thing more about her to adore! On a cold morning she will perhaps walk to church with you without her furs, and she will blush and return an evasive answer when you ask her why she does not wear them. You will say no more, because you understand. She looks beautiful in her furs; you love their darkness against her cheek; but you comprehend that they conceal the loveliness of her throat and the fine line of her chin, and that she also has comprehended this, and, wishing to look still more bewitching, discards her furs at the risk of taking cold. So you hold your peace, and try to look as if you had not thought it out.

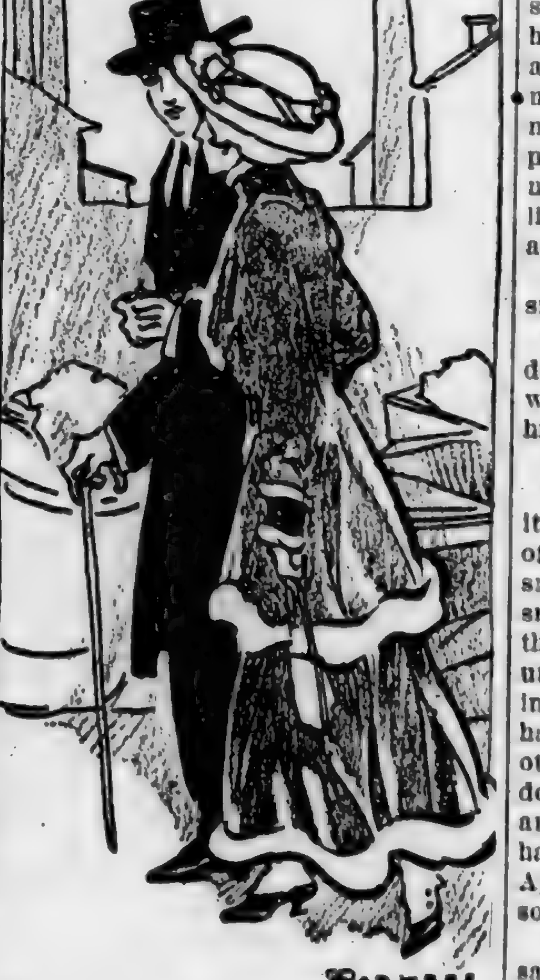
This theory is satisfactory except that it does not account for the absence of the muff. Ah, well, there must always be a mystery somewhere! Mystery is a part of enchantment.

Manual labor is best. Your heart can sing and your mind can dream while your hands are working. You could not have a singing heart and a dreaming mind all day if you had to scheme out dollars, or if you had to add columns of figures. Those things take your attention. You cannot be thinking of your friend while you write letters beginning, "Yours of the 17th inst. received and contents duly noted." But to work with your hands all day, thinking and singing, and then, after nightfall, to hear the ineffable kindness of your friend's greeting—always there—for you! Who would wake from such a dream as this?

Dawn and the sea—music in moonlit gardens—nightingales serenading through almond groves in bloom—what could bring such things into the city's turmoil? Yet they are here, and roses blossom in the soot. That is what it means not to be alone! That is what a friend gives you!

CHAPTER XXII.

Bibbs was the only Sheridan to sleep soundly through the night and to wake at dawn with a light heart. His cheerfulness was vaguely diminished by the troublous state of affairs in his family. Bibbs was a sympathetic person, easily touched, but he was indeed living in a dream, and all things outside of it were veiled and remote—for that is the way of youth in a dream. And Bibbs, who had never before been of any age, either old or young, had come to his youth at last.



"I've Come to Walk Home With You, Bibbs."

He went whistling from the house before even his father had come upstairs. There was a fog outdoors, saturated with a fine powder of soot, and though Bibbs noticed absently the dim shape of an automobile at the curb before Roscoe's house, he did not recognize it as Doctor Gurney's but went cheerily on his way through the dingy mist. And when he was once more installed beside his faithful zinc eater he whistled and sang to it, as other workmen did to their own machines sometimes, when things went well. His comrades in the shop glanced at him amusedly now and then. They liked him, and he ate his lunch at noon with a group of socialists who approved of his ideas and talked of electing him to their association.

The short days of the year had come, and it was dark before the whistles blew. When the signal came, Bibbs went to his office, where he divested himself of his overalls—his single divergence from the routine of his fellow workmen—and after that he used soap and water copiously. This was his transformation scene: he passed into the office a rather frail young working man noticeably begrimed, and passed out of it to the pavement a cheerfully preoccupied sample of gentry, fastidious to the point of elegance.

The sidewalk was crowded with the bearers of dinner pails, men and boys and women and girls from the workrooms that closed at five. Many hurried and some loitered; they went both east and west, jostling one another, and Bibbs, turning his face homeward, was forced to go slowly.

Coming toward him, as slowly, through the crowd, a tall girl caught sight of his long, thin figure and stood still until he had almost passed her, for in the thick crowd and the thicker gloom he did not recognize her, though his shoulder actually touched hers. He would have gone by, but she laughed delightedly, and he stopped short, startled. Two boys, one chasing the other, swept between them, and Bibbs stood still, peering about him in deep perplexity. She leaned toward him.

"I knew you!" she said.

"Good heavens!" cried Bibbs. "I thought it was your voice coming out of a star!"

"There's only smoke overhead," said Mary, and laughed again. "There aren't any stars."

"Oh, yes, there were—when you laughed!"

She took his arm, and they went on. "I've come to walk home with you, Bibbs. I wanted to."

"But were you here in the—"

"In the dark? Yes! Waiting? Yes!"

Bibbs was radiant; he felt suffocated with happiness. He began to scold her.

"But it's not safe, and I'm not worth it. You shouldn't have— You ought to know better. What did—"

"I was in this part of town already," she said. "At least, I was only seven or eight blocks away, and it was dark when I came out, and I'd have had to go home alone—and I preferred going home with you."

"It's pretty beautiful for me," said Bibbs, with a deep breath. "You'll never know what it was to hear your laugh in the darkness—and then to—to see you standing there! Oh, it was like—it was like— How can I tell you what it was like?" They had passed beyond the crowd now, and a crossing lamp shone upon them, which revealed the fact that she was without her furs. Here was a puzzle. However, allowing it to stand, his solicitude for her took another turn. "I think you ought to have a car," he said, "especially when you want to be out after dark. You need one in winter, anyhow. Have you ever asked your father for one?"

"No," said Mary. "I don't think I'd care for one particularly."

"But my mother tried to insist on sending one over here every afternoon for me. I wouldn't let her, because I like to walk, but a girl—"

"A girl likes to walk, too," said Mary. "Let me tell you where I've been this afternoon and how I happened to be near enough to make you take me home. I've been to see a little old man who makes pictures of the smoke. He has a sort of warehouse for a studio, and he lives there with his mother and his wife and their seven children, and he's gloriously happy. I'd seen one of his pictures at an exhibition, and I wanted to see more of them, so he showed them to me. He has almost everything he ever painted; I don't suppose he's sold more than four or five pictures in his life. He gives drawing lessons to keep alive."

"How do you mean he paints the smoke?" Bibbs asked.

"Literally. He paints from his studio window and from the street—anywhere. He just paints what's around him—and it's beautiful."

"The smoke?"

"Wonderful! He sees the sky through it, somehow. He does the ugly roofs of cheap houses through a haze of smoke, and he does smoky sunsets and smoky sunrises, and he has other things with the heavy, solid, slow columns of smoke going far out and growing more ethereal and mixing with the hazy light in the distance; and he has others with the broken skyline of downtown, all misted with the smoke and with puffs and jets of vapor that have colors like an orchard in mid-April. I'm going to take you there some Sunday afternoon, Bibbs."

"You're showing me the town," he said. "I didn't know what was in it at all."

"There are workers in beauty here," she told him, gently. "There are other painters more prosperous than my friend. There are all sorts of things."

"I didn't know."

"No. Since the town began growing so great that it called itself 'greater,' one could live here all one's life and know only the side of it that shows."

"The beauty workers seem buried very deep," said Bibbs. "And I imagine that your friend who makes the smoke beautiful must be buried deepest of all. My father loves the smoke, but I can't imagine his buying one of your friend's pictures. He'd buy the 'Bay of Naples,' but he wouldn't get one of those. He'd think smoke in a picture was horrible—unless he could use it for an advertisement."

"Yes," she said, thoughtfully. "And really he's the town. They are buried pretty deep, it seems, sometimes, Bibbs."

"And yet it's all wonderful," he said. "It's wonderful to me."

"You mean the town is wonderful to you?"

"Yes, because everything is, since you called me your friend. The city is only a rumble on the horizon for me. It can't come any closer than the horizon so long as you let me see you standing by my old zinc eater all day long, helping me. Mary—" He stopped with a gasp. "That's the first time I've called you 'Mary!'"

"Yes." She laughed, a little tremulously. "Though I wanted you to!"

"I said it without thinking. It must be because you came there to walk home with me. That must be it."

"Women like to have things said," Mary informed him, her tremulous laughter continuing. "Were you glad I came for you?"

"No—not 'glad.' I felt as if I were being carried straight up and up and up—over the clouds. I feel like that still. I think I'm that way most of the time. I wonder what I was like before I knew you. The person I was then seems to have been somebody else, not Bibbs Sheridan at all. It seems long, long ago. I was gloomy and sickly—somebody else—somebody I don't understand now, a coward afraid of shadows—afraid of things that didn't exist—afraid of my old zinc eater! And now I'm only afraid of what might change anything."

She was silent a moment, and then, "You're happy, Bibbs?" she asked.

"Ah, don't you see?" he cried. "I want it to last for a thousand, thousand years, just as it is! You've made me so rich, I'm a miser. I wouldn't have one thing different—nothing, nothing!"

"Dear Bibbs!" she said, and laughed happily.

This friendship business between Bibbs and Mary—do you married folk think it's a spell of friendship they're having or is it simply an old-fashioned case of love, with only one cure: a license and a parson?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

AUGUST

L 908

0273

Gasoline 19c at Patterson's Garage,
St. JOE, INDIANA

Personal Items

John C. Hart and wife were guests of Morris Lothamer's Sunday.

Helen and Dorothy Bowman returned Monday from a visit with relatives at Hamilton.

F. M. Monroe has again resumed his work at the B. & O. after a two weeks vacation.

Roy Kinsey and family and Mel Herrick and wife were at Fort Wayne last Thursday.

Sal-Vet and Dr. Hess's Stock Powder. Prevent Hog Cholera, time to use it, says Dunkle.

The M. P. conference is over and J. C. Coons was returned to the St. Joe charge for another year.

J. H. Leighty left on Friday morning for Xienia, Ohio, where he will work with his father on a large contract.

Percy Hess and family, of Painesville, Ohio, drove through to Garrett, last week, and stopped off at St. Joe and called on J. C. Hulls'.

John George and family drove to Goshen Saturday and visited Sunday with relatives. Mrs. Stella Norwood accompanied them.

Homer Shisler, wife and daughter, Marion Carnahan, wife and son of Oakwood, Ohio, were Sunday guests of LeRoy McMillan and family.

Transfer paper at NEWS office 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons. Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Preaching, 7:30 p. m ;Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:30.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

Concord;—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m.

Our Conference which has just closed was one of the best and most progressive in the history of our denomination in Indiana. Splendid gains were made both in finances and in net membership. We take up the work together for another year with the hope and prayer that St. Joe charge will do its part to forward the onward march of the Church and Kingdom.

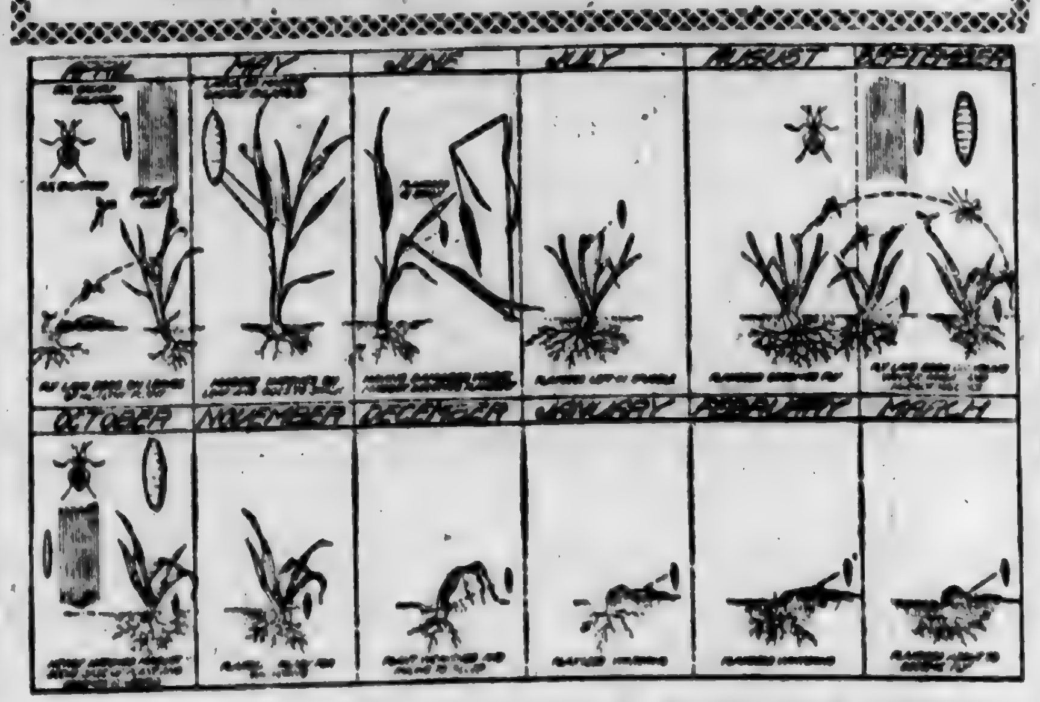
Christian Church Announcements.
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.; Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

WANTED!
YOUR POULTRY
For which we will pay the highest market price.
Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

FIGHTING THE HESSIAN FLY



The Life of the Hessian Fly (From the U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

The life history of the Hessian fly is shown above. The life of the adult is but a few days, probably but a week or less, and the great mass of the flies will appear at about the same time. If the wheat is sown after the flies appear by the time the wheat is up they will be gone and the plants escape the attacks of the fly.

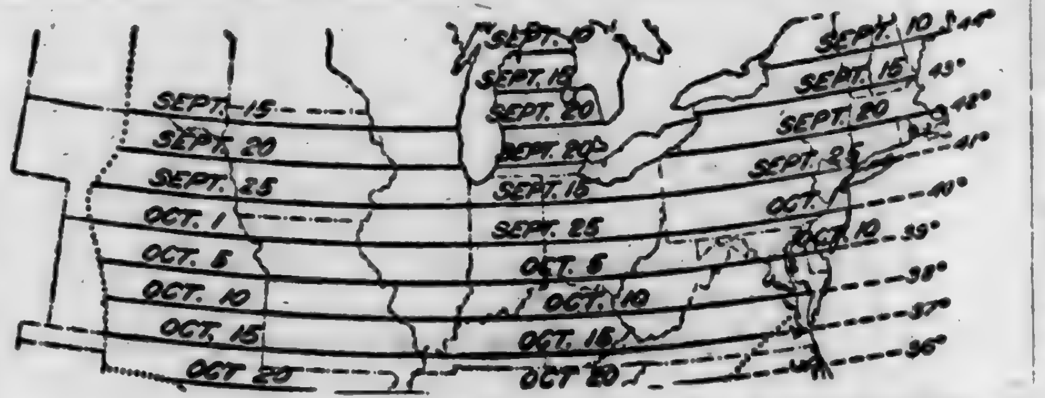
Experiment stations urge you to sow wheat late in order to escape the Hessian fly. Experience has taught you that the best yields are secured from plants that enter the winter with strong, healthy growth.

Solve this dilemma by seeding late and hastening the fall growth by the use of 200 to 400 pounds of fertilizer containing 2 per cent to 3 per cent of available ammonia. Acid phosphate alone will not give the necessary, quick, strong, healthy growth. If the fly does not happen to be present this year, the good effects upon both the wheat and the grass seeded with the wheat, will repay many times the cost of the added ammonia. You cannot afford to be without this fly insurance.

Read Farmers' Bulletin 640 (U. S Department of Agriculture) which says: "The application broadcast of some quick-acting fertilizer containing a large percentage of phosphate, made as soon as general infestation is apparent will cause the plants to tiller more freely and give them sufficient vigor to withstand the winter, and thus increase the number of healthy stems the following spring. . . While it may seem "far fetched" to bring foreward as a preventive measure the enrichments of the soil, a fertile soil will produce plants that will withstand with little injury attacks that will prove disastrous to plants growing on an impoverished or thin soil. This is because a fertile soil will enable an infested plant to tiller freely, and these tillers will have sufficient vitality to withstand the winter and send up head-producing stems in the spring."

If drought prevails, the seeding date should be longer delayed.

Write your own experiment station for additional information.



Plant On or After These Fly-Free Dates (From the U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

PLACE REUNION.

The fifth annual reunion of the Place family was held at the home of Olon L. Dermott two and one-half miles southeast of St. Joe, August 19, 1916.

There were forty-five present to help eat of the bountiful dinner which was served at the noon hour. The table was made in the shape of a letter "H" which stands for happy, and every one seems to be happy too.

After dinner they were called to order by the president, R. F. Place and sang "Near'er My God to Thee." Then Emma Place from Hicksville, read the 117th Psalm and led in prayer. Then they sang "America," followed by solos and recitations by the young folks. Then they had the election of officers. R. F. Place was elected president; James Place, treasurer, and Bertha Dermott, secretary. Then finished by singing the song "God Be With You 'Till we Meet Again," they adjourned.

It will be held next year at the Hicksville Fair grounds, the last of August.

Those from a distance were: Paul Shultz from Binghampton, N. Y., Mr. and Mrs. James Place and daughter, Maxine Rose, from Barberton, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Place and son, Lloyd, and Mrs. Julia Place and Dr. Gordon, of Fort Wayne, John Place and family of Antwerp, James Johnson, and family of Hicksville, Ohio, Frank Place and wife of Hicksville, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. McCormick and family of Huntertown.

Dunkle's window display of Razors, Strop, Safety Razors and Toilet Requisites for shaving is some class.

Cured of Terrible Cough.

Mrs. John Polter of 359 S. Williams street, Paulding, Ohio, says: "I took a severe cold in August which acted like hay fever, I thought the cold would soon wear off so I neglected to doctor for it. It went to my lungs and from that time on I coughed almost continually day and night until I began to spit blood. I lost in weight and looked so bad that people thought I had tuberculosis. I tried Glando Pine. The first bottle helped me. I used three bottles straight, then less frequent until I was cured. I am now perfectly well and firmly believe Glando Pine saved my life. I would not think of being without this wonderful medicine in my home. My throat and catarrhal trouble has also ceased to bother me."

Glando Pine can be secured at drug stores. Accept no substitute. For sale by All Druggists.

TWELVE THINGS TO REMEMBER

1. The Value of Time.
2. The Pleasure of Working.
3. The Worth of Character.
4. The Wisdom of Economy.
5. The Power of Kindness.
6. The Virtue of Patience.
7. The Improvement of Talent.
8. The Success of Perseverance.
9. The Influence of Example.
10. The Obligation of Duty.
11. The Dignity of Simplicity.
12. The Joy of Originating.

BASEBALL AS KNOWN TODAY WAS INVENTED BY ORIOLES

John McGraw, Hugh Jennings and Other Members of Famous Team Originated "Inside Stuff."

The old Baltimore team of 1894-5, one of the greatest teams ever got together, originators of the new style of ball play, was a galaxy of athletes who were endowed with brains and brawn, and made them count in the game of baseball. With a pitching staff composed of such mediocre hurlers as Hemming, Esper and Hopper, with the old stars who were in the sere and yellow, such as Tony Mullane, "Kid" Gleason and "Dumpling" McMahon, the team won three pennants. Later it added Arlie Pond and Jimmy McJames. All these hurlers made records in games won owing to the brilliancy of the team behind them.

A most peculiar fact about the famous Baltimores of 1894-5 was that they were all at one time or another battery men. Johnny McGraw began his career on the diamond as a pitcher, and was credited with being very tricky, but a fierce kicker. Hugh Jennings was no false alarm as a catcher, and his friends declare that he made a mistake when he switched for an infield position. "Wee Willie" Keeler was a left-handed hurler, but lacked weight for pitching, but seemed to have the necessary avoirdupois to hit a ball as hard as the best. The noted Ed Hanlon, manager of the team, used to pitch before taking to the outfield.

John McGraw.

Then there was Joe Kelley of the Torontos. When Joe was a full-fledged Oriole he played the outfield, but Mr. Kelley won considerable fame as a hurler of curves and otherwise. Even "Big Dan" Brouthers began his baseball career as a pitcher, but that was away back. Reitz, the second baseman, also Infield F. Bonner, were good catchers, and spent part of their minor league days behind the bat, and the famous Walter (Steve) Brodie was a clever backstopper at one time. So every player on that famous old team won his spurs either as a pitcher of curves or as a receiver of them.

Four of the famous squad are now four of the greatest managers in the game, and "Kid" Gleason is in line for a big league job as manager, and it's not to be wondered at that the Baltimore team of those days won pennants with J. McGraw, Hugh Jennings, Wilbur Robinson, Joe Kelley in its ranks, and Edward Hanlon, the manager of managers, at the helm.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The presidential election of 1916 will take place on Tuesday, November 7, when the qualified voters of each state will cast their ballots for electors equal to the number of senators and representatives in congress.

But no senator nor representative, nor person holding an office of profit or trust under the United States, can be an elector.

The whole number of electors is 531.

At the beginning of our government most of the electors were chosen by the legislatures of their respective states, the people having no direct participation in their choice; and one state, South Carolina, continued that method till the outbreak of the Civil war.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,..................No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

St. Joe Locals

Campaigne Badges Dunkle's.

Mrs. Glen Wineland and daughter, returned Monday evening, from Columbus, where she had been the guest of Bert Woodcox and family.

A letter from Frank M. Kimes, formerly of Ponca City, Okla, states that he has been elected superintendent of schools at Purcell, Okla. We are pleased to note the advance of Mr. Kimes in the circle of Oklahoma schools

Rev. A. K. Mumma and family are enjoying another vacation granted them by the church. They are visiting with friends at Hoagland and other points in the state where he had other charges.

Dale Widney is building a fine chicken house. He is entering into the poultry business quite extensively and he is in need of a large house for winter as he has several hundred chicks to care for.

LeRoy McMillan is making some very noticable and substantial improvements on his farm buildings in the way of painting and by putting in a wall under his residence. Roy has made other repairs that adds to the convenience of his buildings.

Crates S. Johnston of Columbus, Ohio, was the guest of Sol Carney and relatives here Monday. Mr. Barney accompanied him home for a week. Mr. Johnston will leave for Pittsburgh where he has accepted a position as general secretary of the Fordward Movement of the M. P. church.

Tuesday evening about 9:00 o'clock, Chas. W. Widney, living west of Concord, was stricken with paralysis rendering him unconscious in a short time. He and his family were sitting about the table reading in the evening, enjoying themselves in conversation and shortly upon retiring, he was stricken. He began vomiting and soon he was unconscious. Chas. had been in fairly good health and his illness was a shock to the community, as he was seen in St. Joe the same day and was feeling fine. He will probably not recover as his condition is very serious.

$17.20

Kansas City and Return
VIA
WABASH

Tickets on sale August 27 and 28, good returning until September 9th.

Successful Demonstrati'n

The Mogul 8-16 tractor demonstration as billed for last Saturday was made in the C. Curie field south of town last Saturday afternoon. A good sized crowd witnessed the machine in operation. The tractor seems to be the solution for: Making farm work easier, doing more work in the same time now required; cutting down operating expenses; doing better work under adverse circumstances, etc. The demonstration was a practical one in every detail showing how simple it was to operate. The tractor takes the place of six horses on the farm at a cost of $1.20 per day of 10 hours. The tractor is used in every part of the farm work and can be made use of more than any other piece of machinery on the farm. Mr. Curie has disposed of the demonstrator to Elias Kline and several others in this territory are considering the purchase of one.

Patronize the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

AUGUST

L 908

0274

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

No newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX • ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY AUG. 31 1916 NO. 36

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price were guests of Fort Wayne relatives Sunday.

C. C. Bassett and son Charles, were guests of Martin Merrifield and wife, near Five Corners, Monday.

Postmaster Curie states that the Postoffice will observe Labor Day by closing at the following hours: 11:00 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Rural delivery will be suspended.

COAL We are beginning to get Coal coming our way. We can save you money by taking it from the car.

St. Joe Mills.

The Misses Flossie Sechler, Audra Coburn, Agnes Sechler, and the Messrs. Gray Woodcox, Harry Kinsey and John Reinoehl went to Auburn, Monday, to attend the Teachers' Institute.

Mrs. Adolphus Kester, of Butler, came by the way of St. Joe, Monday from a visit with her daughter in Ohio. Mr. Kester motored here to meet her, she having spent the afternoon with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna Dilley. Mrs. Kester was formerly Mrs. Ada Maurer.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	93	$3.24
M. P.	87	5 93
Concord	83
Fairview	21	1.20
M. E. Spencer	75	2.77
Lutheran	94	2 65

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c

Frank Benninghoff and wife spent Sunday at Rome City.

A baby son was born Sunday night to Ray Herrick and wife.

Geo. Milliman and wife were Kendallville visitors Thursday.

A. D. Brunson and Carl Bassett were Auburn visitors, Monday.

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

Now is the time to get a Cider Barrel while Dunkle has them.

Susie Sechler spent Saturday night the guest of John Sechler and wife.

Bert Jackson and wife had as Saturday night guests, Hollis Jackson and wife.

Mrs. Chas. Bishop and children, of Garrett, are here the guests of M. T. Bishop and wife.

Guy Dill, of Pierceton, is spending the week here with his sister and husband, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Hog Cholera--Plus--Sal-Vet Equals--Good Hogs. Found in Dunkle's Arithmetic.

Bert Cole and wife, of Hillsdale, Mich., are here visiting the latter's parents, George Wade and wife, east of town.

Miss Myra Coburn came Thursday night from her home in Michigan to spend a few weeks with her sister, Mrs. Fred Hart.

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

Mrs. Hannah Ulm and granddaughter Phylis, returned from a two months stay with the former's brother near Mansfield, Ohio, Monday night.

Mrs. Warner attended the fall opening of Mr. Roe, of Cleveland; Mr. McGree, of Cincinnati; Mr. Asher, of Chicago; and Mr. Allen, of Toledo, at the Anthony Hotel, Tuesday. She will have her hats on display, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The Merchants Advertise to get the people to spend their money. Bankers Do Not.

They advertise to get people to save their money and pays them for saving it.

People must buy the merchants goods.

They should not spend all of their money but heed the Bankers advice and save a part of it.

Are You Saving Any.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

FEEDERS

Get Your Bran and Middlings NOW.

They are advancing and will advance more.

Try a barrell of our salt and ask to see our rock block salt. It is great for cattle.

We are making St. Joe headquarters for all grains. You are always sure of getting the highest market price for whatever kind of grain you bring in.

Come in and pay us a visit. We will always be pleased to see you and you can always expect only the most courteous treatment, at

✱ ✱

St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

On and After August 31st. the Price for Shaving will be raised to 15 cents Straight.

SIGNED, Barbers of St. Joe.

Sheriff's Sale.

No. 4182

In the DeKalb Circuit Court,
State of Indiana.

Savings Loan and Trust Company, of Auburn, Indiana, vs. George C. Treece, Nora E. Treece, commonly known as Delliah E. Treece.

By virtue of an Order of Sale, to me directed and delivered by the Clerk of said Court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the Court House Door, in said County, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of the 9th, day of September, 1916 the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following described premises, viz:

A piece of land fifty-three (53) feet wide at the north-west end and fifty (50) feet at the south-east end off of the piece of land conveyed to said mortgagors this day by Benjamin B. Baltz, the same being in section twenty-eight (28) in Township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, said strip being nine (9) rods and four (4) feet north-west and south-east and containing 17-100 acres more or less, situated in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs, I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises. Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

John P. Hoff,
Sheriff of DeKalb Co.

E. W. Atkinson, Atty.
37—

Legal Notice.

State of Indiana, Co. of De Kalb. ss:

J. M. Beams, vs. Chas. Martin.
To Charles Martin.

Whereas J. M. Beams has filed in this Court his complaint, affidavit and bond for attachment of certain property alleged to belong to you, and also that you are a non-resident of the State of Indiana. You are therefore notified that said cause has been set for hearing on the 13th., day of Sept., 1916, and that unless you appear at that time and answer his complaint, said cause will be heard in your absence, and an order made for the sale of the said property.

L. O. Wade,
Justice of the Peace,
37— Spencer Township.

Personal Items

Mrs. George Price, of Evanston, Ill., is here the guest of Jacob Sechler's.

A son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Koeppe, north of town, on the 25th. Mrs. Koeppe will better be known as Nora Sherer to our readers.

Dr. and Mrs. M. E. Klingler and the latter's mother Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Elmer Richards and son Stacy, A. Bilger and family and Mrs. M. Fletcher came over from Garrett Wednesday eve with well filled picnic baskets and enjoyed a very pleasant picnic supper with Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Thornton.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Perry had as Friday guests, Mrs. Delia Wade, of Petosky, Mich., Mrs. Nettie Abel and daughter, Gladys, of near Newville, Mrs. Bessie Lake of Ft. Wayne, Ella Wilmot and wife, Mesdames Amanda Shafer, Mary Donley, Anna Abel, Leona Mason and daughter and Opal Poper and two children.

Supt. of Schools

F. L. SMITH
of Harlan

The above is a likeness of F. L. Smith of Harlan, who has been secured by Trustee Hathaway to superintend the schools at this place. He comes to us as a man of considerable experience in school work and a most successful year is predicted for him.

There Are Trades That Cure As Well as Some That Kill

A great deal is written about trades that kill—for instance lead poisoning in the potteries, "phossy jaw" in the match factories, and so forth—but few people are aware that there are many trades which are medically recommended by the profession on hygienic grounds.

Thus, men who lay asphalt in the streets rarely suffer from a day's illness, while those employed in places where a large amount of electricity is generated enjoy a surprising abundance of vitality.

Workers in salt mines enjoy almost complete immunity from rheumatism.

The healthiest occupation for all is said to be that in the American petroleum works. Here the men never suffer from sore throats, diphtheria, quinsy, or kindred ailments. Indeed, petroleum fumes are so good for the throat that it is quite common for sufferers from throat affections to "take the fumes," just as people "take the waters" at Harrogate or Bath.

A well-known tenor who was in danger of losing his voice once took on a job in one of the petroleum refining rooms as an ordinary employee, with the result that he was soon able to resume his work on the concert platform.

Which reminds us that singing is excellent for consumption. Sometimes it assists as a cure, but it is nearly always effective as a preventive.—Answers.

Now They're Sorry.

Harvard students no longer use that hackneyed phrase, "I beg your pardon." The new idea is "I'm sorry." Harvard men dread being answered, preferring to do all the talking themselves. For that reason nowadays when they step on the hat of an untutored Bostonese in the course of their gambols they invariably admit that they are sorry and let it drop right there. "I'm sorry," comes from England via France via Chicago, which learned it from New York.

Jumpers for Girls.

Little girls are wearing jumpers for morning play hours. They are cut as a one-piece frock, except the bottom which is planned to gather up into bloomers. These jumpers may be prettily trimmed and they save petticoats.

European Paper Excelled.

American experts have perfected the highest grade of photographic paper, which formerly was imported from Europe.

Harold Watkins of Hamilton was in town Saturday.

James Hamilton and Clayton Hathaway are among the sick.

Mr. E. S. Jones, of Detroit, was a guest of his brother C. H. at this place last week a few days.

Mrs. Harriett Bills left Saturday noon for Auburn where she will take up work for an indefinite time.

Mrs. Alice Lewis of Auburn, attended the funeral of Mr. Charles Widney and remained over Sunday to visit relatives.

Chicken Pie Supper in the basement of the Lutheran church Saturday evening, September 9, from 4:30 to 7:00 o'clock by the Ladies Aid Society. A parcel post sale will be held in connection with the supper. Come.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Reasoner, of Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Nick Funk and children were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reasoner.

Miss DeVeta Bayman was brot home from the hospital at Wayne, Monday. The News is pleased to report her speedy recovery and hope she will soon be able to be about.

Art Weimer, wife and three children, Carl Weimer, wife and Miss Kathren Brown of Auburn, and W. E. Peterson and wife of St. Joe were entertained at dinner Sunday in the home of O. E. Ginther and wife.

Mrs. Emma Slantz, of South Haven, Mich., spent the past week with her mother, Mrs. Samantha Hull, at Auburn and her brother, J. C. Hull at St. Joe, besides other relatives. Mrs. Hull accompanied her here and they returned to Auburn Sunday.

Attend Auburn Meeting

Among those from here who attended the DeKalb County Churches of Christ which was held in Eckhart Park, at Auburn, Saturday and Sunday were: Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, Frank Scholes and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Perry, Mrs. Delia Wade, Mrs. Leona Mason and daughter, Mary Kimes, Mrs. Belle Ridgeway, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch, Mrs. Anna Koch, Mrs. J. K. Skilling, Mrs. Anna Baker, Frank Johnston and wife, Jasper Snyder and family, Saxe Hadsell and family, Mrs. Elma Brown, Mesdames Amanda Coburn, Emma Abel, Mary Meek, Rolland Bearss, Sam Kees, C. C. Bassett, J. C. F. Abel, Wm. Hamilton and P. A. Shurts. The principal speaker was Grant W. Speers of Toledo, who gave some very fine sermons. The music was inspiring and a large crowd was in attendance not only from all over the county but from outside as well. It was decided to hold the meeting in the same place next year if the park could be secured and perhaps make it a permanent meeting place.

The Sechlers Hold Reunion

The twenty-sixth annual reunion of the Sechler family was held at the home of Mrs. Harriet Sechler at Orangeville, Saturday August 26. At the noon hour a bounteous dinner was served after which a short program was rendered followed by the election of officers.

President—Jacob Sechler.
Vice President—Henry Sechler.
Secretary—Herbert Curie.
Treasurer—John Sechler.

Ice cream and cake were served at this time after which all departed for their homes. The reunion will be held at the home of Miss Susan Sechler of St. Joe another year. There were sixty-one relatives present and four visitors. No deaths occurred during the past year. There has been one birth and two marriages.

Daily Jots

Send in your news items.

O. H. Widney of Auburn, was a guest of H. M. Widney and family Sunday.

The editor is in receipt of a letter from D. W. Carson stating that he is feeling fine and will soon be able to return to work.

We have in our possession a purse containing some money. Owner can have same by calling at this office and describing property.

Leonard Shaffer swallowed a penny last Sunday morning and caused some little excitement at the M. P. Sunday School. He is all O. K. at the present.

Mrs. Addie Patterson was hostess to the W. C. T. U. Friday afternoon. The opening song was "Woman's Cause Shall Win." The topic was "Franchise." Mrs. Emma Bishop led the devotional by reading Psalms 148. Mrs. Jennie Sechler offered prayer. Mrs. Patterson read a letter addressed to the ladies of the Union from her daughter at Colorado Springs. She told among other good things that she had registered a few days before and was now able to cast her first ballot in November. Mrs. Patterson also read some sketches from the Colorado Springs newspapers concerning the National Womens Party Conference held at that city August 10-12, which were very interesting also. Mrs. Sechler followed by reading a leaflet "Strongest argument for Equal Suffrage." A "Quiz" was given by Mesdames Cora Price and Mary Buchanan. Some common questions on Suffrage were answered by Miss Flossie Sechler in an article read by her. "The Wife's Support" was a leaflet read by Mrs. Ada Bassett. One verse of "Blest be the Tie" was sung after which several prayers were offered for the speedy recovery of the president of the local organization, Mrs. Lillian Buckingham, who submitted to an operation at the St. Joseph hospital on August 23. Roll call followed with responses. The hostess served dainty refreshments.

What J. N. George of St. Joe has to say about cream separators this week.

In the last ten or fifteen years there have been dozens of cream separators come on the market which claimed to be "world beaters." But they couldn't make good in the hands of the users and one by one they dropped out of sight.

Their owners were willing to take a risk and they lost. If you buy a cream separator from us you run no risk of dissatisfaction or loss.

The De Laval is tested and time proved

Why experiment? What's the use of taking chances with a machine you don't know much about, or an inferior machine, when you know that a De Laval is recognized everywhere as the "World's Standard."

More than thirty-five years of experiment and experience have made the De Laval pre-eminently the best machine on the market for the separation of cream.

If you have no separator now, or an inferior one, we can sell you a De Laval on such terms that it will pay for itself while you are using it.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

AUGUST

L 908

0275

INDIANA SOLDIERS MARCH IN HOT SUN

PRACTICE HIKE THROUGH LANES OF MOSQUITOES, GNATS, FLIES AND CREEPING THINGS.

NOT A TROOPER FALLS OUT

Men Travel With the Regularity of a Ticking Clock, With Ten Minutes' Rest in an Hour—Road Mud and Dust.

Mercedes, Tex.—The First Indiana made the first of the practice marches that are the last thing in fitting soldiers for fighting, and the significance of it is that the First, as well as other Indiana troops, is being prepared for anything that may happen. Of course, they cannot be sent into Mexico until the president signs the draft bill, but they can do guard duty along the American side of the Rio Grande, and that duty already has begun. The practice march of the First regiment was in the line of guard duty.

The bugles turned out the First Indiana at sunrise, and it was not long until they were marching away for Progreso. It required some time to get the men and horses across Llano Grande lake, but when that was accomplished they went on, with Colonel Leslie R. Naftzger at their head. I could not help thinking of the last time I saw Colonel Naftzger leading a march. It was at French Lick Springs, and he led the grand march at the Pythian Brigadier ball. On that occasion Solomon in all his glory had nothing on Colonel Naftzger in the way of raiment, flashing gold braid and glittering stars on a uniform that fitted tight, and against the leg of which clanked a saber, on which the electric lights played hide and seek.

Now he is an erect brown figure, with a bronzed face; no clanking saber, no flashing gold braid, no glittering stars. At his side, also on horseback, rode Lieut. Col. J. J. Toffey, Jr. If his friends at the University club at Indianapolis could have seen him this morning, they would do no more good this day. Behind them long rows of men in khaki, rifles on shoulders and ammunition belts filled, with heads erect, shoulders squared, eyes to the front, marching with the regularity of the ticking of a clock. The slouching gait of Fort Harrison was gone. They resembled soldiers. They were ready for any emergency. The march was a long one. Fifty minutes of marching, ten minutes of rest. A long rest at noon and rations served just as if they were in the field—hard tack, cold potatoes, no jam, no pie, no lemonade, water from the canteen and coffee that the gods might envy, that is, if the gods ever drank coffee. It was a fearfully hot day.

Even the jackdaws, hopping along the road, seemed faint from the sun, but not a man fell out of ranks and not a soldier weakened. In some places the road, shaded by trees, was a mudhole. In other places, it was a pile of dust. There were germs in the mudholes and bacilli in the dust. Busy, curious and thirsty flies swarmed about the soldiers. Vicious little gnats clouded over them. Blood-extracting mosquitoes attacked them. But on they marched, over highways intended for aeroplanes only. The trees were lean and forlorn; here and there were crimson blotches and flowers from which there was no perfume; rank-smelling grass, rattlesnakes hidden in deep thickets, where men with murderous hearts also might be lurking; where beetles and centipedes and crawling things live.

Lots of Rain in Texas.

The author of the atrocity that it never rains in Texas is an unmitigated falsifier and the truth is not in him. The Indiana troops have been in Texas 42 days and for 38 of those days the rain fell on them. In addition to the rainstorms, the Hoosiers have been lashed by the tail of a hurricane that is a part of Texas life, and it will be good news to the home folk to know that none of the Indiana soldiers got even so much as a scratch.

In the 42 days the Indiana troops have been here they have passed through all the vicissitudes of war except being sick on an army transport or engaged in an actual battle.

Little Sickness in Camp.

Brig. Gen. E. M. Lewis, commanding general of the Llano Grande camp, was well pleased when report was made to him that the sick list amounted to about one sick soldier in every 1,000 troops. This referred only to Indiana. It did not mean, however, that there are no sick at the camp, because that is not true. The one sick soldier in 1,000 troops meant that the soldiers' sickness was of such a character that if they were at home they would be under a doctor's care.

There are a large number of soldiers in the camp suffering from minor complaints, overeating, drinking too much cold stuff, heat sickness and some who brought their sickness with them. On the day the report was made to General Lewis there were three sick in the Indiana field artillery, and Captain Thompson said one of them would be on duty in a day or two. In the First regiment Major Foxworthy, chief surgeon, reported no one seriously sick. In the Second regiment Colonel Coulter reported two of his men as serious but not dangerous. In the Third regiment Col. Aubrey Kuhlman, after consulting with Major Humphries, medical officer, reported none of his men seriously sick. The same ratio kept up in the signal corps and in the two ambulance companies.

There is no guess work about this; these are the official reports for the war department. "It don't look as if this was such a camp of sickness," was the only comment the commanding general would make.

Y. M. C. A. Building Is Popular.

"The folk back home cannot realize the value of the Y. M. C. A. down here," Lieut. Col. E. E. Branch of the Second, declared. "Last Sunday I watched the crowds going in and out of the place and I visited it several times myself. On that day more than 250 letters were written by soldiers to their homes in that building alone, and I saw a picture there that affected me greatly," continued the lieutenant colonel.

"A choir of soldiers was practicing in one end of the room and a crowd of soldiers was at the other end listening to them. The director said at the conclusion of one of the songs, 'That was very well done, but we can improve on it. If we had someone to play the organ, we could get along much nicer. Is there any of you who can play the organ?' and he turned to the crowd at the other end of the room. A young fellow, whose clothes showed hard wear and whose face was covered with a two-weeks' beard, came forward and said he could play. He sat down to the organ and played the hymns in a way I have never heard better in church and let me tell you," and the colonel's voice had a little catch in it, "that picture of those boys so far away from home singing hymns accompanied by that unkempt organist is one that I never shall forget."

Real Neighborly.

The First Indiana and the Third Minnesota are getting neighborly in a true small town fashion. One is directly across the road from the other. Minnesota says that Indiana officers make too much noise in their bath after taps. Indiana insists stoutly that the entire Minnesota regiment makes too much noise after taps. Minnesota asserts Indiana officers' mess shack is in the way. Indiana asserts that Minnesota cooks awaken Indiana officers at 8:30 a. m. with their alarm clocks and wood chopping. At present compliments are being exchanged back and forth, after a true military fashion, and there has been no actual conflict. That is expected to come later.

Battery Has Vaudeville Team.

Battery A has a vaudeville team of its own and it has a vodivil (remember vodivil is for Battery A) that is just about as good as you can see at an Indianapolis theater. From the stage the announcement was made that Battery A challenges the world 'n' boxing, barring Jack Dillon and Jess Willard, and when it comes to wrestling the bars are down for all comers. "J. Sipe of Indianapolis sent us a set of boxing gloves," said Capt. Gavin L. Payne, "and Sol Meyer sent us a dozen baseballs. We were mighty glad to know that our friends back home are not forgetting us."

Strike Short-Lived.

There was a strike at Llano Grande the other day. A lot of the Mexican laborers struck on Bill McIlwaine, the boss teamster, while he had them unloading lumber cars. Bill thought that 12 men to carry a two-by-four was a little too many. But the strike did not last long. Bill gave them ten minutes to go back to work and all except six soon were juggling boards, with seven minutes to spare. The other six went down the railroad track and off the reservation in double time. They know Bill has a nervous trigger finger.

Landscape Gardener.

Major Driesbach of the First battalion is the landscape gardener of the Third regiment. He is always finding something new in the floral or plant line with which to ornament the company street. A citizen of Mercedes told the major he would give him some flowers. The major sent two big army trucks and when they returned they were filled with about every plant and shrub that grows in this country.

THE SOLDIER'S DIARY.

What do you think of this for baseball? The team from the Third regiment defeated the team from the Second regiment by a score of 26 to 3.

Cook Wheeler of Company L, Second regiment, is recovering in the field hospital from a strained leg and the Mt. Vernon men are hoping he will be out to cook the Sunday dinner. Company L boasts that it has the best Sunday dinners in the Second regiment.

Paul Bailey of Indianapolis, with the Second regiment hospital staff, lost one-tenth of his temper when a soldier came to the infirmary and told him came to the infirmary and told him corns trimmed.

Capt. Neville Powell of the Second regiment machine gun company returned from Harlingen, and the new machine guns will arrive immediately. One-fourth of the company now has had instruction by regulars at Harlingen.

COMBINED DAIRY AND HORSE BARN

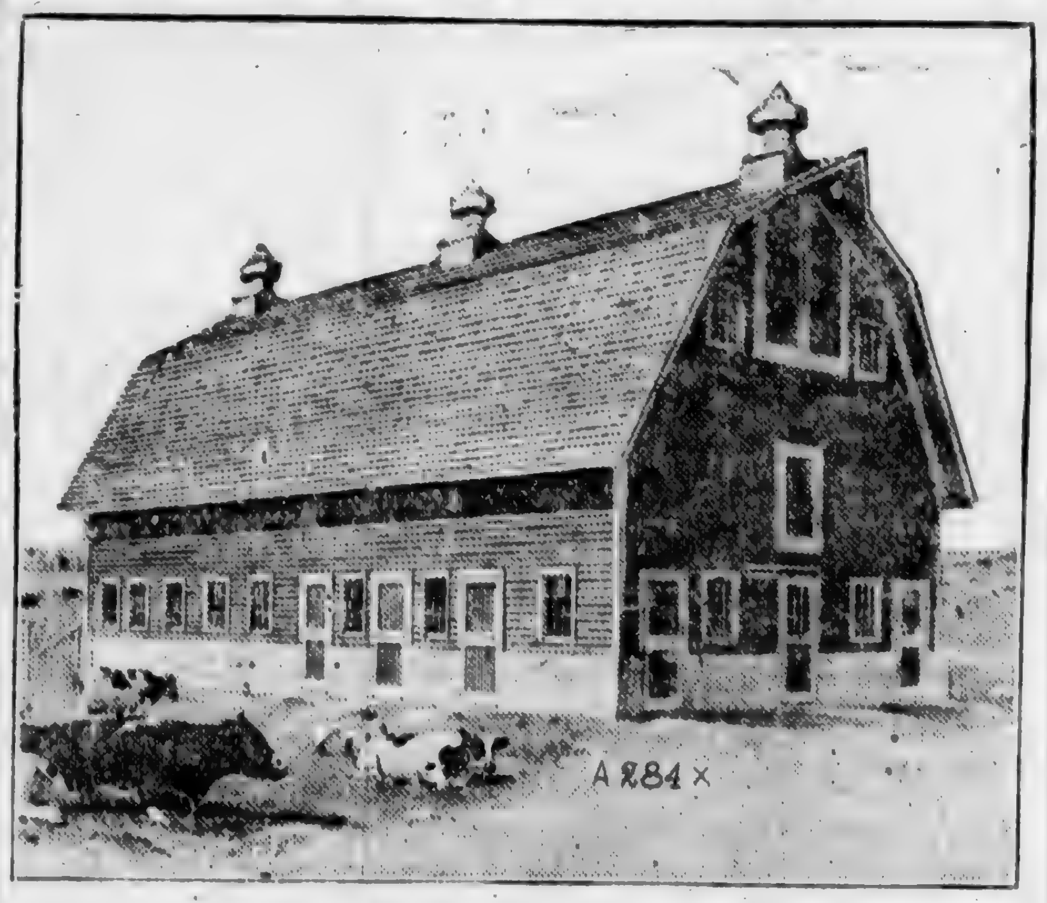
Such a Building Is a Valuable Part of Most Farms of Moderate Size.

LIGHT AND AIR ESSENTIAL

Special Provision Must Be Made for Feeding and for Cleaning Out the Litter and Storage Capacity Should Be Large.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

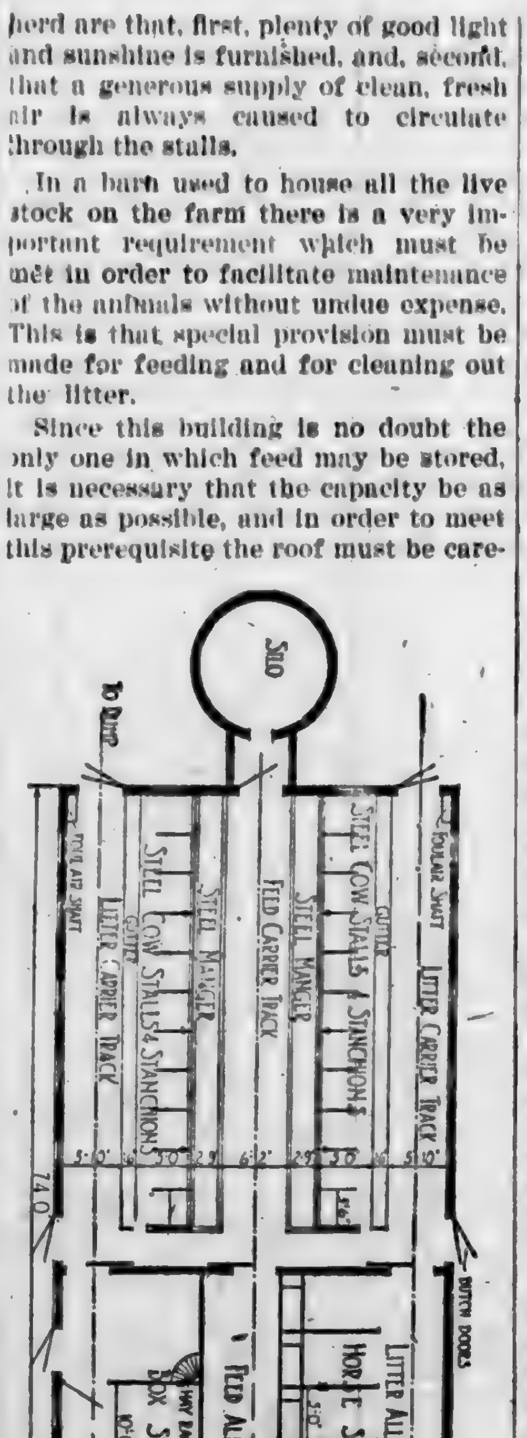


Horse Barn and Dairy Combined.

A barn which will accommodate both cows and horses is a valuable part of most moderate sized farms. It seldom pays to construct the large number of buildings which will separate the dairy herd and the beef herd from the horses unless the farm is quite large and each building may be of fairly generous dimensions. In case one barn is used for all purposes, there must be arrangements made whereby the advantages of separate housing for the stock may be realized as fully as possible in that part of the barn where the stock is kept. The essential necessities to maintain a healthy condition of the herd are that, first, plenty of good light and sunshine is furnished, and, second, that a generous supply of clean, fresh air is always caused to circulate through the stalls.

In a barn used to house all the live stock on the farm there is a very important requirement which must be met in order to facilitate maintenance of the animals without undue expense. This is that special provision must be made for feeding and for cleaning out the litter.

Since this building is no doubt the only one in which feed may be stored, it is necessary that the capacity be as large as possible, and in order to meet this prerequisite the roof must be carefully designed to include a maximum area in cross section. Cross braces are bothersome in filling the mow and they reduce the amount of material which the barn will hold unless care is taken to fill in around them compactly. The best roof, then, a self-supporting roof, usually of the gambrel type. Farmers who become accustomed to feeding their cattle on ensilage and have determined the proper ration to use for each type of cow are generally won over to this method of feeding. They will require a silo in connection with their barn and will thus be able to store a great deal of good feed in a comparatively small space.



Floor Plan.

A size of barn design for use as both a dairy and a horse barn is shown in the accompanying illustration. This design is found to be very convenient on the average size farm requiring this type of barn. The width is 36 feet and the length is 74 feet. The plan is intended to represent a barn capable of accommodating 22 cows and six horses in the standing stalls. In addition there are three box stalls which may be used for any kind of live stock, since they are separated from the rest of the barn and may be entered from any side of the building. The box stalls are very large and well lighted and each has a hay rack built into one corner of the wall next to the feed alley. The horse stalls are arranged along the opposite side of the building from the box stalls and are provided with strong 2 by 8 plank partitions built with air spaces between the planks to facilitate ventilation. The horse stable end of the barn is separated from the cow stable end by a wall in which there are three sliding doors. Four Dutch doors and one sliding door open into the horse stable.

Each cow stall has an iron stall partition separating it from its neighbors on both sides. These partitions take up practically no room and serve a very good purpose in preventing the cows from turning sideways and crowding the smaller animals. These partitions really effect a saving in room because they allow each cow just the right amount of space and, since they are thin, they do not themselves deduct from the available space. Dairymen who have iron stall partitions very seldom care to get along without them afterwards. Two steel mangers run along the sides of the feed alley in the center of the barn. A track is fitted overhead down the center of this alley from the horse stable end of the barn to the silo. This carrier track will prove to be a great help in feeding the stock. Furthermore, a track is placed behind the stalls for a litter carrier. There are two of these extending from one end of the barn, along each side, to the other end and on out to the dump. There is no reason why this barn cannot be kept clean and sanitary at all times and the saving in labor made possible by these track carriers for the manure, and also those for the feed, will pay the cost of the equipment in a very short time.

The construction of this barn is different from that of most barns in that the foundation wall extends up four feet above the ground line. The wall is of concrete started two and one-half feet below grade with wide footings to ensure against settling or cracking. In fact, it might be said that the whole substructure of this barn is made in one large piece, since the concrete floor and foundation wall are poured together. This method of construction is very practical for it not only furnishes an exceptionally solid base upon which to set the wooden superstructure, but it assists in reducing the labor of cleaning the barn due to the smooth, hard floor surface.

The framework of the building is plank frame construction starting from the top of the wall. Plank frame truss work extends from the top of the wall to the peak of the roof. This frame is solid, allows a clear mow space without projecting cross-tile members, and when set upon the concrete wall and secured with anchor bolts will constitute a skeleton for the barn which will insure long life and low depreciation.

The ventilating system consists of four foul-air shafts, which reach from near the floor to the metal ventilators on the peak. These four-air shafts are protected by the corners of the building next to the stable doors. There are three ventilators on the roof, the two end ventilators being used especially to take care of the foul air from the shafts, and the ventilator at the center is for the hay mow only. Intake pipes are provided in the walls in such a way as to take the air in from just above the concrete wall and deliver it into the stable near the ceiling. This ventilating system is particularly efficient and forms a further important device for maintaining sanitary conditions in the barn.

A modern barn structure of the type discussed in the previous paragraphs is an investment which no owner of a moderate sized farm will regret. It will yield him long service with little or no expense of repairs and in its lifetime will more than pay for itself in the labor saved in the prevention of sickness among the live stock made possible by the ideal conditions under which they may be placed.

MAKING RAPID STRIDES

Canada Improving in Every Way—Agriculturally, Commercially and Financially.

The reports coming to hand every day from all branches of industry in Canada speak highly of the constructive ability of that country.

Recently the managing directors of the Canadian Credit Men's Association gave out the statement that business in Western Canada was good. In every branch it is better than in 1913, and everyone will remember that in that year business was excellent. He says:

"The beauty of it is the way in which payments are coming in. Merchants all over the West are taking their cash discounts. Such a transformation I never saw.

"From the records in the office I knew it was getting better. We clear here every retail merchant in the country every three months, and we are therefore in the closest touch and have intimate knowledge of the way trade is going and how payments are being made. Conditions at the present moment are better than I had dreamed it was possible that they should be.

"The statements which we are receiving with reference to the standing of country merchants indicates that there will be very few failures this fall. It is quite remarkable. Men who have been behind for years and in the hole are actually paying spot cash for everything, and taking their cash discounts. Banks and loan companies this fall will have more money than they know what to do with.

"This is about the condition of trade, and I am glad to say there is no exaggeration in what I have said. The business of the prairie provinces is in splendid condition."

Crop reports are also good. From all parts comes the word that the crop conditions were never better, and the situation at the time of writing is that there will be fully as great a yield as in 1915, when the average of wheat over the entire country was upwards of 30 bushels per acre. The harvest therefore will be a heavy one—and, following the magnificent harvest of last year, the farmers of Western Canada will all be in splendid shape. Old indebtednesses, much of which followed them from their old homes, are being wiped out, improvements are now being planned, and additional acres added to their present holdings.

During the past year there was a large increase in the land sales both by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern land companies, as well as by private individuals. A great many of the purchases were made by farmers who thus secured adjoining quarters or halves, the best evidence probably that could be had of the value of Western Canada land when those who know the country best are adding to their holdings. A number of outsiders have also been purchasers, but very little land has changed hands for speculative purposes.

An evidence of the prosperity of the country is found in the fact that such a large number of farmers are purchasing automobiles.

Alleged hard times in Manitoba have not dampened the ardor of motorists or prospective ones. The automobile license department reported a few days since that there are 1,600 more private owners of cars in the province this year than last. The number of licenses issued this year was 10,400, as against 8,800 last year. At an average cost of $1,000 each the newly purchased cars represent a total outlay of $1,600,000, while the total number of cars in the province are worth approximately $10,000,000. The new cars are of modern types.

Many people, for some unexplained reason, have feared and continue to fear that this country will experience a period of industrial and business dullness after the war. There seems to be no justification for such a speculation.

On the contrary, there are sound reasons for belief in the prediction of Mr. Kingman Nott Robins, vice president of the Farm Mortgage Bankers' Association of America, who, in the Monetary Times, declares that Canada will experience her greatest proportionate development in production immediately after the conclusion of the war. The country will certainly have exceptionally favorable commercial conditions to take advantage of.

There will be the great need of Europe in the work of reconstruction, and along with this, the natural tendency of the allies to trade among themselves, and perhaps special trading privileges. Mr. Robins points out that the greatest development in the United States followed the costly and destructive civil war.

Mr. Robins, in an address before the Bondmen's Club of Chicago, expressed the opinion of a far-thinking mind and the review of an experience of the last of his numerous trips through the Canadian West. When he said he regarded the spirit of the Canadian people, as he found it, the most admirable and encouraging feature of the entire situation. They are facing the sacrifices of war courageously and with calm confidence as to the result, and in similar spirit they face the economic future, confident, but expecting to solve their problems only by dint of hard and intelligent effort.

An important part of Mr. Robins' address, which invites earnest attention, is that in which he refers to the land situation, and when his remarks are quoted they carry with them the impression gained by one who has given the question the careful thought of a man experienced in economic questions, and specially those relating to soil and its production. He is quoted as saying:

"Agricultural Canada was never so prosperous, and immigration of agricultural population both during and after the war seems a logical expectation, finding support in an increasing immigration at present from the United States, in spite of numerous canards spread broadcast throughout the United States to discourage emigration to Canada. The lands of Western Canada, however, as long as they are as at present the most advantageous for the settler of any on the continent, must continue to attract, despite misrepresentation, and on the increase of its agricultural and other primarily productive population depends the economic future of Canada. All other problems are secondary to this, and the large interests of Canada, recognizing this fact, are preparing to secure and hold this population both during and after the war. They are content to let city development and other secondary phases and superstructure follow in natural course. This recognition of the true basis of economic development is an encouraging augury for the future."

"The war has brought the United States and Canada nearer together economically than ever before. The total investment of United States capital in Canada doubtless exceeds $1,000,000,000, of which $300,000,000 has been invested since the war began. Except for Great Britain, Canada is the United States' best customer. Our exports to all of South America in the last three years were less than a third of our exports to Canada in the same period, although Canada has been rigidly reducing her imports since the war began. Even France, a good customer of the United States, bought $70,000,000 less than Canada during 1913, 1914, 1915. And yet Canada's purchasing power is in the first stages of development only. It has been estimated that the United States can support a population of 000,000,000. Using the same basis of calculation in reference to natural resources, Canada can support a population of 400,000,000.

"Canada is potentially the most populous, and, in primary production, at least, the richest unit of the British empire, and it behooves us in the United States to know our Canada."

The social conditions throughout Western Canada are everything that could be desired. Schools have been established in all districts where there may be ten or twelve children of school age, and these are largely maintained by liberal government grants. A fund for this purpose is raised from the revenue derived from the sale of school land, one-eighteenth of all lands being set aside as school lands. All the higher branches of education are cared for, there being high schools at all important centers, and colleges and universities in the principal cities.

The different religious denominations prevail, each having its separate church, and religious services are held in every hamlet and village, and in far-off settlements the pastor finds an attentive congregation. The rural telephone is one of the great modern conveniences that brings the farm home nearer to the market.

It is not saying too much to state that in matters of social importance, in the most remote settlements they carry with them the same influence as is to be found in the most prosperous farming districts of any of the states of the Union.—Advertisement

Both in Danger.

At a certain mill there is a notice on the elevator which reads as follows:

"No one allowed to use this elevator except the man in charge. Anyone doing so will be discharged."

One morning, Billy ——, a rather witty fellow, kas waiting to go up from the second room, when who should step off the elevator alone but the manager.

Billy was stepping on to go up when the manager turned around and said:

"I say, can't you read?"

"Yes," said Billy.

"Well, what does that notice say?" asked the manager.

"By gum, we'll both be sacked if we're catched."

The Rod.

Knicker—Smith says he whipped the stream.

Bocker—But the stream doesn't know it.

The optimist cheers, but the pessimist saves his breath for the purpose of letting out a calamity howl later.

Perfectly Satisfactory.

"Hey, doc!" called a citizen of Grudge to a professional appearing stranger who was passing the house. "Come in and se if you can fix up my brother-in-law. He's having a fit or something."

"But, my dear sir, I am a veterinary surgeon—"

"Aw, that's al right! Didn't you hear me say that this is my brother-in-law?"—Kansas City Star.

"Lickers" Worth While.

"My papa can lick your papa," boasted Johnny, aged six.

"I don't care; my mamma can lick your mamma," came back Jimmy.

"Both of you make me tired," chimed in Sammy. "My papa and my mamma can both lick me, and the worst part of it is they take turns about doin' it." Indianapolis News.

A missing suspender button often leaves a man in suspense.

Many a man has made a fortune by not writing poetry.

AUGUST

L 908

0276

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compcund.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it."—Mrs. E. H. BEAN, 525 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a pure remedy containing the extractive properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, meets the needs of woman's system at this critical period of her life. Try it.

If there is any symptom in your case which puzzles you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable — act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion, improve the complexion, brighten the eyes.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

YOU CAN'T CUT OUT A

Bog Spavin or Thoroughpin

but you can clean them off promptly with

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.

and you work the horse same time. Does not blister or remove the hair. $2.00 per bottle, delivered. Will tell you more if you write. Book 4 M free. ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Varicose Veins, Ruptured Muscles or Ligaments. Enlarged Glands. Wens. Cysts. Allays pain quickly. Price $1 and $2 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Made in the U. S. A. by W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Ingenious Mr. Smith.

When Mr. Smith—your intimate friend Smith—awoke the other morning he was greeted by his wife with this:

"My sweet boy, do you know you came home late last night, and that you talked in your sleep?"

"Great Scott! No, did I?" said Smith badly agitated. "What did I say? Tell me."

"I just couldn't make it all out, but it ended like ante-up-jackpot stake."

"Oh, yes, yes, my dear, I was reciting a little Esperanto that a friend was teaching me. I intended to tell it to you when I came home. It means 'How is my darling girl tonight?'"

Something in His Favor.

"There's one thing I will say for that fellow whose mistakes cause so much trouble."

"What is it?"

"He doesn't claim that his intentions were good, anyhow."—Detroit Free Press.

Blissful Ignorance.

"How much does it cost you to run this yacht, old chap?"

"If I knew I wouldn't do it."—Life.

That Knife-Like Pain

Have you a lame back, aching day and night? Do you feel sharp pains after stooping? Are the kidneys sore? Is their action irregular? Do you have headaches, backaches, rheumatic pains,—feel tired, nervous, all worn-out? Use Doan's Kidney Pills—the medicine recommended by so many people in this locality. Read the experience that follows:

An Ohio Case

A. Dashem, 667 N. Grant St., Wooster, Ohio, says: "I had been given up to die by two doctors. I was too weak to stand alone and the kidney secretions got terribly annoying. I had given up all hope when a friend urged me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. The first box helped me and in twelve days I passed gravel. The awful pains left me and I am in good health today."

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

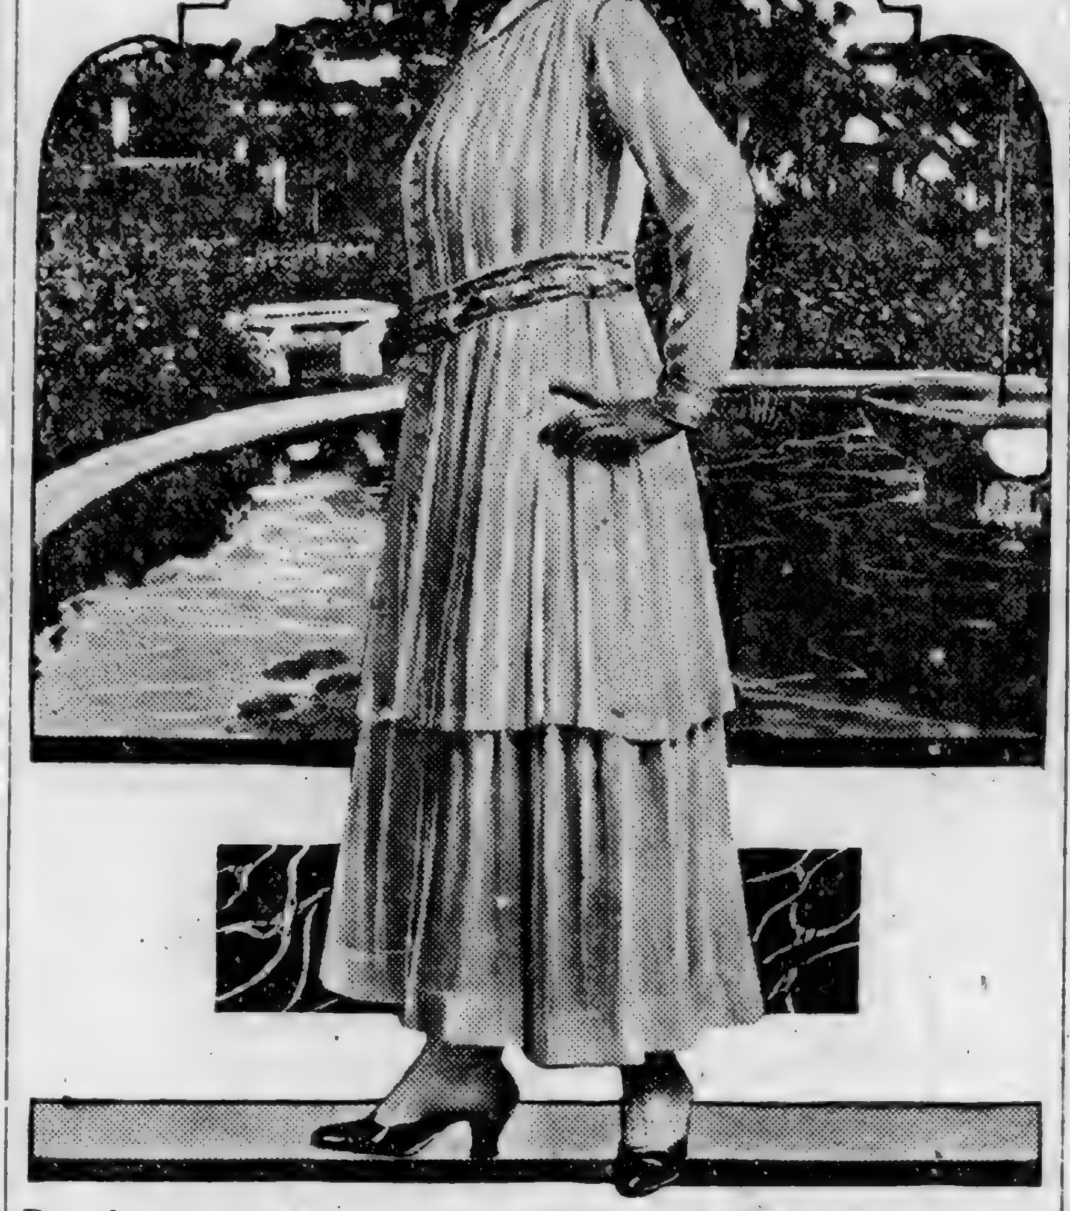
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



Popular Late Summer Suit

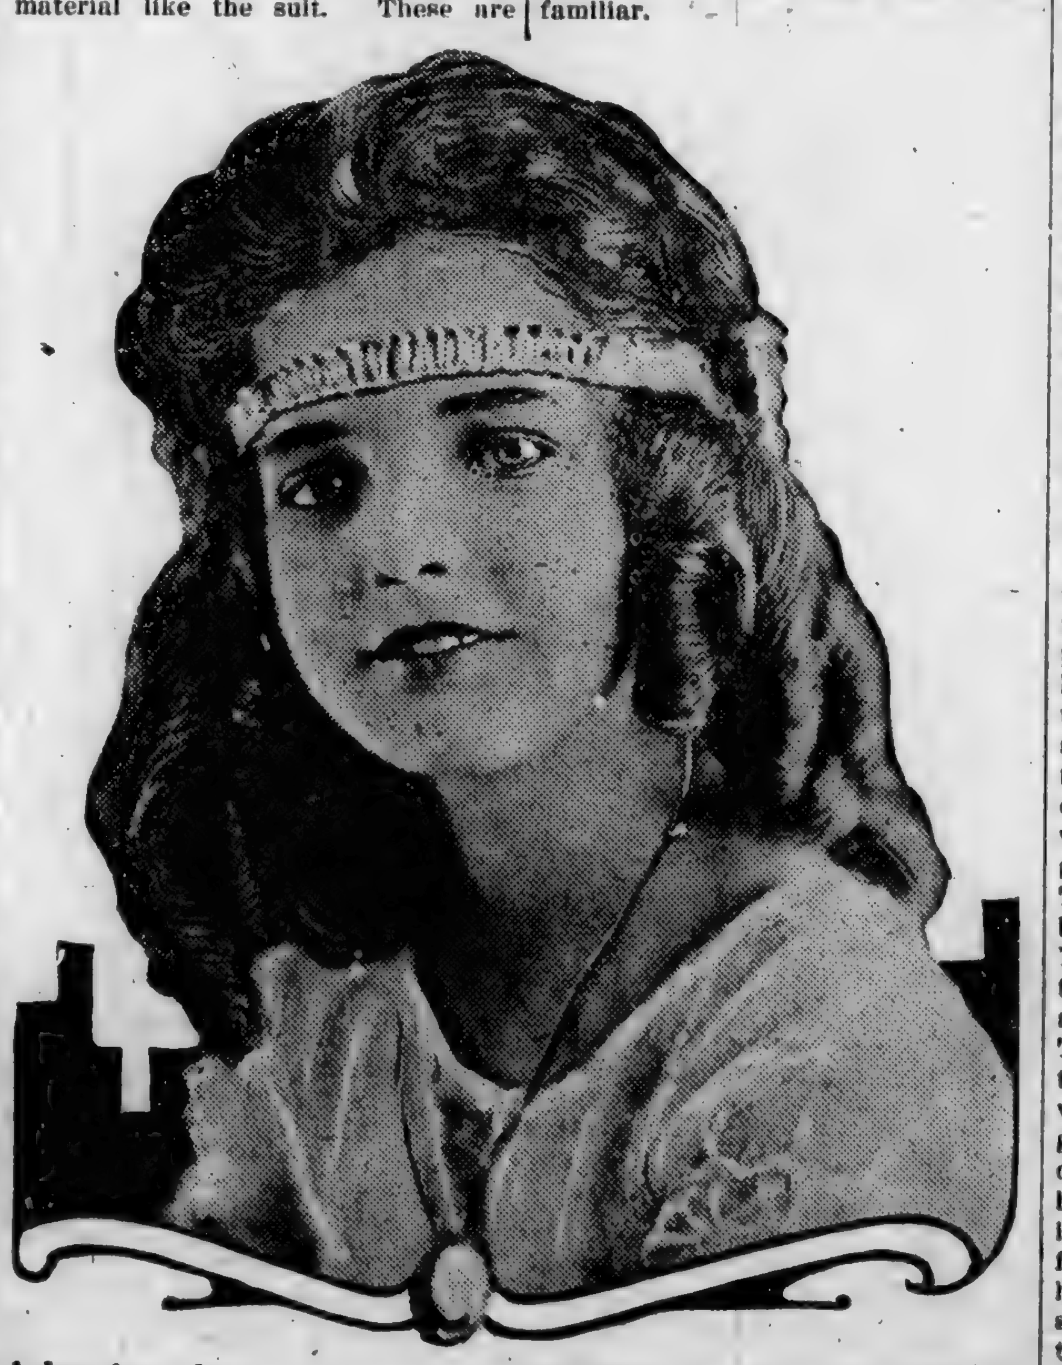
The most popular of late summer suits appears here, and it has been developed in several thin and supple materials. Crepe, bordered with serge and having serge collar and cuffs, chiffon cloth or crepe adorned with soutache braid, jersey, and thin supple silks, all contribute to the different interpretations of this refined design.

It is shown in the picture made of crepe de chine in a soft sulphur shade and trimmed very little with soutache braid in the same color. The plain skirt is plaited in at the belt and the sleeveless coat hangs straight from the shoulders. Both front and back are gathered in to the short epaulettes, that are also decorated with a braided pattern in soutache. An under-bodice of crepe georgette has long plain sleeves finished with a band cuff of material like the suit. These are braided and the bodice matches the suit in color.

As in many late summer suits the belt is loosely adjusted. The coat fastens with small, covered buttons down the front.

For early fall wear the same model is shown made of chiffon cloth banded with serge at the bottom of the coat and skirt, or with velvet or one of the supple plushes. The belt shows a closer adjustment to the figure, and the coat has sleeves of the chiffon cloth. Collar and cuffs are of the heavier material and also the bandings and a straight and short scarf of this fabric, lined with a soft satin in contrasting color, makes a wonderfully effective accessory.

Black-and-white shoes and a black-and-white hat are worn with the gown pictured. They are a good choice with many of the new colors for fall, which include the dahlia shades, purple, taupe and all the castor shades as well as those with which we are more familiar.



Adorning the Heads of Girls

Besides the bouffant and buoyant bows which we have always with us there are several pretty ornaments made of ribbon, for adorning the heads of girls. Among them there are bands, finished with rosettes, for the tiniest of little misses, and others much like them, for older girls. All are made in about the same way but with ribbons varying in width. For the baby girl very narrow ribbons answer for elastic-covered bands which extend across the top of the head and end in rosettes of baby ribbon at each side. Uncovered elastic holds this ornament to place, and it is covered by the hair.

A novelty for little girls is made of soft satin ribbon, about five inches wide. It is bound about the head and has almost the effect of a small cap. It is finished with a rosette bow at the left side. This is a quaint and neat arrangement, especially for the little one with short hair.

In the illustration above a band with rosettes at each side is worn by the little girl of eleven or so, with her party dress. It is of pink satin ribbon a little more than an inch wide, shirred over a flat elastic band, and it extends all around the head. The small flat rosettes at each side may be centered with beads or little cabochons, since this is an adornment for high occasions.

Plain ribbons in light colors have the preference for ornaments of this kind. But for everyday and school wear darker colors and plaids may be depended upon as a safe choice for fall.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPT. 3

PAUL, THE HERO.

LESSON TEXT—II Cor. 11:21-12:10.

GOLDEN TEXT—My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect in weakness.—II Cor. 12:9.

This letter raises interesting questions for research and discussion, such as:

1. What is the difference between Paul's heroism and that of a soldier? 2. Is war essential to the development of heroism? 3. Which courage is higher, moral or physical?

I. Paul, the Hero (11:21-22). To a man of a sensitive nature, craving perfection, sarcasm stirs up the deepest bitterness of the soul. We do not believe Paul primarily desired to refuse these false charges—they were unworthy of him—but the knowledge of his sufferings for the cause of Christ and the truth of the gospel would augment his power to serve the church. For the sake of those whom he had reclaimed from heathenism he was willing to seem to be boasting. Literally he says: "I speak by way of disparagement (of myself) as though we had been weak," yet he adds: "Whereinsoever any is bold, I am bold also." Paul had as much to boast of as any one of his Jewish opponents (v. 21). "Are they Hebrews? (Of the purest blood, of one nation and language?) So am I." Are they Israelites, worshiping only one God? Are they of the seed of Abraham, inheritors of the ministry of the promise and the Messianic hope and the kingdom of God? Are they ministers of the Messiah, seeking to bring all men into his kingdom? "I speak as a fool. I speak as one beside himself. I am more." In labors he was more abundant; he had occupied a larger field with greater results. In stripes above measure—those inflicted by the heathen were not limited to forty blows—besides other beatings referred to in this list. In prisons oft (Acts 16:23). Frequently exposed to death and to the perils of robbers by land and sea (v. 24). "Five times I received forty stripes, save one, from the Jews" (v. 25). "Thrice was I beaten with rods; once was I stoned" (Acts. 14:19). "Thrice I suffered shipwreck," evidently not recorded in Acts, for his shipwreck on the way to Rome was later. "A night and a day in the deep," this not otherwise recorded. "In journeyings often," suffering from the perils of hard travel, often on foot in uncivilized regions. "In perils of water," literally "in rivers." Bridges were rare, and floods sudden and frequent. "In perils of robbers." Every road in Asia Minor then as now was infested with robbers. "In perils of his own countrymen;" "In perils by the Gentiles;" "In perils in the city;" "In perils in the wilderness;" "In perils in the sea" from storms, rocks, pirates; "In perils among false brethren"—Judaising teachers who were self-seeking instead of making the gospel first (Gal. 2:4; II Cor., 11:13). "In weariness and painfulness," literally in labor and travail; "In watchings often;" repeated nights of sleeplessness due to anxiety or pain. "In hunger and thirst, in fastings often," hunger unsatisfied for a long time. "In cold and nakedness;" in the mountain passes badly shod and badly clothed. Besides these things which were without, innumerable other trials such as the care of or anxiety over the churches (vv. 32, 33).

II. God's Sustaining Grace (12:1-10). To Paul God gave one of the greatest tasks over committed to man, viz., the planting of the gospel in heathen lands; founding churches; teaching them the gospel truths of the Lord Jesus. He wrote to these churches two-fifths of the New Testament, thirteen of its twenty-seven books, and this work was accomplished under the greatest difficulty, trials and suffering. To sustain and guide, the Lord gave him "visions and revelations" (v. 1). These revelations came to him from the very beginning of his Christian life and continued in every great crisis. The first was given at his conversion, twenty years before this letter was written, when he saw Jesus in His glory and received his marching orders. Again (vv. 2-4), fourteen years before, or about A. D. 43, when he was in Antioch and first entered upon his foreign missionary work. He obtained his gospel directly from the Lord. Subsequently he had other visions to sustain and guide him.

Teachers ought to study this entire section, beginning at chapter 10. Paul says that as an apostle he did not labor in the fields of others (10:14-15).

He was not much concerned by what his enemies might say.

As to his opinion of them, read chapter 10. Ashamed to boast, yet for their sakes he meets their foolish charges by giving us this record.

Because of these sufferings (v. 10) he takes pleasure in infirmities, reproaches and persecutions; "For when I am weak" (in my own strength) then I am strong through Christ who strengthens me."

He may be a fool in glorying, compelled to as he had been, yet his work had been accompanied by the signs of an apostle, and he was not to be behind the very chiefest, although himself he was nothing.

No Trouble.

"Do you have any trouble keeping servants out where you live?" asked the city man.

"None whatever," replied the commuter.

"You surprise me."

"I thought I would. You see, we can't get any servants in the first place, so of course, we have no trouble keeping them."

Hard to Suit.

Mrs. Instile—I don't want that hat. Nobody wears anything like that now.

The Milliner—Here's a charming little toque.

Mrs. Instile—Take it away. Everybody has one like that.

Getting Even.

"Now, what do you want?" asked the sharp-tempered woman.

"I called to see if I could sell you some bakin' powder, ma'am," said the seedy gentleman with the staggering whiskers.

"Well, you can't sell no bakin' powder here, and I ain't got no time to waste on peddlers, anyway."

"Come to think of it, ma'am," said the seedy gentleman, as he fastened his bag, "I wouldn't care to sell you any powder. This poky little kitchen of yours is so low in the ceilin 'that the bread wouldn't have no chance to rise."

Lake Superior is as large as Ireland.

What is Castoria

CASTORIA is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is Pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. It cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. It relieves Teething Troubles, cures Constipation and Flatulency. It assimilates the Food, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. The children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over 30 years, has born the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but Experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Most Profitable "Ad."

Do you know what was the largest harvest ever reaped from an advertisement?

It was the settlement in Pennsylvania of 100,000 German colonists.

We know that at Germantown, this city, was made the first German settlement in America. We also know that in fifty years double that many thousand Germans came to William Penn's colony.

Furthermore, history tells us that wars and religious persecutions in Germany caused this then unparalleled exodus of men and women.

But what brought them to Pennsylvania and so made of this the German commonwealth? An advertisement written by William Penn himself and distributed among the Germans along the Rhine who had been stricken by a thirty-years' war.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

CLEANSE THE PORES

Of Your Skin and Make It Fresh and Clear by Using Cuticura. Trial Free.

When suffering from pimples, blackheads, redness or roughness, smear the skin with Cuticura Ointment. Then wash off with Cuticura Soap and hot water. These super-creamy emollients do much for the skin because they prevent pore clogging.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Way Out of Difficulty.

"Officer, what is the charge against these two men?" asked the court.

"Disturbing the peace by scuffling."

"Your honor," piped one of the accused. "We wasn't scrappin'. I wuz tellin' him 'bout a fight dat de Rooshans won, an' he sez dat I didn't pronounce de name right. Den I called him a liar, an' den he hit me, an' I hit him back. Dat wuz all, your honor."

"Discharged. But hereafter when you fellows have a dispute about a foreign name delete it. That's the way the censors do, and they never get hit."

GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS WONDER

How they ever got along without Red Cross Ball Blue. This really wonderful blue makes clothes whiter than snow. Get the genuine Red Cross Ball Blue at your grocers.—Adv.

Explained.

Tommy—Why do the ducks dive?

Harp—Guess they must want to liquidate their bills.—Exchange.

MEN AND WOMEN Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness often disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. For good results use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. At druggists. Sample size bottle by Parcel Post, also pamphlet.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents. When writing mention this paper.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S

ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

What She Wanted.

Lydia Virginia was having her fifth birthday prepared for her. Grandma baked her birthday cake and made her a little sample cake. Lydia Virginia on breaking the sample apart exclaimed: "Why, grandma, this is not the kind of a cake I want." Questioned what kind she wanted, she answered: "Why, I want my cake when you cut a piece of it to look like a spotted cat." Her grandma baked a marble cake and when cut Lydia Virginia was delighted, and said: "This is it, grandma; this is the kind of a cake I wanted."—Cleveland Leader.

Our work counts for more than our talk.

The man who has no money can't lose it.

Ask for and Get

SKINNER'S

THE HIGHEST QUALITY

MACARONI

36 Page Recipe Book Free

SKINNER MFG. CO., OMAHA, U.S.A.

LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

Mail Us Your

KODAK

Films for Finishing

We pay return postage.

M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE

NEW HOME

NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME

Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts

THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS.

Buy materials that last

Certain-teed

Roofing

Fully guaranteed —best responsibility

For sale by dealers everywhere at reasonable prices

General Roofing Manufacturing Company

World's largest manufacturers of Roofing and Building Papers

New York City Chicago Philadelphia St. Louis Boston Cleveland Pittsburgh Detroit San Francisco Cincinnati New Orleans Los Angeles Minneapolis Kansas City Seattle Indianapolis Atlanta Richmond Houston London Sydney

We sell Certain-teed and Metal Roofing

Schaab Roofing & Supply Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

WANTED 30,000 MEN

For Harvest Work Western Canada

Immense crops; wages $3.00 per day and board. Cheap railway rates from boundary points. Employment bureaus at Winnipeg, Regina, North Portal, Saskatoon, Fort Frances, Kingsgate, B. C., Coutts and Calgary, Alberta.

No Conscription—

Absolutely No Military Interference

For all particulars apply to

W. S. Nethery, Room 82, Interurban Sta. Bldg., Columbus, O.; C. W. Aird, 215 Traction-Terminal Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Canadian Government Agents

AUGUST

L 908

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - -	$1.00
Six Months, - - -	.50
Three Months, - - -	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Charley Webster was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Kate Fusselman, Sunday.

Mr. Welker and wife, of Ney, Ohio, were Sunday guests of J. H. Benner and family.

Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Whitherst were Thursday guests of Mrs. Katherine Nicholes.

Albert Marrow and family, of near Butler, were Sunday guests of Forest Marrow and wife.

Mr. Reece and wife, of Milford, and their daughter, Mrs. Emma Marrow, motored to Butler, Wednesday, and were the guests of Mr. Bowman and wife, whose little daughter is very ill.

Newville has surely been a dry town lately so far as the weather is concerned but not otherwise. Some fellows go to Garrett and don't fail to bring back the trade mark of that city with them.

The boys of the National Guards who have parents here, write home that they have a number of prisoners in the guard house, unfortunately they are the Militia boys who have disobeyed discipline or tried to desert the camp. The Newville boys at Camp Willis seems to be trying to make the best of everything. We have a son there who writes cheerful letters of camp life but says they know not what tomorrow's orders may be.

Infantile Paralysis!

The germ that causes the disease enters the body through the nose and mouth. Mothers should do all within their power to save the child from the serious ailments of childhood. This can best be done by keeping the mouth, nose and throat in a clean and healthy condition. Glando Gargle is antiseptic and hydroscoptic, cleansing and healing to the mucous membrane.

It is a splendid preventative for sore mouth in babies, and is highly recommended for catarrhal conditions, hay fever and adenoids. Its use two or three times a day may save your child.

Procurable at drug stores or from the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

COLETOWN

Miss Valentine, of Ft. Wayne, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Wm Lenher.

Jim Evans and family are entertaining Mr. Evans's mother, this week.

Beatrice and Oren Murphy are attending camp meeting at Indianapolis, this week.

Mrs. Chas. Coughanour and son Harper, called at W. E. Jacksons', Tuesday evening.

John Bair and family, of Spencerville, visited Sunday with A. E. Miller and family.

Wm Sowers and wife called on A. E. Hart and family, of Hicksville, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. W. E. Jackson and daughter Olive, took dinner Thursday with Mrs. Frank Pierman, of Hicksville.

Notice

Persons who have bought the Schram Glen Fruit Jars, can get lids for same at Kinsey's.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE IND

Extra! Extra!

We have been offered a price over the market value for all the strictly fresh, clean, good size Eggs we can get this week—and to get an extra amount we will pay the highest price ever known this time of the year. Get our price before you sell this week, especially Saturday.

SATURDAY THIS WEEK
We Will Sell

14 lbs. Granulated Sugar....	$1.00
Best Crackers, 4 pounds.....	.25
VanCamps Hominy, large cans, 4 for..............	.25
Van Camps Sauer Kraut, large cans, 4 for..............	.25

Be sure to get our price on Eggs, Saturday.

JONES.

The Big Four Store

Phone 31, St. Joe.

H. M. Widney made a temperance speech at Grabill Friday evening

14 nations are in war at the present time. That comes very near being a world-wide war.

Ira Bone and wife, Will Keelers' and John Betzs' were among the Park visitors, Sunday, from this vicinity.

Marvin Poper sale next Saturday He will move to Jackson, Michigan where he has a position as conductor on either city or out of city traction line.

Walter Kinsey and wife, of Jackson, Mich., are here the guests of Geo. Kinsey and family, until Monday. Bessie of Wayne, and Harry of Angola, are home also.

Mrs. Iona Woodcox and Grace Leighty were at Wayne, Monday, where they met Mrs. Woodcox's father, Wm. Miller, of Montpelier, Ind., who has come to make his home here.

The Rebekah's of St. Joe spent the day Wednesday with Mrs. George Trostel, east of town. She has been in poor health for some time, and has been unable to attend the meetings of the lodge. A pot luck dinner was served.

If your eyes trouble you have them examined by Dr. C. S. Stewart, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, Auburn, Ind. He can tell you whether it is disease or the need of glasses that is causing the trouble.

The Ladies Home and Foreign Missionary of the Lutheran church will meet next Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Frank Sechler at 2 o'clock. The topic is "Home Missions a Healing Force".

W. C. Patterson and wife, Mrs. W. H. Schrock, and S. W. Tustison and wife motored to Hicksville, Monday evening, where Mrs. Tustison attended a party given by the Young Matron's Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hughes. The rest of the party spent the evening with F. A. Patterson and wife.

Mrs. Chas. Widney and daughter Miss Ida, Mrs. Florence Hale, Clarence Widney and O. L Widney and family of Hicksville, spent Tuesday at the home of B. E. Widney and wife. Mesdames Wm. Hamilton and Ross Abel were callers in the afternoon. They spent Wednesday with D. L. Carpenter and family.

The Gossip Say-

Gathel Leonard is ill with threatened typhoid.

Simon Barnard and wife went to Ft. Wayne, Tuesday, for a few days visit.

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

Smith Bailey spent from Wednesday until Monday noon the guest of Auburn friends.

Mrs. Mary Scholes who has been quite ill for the past week is able to be about the house again.

The Walter reunion that was dated for today at the park has been postponed, due to the quarentine.

Mrs Anna Abel who spent several days last week with her son, Wallace and family near Newville, returned home Friday.

Mesdames Carson and Dessa Hamilton, of Connelsville, Pa., came Tuesday morning to spend the week with W. E. Peterson and wife.

Dr Shook and family, of Spencerville, are moving into the Simanton property on West Main St, and he will commence practicing here.

Charles Thomas and daughter, Miss Minnie, of Omaha, Neb., and Mrs Ruby Krabill were Monday evening callers of Frank Benninghoff and wife.

L. N. Miller and wife moved from the Rose Meese home, north of town, Monday, to the Erick farm south of town, where he has contracted to work.

The C. W. Widney obituary will appear next week, due to the delay in getting a half tone cut. We will run likenesses of his father and mother with the article.

Summer Pasture is getting short. We have Arcady Dairy Feed containing eight different products, with 18% Protein. Guaranteed one of the best Milk Producers on the Market. At St. Joe Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Bayman and son Richard and Margaret Tustison motored to Bluffton Saturday evening to visit with Mrs. Bayman's sisters also to see their daughters who are there visiting Margaret remained for a few days visit when the three girls will return together.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

Pony and Outfit for sale. $125.00.
O. E. GINTHER.

For Sale: Sow and ten pigs. Joseph Boger, phone 84-20. Spencerville.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The number of presidential electors to be chosen November 7 in the various states follows:

Alabama ...	12	Nebraska ..	8
Arizona	3	Nevada	3
Arkansas ...	9	New Ham're	4
California ..	13	New Jersey.	14
Colorado ...	6	New Mexico	3
Connecticut	7	New York..	45
Delaware ...	3	No. Carolina	12
Florida	6	No. Dakota.	5
Georgia	14	Ohio	24
Idaho	4	Oklahoma .	10
Illinois	29	Oregon	5
Indiana	15	Pennsylv'nia	38
Iowa	13	Rhode Is'nd.	5
Kansas	10	So. Carolina	9
Kentucky ..	13	So. Dakota..	5
Louisiana ..	10	Tennessee .	12
Maine	6	Texas	20
Maryland ..	8	Utah	4
Massachu's	18	Vermont ...	4
Michigan ..	15	Virginia	12
Minnesota ..	12	Washington	7
Mississippi	10	W. Virginia.	8
Missouri ...	18	Wisconsin .	13
Montana ...	4	Wyoming ..	3

Total	531
Necessary to choice.........	266

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The burial places of our presidents are as follows:

Washington, Mount Vernon, Va.; J. Adams, Quincy, Mass.; Jefferson, Monticello, Albemarle Co., Va.; Madison, Montpelier, Hanover Co., Va.; Monroe, Hollywood, Richmond, Va.; J. Q. Adams, Quincy, Mass.; Jackson, Hermitage, near Nashville, Tenn.; Van Buren, Kinderhook, N. Y.; Harrison, North Bend, Hamilton Co., Ohio; Tyler, Hollywood, Richmond, Va.; Polk, Polk Place, Nashville, Tenn.; Taylor, Springfield, Ky.; Fillmore, Forest Lawn, Buffalo, N. Y.; Pierce, Minot Lodge, Concord, N. H.; Buchanan, Woodward Hill, Lancaster, Pa.; Lincoln, Oak Ridge, Springfield, Ill.; Johnson, Greenville, Greene Co., Tenn.; Grant, Riverside Park, New York City; Hayes, Fremont, Ohio; Garfield, Lake View, Cleveland, Ohio; Arthur, Rural Cemetery, Albany, N. Y.; Cleveland, Princeton, N. J.; B. Harrison, Crown Hill, Indianapolis, Ind.; McKinley, Canton, Ohio.

FEARLESS MOVIE STAR

Helen Holmes.

Film actress, whose feats of daring portrayed on the screen have made her popular among movies fans throughout the country.

Young Man Must Fit Himself For Life Work If He Is to Advance

By CHARLES S. BOHART

A man of twenty-six years, in seeking for a position, was asked to name the trade or profession for which he had fitted himself. He could give no satisfactory answer. He had never thought of nor fitted himself for a life work, but after leaving high school had taken the first job in sight and then floated from job to job. When asked whether he thought that method would ever get him anywhere, he indicated that he had been taught to believe that a worthy young man with a high-school education would eventually reach a creditable goal if he patiently followed a path of careful, conscientious and concentrated effort in any position—but still he had arrived nowhere and was willing to work for $15 a week.

What's the trouble? Who's to blame? What is wrong with his logic?

Can anyone get far in this world without a well-laid plan and a firm will to follow it?

Who should have instructed and counseled this man at the beginning of his career?

Would classroom talks and counsel by a trained and experienced vocational instructor during certain school years help?

Should the state take the responsibility (in order to alleviate unemployment) of instructing those who graduate from our grammar and high schools regarding vocations and choice of life work?

If the man in question had wisely chosen a fitting life work and secured a position at the beginning, which might have been a stepping stone toward his thus developed life ambition, would he not have today been nearer a larger place in life?

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15 70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connection now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado - -	$36 60
California -	$78.75
Yellowstone -	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79 10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Leone Widdifield spent Sunday afternoon with Aleen and Lucile Rhodes.

Miss Lena Kelley visited the latter part of last week, with R. F. Place and family, at Coburntown.

Mrs. Howestein and wife, of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday with Harvey Kimes, Sr., and Minnie Thompson.

Homer Cook and wife, of Hicksville, visited Sunday with the former's mother, Mrs. Mary Cook and family.

Cora, Jessie and George Brown spent Sunday with their brother, Will Brown and wife.

Will Smith and wife, Ira Smith and wife, and Elmer Smith and family spent Sunday the guests of Chas. Boston and wife.

Lewis Markle and wife visited Sunday with Martin Beery and wife.

Hazel Revertt, of Ft. Wayne, who has been visiting with Milo Beam and family, returned home Sunday. She was accompanied home by Mr. Beam and family.

Walter Perkins, wife and babe, Joel Betz and wife, Mrs. Frank House and son John, Miss Elma Wilmot, and Glen Betz, wife and son, of New Haven, were Sunday visitors of Ed Billman and wife.

Willie and Della Goings spent Saturday evening the guests of Chas. Haifley and family.

Wesley Stillwagner and family, of Ashton, Ohio, visited from Friday until Monday with Frank Wertman and wife. On Sunday they all visited relatives at Wayne.

Earl Stiman and family attended the Bailey Reunion at Auburn, Sunday.

Ett Walker, of Hicksville, was a guest of Harvey Kimes, Sr., a few days last week.

W. B. Conwell, wife and son, C. D. Lessinwell, and Mrs. Ada Glass, of Ft. Wayne; Al Courtney and family, and Mrs. Grace Stevens, of Auburn; and V. E Marr and family, spent Sunday evening with Chas. Essley and family.

Merton Jackson, wife, daughter Mabel, and son, of Auburn, spent Sunday the guests of Chas. Haifley and family.

Willis Bishop and wife were Saturday evening callers of Theodore Dinius and wife. On Sunday, Mrs Margaret Koch, Miss Margaret Koch, and Margaret and Ellen Lake visited in the Dinius home.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Inauguration day was fixed upon the 4th of March because that date seldom occurred on Sunday. But three times during our history has the inauguration day fallen on Sunday. The first was the second inaugural of Monroe, March 4, 1821; the second was when Taylor was made president, March 4, 1849; the third was the inauguration of Hayes on March 4, 1877.

This will happen three times during each century, or one year after every seven leap years. Except when passing from one century to another, there is a slight variation as will be observed in the following dates of the past and future inaugurations, of the first two centuries of the republic:

March 4	1821
March 4	1849
March 4	1877
March 4	1917
March 4	1945
March 4	1973

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

"TIZ" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters and bunions.

"TIZ" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, or how long you remain on your feet, "TIZ" brings restful foot comfort. "TIZ" is wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now from any druggist or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy.

Jos. Haifley and family will move to Wayne in a few weeks.

AUGUST

L 908

0278

Preparedness

✱ ✱

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to 'tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE

Paid for Your POULTRY

SEE

W. G. ERICK

Subscribe for this paper.

Patronize the advertisers.

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

Birth Announcements
Wedding Stationery
Envelope Inclosures
Sale Bills
Hand Bills
Price Lists
Admission Tickets
Business Cards
Window Cards
Time Cards
Letter Heads
Note Heads
Envelopes
Leaflets
Bill Heads
Calling Cards
Statements
Milk Tickets
Meal Tickets
Shipping Tags
Announcements
Briefs
Notes
Coupons
Pamphlets
Catalogues
Circulars
Posters
Blotters
Invitations
Folders
Checks
Blanks
Notices
Labels
Legal Blanks
Menu Cards
Placards
Dodgers
Post Cards
Programs
Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

J. E. Keyes and wife, of Wayne, spent Sunday with their son, Wm. Allen and family, and also visited Harvey Beam and wife.

Mrs. Isaac Chartie, of New Paris, Milton Carper, wife and children of Concord, were Sunday dinner guests of W. F. Rhoades and wife. Mrs. Chartie will remain several days.

Sell Your POULTRY TO

ZONKER BROTHERS

St. Joe, Indiana.

Highest Prices Paid.

Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.

PHONE NO. 12

Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

SPENCERVILLE

Hubert Shook came home Thursday from Springfield, Ohio, to spend his vacation.

Murray Erick, of Springfield, Ill., came Monday to visit his parents, Wm. Erick and wife, a few weeks.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

Mrs. Cora Steward, daughter Arminta, and son Fred, motored to Butler, Sunday, and visited Mrs. Nancy Steward.

The Rayo Class of the M. E Sunday School presented the church with an Individual Communion Set, Sunday morning.

W. G. Erick was at Lewiston, Michigan several days this week on business. He owns a farm in that section and had not seen it since he became owner.

Ort Wearley and wife after spending a week with his parents, left for Upper Sandusky, Ohio, last week, where they will visit a few days before returning to Akron, Ohio.

Miss Pearl Kimes returned to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Kirst, after spending several weeks at the home of her uncle, Merton Kimes, of Robinson Chaple.

Our Children's School Dresses will be here in a few days. Get the girls all fixed up the first thing at Beame & Co. store.

The C. C. Club will be entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Raymond Rhodes and the Girls Pansy Club will meet the same afternoon at the home of Dorris Rhoads north of town.

Calvin Wise, wife and son Dewey of Greensburg, Ohio, and Mrs E. Wise, of Barberton, Ohio, visited from Sunday until Monday with Greely Wearleys'. Mann Kyle and wife, and Mrs. Frank Kyle and son Clede, of Hicksville, called Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ella Fisher and daughter Evangeline of Pleasant Lake, returned to their home Sunday evening after spending several days visiting her mother, Mrs. E. E. Provines and other relatives in this vicinity. Dorothy and Miriam remained for a few days visit.

A pleasant surprise was planned on Saturday evening to remind Mrs. Elsie Fisher that her birthday had again arrived, when a few friends ask her to go joy riding with them. Upon their arriving at Hicksville they were met by others and a very enjoyable time was had to remember the occasion. Those who assisted were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wade, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Rectenwal, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beams, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Steward and Miss Arminta Steward.

A motor truck load of people from Ft. Wayne came Sunday and spent the day with Vol Hay, wife and daughter Ruth. Those present were:—Leon Carpenter, wife and daughter Catherine, GlenCarpenter and wife, Herbert Evans and family, Imogene and Velda Hicks, George Golden, wife and son Gerald, Chas. Weaver and family, Mr. Kimes, wife, sons Virgil and Chas., and daughter, and Raymond Carpenter, all of Ft. Wayne; Gale Rohns, of Chicago, Ohio; Mrs. Chas. Brattain and son, of Garrett; Ray Baker and wife, and Mrs. Vernie Kelley and daughter.

The Second Annual Reunion of the Metcalf family was held at the home of D. D. Metcalf and wife, last Thursday. After dinner a splendid program was rendered, the Ladies Quartette of the M. E. church gave several beautiful selections. There were 86 present. Those from a distance were:-Dean Johnston of Ohio; W. B. Shumaker wife and children, of Ford City, Penn.; and Roy Derrow wife and son, of Defiance, Ohio. The follow-officers were elected:-President, J. W. Metcalf, of Auburn; Secretary-Treasurer, Elworth Eakright, of Moors; Program Committee, Miss Gertrude Metcalf, of Moors, and Jacob Richard, of Auburn.

Miss Rose Hainley of Oklahoma and Rev. Barton and family were Sunday dinner guests of D. D. Metcalf. Dr. Dean Metcalf and wife of Ft. Wayne spent the evening with them.

Joel Betz and wife attended the funeral of Mrs. Charles Kinsey of Springfield Center, which was held Saturday morning at 10:30 at the Springfield Center Lutheran church Rev. Carrington, of Harlan, officiating. Interment at Scipio.

Jacob Baltz and wife and Wm. Sommers and wife visited the former's daughter, Mrs. Jennie Moffet of Auburn, who fell and hurt her back one day last week and she will be compelled to lie in bed for some time.

Frank Baltz and wife, of Auburn, Samuel Mumma and wife, and Amos Leavy, of north of St. Joe, were Sunday dinner guests of Jacob Baltz and wife. Wm. Sommer and wife, of Coburntown, Mrs. Mary Hawk and daughter, of Akron, O., and Chris Yoder and family, of Grabill, were afternoon callers at the Baltz home.

The C. C. club very pleasantly surprised one of their members, Mrs. Anna Henderson, last Saturday evening, to remind her of her birthday anniversary. Ice cream, cake and wafers were served. Besides the members, seven guests were present:-Mrs. Rose Beams, Mrs. Jack Henderson, Helen Bowman, of St. Joe; Mrs Ella Fischer and daughter Evangeline, of Pleasant Lake; and Mrs. Wm. Henderson, of Auburn.

Auto Turns OverSuddenly

Last Sunday, Argyl Beams had quite an exciting experience driving his Ford. Just out of Cedarville the steering gear broke, sending his machine to the ditch in just an instant. It turned over and Argyl was under it. Hubert Shook was along and he found himself in the fence corner, but not hurt. He at once proceeded to get Argyl out from under the machine, and it continued to run while in this position. Not much damage was done outside of the radiator being jammed. Argyl received some scratches and Dr. Emme soon fixed him up.

Mr. Smalley Tells of Wonderful Cure.

A. Smalley, a prosperous farmer living six miles south-east of Antwerp, Ohio, says: "I was troubled with glandular inactivity for some time. My liver and kidneys had ceased to act until I was nearly as yellow as the yolk of an egg. My appetite was poor. What I did eat did not seem to digest. I lost flesh and was hardly able to drag around. When I begun to use Glando I soon got better. In eight weeks I had gained in flesh until I weighed as much as I ever weighed. My complexion cleared, and I feel as good as I ever did in my life." Mr. Smalley is a man fifty-three years old. He is only one of the many who have received wonderful help by using Glando. Glando starts glandular activity and throws the poison out of the system. Poisons retained in the body will in time break down the strongest constitution and destroy health. Don't let your glands shirk, keep them active and save your health.

Glando can be secured at drug stores or of the Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. For Sale by All Druggists.

Dr. J. C. Emme

Spencerville, Ind.

Phone No. 20.

J. M. Beams To Retire.

J. M. Beams will retire from the merchantile business in Spencerville on the 16th., of September, after 25 years of active business G. M. Shutt and sons will take charge of the business. Jack first began as clerk for his father and after a few years of this work he opened a store on the east side of the street now occupied by the post office He and his brother Ed, were in partnership a few years. For 17 years he answered the calls, "Is there any mail for us," rendering the best of service to the patrons through the assistance of Mrs. Beams. He run the hardware in connection with the post office up until a few years ago. He has given to Spencerville, one of the best business houses and today he is conducting a grocery, dry goods and hardware store. What he will do is not fully decided.

A Few Smiles.

Getting Monotonous.

"I see we are facing a new crisis this morning," said the first restaurant patron, scanning his newspaper.

"Yes?" replied the second restaurant patron, mildly, as he continued to dig into his cantaloupe.

"You don't seem excited."

"Why should I be? By Jove, sir! During the past 12 months we've faced so many crises that when the next one bobs up I shall be tempted to turn my back on it!"

Preparedness.

"War is a terrible thing."

"No doubt about that."

"I see where some debutantes have called an urgent mass meeting."

"What's the idea?"

"They are going to send sofa pillows to their friends at the front."

True.

"A man who owns an automobile is not always envied by pedestrians."

"No?"

"A great deal depends on whether he's in it or under it."

A Real Hardship.

"I certainly will be glad when the war in Europe is over," said Asphodelia Twobble.

"Of course, you will, my dear. And so will everybody else. It's a cruel tragedy."

"Oh, I wasn't thinking about that. It's so much fun to go to the pier and see one's friends off for Europe. I haven't been able to do that for ages."

Bearing Up Well.

"You are never satisfied."

"Oh, yes, I am," answered the lazy individual.

"You'll have a hard time convincing me of that."

"Well, you never hear me complaining because I live more than two miles from the nearest golf links."

Both Departed.

"You don't often see an old-fashioned whittler nowadays."

"No. The type is dying out. Also the diminutive bad man who used to pull out a bowie knife and threaten to whittle his foe down to his size."

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tustison and Mrs. W. H. Schrock, spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Yeiser of near Newville.

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can, "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

State of Ohio, City of Toledo, Lucas County, } ss.

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.
FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.
(Seal) A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by all Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day: Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¼ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest In America
Strongest In the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROR

AUGUST

L 908

0279

News of the Week Cut Down for Busy Readers

European War News

Petrograd announced that the Russians have resumed their advance along the entire Asiatic front. The Turks have evacuated Bitlis, in southern Turkish Armenia near Lake Van.

• • •

Eight persons were killed and 36 injured in a Zeppelin raid on England at night, it was announced officially. One hundred bombs were dropped. One Zeppelin reached the outskirts of London.

• • •

The Bulgarians have attacked the Greek port of Kavala and the important Greek town of Drama, both held by Greek garrisons, says a Paris war office statement.

• • •

Russian troops have defeated four Turkish divisions (80,000 men) in a great battle at Rachta, near Mosul, capturing two entire Turkish regiments, it was announced at Petrograd officially. Many cannon and much other booty were taken.

• • •

Russian forces operating in southern Turkish Armenia have reoccupied Mush, captured by the Turks on August 8, says an official communication issued at Petrograd. The statement adds the Russians captured 2,300 prisoners.

• • •

The capture of the German steamship Desterro, with a cargo of iron ore, was made by a Russian submarine flying the Swedish flag, says the Oversea News agency at Berlin.

• • •

Definite gains against the French and Serbian forces operating on the Saloniki line, the annihilation of a French regiment southwest of Lake Doiran and a retreat by the Serbs southward from Kastoria are reported in the official Bulgar war office statement issued at Sofia.

• • •

German troops attacking the French lines south of Estrees on the Somme gained a footing at some points in trenches that had been captured by the French on August 21, the war office announced at Paris.

• • •

The German admiralty issued a statement at Berlin asserting that the losses of the British and French navies in line-of-battle ships and cruisers to August 1 comprised 72 vessels with a total displacement of 496,050 tons. The German losses were 25 warships with a total fo 62,667 tons.

• • •

A strong force of Russian troops was landed at Saloniki to fight with the allies against the Austro-German and Bulgarian armies in Macedonia.

• • •

Roumania is preparing for war, according to Doctor Lederre, Bucharest correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt.

• • •

A British official announcement at London says: "The submarine E-23, Lieut. Commander Robert R. Turner, which returned from the North sea, reports she made a successful torpedo attack upon a German battleship of the Nassau class."

• • •

Domestic

A bitter attack on the entire Morton family was made at Delaplane, Va., by Roger Bayly, husband of Helen Morton Bayly, in announcing that he is broken in health and fortune and is about to depart for New York in an effort to regain at least the latter. Mrs. Bayly has sued him for divorce.

• • •

A new world's record for distance covered in ten hours, carrying a passenger, was made by Victor Carlstrom of the Atlantic Coast Aeronautical station at Newport News, Va., who made 661 miles flying in a Curtiss twin motor land-and-water machine. His actual flying time was 8 hours and 40 minutes.

• • •

A special session of the Illinois legislature will be called by Governor Dunne to convene at Springfield, Ill., next week for the purpose of putting through an act permitting the Illinois soldiers to vote in the field. It is assumed that the plan of voting adopted will be like that in Illinois in the Civil war.

• • •

Samuel C. Dixon, commissioner of health for the state of Pennsylvania, decided that all schools—public, private, parochial and Sunday schools—in Pennsylvania, must remain closed until September 18, because of the prevalence of infantile paralysis.

• • •

July records for postal savings deposit increases were exceeded last month when a net gain of more than $3,700,000 was made, according to figures published by the New York post office.

• • •

Stephen M. Van Allen, hermit yachtsman of New York, committed suicide in the cabin of his costly motor boat Hunter on the North river by discharging the loads of a shotgun into his breast.

Capt. E. J. Spratling, F company, Fifth infantry, National Guard of Georgia, was shot and killed at the state mobilization camp near Macon, Ga. Mrs. H. C. Adams of Atlanta was arrested on the statements of several officers that she shot the militia officer.

• • •

The most violent earthquake felt at Eureka, Cal., since April, 1906, when San Francisco was destroyed, rocked the city and northern Humboldt county.

• • •

Dr. W. B. Pomeroy of Davenport, Ia., was shot and, it is believed, fatally wounded at Rock Island, Ill., by James Poulos, a former patient. Poulos said that Pomeroy had attacked him.

• • •

Receivership for the Boston & Maine railroad, which operates in the four northern New England states and Canada, was asked for in a bill in equity filed in the federal court at Boston.

• • •

Resumption of milk deliveries in St. Louis under the protection of an injunction restraining union milk drivers from interfering was promised by the Milk Dealers' association, after a break in the peace negotiations.

• • •

Mexican War News

The Twenty-second battalion, Sonora infantry, was practically annihilated after it had been ambushed by Yaquis near Batamonte, Mex.

• • •

Punitive preparedness was exemplified in a review of the 5,000 American troops on station in Mexico. The 5,000 infantrymen, cavalrymen and artillerymen, hardened by months of active service, and re-equipped after their hardships, marched past Brig. Gen. John J. Pershing in the first grand review held since the troops crossed the frontier March 15.

• • •

The American members of the international commission appointed to settle the differences between the United States and Mexico are Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, Judge George Gray of Delaware and John R. Mott of New York. The official announcement was made at Washington by Secretary of State Lansing.

• • •

Washington

Following a series of stormy sessions at Washington, the railroad presidents agreed to make a counter-proposal to President Wilson, conceding the principle of the eight-hour day, but demanding arbitration of the question of the wages to be paid for such day.

• • •

The house at Washington concurred in the senate amendment to the army bill, and the measure was passed, containing a revision of the articles of war, but without the clause that caused the president to veto it last week. The bill now goes back to the president for his signature.

• • •

The federal trade commission, according to one of its high officials at Washington, will take steps on its own initiative to prevent any increase in the price of bread if the present agitation among bakers for an increase continues.

• • •

With the railroads of the United States insisting that they must have higher freight rates if increased wages are to be granted to trainmen, four large associations of shippers appealed to the interstate commerce commission at Washington for rate reductions on food products.

• • •

Secretary Lansing and Solon Menos, minister from Haiti, signed a protocol at Washington under the terms of which the United States will establish a financial protectorate over the islands.

• • •

President Wilson sent to the senate at Washington these nominations for postmasters: Illinois—Robert E. Duff, Clay City; Gilbert L. Hugh, Clayton; A. J. Ikemire, Louisville; L. L. Boyle, Roberts. Iowa—J. N. McCoy, Corydon; J. W. Forward, Edgewood; T. L. Finley, Missouri Valley; R. A. Mortland, Montezuma. Michigan—Joseph E. Ladd, Harrison. Wisconsin—Faith A. Van Tassil, Whitehall.

• • •

Without a record vote the house at Washington passed the army appropriation bill, as reintroduced by Representative Hay of Virginia, without the articles of war appended. The bill now will go to the senate.

• • •

Word has reached Washington that the allies powers are preparing to protest against the Thomas amendment to the shipping bill. It was put into the bill as a retaliatory measure to prevent England and France from enforcing the blacklist.

• • •

Sporting

Ad Wolgast, one-time lightweight champion of the world, got a licking from Frankie Callahan in a ten-round bout at Washington Park, Brooklyn.

• • •

Personal

Archbishop John Lancaster Spalding, noted prelate of the Roman Catholic church in Illinois and a resident of Peoria continuously since 1877, when he was chosen for the position of bishop of the newly created Peoria diocese, died at Peoria, Ill.

• • •

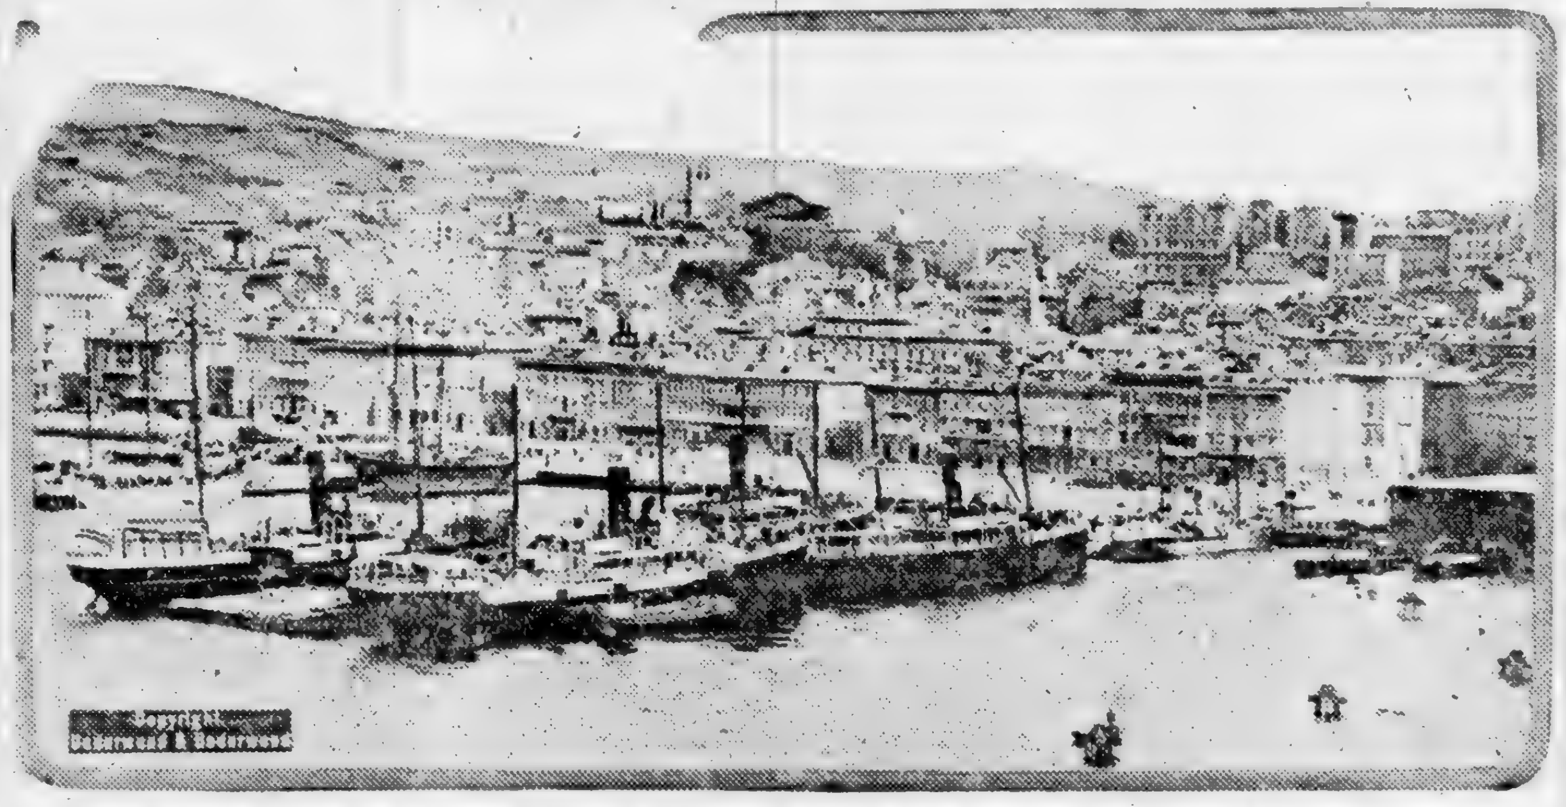
J. H. Ray, former lieutenant governor of Illinois, died at Joliet, Ill., after an illness of two weeks. He was eighty-six years old.

BELGIANS GETTING MORTARS INTO NEW POSITIONS

International Film Service

Members of the new Belgian army are here seen marching past with their 75-millimeter mortars to take up new positions.

VIEW OF THE WATER FRONT OF TRIESTE



General view of the water front of Trieste, the way to which was opened to the Italians by their capture of Goritz.

DECORATING "MAN OF ANZAC"

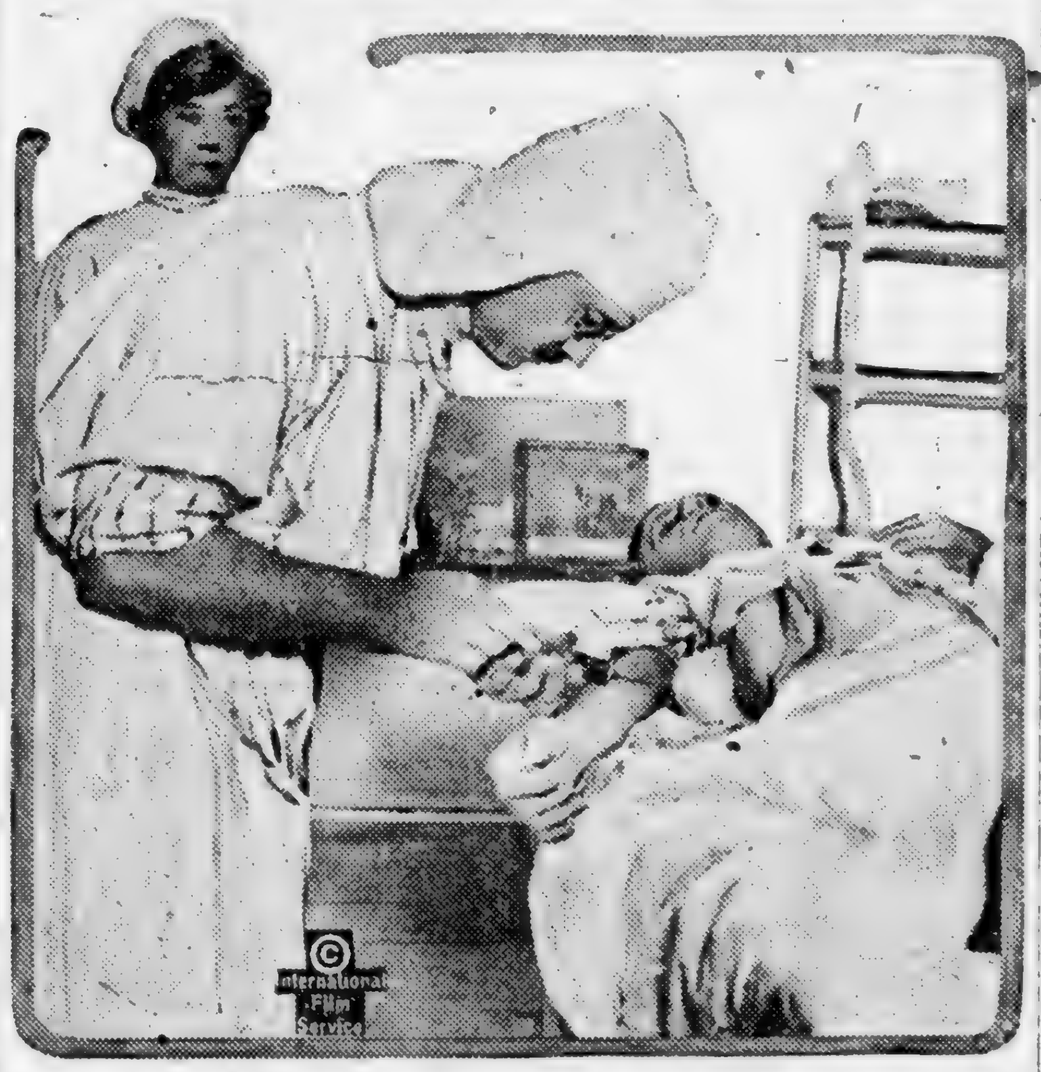
Gen. Sir William Birdwood decorating a "man of Anzac." The Anzacs have won glory with their many during deeds and have won the respect of Europe for their fighting qualities.

EXECUTED BY THE GERMANS

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood

This is the first photograph of Capt. Charles A. Fryatt to arrive in this country. The portrait was taken at Rotterdam recently during one of Captain Fryatt's visits to Holland, where he was a well-known and popular figure in merchant marine circles. Captain Fryatt was commander of the British merchant steamer Brussels. He was captured and shot at Bruges, Belgium, for an attempt to sink a German submarine.

GIVING BLOOD TO SAVE CHILDREN



In order that little children may have their chance to recover from the dreaded infantile paralysis now raging in New York, strong men are volunteering to give their blood, of which is made a serum for use in treatment of the epidemic. The photograph shows Dr. Abraham Zingher of the Willard Parker hospital, New York, taking seven ounces of blood from the arm of W. C. Michel.

GALICIAN CITY TAKEN BY RUSSIANS

International Film Service

View of a part of Tarnopol, Galicia, an important city which fell before the Russians in their great offensive.

Hoosier News Briefly Told

Wabash.—Nine-months-old Marve King died here of infantile paralysis.

Jeffersonville. — James Hardesty, colored, age eleven, was drowned when swimming in the Ohio river.

Tipton.—Jesse Liston of Atlanta was severely injured when a buggy in which he was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Cash Cochran. When the buggy was struck Liston's horse ran away.

Bloomington.—Miss Kathryn Kemp has been chosen secretary to W. H. Bryan, president of the university, to fill the vacancy caused by the marriage of Miss Mellie Greene to John W. Cravens, registrar of the university.

Bedford.—William Hudson, forty-four, hung himself in a woodshed at his home ten miles north of here. The death of his wife several months ago is believed to be the cause of his act. Three children survive.

Greencastle.—The Putnam county teachers' institute opened with Prof N. W. Barner, formerly of Chicago university, and Prof. Elbert Russell of Johns Hopkins university as speakers, and Prof. H. J. Barnum of DePauw in charge of the music.

Anderson.—A new automobile for which Dr. J. C. Armington had just paid $600, was stolen from in front of a local drug store. The machine was recovered at Goldsmith, in Tipton county, where it was reported two men abandoned it.

Kokomo.—Mrs. J. H. Friar, living on a farm south of here, slept on a porch during the recent heat wave. A chicken awakened her by pecking her right eye. As a result Mrs. Friar has lost the sight of the eye.

Shelbyville.—Horace Harrold, twenty-one, of Dunreith, was killed and his companion, Dr. Troy W. Hamilton of Frankton was seriously injured when the automobile driven by Harrold turned over on a sharp turn.

Fort Wayne.—The new battery of field artillery organized here for the Indiana National Guard was inspected by Capt. Clarence Deems of the Sixth field artillery, United States army The battery hopes to be sent soon to the border.

Shoals.—Thomas J. Johnson's drug store was robbed for the twenty-second time. The thieves obtained 20 quarts of whisky. Nineteen quarts of the whisky were found hidden on the bank of the river within a short distance of the business center by George Vanhoy, marshal.

Indianapolis.—The state board of health reported that there were five deaths in Indiana from infantile paralysis during the month of July. All the dead were under eleven years of age. During the same period there were 51 suicides in the state, 14 persons dying by the poison route.

Princeton. — The Gibson county teachers' institute met here in the high school building. The instructors are Frank Blair, state superintendent of Illinois, and O. L. Reed, superintendent of the Louisville, Ky., schools. Mrs. Irene Coolidge of this city has charge of the music.

Muncie.—Muncie for several nights has been in possession of millions of crickets which swarm about any lighted place to the great discomfort of pedestrians. Several instances of automobiles skidding when running over the ground covered with the insects have been reported.

Logansport.—Ralph Moore, thirty-two, cut his throat with a razor in an attempt to commit suicide. Physicians say he will recover. Moore was arrested during the recent street car strike on a charge of rioting, and was under $500 bond. He had been complaining much of the heat during the last two days.

Delphi.—The corner stone of the new Carroll county courthouse will be laid Monday, September 4. A parade in which fraternal organizations in the county will participate is being planned. Rev. G. S. West, pastor of the Flora Christian church, will speak and the Masonic lodge will have charge of the ceremony.

Indianapolis.—The state board of accounts reported to Governor Ralston the following shortages of officials as disclosed by the audit of field examiners; B. A. Carcutte, formerly trustee Olive township, St. Joseph county, short $125 in fees and salary accounts for 1914; L. P. Meredith, former sheriff of Wayne county, short $32 alleged overpayment of fees in 1912; E. Z. Gainey, former trustee of Center township, Union county, short $92.10 over payment of rent.

Kokomo.—The Haynes Automobile company has been sold to an eastern syndicate to be known as the Haynes Automobile company of New York, it was announced here. The price is understood to have been $9,000,000, half to be paid in shares and half in cash. The action of the directors in the sale is subject to the approval of the stockholders. There will be no immediate change in the management it is stated.

Brazil.—After B. M. Robinson had been selected as special judge for the case of Elmer Wilson, a guard at the Hydraulic Press Brick company plant, charged with pointing a deadly weapon at Samuel Johnson, a striker, and Samuel Whitelaw, a strikebreaker, Mayor J. J. Jones appealed to Governor Ralston. Robinson said he will hear the case.

Richmond.—Earl Gilliland, twenty-seven, is recovering from an attempt to commit suicide, when he took more than fourteen grains of poison. Two grains of the poison he took are regarded by physicians as a fatal dose.

AUGUST

L 908

0280

The TURMOIL

A NOVEL

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

AUTHOR OF—
"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"
"THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN"
"PENROD" ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1915 BY HARPER & BROTHERS.

SYNOPSIS.

—12—

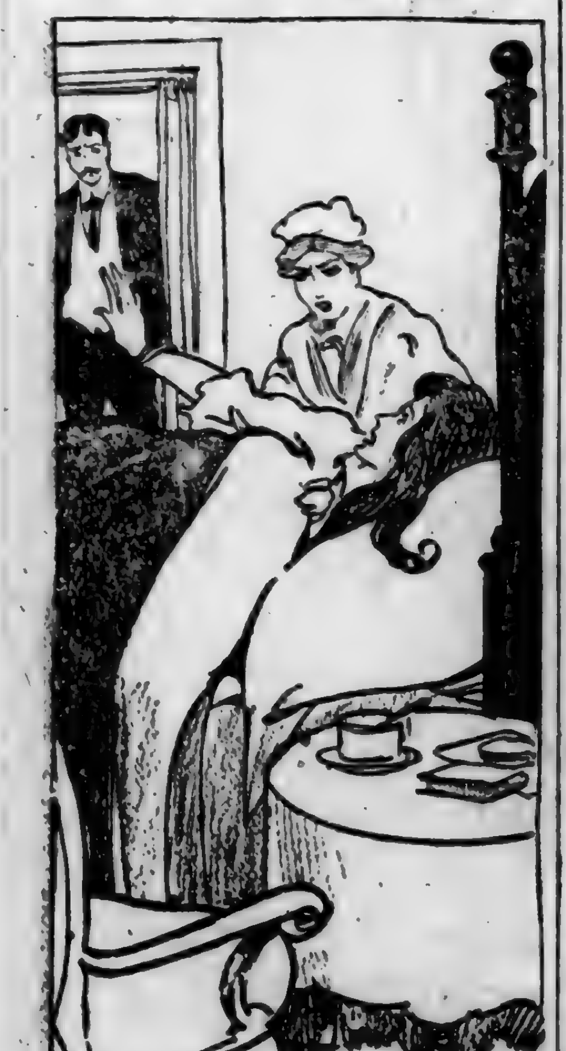
Sheridan's attempt to make a business man of his son Bibbs by starting him in the machine shop ends in Bibbs going to a sanitarium, a nervous wreck. On his return Bibbs finds himself an inconsiderable and unconsidered figure in the "New House" of the Sheridans. The Vertreeses, old-town family next door and impoverished, calls on the Sheridans, newly-rich, and Mary afterward puts into words her parents' unspoken wish that she marry one of the Sheridan boys. Mary frankly encourages Jim Sheridan's attentions. Jim tells Mary Bibbs is not a lunatic—"just queer." He proposes to Mary, who half accepts him. Sheridan tells Bibbs he must go back to the machine shop as soon as he is strong enough, in spite of Bibbs' plea to be allowed to write. Edith, Bibbs' sister, and Sibyl, Roscoe Sheridan's wife, quarrel over Bobby Lamhorn; Sibyl goes to Mary for help to keep Lamhorn from marrying Edith, and Mary leaves her in the room alone. Bibbs has to break to his father the news of Jim's sudden death. All the rest of the family helpless in their grief, Bibbs becomes temporary master of the house. At the funeral he meets Mary and rides home with her. Bibbs purposely interrupts a tete-a-tete between Edith and Lamhorn. He tells Edith that he overheard Lamhorn making love to Roscoe's wife. Doctor Gurney finds Bibbs well enough to go back to the machine shop. Mary and Bibbs meet by accident and form a pleasant friendship. Roscoe Sheridan and his wife quarrel desperately about Bobby Lamhorn. Bibbs goes to work. Old man Sheridan hurts his hand. Edith and Sibyl quarrel again over Lamhorn, who is ordered off the premises by Edith's father.

Old Man Sheridan was a slave-driver though he didn't recognize himself as such. He drove his wife. He drove his sons. He drove his daughter. He drove himself. His wife was like putty. There was too much of himself, too much iron, in Edith and in Bibbs to be handled easily. Growing out of this situation, two tragic incidents break into the life of the slave-driver. This installment is a real thriller.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Bibbs continued to live in the shelter of his dream. These were turbulent days in the new house, but Bibbs had no part whatever in the turbulence—he seemed an absent-minded stranger, present by accident and not wholly aware that he was present. He would sit, faintly smiling over pleasant imaginings and dear reminiscences of his own, while battle raged between Edith and her father, or while Sheridan unloosed jeremiads upon the sullen Roscoe, who drank heavily to endure them. He was sorry for his father and for Roscoe, and for Edith and for Sibyl, but their sufferings and outcries seemed far away.

Sibyl was under Gurney's care. Roscoe had sent for him on Sunday night, not long after Bibbs returned the abandoned wraps; and during the first days of Sibyl's illness the doctor found it necessary to be with her frequently, and to install a muscular nurse. And whether he would or no, Gurney received from his hysterical patient a variety of pungent information which would have staggered anybody but a family physician. Among other things he was given to comprehend the change in Bibbs, and why the zinc eater was not putting a lump in its operator's gizzard as of yore.



"Don't Come In, Roscoe," She Murmured.

Sibyl was not delirious—she was a thin little ego writhing and shrieking in pain. Life had hurt her, and had driven her into hurting herself; her condition was only the adult's terrible exaggeration of that of a child after a bad bruise—there would be screaming and telling mother all about the hurt and how it happened. Sibyl babbled herself hoarse when Gurney withheld morphine. She went from the beginning to the end in a breath. No protest stopped her; nothing stopped her.

"You ought to let me die!" she wailed. "What harm have I ever done to anybody that you want to keep me alive? Just look at my life! I only married Roscoe to get away from home, and look what it got me into! . . . I wanted to have a good time—and how could I? Where's any good time among these Sheridans? They never even had wine on the table! I thought I was marrying into a rich family, where I'd meet attractive people I'd read about, and travel, and go to dances—and, oh, my Lord! all I got was these Sheridans! I did the best I could; I just tried to live. . . . Things were just beginning to look brighter, and then I saw how Edith was getting him away from me. And what could I do? What can any woman do in my fix? I couldn't stand it! I went to that icicle—that Vertrees girl—and she could have helped me a little, and it wouldn't have hurt her. Let her wait!" Sibyl's voice, hoarse from babbling, became no more than a husky whisper, though she strove to make it louder. She struggled half upright, and the nurse restrained her. "I'd get up out of this bed to show her she can't do such things to me! I was absolutely ladylike, and she walked out and left me there alone! She'll see! She started after Bibbs before Jim's casket was fairly underground, and she thinks she's landed that poor loon—but she'll see! She'll see! And Edith needn't have told what she told Roscoe—it wouldn't have hurt her to let me alone. And he told her I bored him—telephoning him I wanted to see him. He needn't have done it. He needn't—needn't—" Her voice grew fainter, for that while, with exhaustion, though she would go over it all again as soon as her strength returned. She lay panting. Then, seeing her husband standing disheveled in the doorway, "Don't come in, Roscoe," she murmured. "I don't want to see you." And as he turned away she added, "I'm kind of sorry for you, Roscoe."

Her antagonist, Edith, was not more coherent in her own wailings, and she had the advantage of a mother for listener. She had also the disadvantage of a mother for duenna, and Mrs. Sheridan, under her husband's sharp tutelage, proved an effective one. Edith was reduced to telephoning Lamhorn from shops whenever she could juggle her mother into a momentary distraction over a counter.

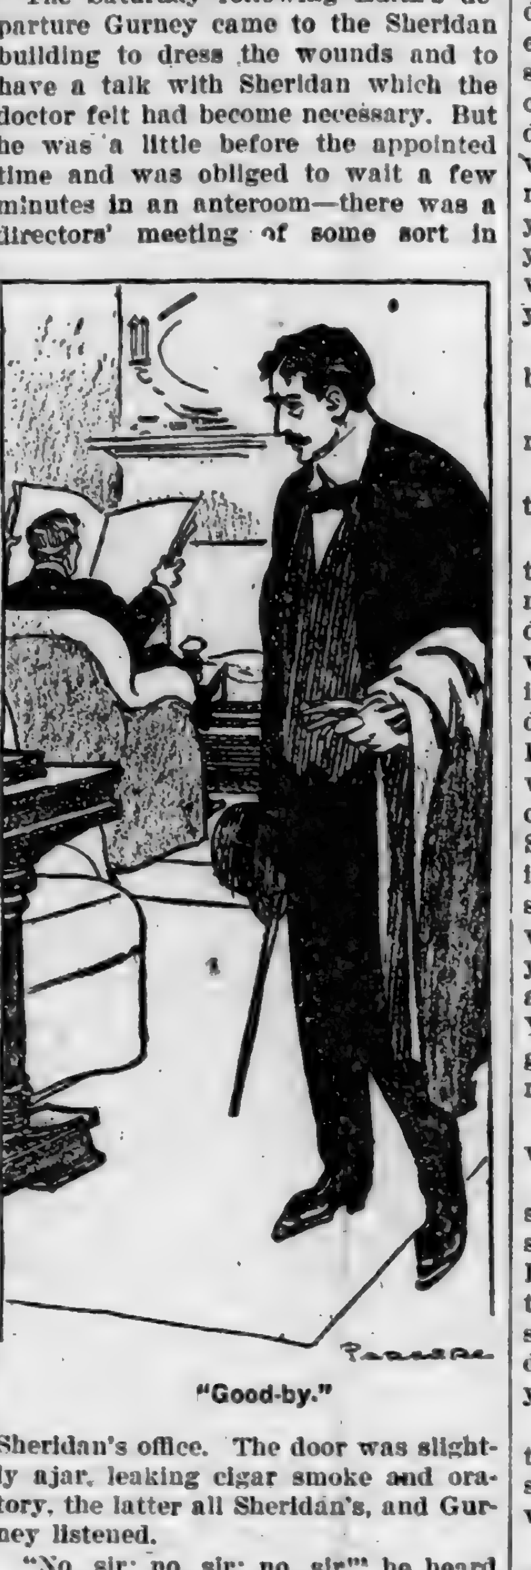
Edith was incomparably more in love than before Lamhorn's expulsion. Her whole being was nothing but the determination to hurdle everything that separated her from him. She was in a state that could be altered by only the lightest and most delicate diplomacy of suggestion, but Sheridan, like legions of other parents, intensified her passion and fed it hourly fuel by opposing to it an intolerable force. He swore she should cool, and thus set her on fire.

Edith planned neatly. She fought hard, every other evening, with her father, and kept her bed between times to let him see what his violence had done to her. Then, when the mere sight of her set him to breathing fast, she said pitiably that she might bear her trouble if she went away; it was impossible to be in the same town with Lamhorn and not think always of him. Perhaps in New York she might forget a little. She had written to a school friend, established quietly with an aunt in apartments—and a month or so of theaters and restaurants might bring peace. Sheridan shouted with relief; he gave her a copious check, and she left upon a Monday morning, wearing violets with her mourning, and having kissed everybody goodby except Sibyl and Bibbs. She might have kissed Bibbs, but he failed to realize that the day of her departure had arrived, and was surprised, on returning from his zinc eater that evening, to find her gone. "I suppose they'll be married there," he said, casually.

Sheridan, warming his stockinged feet at the fire, jumped up, fuming. "Either you go out o' here, or I will, Bibbs!" he snorted. "I don't want to be in the same room with the particular kind of idiot you are! She's through with that riffraff; all she needed was to be kept away from him a few weeks, and I kept her away, and it did the business. For heaven's sake, go on out o' here!"

Bibbs obeyed the gesture of a hand still bandaged. And the black silk sling was still round Sheridan's neck, but no word of Gurney's and no excruciating twinge of pain could keep Sheridan's hand in the sling. The wounds, slight enough originally, had become infected the first time he had dislodged the bandages, and healing was long delayed. Sheridan had the habit of gesture; he could not "take time to remember," he said, that he must be careful, and he had also a curious indignation with his hurt; he refused to pay it the compliment of admitting its existence.

The Saturday following Edith's departure Gurney came to the Sheridan building to dress the wounds and to have a talk with Sheridan which the doctor felt had become necessary. But he was a little before the appointed time and was obliged to wait a few minutes in an anteroom—there was a directors' meeting of some sort in Sheridan's office. The door was slightly ajar, leaking cigar smoke and oratory, the latter all Sheridan's, and Gurney listened.



"Good-by."

"No, sir; no, sir; no, sir!" he heard the big voice rumbling, and then, breaking into thunder, "I tell you NO! Some o' you men make me sick! You'd lose your confidence in Almighty God if a doodlebug flipped his hind leg at you! You say money's tight all over the country. Well, what if it is? There's no reason for it to be tight, and it's not goin' to keep our money tight! You're always runnin' to the woodshed to hide your nickels in a crack because some fool newspaper says the market's a little skeery! You listen to every street-corner croaker and then come and set here and try to scare me out of a big thing. We're in on this—understand? I tell you there never was better times. These are good times and big times, and I won't stand for any other kind o' talk. This country's on its feet as it never was before, and this city's on its feet and goin' to stay there!" And Gurney heard a series of whacks and thumps upon the desk. "'Bad times!'" Sheridan vociferated, with accompanying thumps. "Rabbit talk! These times are glorious, I tell you! We're in the promised land, and we're goin' to stay there! That's all, gentlemen. The loan goes!"

The directors came forth, flushed and murmurous, and Gurney hastened in. His guess was correct: Sheridan had been thumping the desk with his right hand. The physician scolded wearily, making good the fresh damage as best he might; and then he said what he had to say on the subject of Roscoe and Sibyl, his opinion meeting, as he expected, a warmly hostile reception. But the result of this conversation was that by telephonic command Roscoe awaited his father, an hour later, in the library at the new house.

"Gurney says your wife's able to travel," Sheridan said brusquely, as he came in.

"Yes." Roscoe occupied a deep chair and sat in the dejected attitude which had become his habit. "Yes, she is."

"Edith had to leave town, and so Sibyl thinks she'll have to, too!"

"Oh, I wouldn't put it that way," Roscoe protested, drearily.

"No, I bear you wouldn't!" There was a bitter gibe in the father's voice, and he added: "It's a good thing she's goin' abroad—if she'll stay there. I shouldn't think any of us want her here any more—you least of all!"

"It's no use your talking that way," said Roscoe. "You won't do any good."

"Well, when you comin' back to your office?" Sheridan used a brisker, kinder tone. "Three weeks since you showed up there at all. When you goin' to be ready to cut out whisky and all the rest o' the foolishness and start in again? You ought to be able to make up for a lot o' lost time and a lot o' [illegible] when that woman takes herself out o' the way and lets you and all the rest of us alone."

"It's no use, father, I tell you. I know what Gurney was going to say to you. I'm not going back to the office. I'm done!"

"Wait a minute before you talk that way!" Sheridan began his sentry-go up and down the room. "I suppose you know it's taken two pretty good men about sixteen hours a day to set things straight and get 'em runnin' right again, down in your office?"

"They must be good men." Roscoe nodded indifferently. "I thought I was doing about eight men's work. I'm glad you found two that could handle it."

"Look here! If I worked you it was for your own good. There are plenty of men drive harder'n I do, and—"

"Yes. There are some that break down all the other men that work with 'em. They either die, or go crazy, or have to quit, and are no use the rest of their lives. The last's my case, I guess—'complicated by domestic difficulties!'"

"You set there and tell me you give up?" Sheridan's voice shook, and so did the gesticulating hand which he extended appealingly toward the despondent figure. "Don't do it, Roscoe! Don't say it! Say you'll come down there again and be a man! This woman ain't goin' to trouble you any more. The work ain't goin' to hurt you if you haven't got her to worry you, and you can get shut o' this nasty whisky-guzzlin'; it ain't fastened on you yet. Don't say—"

"It's no use on earth," Roscoe mumbled. "No use on earth."

"Look here! If you want another month's vacation—"

"I know Gurney told you, so what's the use talking about 'vacations?'"

"Gurney!" Sheridan vociferated the name savagely. "It's Gurney, Gurney, Gurney! Always Gurney! I don't know what the world's comin' to with everybody runnin' around squealin', 'The doctor says this,' and 'The doctor says that!' It makes me sick! How's this country expect to get its work done if Gurney and all the other old nanny-goats keep up this blattin'! So he says you got 'nervous exhaustion induced by overwork and emotional strain.' They always got to stick the work in if they see a chance! I reckon you did have the 'emotional strain,' and that's all's the matter with you. You'll be over it soon's this woman's gone, and work's the very thing to make you quit frettin' about her."

"Did Gurney tell you I was fit to work?"

"Shut up!" Sheridan bellowed. "I'm so sick o' that man's name I feel like shootin' anybody that says it to me!" He fumed and chafed, swearing indistinctly, then came and stood before his son. "Look here; do you think you're doin' the square thing by me? Do you? How much you worth?"

"I've got between seven and eight thousand a year clear of my own, outside the salary. That much is mine whether I work or not."

"It is? You could 'a' pulled it out without me, I suppose you think, at your age?"

"No. But it's mine, and it's enough."

"My Lord! It's about what a congressman gets, and you want to quit there! I suppose you think you'll get the rest when I kick the bucket, and all you have to do is lay back and wait! You let me tell you right here, you'll never see one cent of it. You go out o' business now, and what would you know about handlin' it five or ten or twenty years from now? Because I intend to stay here a little while yet, my boy! They'd either get it away from you or you'd sell for a nickel and let it be split up and—" He whirled about, marched to the other end of the room, and stood silent a moment. Then he said, solemnly: "Listen. If you go out now, you leave me in the lurch, with nothin' on God's green earth to depend on but your brother—and you know what he is. I've depended on you for it all since Jim died. Now you've listened to that dam' doctor, and he says maybe you won't ever be as good a man as you were, and that certainly you won't be for a year or so—probably more. Now, that's all a lie. Men don't break down that way at your age. Look at me! And I tell you, you can shake this thing off. All you need is a little get-up and a little gumption. Men don't go away for years and then come back into moving businesses like ours—they lose the strings. And if you could, I won't let you—if you lay down on me now, I won't—and that's because if you lay down you prove you ain't the man I thought you were." He cleared his throat and finished quietly: "Roscoe, will you take a month's vacation and come back and go to it?"

"No," said Roscoe, listlessly. "I'm through."

"All right," said Sheridan. He picked up the evening paper from a table, went to a chair by the fire and sat down, his back to his son. "Goodby."

Roscoe rose, his head hanging, but there was a dull relief in his eyes. "Best I can do," he muttered, seeming about to depart, yet lingering. "I figure it out a good deal like this," he said. "I didn't know my job was any strain, and I managed all right, but from what—from what I hear, I was just up to the limit of my nerves from overwork, and the—the trouble at home was the extra strain that's fixed me the way I am. I tried to brace, so I could stand the work and the trouble too, on whisky—and that put the finish to me! I—I'm not hitting it as hard as I was for a while, and I reckon pretty soon if I can get to feeling a little more energy, I better try to quit entirely—I don't know. I'm all in—and the doctor says so. I thought I was running along fine up to a few months ago, but all the time I was ready to bust, and didn't know it. Now, then, I don't want you to blame Sibyl, and if I were you I wouldn't speak of her as 'that woman,' because she's your daughter-in-law and going to stay that way. She didn't do anything wicked. It was a shock to me, and I don't deny it, to find what she had done—encouraging that fellow to hang around her after he began trying to flirt with her, and losing her head over him the way she did. I don't deny it was a shock and that it'll always be a hurt inside of me I'll never get over. But it was my fault; I didn't understand a woman's nature." Poor Roscoe spoke in the most profound and desolate earnest. "A woman craves society, and gayety, and meeting attractive people, and traveling. Well, I can't give her the other things, but I can give her the traveling—real traveling, not just going to Atlantic City or New Orleans, the way she has, two, three times. A woman has to have something in her life besides a business man. And that's all I was. I never understood till I heard her talking when she was so sick, and I believe if you'd heard her then you wouldn't speak so hard-heartedly about her; I believe you might have forgiven her like I have. That's all. I never cared anything for any girl but her in my life, but I was so busy with business I put it ahead of her. I never thought about her. I was so busy thinking business. Well, this is where it's brought us to—and now when you talk about 'business' to me I feel the way you do when anybody talks about Gurney to you. The word 'business' makes me dizzy—it makes be honestly sick at the stomach. I believe if I had to go downtown and step inside that office door I'd fall down on the floor, deathly sick. You talk about a 'month's vacation'—and I get just as sick. I'm rattled—I can't explain—I haven't got any plans—can't make any, except to take my girl and get just as far away from that office as I can—and stay. We're going to Japan first, and if we—"

His father rustled the paper. "I said goodby, Roscoe."

"Goodby," said Roscoe, listlessly.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Sheridan waited until he heard the sound of the outer door closing; then he rose and pushed a tiny disk set in the wall. Jackson appeared.

"Has Bibbs got home from work?"

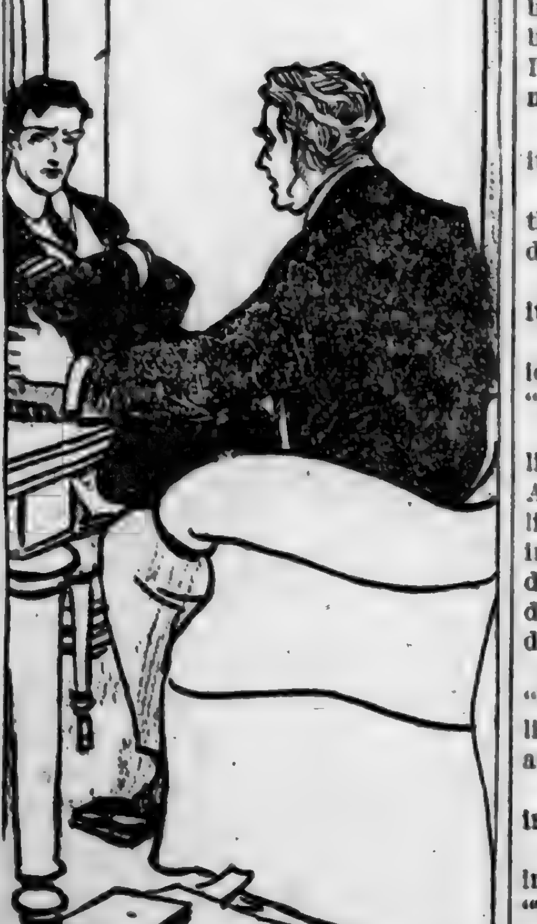
"Mist' Bibbs? No, suh."

"Tell him I want to see him, soon as he comes."

"Yessuh."

Sheridan returned to his chair and fixed his attention fiercely upon the newspaper. He found it difficult to pursue the items beyond their explanatory rubrics—there was nothing unusual or startling to concentrate his attention.

"Motorman Puts Blame on Brakes, Three Killed When Car Slides." "Burglars Make Big Haul." "Board Works Approve Big Car-line Extension." "Hold-up Men Injure Two. Man Found in Alley, Skull Fractured." "Sickening Story Told in Divorce Court." "Plan New Eighteen-story Structure." "Schoolgirl Meets Death Under Automobile." "Negro Cuts Three. One Dead." "Life Crushed Out. Third Elevator Accident in Same Building Causes Action by Coroner." "Declare Militia Will be Menace. Polish Societies Protest to Governor in Church Rioting Case." "Short $3,500 in Accounts, Trusted Man Kills Self With Drug." "Found Frozen. Family Without Food or Fuel. Baby Dead When Parents Return Home From Seeking Work." "Minister Returned From Trip Abroad Lectures on Big Future of Our City, Sees Big Improvement During Short Absence. Says No European City Holds Candle." (Sheridan nodded approvingly here.)



"You're My Last Chance."

Bibbs came through the hall whistling, and entered the room briskly. "Well, father, did you want me?"

"Yes. Sit down." Sheridan got up, and Bibbs took a seat by the fire, holding out his hands to the crackling blaze, for it was cold outdoors.

"I came within seven of the shop record today," he said. "I handled more strips that any other workman has any day this month. The nearest to me is sixteen behind."

"There!" exclaimed his father, greatly pleased. "What'd I tell you? I'd like to hear Gurney hint again that I wasn't right in sending you there—I would just like to hear him! And you—ain't you ashamed of makin' such a fuss about it? Ain't you?"

"I didn't go at it in the right spirit the other time," Bibbs said, smiling brightly, his face ruddy in the chereful firelight. "I didn't know the difference it meant to like a thing."

"Well, I guess I've pretty thoroughly vindicated my judgment. I guess I have! I said the shop'd be good for you, and it was. I said it wouldn't hurt you, and it hasn't. It's been just exactly what I said it would be. Ain't that so?"

"Looks like it!" Bibbs agreed, gayly.

"Well, I'd like to know any place I been wrong, first and last! Instead o' hurtin' you, it's been the makin' of you—physically. It's started you out to be the huskiest one o' the whole family. Now, then, mentally—that's different. I don't say it unkindly, Bibbs, but you got to do something for yourself mentally, just like what's been done physically. And I'm goin' to help you."

Sheridan decided to sit down again. He brought his chair close to his son's, and, leaning over, tapped Bibbs' knee confidentially. "I got plans for you, Bibbs," he said.

Bibbs instantly looked thoroughly alarmed. He drew back. "I—I'm all right now, father."

"Listen." Sheridan settled himself in his chair, and spoke in the tone of a reasonable man reasoning. "Listen here, Bibbs. I had another blow today, and it was a hard one and right in the face, though I have been expectin' it some little time back. Well, it's got to be met. Now I'll be frank with you. As I said a minute ago, mentally I couldn't ever called you exactly strong. You got will power, I'll say that for you. I never knew boy or man that could be stubborner—never one in my life! Now, then, you've showed you could learn to run that machine best of any man in the shop, in no time at all. That looks to me like you could learn to do other things. I don't deny but what it's an encouragin' sign. I don't deny that at all. Now, then, I'm goin' to give you a raise. I wanted to send you straight on up through the shops—a year or two, maybe—but I can't do it. I lost Jim, and now I've lost Roscoe. He's quit. He's laid down on me. If he ever comes back at all, he'll be a long time pickin' up the strings, and, anyway, he ain't the man I thought he was. I can't count on him. I got to have somebody I know I can count on. And I'm down to this: you're my last chance. Bibbs, I got to learn you to use what brains you got and see if we can't develop 'em a little. Who knows? And I'm goin' to put my time in on it. I'm goin' to take you right downtown with me, and I won't be hard on you if you're a little slow at first. And I'm goin' to do the big thing for you. I'm goin' to make you feel you got to do the big thing for me, in return. I'm goin' to make an appeal to your ambition that'll make you dizzy!" He tapped his son on the knee again. "Bibbs, I'm goin' to start you off this way: I'm goin' to make you a director in the Pump Works company; I'm goin' to make you vice president of the Realty company and a vice-president of the Trust company!"

Bibbs jumped to his feet, blanched. "Oh, no!" he cried.

Sheridan took his dismay to be the excitement of sudden joy. "Yes, sir! And there's some pretty fat little salaries goes with those vice-presidencies, and a pinch o' stock in the Pump company with the directorship. You thought I was pretty mean about the shop—oh, I know you did!—but you see the old man can play both ways. And so right now, the minute you've begun to make good the way I wanted you to, I deal from the new deck. And I'll keep on handin' it out bigger and bigger every time you show me you're big enough to play the hand I deal you. I'm startin' you with a pretty big one, my boy!"

"But I don't—I don't—I don't want it!" Bibbs stammered.

Sheridan looked perplexed. "What's the matter with you? Didn't you understand what I was tellin' you?"

"I know, I know! But I can't take it."

"What's the matter with you?" Sheridan was half amazed, half suspicious. "Your head feel funny?"

"I've never been quite so sane in my life," said Bibbs, "as I have lately. And I've got just what I want. I'm living exactly the right life. I'm earning my daily bread, and I'm happy in doing it. My wages are enough. I don't want any more money, and I don't deserve any—"

"Damnation!" Sheridan sprang up. "You've turned Socialist! You been listening to those fellows down there, and you—"

"No, sir. I think there's a great deal in what they say, but that isn't it."

Sheridan tried to restrain his growing fury, and succeeded partially. "Then what is it? What's the matter?"

"Nothing," his son returned, nervously. "Nothing—except that I'm content. I don't want to change anything."

"Why not?"

Bibbs had the incredible folly to try to explain. "I'll tell you, father, if I can. I know it may be hard to understand—"

"Yes, I think it may be," said Sheridan, grimly. "What you say usually is a little that way. Go on!"

Do you think the old man will head Bibbs, or will he put the young man out of his life and cut him off?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

AUGUST

L 908

0281

Public Sales

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located ¼ mile south Saylor's School House and 1½ mile north of St. Joe

Saturday, Sept. 2.

Beginning at 10 a. m. the following:

Good work mare 12 yr. old weighing 1250; 2 milk cows 6-yr. old, all giving good flow milk, will be fresh Jan. 9 and 16; 7-mo. old Steer; 9 good spring pigs weighing about 75 lb; Brood sow due to farrow Sept. 21; 75 Rhode Island Red and Plymouth Rock chickens; Thoroughbred Scotch Colley Female Dog 1-yr. old; 50 gallon good cider vinegar; 10 cord dry mixed wood.

IMPLEMENTS: Keystone hay loader good as new; Spring tooth harrow; New buckboard, Set single work harness, New cross cut saw and filing tools; Sledge hammer; Wedge; Pitch forks; 3-horse evener and other articles not mentioned

Lunch Served on the Grounds.

Marvin D. Poper

J. L. Rhodenbaugh, Auct.
A. D. Brunson, Clerk.

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at the late residence of C W. Widney, Jr., located ½ mile west of Concord, on

Thursday, Sept. 7

HORSES: 1 team of good drivers 7 years old, weight 1,200; Single driver weighing 1,100 pounds, is a good general purpose horse.

CATTLE: 6 good dairy cows, 2 Herfords, 2 Durham and 2 Holstein 2 Holstein bull calves, 1 Holstein heifer calf.

4 pigs weighing from 80 to 90lbs.

1 lot of Plymouth Rock chickens 50 old hens and 100 young pullets.

TOOLS: Farm wagon with 3 inch tire, Hay rack, Good set dump boards, Light farm wagon, Single top buggy, Set double harness good as new, Set single harness, 1 Gale riding cultivator, Mower, Spring and Spike tooth harrow, 12 inch breaking plow, Double shovel plow, Set sleigh runners, Buggy pole, 1 Garden seed drill, Forks, Shovels, Hoes, Rake, Scythe, New DeLaval Cream Separator, Water Cream Separator, Milk can, 3 pails, Good chicken house.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS: Consisting of Stove, Tables, Chairs, Cupboard, and other small articles.

Oats and Hay in the barn.
4 acres standing corn.
¼ acre of cow beets.
¼ acre sweet corn.
Old corn in crib

FARM will be offered at Private Sale.

Sarah B. Widney,
Widow of C. W. Widney, Jr.
J. L. Rhodenbaugh, Auct.
A. D. Brunson, Clerk.

St. Joe Locals

Meade Baker, of Wabash, was home from Thursday until Tuesday.

Fred Jenkins and wife spent a few days at Hamilton lake this week.

George Brown, of Danville, was a guest in the Swineford and Curie homes a few days last week while his wife visited Auburn relatives.

APPLYING FERTILIZERS ON WHEAT

1.—APPLY ALL THE FERTILIZER THROUGH THE FERTILIZER ATTACHMENT OF THE GRAIN DRILL AT SEEDING TIME.

2.—IF YOU HAVE NO DRILL WITH FERTILIZER ATTACHMENT APPLY ALL THROUGH BROADCAST LIME AND FERTILIZER DISTRIBUTOR.

BE SURE TO WORK THE FERTILIZER INTO THE SOIL THOROUGHLY BEFORE SOWING WHEAT.

WHEAT IN THE CORN STUBBLE

METHOD OF SEEDING GROWING POPULAR BECAUSE OF LABOR-SAVING.

The growing of wheat on corn stubble is a practice that has stood the test because it helps to solve the labor problem, makes the popular three-year rotation of corn, wheat and clover possible and insures an excellent crop of wheat at a good profit providing the land is properly handled. As a general rule do not plow, but disk corn stubble for wheat. Prepare the corn field well, keep it mellow, free from weeds and conserve the moisture by frequent cultivation. The corn should be planted early and be of a quick maturing variety, so it may be cut in time to sow the wheat on a well prepared seed bed. The shocks should be close in the row and the rows as wide apart as the corn can be carried to advantage. An evener stand of grass will be secured if the shock rows are seeded to oats or barley and grass in the spring instead of endeavoring to seed in the fall between the corn shocks as some do.

In Standing Corn.

For seeding in standing corn use the one-horse disk drill. The same rules of seedbed preparation and cultivation apply as when seeding on corn stubble. Proper cultivation during the summer should leave the land in a fine mellow condition. If the land is hard at seeding time, loosen it with a strong one-horse harrow or cultivator. During the winter, break or cut down the cornstalks, leaving them as a mulch for the wheat and young grass.

Never drag or roll the land after the wheat drill. Leave the seedbed as the drill has left it with the small ridges intact. These will molder down during the winter and feed the roots of the young wheat and grass and thus prevent their heaving during freezing and thawing weather.

DOUBLE PROFITS FROM WHEAT

Millers pay more per bushel for high quality wheat than they do for that which only grades number four or five, according to a Chicago Board of Trade Member. Ohio Experiment Station Bulletin 243 shows high quality wheat and large yields go together, thus giving the farmer double profits. The experiments reported in Bulletin 243 show a yield of 8.45 bushels of wheat per acre with 51 per cent plump and 49 per cent shriveled kernels, where no fertilizers were used, against a yield of as high as 34.15 bushels per acre of which 94 per cent of the kernels were plump and but 6 per cent shriveled when the wheat was fertilized.

From 300 to 500 pounds to the acre of a suitable wheat fertilizer produces wheat that has nearly 100 per cent plump, heavy kernels and at the same time increases the yield. This means double profits on the money invested in fertilizers as there are more bushels of wheat grading No. 1 or 2 instead of No. 4 or 5 or lower.

WHEAT ROTATIONS

The proper place for wheat in a crop rotation depends upon local conditions, but is usually after corn or oats, potatoes, an early truck crop, or an annual legume, as soy beans or cowpeas. The most bushels per acre of high-quality wheat are more likely to be obtained following clover. However, it is better to follow clover with corn so the clover can grow the entire season instead of being turned under early, as is necessary when followed by wheat. Seedbed preparation is one of the most costly factors in growing wheat. Plowing is the most expensive part of seedbed preparation, and when it can be eliminated without decreasing the yield of wheat it should be done. Disking instead of plowing is all that is necessary in preparing potato ground, corn stubble, sandy or other land that is clean and friable.

WANTED!

YOUR POULTRY

For which we will pay the highest market price.

Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

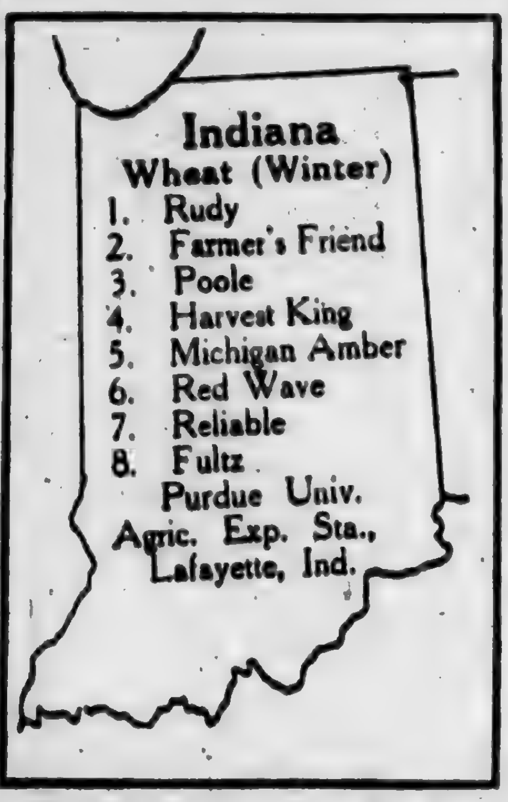
KILL THE SMUT

PREVENT LOW YIELD AND POOR QUALITY BY GIVING YOUR SEED WHEAT A BATH.

Disinfection and proper methods of sanitation help keep the human family free from disease. Crop rotation helps keep the soil free from disease, while certain treatments of seed prevent particular wheat diseases. Wheat rust may be avoided largely by growing an early maturing variety. Stinking smut in wheat may be treated the same as smut in oats, that is, by giving the wheat a bath. Spread the seed on the barn floor and thoroughly sprinkle it with a solution of one pound of formalin to 40 gallons of water. Shovel the grain as it is being sprinkled, cover with sacks 2 to 12 hours, and spread out to dry.

If there are smut balls in the wheat the sprinkling method is not effective but the wheat must be dipped as follows: Pour the formalin solution into a tub or barrel, put in the wheat and leave it there for ten minutes. Stir constantly with a paddle and skim off all smut balls and scum that rises to the surface. The solution may then be poured into another vessel and the grain spread out to dry on a clean, disinfected floor. The formalin treatment also checks the disease known as anthracnose. Disinfect the drill box and tubes and dip the sacks that hold the treated seed in the solution and dry before filling.

INDIANA WHEAT VARIETIES



The varieties named in the above drawing, after many years' testing, are being recommended by the Indiana experiment station as those best adapted and most profitable for the Indiana farmer. When a new variety is introduced let it bear the approval of your Experiment Station.

WHEAT AND EFFICIENCY

Farm practice on thousands of American and European farms, together with the results obtained by more than 50 years' testing by foreign experiment stations combined with more than 30 years' work by American experiment stations have demonstrated that the yields and net profits from the United States wheat crop can be increased many times. The elimination of smut from wheat in the United States would save American farmers from ten to fifteen million dollars annually. The control of the Hessian fly would save many times that amount. The use of a sufficient amount of a balanced plantfood ration has added 8 to 12 bushels per acre to the average annual yield of a single community. Sixteen Indiana farmers, by the use of 200 pounds of fertilizer per acre, raised an average of 30 bushels of wheat per acre. Last summer, 36 farmers in Ohio averaged 38.1 bushels per acre. These results secured by farmers on their own farms, demonstrate without a question of a doubt, that it is possible to greatly increase yields and profits.

ST. JOE.

Miss Ethel Wallace is now spending her vacation in Michigan.

H. L. Dunkle and family and Ed Leighty and wife motored to Fort Wayne, Sunday.

Mr. Gust Baker and Mrs. Mary McConnell, of Ft. Wayne, and Morris Lothamer, wife and son, spent Sunday at Hamilton Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Cruikshank entertained Friday evening the Sunday school class of which Miss Mame Burlingame belongs in honor of her engagement to Mr. Lloyd Coburn. A miscellaneous shower was tendered in token of the high esteem in which they hold Miss Burlingame. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess. Nineteen were present and a very pleasant evening spent together.—The Hicksville News.

STAR OF FILMDOM

Mary Fuller.

Young actress who has risen high in the movie world

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Washington, Monroe and Jackson were soldiers in the Revolutionary war; Jackson, W. H. Harrison, Tyler and Buchanan in the war of 1812-15; Lincoln in the Black Hawk war; Taylor, Pierce and Grant in the Mexican war; Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, B. Harrison, and McKinley in the Civil war, and Roosevelt was in the war with Spain. Adams and Jefferson were signers of the Declaration of Independence, and Washington and Madison of the Constitution.

Serious Obstacle.

"Mr. Dubwaite is so anxious to go to Mexico and fight that Mrs. Dubwaite can hardly restrain him."

"I had no idea he was so warlike."

"Yes. There's only one thing that keeps him from going."

"What is that?"

"He says the social inferiority of a private is more than he could endure."

Wise and Otherwise.

Wise is he who has the cage ready for the bird.

Old age commands respect—except in jests and poultry.

If you can get a horse at a bargain—drive the bargain.

The worst man is sometimes capable of giving the best advice.

When a fool is angry he opens his mouth and closes his eyes.

The rich are able but not liberal; the poor are liberal but not able.

Women have never been able to find a successful way of keeping secrets.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Grant was christened Hiram Ulysses; Cleveland, Stephen Grover, and Wilson, Thomas Woodrow, the first name being dropped in early college life. W. H. Harrison was the oldest man elected to the presidency, and Roosevelt the youngest, Grant being the next youngest by six months. Cleveland was the only president married in the White House, and his second daughter the only president's child born therein. Monroe's daughter (Mrs. Gouverneur), Grant's daughter (Mrs. Sartoris), and Roosevelt's daughter (Mrs. Longworth), were the only children of presidents married therein, till the recent weddings of Jessie and Eleanor Wilson. Wives of Tyler, Wilson and Benjamin Harrison died in the White House. W. H. Harrison was father of the largest family, six sons and four daughters. Eight presidents, Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, W. H. Harrison, Tyler, Taylor and Wilson were Virginians by birth. Six presidents, Grant, Hayes, B. Harrison, McKinley and Taft were Ohioans by birth.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office, ... No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

Local Briefs

S. L. Widney was on the sick list a few days the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson called on Mrs J. P. Buckingham at the St. Joseph hospital at Fort Wayne Sunday and report her as doing as well as can be expected.

The Alumni Association of the St Joe High School will hold their picnic in the Erick grove south of town, on September 9th All members will take notice and try and be present.

Allen county is quarentined against the taking of children into any public gatherings under the of 16 years, due to 6 cases of Infantile paralysis in Fort Wayne This decree of the authorities will hold until October 1st.

Mrs. Dell Coburn says: Mr. Editor, "please take our local advertisement out of THE NEWS, we sold our cow." Only one issue needed to dispose of it and not a cent of expense to her. It was run in the Free column, open to subscribers who have no regular business to advertise.

Miss Alice Richmond returned to St. Joe Monday after a ten days visit with Waterloo relatives. She left St. Joe the same evening on No. 6 for her home at Pittsburgh. She has been here for the summer doing the housework for Mrs. Randall.

Mrs. W. H. Schrock of Elkhart, called on old St. Joe friends a few days the past week Sunday morning she made a short talk before the Lutheran Sunday school that pleased everyone and recalled the pleasant memories of the service of Rev. Schrock and herself while on the work here.

Cured of Terrible Cough.

Mrs John Polter of 839 S. Williams street, Paulding, Ohio, says: "I took a severe cold in August which acted like hay fever, I thought the cold would soon wear off so I neglected to doctor for it. It went to my lungs and from that time on I coughed almost continually day and night until I began to spit blood. I lost in weight and looked so bad that people thought I had tuberculosis. I tried Glando Pine. The first bottle helped me. I used three bottles straight, then less frequent until I was cured. I am now perfectly well and firmly believe Glando Pine saved my life. I would not think of being without this wonderful medicine in my home. My throat and catarrhal trouble has also ceased to bother me."

Glando Pine can be secured at drug stores. Accept no substitute. For sale by All Druggists.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching services 10:30 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Prayer Meeting on Wednesday evening.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching Services, 7:30 p. m.

Christian Church Announcements;

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m. Morning Worship by W. R. Wyric, 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
F. K. Mumma Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Patronize

the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President	Joseph A. Grabill, Director
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.	Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Albert Egly, Cashier	Julius Gehrig, Director

John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

L 908

SEPTEMBER

SEPTEMBER

0283

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY SEPT. 7 1916 NO. 37

Notice of Receiver's Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I will offer for sale at private sale, beginning September 19, 1916, and continuing from day to day until I get the best offer, the hardware stock of which I have been appointed Receiver in the case of Simmons Hardware Company vs. Laurin L Cole, D Price Cole, and others, in the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Such sale will be made at the store known as the St. Joe Hardware Company, in the Town of St Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana, where said stock is situated, and subject to examination by those who may desire to purchase it.

The sale must be for not less than two-thirds of the appraised value, according to the appraisement now on file and in possession of the Receiver.

TERMS OF SALE: Said sale will be made for cash, or part cash and good bankable note for the balance, running not longer than sixty days from date of sale, waiving valuation and appraisement laws of the State of Indiana, with six per cent interest from date, and attorney fees.

Dated at St. Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana, this 5th day of September, 1916.

JOHN D SMITH,
38— Receiver.

Chicken Supper

The following will be served at the Lutheran supper, Saturday evening: Chicken, warm biscuit, potatoes, coleslaw, apple sauce, pickles, jelly, bread, butter, cake, fruit, tea, coffee, at 20 cents. Parcel post sale in connection.

Is Quite Ill.

Willis Bishop, residing four and a half miles west of St. Joe, is seriously ill at this time. Bowel trouble is his complaint and as he is getting up in years and the complaint has almost become chronic, his condition has become alarming.

Order Saturday Evening Post, 5c

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sechler Saturday night, a boy.

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keiler, Spencerville

Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton of Butler, spent Sunday with James and Wm. Hamilton.

Joseph Caw, of Detroit, spent Sunday and Monday with his family at the Rolland Bearss home.

Tom Abel is taking his fifteen days vacation as carrier on route No 1, and Frank Curie is assistant.

More wheat to the acre when you use Bradley's Fertilizer. A car load is being received by Wm Curie this week.

W. E. Turritin and wife of Bowling Green, Ohio, were over Sunday guests of G. M. Barney's. Miss Pauline returned with them after several weeks visit.

COAL We are beginning to get Coal coming our way. We can save you money by taking it from the car.

St. Joe Mills.

Merritt Barney had a streak of bad luck Monday evening, with his machine. He struck the large corner stone in the road near the Jolly farm, on his way to Hicksville. A hole was broken in the crank case and caused considerable damage. He summonesed help from St. Joe to come and get them.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	106	$3.36
M. P	104	3.60
Christian	62	2.62
Concord	78
Fairview	18	.53
M. E. Spencer	79	4.51
Lutheran	90	3.08
U. B.	100	3.40

Money Talks

but a neatly written check with your name signed to it says more and speaks LOUDER than words. It says that you are looking after the details of your business transactions and speaks for thrift.

Let a Check do your talking.

START NOW.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

FEEDERS

Get Your Bran and Middlings NOW.

They are advancing and will advance more.

Try a barrell of our salt and ask to see our rock block salt. It is great for cattle.

We are making St. Joe headquarters for all grains. You are always sure of getting the highest market price for whatever kind of grain you bring in.

Come in and pay us a visit. We will always be pleased to see you and you can always expect only the most courteous treatment, at

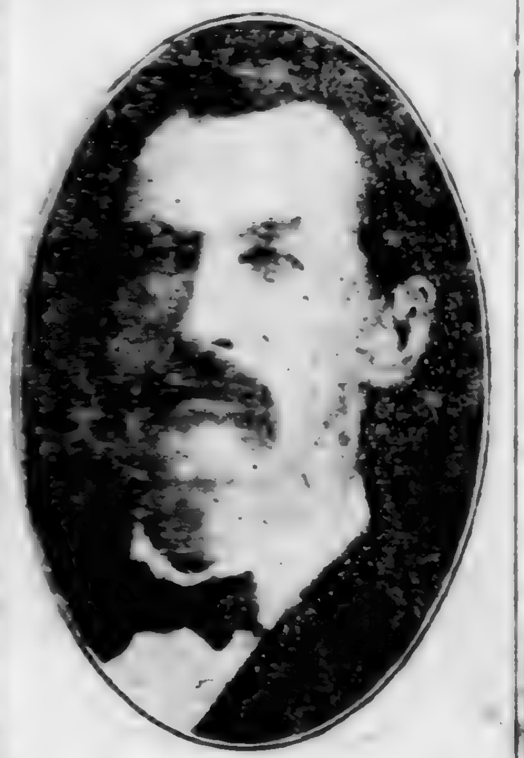
St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

Life of Chas. W. Widney, Jr.

Sudden Death of Prominent Concord Township Man. Will be Greatly Missed in the Circle of the Concord Church.

Charles Williams Widney, son of Samuel W. and Matildia Jane Thompson Widney, was born in Concord township, DeKalb county, Indiana, September 30, 1851, and died at his home near the place of his birth, August 24, 1916, at the age of 64 years, 10 months and 24 days. His father was a pioneer minister of the Methodist Protestant Church whose name is recorded on the Roll of Honor Dead of the Indiana Conference, he having died April 20, 1865, and it was under his ministerial labors that the Concord church was first organized. His mother, known to every one as Aunt Tillie, was an active church and temperance worker and died in this county in 1909.



Chas. W. Widney

He was married to Sarah Bowerman of Lenawee County, Michigan on October 2, 1869. To this union were born five children, three of whom are living. They are: Florence Anetta Hale of New Iberia, Louisiana; Clarence Lavergne Widney of Chickasha, Oklahoma and Ida Esther Widney of Concord. A son, Charles Harvey died 1886 at the age of 12 years and a daughter, Rosa May, died in 1899 at the age of 17 years.

In 1879 Mr. Widney went South with his family which then consisted of his wife and three small children, and located in Louisiana where he continued to live until ten years ago when he returned north and for the past seven years has lived in Concord township.

Brother Widney professed a saving faith in Christ many years ago and when he returned to this state and county he and his wife united by letter with the Methodist Protestant church at Saint Joe, and afterwards having located near Concord were transferred to this church of which he was a member at the time of his death.

Rev. Samuel Widney-his Father

He was serving on the board of parsonage trustees of this pastoral charge and was also especially faithful and efficient as the Quarterly Conference secretary.

His life in the community is well known and the high esteem in which he was generally held speaks for itself of his Christian fidelity.

Aunt Tillie-his Mother

He had been in his usual health and retired on Tuesday evening as well as common and at about 10 P. M., his body was stricken with fatal illness and he soon lapsed into unconsciousness and on Thursday morning at about 7 o'clock his spirit took its departure.

He leaves to mourn their loss his wife and three children, 3 grandchildren, 1 great grandchild, and other relatives and many friends.

Funeral services were held from the Concord church at 1:30 o'clock Saturday Aug. 26. Rev. Coons, officiating. E. R. Kinsey, funeral director. Interment in the Riverside cemetery.

Personal Items

Dunkle's Big and Smooth Tablet is far ahead of others.

Politics opened yesterday in this county with Adair making the tour.

Hollis Dilley and wife were at Butler, the guests of relatives and friends Saturday night and Sunday.

ST. JOE MILLS are ready to recieve storage wheat for your next years supply, 35 lbs. flour 12 lbs. feed to the bushel.

Merritt Hull enjoyed an outing the first of the week at the home of Guy Walker and fished in the big St. Joe river east of Mishawaka.

The first of a series of four township Sunday School conventions will be held at Fairview on Sunday, September 17. Watch for program in next issue.

Jesse Copp and wife of New Haven were over Sunday guests of their parents here. They took dinner at the B. V. Widney home east of town and supper with F. M. Monroe and wife. Mr. and Mrs. A. Copp also took dinner with their daughter.

Send in your news items.

Dunkle's Drug Store has the School Supplies.

Snow is predicted for the closing of September. Can it go from 100 degrees to snow in that length of time.

Miss Violet Booth of Pierceton, Indiana, was an over Sunday guest of her cousin H. C. Hathaway and family.

Woodrow, the eighteen months son of J. C. Hart, received a bad cut on the forehead Friday evening when playing with his brothers and sisters in the shop back of their home. He fell over a piece of a board and struck on a new shovel cutting from the corner of the right eye outward about two inches requiring three stitches to close the wound. Dr. Sheffer was called and did the work. The eye was uninjured which was almost a miricle.

Legal Notice.

State of Indiana,
Co of De Kalb. } ss:

J. M. Beams, vs. Chas. Martin.

To Charles Martin.

Whereas J. M. Beams has filed in this Court his complaint, affidavit and bond for attachment of certain property alleged to belong to you, and also that you are a non-resident of the State of Indiana. You are therefore notified that said cause has been set for hearing on the 13th., day of Sept., 1916, and that unless you appear at that time and answer his complaint, said cause will be heard in your absence, and an order made for the sale of the said property.

L. O. WADE,
Justice of the Peace,
37— Spencer Township.

PUBLIC SALE!

Having sold my farm, and intending to move to Illinois, I will sell at Public Sale at my residence known as the A. L. Grill farm, 2 miles south of Spencerville, and 1-2 mile east of Horn's school house, on

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12

At 10 o'clock, the following property:

Horses: Brown mare 9 years old weighing 1,300; Black mare 6 years old weighing 1,250, both will work single or double; Driving horse 9 years old and weighs 1,050, is kind and gentle; 3 good heavy yearling draft colts, and Clarence the well known stallion, foaled in 1908, No. 4194, sired by Clarion De-Meerbeke 2397, is bay with star in forehead, weight 1,700, kind, gentle, good worker.

CATTLE! Durham Cow 8 years old giving milk, to be fresh December 11th; Durham cow 3 years old, to be fresh the middle of April.

2 (Chester White brood sows with pigs) 2

Farming Implements.

3½ inch tire Moline wagon nearly new, 2-seated carriage, top buggy, set single harness, 1 Osborne binder in good repair, good McCormick mower, new tight bottom hay rack, new Keystone hay loader, new side delivery hay rake, J.I. Case riding beeaking plow, 2 J. I. Case walking plows, spike tooth harrow, land roller, 2 good riding corn cultivators, new J. I. Case walking cultivator, John Deere corn planter, new double shovel plow, hand corn planter, grip lock pulleys, barb wire stretcher, log chains, forks, some furniture consisting of Round Oak range good as new, Garland wood heater, kitchen cabinet, new DeLaval cream separator, 8-ft. extension table, 6 dining chairs, new sideboard, Free sewing machine good as new, new dresser with large mirror, 4 iron bedsteads, springs and mattresses, 4 dark finish sitting room chairs and stand table to match, spring couch, small crib, cooking utensils, jars, and other articles not mention.

Lunch Served on the Grounds.

Terms: 12 months time with 8 per cent. interest if not paid when due. 4 per cent, disc't.

B. W. DWYER, Owner.

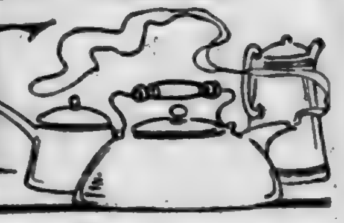
ELMER STURM, Auct. H. A. WALTER, Clerk.

SEPTEMBER

L 9

0284

The KITCHEN CABINET



DESSERTS FOR HOT DAYS.

He knows not his own strength who has not met adversity.—Ben Johnson.

Our critics and failures are our best friends.—Chas. Munn.

The iced dishes made of buttermilk or sour milk, egg, fruit juices and sugar, frozen as any ice cream, are most acceptable for a change during the hot weather and many like the flavor, finding them more agreeable than the richer ice creams.

Midsummer Ice.—Take a pint each of raspberries and currants, canned fruit will do. Put the fruit through a sieve and add a sirup of sugar and water, using a cupful of sugar to two of water; cool and add to the strained juice. Freeze as usual; serve with a garnish of preserved or fresh fruit.

Rice With Raspberry Sauce.—Cook rice and mold in a hollow mold. Turn on to a platter and surround with raspberry sauce, or jam or the fresh berries well mixed with sugar.

Raspberry Whip.—It is wise to prepare berries for this dish in their season. Simply mash them and mix with an equal bulk of sugar, then put in sterile jars and seal. Keep in the ice chest or on the floor of a cool cellar. Take a cupful and a half of the crushed berries and beat with two egg whites until stiff enough to stand in shape. Serve in high glasses with a soft custard. If fresh berries are used, add a cupful of powdered sugar to a cupful and a half of berries.

Raspberry Bavarian Cream.—Take a cupful and a half of sifted raspberry pulp and juice and the same amount of heavy cream, a cupful of sugar, if fruit is fresh, and a tablespoonful of gelatin, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a fourth of a cupful of water in which the gelatin was softened. Stir in the fruit juices with the gelatin until it begins to thicken. Whip the cream and fold it in, pour into a mold that has been lightly greased with olive oil. Chill five hours and serve with a garnish of fresh berries or jam.

Angel Food With Berries.—Cut angel food in squares, cover with sweetened crushed berries, top with whipped cream, and serve well chilled. This is such a simple dessert and yet most tasty. Sponge cake may be used in the place of angel food.

LIGHT DESSERTS.

You will realize the vision (not the idle wish) of your heart, be it base or beautiful, or a mixture of both, for you will always gravitate toward that which you secretly love. Into your hands will be placed the exact results of your own thoughts; you will receive that which you earn, no more, no less. Whatever your present environment may be, you will fall or rise with your own thoughts, your vision, your ideal. You will become as small as your controlling desire; as great as your dominant aspiration.—James Allen.

At the Palace of Sweets one finds many new tempting dishes that can be easily prepared at home. The banana split or banana royal is one of these. Split a well-ripened banana in two and place on a chilled plate, on the top of the fruit put a layer of vanilla ice cream and over this a little finely chopped or grated pineapple, a few chopped almonds and lastly a spoonful of whipped cream garnished with a cherry.

Walnut Delight.—Scald a pint of sweet milk with two level tablespoonfuls of cornstarch; add one-half cupful of sugar and cook until the starch is well done. Beat one egg until light, stir into the slightly cooled custard, then add a half cupful of chopped walnuts and a half teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into molds and allow to set. When ready to serve, garnish with two or three toasted marshmallows.

Marshmallow Glace.—Make a sirup of a cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of water, add ten marshmallows and allow them to melt. Stir and if too thick add a little hot water to make a sort of paste; flavor with vanilla and set aside to cool. Make a second sirup of a cupful of sugar and a half cupful of water, when well dissolved mix a little of the sirup with three teaspoonfuls of cocoa; stir into the sirup and melt the cocoa. Put portions of vanilla ice cream in sherbet cups, pour over some of the marshmallow mixture and over all the hot chocolate sirup. Serve immediately.

Chartreuse of Jelly.—Remove the center from a round sponge cake, leaving an inch at the bottom and sides.

Into this pour any flavored gelatin jelly when it is just ready to set. Serve with a cover of sweetened and flavored whipped cream and with a garnish of fresh fruits.

Custards with cocoanut are delicious. Put the custard in the cups, then over the top put a generous tablespoonful of fresh grated cocoanut and a grating of orange peel. A little more sugar will be needed in this custard, as the cocoanut increases the bulk.

SALADS FOR HOT DAYS.

To grow a little wiser day by day,
To school my mind and body to obey,
To keep my inner life both clean and strong;
To free my life from guile, my hand from wrong,
To shut the door on hate and scorn and pride,
To open then to love the windows wide.

During the hot days we eliminate as much heat from the house as possible and the thinking housewife remembers that foods produce heat, and those which give off the minimum are the foods to serve during the hot weather.

The one who reduces the heat-producing foods, starch, fat and sugar, and replaces them with foods not rich in these elements, will be better fitted to endure the weather without overheating the system.

Eggs, cheese, fish, in combination with various vegetables served in the place of meat are most attractive and satisfying salads.

Some vegetables are richer in the proteid element than others; peas, beans and lentils are the nearest to meat of any vegetable.

Roquefort Salad.—Prepare crisp head lettuce and arrange on individual plates. Prepare a salad dressing of a tablespoonful of vinegar to three of oil, a half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of red pepper; doubling this portion as needed. Cream a tablespoonful of roquefort cheese and add to the dressing, beaten well to blend, with an egg beater.

Cheese Jelly Salad.—Mix a half cupful of good flavored cheese with a cupful of whipped cream; add salt and pepper to season and a teaspoonful of gelatin dissolved in three-fourths of a cupful of water. Mold in one large or in individual molds. Cover each mold with grated cheese when it begins to harden. Serve with French dressing to which grated cheese has been added, as well as a tablespoonful of catchup.

Nearly all fruits have acids and salts in solution which are cooling, and that have tonic properties. A fruit salad is a most gratifying one to serve on a hot day; it serves as a salad and as a dessert. With the addition of a few nuts it will also be sufficiently nourishing.

Slice tomatoes, small ones, in halves, sprinkle with chopped, green peppers and onion and serve with French dressing.

SALADS AND SANDWICHES.

If we do our best, if we do not magnify trifling troubles; if we look resolutely, I do not say at the bright side of things, but at things as they really are; if we avail ourselves of the manifold blessings which surround us; we cannot but feel that life is indeed a glorious inheritance.—Sir John Lubbock.

Salads and sandwiches seem the most appropriate foods to serve for the light supper or refreshments on a hot day.

St. Regis Salad.—Wash a pair of sweetbreads and drop with a bay leaf into boiling water, simmer until tender, then chill by putting into cold water and cut in bits, removing all the membrane. Take equal parts of finely-cut celery and mix with the sweetbreads; add a handful of blanched almonds, cut in shreds. Walnuts may be used, but they are more difficult to blanch. Cut in halves, a cupful of Malaga grapes, removing the seeds, add mayonnaise dressing which has been mixed with a little whipped cream. Mix all the ingredients and arrange on individual plates in lettuce leaves. Garnish with stuffed olives, sliced. This will serve eight persons amply.

Fruit and Pepper Salad.—Cut in dice a small bunch of celery, enough to make three cupfuls; add four medium-sized apples and a can of pineapple, one can of red peppers and one sweet, green pepper, chopped. Mix lightly with mayonnaise dressing and serve in green pepper cups or in halves of lemons. These may be saved for the purpose when making lemonade. The green peppers may be cut, leaving a small handle like a basket.

Olive and Celery Sandwiches.—Chop separately in a chopping bowl an equal quantity of stuffed olives, (the kind stuffed with pimentos) and tender celery. Mix and moisten with sufficient mayonnaise dressing to spread easily. Put on buttered bread and cut in any desired form.

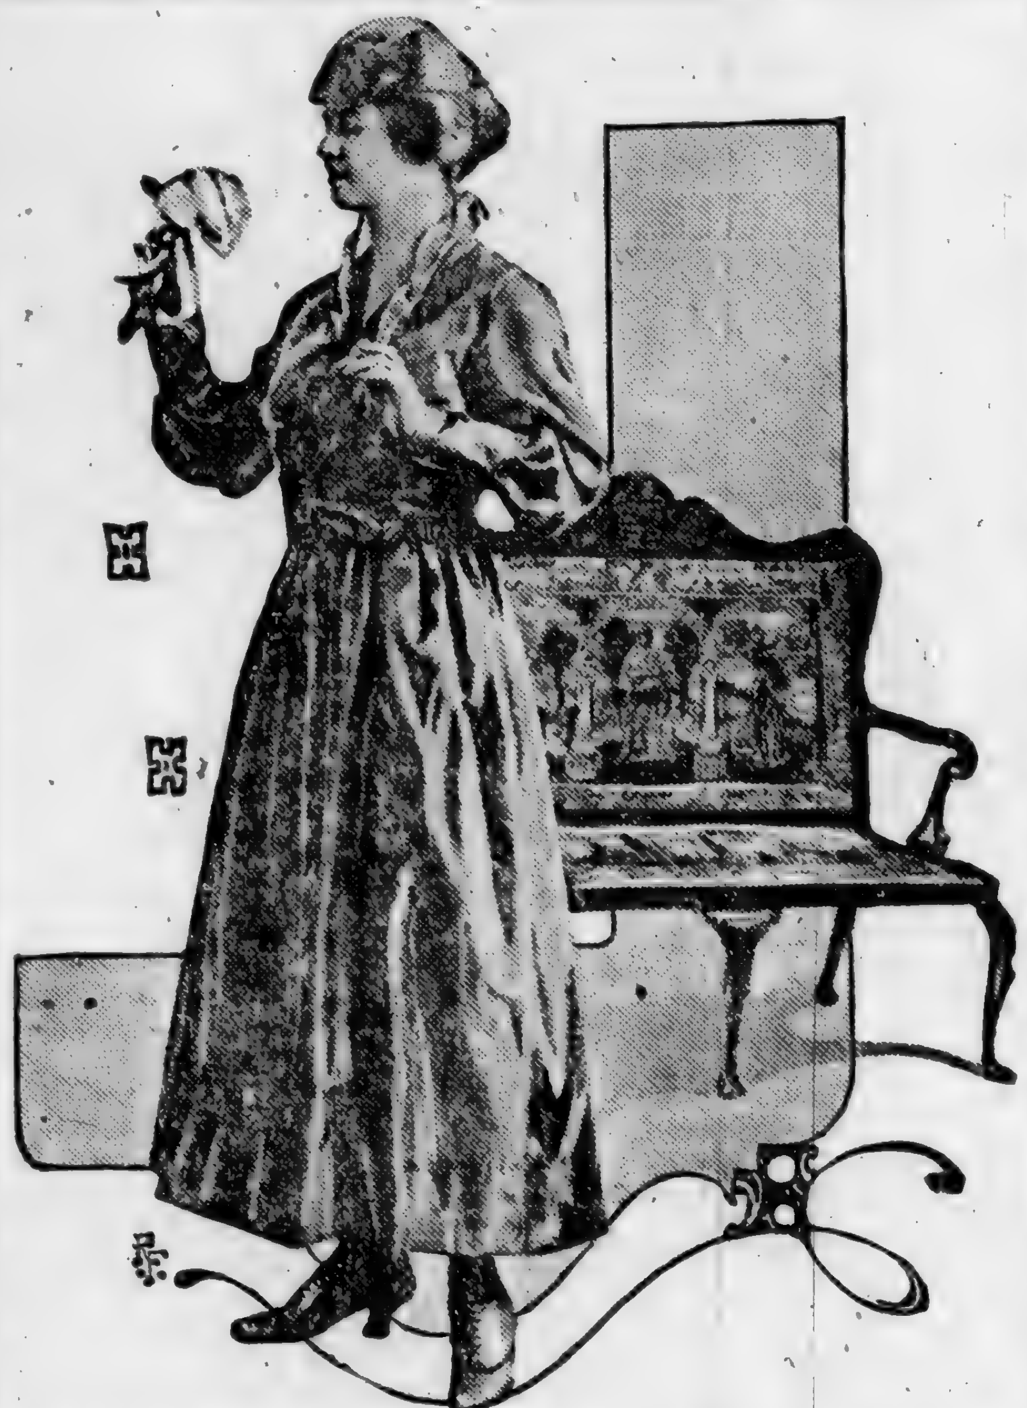
Poppy Seed Salad.—Place head lettuce, well crisped and drained, on the salad plates; sprinkle with grated sage cheese. Roast until well browned in a half cupful of poppy seeds and sprinkle over with salad. Serve with French dressing.

A tart apple chopped with equal quantities of southern onion served on lettuce with any good dressing is a most tasty salad.

Nellie Maxwell

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



For Wear in Autumn Days

An attractive frock of satin and georgette crepe shows a very conservative interpretation of the new mode which sometimes leaves the spectator in doubt as to whether the garment is a coat or a dress. But in this instance the coat indication is not very strong. An underpetticoat of crepe is finished at the bottom with a band of the satin, and a narrower band at the front decorates the panel effect.

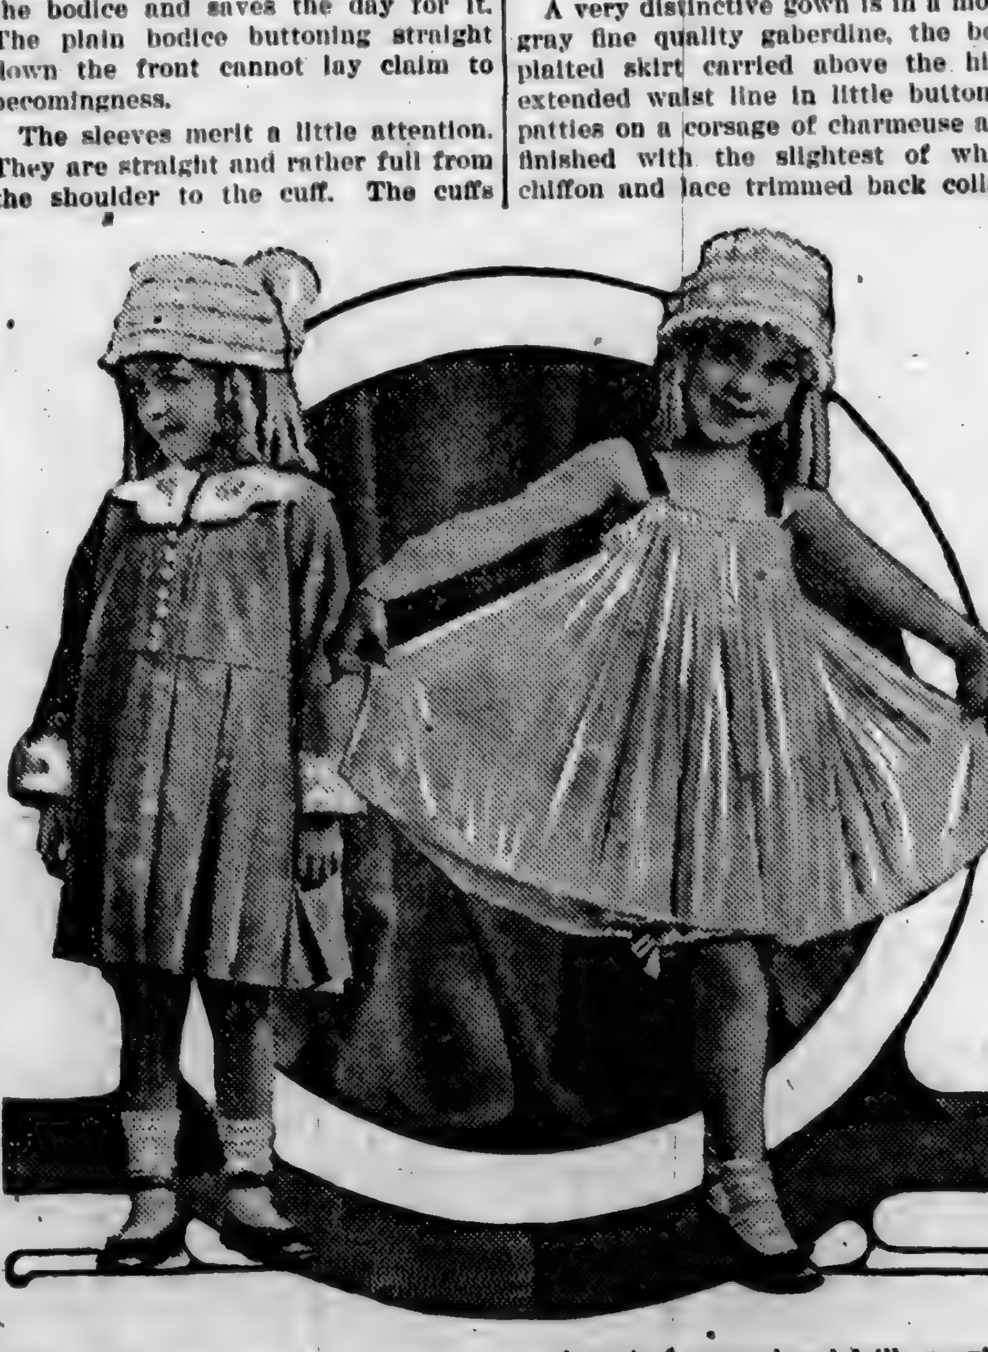
The bodice is simply cut and plain, but it sets close to the figure and buttons at the front, where there is a square cut-out at the neck. This is filled in with a small vestee of crepe, and a wired frill is set about the edge of the opening in the silk. The square opening corresponds with the style of the bodice and saves the day for it. The plain bodice buttoning straight down the front cannot lay claim to becomingness.

The sleeves merit a little attention. They are straight and rather full from the shoulder to the cuff. The cuffs are deep and turned to a rounded point on the upper side. They are finished with pipings where the sleeves are gathered into them.

The satin skirt is shirred at the top and set on to the bodice, making this portion of the skirt and bodice a single garment to be worn over the crepe underskirt. There are similar designs, made of cloth, in which even less of the crepe underskirt shows, and they are those that leave no doubt as to whether they are coats or dresses. For wear during the fall months, up to the advent of cold weather, they have everything to recommend them. Small separate capes of velvet or crepe and fur, with hats to match, are offered as accessories with these frocks, and no outfit for autumn days has ever presented more style.

Distinctive Gown.

A very distinctive gown is in a mole-gray fine quality gaberdine, the box-plaited skirt carried above the high extended waist line in little buttoned patties on a corsage of charmeuse and finished with the slightest of white chiffon and lace trimmed back collar.



Garbed for the Dancing Party

When little Marie dances she may wear the very simplest of all frocks, like that shown in the picture. It is nothing more than a straight piece of thin silk, chiffon or crepe, accordion plaited, and sewed into a narrow band of fine embroidered batiste or lace or organdie. The plaited material is cut out under the arms in a shallow curve, to make room for the arm, and the bodyless skirt is suspended by shoulder straps of velvet ribbon. A rather wide hem weights the silk a little and gives the dress a pretty "set."

Under this very simple affair, which hardly requires that one should think twice about it, an ample petticoat and small bloomers of batiste are trimmed with furbelows of lace and ribbon and disclose much more work in their making than is needed for the dress. Short sox and strap slippers are worn with this dancing garb.

A coat of rose-colored faille provides an outer garment for the festive occasion of this little miss. It has a plain body and box-plaited skirt and fastens at the front with snap fasteners. A row of small pearl buttons set close together make no pretense of being useful, but they please the eye. The little cuffs and collar are of fine eyelet work and embroidery on batiste.

The little bonnet is made of wide ribbon in light rose color. It is shirred in rows over small cords and has a soft puff for a crown. A big rosette of the same ribbon is posed at the back, which is unusual in bonnets for such small ladies.

Taffeta Blouses.

New taffeta blouses are quaint and novel in design. They may be cut long on the shoulder with a small circular flounce set in where the sleeve joins the shoulder. They have full bishop sleeves, straight panels front and back, and collars finished with small frills.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 10

THE ARREST OF PAUL.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 21:17-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt be a witness for him unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard.—Acts 22:15.

No study of the book of Acts is complete unless the teacher impresses upon his pupils the opportunities for living the Christian life in the normal environment of the home or school, at work or play. Deep interest attaches to every detail leading up to Paul's visit to Rome. Therefore let the teacher trace Paul's journey from Mileta to Jerusalem, which occupied about four weeks, and took place in the early part of the year A. D. 57.

I. The Arrival (vv 17-26). The Spirit revealed to the disciples and to prophets that if Paul went to this city he would be in great danger, and the Spirit was not forbidding but only teaching him for he knew Paul had a great work to do in Jerusalem, and that he only could do it. Everywhere Paul went he "searched for" (v. 7) disciples, with whom he tarried and whom he enlightened in the way of truth. Arriving in Jerusalem, he appears to have made his home with Mnason, outside of the crowded city, thus being less exposed to danger and finding a place of rest. At a public reception (v. 18) Paul reports of his work, and no doubt he laid his strongest emphasis on what God had wrought through him, among the churches of Asia. The leaders of the Jerusalem church received the gifts Paul brought from the Gentile churches, glorified God for what he had accomplished, but saw clearly that, to accomplish his statesmanlike purpose, something must be done to make clear that the false reports as to Paul's teaching were discredited (vv. 20-22). They therefore resorted to diplomacy (vv. 23-26). To the many thousands of Jews gathered on this festival occasion in the city, some of whom were zealous for the law, they declared first that Paul taught all the Jews which were among the Gentiles not to forsake Moses; second, that he had not taught them not to walk after the customs of Moses. The facts were Paul obeyed the Jewish ceremonial laws personally, as a matter of race, not as a condition of salvation.

II. The Arrest (vv. 27-36). Paul's attempt at conciliation resulted not in peace but in more discord. Every true servant of God is sure to be misrepresented, and it will not do always to attempt to set straight all the lies that are told about him. God will take care of the lies and of our reputations. Most of the charges that men, even Christians, bring against one another are based upon "supposition" (v. 29). It was not a new experience for Paul to be mobbed. As the maddened Jews dragged him out of the temple he must have recalled the treatment of Stephen in which he, himself, had had a hand (7:57, 58). How frequent it is that we, ourselves, are in due time treated in the same way in which we have treated others (Gal. 6:7). It was the intention of the Jews to kill Paul at once without a trial (26:9, 10). They fancied they were doing God's service (John 16:2). This lesson is a striking example of the utter folly and wickedness of mob law. Paul's time had not yet come, and all the mobs on earth could not kill him until God permitted it.

III. The Arraignment (vv. 37-40). Tidings of the riot came to the chief captain, equivalent to our colonel (Acts 23:26). Paul was bound with two chains, one from each of his arms to a soldier, secured, yet left free to walk with his guards, thus fulfilling the prophecy of Agabus (v. 21). Mobs usually have great respect for soldiers, for they are inwardly cowardly. No sooner was Paul on the stairs which led to the top of the fortress than the mob, afraid that they were about to be balked of their vengeance, made a mad rush at him, with cries of "Kill him; kill him!" and Paul, unable in his fettered condition to steady himself, was carried off his feet and hurried off in the same path his Master had trod (John 19:15) and he was again to hear that cry. (Ch. 22:22). During all this tumult Paul had but one thought, how he might witness for his Master, and bring some of his blinded accusers to a saving knowledge of Christ. Thus it was that he asked for the privilege of speaking, and most courteously did he make his request. He spoke to the captain in the Greek tongue, not in Hebrew, and great was the surprise of the captain.

Practical Application. When we are attacked, no matter for what cause, if we confidently look for deliverance and exercise self-control, God will take care of us.

Such conduct is disconcerting to our enemies.

Diplomacy is often dangerous and misunderstood.

Circumstantial evidence is never of great value.

There is, however, a desirable form of diplomacy as when Paul addressed the soldiers in his native tongue.

Paul's principle was in essentials, firmness; in non-essentials, liberty.

ELDERLY WOMEN SAFEGUARDED

Tell Others How They Were Carried Safely Through Change of Life.

Durand, Wis.—"I am the mother of fourteen children and I owe my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I was 45 and had the Change of Life, a friend recommended it and it gave me such relief from my bad feelings that I took several bottles. I am now well and healthy and recommend your Compound to other ladies." —Mrs. MARY RIDGWAY, Durand, Wis.

A Massachusetts Woman Writes:

Blackstone, Mass.—"My troubles were from my age, and I felt awfully sick for three years. I had hot flashes often and frequently suffered from pains. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now am well." —Mrs. PIERRE COURNOYER, Box 239, Blackstone, Mass.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness, should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through this crisis.

HERMIT'S FARE COSTS LITTLE

Reputed "Holy Man" of Japan Subsists on Laurel Leaves and a Few Raw Potatoes Daily.

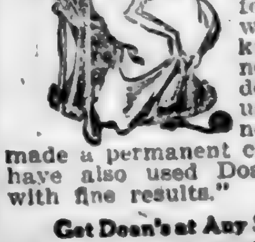
A hermit who has set up his private shrine by the wayside calls himself the incarnation of Fudosama, the god of fire. This mysterious man makes his abode in a little coop near the botanical gardens, paying a monthly rental of $2.25. On the plaster just below the paper window is written:

"The worshiping place of the wood-eating hermit."

Day and night one can see the flare of fire on the paper window and a low voice can be heard, says the East and West News. Every passer feels a queer sensation as he goes by. The visitor knocked at the dismal-looking entrance. The one who came to answer was the mysterious man. He looked to be about fifty-five and in his brawny and reflective features he showed a magnetic smile.

It seems he began his pious life by scorching his body with a lighted candle to save the life of his sick child. He fasted 21 days and practiced water meditation. The child recovered. His faith grew stronger. For 30 years past he has touched no rice or other cereal. Before the visitor he chewed some laurel leaves. Fifty of these, five raw potatoes, a little salt and water, were his daily fare. He is said to effect miraculous cures.

A ton of Campeche logwood, which is the best, is worth $200.



Feel All Used Up?

Does your back ache constantly? Do you have sharp twinges when stooping or lifting? Do you feel all used up—as if you could just go no further?

Kidney weakness brings great discomfort. What with backache, headache, dizziness and urinary disturbances it is no wonder one feels all used up.

Doan's Kidney Pills have cured thousands of just such cases. It's the best recommended special kidney remedy.

An Indiana Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Mrs. E. Speck, 283 E. Second St., Peru, Ind., says: "My back was lame and achy and I could hardly straighten after stooping. It was almost impossible for me to get up without help. I knew that my kidneys were disordered and I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills. They made a permanent cure. My relatives have also used Doan's Kidney Pills with fine results."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Your Liver Is Clogged Up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts—Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days.

They do their duty.

Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion and Sick Headache

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

APPENDICITIS

If you have been threatened or have GALLSTONES, INDIGESTION, GAS or pains in the right side write for valuable Book of Information FREE

[illegible] BOWERS, DEPT. W-8, 219 S. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO

SEPTEMBER

0285

UNUSUAL DESIGN FOR SMALL HOME

Excellent Balance Is Maintained Between the Exterior and the Interior.

HAS SEVEN LARGE ROOMS

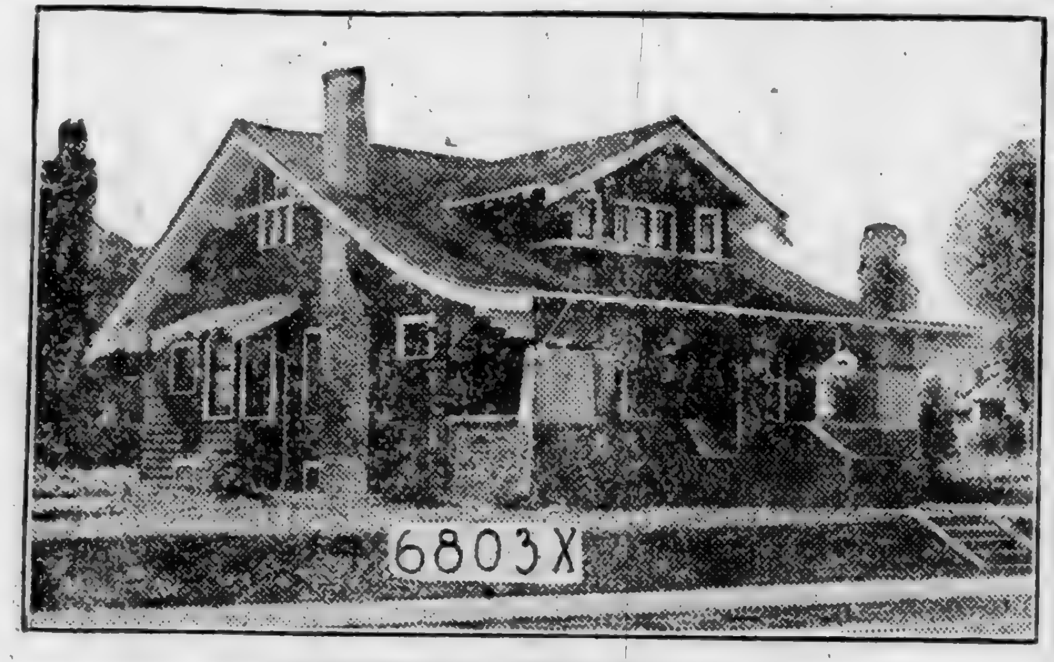
Yet It Has the Appearance of a Little Bungalow and There Is No Suggestion of Crowding—Many Conveniences Provided.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

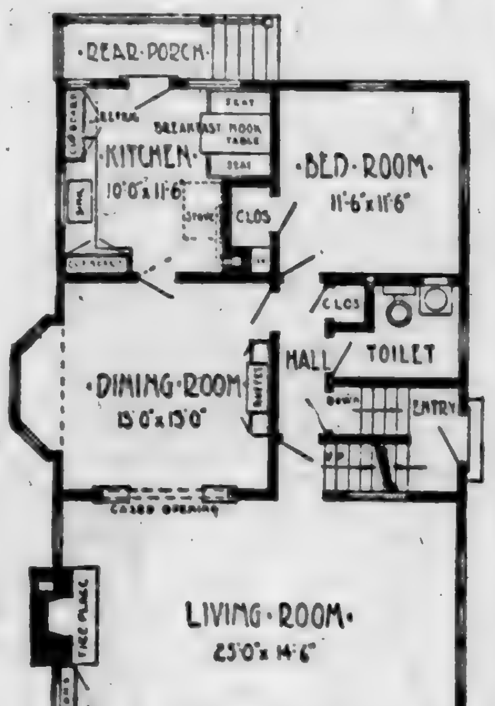
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

There are few people who do not desire an air of coziness in their home—that suggestion of snugness which seems a part of the little bungalow and extends an invitation to all who pass by to come into the little home where comforts are provided in every nook and corner. This quality seems to be always associated with a small home, and those who must have a larger house are often led to discard their desire in this direction and center their attention on arrangement of rooms only.

Perhaps the arrangement of rooms is of initial importance in planning a house, since the family will naturally derive the greatest benefits from living in it rather than standing on the outside where they can enjoy the outward appearance of it, but there is more than one reason why the home builder should expect the architect to extend the nicety of his design to exterior details and why he should himself be liberal with the architect in allowing the arrangement of rooms to be shifted until a balance is obtained which will favor neither the interior or the exterior. The home builder's suggestions are always a help to the architect and the house design which is based upon a fundamental skeleton set in the mind of the owner added to, refined and polished by the designer, who is not hampered by a set room arrangement, is many times the basis of a home which is far better than the dreams of the home builder had pictured it.



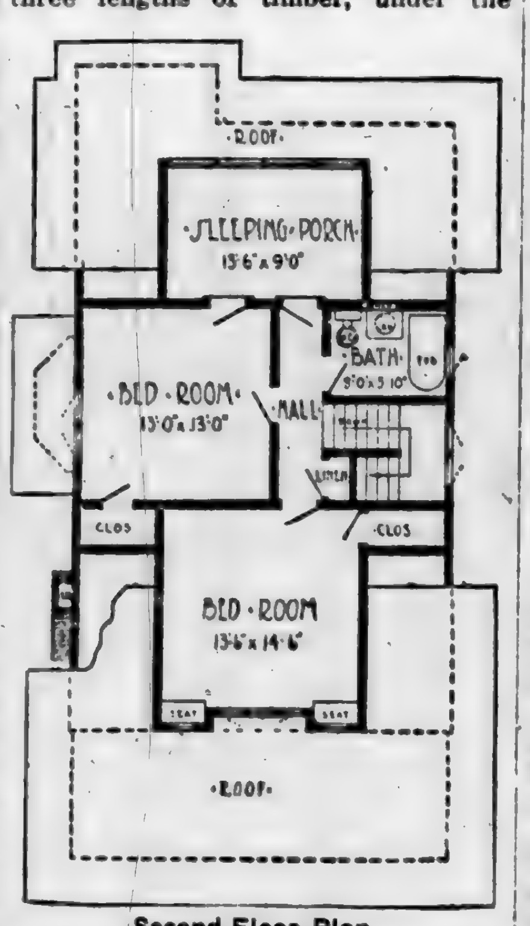
An Exceptionally Well-Designed Home.



First-Floor Plan.

In the illustration shown here a house is pictured which has every appearance of a little bungalow, with all of the cosiness and homelike atmosphere usually associated with such a house, and with more than the usual attention paid to details of finish. Yet a glance at the floor plans will show that seven large rooms have been tucked away within, and no suggestion of crowding is evident. The design is an exceptional one from every standpoint.

The sides of the house are finished with alternate wide and narrow rows of beveled siding, having fancy panel work set up under the gables. The porch rail is built up from the ground line with rough brick, capped with an overhanging ledge of brick turned up on edge. The two heavy porch columns are plastered from the top of the rail up to the roof, and these are capped, in balance with the rail, by a single course of brick on edge. The outside-built chimney, in carrying out the idea established in the porch design, is built of brick cap at the top. The roof has a graceful slope, which is swung out over the porch in a broom curve. The wide expanse of roof is broken by the formers, which are very artistically designed. The ends of all rafters are exposed and a unique touch is added in the use of heavy exposed purlins, built up of three lengths of timber, under the rafters of both the main roof and the dormer roofs. The appearance is very striking when the body of the house is finished in some dark tint with pure white trim.



Second-Floor Plan.

Even though this exterior design seems to have been the chief object of attention—it is so thoroughly saturated with good ideas—there is also a continuous store of good points in design waiting for the person who opens the heavy oak door with its three little vertical panels of plate glass, and passes through the house to the handy rear porch.

The living room is large enough to entertain several guests. It extends across the entire width of the house and is lighted through six windows. A fancy balustrade with two square posts is built along the side of the staircase leading to the upper floor. The staircase is directly in front of the door opening from the front porch. A brick fireplace is set into the wall at the end of the room to the left of this entrance. In the corner of the house next to the fireplace is a handy bookcase built beneath a fancy glass window. A larger window is situated on the other side of the fireplace. The dining room is entered through a cased opening flanked with bookcases.

A three-window bay is built into the wall of the dining room and a buffet is set against the inside wall. The room is a square, which is the best shape for a dining room, since there is plenty of space on all sides of the table when it is placed in the center of the room. The kitchen is in the rear of the dining room and may be entered through a swinging door.

The ability of the architect is ably illustrated in the arrangement of the kitchen. Every convenience of a light and airy kitchen, a carefully planned pantry and a breakfast porch are here combined in one room. A table in which the sink is set runs along the side wall, with a window above it. One cupboard is located conveniently across the dividing wall between the kitchen and the dining room, and another is built into the outside corner above the space occupied by the refrigerator. Across the room is a little breakfast-nook table with a seat built on each side. This little table will save many steps in serving breakfast and will commend itself in many other ways. There is ample room for a stove against the inside wall.

Another feature which will find favor with most people is the bedroom and toilet on the first floor. These rooms are entered from a hall leading toward the rear of the house, past the stair, from the living room. This hall is also connected with a side entry by a flight of four steps. The basement is reached from this entry.

There are two large bedrooms and a sleeping porch, which is really another bedroom having practically one entire side built of windows, on the second floor. A hall connects them all and also leads to the bathroom. The front dormer bedroom is an especially pleasant room, having five casement windows under two of which seats are built.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

SUN FAIRIES.

"It was the most wonderful of evenings," commenced Daddy, "and the Elves gave a Picnic.

"Way, way up on a very high Hill they had this Picnic and they invited the Fairies, the Brownies and the Gnomes to come.

"When everyone had arrived at the top of the Hill, panting and puffing for it had been a hard climb and the Elves had asked everyone to walk for the exercise, they began at once to get out the Goodies to eat.

"'You see,' said one of the Elves, 'the reason we asked you to walk was because we wanted you all to be very hungry.'

'Out of moss-covered baskets they brought out the most delicious things to Eat, and they put everything on a great, enormous flat stone that was at the top of this Hill.

"'This will be our Dining Room Table,' they said, and all the Fairies, Brownies and Gnomes laughed, for they knew the Elves always had an unusual 'Dining-Room Table.'

"They ate from little plates beautifully made out of Straw and they drank from the most wonderful of Acorn Cups.

"When they had finished eating the Fairy Queen said she would tell them all a Story, and just as she said so, Mr. Sun began to grow very sleepy.

"'Are you going to leave us, Mr. Sun?' asked the Fairy Queen.

"'I have to,' he said. 'It's Bedtime and you're going to tell one of those Stories that puts me to Sleep.

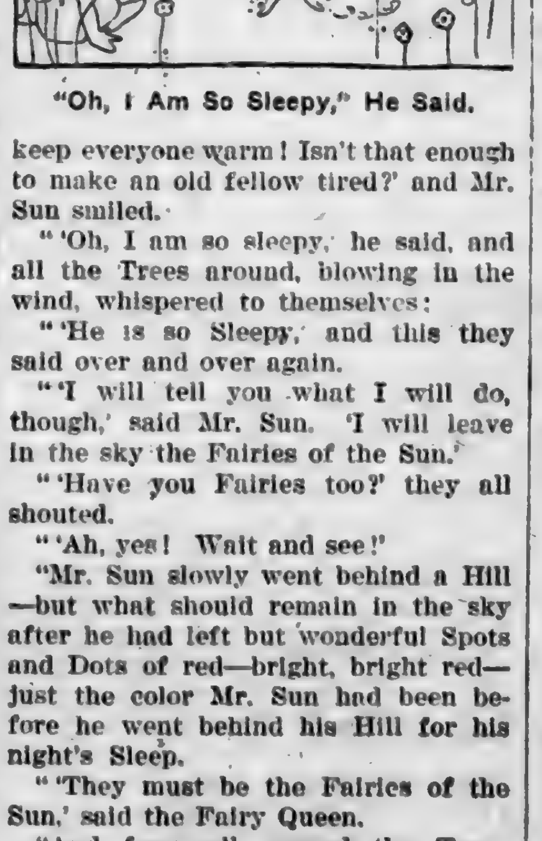
"'But it will grow so dark,' said the Fairy Queen, and the Elves added:

"'We didn't ask Mr. Moon to this Party. We forgot! So can't you stay with us?'

"'Sorry,' said Mr. Sun, 'but Bedtime is Bedtime you know and I am so very tired this Evening. It's been a hot day you see. That's my work! When it's hot and I've been working hard I'm tired!'

"'But in the Winter it isn't hot—and you often say then you're tired!' said the Fairy Queen.

"'That's right, I do,' said Mr. Sun, 'but then it's so cold I have to work to keep everyone warm! Isn't that enough to make an old fellow tired?' and Mr. Sun smiled.



"Oh, I Am So Sleepy," He Said.

"'Oh, I am so sleepy,' he said, and all the Trees around, blowing in the wind, whispered to themselves:

"'He is so Sleepy,' and this they said over and over again.

"'I will tell you what I will do, though,' said Mr. Sun. 'I will leave in the sky the Fairies of the Sun.'

"'Have you Fairies too?' they all shouted.

"'Ah, yes! Wait and see!'

"Mr. Sun slowly went behind a Hill—but what should remain in the sky after he had left but wonderful Spots and Dots of red—bright, bright red—just the color Mr. Sun had been before he went behind his Hill for his night's Sleep.

"'They must be the Fairies of the Sun,' said the Fairy Queen.

"And from all around the Trees whispered again in the wind: 'The Fairies of the Sun, the Fairies of the Sun.'

"For the longest time they stayed in the Sky and they changed places with each other and played hide-and-go-seek with the Clouds.

"Such a good time as they had and the Fairy Queen told Story after Story for the Sky was very bright with the red Sun Fairies.

"Pretty soon, though, Mr. Moon began to peep up behind his Hill.

"'May I come to the Party?' he asked. 'I wasn't invited—but I'd enjoy coming just as much.'

"'Oh indeed you may, Mr. Moon,' said the Elves. 'We forgot to ask you—but we do want you.'

"'They forgot me,' grinned the Moon, 'but they want me, so it is all right.'

"And as he saw the Sun Fairies going away he said:

"'That's why I'm late. You had other Guests and I wanted to be admired.'

"'We do admire you,' said the Fairy Queen, 'but we were glad to see the Sun Fairies—for never before did we know what a Spotted Red Sky meant.'"

He Got the Job.

Employer (to applicant for post as office boy)—And now, my lad, do you know what the motto of this firm is?

Boy—Yes, sir, "Push." I saw it on the door as I came in.

IRON POSTS SUPPORT WIRE

German Idea That Makes Their Trenches Only a Little Way From Being Impregnable.

In the Atlantic Monthly Mr. Edward Morlae describes a very clever improvement the Germans have made in their barbed-wire defenses. The wires are usually fastened to wooden posts, of course, but the Germans have found a better support for them. He writes:

"After we had taken the German trench, our men set to work to remodel it, shifting the parapet to the other side, building little outpost trenches and setting barbed wire. The latter job was done in a wonderfully short time, thanks to German thoroughness. For the wooden stakes to which the wire is tied they had substituted soft iron rods, three-quarters of an inch thick, twisted five times in the shape of a great corkscrew. This screw twisted into the ground exactly like a cork-puller into a cork. The straight part of the rod, being twisted upon itself down and up again every ten inches, formed six or seven small loops in a height of about five feet. Into these eyes the barbed wire was laid and solidly secured with short lengths of tying wire.

"First cutting the tying wire, we lifted the barbed wire out of the eyes, shoved a small stick through one, and, turning the rod with the leverage of the stick, unscrewed it out of the ground, and then, reversing the process, screwed it in again. The advantage of this rod is obvious. When a shell falls in the midst of this wire protection, the rods are bent and twisted, but unless broken off short they always support the wire, and even after a severe bombardment present a serious obstacle to the assaulters. In such case wooden posts are blown to smithereens by the shells, and when broken off they let the wire fall flat to the ground."

FOR HAIR AND SKIN HEALTH

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment Are Supreme. Trial Free.

These fragrant, super-creamy emollients keep the skin fresh and clear, the scalp free from dandruff, crusts and scales and the hands soft and white. They are splendid for nursery and toilet purposes and are most economical because most effective.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Long-Felt Want.

"Automobile accidents are so numerous," remarked the prolific inventor, "that I believe there will be a great demand for my latest invention."

"What is the nature thereof?" asked the owner of the big red car.

"It's a shock absorber," answered the man behind the idea.

"Huh!" grunted the other, "the woods are full of shock absorbers."

"Yes, I know," rejoined the inventor, "but this is different. It is for pedestrians to wear when crossing streets."

And throwing on the high speed gear, the inventor started for the millionaire class.

Insured.

"Do moind yes don't get hur'rt, Pat," said Bridget. "It's dangerous a-workin' in that quarry."

"That's ahl roight, Biddy," said Pat. "Oi've borrowed $2 frim th' foreman, and he don't let me do any dangerous work anny more."—Onward.

Kentucky and Pennsylvania produce nearly all the cannel coal mined in the United States.

W. L. DOUGLAS

"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"

$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

W.L.DOUGLAS $4.00 SHOE

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES

Boys' Shoes
Best in the World
$3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

WINCHESTER

Hammerless Shotguns

Model 1912

Extra Light Weight

Made in 12, 16 and 20 Gauges

There's no need of carrying a heavy gun. Winchester Model 1912 shotguns are made entirely of nickel steel, and hence are the lightest and strongest guns on the market. Be sure to see one before buying. Sold by all dealers.

THE REPEATER PAR EXCELLENCE

What She Had Forgotten.

The check which the comely young German woman handed in at the window of a savings bank the other day was made payable to Gretchen H. Schmidt and she had indorsed it simply "Gretchen Schmidt." The man at the receiving teller's window called her back to rectify the mistake just as she was turning away.

"You don't deposit this quite this way," he explained. "See, you have forgotten the H."

"The young woman looked at her check and then blushed a rosy red.

"Ach, so I haf," she murmured, and wrote hurriedly:

"Age twenty-three."

Happy is the home where Red Cross Ball Blue is used. Sure to please. All grocers. Adv.

His Idea.

"You're charging us city prices for these raspberries," said the summer resorter to the farmer.

"Yep. You're city folks, ain't you?"

"Of course."

"And used to paying city prices?"

"That's true, but we picked these berries ourselves."

"Well ain't that the fun you came out here to get? You don't expect to get your fun for nothing, do you?"—Detroit Free Press.

Thorough.

"Did the grasshoppers do much damage to your farm last year?"

"I should say they did. They devoured everything clear down to the first mortgage."

"URIC ACID NEVER CAUSED RHEUMATISM"

I WANT to prove it to your satisfaction. If you have Rheumatism or Neuritis, acute or chronic—no matter what your condition—write to-day for my FREE BOOK on "RHEUMATISM—Its Cause and Cure." Thousands call it "The most wonderful book ever written." Don't send a stamp—it's ABSOLUTELY FREE.

JESSE A. CASE
Dept. C. W. Brockton, Mass.

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S

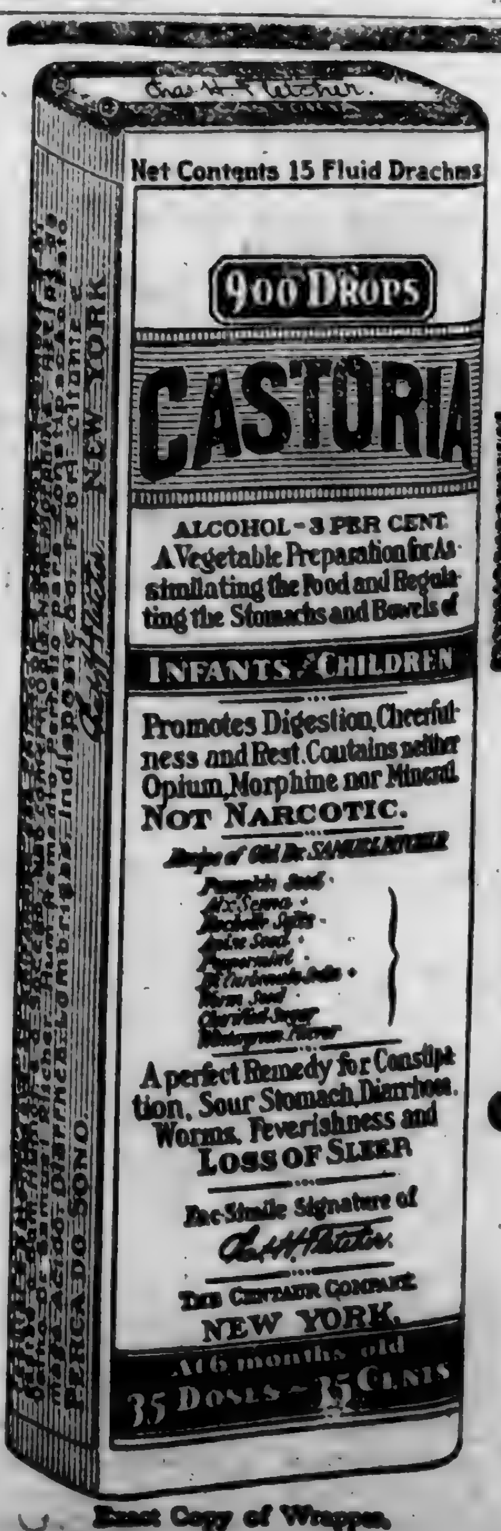
ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 37--1916.



Chas. H. Fletcher.
Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL – 3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS
NEW YORK

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For Fletcher's

CASTORIA

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic, all Teething Troubles and Diarrhoea. It regulates the Stomach and Bowels, assimilates the Food, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

SEPTEMBER

0286

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

The Gossip Say—

Don't forget School Books are Cash.

Dr. Farnham's were at Butler Sunday afternoon.

Virgil Perry was a Sunday evening supper guest of Gerald Kinsey.

Madonna Kinsey was a guest of Dorris Widney Sunday and Sunday night.

Master Harold J. Sechler of Butler, spent last week in the home of Frank Kinsey.

Harry Hursh and wife of Garrett were guests of Marsh Andress and family Sunday and Monday.

Word from Mrs. Buckingham is that she is getting along fine. Her many friends here are pleased to hear of her improvement.

Mrs. Elizabeth Leighty of Sherwood was a guest of relatives here the past week. On Tuesday she left for Chicago to visit her son.

R. H. Abel and wife spent last week in Auburn where the former attended the institute and the latter visited with Mrs. Will Henderson.

Will Hamilton, wife and little daughter Margaret Elnor and T. A. Northrup and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Howard Northrup and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rahe and two children, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Wiegmann and Miss Ella Rahe spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Dunkle.

The men of the Coburntown church began work on the church basement Tuesday while the ladies aid furnished them with dinner served at the church.

Guy Miller returned to Findlay last Thursday after spending the summer in this vicinity working for the "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Company. Guy made many warm friends while here.

Fred Reeder and family returned home last Thursday from their trip in Kansas, rather unexpectedly. Their little daughter, Leila, took sick with bronchitis, and they left for home immediately.

Sunday morning about 2 o'clock at Edon occurred a fire that caused considerable excitemennt in that burg. The large hoop and handle factory was destroyed. No insurance was carried The business had just been sold and the new proprietor was to have taken possession on Labor day, Monday.

A negro who gave his name as Clarence Lewis was noticed inticing boys ten and twelve years old into his old shack at Garrett Saturday. Upon investigation it was found that he was giving the boys beer and whiskey to drink. Deputy Prosecutor Ketcham was called and after hearing the condition of affairs, he drew up an affidavit charging Lewis with child delinquincy. Sherriff Hoff made the arrest and the negro is now a prisoner in the DeKalb county jail awaiting a hearing —Star

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE. - - - IND

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. P. church will meet with Mrs. J. N. George, Saturdry afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Dr. Shook and family attended the funeral of his brother-in-law, Frank Swartz, at Garrett, Sunday afternoon.

L. W. Spade will preach on next Sunday evening at the Coburn's Corners church, subject, "Entire Sanctification."

Mrs. Priscilla Zimmerman and daughter, Elizabeth, of Massilon, Ohio, visited in the W. C. Patterson home last Friday.

Mrs. Sophia Price, of Evanston, returned to her home Friday, after a week's visit with Mrs. Sarah Hull and other St. Joe friends.

Miss Ruth Perry resumed her studies at the International Business College at Ft. Wayne the first of the week, after a month's vacation.

Mrs. Howard Gee and little daughter and the former's sister, Miss Garnett Krontz of Hicksville, were guests of Mrs. S. D. Gee Tuesday and Wednesday.

C. A. Patterson and wife were accompanied to Lagrange last Sunday by Wm. Stevic and wife of Cedarville, where they spent the day with Dr. Wyatt's. The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Stevic was also celebrated that day.

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Lutheran church elected the following officers for the coming year at the regular meeting held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Sechler. President, Mrs. Ella Patterson; Vice president Mrs. Jennie Sechler; Secretary, Mrs. Addie Patterson; Treasurer, Mrs. Bessie Tustison; Mission Band Superintendent, Mrs. Grace Dilley; 1st., assistant, Mrs. Retta Hathaway; 2nd., assistant, Miss Flossie Sechler.

Only two houses in St. Joe are opened at the present time for rent.

Frank Bowman, wife and daughter Eloise motored to Garrett, Monday.

Lester Curie is the guest of Gray Erick and family at Cold Springs this week.

Frank Tustison and Charles Bayman spent Sunday with the latter's parents at Troy, Ohio.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price motored to Ft. Wayne Sunday and while there called on Mrs. J. P. Buckingham.

Wm. Randall and wife and Harry Randall and family motored to Hamilton lake Sunday and attended the Brand-Bennett family reunion.

W. C. Patterson and wife, Mrs. Anna K Simpson and S. W. Tustison, wife and daughter, visited Mrs. Arvilla Derck at Montpelier, Labor Day.

Mrs. Daisy Roberts returned the last of the week from a two weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. Goldie Brunson and family at Chicago Junction.

Mrs. S. W. Tustison was called to Garrett, Friday by the death of little William Frederick, two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abel. The little one was ill only a few days with Cholera Infantum. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the home.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.]

Pony and Outfit for sale. $125.00.
O. E. GINTHER.

For Sale: Sow and ten pigs. Joseph Boger, phone 84-20. Spencerville.

FOR SALE:-Good second hand Cook Stove. Mrs. R. A. SMITH, Phone 79-3.

For Sale: Blue Bell Cream Separator, used 4 months. In best of running order.
H. F. Garton, St. Joe.

IT CAN'T BE DONE!

There is no cause for Democrats and Progressives—lovers of peace and opponents of the horrors and crimes of war—to feel other than the greatest confidence in the re-election of President Wilson.

Friends of his Republican opponent have been making vociferous endeavor to impress the voters of the country with a fictional strength for Mr. Hughes' candidacy.

President Wilson has the Democrats of the country enthusiastically behind him.

He has the friends of preparedness and peace.

He has every Progressive who really holds policies above prejudice and deeds above vague promises.

He has the women voters of the states where suffrage is an accomplished fact, who hold their country first in their esteem and who are able to see more in the support President Wilson has already given suffrage, than in the opportunist espousal of their cause by a candidate who before never has shown by his acts even the most condescending sympathy.

There are but a meagre few states where Mr. Hughes' champions can give him more than a doubtful chance of securing electoral votes.

No issue has been joined by the speeches of the Republican candidate which is of sufficient worth to merit serious consideration.

Behind Mr. Wilson there is a long record of deeds done and legislation enacted which puts him far up abreast of the times and popular demands.

For President Wilson to be defeated there must develop such a reaction from present sentiment as would be startling indeed.

He has the record of achievement.

He has the shibboleth of peace.

He has the accomplishment of preparedness.

He has a Congress which has stood nobly behind his policies and has written laws that the great masses of voters will surely indorse.

He has been direct, diligent, assertive and dominant.

No public man ever cherished loftier ideals or did more to win to them the public approval.

Beat him?

IT CAN'T BE DONE!

Beat him, and restore to power in the Government the old order, the Republican reactionaries, the guardians and agents of privilege and prerogative?

Beat him, and blot from the statute books laws that register a century of progress?

NO, INDEED!

Beat him, with the harvests ripening into such wealth as the country never knew before?

Beat him, with the Government's credit the talk of the world?

Beat him, with labor employed, wages good and happiness the outward semblance of nation-wide contentment?

Beat him, with the vaults of the banks of the country bulging and legislation already enacted which is the guarantee of low interest rates?

Beat him, with his neutrality achievements, which have made us the one nation secure from the criminal effusion of the red blood of the sons and fathers of the land?

Beat him, when the law is highly respected, when the national honor is respected, when the flag has been made the signal at once of preparedness and peace, and our people home-loving, God-fearing and ready for the higher achievements in the future than were ever chronicled in the past?

IT CAN'T BE DONE!

DISAPPOINTED!

Last week we advertised a few very low special prices for one day. We were quite disappointed as well as many customers, to find our stock of some goods to be completely exhausted early in the day. We will make good this week.—One ton of sugar for next Saturday—plenty glass fruit jars, caps and rubbers—we want all the eggs we can get from now on and will pay 26c. Per Doz. and more if the market advances—big stock Childrens, Misses, Boys, Womens and Mens rubber boots to arrive soon—will have the white and red Mens Boots, don't buy before getting our prices, we will surprise you how cheap we can sell rubber goods this fall. New stock crochet cotton, all numbers—big stock bed comforts on the way—Salt $1.25 per barrel—we lead in coffee and tea and our prices are a little lower than the other fellows—a new stock dress trimmings — corn flakes 4 for 25cts., crackers 4lbs. for 25 cts., best June peas 4 cans for 25 cts., Salmon 3 cans for 25 cts., Fells Naptha—P. & G. Naptha—Kirks White Flake—Star—Lenox—Galvanic—Globe—Family and Ivory Soap, all 6 bars for 25 cents.—We will have one ton of sugar for next Saturday—any one buying 25 cents worth of any goods in the store on next Saturday can get 14 pounds Standard Granulated Sugar for $1.00. Get our price on 100 pound sacks—bring us your EGGS—cash or trade.

JONES
St. Joe, Ind.

Plenty Homing for Saturday at 4 cans for 25 cents. Matches 6 boxes for 25 cents.

St. Joe Locals

Wm. Bleeks and wife spent Sunday with Jack Sechler and wife.

Simon Bernard and wife spent the latter part of the week at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. J. C. F. Abel is at Spencerville called there by the illness of her son's wife.

Next Saturday all the graduates of the St. Joe High School and their friends will meet at Erick's grove for an outing and big dinner.

Summer Pasture is getting short. We have Arcady Dairy Feed containing eight different products, with 18% Protein. Guaranteed one of the best Milk Producers on the Market. At St. Joe Mills.

SALTS IF BACKACHY AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your Bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summerf aresin effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

TheW abash and its connectionnow have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip

Colorado - -	$36.60
California -	$78.75
Yellowstone -	$51.60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind. J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

Wade Farm Is Rented

No sooner is the word out that so and so is going to move from the farm, than about a half dozen fellows are around wanting to rent. The Wade farm west of town was rented to Homer Stackhouse last week and will move about the first of December. Homer is a good hustling young farmer.

Restaurant Is Sold

The opera house restaurant has again changed hands and the new proprietor is Ora Wilmot. Possession was taken last Thursday, Glen Freeburn retiring. Ora is a dandy fellow for this business, always at work keeping things cleaned up, accomodating and ready to serve his patrons with good, clean, fresh lunches. We bespeak success for Ora.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved

why Pay $2 Per Pint for Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine -50 cents worth- and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. For sale by all Dealers.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Mrs. Lee O. Tustison is reported sick at the home of her parents on Widney Avenue.

Joseph Koch, Sr., returned home Saturday from a two weeks fishing trip at Lake Wawasee.

Tom Brunson attended the Doty family reunion last Wednesday which was held near Edon, Ohio.

50 acre farm, located close to St. Joe, good buildings, the finest of soil, price reasonable if taken soon. Inquire of S. S. Widney.

Miss Maurine Hadsell, of Hicksville was the guest of her cousin, Portia Hadsell Friday and Saturday and attended the picnic at Hamilton's grove Saturday.

Mr and Mrs. Frank Horn and Mr. and Mrs. John Horn, all of Spencerville, were Sunday afternoon callers of Mrs. Margaret Swineford and sister, Mrs. Sarah McCrory.

A citizens meeting will be held at the school house on Friday evening of this week, and Trustee Hathaway and Superintendent F. L. Smith request all the citizens of the township to be present and get acquainted and talk over some matters before the school year begins. Arrangements will be made for the carrying out of plans for the coming Centennial at Auburn. Please come.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Lustre with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

HOW "TIZ" HELPS SORE, TIRED FEET

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

SEPTEMBER

0287

Preparedness

is the magic word today. It is on every tongue. Are you prepared for sickness or business misfortune? Have you enough cash to tide you over? If you haven't a bank account make up your mind to open one today. If you have an account decide to increase it.

The man with the substantial bank account can look the world in the face. A good balance in bank begets confidence. It makes for independence. The business man with a good balance in bank always is prepared to take advantage of an opportunity to buy cheaply for ready cash.

BE PREPARED WITH A BANK BOOK FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank
Capital Stock $25,000.00
Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET
PRICE

Paid for Your
POULTRY
SEE
W. G. ERICK

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

Leone Widdefield is spending a few days with her grandparents, Eli Fales and wife.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

Master George Wilmot left Friday to visit a few days at the home of George Baker and family of Springfield township

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Kehr and children of near Harlan, Robert Bachmann and several friends of Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests of John Bachmann and family.

Subscribe for this paper.

Patronize the advertisers.

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Always at Your Service for Printing Needs!

Is there something you need in the following list?

- Birth Announcements
- Wedding Stationery
- Envelope Inclosures
- Sale Bills
- Hand Bills
- Price Lists
- Admission Tickets
- Business Cards
- Window Cards
- Time Cards
- Letter Heads
- Note Heads
- Envelopes
- Leaflets
- Bill Heads
- Calling Cards
- Statements
- Milk Tickets
- Meal Tickets
- Shipping Tags
- Announcements
- Briefs
- Notes
- Coupons
- Pamphlets
- Catalogues
- Circulars
- Posters
- Blotters
- Invitations
- Folders
- Checks
- Blanks
- Notices
- Labels
- Legal Blanks
- Menu Cards
- Placards
- Dodgers
- Post Cards
- Programs
- Receipts

Prompt, careful and efficient attention given to every detail

Don't Send Your Order Out of Town Until You See What We Can Do

Sell Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 12
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

SPENCERVILLE

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

Levi Mumma of Detroit, is visiting his parents.

Delmar Markle was a Saturday evening guest of his parents.

Geo. Beams and family took Sunday dinner with his parents, Henry Beams and wife.

Wm. Allen and family spent Sunday with Mrs. Allen's sister, Mrs. Johnny Moody and family west of town.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

Ada Markle of Ft. Wayne, who has been visiting her grandparents Jerry Markle and wife, returned to her home Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Mumma and daughters, Naomi and Ruth and Mrs. O. W. Mumma of Dayton, Ohio, spent last week with Rev. Mumma and family.

Mrs. Catherine Elinger and son, Paul and Mr. and Mrs. Addie Waters of the Academy, were Sunday guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Ethel Bowser and family.

Mrs. E. E. Provines accompanied by her granddaughters Dorothy and Miriam Fisher, who have been visiting here several weeks, returned to their home at Pleasant Lake, Saturday.

A large crowd gathered at the river Sunday afternoon to watch Mr. Bachmann launch his motor boat which is the largest boat that has been on the river at this place for many years.

Mrs. Clyde Fredrick of this place and Theron Folts and wife of the County line were called to the bedside of their sister, Mrs. Geo. Fredrick of Grabill on Sunday, she is very ill at this writing.

Roy Lake of Walhalla, Michigan, was a guest of her aunt Mrs. John Benninghoff, on Saturday and visited his uncle W. O. Lake and family on Sunday, on Monday he left for Ft. Wayne to visit relatives.

The girls Pansy Club was entertained at the home of Dorris Rhoades north of town last Friday afternoon. Popcorn and teddy bears were served to the members and one guest Ada Markle of Fort Wayne.

Samuel Cole and wife had as their guests on Thursday the Misses May, Bertha and Golda Tyndall of Garrett, Mrs. J. M. Hawk and daughter Beulah of Akron, Ohio, George Watson and wife and Miss Jennie Watson.

Wm. Smith and wife residing on Route No. 2, wishes to thank their many friends and neighbors thru the columns of this paper, who have been assisting them in trying to put out the muck fire that started on their farm last week.

Our Children's School Dresses will be here in a few days. Get the girls all fixed up the first thing at Beame & Co. store.

Vern Wilmot and wife entertained the following guests for dinner on Sunday, Wilmot Coburn, wife and two sons Floyd and Kenneth, of Coburntown, Mrs. Wallas Willard of Iowa, Frank House, wife and son John for supper, Wesley Kimes and son Dolpha Kimes of Detroit, Michigan.

The Ladies Guild of the M. E. church was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Raymond Rhodes assisted by Mesdames Elsie Fisher and Ella Ludas. A two course luncheon was served the members and fifteen guests. The program was as follows: Instrumental music, LaVern Rhodes, Song, My Jesus I Love Thee, Scripture reading Golden Murray, Prayer, Mrs. Ella Lucas, Song, Jesus Saviour Pilot Me, Reading, Unfailing Love, Mrs. Princess Rectenwal, Reading, Example, Mrs. Elsie Fisher, Song, He Leadeth Me, Reading My Creed, LeAnna Wearly, Vocal Solo, Mrs. Lloyd Wade, Reading, Keep on the Sunny Side, Mrs. Robert Beams, Roll call, Reading of Minutes, Song, God be with you till we Meet Again, Lord's Prayer in unison, closed with instrumental music by LaVern Rhodes.

Mrs. Grill Passes Away

Mrs Mary Grill, widow of the late Isaac Grill, died on Wednesday night at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Maude Adams, of Fremont, Indiana, of cancers, she was taken there there about six weeks ago, at the age of 64 years, 5 months and 17 days. Her husband died about two years ago at their home on River street where they had resided for years. Those who mourn her departure are one son Charles Grill of Ft. Wayne, a granddaughter Mrs. Maude Adams of Fremont and five sisters. Two daughters preceeded her in death, Pearl at the age of fifteen years and Mrs. Hattie Kline. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Lutheran church, Rev. A. K. Mumma officiating. Interment at the White City Cemetery.

Silberg-Guilford Wedding

A 9 o'clock morning wedding was selemnized at the home of Mrs. S. M. Silberg of W. Fifteenth street on Sunday when her daughter, Miss Catherine M. Silberg became the bride of Grover C. Guilford of W. Eighteenth street. Rev. J. W. Primrose of the Church of God, officiated. Mr. Guilford, who is the son of Mrs. A. C. Scott, is a painter at the Auburn Automobile plant and the newlyweds will make their home on W. Fifteenth street. They went to Spencerville Sunday forenoon where they will spend a few days of their honeymoon with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Guilford are fine young people and have taken an active part in the Sunday school work of the Church of God. The bride is twenty and the groom is twenty-three. They have the hearty congratulations of their many friends.—Star.

Return to Columbus

John Shutt, Russell Davis and Samuel Wearley returned to Columbus, Sunday, after spending a few days with their parents. They were accampanied by the new recruits George Pochapman and Basil Glass of Ft. Wayne. The boys left for the south Tuesday morning They are all looking fine and enjoying themselves.

School Almost Ready

Trustee Walker is a busy man these days completing arrangements for the opening of the schools in Spencer township. As yet he is unable to report all of the teachers but he reports having contracted for the following:—Principal, Spencerville school Forrest Kain; Superintendent, Miss Thornburg; Primary, Miss Charlotte Miller; Intermediate, Howard Provines; Grammar, Mark Shull and Coburntown, Walter Coburn.

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20.

Sheriff's Sale.

No. 4182
In the DeKalb Circuit Court,
State of Indiana.

Savings Loan and Trust Company of Auburn, Indiana, vs. George C. Treece, Nora E. Treece commonly known as Delliah E. Treece.

By virtue of an Order of Sale, to me directed and delivered by the Clerk of said Court, in the above entitled cause, I have levied upon and will expose for sale by PUBLIC AUCTION, at the Court House Door, in said County, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m., of the 9th, day of September, 1916 the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, of the following described premises, viz:

A piece of land fifty-three (53) feet wide at the north-west end and fifty (50) feet at the south-east end off of the piece of land conveyed to said mortgagors this day by Benjamin B. Baltz, the same being in section twenty-eight (28) in Township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, said strip being nine (9) rods and four (4) feet north-west and south-east and containing 17-100 acres more or less, situated in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

And on failure to realize therefrom the full amount of the judgment, interest thereon and costs, I will at the same time, and in the manner aforesaid, offer for sale the fee simple of the above described premises Taken as the property of the defendant to satisfy said order of sale.

John P. Hoff,
Sheriff of DeKalb Co

E. W. Atkinson, Atty.
37—

Public Sale.

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located 3 miles west and ¼ mile south of Spencerville, on John M. Henderson farm, on at 10 o'clock a. m. the following:

Saturday, Sept. 9

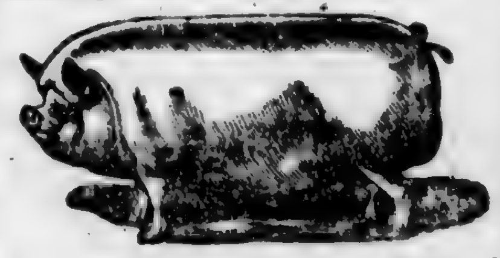
HORSES: Matched team brood mares, 5 and 6 years old, weighing 3,300 pounds; Gray brood mare 5 years old with good draft colt by side.

CATTLE: 6 year old full-blood Holstein cow giving milk, 7 year old Jersey cow with calf by side, Five 3-yr. old cows with calves by their sides, 10 head of heifers due to be fresh in April and May, 2 yearling steers, 2 year old bull.



25 head Shropshire ewes, 2 brood sows due to farrow October 1st., 17 shotes weighing 75 to 100 lbs.

MACHINERY: Walking breaking plow with 3 steel points, Walking 2-horse corn cultivator, Riding corn plow, 2-horse disc, 4-horse disc, Spike and Spring tooth harrow Farm wagon with 3½ inch tire, 2 hay racks, one a combination wagon box, Tedder, Osborne side delivery rake, Osborne hay loader, Plano binder, Set dump boards, Extension ladders, Ropes, Pulleys and Roof hooks and many other articles

G. C. Henderson

Col Curt Henderson, Auct.
James Boots, Clerk.

Mother's Responsibility

No part of the body is so seriously neglected as the mouth, nose and throat. If not kept sanitary they become a breeding place for germs. If Glando Gargle be used once or twice daily it will cleanse the mucus membrance and kill the germs. It is excellent for sore mouth in babies; soothes during teething. It relieves a cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever and prevents adenoids. For sale by all Dealers.

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can, "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

F. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

H. C. Hathaway
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

Office Day—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

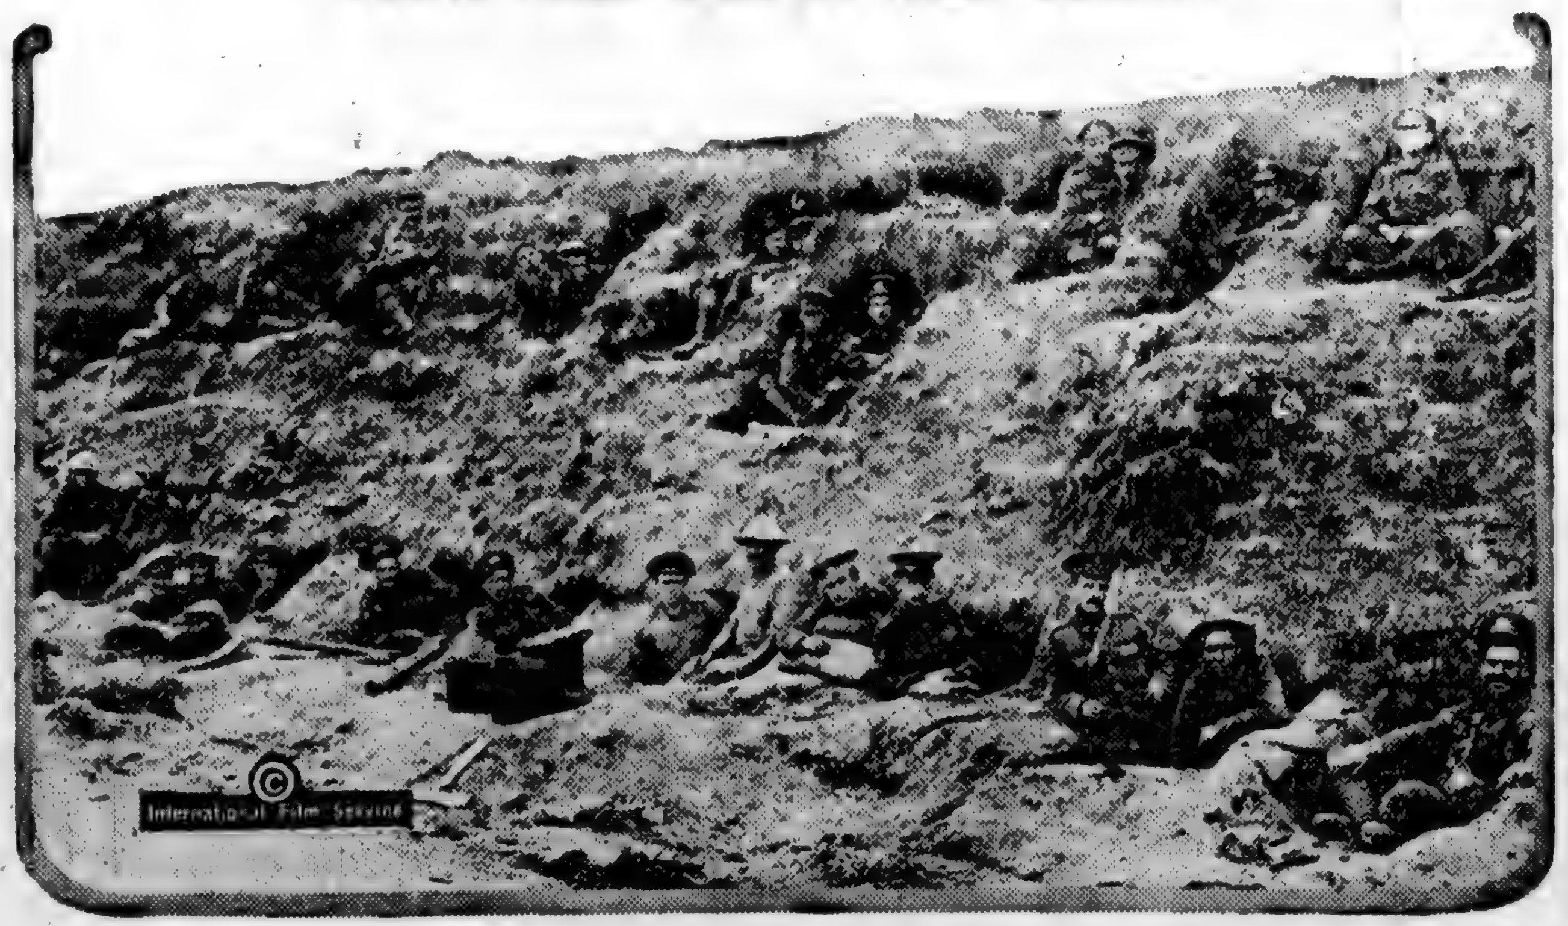
DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest in America Strongest in the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP.
Fort Wayne, Ind.

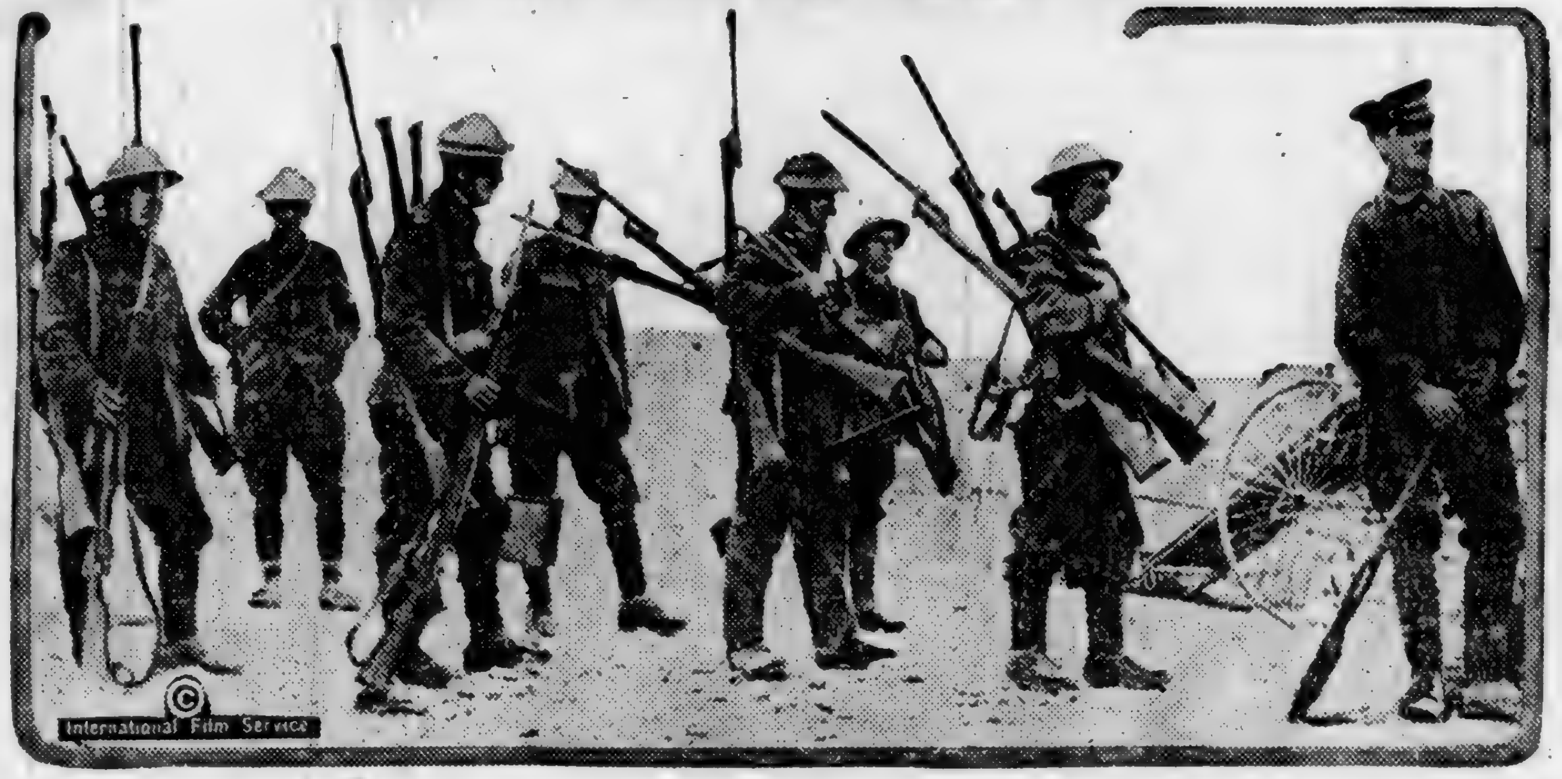
THE ST. JOE NEWS. ST. JOE, INDIANA

TAKING THEIR EASE IN THEIR DUGOUTS



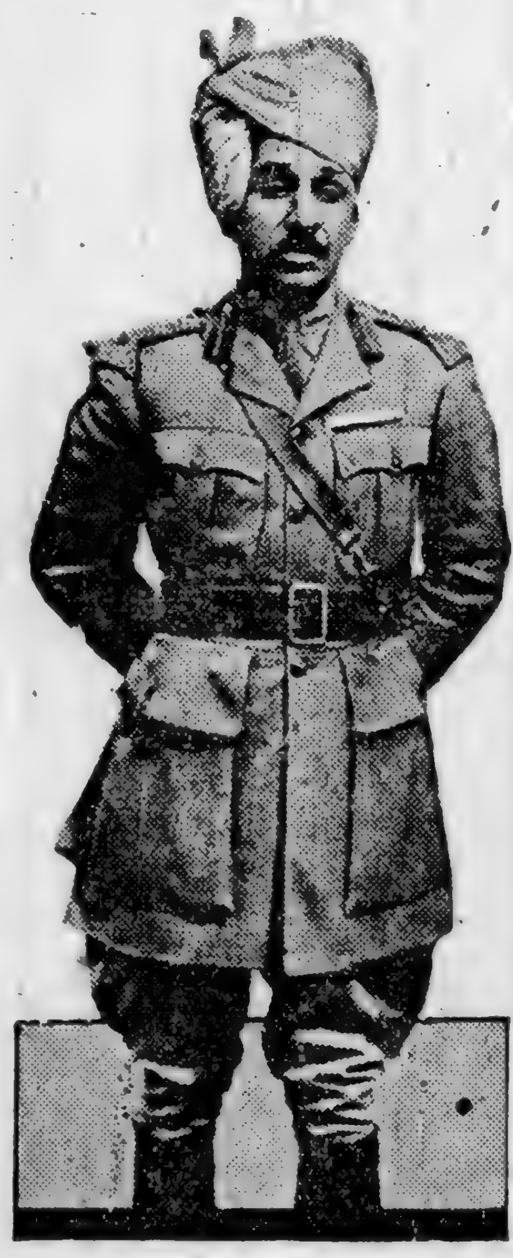
The men shown here are taking a day off from the fighting in the British advance. They are well behind the first line trenches, but are still in range of bursting shells.

LADEN WITH CAPTURED GERMAN RIFLES



British soldiers returning to their own trenches laden with rifles captured in "no man's land" between the lines.

RAJAH OF RUTLAM



The rajah of Rutlam is one of the East Indian potentates who are serving under the British flag in France.

Don't Hurry.

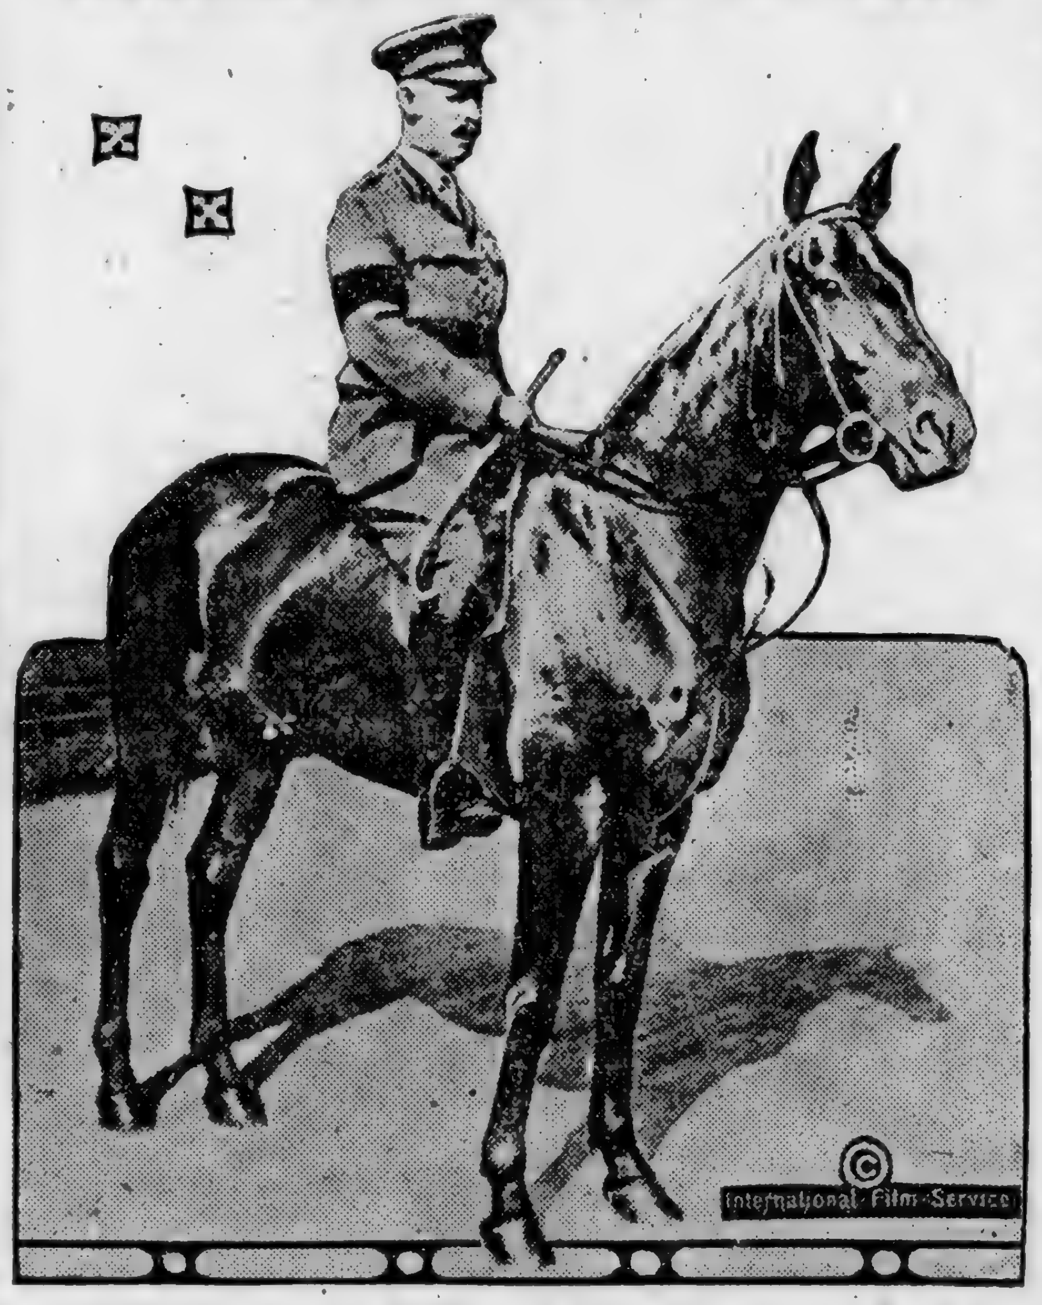
It is quite possible to pick fruit before it is ripe. But it is not the wisest thing to do. Unripe fruit is generally poor stuff, and oftentimes dangerous, too. Nature's way is after all the best way. In the long run, it is found wisest to wait until she has finished her work.

There are not a few young people who think they can pluck the fruit from life's fair tree before it has had time rightly to ripen. They see no use in apprenticeships, or college courses, or long periods of study for professional careers. They mean to make a success at once. The old ways are too slow. But somehow they generally find after a while that they have only a lot of unripe fruit on their hands, which brings a poor price in life's market. Don't hurry, young people. "Learn to labor and to wait."—Selected.

Minerals Affect Wireless.

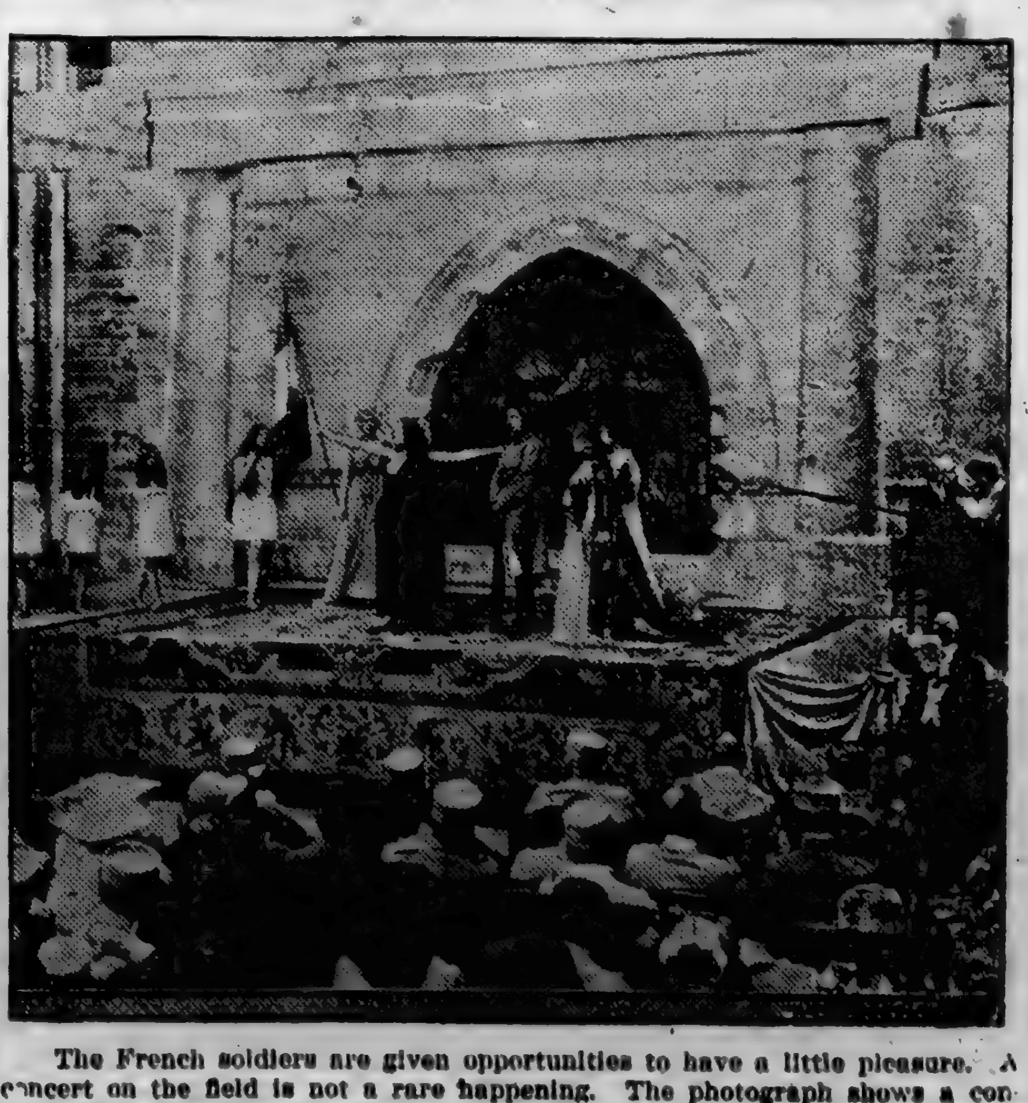
American army wireless men sent into Mexico were surprised to discover that conditions in that country were exactly the reverse of those in the United States. In our own country the wireless operators find that the night time is much better for the transmission of dispatches. South of the border the day time is best. There is so much atmospheric disturbance at night in Mexico that wireless men prefer the day as a time for operating. This is not due to the altitude, which is 7,000 feet, but to the minerals in the mountains, especially iron ore.

COMMANDER OF BRITISH ON THE SOMME



An official photograph of Sir Henry Rawlinson, commander of one of the British armies in the Somme sector.

CONCERT FOR THE FRENCH SOLDIERS



The French soldiers are given opportunities to have a little pleasure. A concert on the field is not a rare happening. The photograph shows a concert held for the French soldiers in the ruins of the abbey of Longpont (Aisne) France.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

A Little Talk on the Appreciation of Their Efforts.

SHOULD KEEP THE CREATIONS

It Is the Pleasant "How Nice" That Makes All the Difference to the Hearts of the Children.

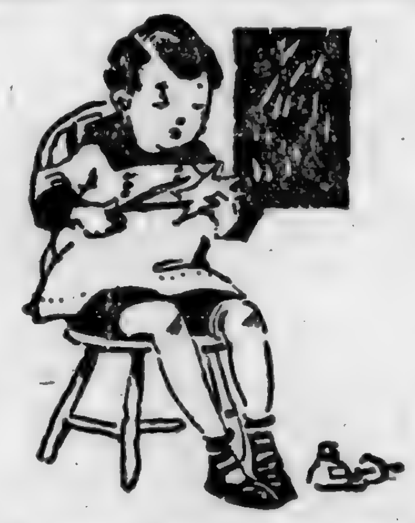
By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

As each child's name was called he stepped forward and received from the kindergarten the result of his efforts at "making something" for some member of the home. The children were gay and they were anticipating the joy of giving. It was a pleasure to watch them. But when Genevieve's name was called a new note was struck. "Please, Miss White," she said, "my mother does not want me to bother her any more with the things I make." And Miss White laid Genevieve's calendar aside.

It is not difficult to see the point of view expressed in Genevieve's plaintive abnegation. There is really no room for all these things at home. We have all the calendars and blotters and picture frames and shaving pads that we really need. And as for ornaments, these things are not particularly beautiful, and if they are, as may sometimes happen, they do not harmonize with the scheme of things already installed, and, besides, they gather dust, and there are few homes that have not already too many dust catchers. We can well understand that Genevieve's mother was weary of calendars and bookmarks.

But Miss White is also weary of calendars and bookmarks. Where one mother has had half a dozen she has had hundreds. She manages to smile, however, in spite of the clutter and in spite of the obvious monotony through a curious trick of the mind which it would be well for Genevieve's mother and other mothers to learn. The trick is this: Instead of dealing with calendars and bookmarks, she fixes her mind upon the efforts of the tots, she sees trial and tribulation, she sees wonder and experiments, where the rest of us see only crude imitations of tulips or apple blossoms.

Notwithstanding the high rentals we have to pay it ought to be possible for every mother to keep each child's tokens of struggle and conquest for some time at least. For nothing is more important to the child than that his meager and unsuccessful attempts at mastering his material surroundings should receive generous encouragement. And while much is gained by having someone stand by and cheer him when he falters, that is not enough. The product, poor though it be, is the symbol of an idea, an inspiration, and deserves the courtesy of serious and dignified attention from parents and other elders. The calendar is as worthy of a place on the wall as anything you can buy at the store, for by honoring it you teach the child that his efforts are not wasted. As for taste in calendars, leave that to the years.



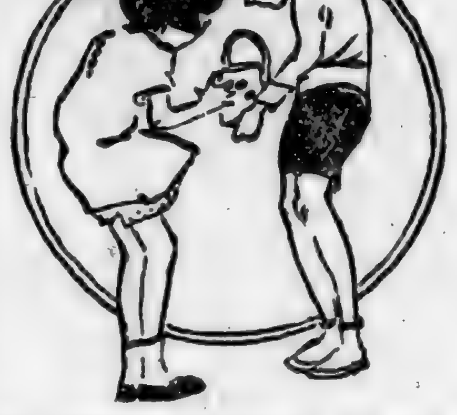
Could Get No Satisfaction Out of the Paper Stars.

Of course it is not necessary to display all of the child's creations or to convert the home into an industrial museum. It is, in fact, the latest trophy that carries the greatest interest, and the latest may be made to displace its predecessor, each effort thus receiving its due share of attention and appreciation. Where there are several children it should be possible to provide large paper envelopes and boxes in which these early treasures may be kept.

Every mother knows that young children can be a nuisance and in the way just when they are trying to help with some "work." The number of peas that the baby can shell or the area that the child can sweep will contribute little to lightening the day's work. But the value of the contribution is not to be measured thus. It is to be measured in good will, in application and in the satisfaction that comes—or should come—from having made a worthy effort at doing something useful. We should therefore not belittle the achievement or make the child feel that his assistance is worthless.

The child works in the spirit of the artist. He is not seeking material rewards; he wants the satisfaction of doing something that has meaning and he wants appreciation. Without these he will become either a shirker, shunning all effort or a perfunctory grind, laboring under compulsion of one kind or another. It is therefore necessary not only that opportunities be furnished for doing various kinds of work, but that the first awkward attempts be appreciated in a way that will lead to further effort. And this is just as true of attempts at singing or invention—invention of a song or story, for example—as it is of attempts at making some object or drawing that others may handle or exhibit.

While this doctrine of appreciation does not permit us to belittle the child's efforts, it still leaves us free to help the child with criticisms calculated to enable him to increase his work. But we should call attention to such defects only as he is in a position to remedy himself, and without too much effort. If the doll's dress is too long, it's a simple matter to cut it down. But if it's too short we note that it's a very nice dress, and think we'll make the next one a little longer. The repeated emphasis on defects of design or execution may have the effect of improving the child's taste or judgment; but they are more likely to discourage all effort.



The Children Anticipated the Joy of Giving.

A child that sees too clearly the shortcomings of his efforts will refuse to do anything at all. This was the case with four-year-old Herbert, whose sense of form was so far ahead of his muscular control that he could get no satisfaction out of the paper stars he cut out himself, and so refused, after one or two attempts, to try again.

When little Allan's mother failed to recognize the child's drawing as that of a "lamp" she was wise enough to take to herself the blame—"How stupid of me!" For, after all, you can recognize even the lamp if you are told what it is supposed to be. And so the burden of keeping keen the edge of effort rests upon us. But don't let the child become conceited.

THEY COULDN'T RESIST HIM

Young Man Surely Had a Taking Way With the Ladies, if You Let Him Tell It.

"Oh, I make friends with people whenever I like," he had explained, "and they never object. They like it. They all like it."

"And you speak to strange young ladies?"

"The last one I spoke to was in London last month. I was standing on the steps of a house in Piccadilly, watching some visiting potentates drive by, when the door opened, and out came the prettiest girl I ever saw in my life. She stood for a moment looking up and down the street, and I said to her: 'Do you know who that fierce, fat man in the last carriage is—the one who looks like a walrus?' She said: 'Oh, that's my Uncle Ethelbert.'"

"But that was the end of it," Mary broke in—"you didn't go on talking to her?"

"The end of it," Krujer Hobbs had concluded, taking off his glove and offering a slim bony hand—"the end was that we had tea at an A. B. C. shop, and she said she was sorry she was engaged to marry her cousin, whose name, I think, was Lionel."—From "Krujer Hobbs," by Marjory Morten, in Century Magazine.

Keeps Them at Farming.

One of the jobs on the farm, which has had as much to do in creating the desire of the farmer boy to leave and go to the city, has been the chore of sawing wood. It is one job that seemed never to be ended. With the advent of the gasoline engine, the work of sawing the wood, not only for farm consumption but for commercial purposes, has been changed to one of great fascination, if not pleasure. In comparison with its former drudgery.—Popular Science Monthly.

Choose Graceful Footwear.

Cold-bloodedly considered, no woman with broad, short feet can improve their appearance by encasing them in a short vamp shoe that accents their already too wide and too short appearance. But that is exactly what the woman with the fat, pudgy little foot does. Watch her in the subway—there are dozens of her all unconsciously bringing out their very worst points.

If you happen to have a graceful, slender foot, it is distinctly worth your while to keep it well shod and accent your good points. If you have an awkward foot, make it as inconspicuous as possible.—New York Sun.

School Girl's Dress.

Lengthening a dress for the growing girl by letting down the hem, often reveals the fact that the edge is worn nearly or quite through. To strengthen and cover this, stitch a row of insertion or fancy braid over it.

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE
NEW HOME
NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME
Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts.
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS.

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

Courteous Agreement.

He—You may brag of your father's farming, but what did he know about live stock? Now, there wasn't anything that my father didn't know, especially about raising mules.

She—Nobody would doubt that whoever met you.

For genuine comfort and lasting pleasure use Red Cross Ball Blue on wash day. All good grocers. Adv.

Sure-Thing Seekers.

"Some people consult fortune tellers about investments."

"Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "But I can't see any sense to the system. A fortune teller who could give reliable advice would quit work and get rich playing her own information."

Part of the Fun.

"There are few people in this world who can resist the temptation to give unsolicited advice."

"But, why, my friend, should one resist a temptation of that sort?" asked the ardent fan.

"I don't understand you, sir."

"Nine out of ten people would never attend a baseball game if they couldn't give the players and the umpire unsolicited advice."

Hopeless.

"That man we were just talking to seems to be perfectly normal," remarked the visitor who was being shown over the insane asylum.

"And yet he's one of the very worst cases we have," replied the attendant. "That man thinks he can get as many miles out of a gallon of gasoline as the agent who sold him his car said he could."

Too True.

"John, dear, I wish you'd leave me some money today. I've got a lot of shopping to do."

"What do you want money for? You've got charge accounts at three different stores."

"For goodness sake! Don't you know yet that you can never find what you want at the store where you have a charge account?"

Cautious.

"I've discovered a system by which my employer could get all the work in his office done with half the force he employs now."

"Why don't you tell him about it and earn his undying gratitude?"

"I don't dare to. He might decide that I am one of the men he could do without."

Charity.

"Please, kind lady," said the wayfarer, "I ain't had a bite to eat in 24 hours."

"You are just the man I'm looking for," replied the lady of the house. "My husband gathered a mess of mushrooms this morning, and I want to make sure they are not toadstools. Just wait a moment and I'll bring you a dish of them."

There are but few unhappy marriages. The unhappiness shows up later.

Two Fellows are trying to get ahead.

It's easy to see who'll win.

If you have any doubt about coffee holding some people back—in fact many—leave the hesitating class, stop coffee ten days, and use

POSTUM

This delicious pure food-drink, made of wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses, has a delightful, snappy flavor. It is free from the drugs in coffee and all harmful ingredients.

Postum is good for old and young, and makes for health and efficiency.

"There's a Reason"

SEPTEMBER

The Turmoil

By
BOOTH TARKINGTON

The Story of a Big Man in a Big Town

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

SYNOPSIS.

—13—

The Sheridan family, "self-made" rich, have moved into a magnificent home in the fashionable part of a Middle West city in order that the womenfolk might get acquainted with the "best people." Old Man Sheridan is business leader of the community. His son Jim is killed accidentally. His son Roscoe takes to drink because Mrs. Roscoe flirts with Bobby Lamhorn, aristocratic rake, who wants to marry Edith Sheridan. His son Bibbs, delicate in body, poet at heart, works in a machine shop because the old man thinks he hasn't enough sense to be a business member of the firm. Next door to the Sheridans live the Vertrees, broken-down aristocrats. Mary Vertrees and Bibbs are almost in love. Young Jim had wanted to marry her. Old Man Sheridan orders Lamhorn off the premises and tells Edith to give him up.

Once more the forces beyond the power of human control are at work confounding and thwarting the mighty business man and city builder, Sheridan. He fights blindly, valiantly and feels sure he can win. How the fates laugh at his efforts; how love and hate show their great strength—is all told with great fluency by the author in this installment.

Bibbs' father has announced that hereafter Bibbs will be an official in the various Sheridan enterprises and will take up a big business career. The son has refused. The father has just angrily demanded an explanation of the refusal.

CHAPTER XXIV.—Continued.

Perturbed and distressed, Bibbs rose instinctively; he felt himself at every possible disadvantage. He was a sleeper clinging to a dream—a rough hand stretched to shake him and waken him. He went to a table and made vague drawings upon it with a finger, and as he spoke he kept his eyes lowered. "You weren't altogether right about the shop—that is, in one way you weren't, father." He glanced up apprehensively. Sheridan stood facing him, expressionless, and made no attempt to interrupt. "That's difficult to explain," Bibbs continued, lowering his eyes again, to follow the tracings of his finger. "I—I believe the shop might have done for me this time if I hadn't—if something hadn't helped me to—oh, not only to bear it, but to be happy in it. Well, I am happy in it. I want to go on just as I am. And of all things on earth that I don't want, I don't want to live a business life—I don't want to be drawn into it. I don't think it is living—and now I am living. I have the healthful toil—and I can think. In business as important as yours I couldn't think anything but business. I don't—I don't think making money is worth while."

"Go on," said Sheridan, curtly, as Bibbs paused timidly.

"It hasn't seemed to get anywhere, that I can see," said Bibbs. "You think this city is rich and powerful—but what's the use of its being rich and powerful? They don't teach the children any more in the schools because the city is rich and powerful. They teach them more than they used to because some people—not rich and powerful people — have thought the thoughts to teach the children. And yet when you've been reading the paper I've heard you objecting to the children being taught anything except what would help them to make money. You said it was wasting the taxes. You want them taught to make a living, but not to live. When I was a little boy this wasn't an ugly town; now it's hideous. What's the use of being big just to be hideous? I mean I don't think all this has meant really going ahead—it's just been getting bigger and dirtier and noisier. Wasn't the whole country happier and in many ways wiser when it was smaller and cleaner and quieter and kinder? I know you think I'm an utter fool, father, but, after all, though, aren't business and politics just the housekeeping part of life? And wouldn't you despise a woman that not only made her housekeeping her ambition, but did it so noisily and dirtily that the whole neighborhood was in a continual turmoil over it? And suppose she talked and thought about her housekeeping all the time, and was always having additions built to her house when she couldn't keep clean what she already had; and suppose, with it all, she made the house altogether unpeaceful and unlivable—"

"Just one minute!" Sheridan interrupted, adding, with terrible courtesy, "If you will permit me? Have you ever been right about anything?"

"I don't quite—"

"I ask the simple question: Have you ever been right about anything whatever in the course of your life? Have you ever been right upon any subject or question you've thought about or talked about? Can you mention one single time when you were proved to be right?"

He was flourishing the bandaged hand as he spoke, but Bibbs said dully, "If I've always been wrong before, surely there's more chance that I'm right about this. It seems reasonable to suppose something would be due to bring up my average."

"Yes, I thought you wouldn't see the point. And there's another you probably couldn't see, but I'll take the liberty to mention it. You been balkin' all your life. Pretty much everything I ever wanted you to do, you'd let out some kind of a holler, like you are now—and yet I can't seem to remember once when you didn't have to lay down and do what I said. But go on with your remarks about our city and the business of this country. Go on!"

"I don't want to be part of it," said Bibbs, with unwonted decision. "I want to keep to myself, and I'm doing it now. I couldn't, if I went down there with you. I'd be swallowed into it. I don't care for money enough to—"

"No," his father interrupted, still dangerously quiet. "You've never had to earn a living. Anybody could tell that by what you say. Now, let me remind you; you're sleepin' in a pretty good bed; you're eatin' pretty fair food; you're wearin' pretty fine clothes. Just suppose one o' these noisy housekeepers—me, for instance—decided to let you do your own housekeepin'. May I ask what your proposition would be?"

"I'm earning nine dollars a week," said Bibbs, sturdily. "It's enough. I shouldn't mind at all."

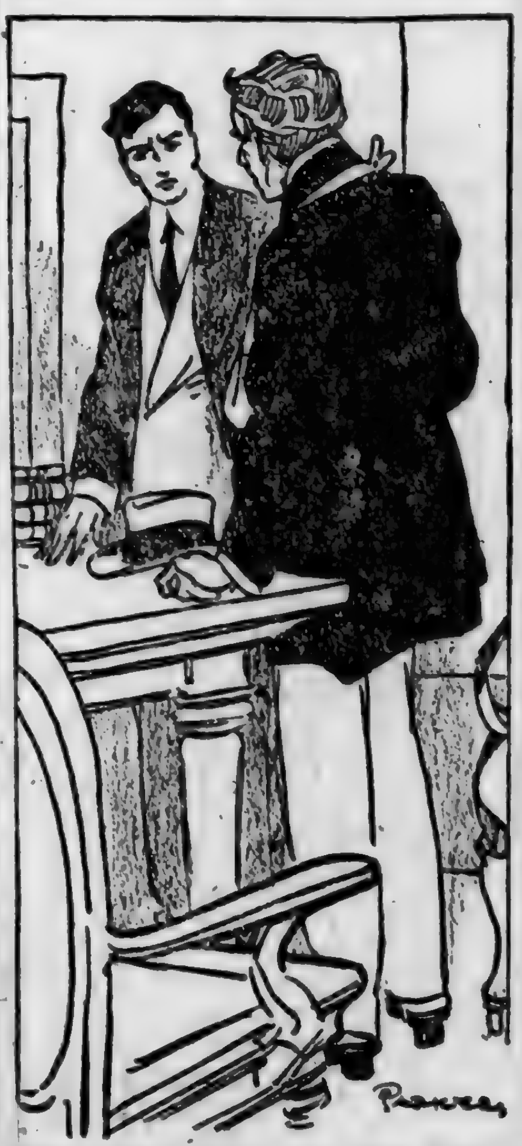
"Who's payin' you that nine dollars a week?"

"My work!" Bibbs answered. "And I've done so well on that clipping machine I believe I could work up to fifteen or even twenty a week at another job. I could be a fair plumber in a few months, I'm sure. I'd rather have a trade than be in business—I should, infinitely!"

"You better set about learnin' one pretty dam' quick!" But Sheridan struggled with his temper and again was partially successful in controlling it. "You better learn a trade over Sunday, because you're either goin' down with me to my office Monday morning—or—you can go to plumbing!"

"All right," said Bibbs, gently. "I can get along."

Sheridan raised his hands sardonically, as in prayer. "O God," he said, "this boy was crazy enough before he began to earn nine dollars a week, and now his money's gone to his head! Can't you do nothin' for him?" Then he flung his hands apart, palms outward, in a furious gesture of dismissal. "Get out o' this room! You got a skull that's thicker'n a whale's thigh-bone, but it's cracked spang all the way across! You're cracked! Oh, but I got a fine layout here! One son died, one quit, and one's a loon! The loon's all I got left! Well, mister, loon or no loon, cracked and crazy or whatever you are, I'll take you with me Monday morning, and I'll work you and learn you—yes' and I'll lam you, if I got to—until I've made something out of you that's fit to be called a business man! I'll keep at you while I'm able to stand, and if I have to lay down to die I'll be whisperin' at you till they get the embalmin' fluid into me! Now go on, and don't let me hear from you again till you can come and tell me you've waked up, you poor, pitiful, dandelion-pickin' sleep-walker!"



"Who's Paying You That Nine Dollars a Week?"

Bibbs gave him a queer look. There was something like reproach in it, for once; but there was more than that—he seemed to be startled by his father's last word.

CHAPTER XXV.

There was sleet that evening, with a whooping wind, but neither this storm nor that other which so imminently threatened him held place in the consciousness of Bibbs Sheridan when he came once more to the presence of Mary. All was right in his world as he sat with her, reading Maurice Maeterlinck's "Alladine and Palomides." And while the zinc eater held out to bring him such golden nights as these, all the king's horses and all the king's men might not serve to break the spell.

Bibbs read slowly, but in a reasonable manner, as if he were talking; and Mary, looking at him steadily from beneath her curved fingers, appeared to discover no fault. It had grown to be her habit to look at him whenever there was an opportunity. It may be said, in truth, that while they were together, and it was light, she looked at him all the time.

When he came to the end of "Alladine and Palomides" they were silent a little while, considering together; then he turned back the pages and said:

"There's something I want to read over. This:

> You would think I threw a window open on the dawn. . . . She has a soul that can be seen around her—that takes you in its arms like an ailing child and without saying anything to you consoles you for everything. . . . I shall never understand it all. I do not know how it can all be, but my knees bend in spite of me when I speak of it. . . .

He stopped and looked at her.

"You boy!" said Mary, not very clearly.

"Oh, yes," he returned. "But it's true—especially my knees!"

"You boy!" she murmured again, blushing charmingly. "You might read another line over. The first time I ever saw you, Bibbs, you were looking into a mirror. Do it again. But you needn't read it—I can give it to you: 'A little Greek slave that came from the heart of Arcady!'"

"I! I'm one of the hands at the Pump works—and going to stay one, unless I have to decide to study plumbing."

"No." She shook her head. "You love and want what's beautiful and delicate and serene; it's really art that you want in your life, and have always wanted. You seemed to me, from the first, the most wistful person I had ever known, and that's what you were wistful for."

Bibbs looked doubtful and more wistful than ever; but after a moment or two the matter seemed to clarify itself to him. "Why, no," he said; "I wanted something else more than that. I wanted you."

"And here I am!" she laughed, completely understanding. "I think we're like those two in "The Cloister and the Hearth." I'm just the rough Burgundian crossbow man, Denys, who followed that gentle Gerard and told everybody that the devil was dead."

"He isn't, though," said Bibbs, as a hoarse little bell in the next room began a series of snappings which proved to be ten, upon count. "He gets into the clock whenever I'm with you." And, sighing deeply, he rose to go.

"You're always very prompt about leaving me."

"There's one little time in the twenty-four hours when I'm not happy. It's now, when I have to say good night. But now's the bad time—and I must go through it, and so—good night." And he added with a pungent vehemence of which he was little aware, "I hate it!"

"Do you?" she said, rising to go to the door with him. But he stood motionless, gazing at her wonderingly.

"Mary! Your eyes are so—" He stopped.

"Yes?" But she looked quickly away.

"I don't know," he said. "I thought just then—"

"What did you think?"

"I don't know—it seemed to me that there was something I ought to understand—and didn't."

She laughed and met his wondering gaze again frankly. "My eyes are pleased," she said. "I'm glad that you miss me a little after you go."

"But tomorrow's coming faster than other days, if you'll let it," he said.

She inclined her head. "Yes. I'll—'let it'!"

"Going to church," said Bibbs. "It is going to church when I go with you!"

She went to the front door with him; she always went that far. They had formed a little code of leave-taking, by habit, neither of them ever speaking of it; but it was always the same. She always stood in the doorway until he reached the sidewalk, and there he always turned and looked back, and she waved her hand to him. Then he went on, half-way to the new house, and looked back again, and Mary was not in the doorway, but the door was open and the light shone. It was as if she meant to tell him that she would never shut him out; he could always see that friendly light of the open doorway—as if it were open for him to come back, if he would. He could see it until a wing of the new house came between, when he went up the path. The open doorway seemed to him the beautiful symbol of her friendship—of her thought of him; a symbol of herself and of her ineffable kindness.

And she kept the door open—even tonight, though the sleet and fine snow swept in upon her bare throat and arms, and her brown hair was strewn with tiny white stars. His heart leaped as he turned and saw that she was there, waving her hand to him, as if he did not know that the storm touched her. When he had gone on, Mary did as she always did—she went into an unlit room across the hall from that in which they had spent the evening, and, looking from the window, watched him until he was out of sight. The storm made that difficult tonight, but she caught a glimpse of him under the street lamp that stood between the two houses, and saw that he turned to look back again. Then, and not before she looked at the upper windows of Roscoe's house across the street. They were dark. Mary waited, but after a little while she closed the front door and returned to her window. A moment later two of the upper windows of Roscoe's house flashed into light and a hand lowered the shade of one of them. Mary felt the cold then—it was the third night she had seen those windows lighted and that shade lowered, just after Bibbs had gone.

A stricken George, muttering hoarsely, admitted him, and Bibbs became aware of a paroxysm within the house. Terrible sounds came from the library: Sheridan cursing as never before; his wife sobbing, her voice rising to an agonized squeal of protest upon each of a series of muffled detonations—the outrageous thumping of a bandaged hand upon wood; then Gurney, sharply imperious, "Keep your hand in that sling! Keep your hand in that sling, I say!"

"Look!" George gasped, delighted to play herald for so important a tragedy; and he renewed upon his face the ghastly expression with which he had first beheld the ruins his calamitous gesture laid before the eyes of Bibbs. "Look at 'a lamidal statue!"

Gazing down the hall, Bibbs saw heroic wreckage, seemingly Byzantine—painted colossal fragments of a shattered torso, appallingly human; and gilded and silvered heaps of magnificence strewn among ruinous palms like the spoil of a barbarians' battle. There had been a massacre in the oasis—the Moor had been hurled from his pedestal.

"He hit 'at ole lamidal statue," said George. "Pow!"

"My father?"

"Yessuh! Pow! he hit 'er! An' you' ma run tell me git doctuh quick 's I kin telefoam—she sho' you' pa goin' bus' a blood-vessel. He ain't takin' on 'tall now. He ain't nothin' 'tall to what he was 'while ago. You done miss' it, Mist' Bibbs. Doctuh got him all quiet' down, to what he was. Pow! he hit 'er! Yessuh!" He took Bibbs' coat and proffered a crumpled telegraph form. "Here what come," he said. "I pick 'er up when he done stompin' on 'er. You read 'er, Mist' Bibbs—you' ma tell me tuhn 'er ovuh to you soon's you come in."

Bibbs read the telegram quickly. It was from New York and addressed to Mrs. Sheridan.

> Sure you will all approve step have taken as was so wretched my health would probably suffered severely Robert and I were married this afternoon thought best have quiet wedding absolutely sure you will understand wisdom of step when you know Robert better am happiest woman in world are leaving for Florida will wire address when settled will remain till spring love to all father will like him too when he knows him like I do he is just ideal.
>
> EDITH LAMHORN.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Bibbs, convinced that the mere glimpse of him, just then, would prove nothing less than insufferable for his father, was about to make his escape into the gold-and-brocade room when he heard Sheridan vociferously demanding his presence.

"Tell him to come in here! He's out there. I heard George just let him in. Now you'll see!" And tear-stained Mrs. Sheridan, looking out into the hall, beckoned to her son.

Bibbs went as far as the doorway. Gurney sat winding a strip of white cotton; his black bag open upon a chair near by; and Sheridan was striding up and down, his hand so heavily wrapped in fresh bandages that he seemed to be wearing a small boxing-glove. His eyes were bloodshot; his forehead was heavily bedewed; one side of his collar had broken loose, and there were blood stains upon his right cuff.

"There's our little sunshine!" he cried, as Bibbs appeared. "There's the hope o' the family—my lifelong pride and joy! I want—"

"Keep your hand in that sling," said Gurney, sharply.

Sheridan turned upon him, uttering a sound like a howl. "For God's sake, sing another tune!" he cried. "You said you 'came as a doctor but stay as a friend,' and in that capacity you undertake to sit up and criticize me—"

"Oh, talk sense," said the doctor, and yawned intentionally. "What do you want Bibbs to say?"

"You were sittin' up there tellin' me I got 'hysterical'—'hysterical,' oh Lord! You sat up there and told me I got 'hysterical' over nothin'! You sat up there tellin' me I didn't have as heavy burdens as many another man you knew. I just want you to hear this. Now listen!" He swung toward the quiet figure waiting in the doorway. "Bibbs' will you come down town with me Monday morning and let me start you with two vice-presidencies, a directorship, stock and salaries? I ask you."

"No, father," said Bibbs, gently.

Sheridan looked at Gurney and then faced his son once more.

"And I'd like the doctor to hear: What 'll you do if I decide you're too high-priced a workin- man either to live in my house or work in my shop?"

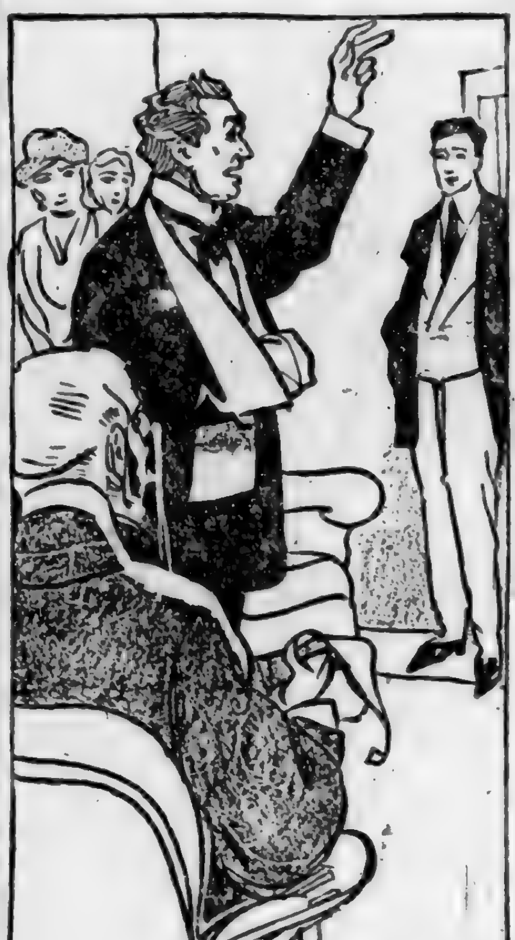
"Find other work," said Bibbs.

"There! You hear him for yourself!" Sheridan cried. "You hear what—"

"Keep your hand in that sling! Yes, I hear him."

Sheridan leaned over Gurney and shouted, in a voice that cracked and broke, piping into falsetto: "He thinks of bein' a plumber! He wants to be a plumber so he can think!"

He fell back a step, wiping his forehead with the back of his left hand. "There! That's my son! That's the only son I got now! That's my chance to live," he cried, with a bitterness that seemed to leave ashes in his throat. "That's my one chance to live—that thing you see in the doorway yonder!"



"There's Our Little Sunshine!" He Cried.

Doctor Gurney thoughtfully regarded the bandage strip he had been winding, and tossed it into the open bag. "What's the matter with giving Bibbs a chance to live?" he said, coolly. "I would if I were you. You've had two that went into business."

Sheridan's mouth moved grotesquely before he could speak. "Joe Gurney," he said, when he could command himself so far, "are you accusin' me of the responsibility for the death of my son James?"

"I accuse you of nothing," said the doctor. "But just once I'd like to have it out with you on the question of Bibbs—and while he's here, too." He got up, walked to the fire, and stood warming his hands behind his back and smiling. "Look here, old fellow, let's be reasonable," he said. "You were bound Bibbs should go to the shop again, and he did go, and he's made good there. Now, see: Isn't that enough? Can't you let him off now? He wants to write, and how do you know that he couldn't do it if you gave him a chance? How do you know he hasn't some message—something to say that might make the world just a little bit happier or wiser? I'm not speaking as doctor now. But I tell you one thing I know: If you take him down there you'll kill something that I feel is in him, and it's finer, I think, than his physical body, and you'll kill it deader than a door-nail! And so why not let it live? You've about come to the end of your string, old fellow. Why not stop this perpetual devilish fighting and give Bibbs his chance?"

Sheridan stood looking at him fixedly. "What 'fighting?'"

"Yours—with nature." Gurney sustained the daunting gaze of his fierce antagonist equably. "You don't seem to understand that you've been struggling against actual law."

"What law?"

"Natural law," said Gurney. "What do you think beat you with Edith? Did Edith, herself, beat you? Didn't she obey without question something powerful that was against you? Edith wasn't against you, and you weren't aginst her, but you set yourself against the power that had her in its grip, and it shot out a spurt of flame—and won in a walk! What's taken Roscoe from you? Timbers bear just so much strain, old man; but you wanted to send the load across the broken bridge, and you thought you could bully or coax the cracked thing into standing. Well, you couldn't! Now here's Bibbs. There are thousands of men fit for the life you want him to lead—and so is he. It wouldn't take half of Bibbs' brains to be twice as good a business man as Jim and Roscoe put together."

"What!" Sheridan goggled at him like a zany.

"Your son Bibbs," said the doctor, composedly, "Bibbs Sheridan has the kind and quantity of 'gray matter' that will make him a success in anything—if he ever wakes up! The thousands of men fit for the life you want him to lead aren't fit to do much with the life he ought to lead. Blindly, he's been fighting for the chance to lead it—he's obeying something that begs to stay alive within him; and, blindly, he knows you'll crush it out. You've set your will to do it. Let me tell you something more. You're half mad with a consuming fury against the very self of the law—the law that took Jim from you. The very self of the law took Roscoe from you and gave Edith the certainty of beating you; and the very self of the law makes Bibbs deny you tonight. The law beats you. But you've set yourself against it, to bend it to your own ends, to wield it and twist it—"

The voice broke from Sheridan's heaving chest in a shout. "Yes! And by God, I will!"

"So Ajax defied the lightning," said Gurney.

"I've heard that dam'-fool story, too," Sheridan retorted, fixedly. "'Defied the lightning,' did he, the jackass! If he'd been half a man he'd 'a' got away with it. We don't go showin' off defyin' the lightning—we hitch it up and make it work for us like a black steer!"

"Well, what about Bibbs?" said Gurney. "Will you be a really big man now and—"

"Gurney, you know a lot about bigness!" Sheridan began to walk to and fro again, and the doctor returned gloomily to his chair. He had shot his bolt the moment he judged its chance to strike center was best, but the target seemed unaware of the marksman.

"I'm tryin' to make a big man out o' that poor truck yonder," Sheridan went on, "and you step in, beggin' me to let him be Lord knows what—I don't! I suppose you figure it out that now I got a son-in-law, I mightn't need a son! Yes, I got a son-in-law now—a spender!"

"Oh, put your hand back!" said Gurney, wearily.

There was a bronze inkstand upon the table. Sheridan put his right hand in the sling, but with his left he swept the inkstand from the table and halfway across the room—a comet with a destroying black tail. Mrs. Sheridan shrieked and sprang toward it.

"Let it lay!" he shouted, fiercely. "Let it lay!" And, weeping, she obeyed. "Yes, sir," he went on, in a voice the more ominous for the sudden hush he put upon it. "I got a spender for a son-in-law! It's wonderful where property goes, sometimes. There was ole man Tracy—you remember him Doc—J. R. Tracy, solid banker. He went into the bank as messenger, seventeen years old; he was president at forty-three, and he built that bank with his life for forty years more. Gilt edge, that bank? It was diamond edged? He used to eat a bag o' peanuts and an apple for lunch; but he wasn't stingy—he was just livin' in his business. He didn't care for pie or automobiles—he had his bank. It was an institution, and it come pretty near bein' the beatin' heart o' this town in its time. Well, that ole man used to pass one o' these here turned-up-nose and turned-up-pants cigarette boys on the streets. Never spoke to him, Tracy didn't. Speak to him? God! he wouldn't 'a' coughed on him! He wouldn't 'a' let him clean the cuspidors at the bank! Why, if he'd 'a' just seen him standin' in front the bank he'd 'a' had him run off the street. And yet all Tracy was doin' every day of his life was workin' for that cigarette boy! Tracy thought he was givin' his life and his life-blood and the blood of his brain for the bank, but he wasn't. It was every bit—from the time he went in at seventeen till he died in harness at eighty-three—it was every last lick of it just slavin' for a turned-up-nose, turned-up-pants cigarette boy. And Tracy didn't even know his name! He died not ever havin' heard it, though he chased him off the front steps of his house once. The day after Tracy died his old-maid daughter married the cigarette—and there ain't any Tracy bank any more! And now"—his voice rose again—"and now I got a cigarette son-in-law!"

Gurney pointed to the flourishing right hand without speaking, and Sheridan once more returned it to the sling.

"My son-in-law likes Florida this winter," Sheridan went on. "That's good, and my son-in-law better enjoy it, because I don't think he'll be there next winter. They got twelve thousand dollars to spend, and I hear it can be done in Florida by rich sons-in-law. When Roscoe's woman got me to spend that much on a porch for their new house, Edith wouldn't give me a minute's rest till I turned over the same to her. And she's got it, besides what I gave her to go east on. It'll be gone long before this time next year, and when she comes home and leaves the cigarette behind—for good—she'll get some more. My name ain't Tracy, and there ain't goin' to be any Tracy business in the Sheridan family. And there ain't goin' to be any college foundin' and endowin' and trusteein', nor God-knows-what to keep my property alive when I'm gone! Edith'll be back, and she'll get a girl's share when she's through with that cigarette, but—"

Doesn't it appear now that Old Man Sheridan will set about to have Edith's marriage to Lamhorn annulled as soon as she comes to her senses? Would you do so if you were her father?

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SEPTEMBER

0290

WE HAVE SOLD OUT

◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆◆

and we have just NINE MORE DAYS in which to do business at Spencerville. In order to reduce our stock for Inventory we are going to REDUCE the PRICE on ALL goods until that time. Our stock is complete in ALL lines and it will pay you BUY NOW for the prices on all goods are advancing daily. YOU will not only be SAVING the advance, but be buying for less than goods could be bought for at the LOW PRICE a year ago. COME and let us SAVE you MONEY before we go out-of-business.

J. Beams

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Public Sales

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located 3 miles north of St. Joe, 8 miles east of Auburn and ½ mile south of Auburn and Hicksville State Road.

Wednesday Sept, 13

Beginning at 10 a. m. the following

HORSES: Team black Normans mare and horse, broke in all harness, weighing 1,500 lb 3-yr. old. Gray Norman mare 5-yr. old weight 1,400. Black Gelding 4-yr. old weight 1,250.

CATTLE: 2 Jersey heifers registered, will be fresh in September and January. Roan Durham cow 6-yr. old giving nice flow of milk now. Brindle Durham cow 6-yr. old will be fresh in January. Red Durham cow 8-yr. old giving milk. 7 head yearling calves. 2 last spring calves.

22 HEAD HOGS: Registered Duroc sow due to farrow day of sale. 3 Duroc brood sows due to farrow in September. 18 head of good thrifty shoats weighing from 90 to 100 pounds.

50 Good LAYING HENS.

FARMING IMPLEMENTS

Deering mower, Oliver Riding plow, riding corn plow, walking corn plow, roller, 2 Oliver breaking plows, NEW, No. 404x, Spring tooth harrow, two 60-tooth lever harrows, double shovel plows, set good dump boards, Turnbull wagon with top box and seat, top buggy, 2 set good double work harness flat bottom hay rack, scoop board, log chains, shovels, forks and other articles not mentioned.

Some Household Furniture.

Don P. Hindman.

J. L. Rhodenbaugh, Auct.
A. D. Brunson, Clerk.

Ask about our magazine offer.

WANTED!

YOUR POULTRY

For which we will pay the highest market price.

Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM

St. Joe, Indiana

NEWVILLE

Read the Free Column.

Miss Belle Blair made a business trip to Butler Wednesday.

Mrs. Ann Griest of Hicksville, visited relatives here last week.

The Pythian sisters held a picnic in the Hamilton grove Sunday.

Miss Fern Tarney is on the sick list. Dr. Brunson is the attending physician.

E. E. Traxler and family were Sunday guests of Hugh Traxler and family.

Orland Richmond had for last week guests his daughter and little son of Chicago.

Grant Ames and wife had for guests Sunday her brother and family of Hicksville.

Rev. Keesey and wife visited the Oberholtzer family near Union Chapel, Wednesday.

Rev. Keesey preached his last sermon here Sunday for the past year. He is attending conference this week at Warsaw.

Mrs. Bert Pattee went to Michigan the first of the week to attend the funeral of the infant daughter of her sister, Mary Wood.

A. J. Richmond, Willie Harter, Floyd Roberts and Byron Miller, rode their wheels to Robinson park last Sunday where they spent the day.

Hugh Traxler, Earl Richardson and nephew, motored to Contantine, Mich., Thursday, returning Friday. They report a bountiful crop of late peaches through that part of the country.

Forrest Marrow and wife visited the former's people at Milford Sunday.

Nate Ross and wife, of Artic, were Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

Ralph Greist and wife of Hicksville, were Sunday guests of Dave Griest and wife.

Andrew Chapman and wife and Mrs. Ella Strong motored to Fort Wayne Thursday to visit Mrs Myrtle Blair, of Butler, who is in the hospital there, having recently suffered an operation for removal of tumerous growth.

Getting Close Home

Three homes in DeKalb county have been placed under quarentine for Infantile Paralysis, the last one being that of Lem Campbell of Wilmington township, their ten months old babe, being afflicted. The Campbell family lives three miles west of Butler on the Waterloo-Butler road and there are several other children in the family who will undoubtedly take the disease. The two families who visited the Campbell home when the little child was sick, also have several children who are watched for indications of the disease. While the little girl has been sick for over a week with a high fever, symptoms of infantile paralysis have just appeared. Even if the child does recover, it is probable that she will be a cripple for life. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell are at a loss to know how the child contracted the disease.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Among great statesmen who failed to be elected to the presidency were John Jay, John Hancock, Charles C. Pinckney, George Clinton, John Marshall, Henry Clay, John C. Calhoun, Daniel Webster, Lewis Cass, Winfield Scott, Stephen A. Douglas, William L. Marcy, John P. Hale, John McLean, John C. Fremont, William H. Seward, Salmon P. Chase, Charles Sumner, Daniel S. Dickinson, Jefferson Davis, John Bell, Simon Cameron, Horatio Seymour, Geo. B. McClellan, Winfield S. Hancock, David Davis, Horace Greeley, Charles O'Conor, Samuel J. Tilden, James G. Blaine, Roscoe Conklin, Thomas F. Bayard, John Sherman, Geo. F. Edmunds, Allen G. Thurman, Samuel J. Randall, Benjamin F. Butler, John A. Logan, Thomas A. Hendricks, Walter G. Gresham, Chauncey M. Depew, Thomas B. Reed, David B. Hill, William J. Bryan and Alton B. Parker.

Local Briefs

John Milliman and family were Sunday guests of Mort Milliman.

Lela Wallace and Agnes Sechler, were Ft. Wayne visitors, Tuesday.

Mrs. Cordelia Yarnell is visiting her daughter Mrs. Beeks Erick in Fort Wayne.

John Betz and wife and Mrs. Ada Berry spent Sunday with Edgerton friends.

Mrs. Joseph Haifley and younger son, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. Haifley in Ft. Wayne.

Transfer paper at NEWS office 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

C. A. Patterson and wife and Hollis Dilley and wife visited Mrs. Buckingham at the St. Joseph hospital Friday.

Mrs. Bertha Plum and son Bernard of Auburn, spent from Friday until Sunday, guests of E. R. Kinsey and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benninghoff and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wallace, motored to Lake James Sunday and spent the day.

A car of Bradley's Fertilizer will be in this week. Phone in your order and get from the car. Get it at Curie's.

Gearge Swineford and wife, Mrs. Elijah Saylor and son Fred and Mrs. Frank Johnson, motored to New Haven Sunday afternoon.

Wilson Sanders and wife, W. E. Peterson and wife and Mrs. Rose Meese, motored to Leo Sunday and were dinner guests of Newton Henderson and wife.

Ralph Lenhart of New Haven, was a Sunday and Monday guest of Jesse Coons. His parents lived here 18 years ago and labored on the St. Joe M. P. Circuit.

Mrs. Chas. Koch treated her Sunday School class with a picnic at Eckhart Park, Auburn, Thursday. A picnic luncheon was served and a fine time reported.

Mrs. Rose Meese will move into her property the last of this week, which was lately vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Miller who moved onto the Erick farm south of town.

Charles Koch, wife and two sons Mrs. Anna Baker, Ira Bone and wife, Will Keeler and family, Lanky Morr and wife and Howard Krise, wife and son all visited Cold Springs Sunday.

Ed Leighty and wife and Frank Bowman and wife motored to Hicksville and Sherwood Sunday, where they were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Openlander, at the latter named place.

Mrs. Ed Leighty left Tuesday for Chicago, from there she will go to Celina, Kansas Thursday and will also visit at Des Moines and Guthrie, Iowa, before returning home. She expects to be gone for about three weeks.

Mesdames C. C. Curie and Frank Curie with Jerry Klopfenstine and wife went to Garrett Sunday and visited at the home of J. R. Skilling to bid goodbye to Mrs. Emma Skilling and children, who left that day for their home in Baltimore, Md., after spending several weeks here and at Garrett.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office, ... No. 2

Office at Residence. Second house west of Widney Opera House.

COMING BACK

United Doctors Specialist will again be at Hicksville, Ohio. Monday, September 18th., '16, at the Hotel Swilley.

One Day Only

Hours 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

Offer Services Free of Charge

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Ohio, are experts in the treatment of diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, diabetes, bed-wetting, rheumatism, sciatica tape worm, leg ulcers, appendicitis, gall stones, goitre, piles, etc., without operation and are too well known in this locality to need further mention. Call and see them, it costs you nothing. Remember the day and place.
Laboratories, Cleveland, Ohio.

Return to Auburn

J. R. Culbertson and wife of Orangeville will move to Auburn this week and occupy the Joseph Prosser residence. Mr. Prosser is making his home with them and since the operation on his eyes is able to see. While he enjoys the country yet he is not able to fully content himself there like he would at Auburn, where he is well acquainted. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson have made wonderful improvements upon their home and they regret to leave but Mr. Prosser is to make his home with them permanently and they feel like making a sacrifice to make his life more pleasant. They will be missed from this community.

Dying By Inches.

It is not an uncommon sight to see people who are dying by inches. The glands of the body are not working properly, poisonous matter accumulates and health declines. The circulation becomes sluggish, the blood impure, and a general nervous or debilitated condition exists. Day by day the liver and kidneys become less active, leaving the poisonous matter within the body. This poisonous accumulation causes the sallow complexion, and a tired, achy or run down feeling which, if neglected, may result in jaundice, typhoid fever or serious liver and kidney trouble. Glando, the great gland tonic, is especially prepared to relieve glandular disorders, throw off the poisonous accumulations and build up the system. Glando, the great gland tonic is the only treatment of its kind upon the market. Its superior qualities are due to the fact that it contains three separate treatments, each treatment having a special part to perform in effecting a cure. For sale by all Dealers.

Try an ad in the Free col.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.; Preaching, 7:00 p. m; Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:00.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m. Prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Christian Church Announcements;

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m. Morning Worship by L. W. Spade, 10:15 a. m. subject—Diety in Jesus. Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

What J. N. George of St. Joe has to say about cream separators this week.

Buying a cream separator is a good deal like hiring a man to work on your farm. A hired man that does poor work and is lazy is an expensive proposition, no matter how little you pay him. A cream separator that is hard to turn, hard to keep clean and doesn't skim close, would be expensive even if you got it as a gift.

Creamerymen and dairymen all over the world recognize the superiority of the De Laval.

About the only reason why any one ever buys any other cream separator is because they can get it a little cheaper.

Then they soon find out they have lost ten times as much from separator inconvenience, poor skimming and a machine that quickly wears out, as they saved in the beginning.

Remember that a De Laval will soon pay for itself, and if you have no separator now, or an inferior machine, we can sell you a De Laval on such terms that it will pay for itself while you are using it.

The best cream separator is the cheapest. Let us prove it for you on your own farm.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

SEPTEMBER

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY SEPT. 14 1916 — NO. 38

Notice of Receivers' Sale.

Notice is hereby given that I will offer for sale at private sale, beginning September 19, 1916, and continuing from day to day until I get the best offer, the hardware stock of which I have been appointed Receiver in the case of Simmons Hardware Company vs. Laurin L. Cole, D Price Cole, and others, in the DeKalb Circuit Court.

Such sale will be made at the store known as the St. Joe Hardware Company, in the Town of St. Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana, where said stock is situated, and subject to examination by those who may desire to purchase it.

The sale must be for not less than two-thirds of the appraised value, according to the appraisement now on file and in possession of me as Receiver.

TERMS OF SALE: Such sale will be made for cash, or part cash and good bankable note for the balance, running not longer than sixty days from date of sale, waiving valuation and appraisement laws of the State of Indiana, with six per cent interest from date, and attorney fees.

Dated at St. Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana, this 5th. day of September, 1916.

JOHN D. SMITH,
38— Receiver.

Shull Reunion.

The Shull family reunion held Sept. 3 in Hamilton grove was attended by 88. Some were kept away by sickness others by the anticipated strike that was booked to occur on Monday, fearing they could not return home. The relation in Ft. Wayne were under quarentine which lessoned the number which otherwise would have been present.

Among those not living in the community and living in distant or nearby town were: Mrs. Will Charon and daughter Geraldine, of Branch, Mich; Grace and Dale Williams, of Garrett; Chas. Shull and family, of Rome City, Ind.; Alex Culbertson, John Abel, Albert Miser and families and Ivan Culbertson and wife, all of Auburn; O. K. Shull and family, and other names not known to writer, of St. Joe; Mrs. Margaret Koch, of Spencerville; D. L. Shull, C. A. Shull U. C. Shull and wife, Sherman Hart and families, L. C. Palmer and wife, all of Hicksville. After a fine dinner the youngsters small and grownups indulged in a peanut race and other amusements which caused much merriment for both young and old.

The afternoon's program was opened by a very interesting talk by L. C. Palmer, of Hicksville, followed by a reading by Mrs. J. S. Shull. Mrs. Charley Shull, of Rome City, had a fine essay written for the occasion on "Home Making." Margurete Abel and Hazel Miser, Mrs. Ivan Culbertson, of Auburn, and Cathryn Shull entertained the crowd with some interesting recitation also Ward Hart of Hicksville. Sherman Hart was humorist and done his part to keep every one from getting moody.

As far back as is known of this clan on both sides little Miss Geraldine Charon and Master Robert Eugene Miser represented the 7th. generation on there great great grandmothers side whose name was Susanna Newcomer Shull, wife of Daniel Shull who was born and raised in Maryland, married near Connelsville, Pa. Came to this DeKalb Co., Ind., in an early day, he bought the last farm at $2 per acre in the year 1848 on which his youngest and only son, J. S. Shull now living has had his home near 50 years.

Daniel Shull was the son of one Philip Sholl (as the name was then spelled) his wife's ancestry dates back to one Ulrich Newcomer, who was driven from his home in Switzerland as near as records are obtainable in the year 1750 with many others because of persecution through his espousal of the Mennonite faith. He was born in the year 1730 near Tentonic Switzerland. On shipboard there traveled a fair Mennonite maid by name of Magdalena Baumgartren. She and two others when arriving at one of the ports in the American Colonies found themselves robbed of means and was sold into bonds, under regulations existing at that time, for their passage money. They were speedily redeemed by members of their sect, and Ulrich Newcomer being one to help make up the redemtion money. Later on he married Magdalena and settled in Lancaster Co., Pa., then a province. To this brave persecuted couple of the 7th., generation back this tribe of Shulls owe their existance.

Mrs. L. C. Palmer, I. S. Shull and one sister, Lydia Hadsell in Nebraska are children of the 3rd., and 4th., generation.—Hicksville News.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	121	$4.26
M. P.	102	3.45
Christian	56	2.33
Concord	111
Fairview	25	.75
Coburntown	93	2.82
M. E. Spencer	87	3.56
Lutheran	65	1.76

Preparation for DeKalb County Centennial.

Concord Township takes just pride in her schools, and as the schools will have the major part to play in the program of Oct. 6th., of Centennial Week at Auburn, it is up to everyone interested in our making a success of our part that everybody must put their shoulder to the wheel and push and boost. At a meeting held in the High School room, Friday evening, Prof. Smith gave a brief talk and told what was expected of us if we wished to do our part. An executive committee was chosen also which consists of H. C. Hathaway, President; F. B. Leighty and C. A. Woodcox, Vice-Presidents; and S. W. Tustison Sec. This committee met Saturday evening and selected the following committees:

On transportation—Teachers of Concord Township.

On Float—Ed Leighty, A. E. Coburn, Chas. Koch, Mrs. Eva Sheffer and Mrs. Lena Meek.

On Relics, Fancy Work, etc–The High School Alumni.

The subject for the float will be "The Pioneers Home Life." Let us all try to do everything to make a success of our part. Concord is only half a township, but we can perform our part just as well as the rest if everybody boosts.

Annual Tri-State Meeting of Camp Fire Club of Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, at Garrett, Ind., Sept. 18th., 1916, featured with big trap shoot at 150 targets starting at 9:00 a. m. Salisbury Wild Life Pictures at Royal theatre. 3 reels Chief Bender, Jack Fanning at the Traps. Banquet I. O. O. F. Hall, 7:00 p. m. Ladies invited. Free Exhibit of Big Game Trophies at City Hall. All Big Game Hunters invited to attend and bring their families. You are welcome.

C. H. Heinzerling, Secy.

Locates Here

David Bower moved last week from near Butler into the Dennis Burley house on Spencerville St. He is working on the stone road. Mr. Bowers lived in this vicinity a number of years ago.

In Justice Court

Last Thursday was a busy day in the Justice court when D. A. Baker of Butler met Jasper Snyder of Concord in a suit for $74.80. The trial lasted for a whole day. Due to the close quarters in the Justice court room, the case was taken to the town hall for hearing, due to the number of witnesses, jury and attorneys employed to try the case. The cause for action was as follows:—Snyder sold his hay last February to Baker and the bailers came and tied his hay and due to the fact that the hay was not all timotny, he did not pay for it, also a scarcity of cars, made Mr. Snyder hold it for some time and inconvenience him greatly. Snyder sold the hay to Frye and received his pay, $1.50 more per ton than Baker was to pay for it. This was satisfactory to Baker as he wrote his consent for Snyder to sell the hay, and of course expected Mr. Snyder to pay for the bailing at $1.65 per ton. As the price for bailing hay in this neighborhood is only $1.35 Mr. Snyder refused to pay the Butler price. After continuing the case all day the jury decided that Snyder should pay $1.35 per ton for bailing and half of the costs of the suit. Mr. Baker expects to repeal the case as the law says that the costs must follow the judgement and he does not feel like cutting his bill down and paying half the expenses. Attorneys Pomeroy of Auburn and Endicot & Tess of Butler, figured in the case.

Personal Items

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

Send in your news items.

STRAYED:-Hampshire yearling ram. W. H. MORR, Hicksville Phone No. 454 J.

F. M. Monroe and wife were Sunday guests of G. C. Lucas and wife, and Ye editor and wife were guests of Wm. Miller and wife, Sunday.

Coal.

We have 8 cars Pocahontas Lump Coal to be delived by Jan. 1st. We can guarantee to fill your order any time from car at $4.25 ton or $4.60 in bin. Pocahontas being a very delicate coal does not stand much handling. Beware of Pocahontas from the bins after one or two handlings, it becomes crumbly; by getting it from the car you are assured of good Lump Coal. Also Hocking Lump at $3.60 from car up to Jan. 1st. Watch papers for announcement when coal will arrive. ST. JOE MILLS.

Money Talks

but a neatly written check with your name signed to it says more and speaks LOUDER than words. It says that you are looking after the details of your business transactions and speaks for thrift.

Let a Check do your talking.

START NOW.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

FEEDERS ATTENTION!

We have a full car of middlings running to us. Place orders now, it won't last long. Highest market price paid for Clover, Timothy and Alsike seed, we always pay highest market price for grain.

Always Welcome At The
St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

Special Sale

ON

APPLES!

In order to solve the Labor Problem and put my enormous crop of apples in the hands of the Consumers at FIRST COST, I will

ON

September 25th.,

and for 30 days thereafter

Sell to all who come to

SPRING BROOK FRUIT FARM,
St. JOE, INDIANA.

No. 1 Choice Hand Picked Apples at Per Bushel........ $1.00

No. 2 Choice Hand Picked Apples at Per Bushel........ .50

Bushels to weigh 48 pounds net, the Ohio Standard.
In no case can we give Containers with Apples.

2,500 bushels of Grimes Golden, will pick, Sept. 25, to Oct. 3
3,000 bushels of Winter Bananas, will pick,....October 3 to 11
1,500 bushels of Baldwins, will pick,.........October 11 to 15
1,500 bushel of Starks, will pick,............October 15 to 20
500 bushel of Yorks, will pick,............October 20 to 25

Several hundred bushels of Talpahocking—Mann—Greening—Ranboo—King, etc. First here, first served.

TERMS:- Cash.

Spring Brook Fruit Farm is Located:

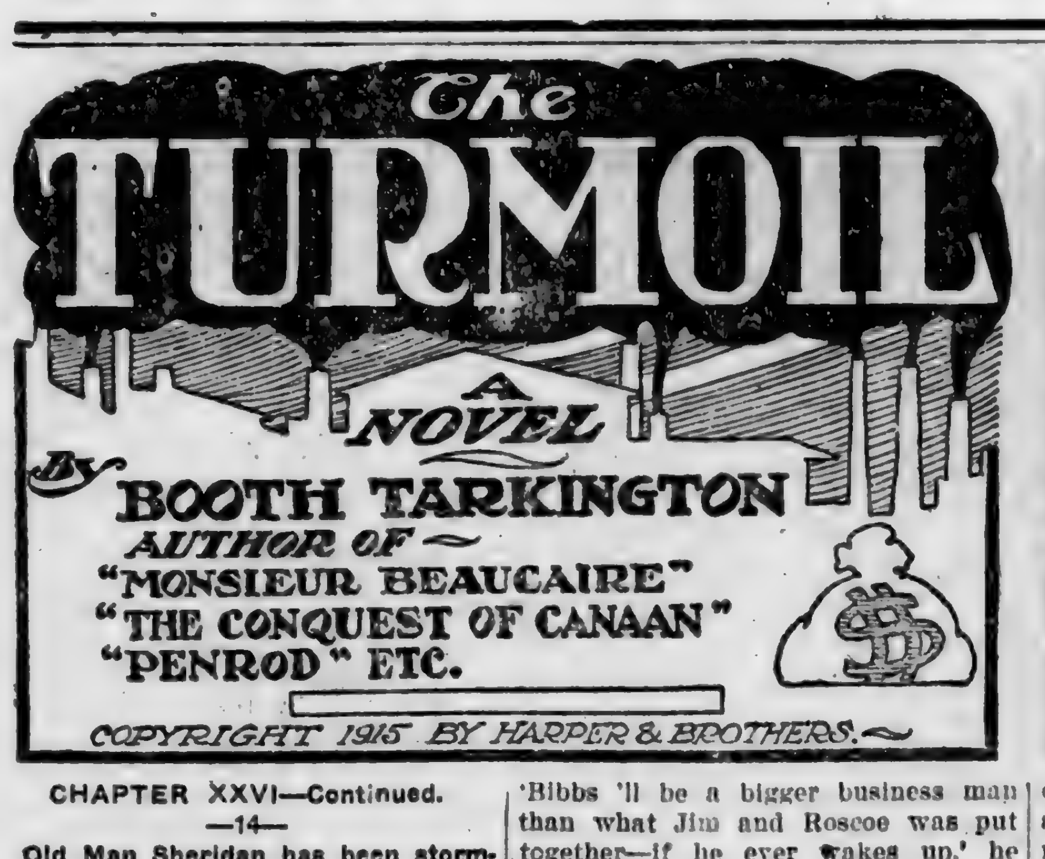
1-2 mile EAST and 1-2 mile NORTH of St. Joe, Indiana;
6 miles west and 1 1-2 miles north of Hicksville;
7 miles south and 1 mile west of Butler;
24 miles north-east of Fort Wayne on Leo Road;
16 miles north of Woodburn;
10 miles east of Auburn.

H. M. WIDNEY, OWNER.

SEPTEMBER

L 9

0292



The TURMOIL

A NOVEL

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

AUTHOR OF—
"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"
"THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN"
"PENROD" ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1915 BY HARPER & BROTHERS.

CHAPTER XXVI—Continued.

—14—

Old Man Sheridan has been storming madly after hearing of his daughter's marriage to Lamhorn, the profligate, in New York. He is trying to bend the will of his son Bibbs.

"By the way," interposed Gurney, "didn't Mrs. Sheridan tell me that Bibbs warned you Edith would marry Lamhorn in New York?"

Sheridan went completely to pieces: He swore, while his wife screamed and stopped her ears. And as he swore he pounded the table with his wounded hand, and when the doctor, after storming at him ineffectively, sprang to catch and protect that hand, Sheridan wrenched it away, tearing the bandage. He hammered the table till it leaped.

"Fool!" he panted, choking. "If he's shown gumption enough to guess right the first time in his life, it's enough for me to begin learnin' him on!" And, struggling with the doctor, he leaned toward Bibbs, thrusting forward his convulsed face, which was deathly pale. "My name ain't Tracy, I tell you!" he screamed, hoarsely. "You give in, you stubborn fool! I've had my way with you before, and I'll have my way with you now!"

Bibbs' face was as white as his father's. "No. You can't have your way," he said. And then, obeying a significant motion of Gurney's head, he went out quickly, leaving them struggling.

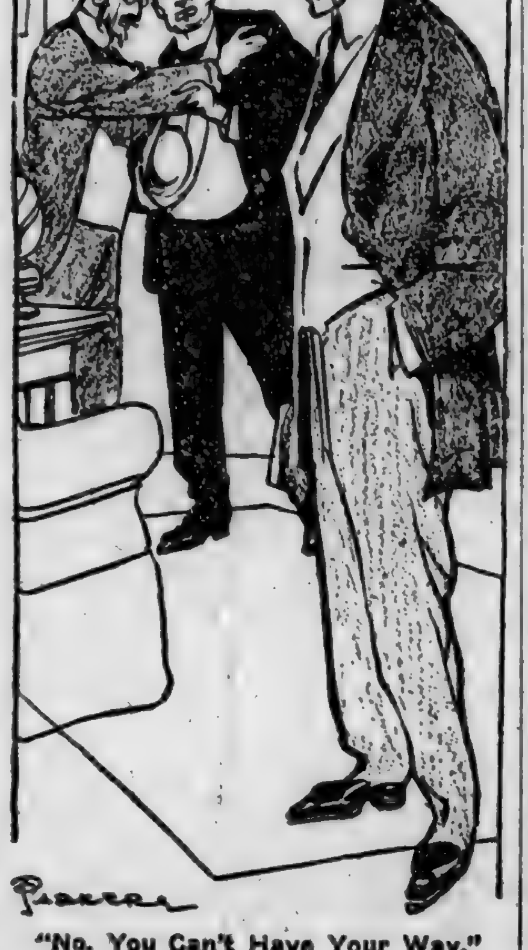
CHAPTER XXVII.

Mrs. Sheridan, in a wrapper, noiselessly opened the door of her husband's room at daybreak the next morning, and peered within the darkened chamber. At the "old" house they had shared a room, but the architect had chosen to separate them at the new, and they had not known how to formulate an objection, although to both of them something seemed vaguely reprehensible in the new arrangement.

Sheridan did not stir, and she was withdrawing her head from the aperture when he spoke.

"Oh, I'm awake! Come in, if you want to, and shut the door."

She came and sat by the bed. "I woke up thinkin' about it," she explained. "And the more I thought about it the surer I got I must be right, and I knew you'd be tormentin' yourself if you was awake, so—well, you got plenty other troubles, but I'm just sure you ain't goin' to have the worry with Bibbs it looks like."



"No, You Can't Have Your Way."

"You bet I ain't!" he grunted.

"Look how biddable he was about goin' back to the works," she continued. "He's a right good-hearted boy, really, and sometimes I honestly have to say he seems right smart, too. Now and then he'll say something sounds right bright. 'Course, most always it doesn't, and a good deal of the time, when he says things, why, I have to feel glad we haven't got company, because they'd think he didn't have any gumption at all. Yet, look at the way he did when Jim—when Jim got hurt. He took right hold o' things. And Doctor Gurney says he's got brains, and you can't deny but what the doctor's right considerable of a man. He acts sleepy, but that's only because he's got such a large practice—he's a pretty wide-awake kind of a man some ways. Well, what he says last night about Bibbs—that's what I got to thinkin' about. You heard him, papa; he says, 'Bibbs 'll be a bigger business man than what Jim and Roscoe was put together—if he ever wakes up,' he says. Wasn't that exactly what he says?"

"I suppose so," said Sheridan, without exhibiting any interest. "Gurney's crazier 'n Bibbs, but if he wasn't—if what he says was true—what of it?"

"Listen, papa. Just suppose Bibbs took it into his mind to get married. You know where he goes all the time—"

"Oh, Lord, yes!" Sheridan turned over in the bed, his face to the wall, leaving visible of himself only the thick grizzle of his hair. "You better go back to sleep. He runs over there—every minute she'll let him, I suppose. Go back to bed. There's nothin' in it."

"Why ain't there?" she urged. "I know better—there is, too! You wait and see. There's just one thing in the world that'll wake the sleepiest young man alive up—yes, and make him jump up—and I don't care who he is or how sound asleep it looks like he is. That's when he takes it into his head to pick out some girl and settle down and have a home and children of his own. Then, I guess, he'll go out after the money! You'll see. Now, I don't say that Bibbs has got the idea in his head yet—'er else he wouldn't be talkin' that fool-talk about nine dollars a week bein' good enough for him to live on. But it's comin', papa, and he'll jump for whatever you want to hand him out. He will! And I can tell you this much, too: he'll want all the salary and stock he can get hold of, and he'll hustle to keep gettin' more. That girl's the kind that a young husband just goes crazy to give things to! She's pretty and fine-lookin', and things look nice on her, and I guess she'd like to have 'em about as well as the next. And I guess she isn't gettin' many these days, either, and she'll be pretty ready for the change. I saw her with her sleeves rolled up at the kitchen window the other day, and Jackson told me yesterday their cook left two weeks ago, and they haven't tried to hire another one. He says her and her mother been doin' the housework a good while, and now they're doin' the cookin', too. 'Course Bibbs wouldn't know that unless she's told him, and I reckon she wouldn't; she's kind o' stiffish-lookin', and Bibbs is too up in the clouds to notice anythink like that for himself. They've never asked him to a meal in the house, but he wouldn't notice that, either—he's kind of innocent. Now I was thinkin'—you know, I don't suppose we've hardly mentioned the girl's name at table since Jim went, but it seems to me maybe if—"

Sheridan flung out his arms, uttering a sound half groan, half yawn. "You're barkin' up the wrong tree! Go on back to bed, mamma!"

"Why am I?" she demanded, crossly. "Why am I barkin' up the wrong tree?"

"Because you are. There's nothin' in it."

"I'll bet you," she said, rising—"I'll bet you he goes to church with her this morning. What you want to bet?"

"Go back to bed," he commanded. "I know what I'm talkin' about; there's nothin' in it, I tell you."

She shook her head perplexedly. "Then—do you know something about it that you ain't told me?"

"Yes, I do," he grunted. "Now go on. Maybe I can get a little sleep. I ain't had any yet?"

"Well—" She went to the door, her expression downcast. "I thought maybe—but—" She coughed prefatorily. "Oh, papa, something else I wanted to tell you. I was talkin' to Roscoe over the phone last night when the telegram came, so I forgot to tell you, but—well, Sibyl wants to come over this afternoon. They expect to get off by the end o' the week, and I reckon she wants to feel she's done what she could to kind o' make up. Anyway, that's what he said. But what I thought was, no use bein' rough with her, papa—I expect she's suffered a good deal—and I don't think we'd ought to be, on Roscoe's account. You'll—you'll be kind o' polite to her, won't you, papa?"

He mumbled something which was smothered under the coverlet he had pulled over his head.

"What?" she said, timidly. "I was just sayin' I hoped you'd treat Sibyl all right when she comes, this afternoon. You will, won't you, papa?"

He threw the coverlet off furiously. "I presume so!" he roared.

She departed guiltily.

But if he had accepted her proffered wager that Bibbs would go to church with Mary Vertrees that morning, Mrs. Sheridan would have lost. They meant to go to church. But it happened that they were attentively preoccupied in a conversation as they came to the church; and they had gone an incredible number of blocks beyond it before they discovered their error. However, feeling that they might be embarrassingly late if they returned, they decided that a walk would make them as good. It was a windless winter morning, with an inch of crisp snow over the ground. So they walked, and for the most part they were silent, but on their way home, after they had turned back at noon, they began to be talkative again.

"Mary," said Bibbs, after a time, "am I a sleep-walker?"

She laughed a little, then looked grave. "Does your father say you are?"

"Yes—when he's in a mood to flatter me. Other times, other names. He has quite a list."

"You mustn't mind," she said, gently. "He's been getting some pretty severe shocks. What you've told me makes me pretty sorry for him, Bibbs. I've always been sure he's very big."

"Yes. Big and—blind. He's like a Hercules without eyes and without any consciousness except that of his strength and of his purpose to grow stronger. Stronger for what? For nothing."

"Are you sure, Bibbs? It can't be for nothing; it must be stronger for something, even though he doesn't know what it is. Perhaps what he and his kind are struggling for is something so great they couldn't see it—so great none of us could see it."

"No, he's just like some blind, unconscious thing heaving underground—"

"Till he breaks through and leaps out into the daylight," she finished for him, cheerily.

"Into the smoke," said Bibbs. "Look at the powder of coal-dust already dirtying the decent snow, even though it's Sunday. That's from the little pigs; the big ones aren't so bad, on Sunday! There's a fleck of soot on your cheek. Some pig sent it out into the air; he might as well have thrown it on you. It would have been braver, for then he'd have taken his chance of my whipping him for it if I could."

"Is there soot on my cheek, Bibbs? Is there?"

"Is there? There are soot on your cheeks, Mary—a fleck on each. One landed since I mentioned the first."

She halted immediately, giving him her handkerchief, and he succeeded in transferring most of the black from her face to the cambric. They were entirely matter-of-course about it.

An elderly couple, it chanced, had been walking behind Bibbs and Mary for the last block or so, and passed ahead during the removal of the soot. "There!" said the elderly wife. "You're always wrong when you begin guessing about strangers. Those two young people aren't honeymooners at all—they've been married for years. A blind man could see that."

"I wish I knew who threw that soot on you," said Bibbs, looking up at the neighboring chimneys, as they went on. "They arrest children for throwing snowballs at the street cars, but—"

"But they don't arrest street cars for shaking all the pictures in the houses crooked every time they go by. Nor for the uproar they make. I wonder what's the cost in nerves for the noise of the city each year. Yes, we pay the price for living in a 'growing town,' whether we have money to pay or none."

"Who is it gets the pay?" said Bibbs.

"Not I!" she laughed.

"Nobody gets it. There isn't any pay; there's only money. And only some of the men down town get much of that. That's what my father wants me to get."

"Yes," she said, smiling to him, and nodding. "And you don't want it, and you don't need it."

"But you don't think I'm a sleep-walker, Mary?" He had told her of his father's new plans for him, though he had not described the vigor and picturesqueness of their setting forth. "You think I'm right?"

"A thousand times!" she cried. "There aren't so many happy people in this world, I think—and you say you've found what makes you happy. If it's a dream—keep it!"

"The thought of going down there—into the money shuffle—I hate it as I never hated the shop!" he said. "I hate it! And the city itself, the city that the money shuffle has made—just look at it! And the dirt and the ugliness and the rush and the noise aren't the worst of it; it's what the dirt and ugliness and rush and noise mean—that's the worst! The outward things are insufferable, but they're only the expression of a spirit—a blind embryo of a spirit, not yet a soul—oh, just greed! And this 'go ahead' nonsense! Oughtn't it all to be a fellowship? I shouldn't want to get ahead if I could—I'd want to help the other fellow to keep up with me."

"I read something the other day and remembered it for you," said Mary. "It was something Burne-Jones said of a picture he was going to paint: 'In the first picture I shall make a man walking in the street of a great city, full of all kinds of happy life; children, and lovers walking, and ladies leaning from windows all down great lengths of street leading to the city walls; and there the gates are wide open, letting in a space of green field and cornfield in harvest; and all round his head a great rain of swirling autumn leaves blowing from a little walled graveyard.'"

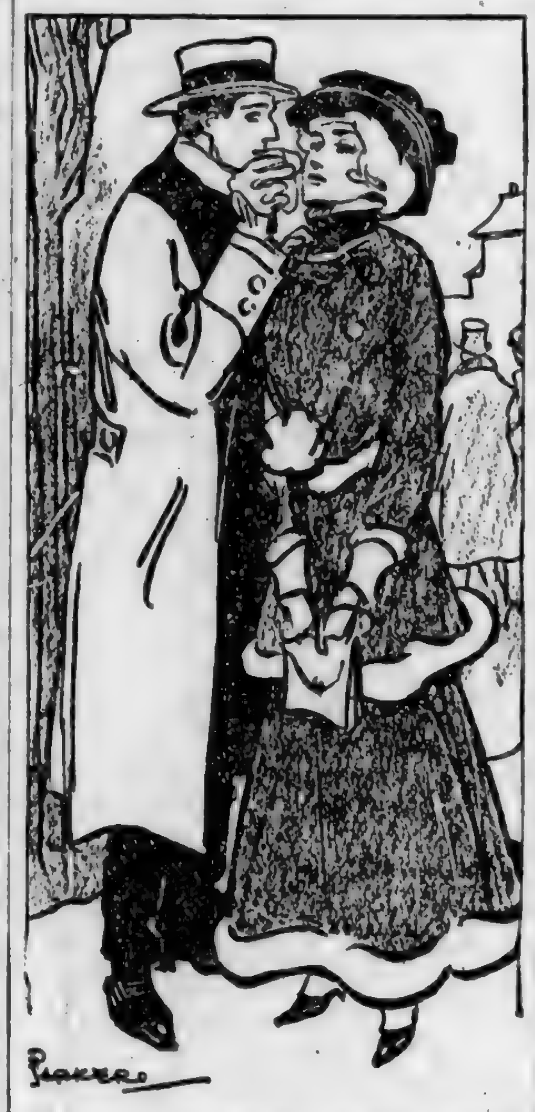
"And if I painted," Bibbs returned, "I'd paint a lady walking in the street of a great city, full of all kinds of uproarious and futile life—children being taught only how to make money, and lovers hurrying to get richer, and ladies who'd given up trying to wash their windows clean, and the gates of the city wide open, letting in slums and slaughter houses and freight yards, and all round this lady's head a great rain of swirling soot—" He paused, adding, thoughtfully: "And yet I believe I'm glad that soot got on your cheek. It was just as if I were your brother—the way you gave me your handkerchief to rub it off for you. Still, Edith never—"

"Didn't she?" said Mary, as he paused again.

"No. And I—" He contented himself with shaking his head instead of offering more definite information. Then he realized that they were passing the new house, and he sighed profoundly. "Mary, our walk's almost over."

She looked as blank. "So it is, Bibbs."

They said no more until they came to her gate. As they drifted slowly to a stop, the door of Roscoe's house opened, and Roscoe came out with Sibyl, who was startlingly pale. She seemed little enfeebled by her illness, however, walking rather quickly at her husband's side and not taking his arm. The two crossed the street without appearing to see Mary and her companion, and, entering the new house, were lost to sight. Mary gazed after them gravely, but Bibbs, looking at Mary, did not see them.



They Were Entirely Matter-of-Course About It.

"Mary," he said, "you seem very serious. Is anything bothering you?"

"No, Bibbs." And she gave him a bright, quick look that made him instantly unreasonably happy.

"I know you want to go in—" he began.

"No. I don't want to."

"I mustn't keep you standing here, and I mustn't go in with you—but—I just wanted to say—I've seemed very stupid to myself this morning, grumbling about soot and all that—while all the time I—Mary, I think it's been the very happiest of all the hours you've given me. I do. And—I don't know just why—but it's seemed to me that it was one I'd always remember. And you," he added, falteringly, "you look so—so beautiful today!"

"It must have been the soot on my cheek, Bibbs."

"Mary, will you tell me something?" he asked.

"I think I will."

"It's something I've had a lot of theories about, but none of them ever just fits. You used to wear furs in the fall, but now it's so much colder, you don't—you never wear them at all any more. Why don't you?"

Her eyes fell for a moment, and she grew red. Then she looked up gayly. "Bibbs, if I tell you the answer will you promise not to ask any more questions?"

"Yes. Why did you stop wearing them?"

"Because I found I'd be warmer without them!" She caught his hand quickly in her own for an instant, laughed into his eyes, and ran into the house.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

It is the consoling attribute of unused books that their decorative warmth will so often make even a readymade library the actual "living room" of a family to whom the shelved volumes are indeed sealed. Thus it was with Sheridan, who read nothing except newspapers, business letters and figures; who looked upon books as he looked upon bric-a-brac or crocheting—when he was at home, and not abed or eating, he was in the library.

He stood in the many-colored light of the stained-glass window at the far end of the long room, when Roscoe and his wife came in, and he exhaled a solemnity. His deference to the Sabbath was manifest, as always, in the length of his coat and the closeness of his Saturday-night shave; and his expression, to match this religious pomp, was more than Sabbatical, but the most dismaying of his demonstrations was his keeping his hand in his sling.

Sibyl advanced to the middle of the room and halted there, not looking at him, but down at her muff, in which it could be seen, her hands were nervously moving. Roscoe went to a chair in another part of the room. There was a deadly silence.

But Sibyl found a shaky voice, after an interval of gulping, though she was unable to lift her eyes, and the darkling lids continued to veil them. She spoke hurriedly, like an ungifted child reciting something committed to memory, but her sincerity was none the less evident for that.

"Father Sheridan, you and mother Sheridan have always been so kind to me, and I would hate to have you think I don't appreciate it, from the way I acted. I've come to tell you I am sorry for the way I did that night, and to say I know as well as anybody the way I behaved, and it will never happen again, because it's been a pretty hard lesson; and when we come back, some day, I hope you'll see that you've got a daughter-in-law you never need to be ashamed of again. I want to ask you to excuse me for the way I did, and I can say I haven't any feelings toward Edith now, but only wish her happiness and good in her new life. I thank you for all your kindness to me, and I know I made a poor return for it, but if you can overlook the way I behaved I know I would feel a good deal happier—and I know Roscoe would, too. I wish to promise not to be as foolish in the future, and the same error would never occur again to make us all so unhappy, if you can be charitable enough to excuse it this time."

He looked steadily at her without replying, and she stood before him, never lifting her eyes; motionless, save where the moving fur proved the agitation of her hands within the muff.

"All right," he said, at last.

She looked up then with vast relief, though there was a revelation of heavy tears when the eyelids lifted.

"Thank you," she said. "There's something else—about something different—I want to say to you, but I want mother Sheridan to hear it, too."

"She's upstairs in her room," said Sheridan. "Roscoe—"

Sibyl interrupted. She had just seen Bibbs pass through the hall and begin to ascend the stairs; and in a flash she instinctively perceived the chance for precisely the effect she wanted.

"No, let me go," she said. "I want to speak to her a minute first, anyway."

And she went away quickly, gaining the top of the stairs in time to see Bibbs enter his room and close the door. Sibyl knew that Bibbs, in his room, had overheard her quarrel with Edith in the hall outside; for bitter Edith, thinking the more to shame her, had subsequently informed her of the circumstance. Sibyl had just remembered this, and with the recollection there had flashed the thought—out of her own experience—that people are often much more deeply impressed by words they overhear than by words directly addressed to them. Sibyl intended to make it impossible for Bibbs not to overhear. She did not hesitate—her heart was not with the old sore, and she believed wholly in the justice of her cause and in the truth of what she was going to say. Fate was virtuous at times; it had delivered into her hands the girl who had affronted her.

Mrs. Sheridan was in her own room. The approach of Sibyl and Roscoe had driven her from the library, for she had miscalculated her husband's mood, and she felt that if he used his injured hand as a mark of emphasis again, in her presence, she would (as she thought of it) "have a fit right there." She heard Sibyl's step, and pretended to be putting a touch to her hair before a mirror.

"I was just coming down," she said, as the door opened.

"Yes, he wants you to," said Sibyl. "It's all right, mother Sheridan. He's forgiven me."

Mrs. Sheridan sniffed instantly; tears appeared. She kissed her daughter-in-law's cheek; then, in silence, regarded the mirror afresh, wiped her eyes, and applied powder.

"And I hope Edith will be happy," Sibyl added, inciting more applications of Mrs. Sheridan's handkerchief and powder.

"Yes, yes," murmured the good woman. "We mustn't make the worst of things."

"Well, there was something else I had to say, and he wants you to hear it, too," said Sibyl. "We better go down, mother Sheridan."

She led the way, Mrs. Sheridan following obediently, but, when they came to a spot close to Bibbs' door, Sibyl stopped. "I want to tell you about it first," she said, abruptly. "It isn't a secret, of course, in any way; it's something the whole family has to know, and the sooner the whole family knows it the better. It's something it wouldn't be right for us all not to understand, and of course father Sheridan most of all. But I want to just kind of go over it first with you; it 'll kind of help me to see I got it all straight. I haven't got any reason for saying it except the good of the family, and it's nothing to me, one way or the other, of course, except for that. I oughtn't to 've behaved the way I did that night, and it seems to me if there's anything I can do to help the family, I ought to, because it would help show I felt the right way. Well, what I want to do is to tell this so's to keep the family from being made a fool of. I don't want to see the family just made use of and twisted around her finger by somebody that's got no more heart than so much ice, and just as sure to bring troubles in the long run as—as Edith's mistake is. Well, then, this is the way it is. I'll just tell you how it looks to me and see if it don't strike you the same way."

Within the room, Bibbs, much annoyed, tapped his ear with his pencil. He wished they wouldn't stand talking near his door when he was trying to write. He had just taken from his trunk the manuscript of a poem begun the preceding Sunday afternoon, and he had some ideas he wanted to fix upon paper before they maliciously seized the first opportunity to vanish, for they were but gossamer. Bibbs was pleased with the beginnings of his poem, and if he could carry it through he meant to dare greatly with it—he would venture it upon an editor. For he had his plan of life now; his day would be of manual labor and thinking—he could think of his friend and he could think in cadences for poems, to the crashing of the strong machines—and if his father turned him out of home and out of the works, he would work elsewhere and live elsewhere. His father had the right, and it mattered very little to Bibbs—he faced the prospect of a working man's lodging house without trepidation. He could find a washstand to write upon, he thought; and every evening when he left Mary he would write a little; and he would write on holidays and on Sundays—on Sundays in the afternoon. In a lodging house, at least, he wouldn't be interrupted by his sister-in-law's choosing the immediate vicinity of his door for conversations evidently important to herself, but merely disturbing to him. He frowned plaintively, wishing he could think of one polite way of asking her to go away. But, as she went on, he started violently dropping manuscript and pencil upon the floor.

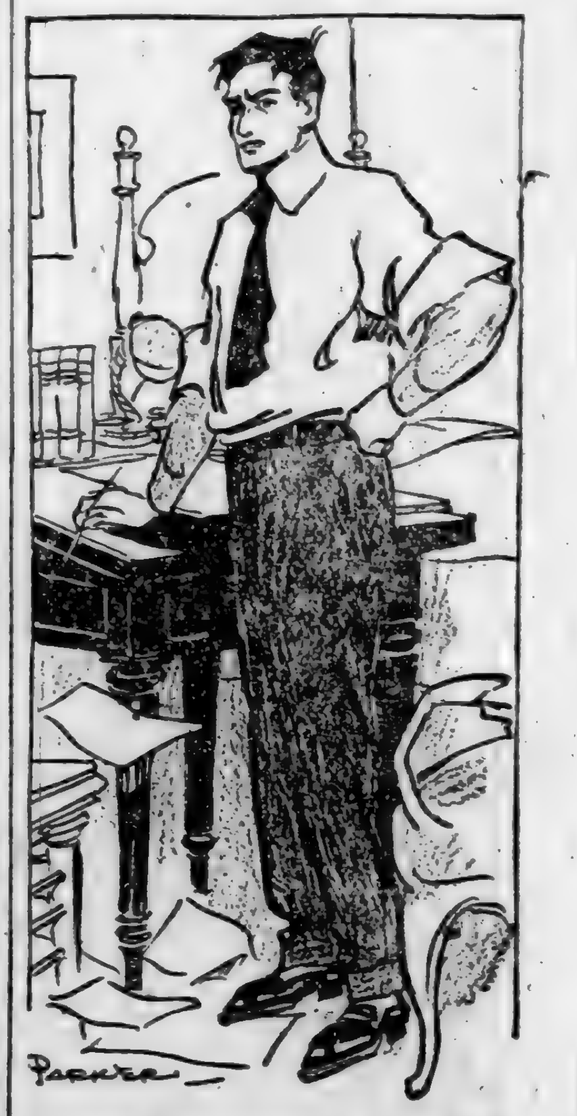
"I don't know whether you heard it, mother Sheridan," she said, "but this old Vertrees house, next door, has been sold on foreclosure, and all they got out of it was an agreement that lets 'em live there a little longer. Roscoe told me, and he says he heard Mr. Vertrees has been up and down the streets more 'n two years, tryin' to get a job he could call a 'position,' and couldn't land it. You heard anything about it, mother Sheridan?"

"Well, I did know they been doin' their own housework a good while back," said Mrs. Sheridan. "And now they're doin' the cookin', too."

Sibyl sent forth a little titter with a sharp edge. "I hope they find something to cook! She sold her piano mighty quick after Jim died!"

Bibbs jumped up. He was trembling from head to foot and he was dizzy—of all the real things he could never have dreamed in his dream the last would have been what he heard now. He felt that something incredible was happening, and that he was powerless to stop it. It seemed to him that heavy blows were falling upon his head and upon Mary's; it seemed to him that he and Mary were being struck and beaten physically—and that something hideous impended. He wanted to shout to Sibyl to be silent, but he could not; he could only stand, swallowing and trembling.

"What I think the whole family ought to understand is just this," said Sibyl, sharply. "Those people were so hard up that this Miss Vertrees started after Bibbs before they knew whether he was insane or not! They'd got a notion he might be, from his being in a sanitarium, and Mrs. Vertrees asked me if he was insane, the very first day Bibbs took the daughter out auto riding!" She paused a moment, looking at Mrs. Sheridan, but listening intently. There was no sound from within the room.



He Felt That Something Inevitable Was Happening.

"No!" exclaimed Mrs. Sheridan.

"It's the truth," Sibyl declared, loudly. "Oh, of course we were all crazy about that girl at first. We were pretty green when we moved up here, and we thought she'd get us in—but it didn't take me long to read her! Her family were down and out when it came to money—and they had to go after it, one way or another, somehow!

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SEPTEMBER

L 9

0293

W. L. DOUGLAS
"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"
$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN
Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.

BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES

Boys' Shoes Best in the World $3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

W L Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

GOOD EFFECTS OF TROUBLE

Much of the Advancement of the World May Be Traced to Those Pugnaciously Inclined.

Most of us love trouble—that is, most of the human race. Man cannot remain contentedly out of trouble for any length of time, it seems. And if you doubt the statement, all you have to do is to remember the numerous instances when you were getting along all right, and then deliberately "butted into" something that was not your affair.

Take the matter of politics, if you please. Half of the political troubles we read about are unnecessary. That is to say, a lot of the people mixed up in politics are so mixed for no purpose in this world save that they may make trouble for themselves or somebody else. For it really makes little difference to the average man who is elected; indeed the average man takes an interest in politics not because he thinks by doing so he can best serve the public, but because he wants a fight.

Of course all of us like to flatter ourselves that we are doing something for the nation or the country or a group of people. But the truth is most of us are doing nothing of the kind.

But, did you know that most of the good that has so far resulted to the world has come from the troublemakers, and not from the peacemakers?—Columbus Dispatch.

A man with a single idea is a crank. Yet a man with no ideas at all may be a social success.

"DUSTOFF" cleans everything; sanitary absorbent; saves labor; cheapest house servant 15c, two 25c. AM. COMMODITY CO., 200 Broadway, New York

Antidote for Loneliness.

A little North side miss, whose mother is dead, lives with her little brothers and sister at the home of her grandmother. Her father, who is a physician, has his office and home in another part of the city.

Surrounded by everything which brings happiness to the heart of a child, the little girl's thoughts often wandered to poor daddy, who was all alone.

One day she surprised her grandmother with the startling remark: "Grandma, I wish daddy was a policeman."

"A policeman, dear! Why? Daddy is a physician, and that is a very good profession, you know."

"Yes," grandma," persisted the child, "but if daddy was a policeman he wouldn't be so lonesome."—Indianapolis News.

No Sale for 'Em.

"How shall I mark that lot of ladies' hosiery we're sending back to the mill?" asked the department store buyer.

"What is the matter with them?" inquired theh manager.

"They're too thick. Nobody ever wears that kind any more, even in the winter."

"Mark them 'Rejected on account of low visibility.'"

Among the Missing.

Urban—What do you miss most since moving to the country?

Rural—Trains.—Princeton Tiger.

Its place in the sun

TO hold "its place in the sun," is the avowed purpose of a great nation's conflict. To hold "its place in the sun," is the object of every business in the great fight for industrial and commercial supremacy.

To be able to hold "its place in the sun," is the supreme test of an asphalt roof. It is the sun, not rain or snow, that plays havoc with a roof. If it can resist the drying out process of the sun beating down upon it, day after day, the rain or snow will not affect it except to wash it clean and keep it sanitary.

Certain-teed
Roofing

takes "its place in the sun" and holds it longer than other similar roofing, because it is made of the very best quality roofing felt, thoroughly saturated with the correct blend of soft asphalts, and coated with a blend of harder asphalts. This outer coating keeps the inner saturation soft, and prevents the drying out process so destructive to the ordinary roof.

The blend of asphalts used by "The General" is the result of long experience. It produces a roofing more pliable than those which have less saturation, and which are, therefore, harder and drier.

At each of the General's big mills, expert chemists are constantly employed to refine, test and blend the asphalts used; also to experiment for possible improvements. Their constant endeavor is to make the best roofing still better.

The quality of CERTAIN-TEED is such that it is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply). Experience proves that it lasts longer. Behind this guarantee is the responsibility of the world's largest manufacturer of roofings and building papers.

The General makes one third of America's supply of asphalt roll roofing. His facilities are unequaled, and he is able to produce the highest quality roofing at the lowest manufacturing cost.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate covered shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest sky-scraper to the smallest residence or outbuilding.

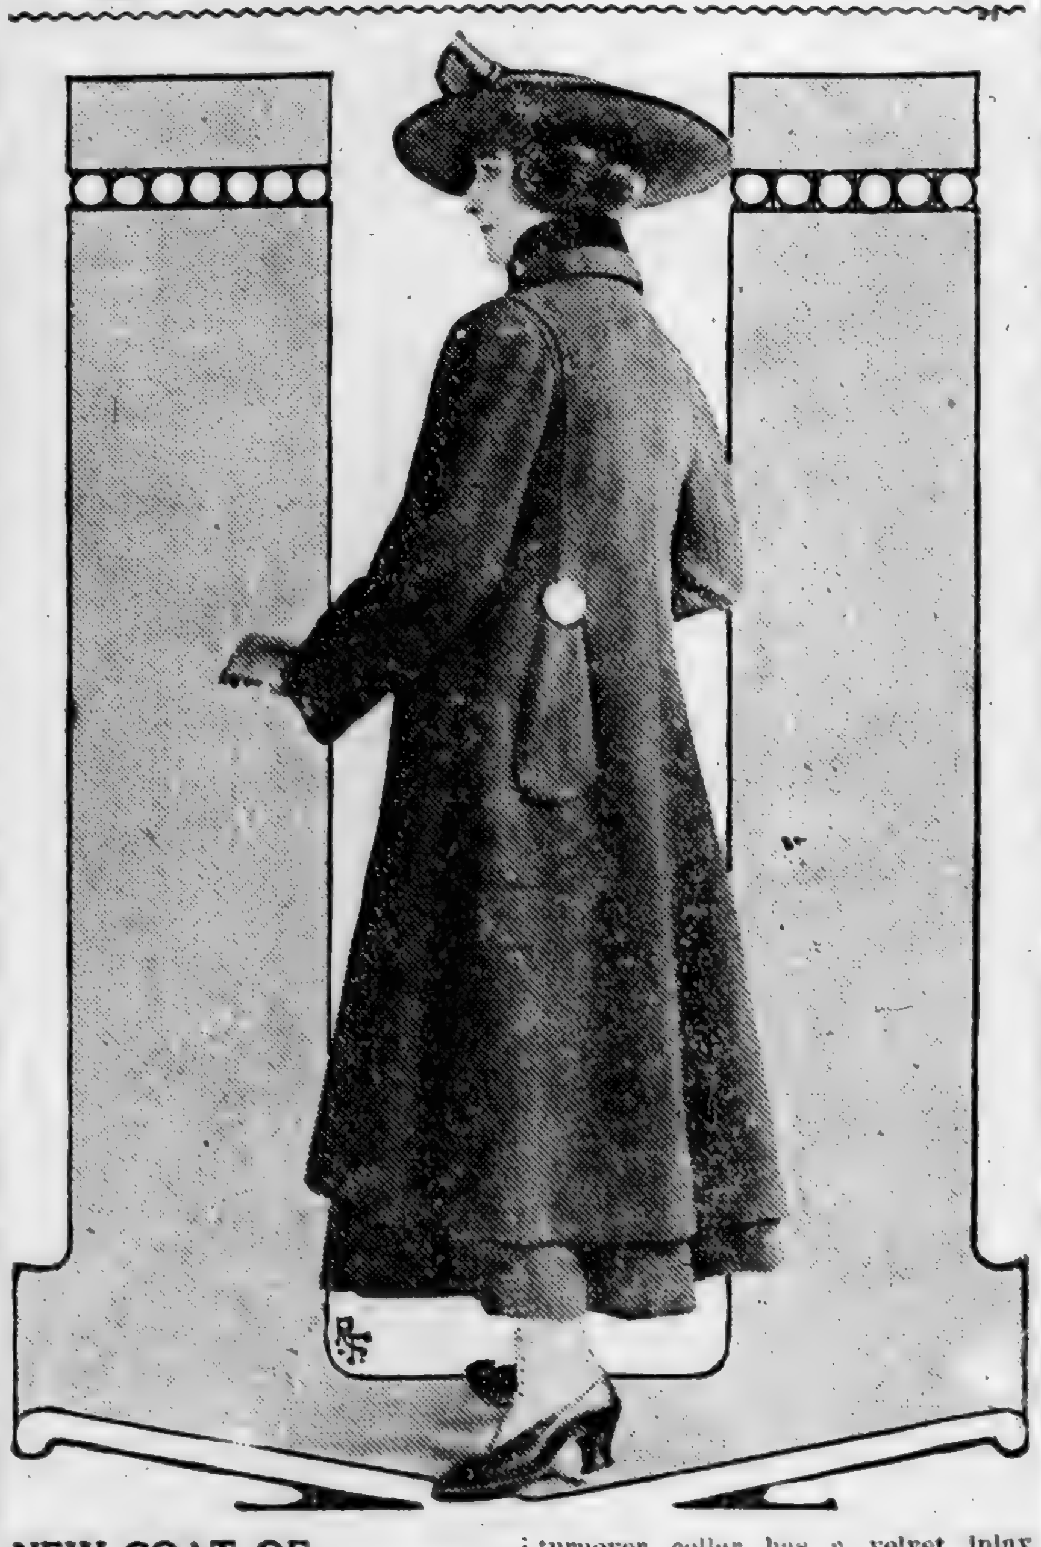
CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world, at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

General Roofing Manufacturing Company
World's Largest Manufacturer of Roofings and Building Papers
New York City Chicago Philadelphia St. Louis Boston Cleveland
Pittsburgh Detroit San Francisco Los Angeles Milwaukee Cincinnati
New Orleans Minneapolis Seattle Kansas City Indianapolis
Atlanta Richmond Des Moines Houston Duluth London Sydney
Copyrighted 1916, General Roofing Manufacturing Co.

We sell Certain-teed and Metal Roofing
Schaab Roofing & Supply Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FANCIES AND FADS OF FASHION

By Julia Bottomley



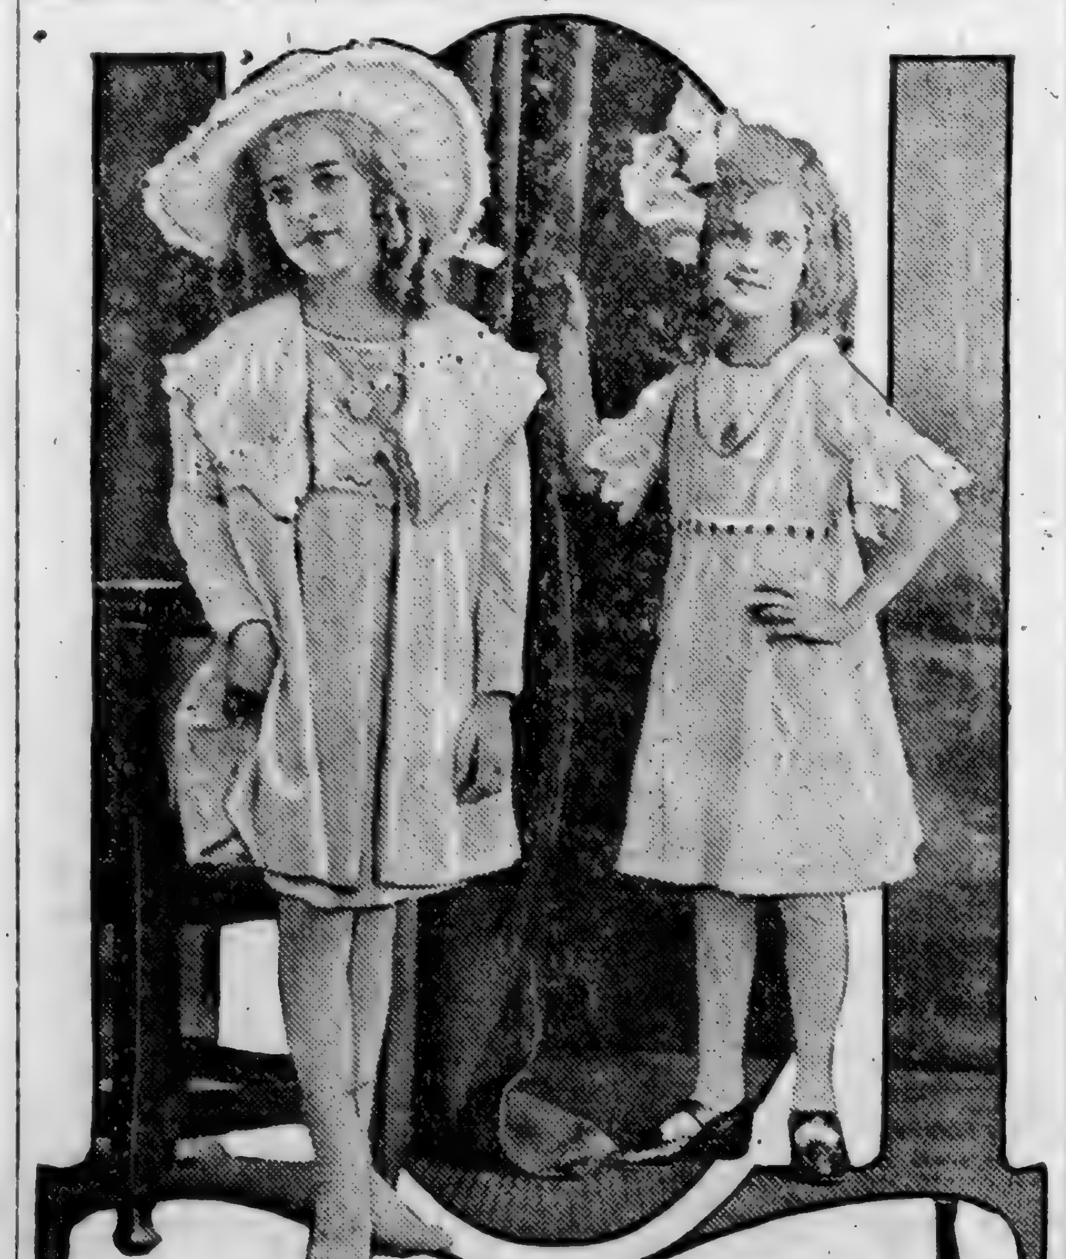
NEW COAT OF BOLIVIA CLOTH

A very practical coat for general wear is made of Bolivia cloth, which is especially effective in the rich, warm colors that are destined to prevail during the coming winter. In burgundy, rhododendron, prune, taupe and castor this cloth seems suited to the colors, and this is true of duvetyn and broadcloth also.

The coat pictured manages the new style features of the season very cleverly. It sets closer to the figure about the body than the passing style. The skirt has a moderate flare and reaches to within six inches of the bottom of the skirt at the front, lengthening a little toward the back. In some of the new models there is a much greater difference in the length of the front and back of the coat. The sleeves are plain, with deep cuffs, and the wide turnover collar has a velvet inlay. This is the universal collar, in shape; and it buttons up about the neck in a way to defy the coldest weather. The model hangs straight at the front, fastening a little to one side with large buttons.

The cuff is merely a wide band of the material trimmed into a rounded tab at one end. The tab is fastened down under a button made of a mold covered with the cloth. There are points of moderate size at each side that carry out the same idea, having overlapping tabs decorated with a button.

All seams are overlapped and machine-stitched down. The waistline, as indicated by the seams in the back of the body, is low. At the termination of these seams a tab is set on to the coat with a large button by way of finish. This model is excellent for a driving coat, and cannot be improved upon as a general utility garment.



MADE BY THE HOME DRESSMAKER

A dress and a coat, both made by a home dressmaker for a little miss of ten or thereabout, are worth notice for their simplicity and good style. The dress is of pink chambray, but may be developed in plain, striped or plaid ginghams, in linen, or in the heavier cotton goods, with equal success. It is cut with a circular skirt set to a plain bodice which is large enough to admit of its being gathered in a little about the waistline. The sleeves may be cut elbow length or even longer.

Where the skirt is set on to the waist narrow beading conceals the seam, and velvet ribbon run through it serves to hold the fullness of the body to place. The neck is rounded out, front and back, and set on to a yoke of embroidered organdie. An organdie edging is used to make it, and ruffles of it are set in the sleeves. The dress fastens at the back with small pearl buttons.

The plain coat of broadcloth may be made also in other materials of like weight. It has long coat sleeves and a deep cape collar. Silk braid or narrow, fine cluny lace makes a pretty finish for the collar. This is a coat for autumn wear. Those for winter now displayed for little misses are of velvet, plush, Bolivia, and other heavy cloths. They are made with high turnover collars, and often trimmed with narrow bands of fur. Numbers of them are double-breasted, and practically all of them are straight hanging, reaching to the bottom of the dress.

Even in heavy materials for winter wear the little miss's coat is not too difficult for the home dressmaker to make. The present styles are simply cut and all the standard pattern companies have patterns that are easy to follow.

The Vital Point.

A beautiful young lady interviewed a fortune teller on the usual subjects.

"Lady," said the clairvoyant, "you will visit foreign lands and the courts of kings and queens. You will conquer all rivals and marry the man of your choice. He will be tall and dark and aristocratic-looking."

"And young?" interrupted the lady.

"Yes, and very rich."

The beautiful lady grasped the fortune teller's hands and pressed them hard.

"Thank you," she said. "Now tell me one thing more. How shall I get rid of my present husband?"

BABY'S ITCHING SKIN

Quickly Soothed and Healed by Cuticura. Trial Free.

Bathe with hot water and Cuticura Soap. If there is any irritation anoint gently with Cuticura Ointment on end of finger. Refreshing slumber for restless, fretful babies usually follows the use of these super-creamy emollients. They are a boon to tired mothers.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

The Babies.

Lincoln Springfield, London editor, was talking to an American correspondent.

"I know a regiment," he said, "where the subalterns are so young that not one of them is able to raise the moustache required by etiquette.

"A handful of privates from this regiment swaggered back to quarters late one night singing the popular ditty, 'Another Little Drink Won't Do Us Any Harm.'

"As they passed the officers' billets, the guard on duty growled at them:

"'Shut up, you noisy fools, or you'll wake the war babies!'"

THE BLUE THAT'S TRUE.

Red Cross Ball Blue gives to clothes a clear, dazzling white, whiter than snow, not a greenish yellow tinge like cheap bottle blue. Buy Red Cross Ball Blue for next washday. You will be happily surprised. Large package at your grocers, 5 cents.—Adv.

Putting Out Gasoline Fires.

Experiments by the British Fire Prevention committee show that the best way to put out a small gasoline fire is to spread over the burning liquid a mixture of ten pounds of bicarbonate of soda and twelve pounds of common sawdust free from chips and shavings.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher
In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Difficult Person.

"Bliggins is the sort of man who gets angry if you don't agree with him."

"Yes. And he's wrong so often that if you do he hasn't any respect for you."

It's Foolish to Suffer

You may be brave enough to stand backache, or headache, or dizziness. But if, in addition, urination is disordered, look out! If you don't try to fix your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of kidney trouble before you know it. But if you live more carefully and help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, you can stop the pains you have and avoid future danger as well.

An Indiana Case

George E. Law, 13½ N. Franklin St., Brazil, Ind., says: "The secretions from my kidneys passed far too often and were attended with a painful, scalding sensation. My back was weak and painful, too, and I was in misery when moving around. My health got all run down and nothing helped me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They restored me to good health and the cure has been permanent."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Reduces Strained, Puffy Ankles, Lymphangitis, Poll Evil, Fistula, Boils, Swellings; Stops Lameness and allays pain. Heals Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Boot Chafes. It is a SAFE ANTISEPTIC AND GERMICIDE

Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Pleasant to use. $2.00 a bottle, delivered. Describe your case for special instructions and Book 5 M free. ABSORBINE, JR. antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Strains, Painful, Knotted, Swollen Veins. Concentrated—only a few drops required at an application. Price $1 per bottle at dealers or delivered.
W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

The Wretchedness of Constipation

Can quickly be overcome by CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Purely vegetable—act surely and gently on the liver. Cure Biliousness, Headache, Dizziness, and Indigestion. They do their duty.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S ASTHMA MEDICINE
Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

Twenty Five Farms in Houston and Humphreys counties, at bargains; with lasting water. W. H. JONES, R. 1, ERIN, TENN.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 38--1916

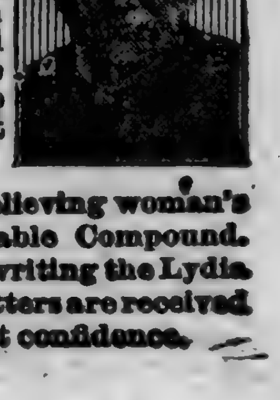
A Woman's Problem

How to Feel Well During Middle Life Told by Three Women Who Learned from Experience.

The Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, and neglect of health at this time invites disease and pain. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Read these letters:—

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I started the Change of Life five years ago. I always had a headache and backache with bearing down pains and I would have heat flashes very bad at times with dizzy spells and nervous feelings. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new person and am in better health and no more troubled with the aches and pains I had before I took your wonderful remedy. I recommend it to my friends for I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. Margaret Grassman, 759 N. Ringgold St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Beverly, Mass.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for nervousness and dyspepsia, when I was going through the Change of Life. I found it very helpful and I have always spoken of it to other women who suffer as I did and have had them try it and they also have received good results from it."—Mrs. George A. Dunbar, 17 Roundy St., Beverly, Mass.



Erie, Pa.—"I was in poor health when the Change of Life started with me and I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or I think I should not have got over it as easy as I did. Even now if I do not feel good I take the Compound and it restores me in a short time. I will praise your remedies to every woman for it may help them as it has me."—Mrs. E. Kissling, 931 East 24th St., Erie, Pa.

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence.

SEPTEMBER

0294

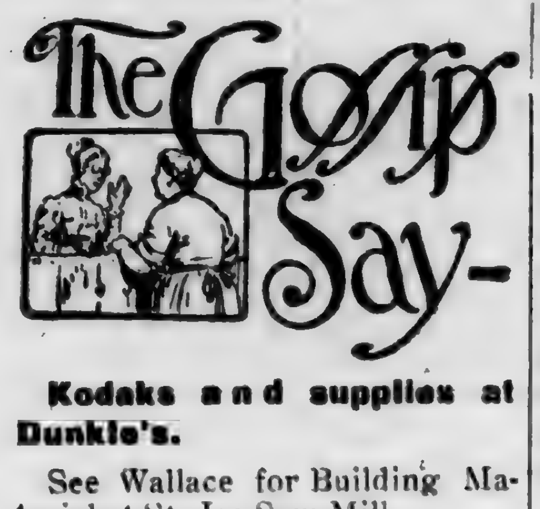
The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - -	$1.00
Six Months, - - -	.50
Three Months, - -	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES



The Gossip Say-

Kodaks and supplies at Dunkle's.

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Wm. Pepple is installing a new Jewel furnace in his home on East Main St.

Miss Eva Ridgway, of this city, and Mr. Sylvester Chandler, of Hobart, Ind., were united in marriage on last Saturday.

After a six weeks vacation, Miss Princess Krabill has entered on her second year in the study of music and art at Ft. Wayne.

FOR SALE:-Top buggy. Bargain if taken at once.
JOE WINEBRENNER.

Two baby boys are reported by Dr. Farnham one at Fred Harts', Saturday; and Thayer Northrups', Sunday. The latter has been named Curtis Argyl.

Mrs. Freda Brooks and baby son, of Ft. Wayne, spent the weeks end with her aunt, Mrs. H. L. Dunkle and family. Mrs. Dunkle and Miss Rhea returned home with her Sunday for several days visit.

Word came Friday to Mrs Dr. Sheffer that her brother, Marshall D. Hadsell, died at Fort Smith, Little Rock, Ark. Burial took place in the National Cemetery by his request. He leaves a divorced widow, two sons and four daughters. Particulars have not been received by Mrs. Sheffer.

The next conference of the U. B. church goes to Butler, that place winning by a large majority over Bourbon nnd North Manchester. Among the appointments of interest to our readers is as follows:—Newville, E. F. Highley; Erie, O. P. Givens; Collins, J. T. Keesey; Butler, W. H. Rittenhouse; Butler Circuit, J. S. Smith; Busco, R. L. Ayers; Waterloo, H. C. Beauchamp Rev. J. E. Grimes was re-elected conference superintendent.

Between 400 and 500 people visited Spring Brook Fruit Farm, last Sunday.

No better line School supplies in the County than at Dunkle's.

F. A. Zeigler and wife of Hudson are here guests of Mrs. Rebecca Smith and other friends.

Mrs. J. C. F. Abel returned home Sunday from caring for her son's wife, Mrs. Gled Abel at Spencerville, who is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

has Koch, wife and sons, Stanley and Joseph, Jr., Byron Widney and wife, Jacob Sechler and wife, Allen Coburn and Mrs. C. R. Price were all Ft. Wayne visitors, Monday.

50 acre farm, located close to St. Joe, good buildings, the finest of soil, price reasonable if taken soon. Inquire of S. S. Widney.

The High School Alumni will give a play, Election night. The returns of the election will be given as a special feature. Watch for further particulars.

Lloyd Coburn, son of Dell Coburn and wife, of Coburntown, and Miss Mame Burlingame, of Hicksville, were united in marriage at that place, last Saturday. They will reside in Hicksville.

S. W. Tustison and wife, and W. C. Patterson, of this place, and Andrew Patterson, of Hicksville, motored to Ft. Wayne, Monday, when W. C. Patterson entered the Hope Hospital for treatment, for a few days.

EGGS.

We want all the Eggs we can get this week. Get our price before you sell—No firm will pay more than JONES—Big Sugar Sale next Saturday—Don't miss laying in your supply of Sugar this week—Will have plenty for all this time. Anyone buying 50 cents worth of Coffee and Tea—one or both, take your choice will be entitled to 14 pounds of Sugar for $1.00. Plenty of Hominy-Corn-Peas and Corn Flakes for Saturday. New goods coming all the time.

Don't forget the Big Sale Saturday--and bring us all the Eggs you can.

JONES
St. Joe, Ind.

PROGRAMME

Of the Concord Township Sunday School Association Convention to be held in the Fairview M. P. church, Sunday September 17, at 1:30 o'clock.

Opening Song
Prayer.................Rev. J. C. Coons
Song Service
Devotional.................Frank May
Song.................Congregation
"Is My Sunday School What It Ought To Be? If Not, What Can I Do To Make It So?"
- (a) Attendance.
- (b) Organization.
- (c) Interest.
- (d) Kind Of Teaching.
- (e) Results.

Round Table, led by.................Frank Scholes
Song.................Congregation
"The Missionary Work As Related To Sunday School Work" ....Bertha Clawson, Angola
Discussion led by.................Elizabeth Mumma
Song.................Congregation
Departmental Reports.
Report Secretary-Treasurer.
Song—Announcements.
Benediction.

FRANK PROVINES, President, Concord, Ind.
ADA BASSETT, Sec'y.-Treas., St. Joe. Ind.

Dunkle sells Gasolene at 16 1-2 cts.

Ethel Berry, of Spencerville, is visiting Grace Dilley for a few days.

Mrs. Anna Abel is visiting her grandson, Chas. Benjamin and family, at Grabill.

Avis Sechler and Ethel Wallace were over Sunday guests of J. H. Miller and wife, at Butler.

FOR SALE:-Top buggy. Bargain if taken at once.
JOE WINEBRENNER.

Mrs. Lee O. Tustison is quite ill with typhoid fever. A trained nurse was called to care for her Tuesday night.

L. W. Yeiser and family were at Avilla, Sunday. The boys had been visiting relatives there for a week before school.

Paul Maxwell left Monday for Bloomitgton where he will attend school. Hubert Shook also returned to Wittenburg College at Springfield, Sunday.

Mesdames Frederickson and Essig, of Auburn, were last Thursday guests of Mrs. Margaret Swineford and sister. The former lady is their niece.

Porter Depew, wife and son, Dan Hilkey and wife, and Mrs. Ward Baughman, all of Auburn, were in town Saturday calling on Champ Bailey and wife, and Smith Bailey.

George Milliman was at Garrett from Monday night until Friday, taking the place of one of the barbers of that city, who was absent owing to the death of a relative.

C. C. Bassett and son Carl, left early Monday morning for Attica, Ind., to visit the former's half-brother, George S. Ferguson. They will make the trip on bicycles and expect to be gone a week or ten days.

John Gill and wife, and Wilson Koch spent Sunday with the latter's sister, Mrs. Ed Lysher and family, and also her mother, Mrs. Mary Timmerman, near Mount Olive.

E. D. Fredrick, wife and daughter, of Hudson; and John Halt and wife, of Teagarden, were Monday guests of Wilson Koch and wife. Martin Koch and family were also Monday evening guests, the two former couples returning home with them.

Willard Maxwell, son of Will Maxwell and wife, met with what might have been a serious accident last Tuesday, when he was running and ran against the wire hitching rack at the Coburntown Church, the wire being just high enough to strike him across the throat rendering him unconscious for a time.

Nineteen ladies met at the home of Mrs. Eva Sheffer, Wednesday afternoon, in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Ada Bassett, president of the Martha Society. Three of the ladies were of the Coburntown Aid Society. Mrs. Bassett received several beautiful and useful presents. The hostess served refreshments.

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

Pony and Outfit for sale. $125.00.
O. E. GINTHER.

For Sale: Sow and ten pigs. Joseph Boger, phone 34-20. Spencerville.

FOR SALE:-Good second hand Cook Stove. Mrs. R. A. SMITH, Phone 79-3.

For Sale: Blue Bell Cream Separator, used 4 months. In best of running order.
H. F. Garton, St. Joe,

FOR SALE:--8 room cottage house, small barn and 6 lots. Located at Orangeville. Price reasonable. J. R. CULBERTSON, Auburn, Ind.

FOR SALE:-Honey. Harvey Kimes, Sr., Spencerville, Ind.

Dunkle has cider barrels.

Dr. Otis and wife, of Denver, Colo., were Saturday guests of H. M. Widney and family.

Mrs. Joe Winebrenner and daughter Marie, left Tuesday for Racine, Wis., for several weeks visit with her parents.

Mrs. Lucile Provines, of near Auburn, came Tuesday for several days visit with her parents, S. D. Gee and wife.

Mrs. Widney, of Concord, and daughters, Miss Ida and Mrs. Hale, the latter of New Iberia, La., visited Miss Pearl Shurts, Tuesday.

D. J. Baker and wife, and Harry Essig and wife, all of Ft. Wayne, spent Sunday with the former's daughter, Mrs. Frank Bowman and family.

Earl Pepple and wife, of Auburn, were guests of the former's parents, Will Pepple and wife, and sister, Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and family, Saturday night and Sunday.

Albert Wyatt, Robert Lanning and Walter Zalley, all of Butler; and C. Hudgens, of LaFayette, came this week to work on the new stone road, west of town. They are boarding with Geo. Millimans'.

The supper and parcel post sale, last Saturday evening, in the Lutheran basement was a real success. $55 was netted from the affair. The supper was fine and many more attended than they anticipated.

After about a year and a half absence from work with the Western Union Co., at Chicago, Jud Davis with his wife returned to that city Monday to resume his work. Mr. Davis has been off from work on account of ill health.

Sunday was the birthday of Chas. Jenkins of West Eleventh street and Mrs. Jenkins planned and carried out a surprise on him. While he was at Sunday School she had all the children come home and when they sat down to their birthday dinner there were twenty-one people. The day was pleasantly spent and the surprise was complete.—Star.

Last Sunday about one hundred and fifty people visited the Leighty Orchard, which added to the visitors during the week, made more than two hundred people who had their attention called to the town of St. Joe by this enterprise.

The real production of apples in this orchard only started last year when 6,000 bushels were picked, but the crop now on the trees, estimated at between 8,000 and 9,000 bushels makes it look as though the orchard had really "arrived", and is beginning to attract attention.

The western orchards have been extensively advertised and are one of the "sights" included in a western tour. They have nothing on the orchards here, either in methods of raising the fruit or grading and packing it. The box has become the standard package in the west, principally because the apples better stand the long shipments to eastern markets in a box.

It is of interest to note that the production of apples in the United States last year was about 76,000,000 barrels. After deducting the amount exported it left about two bushels for each man, woman, and child in the country. Within one hundred miles of St. Joe there are about 750,000 people who would eat about 1,500,000 bushels of apples.

Since the passing of the farm orchards these apples must nearly all be shipped into this district, and the money for them sent out. An average price of one dollar per bushel would mean about $1,250,000 at least went to some other community for this one thing which used to be shipped out of this county in considerable quantity.

Changes of this kind come about so gradually that we do not realize that, they are happening until we get to thinking back over the past. During this pleasant weather it is well worth a long trip to see the unusual sight offered by so many trees loaded with the fruit that is so popular and is almost as staple a food as beef. tft.

AT WARNERS

the styles this year are more beautiful than ever and those we have for you are the choicest from each selection offered to us.

This is a special personal invitation to you to inspect our display of Fall Millinery.

DRESS HATS

in fine quality of Velvet in all the new Blocks including the famous Gage line.

Priced from $4.95 to $7.00.
Beautiful feathers in all colors

Lids For Kids

A special line for Children. Priced from 98 cts. to $2.50

'Warners Millinery'

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summerf aresin effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connectionnow have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip
Colorado - - $36.60
California - $78.75
Yellowstone - $51.60
Salt Lake City $51.60
Portland, Seattle $79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shoref, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind. J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

Families Entertained

The Leaders class of the St. Joe M. P. Sunday school was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jackson on Monday evening. The main feature of the evening was a six o'clock supper, which was served on the lawn. Plates were laid for sixty-seven. The class has twenty-seven enrolled members so they prepared a feast of good things for their husbands and children. After the social hour they were invited in the house where the dining room, living room and parlor were decorated in the class colors blue and yellow. At this time the president, Mrs. Jenkins gave a few words of welcome, after which Mrs. Peterson, chairman of the program committee took charge and the following program was given:

Prayer	Rev. Coons
Class Song	On To Victory
Piano Solo	Edna Jackson
Recitation	Dorris Widney
Class Organization	Pastor
Piano Solo	Howard Shilling
Piano Duet	Edna Jackson and Kathryn Kinsey

Class Progress Mrs. Hattie Widney Remarks by H. M. Widney and W. E. Peterson. This closed the evening's entertainment and all present returned to their homes, each one declaring the Leaders to be royal entertainers.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

BIG PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located 2½ miles west and ½ mile south of Spencerville, 2 miles north of Hurshtown, and 2½ miles east and ½ mile south of Hopewell, on

Thursday, Sept. 28

Beginning at 10 a. m., the following:—

4 HEAD HORSES:—Gray Gelding, 9-yrs. old; Bay Gelding, 7-yrs. old; Bay mare colt, 2½ years old; Bay mare, 6-mos. old.

8 HEAD CATTLE:—Full-blood Jersey Cow, 7-yrs. old, will be fresh in Nov; Half-blood Jersey and Durham Cow, 7-yrs. old, fresh by day of sale; Heifer 2½ yrs. old, fresh in Dec; 2 Heifers, 2-yrs. old, fresh in spring; Heifer, 18-mos. old; 2 Heifer calves, 10-mos. old.

30 HOGS:—4 Poland China Sows to farrow in Oct. and Nov; 2 Chester White Sows farrow in Oct. and Nov; Full-blood Poland Boar; 23 Shotes weighing from 25 to 80 pounds.

FARMING MACHINERY:—Buckeye Wagon, McCormick Binder, 2 Riding corn plows, Walking breaking plow, Disc, Spike tooth harrow, 2 Shovel plows, 5-tooth Cultivator, Deering mower with 5-ft. cut, Hay rake, Spring tooth harrow with trucks, Set of Bob sleds, Hay rack, Fanning mill, Platform scales, Dump boards, Hay rope and pulleys, Single buggy, 2-seated Buggy, Corn sheller, 2 sets of Double work harness, 2 Sets single harness, Set light double harness. Some CORN.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS:—Majestic Range, Gasoline Stove, Cabinet Oil Stove, 2 Incubators good as new; Glass and Earthen Fruit Jars, 2 Iron Kettles, DeLaval Cream Seperator and many other articles. Lunch served on the grounds.

ABE FURNISH.

C. H. BABER & SONS, Auct. JAMES BOOTS, Clerk.

SEPTEMBER

0295

SYSTEMATIZE

your household expenses by opening a bank account for your wife. Give her a check book and teach her the use of it. Pay the butcher, the grocer, the baker with a check. Then at the end of the month you'll find out just how much it costs you to run the home. When payment by check is made there never is any doubt as to whether or not a bill is paid. The check is a receipt.

Besides, a checking account will give your wife a business education. The number of ordinarily bright women who know absolutely nothing of banking is surprising. If you are a husband, father, brother, you cannot tell when death may overtake you, and it is well that your wife, daughter and sister know something of banking.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND TODAY TO GIVE YOUR WIFE A CHECK BOOK.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

THE HIGHEST MARKET
PRICE

Paid for Your
POULTRY
SEE
W. G. EICK

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

J. S. Wise, wife and daughter, and Mr. Phillips, of Auburn, visited the former's daughter, Mrs. James Vallieu and family, and also other relatives here, Sunday.

Jacob Baltz and wife, and Wm. Sommers motored to Auburn, Friday, and brought home Mrs. Jessie Sommers, who has been assisting in caring for her sister, Mrs. Raleigh Moffett, who is recovering from a recent fall.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Subscribe for this paper.

Patronize the advertisers.

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Ray Davis and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday guests of S. S. Davis.

H. Garton, wife and daughter were Sunday guests of H. S. Platner and wife.

Mrs. Mary Bowman and son Ray, went to Ft. Wayne, Monday, for a few days visit with friends.

Ola Braybrook, wife and son Lawrence, of near Springfield Center, spent Sunday with the Kinsey and Pepple families.

COLETOWN

David Cook, wife and son George, of Toledo, and Mr. Milert and wife of Hicksville, called on W. E. Jacksons', Monday.

A. E Hart and family, of Hicksville, spent Monday evening at Wm. Sowers'.

Olive Jackson spent Sunday at Pleasant Lake, Ind., the guest of Rev. Lindstrom and wife.

W. C. Shull and wife spent Sunday at Lester Piermans'.

Miss Dell Murphy and Charles Musgrave, of Paulding, Ohio, spent Saturday night and Sunday with W. E. Jacksons'.

R. H. Conine and family called on H. H. Murphys' and J. H. Actons', Sunday.

Sell Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 12
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

SPENCERVILLE

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

The C C Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Greely Wearly and daughter LeAnna, Friday afternoon.

Mabel Hazel, is the name of the little daughter that arrived at the home of David Baughman and wife Saturday morning.

Clarence Guilford and family, and Henry Fair, of Sherwood, O., are visiting in the home of Chas. Gibbons several days.

Word has been received from the Militia boys. They are located at New Orleans, and enjoying good health and having a fine time.

Theodore Bowser and Mrs. Molly Hyndman, of Huntertown, spent Sunday the guests of the former's son, Raymond Bowser and family.

Jacob Baltz and wife, and Wm. Sommers and wife were Sunday guests of Mrs. Baltz's sister, Mrs. Byron Widney and husband, north of St. Joe, Sunday.

Joel Betz and wife, Edward Billman and wife, and Walter Perkins, wife and son Lloyd, visited Mrs. Fred Reichelderfer and husband, of Payne, Ohio, Sunday.

The Misses Charlotte and Opal Miller entertained the Loyal Workers Class of the Lutheran church of Hoagland, Saturday afternoon. Jean and Levi Mumma, and Miss Bertha Thornburg were also present.

There will be a Sub-district Epworth League Rally at the M. E. church, on Friday night of this week. A large delegation is expected from Auburn, Garrett, Huntertown, Swan, Wesley Chapel and and Meese Chapel. The services will begin at 7:30 p. m., and both old and young people are invited to be present.

A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of B. W. Dwyer and family, east of town, Saturday night, to bid them farewell as they will leave this week for their new home at Peter, Ill. The guests came well ladened with ice cream and cake to which all did ample justice. Those present were:—Joseph Boger and family, Vern Welch and family, August Klinkle and family, Frank Horn, wife and daughter, Mrs. Jay Mason, of near Auburn; George Horn and family, and Earl McNabb and wife, of Auburn.

Our Children's School Dresses will be here in a few days. Get the girls all fixed up the first thing at Beams & Co. store.

The True Blue Class of the M. E. Sunday School tendered a farewell surprise party on one of their members, Miss Mae Barton, south of town, Thursday afternoon. Miss Barton will leave for Iowa soon. The guests brought pot luck supper; and presented Miss Barton with a beautiful book, a box of stationary and a towel. Those present besides the class were:—Orange Carahan and family, of Garrett; Mrs. D. D. Metcalf and daughter Ethel, and Miss Jessie Steward.

On Friday evening, Abe Furnish and wife were the victims of a surprise perpetuated by her Sunday School class and their husbands who invaded their beautiful country home, laden with ice cream, cake and good wishes, and proceeded to show them that they cannot move out of our midst to their new home in Forest Park, Ft. Wayne, without some sign of the high esteem in which they are held in the community. In the luncheon which followed, a color scheme of pink and white was carried out. Those present were:—John Horn and wife, Frank Horn and wife, Mrs. Jay Mason, Henry Walters and wife, Frank House and wife, Mrs. Kate Thornburg, Loren Means and wife, Mrs. Newton Miller and daughter, Mrs. Wm. Fairfield and daughter Helena, Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg, and Rev. and Mrs. Mumma and son David.

Mrs. Gust Cupp, Elma Wilmot and Bertha Thornburg were Friday guests of Dell Kelley and family.

Wesley Zimmerman and wife spent the fore part of last week with their son Ray, at Columbus, before he left for the Border.

The Misses Gertrude and Ethel Shutt spent Sunday with their aunt, Mrs. Minnie Tyndall, who has been sick but is greatly improved.

Arthur Heyman, wife and daughter Mary Ellen, Wm. Beninghoff and wife, and Golden Beninghoff of Ft. Wayne, and Miss Helen Bowman, of St. Joe, were Sunday afternoon guests of John Beninghoff and wife.

A Musical Recital was given on Friday afternoon at the home of Miss Opal Miller, the teacher of the class. Ice cream and cake was served by the hostess. The program was as follows:-Violin and Piano Duet by the Misses Opal and Charlotte Miller; Piano Solo, "Hungary" Miss Opal Miller; "May Pole Dance", David Mumma; "Rose Petals" and "Little Boy Blue" March, Miss Doris Shull; "Pink Pearls" Waltz, Florence Beams; "Twilight Song" Josephine Doll; "Airy Fairies" Waltz, Cleo Bowser; "Brooklet" Polka, Nellie Shull; "I Think of Thee" Guards March, Miss Mary Pervines; "School Girls" March, Margaret Thornburg; Piano Duet, Florence Beams and Gaylan Markle; "Irise Valse" Gladys Watson; "Feast of Roses", "Woodbird" and "Minnie Singee" Eva Watt; "Fifth Nocturne" and "The Front", Miss Delpha Coburn; "Aeolian Harpe" and "To My Beloved Valse" Gladys Place. Other members of the class are Roy Bowser, Willard Maxwell, Walter Horn, Bina Zimmerman, Margie Spitler, Gaylan Boger, Mabel Rhoade and Aileen Allen. Many of the parents were present to enjoy the occasion.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

The Misses Ruth Hay and Lena Kelley visited Sunday with Miss Grace Cook.

Miss Eva Watt spent Sunday with Aileen and Lucile Rhodes.

Al Shatger, of Ft. Wayne, visited Sunday with Theo. Dinius and wife.

Mrs. Wm. Bishop and daughter Alice, returned to Roanoke, Ind., after spending a week with Theo. Dinius and family.

Mrs. Florence Kimes visited last week at Ft. Wayne, the guest of Miss Walker and other friends.

A Vicious Pest
a billion dollars
RAT CORN
25c, 50c and $1.00.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20.

BIG PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located on the Rudolph Bair farm, 1½ miles down the St. Joe river from Spencerville near Bair's bridge on the old Leo and Ft. Wayne road and 4 miles up the river from Leo, on

Tuesday, Sept. 26

Beginning at 10 a. m., the following

CATTLE:—4 cows, all giving milk, one of these is Jersey and one due to be fresh Dec. 1st.; 3 heifers due to be fresh in April; Jersey bull; 3 spring calves.

7 HEAD HORSES:—Bay brood mare, 13 years old, weight 1,250 lbs.; Brown brood mare, 8 years old, weight 1,300 lbs.; Black mare, 16 years old, weight 1,200 lbs.; Black mare, 4 years old; Iron gray mare colt, 3 years old; Iron gray Gelding colt, 3 years old, and 1 spring colt.

SHEEP:—15 Shropshire Ewes, 7 Shropshire Ewe Lambs, 7 Shropshire Buck Lambs, 1 Shropshire Buck, all fine ones.

3 Brood Sows with Pigs by Side.

Full-Blood Rhode Island Red Chicks.

FARMING MACHINERY:—Oliver No. 11 Riding Breaking plow, Riding 2-horse corn plow, Disc, 2 spike tooth harrows, 1-horse cultivator, Drill with phosphate attachment, John Deere binder 7 foot cut, John Deere mower 5 foot cut, John Deere hay loader, John Deere side delivery rake, new ground plow, Farm wagon, 2 hay racks, Set dump boards, Platform scales, Set double work harness, Cart swill barrel, Cream Separator. All these implements were bought NEW last year.

HAY in Mow. CORN in the Shock.

Lunch Served on the Grounds.

Barton & Metcalf.

J. L. RHODENBAUGH, Auct.
A. D. BRUNSON, Clerk.

Miss Jeanette Smith had a slight operation Sunday, having her adnoids removed. She is getting along fine.

Lloyd Stevens and wife, and Mr. Courtney and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday visitors of Charles Essley and family.

Dr Graham and wife, of Auburn, were Thursday guests at the Harvey Kimes, Sr. home. F. A. Roach and wife, of Ft. Wayne, were also callers.

Neff Culler and wife, of near Newville, accompanied by Harvey Kimes, Sr. and Minnie Thompson motored to Milan Center, Sunday, and visited with Samuel Smith and wife.

C. M. Wearly and family spent Sunday at Hamilton Lake.

W. O. Miller and family spent Sunday at Robison Park.

Earl Stiman and family attended the Farver Reunion at the home of James Farver near Auburn, Thursday.

W. O. Heffinger and wife, Ray Means, wife and baby, and Earl Stiman and family were Sunday visitors of Wesley Zimmerman and wife.

Wm. Smith and wife, and Earl Stiman and wife attended the fair at VanWert, Ohio, Friday.

Miss Jessie Steward returned to her home at Ft. Wayne after visiting a week with relatives here.

Rev. Reverett and family, of Ft. Wayne, and Reuben Deitrick and wife were Sunday visitors of Milo Beam and family.

Geo. Bauman and family, of Leo, Elmer Smith and wife, and Wm. Smith and wife visited Sunday with Ira Smith and wife.

Mother's Responsibility

No part of the body is so seriously neglected as the mouth, nose and throat. If not kept sanitary they become a breeding place for germs. If Glando Gargle be used once or twice daily it will cleanse the mucus membrance and kill the germs. It is excellent for sore mouth in babies; soothes during teething. It relieves a cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever and prevents adenoids. For sale by all Dealers.

Dan Huckey and wife, of California, and L. Farver and wife, of Auburn, spent Tuesday with Earl Stiman and wife.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser
Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.
Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest in America
Strongest in the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. [illegible]

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROP.

SEPTEMBER

L 908

0296

News of the Week Cut Down for Busy Readers

European War News

The allies have lost more than a million men in killed, wounded and missing since the grand offensive against the central powers opened with a Russian attack three months ago. This estimate was made by German military experts at Berlin, who said they thought it conservative.

• • •

While the German-Bulgar army which captured the forts and city of Turtukai is attacking the enemy positions to the north, another Bulgar army is making rapid progress in a advance along the Roumanian Black sea coast. The capture of three important port cities, Belchik, Kavarna and Kaliarka, is announced by the Bulgarian war office at Sofia.

• • •

A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Athens says information has been received there that the Russians have taken Negotin, the Serbian town near the Danube, and that another column of Russians is threatening Vidin, the fortified Bulgarian city on the right bank of the Danube.

• • •

With more than 20,000 Roumanians captured by the Bulgar-Teutonic forces which stormed Tutrakan and its seven forts the invasion of Roumania, which is now threatening Bucharest, and the sweep across Dodrudja to cut the main Roumanian line of communication with the Black sea port of Constanza continues. The capture of Tutrakan is officially announced by Berlin and confirmed by Petrograd.

• • •

The Russians are bombarding the Galician town of Halicz, about sixty miles southwest of Lemberg, says the Russian official report issued at Petrograd. The town is in flames.

• • •

The French have captured the German first line trenches over a front of one mile on the Verdun front, the Paris war office announced.

• • •

Further French gains are reported in the official statement issued by the war office at Paris, these being entirely south of the Somme, where the greater part of the village of Berny was captured, as well as the northern portion of Vermandovillers.

• • •

Canada has 361,693 men under rams, according to figures announced at Ottawa, Ont.

• • •

The French troops have captured the village of Ommiecourt, Hospital farm, Rainnette wood and part of Marrieres wood; and progressed in other regions north of the Somme, according to the official communication issued by the Paris war office. The prisoners captured number 6,500, and the cannon 36.

• • •

Domestic

The mosquito is blamed as a carrier of infantile paralysis in a letter that was published in the New York Medical Journal by Dr. Charles S. Braddock, Jr., formerly chief medical inspector for the Siamese government. A similarity is pointed out in the spread of the plague and in the spread of yellow fever.

• • •

Rioting marked the beginning of New York's big street railway strike. Several instances of elevated trains being bombarded with stones and bottles thrown from roofs were reported to the police.

• • •

Triumph for the woman's suffrage cause "in a little while" was predicted by President Wilson at Atlantic City, N. J., in a speech before the annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association.

• • •

J. W. Struthers and Charles Deere Wiman of the army aviation school for civilians fell 900 feet in an aeroplane at Governor's island, New York. Both received injuries that may be mortal. Wiman is a Moline (Ill.) millionaire.

• • •

Rates on iron ore from lower lake Erie ports to Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania were pronounced generally unreasonable by the interstate commerce commission at Washington.

• • •

William Tank, aged thirty-three, and Otto Bergmann, aged thirty-four, are dead and Aronld Zwickey is probably dying as the result of their auto being struck by a Northwestern passenger train near Vandyne, Wis.

• • •

Following a mass meeting of electric railway employees, a strike was voted on all subway and elevated lines of the Interborough Rapid Transit company of New York, to go into effect immediately.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox were found dead in their home at Hartley, Ia. A coroner's inquest resulted in a verdict that Cox had murdered his wife and shot himself. Cox was fined last week for beating his wife.

Three high school teachers, Miss Edith Ellenborg of Marion, Ill.; Miss Anna Kirkland of Urbana, Ill., and Harold Gentven of Beaver Dam, Wis., were struck by an interurban car and instantly killed at Muncie, Ill.

• • •

R. L. Murphy, internal revenue collector for Iowa, announced at Dubuque, Ia., that, effective at midnight September 8, schedules A and B of the war revenue act are repealed. This covers bonds, debentures, deeds, notes, bills of lading, telephone and telegraph messages, cosmetics and perfumes.

• • •

Two persons were killed and fifteen injured at Palmers' crossing, one mile south of Rives Junction, Mich., when two passenger cars on the Michigan Railway met headon.

• • •

E. P. Ripley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway, declared in a formal statement at Topeka, Kan., that the Santa Fe does not intend to comply with the Adamson eight-hour law, recently enacted by congress to avert a threatened railroad strike until ordered to do so by the United States Supreme court.

• • •

A. Anapoli, a foreigner, was arrested at Sacramento, Cal., on suspicion of having written letters to Governor Johnson threatening to dynamite him if he did not deliver a large sum of money at a certain place.

• • •

Master bakers, representing numerically 40 per cent of the baking establishments of the United States and controlling about 60 per cent of the output of bread, "recommended" at Chicago that bakeries cease to make five-cent loaves of bread and confine their standard output to a ten-cent loaf.

• • •

Mexican War News

General Pershing departed from Columbus, N. M., for his headquarters in Mexico, having completed his inspection of the base of the punitive expedition.

• • •

Mexican bandits attempted to hold up a passenger train near San Luis Potosi. Carranza troops rushed out and charged the bandits, capturing 12 of them. The captives were hanged.

• • •

Washington

Orders to reinstate immediately all employees of the post office department with the National Guard in the field upon their discharge from the militia, without awaiting formal approval of the department, were issued at Washington to all postmasters by the postmaster general.

• • •

In a statement issued at Washington following the adjournment of congress, President Wilson called attention to the "helpful and humane legislation" passed and declared that while he regretted additional legislation dealing with the recent dispute between the railroads and their employees had not been completed he had every reason to believe the question would be taken up immediately after congress reassembles.

• • •

A resolution by Senator Curtis of Kansas directing the senate lobby committee at Washington to investigate the activities of the alleged foreign lobby opposing the retaliatory provision of the revenue bill against Canadian fisheries was passed by the senate.

• • •

The treaty providing for the purchase from Denmark of the Danish West Indies for $25,000,000 was ratified by the senate at Washington.

• • •

The senate appropriations committee issued a statement at Washington giving the total of regular appropriations at this session of congress at $1,349,809,269, an increase of $377,121,411 over 1916. To this the committee adds deficiencies, miscellaneous and permanent annual appropriations, getting a grand total of appropriations for 1917 of $1,626,439,209, an increase over 1916 of $517,537,197.

• • •

The senate at Washington adopted a resolution directing the federal trade commission to investigate the soaring price of print paper.

• • •

The senate at Washington rejected the nomination of Dixon C. Williams to be postmaster of Chicago. The rejection was brought about at the request of Senator J. Hamilton Lewis.

• • •

The administration emergency revenue bill, designed to raise $205,000,00 annually from taxes was passed by the senate at Washington. It will create a tariff commission; establish a protective tariff on dyestuffs; provides for protection of American firms from "dumping" at the end of the war; and gives the president authority to take drastic retaliatory steps against allied interference with American trade.

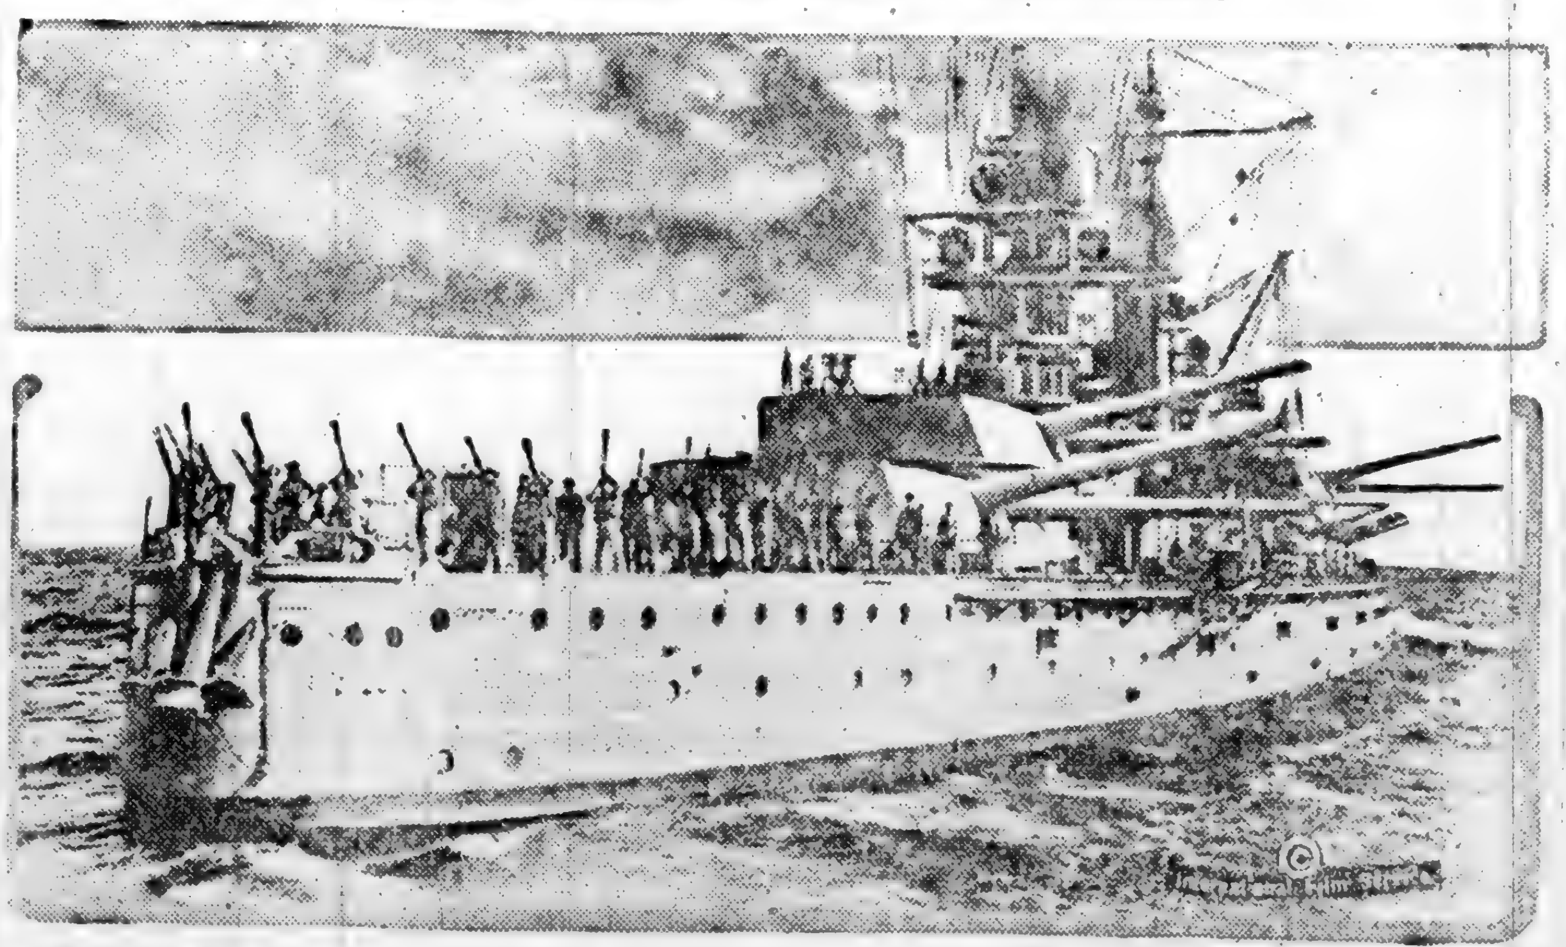
• • •

President Wilson signed the shipping bill at Washington. It authorizes government organization of a corporation or corporations with capitalization of not more than $50,000,000 to buy or lease ships and put them in trade if they cannot be leased for operation to private capital.

• • •

The house of representatives at Washington elected Representative S. Hubert Dent, Jr., of Montgomery, Ala., to succeed Representative Hay of Virginia as chairman of the house committee on military affairs.

GERMAN SAILORS FIRING AT AEROPLANES



Sailors on the German battleship Prinz Regent Luitpold firing at hostile aeroplanes with rifles.

WOUNDED BRITISH AND GERMANS GOOD MIXERS

While these wounded British and German soldiers are waiting for the ambulance to carry them to the base hospital they are having a good-natured chat.

JUDGE W. L. CHAMBERS

Judge William L. Chambers, chairman of the board of mediation and conciliation, has been acting as a go-between for President Wilson, the railway employees and the railway executives in the strike situation. His position, with reference to the strike negotiations, has been similar to that of Col. E. M. House in Democratic politics. He went from one to the other of the triangle, bearing informal messages to each.

The Black Man's Burden.

The late Booker T. Washington used to tell this story: He said in one of the black counties of southern Mississippi a meeting was held in the city hall at the county seat for the purpose of organizing a movement to encourage the emigration from the North of desirable skilled labor. As one of the promoters of the plan was leaving the building after the gathering had adjourned, he was halted by an aged darky of his acquaintance.

"Kunnel," inquired the old man, "whut you-all been doin' in thar tonight?"

"We're trying to work up a scheme to bring more white people down here," explained the gentleman. "What do you think of the idea, Uncle Zach?"

"W'l, boss," said Zach, "dey's already mo' white folks in dis country now dan us niggers kin suppo't."—Sunday Magazine.

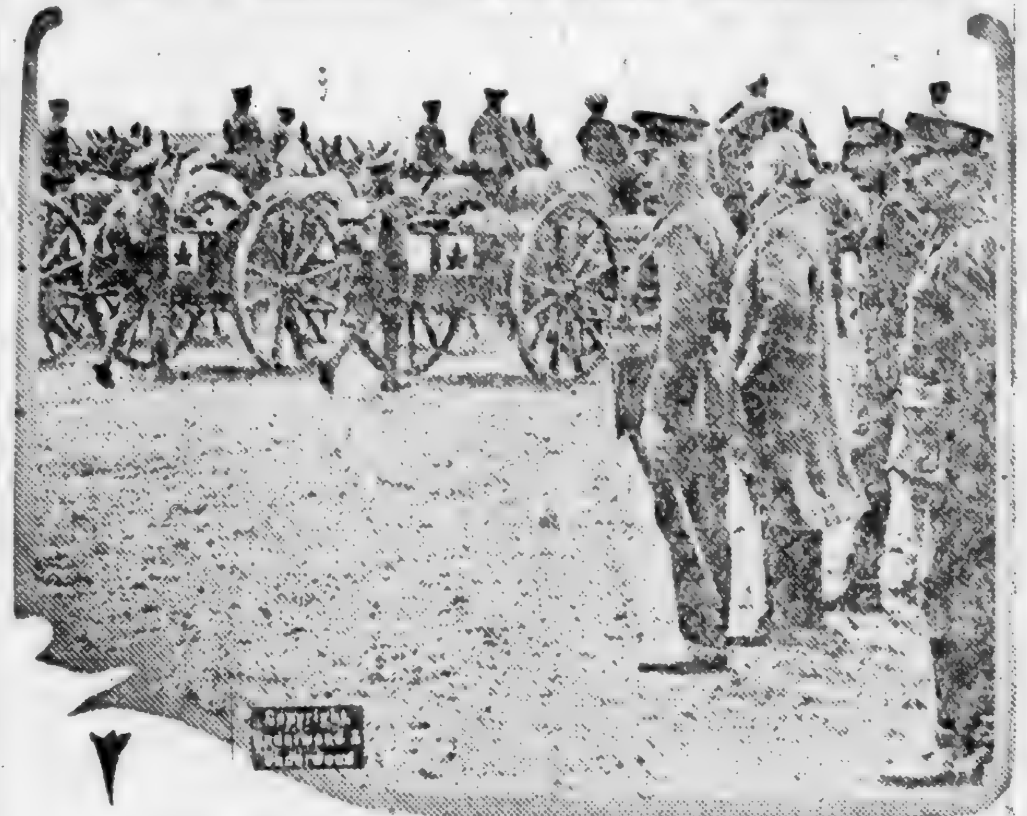
New Needs.

"Do you suppose they'll send a minister to meet the commercial Zeppelin that's coming over?"

"Why should they send a minister?"

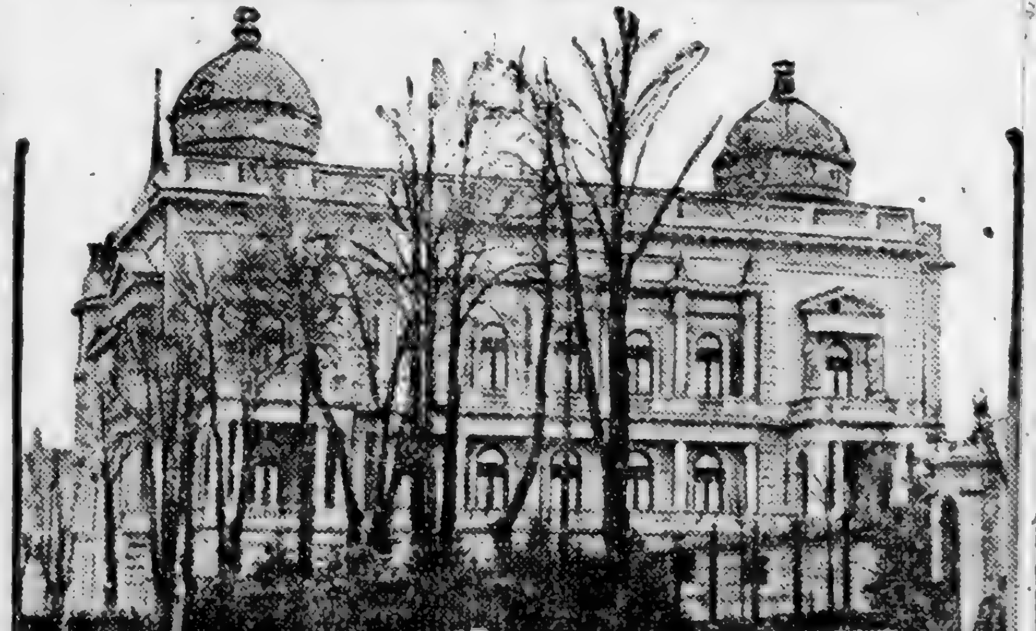
"Won't it need a sky pilot?"

LLOYD-GEORGE REVIEWING CANADIANS



David Lloyd-George attended his first review as secretary of war when with Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, he inspected a Canadian division at Bramshott. After the review Lloyd-George addressed the officers and paid high tribute to Canada's held in the war. Photograph shows Lloyd-George, hat raised, and Sir Sam Hughes watching the march past.

PALACE SERBIANS HOPE TO REOCCUPY



This is the royal palace at Belgrade which the Serbians now hope will be again occupied by the royal family when the Teutons and Bulgarians are driven out of the country.

Discouragement.

"I'm goin' to run for office," exclaimed Farmer Corntossel. "Or if I can't git nominated fur sheriff or somethin', I'll take the stump fur some one who kin."

"What's the trouble?" inquired the neighbor.

"I can't get my family nor the hired help to pay attention to anything I say. I want to get out and try my luck with a strange crowd."

Frank Opinion.

"Have you formed an opinion in this case?"

"Yes, sir."

"To what effect?"

"That the lady defendant isn't very good looking."

"Talesman excused."

Question of Physical Labor.

"Do you think Bacon wrote the Shakespeare plays?"

"What difference does it make who wrote them?"

"A great deal. If I've got to go through my library and paste in Bacon's name wherever Shakespeare's appears, I want to know about it early so that I can begin."

Played With Fire.

"She talked to him just to let him know she wasn't afraid of old bachelors."

"Yes."

"And he talked to her just to let her know that he wasn't afraid of widows."

"Well?"

"Oh, they're married now."

Indiana Brevities

Chicago.—The Great Lakes Association of Assistant Postmasters, comprising members from Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin, met here in annual session and elected the following officers: President T. W. Leslie, Racine, Wis.; first vice president, E. J. Beixhardt, Hillsdale, Mich.; second vice president, J. C. McNaughton, Connersville, Ind.; third vice president, R. L. Lacey, Mount Vernon, Ill.; secretary and treasurer, P. F. Moore, Lake Forest, Ill. John B. Milburn of Streator was elected state secretary for Illinois, H. R. Preumers of Burlington for Wisconsin, J. C. Tracey of Gary for Indiana, and F. H. Bailey of Sturgis for Michigan.

Indianapolis. — School authorities faced a revolt of school patrons, especially those from the better residential sections, against the order of the board of health requiring that all school children and teachers be vaccinated against typhoid fever before they enter school Monday. It is the first general vaccination order ever issued, and the action was taken because there are nearly 700 cases of typhoid fever in the city. Many patrons have asserted they will not have their children vaccinated and will ask the courts to compel their admission to the schools.

Indianapolis.—The belief is expressed in military circles here that the Indiana National Guardsmen may be returned to Indiana in October, but not immediately discharged. This belief is strengthened by similar assertions of officers back from the border on leaves of absence and in dispatches from Washington. Meanwhile the Indiana troops are drilling daily, taking 12-mile hikes with ease, according to advices from the border.

Hartford City.—A suit has been filed in the Blackford circuit court against Alonzo C. Oblinger of Harrison township, who disappeared last June, asking for the appointment of a receiver to take care of his property. The complaint alleges that the defendant is heavily in debt, but that if his property is properly managed the assets will be more than sufficient to meet all liabilities. No trace of Oblinger has been obtained since he disappeared.

Evansville.—By knocking off the lock of the money box of a candelabra in St. Mary's Catholic church here John Korinsky of New York is alleged to have robbed the box of $12 in change. The priest's housekeeper declares she detected the man in the act of robbing the box. She hailed a passing automobile containing two city detectives, who caused the fleeing man to halt by emptying their revolvers at him.

Michigan City.—Fearing that he may have met the fate of Rev. Kayser, the Gary preacher who was slain, and others who have been victims of a vendetta, the police of this city have been asked to search for Stanley Moncalowsky, a wealthy Gary junk dealer who is missing. Moncalowsky started for Michigan City last Friday with a large sum of money in his possession. His departure from Gary was the last seen of him.

Connersville.—Mrs. William E. True, calling her husband for breakfast, saw his head in a cistern. She seized a mop and thrust it down, but he was not able to hold it. Albert Robinson, a neighbor, was called and held True's head above water until more help came. The man was unconscious 30 minutes after being taken out. He fell into the cistern when trying to dip up a bucket of water.

Shoals.—About three months ago a remonstrance against a local option election was filed with the county auditor, and it almost immediately disappeared from the auditor's office. Last week a petition for an election was filed. When the commissioners met the petition was before them. When they were ready to act on it about noon it had disappeared and no trace of it can be found.

Gary.—Deputy Coroner E. R. Evans has begun an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Hugh Kent, wife of the mayor of Aetna, and an official of the Aetna Explosives company. Mrs. Kent was found dead in the kitchen of her home with a bullet through her heart. Near by was a revolver. It is believed she ended her life while despondent.

Anderson.—Charles E. Nevius, recently appointed general secretary of the Anderson Young Men's Christian association, has arrived from Ellenburg, Wash., and will begin his work September 15. W. M. Ledwith, who has been assistant secretary, will enter a Y. M. C. A. training school at Chicago after visiting his parents in Pittsburgh.

Alexandria.—Florabel Arnott won the yard contest conducted by the Alexandria Business Men's association. Ten other gardeners received favorable mention. Prizes aggregating $100 will be offered next year.

Portland.—Miss Bessie Inez Butcher was married in the office of A. G. Lewis, justice of the peace here, to David H. Goff, who is in the camp of the Indiana National Guard in Llano Grande, Tex., more than 3,000 miles away. The ceremony was witnessed by the bridegroom's mother, the bride's sister and other guests.

Princeton.—Fred Fineyk, freight agent of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, was found dead in the freight house with a bullet wound in his head. The police are undecided whether it was suicide or murder.

SEPTEMBER

0297

ARMY ORDERS NOT A JOKE, SAYS LEWIS

MUST BE OBEYED OR TRIALS WILL FOLLOW, OFFICERS ARE TOLD.

WORD IS PASSED TO ALL

Camp Commander to Investigate the High Cost of Bread Produced at the Donna Camp—Brooms Were Charged Against Account.

Mercedes, Tex.—Brigadier General E. M. Lewis, commanding general at Llano Grande, has had all the commanding officers of the camp on the carpet. When he got through with them, it was plain that he meant what he said, and that there must be better discipline at Llano Grande, Donna and Mercedes, where General Lewis is in command. He was particularly pointed in his remarks to the colonels, saying he would hold them responsible for the discipline and the enforcement of orders, and if they did not appoint boards to try their subordinates who had not enforced discipline, he would appoint boards to try the colonels. The general said some of the orders seemed to be taken as a joke, but there was no joke about them, there being reason for the command, and they must be obeyed.

He spoke particularly concerning the order that every soldier must be provided with a mosquito net. When the troops first came, they had these nets, but as the camp became more sanitary, the mosquitoes disappeared, and the nets were thrown aside. The continued rainy weather brought the mosquitoes back, and General Lewis ordered every soldier should be protected against them. This order does not seem to have been obeyed. General Lewis called attention to the fact that there were many cases of dengue fever in Mercedes, and though there were only a few cases at Llano Grande, it would not be long until it was there, and as the mosquito carried the disease, the nets were absolutely necessary. He also spoke of the order against carrying loaded rifles in the camp, and of the soldiers going to the nearby cities armed with revolvers. There were several other things he called attention to in an impressive manner.

The colonels had a meeting of the captains and lieutenants, and what the general said to the colonels was said by the colonels to the captains and lieutenants, and so on "down the line" until finally some buck private kicked the company dog.

General Lewis was greatly surprised at the cost of bread produced at the Donna camp. He sent an assistant quartermaster to investigate the high cost. It seems five regimental quartermasters had bought brooms, nutmeg graters, scrubbing brushes, mops, whisk brooms, soap and a handsaw and charged these articles against the bread account as electric power which is used in baking. A quartermaster officer was sent to Donna to straighten out the bread account.

Put Floors in Tents.

Companies A and C, First regiment, Indiana, spent Labor day putting real floors in the tents. Company A improved the floors provided for the round tents and carved them into circles.

"If they just had legs they would make swell poker tables," said an Indianapolis man as the big circles were set in place.

"When men have lived without a floor for two months, real boards under their feet are an amazing and delightful thing."

The Indianapolis men as soon as the job was completed took off their shoes to test the amazing dryness of the floors. Some of them dashed off enthusiastic notes, some boasting that they could now walk across the floor without getting their feet muddy.

Company I, First regiment, Bloomington, completed its floors during the day, thanks to having an expert carpenter in charge of the saw and hammer detail. The carpenter is Herb Alexander.

Good Tale for Barber Talk.

Edgar Alltop, barber, First Indiana, put away his razor and shaving mug and left Company I beards to take care of themselves and went fishing in the lake. He had caught several fine croppies about as large as safety pins when Herb Alexander, Elmer Wray and E. M. Peckinpaugh came along and made so much noise giving I. U. yells that the fisherman's fine run of luck was cut short.

"Please quit sis—boom—bahing and dig me some fishing worms," begged the barber. They obligingly dug for worms and a few inches below the surface unearthed some bones. They carried them back to camp and medical students say they are human bones, probably buried several months. They are divided as souvenirs and Alltop intends to have a razor blade made of those given him.

"It might be Villa's bones, you can't tell," said Alltop. "No one is sure he is alive, and stranger things than—well, anyway, I'll have a good story tied to this bone when I get back to Indiana."

Firing Not by Mexicans.

Under instructions from Washington, secret service men have investigated the reported firing on American troops at the Mercedes pump station and at Progreso, where detachments of the First Minnesota are doing guard duty. The reports have not been made public, but enough has leaked out to show that the Minnesota troops were not fired on from Mexican soil.

The secret service men are of the opinion that the shots were fired by the Minnesota soldiers, that no one shot at them, and that they emptied several volleys into the underbrush as the result of overheated imagination, and for the purpose of causing some excitement. The report to Washington is that as far as any attack by Mexicans is concerned, there is nothing to it.

Resign From First Infantry.

Maj. Frank W. Foxworthy of Indianapolis, chief surgeon of the First Indiana infantry, and Lieut. Leonard P. Collins of Winamac, also of the same regiment, have sent their resignations to the war department. Business reasons are said to be the cause of both resignations.

Col. Leslie R. Naftzger of the First Indiana and his staff entertained Francis B. Sayre, son-in-law of President Wilson, at dinner, at the regimental officers' mess. Mr. Sayre has been at Llano Grande for some days in the interest of the national Y. M. C. A., and after dinner addressed a large audience, made up entirely of soldiers, at the Indiana Y. M. C. A. building.

In Wrong Bath a Month.

Certainly things are different in the army. Do you think that you could accidentally take a bath in your neighbor's tub every day for a month and not learn your mistake? Fred Baker, sanitary inspector for the Second regiment hospital corps, learned recently that he has been using the Third regiment's bathhouse since it was built. He not only took daily baths there, but sent a detail to the Third regiment's shower shed to give it a thorough cleaning. Members of the Third regiment looked on with interest and gratitude. When the work was completed one of the Third regiment men asked Baker if he was just doing it to keep in form for home work. Baker was puzzled until he was told that it was his regimental neighbors' bathhouse he had been spending his time on. "Why, this is where I take my baths," said Baker. "Say, I'm going to get a diagram of this camp ground and a compass and never leave my tent without it. You fellows ought ot come over and clean up our baths now."

New Registration Necessary.

Indianapolis.—Sixty per cent of the precincts in Indiana probably will have to hold a general registration of voters this year as a result of an interpretation of the revised registration law that has just been made by a special commission of attorneys appointed by Governor Ralston.

The legislature amended the act in 1915 in an effort to provide for an enrollment that would be as permanent as possible, an added section of the measure being as follows:

"Any voter, resident within any precinct, whose name appears on the registration books of his precinct, shall not be required to register again if he continues to reside in the same precinct in which he is registered, and if he shall not be disfranchised for any cause prescribed in the laws of the state of Indiana, and if he shall have exercised the right of suffrage at the last preceding election."

However, whole counties and a large number of scattered precincts will have to take a complete registration October 9, the date set some time ago for the enrollment of new voters and those who had changed their residence, as a result of the following opinion of the commission:

"If the registration books are destroyed, mutilated, inaccessible, or are for any other reasonable cause unfit for use, or if the poll books kept by the poll clerks at the last general election have been destroyed or lost, or for any other reason it is impossible for the auditor to obtain possession of the same, then the auditor shall give notice for a registration of all voters resident within such precinct. We recommend that the question of whether there is to be a complete registration of all voters resident in any of the precincts be determined at once by the several county auditors and notice thereof given by them at once to the county chairmen of all the political parties in their counties."

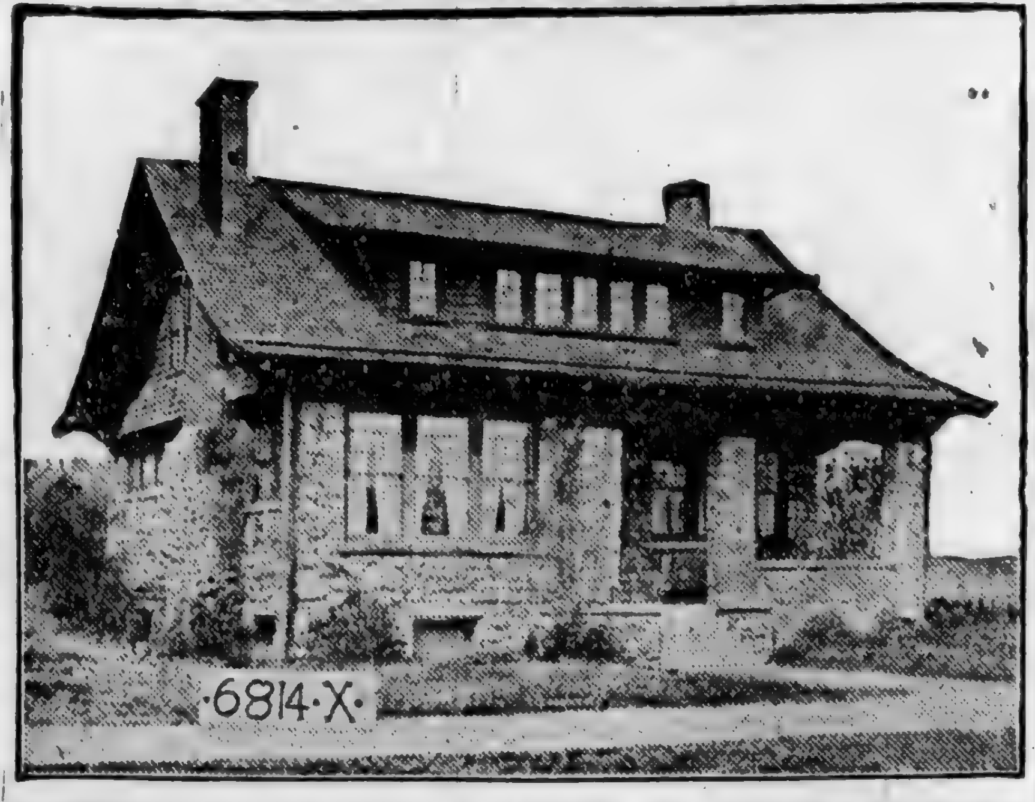
THE SOLDIER'S DIARY.

Capt. N. B. Cary of Crawfordsville, who has been acting as assistant chief sanitary inspector of Llano Grande, has been ordered back to his regiment because of the resignation of Maj. Frank W. Foxworthy, former chief surgeon. It is not known whether Captain Cary's detail is permanent.

Captain Baker, Company H, First Indiana, from Knox, and Lieutenant Kapouch, Company L, First Indiana, from Winamac, have resigned.

The following have been sent home under the dependent relative act: Sergt. William C. Hoeltke, Company A, signal corps, Indianapolis; Corporal Don L. Downing, Battery A; Corporals Thomas W. Hendrick, Company A, First Indiana, and Edward L. Dodd, Company A, Second Indiana.

Twenty-eight carloads of horses have arrived, 14 for Llano Grande and the rest for other camps. The artillerymen were up all night unloading the cars, and now the three batteries are fully equipped.



COMBINES BEAUTY AND PERMANENCE

Natural and Manufactured Stones Used With Wooden Material in This House.

NEW TYPE OF CONSTRUCTION

Its Beauties, Noted at a Glance, May Be Added To by Vines and Shrubs—Interior Arrangement Shows High Ability Displayed by the Designers.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The idea of permanence in house construction dates back to a period which had passed long before the existence of the new world was even thought of. It is very probable that other considerations were of governing importance at that time and the quality of permanence was obtained more as a matter of necessity than as a matter of desire. The materials out of which buildings were made in the early days were the materials which could be taken from nature and converted into their final form with the least possible necessity of any process being performed upon them which would resemble what would today be termed a manufactuing operation. It was early found that if stones having flat faces were gathered in sufficient quantities they could be piled one on top of the other with some form of plastic material to fill the cracks, and the resulting wall could be built to form an enclosure with a rough covering of thatch, animal skins or even huge slabs of stone. Thus it happened that the natural way was also a permanent way to construct houses.

In every age since its advent into the field of building materials stone has found a place, if reasonable facilities for using it have been at hand and a sufficient supply obtainable. At the present time it is used in a much different sense than it originally was found necessary to consider it. The vast number of building materials which are today open for the selection of the porspective builder have eliminated the necessity of holding to some few types of construction, and when any particular material selection is made it represents the personal preference of the owner, who may be inclined to judge either from a standpoint of appearance or utility.

A wise selection of materials will, however, necessitate the basis of judgment upon a desire for both beauty and permanence. The home is usually considered as something permanent and must be built to meet this requirement. This does not imply that every home should be constructed of solid stone masonry, for proper construction methods and a reasonable attention to maintenance will give a wooden structure long life. Some people do not object to the occasional trouble of repainting a frame house and are inclined toward this type because of the possibility which it offers for treatment in various color combinations. Others prefer the type which, if once erected, needs no further attention and can be relied upon to hold its original appearance for a long period of years.

The "happy medium" is found in a house built partly of some material which may be considered as included in the first class and partly of some more endurable material which falls into the second class. Even then the selection is not a limited one, for there are many pleasing combinations of the natural and manufactured stones with the various forms of wooden material.

A design is illustrated which may be placed in the "happy medium" class. The exterior of this substantial story-and-a-half home is finished in rough natural stone up to the tops of the first floor windows, from which it is carried up with shingles under the gables. The chimneys are of brick capped with rough stone. The broad, gracefully sloping roof is shingled. The rafters have their ends exposed and the projecting ends of the purlins are supported by heavy triangular brackets. A large number of windows break up the wall surface and add to the general finished appearance of the exterior. The useful porch, set back under the roof, with its solid stone columns, is a pleasant feature. The entire exterior is well balanced and can be made very beautiful by properly trailing vines and planting shrubs.

In walking through the various rooms of the house one is impressed in much the same manner that obtains upon viewing the exterior. Good substantial construction is evident in every detail. The door leading from the front porch admits the observer into a hall from which the stair to the second floor leads off to the right. A feature of this hall is the long seat built along the wall next to the staircase. This seat will be found very convenient and may be built to hold a large quantity of stored books or music in its lower part, thus relieving the living room of the clutter of this material.

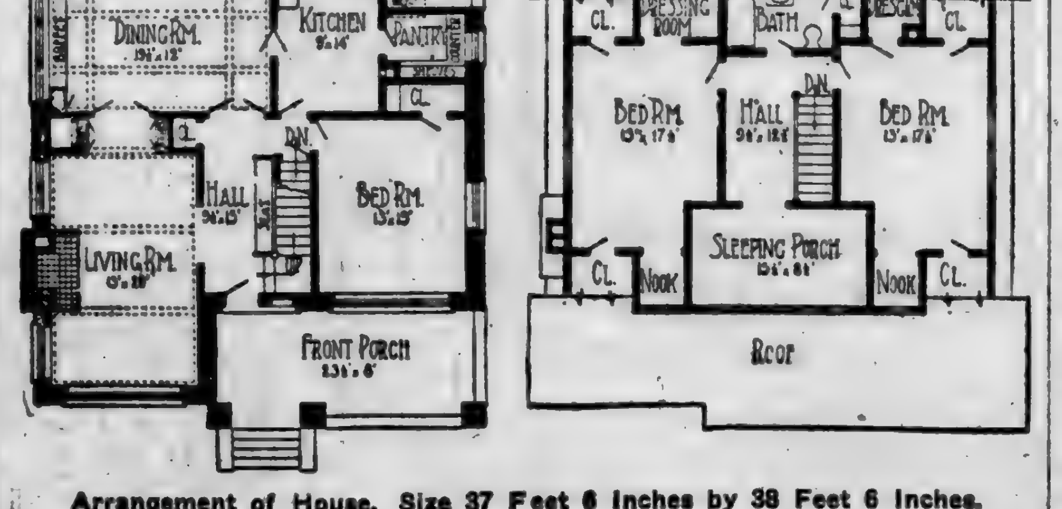
On the left of the hall, through a cased opening, is the large living room. The fireplace is seen against the opposite wall upon entering. Exposed timbers in the ceiling finish are in keeping with the general plan. Three large and four smaller windows furnish ample light for this room. At the rear of the living room are two handy tiers of bookcases built into the distinctive entrance to the dining room.

This dining room is really a model of colonial design. Exposed timbers cut the ceiling up into large and small panels, furnishing the possibility of unique arrangement of the lighting fixtures. A large buffet extends across the entire end wall of the room. Three casement windows are placed over this buffet and three more windows of larger size are set into the other wall. Double doors are placed in the entrance to the living room and to the hall, and a double-acting door leads to the kitchen.

The culinary department is made up of a generous-sized kitchen, a particularly handy pantry, and the rear porch, which may be considered an extra room during the warm part of the year. The refrigerator is ararnged to be iced from the outside. Every convenience is included in the design of this part of the house.

The second floor is well arranged and contains several interesting features. A large hall is centrally located, from which all of the rooms on this floor, and the stairs to the first floor, may be reached. Two large bedrooms are placed on either side of the hall. Each has a dressing room, two closets and a little nook attached to it. A sleeping porch is built at the forward end of the hall and the bath is placed at the rear end of the hall. These sleeping quarters are capable of providing perfect comfort for a large family.

The type of house illustrated in this design is a very good one for the average American family and it is coming more and more into use because of its finished materials and general utility.



Arrangement of House. Size 37 Feet 6 Inches by 38 Feet 6 Inches.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 17

PRISONER IN THE CASTLE.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 22.

GOLDEN TEXT—He is my refuge and my fortress.—Ps. 91:2.

Paul was rescued from the mob by the prompt action of Lysias, and was saved from scourging by revealing his Roman citizenship (21:27-22:29). Every true life, real social service, patriotism and national righteousness rest upon the value of conversion to Christ. The fundamental message of the Christian church must always be regeneration. With this message Billy Sunday is gripping the large cities, and Dr. John R. Mott is reaching the student life of the world.

I. Paul's Account of His Early Life (v. 1-5). By his use of the Greek tongue he obtained permission to deliver this address, and by his wise use of the Jewish language he gained the attention of the excited crowd. Paul asserted his Jewish origin. (Acts 21-39). Tarsus, where he was born, had a university which rivaled those of Athens and Alexandria, and Paul had probably heard its great philosophers. Paul was an educated man; he was brought up in Jerusalem from his early boyhood at the feet of Gamaliel its greatest teacher. Thus his religious training was according to the law of the fathers, and as "touching the righteousness which is of the law," he was blameless (Phil, 3:6). He was zealous for God, doing what he thought he would have him do even when "persecuted this way," the way of forgiveness, salvation and righteousness. Jesus said, "I am the way." Paul was at this time an instrument in the hands of the rulers, carrying out their plans, but he exceeded them in his zeal for "the traditions of our fathers (Gal. 1:14). He was not at all like those Pharisees whom Christ condemned as "white sepulchers." He was not what we would term today, "a bad man."

II. Paul's Turning Point vv. 6-21). Paul seems to pick out three different crises in this rehearsal. (1) His interview with Christ, when he saw Jesus as he really was in his glory, a living risen Savior (Cor. 9:1; 15.8). He had positive proof of the resurrection from the dead. This proof convicted him of sin. He had heard Jesus call. He had asked Jesus what he would have him to do. He was ready to obey, and something was given him to do. The light which he met on that journey arrested him in his mad course. The voice gave him his directions. In obedience to the command, "Arise and go," he gained knowledge and skill. (2) He lights upon his interview with Ananias (v. 14) where he received personal help from an experienced Christian. In the darkness and conflict of those three days of loneliness the questions must have been: Could he leave rank, honor, friends? Could he enter the service of the despised one and suffer reproach, danger and death? During this conflict he must have had before him the vision of what God would have him do, and the work for which he chose him (vv. 16-18). His vision and commission constituted a strong motive for right decision. During the vision he came into the light, and confessed his faith by his baptism. As a result of those three days and his interview with Ananias he came to know God's will more fully. The next step was of course (3) his public avowal (See Acts 2:38; Heb. 10:22; Rom. 10:13; I Cor. 6:11). The purpose of Paul's whole life and mission was changed.

III. Paul's Dangerous Position (vv. 20-30). The mob gave him audience until his words about the Gentiles. His declaration that God had commanded him to go upon a mission to the Gentiles was an offense to the Jews, and his words fell like a "spark upon an inflammable mass of fanaticism." They broke out into a frenzy of excitement, and made preparations to stone him. An Oriental mob is hideous beyond degree, howling, yelling, cursing, gnashing their teeth, flinging their arms, casting off their garments (v. 23), throwing dust into the air to relieve their excitement and to express their execration. It was a manifestation of their uncontrollable rage. The opposition of a mob is no proof that the person it curses is wrong.

Immediately preparations stopped. The commander was called, and, learning that Paul was a free-born Roman citizen, he had cause to be afraid that he had gone too far.

To assert Roman citizenship falsely was punishable with death.

The chief captain told Paul that with a great sum he had obtained his Roman citizenship, but Paul's reply was, "But I am Roman born."

Paul was well cared for after this, and, in order to find out why the Jews were so opposed to him, the captain summoned the Sanhedrin to meet the following day, thus unconsciously giving Paul another opportunity to proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Paul indeed was ready to be bound, and also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.

He knew how his Lord had been bound (John 18:12), and he rejoiced in the fellowship of his sufferings (Phil. 3:10) yet he claims his right as a citizen for there is no need of morbidly seeking unnecessary disgrace or pain.

Libby's Vienna Sausage and Sliced Dried Beef

Both contain less heat producing properties than heavy meats.

Try them for summer luncheons and picnic tidbits.

Libby, McNeill & Libby
Chicago

Insist on Libby's at your grocer's

Ask for and Get
SKINNER'S
THE HIGHEST QUALITY
SPAGHETTI
36 Page Recipe Book Free
SKINNER MFG. CO., OMAHA, U.S.A.
LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

THE HIGH QUALITY SEWING MACHINE
NEW HOME
NOT SOLD UNDER ANY OTHER NAME
Write for free booklet "Points to be considered before purchasing a Sewing Machine." Learn the facts.
THE NEW HOME SEWING MACHINE CO., ORANGE, MASS.

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

Beautify Your Home AT SMALL EXPENSE
Send us 50c and we will forward to you prepaid, six large, beautiful pictures, all in colours, some beautifully hand tinted; very pretty for framing or to hang on wall as they are; will make excellent holiday gifts for relatives or friends. You will be very well pleased with your purchase, if not we will cheerfully return your money.
NORTHWESTERN NOVELTY CO.
Department F. Ironwood, Mich.

EXPECT TO RAISE BIG SUM

Anti-Tuberculosis Societies Plan Sale of One Million Dollars' Worth of Red Cross Christmas Seals.

Three hundred million Red Cross Christmas seals are being printed in Cincinnati for the annual holiday campaign to be conducted under the joint auspices of the American Red Cross and the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The campaign for the sale of Red Cross seals this year will be larger than ever before. Although in 1915 the sale reached the record total of 80,000,000 seals, bringing in $800,000, it is expected that this year at least 100,000,000 seals or $1,000,000 worth will be sold. The sale will be organized from Alaska to the Canal Zone and from Hawaii to Porto Rico. Every state and territory in the United States will have seals on sale. New organizations will be working in a number of the western states, including Montana, Utah and Wyoming. Distribution of the seals is now under way.

Prepared.

Church—What has become of the members of your church choir?

Gotham—Enlisted and gone to the front.

"Well, they know how to fight, all right."

Germany's normal meat supply is 60 per cent pork.

Grape-Nuts

Gets Attention—

First, because of its wonderfully delicious flavor—

Then again, because it is ready to eat—fresh and crisp from the package.

But the big "get attention" quality is its abundance of well-balanced, easily digestible nourishment.

For sound health, every table should have its daily ration of Grape-Nuts—

"There's a Reason"

SEPTEMBER

0298

Sale of Blankets.

For the next three days only. Bed blankets have advanced wonderfully in price but we were fortunate in having ours bought for September delivery and they are HERE. We will put them on sale for this week only at LESS THAN COST due to the advance. Hurry so you can get some of those nice ones. They won't last.

J. Beams
SPENCERVILLE IND

BEAR CREEK FARM

LEIGHTY ORCHARD

We have hanging on the trees now, between 8,000 and 9,000 bushels of apples.

They make a beautiful and unusual sight, and we want you to see them.

If you have an auto, bring some one who is not so fortunate.

You are not asked to buy, but if you insist, we will sell to you for ONE DOLLAR per bushel, if you furnish something to carry them away in.

We will make cider same as last year, ten cents per gallon at the farm if you bring your container to be filled.

Local Briefs

Mrs. C. Curie and Deama Curie were at Wayne, Friday.

J. P. Buckingham was at Wayne Saturday, to see Mrs. Buckingham at the St. Joseph hospital.

Mrs. Charles Abel and son Chas., Jr. of Garrett, and Mrs. H. H. Allen, of Detroit, Mich., were Thursday guests of Mrs. S. W. Tustison.

Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, baby son and daughter Martha, of Adrian, Mich , came Wednesday, Mrs. Harry Kees came Thursday and Mr. Kees and son Leon, and Vance Woodcox came Saturday and were guests of Mrs. Addie Filley.

Pocahontas Lump---$4.25 from cars or $4.60 delivered up to Jan. 1st. St. Joe Mills

The men of the Coburntown Church have been quite busy the past week. They lowered the basement floor and put in a drain.

A car of Bradley's Fertilizer will be in this week. Phone in your order and get from the car. Get it at Curie's.

Theron George returned home Sunday after a weeks visit with Alfred Reasoner and wife, west of Concord. They were also guests of J. N. Georges', Sunday.

There will be a Prohibition Meeting at Auburn, at the Court House, Saturday, Sept. 16th., to elect a County Chairman. Prof. Bailey, candidate for Congress, will speak.

WANTED!

YOUR POULTRY

For which we will pay the highest market price.

Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

The following teachers have been selected for the St. Joe Schools for the coming year:—Superintendent, F. L. Smith, of Harlan; Principal, Miss Ina Shorden, of Ft. Wayne; Grammar Room, Merritt Maxwell; Intermediate Room, Miss Gladys Kain; Primary, Miss Flossie Sechler; Music, Drawing and Manuel Training, C. A. Woodcox. The teachers in Concord Township outside of St. Joe are Hays, Gray Woodcox; Saylors, Miss Audra Coburn; and Cheesetown, Miss Agnes Sechler.

"Then I'm to understand there's no hope for me!"

Such is the opening remark of the principal character in the corking good story we have secured for our next serial

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The doctors assure him that the mysterious disease from which he is suffering will be the death of him within six months. So the young man starts out in search of a quiet place where he can die peacefully and at once. His plan is frustrated by a chance meeting with a girl in distress, bent on suicide. He marries her so she may have the benefit of his fortune, then departs for the South Seas on a yachting trip with a friend.

Then things begin to happen; he doesn't die as predicted and he has all sorts of adventures in rapid succession. Every installment is alive with interest. Be sure you don't miss the issue containing the first one.

Watch for It!

In Society

Makes Announcement

Mrs. Bert Bowman was hostess to a merry party of young folks on last Thursday afternoon, whom she entertained with a buffet luncheon, in honor of the announcement of the Nuptial of their daughter, Helen to Mr. Golden Benninghoff, in the month of October. The rooms and porch were attractively bright with golden-rod. The color scheme lent a vision of beauty in the dining room where a boquet of golden glow filled the center of the table with golden wax candles at either corner and cupid suspended from above.

The dainty luncheon was an enjoyable acquisition to the affair. As the guests were seated, Joseph Koch acted as the Live-wire that brought a telegram to each one announcing the nuptials.

Those present were: Mesdames Rebecca Benninghoff, DeLora Curie, Bernice Baker, Marie Draggoo, Vernie Rhoades, Neva Hursh, the Misses Princess Krabill, Pauline Barney, Stella Hull, DeVeta Bayman, Lela Wallace, Agnes Sechler, Eunice Leonard, Inez Hart, Flossie Sechler, Ima Scholes and Pauline Andress. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Chloe Hart.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Genuine Hocking Coal $3.60 from car or $3.95 delivered up to Jan. 1st. St. Joe Mills.

Susan Sechler and Sarah Hull were guests of Diadem Bone, at Concord, Friday, and remained over night.

More wheat to the acre when you use Bradley's Fertilizer. A car load is being received by Wm. Curie this week.

Miss Ida Widney will return next Wednesday to the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago for another year's study.

Public Sales

I will sell at Public Sale at my residence on the old Nusbaum farm, 2 miles north of Maysville and 1 mile north and 2 miles east of Grabill, on

Friday, Sept. 22

Beginning at 10 a. m., the following:-

HORSES:-Mare, coming 4-yrs. old, weight 1,450 lbs: one Gelding, coming 4-yrs. old, weight 1400 lbs.; One Mare, coming 12-yrs. old, weight 1300 lbs.

STOCK:-2 cows to be fresh in Nov. and March: 2 Calves; Brood Sow due to farrow in October; Barrow weighing 220 pounds; 5 Spring Lambs.

FARMING MACHINERY:- Hay loader used 2 seasons; Binder, Mower, Hay rake, Corn cultivator, Disc, 2 Breaking plows, Steel spike tooth drag, Hay rack, Narrow tire wagon, Wide tire wagon, Pair of bobs, Set dump boards, 2-seated buggy, Set of Work harness, good as new: and Hay fork and pulleys.

MISCELLANEOUS: Copper kettle, Iron kettle, Heating stove, 8-ft. table, 2 barrel cider vinegar; 32 cord Stove Wood; Hay in the mow; Corn in the field, and numerous other articles not mentioned.

Mrs. Luther Crain
J. L. RHODENBAUGH, Auct.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,..................No. 2

Office at Residence. Second house west of Widney Opera House.

COMING BACK

United Doctors Specialist will again be at Hicksville, Ohio, Monday, September 18th., '16, at the Hotel Swilley.

One Day Only

Hours 9 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

Offer Services Free of Charge

The United Doctors Specialist licsensed by the State of Ohio, for the treatment of all diseases including deformities, nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever, except the actual cost of treatment. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friends and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

The United Doctors are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, rheumatism, sciatica, tapeworm, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long-standing, deep seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, goiter, piles, etc., as all cases accepted will be treated without operation or hypodermic injection, as they were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit at this time may help you.

Worn-out and run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment may be, call, it costs you nothing.

Remember, this free offer is for this visit only.

Married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

Laboratories, Cleveland, Ohio.

Try an ad in the Free col.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching services 10:30 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.; Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Prayer Meeting on Wednesday evening.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching Services, 7:00 p. m.

Christian Church Announcements;

St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m. Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching services, 7:30 p. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

JOT IT DOWN

That we do the very best line of Commercial Printing and at reasonable prices. Give us your next order and let us prove our assertion.

Bear in mind, we want your business, and we propose making ourselves deserving. Are you with us?

THANK YOU

Dying By Inches.

It is not an uncommon sight to see people who are dying by inches. The glands of the body are not working properly, poisonous matter accumulates and health declines. The circulation becomes sluggish, the blood impure, and a general nervous or debilitated condition exists. Day by day the liver and kidneys become less active, leaving the poisonous matter within the body. This poisonous accumulation causes the sallow complexion, and a tired, achy or run down feeling which, if neglected, may result in jaundice, typhoid fever or serious liver and kidney trouble. Glando, the great gland tonic, is especially prepared to relieve glandular disorders, throw off the poisonous accumulations and build up the system. Glando, the great gland tonic is the only treatment of its kind upon the market. Its superior qualities are due to the fact that it contains three separate treatments, each treatment having a special part to perform in effecting a cure. For sale by all Dealers.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

SEPTEMBER

0299

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXX — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY SEPT 21 1916 — NO. 39

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

CAR LOAD

of Fancy Potatoes for

Next Saturday

$1.45

per bushel. We have succeeded in buying a car load of Fancy Jersey Giant Potatoes, sand grown in the state of New Jersey, which we will sell from the car at the above mentioned price while they last. Car will arrive about Sept. 23. Give your order now so you will be sure of your supply.

See samples at W. G. Ericks Store and at our office.

STEWARD LUMBER & GRAIN Co.

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Highest Prices Paid for Grain and Seeds.

FORD Announcement

$369.00

Buys a 1917 Model Ford Touring Car delivered to your home.

$354.00

Buys the New Ford Roadster. See me for your car.

FRANK SILBERG,

AGENT

Personal Items

W. A. G. Smith and wife are at North Baltimore visiting.

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

The arrangements for the Centennial are progressing nicely, the name of the float for Concord township will be "The Pioneer Home."

Class No. 3 of the Coburn's Corners Sunday School met at the home of their teacher, Mrs. J. W. Hart, Saturday evening, in honor of her 66th., birthday. The young folks had a good time, there being 15 present. The meeting was a surprise.

Only one more house remaining in St. Joe for renting purposes, that of the Kinsey property. Lloyd Engle is now occupying the Craig Sheffer property on 5th. St., moving here from Newville.

The real estate transfers for St. Joe, during the past week, are as follows:—L. J. Reese to F. W. Dicker, lot 10, block 7, Leighty's add, $1. S. L. Kinsey to I. S. Hadsell, lot 2 in White's add $150.

B. E. Widney and wife, and Jacob Sechler and wife, left Tuesday morning for a trip through the East. They stayed over night in Detroit from there they went to Niagara Falls, and on to New York City, Washington, D. C., and points in Pennsylvania. They will make about a month's stay.

FEEDERS ATTENTION!

We have a full car of middlings running to us. Place orders now, it won't last long. Highest market price paid for Clover, Timothy and Alsike seed, we always pay highest market price for grain.

Always Welcome At The St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

Life of Willard C. Patterson

Willard C. Patterson passed away at his residence on Second Street in St. Joe on Sunday eve at 8 o'clock, after being afflicted for nearly seven years, having suffered a stroke of paralysis in December 1909, from which he never fully recovered, although he was able to be about town until last Saturday. The past few months being wheeled daily up town where he had been an active business man for many years.

He was the second son of George and Amanda Patterson and was born in 1855 on the old Patterson Homestead, now known as the Moore farm, one mile south of Newville Township Center School House. Here he resided with his parents until he reached manhood, and during this time attending the schools of that vicinity, where he was always a leader in his class.

In the year of 1876 he was married to Miss Ella Nelson. To them were born a daughter, Mrs. Bessie Tustison, who resides here near her parents, and a son, Ralph W. Patterson, who is now a resident of Springfield, Ohio.

After having reached man's estate, he worked for a season for John Shaffer in a grocery store at Halls Corners. Then for two years he taught the country schools of his home vicinity. He then purchased eighty acres of the Alva Lawrence farm and lived thereon one year, leaving the farm to take up employment in the general store of Henry Coburn at Newville where he remained for two years. In 1882 he went into business for himself having purchased the Mitchel drug store at St. Joe. While in the drug store his health having failed somewhat in 1887 he sold half interest to his brother, C. A. Patterson, in which business they continued until 1893. During the years of 1887-1888 he worked for the Union Central Life Insurance Co., and in the fall of 1888 he together with J. D. Leighty and E. Case, established the St. Joe Valley Bank and was the active Cashier for twenty-five years and was identified with it until death.

In the year 1892 together with his brother, C. A. Patterson, M. E. Olds and J. K. Stafford, purchased the Dry Goods store of J. D. Leighty and established the Big 4 Store, where he continued an active member until 1901 when he disposed of his interest to his partners, and retiring from the Mercantile business, devoting the remainder of his working years to the banking business. He was always prominent in church work and for the past fifteen years has been a member of the board of directors of Wittenberg College at Springfield, Ohio. He has been a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church Council for a number of years and about two years ago the church membership in recognition of his loyalty to the church made him a life member of the church council.

In his passing the town of St. Joe looses one of her staunchest business men and a loyal supporter of the town, one who has identified himself in every improvement and betterment of our town.

Funeral was held from the Lutheran church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mumma the pastor officiating, assisted by Dr. Keyser, of Springfield and Rev. Coons.

Come in and pay that over-due subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Send in your news items.

Elmer Hart was at Toledo, Wednesday, on business.

M. E. Olds and wife, of Clinton, Mich., were here in attendance of the W. C. Patterson funeral held Wednesday afternoon.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Lutheran	93	$2.62
M. P	95	4.94
Christian	60	2.33
Concord	88
Fairview	25	.85
M. E. Spencer	78	3.52
Lutheran	103	2.52

Mrs. Rolland Bearss, Mr. Frank Kincade and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caw and two children, motored to Logansport, Thursday for a few days visit with relatives.

Some little excitement was caused at Concord, last Friday afternoon, when Ralph Hull collapsed while standing on the porch at the Draggoo store. He became faint and tumbled into the road, injuring his face severely. Dr. Farnham was called and he is now as well as ever.

George Johnson, Chas. Koch and George Bleeks are the drivers for the school hacks, this year. The schools started out Monday with a record attendance and the high school reports an attendance of 53. New seats were added in several rooms and still more are needed. Later we learned that Sam Armstrong bought out Chas. Koch's route.

Niagara Grapes—Phone your order to The News. Price 3 cents per pound.

Mesdames Wm. Pepple, of St Joe, Henderson Clare and Lewis Heming, of Auburn, were guests of Fulton Co. Ohio, relatives, John Erehart and family, from Wednesday until Friday, of last week.

Coal.

We have 8 cars Pocahontas Lump Coal to be delived by Jan. 1st. We can guarantee to fill your order any time from car at $4.25 ton or $4.60 in bin. Pocahontas being a very delicate coal does not stand much handling. Beware of Pocahontas from the bins after one or two handlings, it becomes crumbly; by getting it from the car you are assured of good Lump Coal. Also Hocking Lump at $3.60 from car up to Jan. 1st. Watch papers for announcement when coal will arrive. ST. JOE MILLS.

Special Sale

ON

APPLES!

In order to solve the Labor Problem and put my enormous crop of apples in the hands of the Consumers at FIRST COST, I will

ON

September 25th.,

and for 30 days thereafter

Sell to all who come to

SPRING BROOK FRUIT FARM,

St. JOE, INDIANA.

No. 1 Choice Hand Picked Apples at Per Bushel $1.00

No. 2 Choice Hand Picked Apples at Per Bushel .... .50

Bushels to weigh 48 pounds net, the Ohio Standard.
In no case can we give Containers with Apples.

2,500 bushels of Grimes Golden, will pick, Sept. 25, to Oct. 3
3,000 bushels of Winter Bananas, will pick, ... October 3 to 11
1,500 bushels of Baldwins, will pick, ... October 11 to 15
1,500 bushel of Starks, will pick, ... October 15 to 20
500 bushel of Yorks, will pick, ... October 20 to 25

Several hundred bushels of Talpahocking—Mann—Greening—Ranboo—King, etc. First here, first served.

TERMS:- Cash.

Spring Brook Fruit Farm is Located:

1-2 mile EAST and 1-2 mile NORTH of St. Joe, Indiana;
6 miles west and 1 1-2 miles north of Hicksville;
7 miles south and 1 mile west of Butler;
24 miles north-east of Fort Wayne on Leo Road;
16 miles north of Woodburn;
10 miles east of Auburn.

H. M. WIDNEY, OWNER.

SEPTEMBER

L 9

0300

The Turmoil

By

BOOTH TARKINGTON

(Copyright, 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

CHAPTER XXVIII—Continued.

—15—

Sybil, the loud-mouthed daughter-in-law, is engaged in poisoning Mrs. Sheridan's mind against the Vertrees family and Mary Vertrees, whom Bibbs loves. The two women are standing just outside the door of Bibbs' room. He hears it all.

So she started for Roscoe; but she found out pretty quick he was married, and she turned right around to Jim—and she landed him! There's no doubt about it, she had Jim, and if he'd lived you'd had another daughter-in-law before this, as sure as I stand here telling you the God's truth about it! Well—when Jim was left in the cemetery she was waiting out there to drive home with Bibbs! Jim wasn't cold—and she didn't know whether Bibbs was insane or not, but he was the only one of the rich Sheridan boys left. She had to get him."

The texture of what was the truth made an even fabric with what was not, in Sibyl's mind; she believed every word that she uttered, and she spoke with the rapidity and vehemence of fierce conviction.

"What I feel about it is," she said, "it oughtn't to be allowed to go on. It's too mean! I like poor Bibbs, and I don't want to see him made such a fool of, and I don't want to see the family made such a fool of! I like poor Bibbs, but if he'd only stop to think a minute himself he'd have to realize he isn't the kind of a man any girl would be apt to fall in love with. He's better looking lately, maybe, but you know how he was—just kind of a long white rag in good clothes. And girls like men with some go to 'em—some sort of dashingness, anyhow! Nobody ever looked at poor Bibbs before, and neither'd she—no, sir! not till she'd tried both Roscoe and Jim first! It was only when her and her family got desperate that she—"

Bibbs—whiter than when he came from the sanitarium—opened the door. He stepped across its threshold and stood looking at her. Both women screamed.

"Oh, good heavens!" cried Sibyl. "Were you in there? Oh, I wouldn't—" She seized Mrs. Sheridan's arm, pulling her toward the stairway. "Come on, mother Sheridan!" she urged, and as the befuddled and confused lady obeyed, Sibyl left a trail of noisy exclamations: "Good gracious! Oh, I wouldn't— Too bad! I didn't dream he was there! I wouldn't hurt his feelings! Not for the world! Of course he had to know some time! But, good heavens—"

She heard his door close as she and Mrs. Sheridan reached the top of the stairs, and she glanced over her shoulder quickly, but Bibbs was not following; he had gone back into his room.

"He—he looked—oh, terrible bad!" stammered Mrs. Sheridan. "I—I wish—"

"Still, it's a good deal better he knows about it," said Sibyl. "I shouldn't wonder it might turn out the very best thing could happened. Come on!"

And completing their descent to the library, the two made their appearance to Roscoe and his father. Sibyl at once gave a full and truthful account of what had taken place, repeating her own remarks, and omitting only the fact that it was through her design that Bibbs had overheard them.

"But as I told mother Sheridan," she said, in conclusion, "it might turn out for the very best that he did hear—just that way. Don't you think so, father Sheridan?"

He merely grunted in reply, and sat rubbing the thick hair on the top of his head with his left hand and looking at the fire. He had given no sign of being impressed in any manner by her exposure of Mary Vertrees' character but his impassivity did not dismay Sibyl—it was Bibbs whom she desired to impress, and she was content in that matter.

"I'm sure it was all for the best," she said. "It's over now, and he knows what she is. In one way I think it was lucky, because, just hearing a thing that way, a person can tell it's so—and he knows I haven't got any ax to grind except his own good and the good of the family."

Mrs. Sheridan went nervously to the door and stood there, looking toward the stairway. "I wish—I wish I knew what he was doin'," she said. "He did look terrible bad. It was like something had been done to him that was—I don't know what. I never saw anybody look like he did. He looked—so queer. It was like you'd—" She called down the hall, "George!"

"Yes'm?"

"Were you up in Mr. Bibbs' room just now?"

"Yes'm. He ring bell: tole me make him fiah in his grate. I done buil' him nice fiah. I reckon he ain' feelin' so well. Yes'm." He departed.

"What do you expect he wants a fire for?" she asked, turning toward her husband. "The house is warm as can be. I do wish I—"

"Oh, quit frettin'!" said Sheridan.

"Well, I—I kind o' wish you hadn't said anything, Sibyl. I know you meant it for the best and all, but I don't believe it would been so much harm if—"

"Mother Sheridan, you don't mean you want that kind of a girl in the family? Why she—"

"I don't know, I don't know," the troubled woman quavered. "If he liked her it seems kind of a pity to spoil it. He's so queer, and he hasn't ever taken much enjoyment. And besides, I believe the way it was, there was more chance of him bein' willin' to do what papa wants him to. If she wants to marry him—"

Sheridan interrupted her with a hooting laugh. "She don't!" he said. "You're barkin' up the wrong tree, Sibyl. She ain't that kind of a girl."

"But, father Sheridan, didn't she—"

He cut her short. "That's enough. You may mean all right, but you guess wrong. So do you, mamma."

Sibyl cried out, "Oh! But just look how she ran after Jim—"

"She did not," he said, curtly. "She wouldn't take Jim. She turned him down cold."

"But that's impossi—"

"It's not. I know she did."

Sibyl looked flatly incredulous.

"And you needn't worry," he said, turning to his wife. "This won't have any effect on your idea, because there wasn't any sense to it, anyhow. D' you think she'd be very likely to take Bibbs—after she wouldn't take Jim? She's a good-hearted girl, and she lets Bibbs come to see her, but if she'd ever given him one sign of encouragement the way you women think, he wouldn't of acted the stubborn fool he has—he'd 'a' been at me long ago, beggin' me for some kind of a job he could support a wife on. There's nothin' in it—and I've got the same old fight with him on my hands I've had all his life—and the Lord knows what he won't do to balk me! What's happened now 'll probably only make him twice as stubborn, but—"

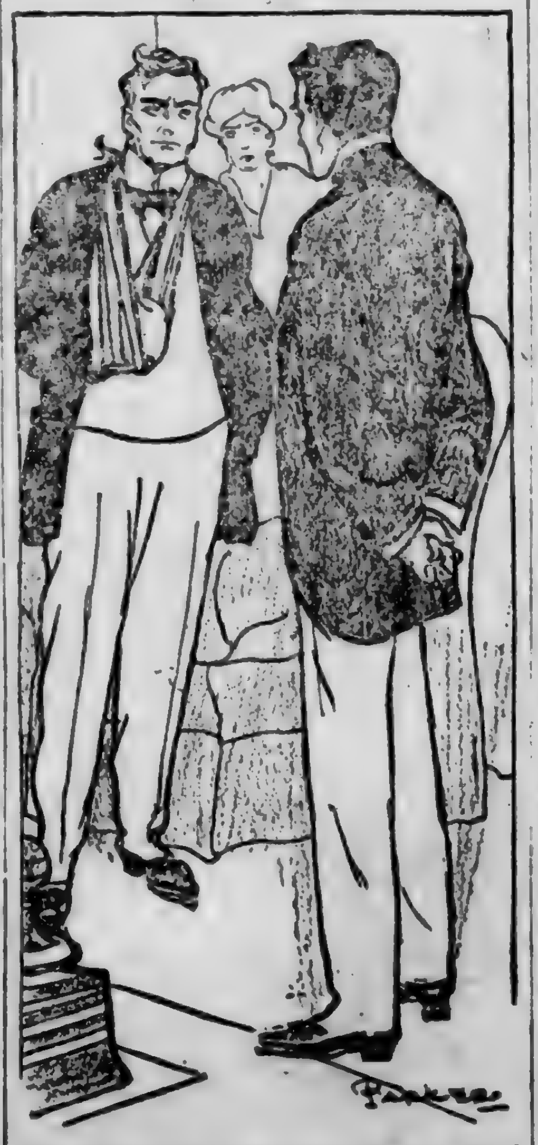
"'Sh!" Mrs. Sheridan, still in the doorway, lifted her hand. "That's his step—he's comin' downstairs." She shrank away from the door as if she feared to have Bibbs see her. "I—I wonder—" she said, almost in a whisper—"I wonder what he's goin'—to do?"

Her timorousness had its effect upon the others. Sheridan rose, frowning, but remained standing beside his chair; and Roscoe moved toward Sibyl, who stared uneasily at the open doorway. They listened as the slow steps descended the stairs and came toward the library.

Bibbs stepped upon the threshold, and with sick and haggard eyes looked slowly from one to the other until at last his gaze rested upon his father. Then he came and stood before him.

"I'm sorry you've had so much trouble with me," he said, gently. "You won't, any more. I'll take the job you offered me."

Sheridan did not speak—he stared, astounded and incredulous; and Bibbs had left the room before any of its occupants uttered a sound, though he went as slowly as he came. Mrs. Sheridan was the first to move. She went nervously back to the doorway, and then out into the hall. Bibbs had gone from the house.



"I'll Take the Job You Offered Me."

Bibbs' mother had a feeling about him then that she had never known before; it was indefinite and vague, but very poignant—something in her mourned for him uncomprehendingly. She felt that an awful thing had been done to him, though she did not know what it was. She went up to his room

The fire George had built for him was almost smothered under thick charred ashes of paper. The lid of his trunk stood open, and the large upper tray, which she remembered to have seen full of papers and notebooks, was empty. And somehow she understood that Bibbs had given up the mysterious vocation he had hoped to follow—and that he had given it up for ever. She thought it was the wisest thing he could have done—and yet, for an unknown reason, she sat upon the bed and wept a little before she went downstairs.

So Sheridan had his way with Bibbs, all through.

CHAPTER XXIX.

As Bibbs came out of the new house, a Sunday trio was in course of passage upon the sidewalk: An ample young woman, placid of face; a black-clad, thin young man, whose expression was one of habitual anxiety, habitual wariness and habitual eagerness. He propelled a perambulator containing the third—and all three were newly cleaned, Sundayfied, and made fit to dine with the wife's relatives.

"How'd you like for me to be that young fella, mamma?" the husband whispered. "He's one of the sons, and there ain't but two left now."

The wife stared curiously at Bibbs. "Well, I don't know," she returned. "He looks to me like he had his own troubles."

"I expect he has, like anybody else," said the young husband, "but I guess we could stand a good deal if we had his money."

"Well, maybe, if you keep on the way you been, baby 'll be as well fixed as the Sheridans. You can't tell." She glanced back at Bibbs, who had turned north. "He walks kind of slow and stooped over, like."

"So much money in his pockets it makes him sag, I guess," said the young husband, with bitter admiration.

Mary, happening to glance from a window, saw Bibbs coming, and she started, clasping her hands together in a sudden alarm. She met him at the door.

"Bibbs!" she cried. "What is the matter? I saw something was terribly wrong when I— You look—" She paused, and he came in, not lifting his eyes to hers. Always when he crossed that threshold he had come with his head up and his wistful gaze seeking hers. "Ah, poor boy!" she said, with a gesture of understanding and pity. "I know what it is!"

He followed her into the room where they always sat, and sank into a chair.

"You needn't tell me," she said. "They've made you give up. Your father's won—you're going to do what he wants. You've given up."

Still without looking at her, he inclined his head in affirmation.

She gave a little cry of compassion, and came and sat near him. "Bibbs," she said, "I can be glad of one thing, though it's selfish. I can be glad you came straight to me. It's more to me than even if you'd come because you were happy." She did not speak again for a little while; then she said: "Bibbs—dear—could you tell me about it? Do you want to?"

Still he did not look up, but in a voice, shaken and husky, he asked her a question so grotesque that at first she thought she had misunderstood his words.

"Mary," he said, "could you marry me?"

"What did you say, Bibbs?" she asked, quietly.

His tone and attitude did not change. "Will you marry me?"

Both her hands leaped to her cheeks—she grew red and then white. She rose slowly and moved backward from him, staring at him, at first incredulously, then with an intense perplexity more and more luminous in her wide eyes; it was like a spoken question. The room filled with strangeness in the long silence—the two were so strange to each other. At last she said:

"What made you say that?"

He did not answer.

"Bibbs, look at me!" Her voice was loud and clear. "What made you say that? Look at me!"

He could not look at her, and he could not speak.

"What was it that made you?" she said. "I want you to tell me."

She went closer to him, her eyes ever brighter and wider with that intensity of wonder. "You've given up—to your father," she said, slowly, "and then you come to ask me—" She broke off. "Bibbs, do you want me to marry you?"

"Yes," he said, just audibly.

"No!" she cried. "You do not. Then what made you ask me? What is it that's happened?"

"Nothing."

"Wait," she said. "Let me think. It's something that happened since our walk this morning—yes, since you left me at noon. Something happened that—" She stopped abruptly, with a tremulous murmur of amazement and dawning comprehension. She remembered that Sibyl had gone to the new house.

Bibbs swallowed painfully and contrived to say, "I do—I do want you to—marry me, if—if—you could."

She looked at him, and slowly shook her head. "Bibbs, do you—" Her voice was as unsteady as his—little more than a whisper. "Do you think I'm—in love with you?"

"No," he said.

Somewhere in the still air of the room there was a whispered word; it did not seem to come from Mary's parted lips, but he was aware of it. "Why?"

"I've had nothing but dreams," Bibbs said, desolately, "but they weren't like this. Sibyl said no girl could care about me." He smiled faintly, though still he did not look at Mary. "And when I first came home Edith told me Sibyl was so anxious to marry that she'd have married me. She meant it to express Sibyl's extremity, you see. But I hardly needed either of them to tell me. I hadn't thought of myself as—well, not as particularly captivating!"

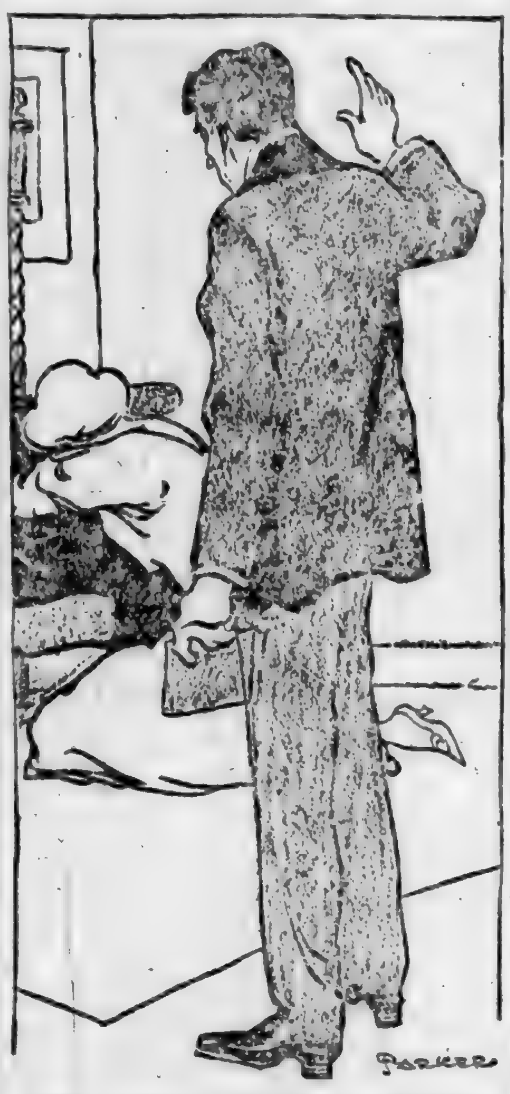
Oddly enough, Mary's pallor changed to an angry flush. "Those two!" she exclaimed, sharply; and then, with thoroughgoing contempt: "Lamborn! That's like them!" She turned away, went to the bare little black mantel, and stood leaning upon it. Presently she asked: "When did Mrs. Roscoe Sheridan say that 'no girl' could care about you?"

"Today."

Mary drew a deep breath. "I think I'm beginning to understand—a little." She bit her lip; there was anger in good truth in her eyes and in her voice. "Answer me once more," she said. "Bibbs, do you know now why I stopped wearing my furs?"

"Yes."

"I thought so! Your sister-in-law told you, didn't she?"



"Mary, Mary!" He Cried Helplessly.

"I— I heard her say—"

"I think I know what happened, now." Mary's breath came fast and her voice shook, but she spoke rapidly. "You 'heard her say' more than that. You 'heard her say' that we were bitterly poor, and on that account I tried first to marry your brother—and then—" But now she faltered, and it was only after a convulsive effort that she was able to go on. "And then—that I tried to marry—you! You 'heard her say' that—and you believe that I don't care for you and that 'no girl' could care for you—but you think I am in such an 'extremity,' as Sibyl was—that you— And so, not wanting me, and believing that I could not want you—except for my 'extremity'—you took your father's offer and then came to ask me—to marry you! What had I shown you of myself that could make you—"

Suddenly she sank down, kneeling, with her face buried in her arms upon the lap of a chair, tears overwhelming her.

"Mary, Mary!" he cried, helplessly. "Oh no—you—you don't understand."

"I do, though!" she sobbed. "I do!"

He came and stood beside her. "You kill me!" he said. "I can't make it plain. From the first of your loveliness to me, I was all self. It was always you that gave and I that took. I was the dependent—I did nothing but lean on you. We always talked of me, not of you. It was all about my idiotic distresses and troubles. I thought of you as a kind of wonderful being that had no mortal or human suffering except by sympathy. You seemed to lean down—out of a rosy cloud—to be kind to me. I never dreamed I could do anything for you! I never dreamed you could need anything to be done for you by anybody. And today I heard that—that you—"

"You heard that I needed to marry—someone—anybody—with money," she sobbed. "And you thought we were so—so desperate—you believed that I had—"

"No!" he said, quickly. "I didn't believe you'd done one kind thing for me—for that. No, no, no! I knew you'd never thought of me except generously—to give. I said I couldn't make it plain!" he cried, despairingly.

"Wait!" She lifted her head and extended her hands to him unconsciously, like a child. "Help me up, Bibbs." Then, when she was once more upon her feet, she wiped her eyes and smiled upon him ruefully and faintly, but reassuringly, as if to tell him, in that way, that she knew he had not meant to hurt her. And that smile of hers, so lamentable but so faithfully friendly, misted his own eyes, for his shamefacedness lowered them no more.

"Let me tell you what you want to tell me," she said. "You can't, because you can't put it into words—they are too humiliating for me and you're too gentle to say them. Tell me, though, isn't it true? You didn't believe that I'd tried to make you fall in love with me—"

"Never! Never for an instant!"

"You didn't believe I'd tried to make you want to marry me—"

"No, no, no!"

"I believe it, Bibbs. You thought that I was fond of you; you knew I cared for you—but you didn't think I might be—in love with you. But you thought that I might marry you without being in love with you because you did believe I had tried to marry your brother, and—"

"Mary, I only knew—for the first time—that you—that you were—"

"Were desperately poor," she said. "You can't even say that! Bibbs, it was true: I did try to make Jim want to marry me. I did!" And she sank down into the chair, weeping bitterly again. Bibbs was agonized.

"Mary," he groaned, "I didn't know you could cry!"

"Listen," she said. "Listen till I get through—I want you to understand. We were poor, and we weren't fitted to be. We never had been, and we didn't know what to do. We'd been almost rich; there was plenty, but my father wanted to take advantage of the growth of the town; he wanted to be richer, but instead—well, just about the time your father finished building next door we found we hadn't anything. People say that, sometimes, meaning that they haven't anything in comparison with other people of their own kind, but we really hadn't anything—we hadn't anything at all Bibbs! And we couldn't do anything. You might wonder why I didn't 'try to be a stenographer'—and I wonder myself why, when a family loses its money, people always say the daughters 'ought to go and be stenographers.' It's curious!—as if a wave of the hand made you into a stenographer. No, I'd been raised to be either married comfortably or a well-to-do old maid, if I chose not to marry. The poverty came on slowly, Bibbs, but at last it was all there—and I didn't know how to be a stenographer. I didn't know how to be anything except a well-to-do old maid or somebody's wife—and I couldn't be a well-to-do old maid. Then, Bibbs, I did what I'd been raised to know how to do. I went out to be fascinating and be married. I did it openly, at least, and with a kind of decent honesty. I told your brother I had meant to fascinate him and that I was not in love with him, but I let him think that perhaps I meant to marry him. I think I did mean to marry him. I had never cared for anybody, and I thought it might be there really wasn't anything more than a kind of excited fondness. I can't be sure, but I think that though I did mean to marry him I never should have done it, because that sort of a marriage is—it's sacrilege—something would have stopped me. Something did stop me; it was your sister-in-law, Sibyl. She meant no harm—but she was horrible, and she put what I was doing into such horrible words—and they were the truth—oh! I saw myself! She was proposing a miserable compact with me—and I couldn't breathe the air of the same room with her, though I'd so cheapened myself she had a right to assume that I would. But I couldn't! I left her, and I wrote to your brother—just a quick scrawl. I told him just what I'd done; I asked his pardon, and I said I would not marry him. I posted the letter, but he never got it. That was the afternoon he was killed. That's all, Bibbs. Now you know what I did—and you know—me!" She pressed her clenched hands tightly against her eyes, leaning far forward, her head bowed before him.

Bibbs had forgotten himself long ago; his heart broke for her. "Couldn't you— Isn't there— Won't you—" he stammered. "Mary, I'm going with father. Isn't there some way you could use the money without—without—"

She gave a choked little laugh.

"You gave me something to live for," he said. "You kept me alive, I think—and I've hurt you like this!"

"Not you—oh no!"

"You could forgive me, Mary?"

"Oh, a thousand times!" Her right hand went out in a faltering gesture, and just touched his own for an instant. "But there's nothing to forgive."

"And you can't—you can't—"

"Can't what, Bibbs?"

"You couldn't—"

"Marry you?" she said for him.

"Yes."

"No, no, no!" She sprang up, facing him, and, without knowing what she did, she set her hands upon his breast, pushing him back from her a little. "I can't, I can't! Don't you see?"

"Mary—"

"No, no! And you must go now, Bibbs; I can't bear any more—please—"

"Mary—"

"Never, never, never!" she cried, in a passion of tears. "You mustn't come any more. I can't see you, dear! Never, never, never!"

Somehow, in helpless, stumbling obedience to her beseeching gesture, he got himself to the door and out of the house.

CHAPTER XXX.

Sibyl and Roscoe were upon the point of leaving when Bibbs returned to the new house. He went straight to Sibyl and spoke to her quietly, but so that the others might hear.

"When you said that if I'd stop to think, I'd realize that no one would be apt to care enough about me to marry me, you were right," he said. "I thought perhaps you weren't, and so I asked Miss Vertrees to marry me. It proved what you said of me, and disproved what you said of her. She refused."

And, having thus spoken, he quitted the room as straightforwardly as he had entered it.

"He's so queer!" Mrs. Sheridan gasped. "Who on earth would thought of his doin' that?"

"I told you," said her husband, grimly.

"You didn't tell us he'd go over there and—"

"I told you she wouldn't have him. I told you she wouldn't have Jim, didn't I?"

Sibyl was altogether taken aback. "Do you suppose it's true? Do you suppose she wouldn't?"

"He didn't look exactly like a young man that had just got things fixed up fine with his girl," said Sheridan. "Not to me, he didn't!"

"But why would—"

"I told you," he interrupted, angrily, "she ain't that kind of a girl! If you got to have proof, well, I'll tell you and get it over with, though I'd pretty near just as soon not have to talk a whole lot about my dead boy's private affairs. She wrote to Jim she couldn't take him, and it was a good, straight letter, too. It came to Jim's office; he never saw it. She wrote it the afternoon he was hurt."

"I remember I saw her put a letter in the mail box that afternoon," said Roscoe. "Don't you remember, Sibyl? I told you about it—I was waiting for you while you were in there so long talking to her mother. It was just before we saw that something was wrong over here, and Edith came and called me."

Sibyl shook her head, but she remembered. And she was not cast down, for, although some remnants of perplexity were left in her eyes, they were dimmed by an increasing glow of triumph; and she departed—after some further fragmentary discourse—visibly elated. After all, the guilty had not been exalted; and she perceived vaguely, but none the less surely, that her injury had been copiously avenged. She bestowed a contented glance upon the old house with the cupola, as she and Roscoe crossed the street.

When they had gone, Mrs. Sheridan indulged in reverie, but after a while she said, uneasily, "Papa, you think it would be any use to tell Bibbs about that letter?"

"I don't know," he answered, walking moodily to the window. "I been thinkin' about it." He came to a decision: "I reckon I will." And he went up to Bibbs' room.

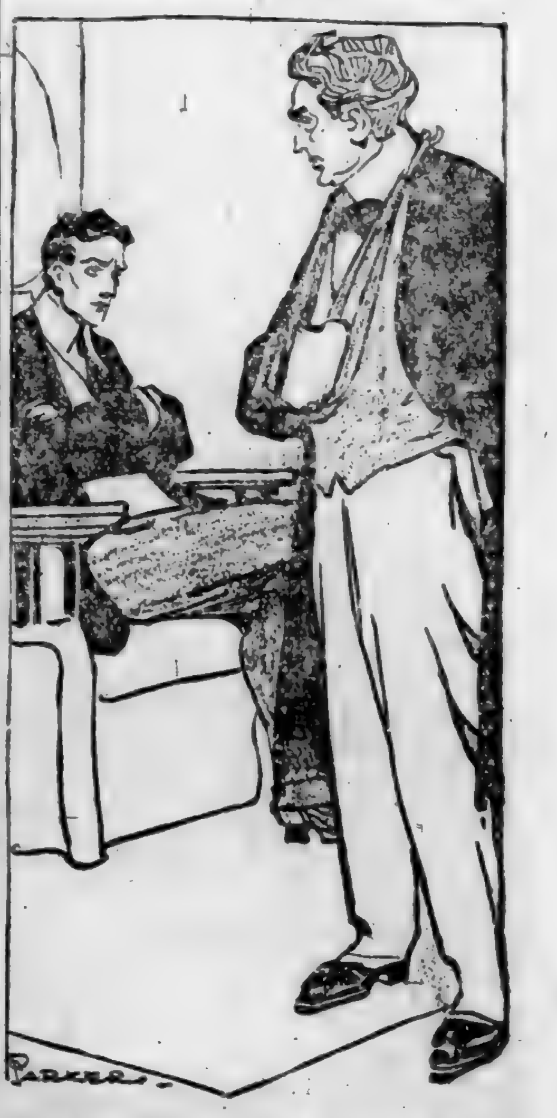
"Well, you goin' back on what you said?" he inquired, brusquely, as he opened the door. "You goin' to take it back and lay down on me again?"

"No," said Bibbs.

"Well, perhaps I didn't have any call to accuse you of that. I don't know as you ever did go back on anything you said, exactly, though the Lord knows you've laid down on me enough. You certainly have!" Sheridan was baffled. This was not what he wished to say, but his words were unmanageable; he found himself unable to control them, and his querulous abuse went on in spite of him. "I can't say I expect much of you—not from the way you always been, up to now—unless you turn over a new leaf, and I don't see any encouragement to think you're goin' to do that! If you go down there and show a spark o' real git-up, I reckon the whole office 'll fall in a faint. But if you're ever goin' to show any, you better begin right at the beginning and begin to show it tomorrow."

"Yes—I'll try."

"You better, if it's in you!" Sheridan was sheerly nonplused. He had always been able to say whatever he wished to say, but his tongue seemed bewitched. He had come to tell Bibbs about Mary's letter, and to his own angry astonishment he found it impossible to do anything except to scold like a drudge-driver. "You better come down there with your mind made up to hustle harder than the hardest workin' man that's under you, or you'll not get on very good with me. I tell you! The way to get ahead—and you better set it down in your books—the way to get ahead is to do ten times the work of the hardest worker that works for you. But you don't know what work is, yet. All you've ever done was just stand around and feed a machine a child could handle, and then come home and take a bath and go callin'. I tell you you're up against a mighty different proposition now, and if you're worth your salt—and you never showed any signs of it yet—not any signs that stuck out enough to bang somebody on the head and make 'em sit up and take notice—well, I want to say, right here and now—and you better listen, because I want to say just what I do say. I say—"



"You Don't Know What Work Is, Yet."

He meandered to a full stop. His mouth hung open, and his mind was a hopeless blank.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SEPTEMBER

Ask for and Get
SKINNER'S
THE HIGHEST QUALITY
MACARONI
36 Page Recipe Book Free
SKINNER MFG. CO., OMAHA, U.S.A.
LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA.

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

"URIC ACID NEVER CAUSED RHEUMATISM"

I WANT to prove it to your satisfaction. If you have Rheumatism or Neuritis, acute or chronic—no matter what your condition—write to-day for my FREE BOOK on "RHEUMATISM—Its Cause and Cure." Thousands call it "The most wonderful book ever written." Don't send a stamp—it's ABSOLUTELY FREE.
JESSE A. CASE
Dept. C. W. Brockton, Mass.

1917 WORLD BEATER just out, guaranteed article sells on sight in every household. Experience unnecessary; big profits. NATIONAL SALES CO., Station H. Cincinnati, O.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. Highest references. Best results.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

SIKH BOY WHO WON FAME

Queen Victoria Gave Silver Cup to Ram Singh, an Indian Artist.

The story of Sirdar Bahadur Ram Singh, whose death occurred recently, is that of a Sikh boy, born in humble circumstances, who rose to honor and distinction by his own merit and endeavor and who remained, in spite of that distinction, unspoiled, a kindhearted, modest, genuine man to the end, "L. J." writes in the Indiaman.

Ram Singh, as a lad, attracted the attention of Lockwood Kipling, father of Rudyard Kipling, and under the auspices of the famous Anglo-Indian artist the young son of a Punjabi cultivator became almost equally widely known as a designer. Later he succeeded to Mr. Kipling's post as principal of the Mayo School of Art at Lahore.

In 1891 Ram Singh was ordered to proceed to England to design and supervise the decorations of the Durbar hall at Osborne house. The new room was to be in Indian style, and the work was executed with remarkable beauty and effect. The queen took great personal interest in the work during its progress, and much admired it on completion. Ram Singh might have obtained many commissions in England after that, but he was a singularly unambitious, modest man. He loved his work, but in the strange surroundings he was often homesick, and in 1892 he returned to the Punjab with the treasured possession of a silver cup given to him by Queen Victoria and a letter in her majesty's own handwriting.

Ancient Blue Law Invoked.

For the first time on record in Oregon, so far as is known, the ancient Sunday-closing law, which recently was held valid by the state supreme court, was invoked to prevent the holding of a dancing party. District Attorney Liljequist notified persons who had arranged to hold a dance at Marshfield on a Sunday night that he had received complaints and would be constrained to prosecute those responsible if the dance were held. The proposed dance was abandoned.

When a woman breaks a man's heart he hurriedly patches it up again for some other female smasher.

If Coffee don't agree use POSTUM
"There's a Reason"
Postum Cereal Co., Ltd.
Battle Creek, Mich.

Driving Coat of Bolivia Cloth

There is an interesting distribution of new names each season given to our tried friends in the realm of apparel, and to colors and shades of colors with which we are familiar. Which goes to show that new names add new interest to the most necessary of our belongings. An instance is to be seen in the comfortable utility coat pictured, which is now called a "driving" coat. And it is a good coat for driving; as good as it is for walking, which is very good indeed.

This model is made of Bolivia cloth in a strong, deep blue, and the manner in which it is cut is worth studying. There is a yoke at the front which extends over the shoulder but not across the back. This allows the back to fall in straight lines from the neck to the hem. It is shaped into a gradual flare and its effect is to narrow the figure across the shoulders.

The yoke extends to the bust line at the front, and the lower part of the coat is fulled on to it. The long lines of the garment are unbroken here as in the back. Big pockets are inserted, slantwise, at each side, and the collar is of the high rolled-over kind that adds to the appearance of length in the figure. Cuffs are straight, wide bands having one end finished with a tab. The tab overlaps the other end of the band and is stitched down and finished with two metal buttons. Shoulders are long, sleeves roomy and plain.

This is an excellent model for fur-fabrics and for all the heavy weaves of cloth that are classed as coatings. Bolivia cloth is made in many beautiful, dark colors, and nothing superior to it is to be found for the driving coat.

Skin Whitener.

Apply a lotion made by mixing equal parts of rose water and lemon juice.

Typical Style in Little Girl's Coat

For fine coats panne velvet in light colors has led the procession in styles for little misses. For the girl from three to five or six years the gayer colors are used—several shades of light blue, green, rose and gray. Besides these colors the shades fashionable for grownups make up many of the coats, in castor, taupe, very dark brown, dark blue, and red. There is little variation in the models so far as style is concerned.

But for coats that are to serve for everyday wear heavy cloths are used. Bolivia cloth and certain of the fur-fabrics, with cheviots and some new weaves, are among them. They are in the darker standard colors—dark gray, brown, blue, and castor always find the greatest number of admirers.

A dark gray coat with small inlays of black velvet among the details of its finishing is a typical style for the little girl. It is a good model to follow when fur-fabrics are used, for such heavy fabrics require plain designs. The coat hangs straight from the shoulders, widening from the underarm to the bottom of the skirt. It is slightly double-breasted and fastens with dark gray metal buttons.

The inlay of black velvet at the collar and cuffs and in a narrow panel at the front of the belt gives this little garment the necessary spice of contrast and brightens it considerably. Small metal buttons, like the larger ones that fasten the coat, find the black velvet the best of backgrounds. They lend a little of brilliance also.

Machine stitching forms the finish for the inset pockets at each side and for the belt and cuffs. It gives the effect of a heavy cord in the goods on all edges of the coat.

Coats of these heavy materials have such good lasting qualities that they may be relied upon for two seasons' wear. They are bought amply large, whether with this idea in mind or not.

Julia Bottomley

Nightgown Pockets.

To be up to the minute as far as lingerie is concerned one must have a little pocket on the nightgown. This may be made of rows of fine lace or just a single motif of real lace. One charming nightdress has for its pocket a heart-shaped medallion of Venetian lace with the softest of French pink ribbon drawn through it. To make this idea complete there should be tiny handkerchiefs edged with narrow lace matching the robe's trimming to be tucked in the dainty pockets.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 24

REVIEW.

READING LESSON—II Cor. 4:1-5:4.

GOLDEN TEXT—We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal.—II Cor. 4:18.

A map is essential to an understanding of Paul's labors and adventures—especially a present-day map, with its modern names of the places which he visited. It should be used in teaching this lesson, and New Testament history generally.

It will cause the lessons to relate themselves more closely to the world as we now know it. During the past quarter they have extended over a period of about seven years, from approximately A. D. 50 to 57, and are all centered about the life and teaching of Paul. It is difficult to attempt a logical review. A number of lessons have been introduced from the letters of Paul, which are not chronological in the development of the church. It might be well, perhaps, to consider first the leading events in the life of Paul, and second the prominent characteristics of Paul's life as we have had them presented to us, and also to consider six of the cities in which Paul founded churches in Europe, studying their modern names and conditions and looking into the difficulties and dangers which he encountered. In Lesson One we have the record of Paul's untiring activity, and his persistent use of the Scriptures. Every one of his sermons was confirmed by the Word of God. Lesson Two presents his interest in those who were converted in his ministry; also a suggestion as to his unceasing prayerfulness on their behalf. Lesson Three presents his tact and wisdom in preaching the Risen Christ, and his emphasis upon the need of repentance. Lesson Four gives a suggestion of his untiring activity in the midst of great discouragement and in the fact of bitter opposition. Lesson Five reveals his persistent determination to know and to preach nothing save Jesus Christ and him crucified. Lesson Six is Paul's panegyric on love as the supreme gift. Lesson Seven is an exposition of the duty and blessedness of cheerful giving. In it is given a new beatitude of Jesus, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," which is nowhere else recorded. Lesson Eight, another suggestion as to his courage. Lesson Nine emphasizes humility, compassionate love and a fearless declaration of the whole counsel of God. Lesson Ten presents his forgetfulness of himself and his eagerness to preach Christ even when threatened by an unrestrained mob. Lesson Twelve again presents his forgetfulness of himself, and his eager seizing of every possible opportunity to preach the Lord Jesus.

Turning to the cities that Paul visited, we first encounter Philippi (now in ruins). This is the first city in Europe where there was a Christian church, and it was one which Paul especially loved. Though he was driven from it by a mob, and escaped by means of an angel, yet his letter to that church is a revelation of his feeling toward his first European congregation. Thessalonica, the modern Saloniki in Macedonia, formerly belonged to the Turkish empire in Europe. Here Paul founded a church, consisting of Jews and Greeks. Paul is accused of turning the world upside down, and teaching Jesus to be the Christian's king. For this he was accused of treason against Rome. Two epistles were written to the church in which he does not record any faultfinding. This church has been called the "Church Beautiful." Athens was then, as now, the chief city of Greece, and one of the three most renowned cities in the history of the world. Paul's famous address on Mars hill was treated with great indifference. His stay was short, and never afterwards do we find him showing forth his learning, but ever after he expresses his determination to know nothing save "Jesus Christ and Him crucified." (I. Cor. 2:1, 2).) Corinth was a great commercial city. At present the original site is in ruins, but the new Corinth has been built three miles away, and is today a city of approximately 15,000 population. Paul spent a year and a half here, preaching and teaching, and supplemented this with a period of three months of service. It was a worldly and wicked city, and yet Paul here founded his largest church, converted from heathenism.

During this time we have the story of the burning of the books of magic, of the silver shrine of Diana, and of the Ephesian riot which compelled Paul to leave the city.

Paul afterwards revisited the churches he had founded in Europe and about 62 A. D. wrote a letter to the Ephesian churches, some six years after he left them, and while he was a prisoner in Rome.

The journey to Jerusalem, starting from Philippi (now in ruins) where Luke joined Paul with the Gentile church's collection for the poor, is the concluding portion of our lesson.

Depends.

The Cynic—Women never get a good grasp of anything.

The Husband—Well, that may be if you get your hair cut short enough.

FIERY RED PIMPLES

Soothed and Healed by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

Smear the affected skin with Cuticura Ointment on end of finger. Let it remain five to ten minutes. Then wash off with plenty of Cuticura Soap and hot water. Dry without irritation. Nothing like Cuticura for all skin troubles from infancy to age.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Canada has 35,582 miles of railway.

Dangerous Place.

"That's a peculiar looking bruise you have on the back of your neck," observed the doctor.

"Yes," said his patient. "I'm subject to those. You see, I'm a clarinet player in an orchestra."

"I don't see how that can produce bruises on the back of your neck."

"It doesn't produce them exactly, but it places me in a position where I am very liable to get them."

"How is that?"

"I sit directly in front of the man who plays the slide trombone."

Wash day is smile day if you use Red Cross Ball Blue, American made, therefore the best made. Adv.

Unfailing.

"When smoke goes straight up in the air, what is it a sign of?"

"That something is burning."

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

W. L. DOUGLAS
"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"
$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN
Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

W. L. DOUGLAS $4.00 SHOE
BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES
Boys' Shoes Best in the World $3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

TO SEEK MISSING EXPLORERS

Russians Who Went to Arctic in 1912 May Yet Be Living.

Apparently hope has not been abandoned entirely of rescuing the members, or some of them, of the Russian polar expeditions which sailed in 1912 in the steam schooner Saint Anna, under command of Lieutenant Brusiloff of the Russian navy, and the motor vessel Hercules, which was in charge of the geologist, M. Rousanoff. Traces may be discovered in the northern Arctic, in the vicinity of Greenland, and of the North American archipelago.

Through the consul general for Russia appeals are made to all commercial enterprises, navigators, and scientific expeditions cruising in the polar seas and engaged in research work in these regions, and also to the inhabitants along the coastline, to devote efforts to the discovery of traces of the missing explorers.

Red Cross Ball Blue, made in America, therefore the best, delights the housewife. All good grocers. Adv.

An Expert.

"There goes Stivers, the famous beauty specialist."

"One of those chaps who undertake to remodel your face if the style of architecture doesn't suit you?"

"Oh, no. Nothing like that. He selects the chorus girls for a producer of musical comedies."

It is said that a lion will not attack a trainer who is perfumed with lavender.

Make a companion of vice and you will become its slave.

Bound to Be Heard.

Mr. Flatbush—Did you ever hear a child cry as loud as that one next door?

Mrs. Flatbush—No; but you know the reason, I suppose?

"No, I don't."

"Why, the father and mother are deaf."

OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR WEAK KIDNEYS

A medicinal preparation like Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, that has real curative value almost sells itself. Like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited to those who are in need of it.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a physician's prescription. It has been tested for years and has brought results to countless numbers who have suffered.

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Do not suffer. Get a bottle of Swamp-Root from any druggist now. Start treatment today.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

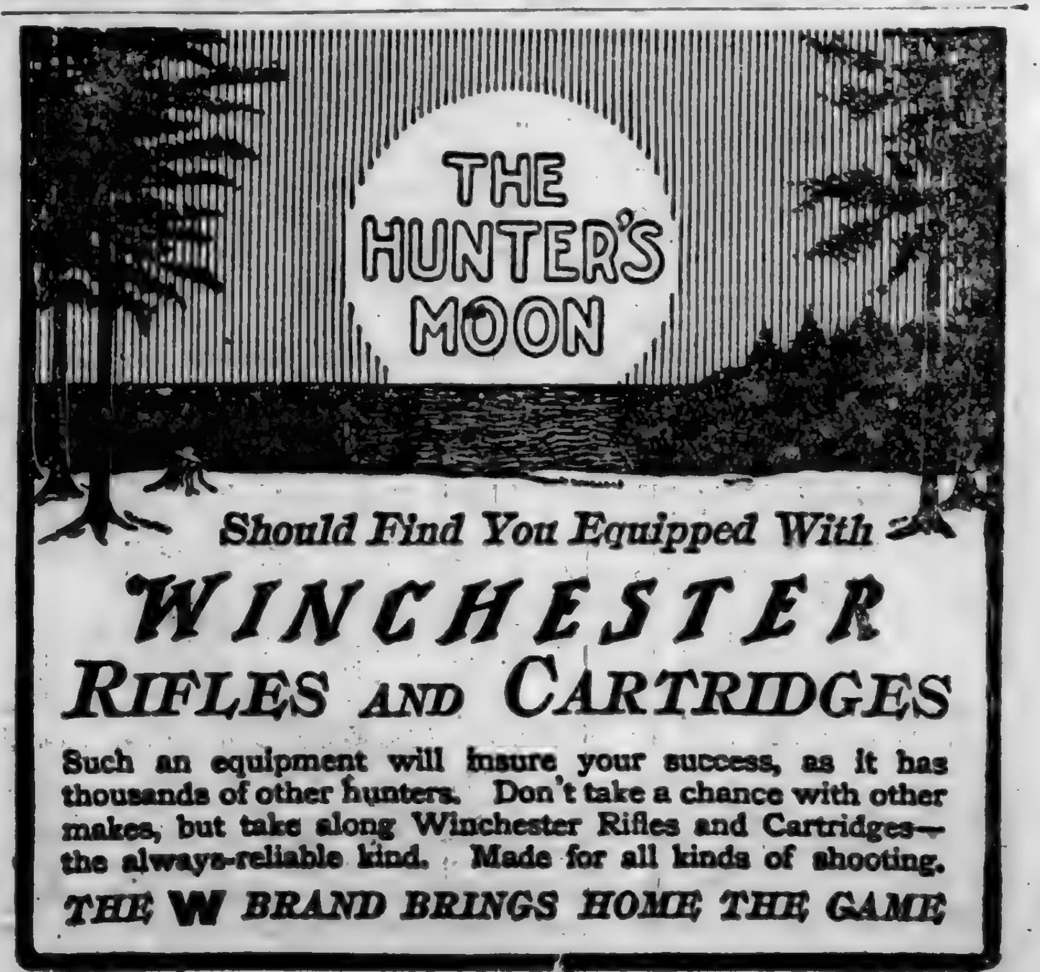
Time's Revenge.

"The authorities wouldn't let me wear my new bathing costume," said the queen of musical comedy. "They said it was too risky."

"And you had to throw it away?"

"Oh, no. I'll wear it in the show next season. Then they'll pay money to come and see it."

Mexico has 15,000 miles of railway.



THE HUNTER'S MOON
Should Find You Equipped With WINCHESTER
RIFLES AND CARTRIDGES
Such an equipment will insure your success, as it has thousands of other hunters. Don't take a chance with other makes, but take along Winchester Rifles and Cartridges—the always-reliable kind. Made for all kinds of shooting.
THE W BRAND BRINGS HOME THE GAME

SEPTEMBER

0302

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Iora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

The Gossips Say-

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

3 cents per pound for Niagara Grapes—Phone The News office.

Mrs. Ada Bassett and son Charley, spent Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brunson.

Charley Bassett and Walter Keesler were at Ft. Wayne Saturday, making the trip by motorcycle.

John Brown and wife, and Allen Feagler and wife, of near Auburn, were Sunday guests of Iona Woodcox and family.

Mrs. H. C. Hathaway visited her brother, Charles Bishop and family at Garrett a couple of days the last of the week.

50 acre farm, located close to St. Joe, good buildings, the finest of soil, price reasonable if taken soon. Inquire of S. S. Widney.

Mrs. S. D. Gee and Mrs. Milo Provines, the latter of near Auburn, spent Friday in Hicksville the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gee.

Rev. L. W. Spade, of Hamilton, will preach for the Christian churches of this place and Coburn's Corners. Mr. Spade is a fine speaker and these congregations are fortunate to secure him. He and his wife will live in St. Joe.

Genuine Hocking Coal $3.60 from car or $3 95 delivered up to Jan. 1st, St. Joe Mills.

Mr. and Mrs Simoen Maurer and son, Mrs. Rummel, Mr. and Mrs. Harve Beam, of Spencerville, Alfred Reasoner and wife of Concord and P. A. Shurs and daughter Miss Pearl, took Sunday dinner with Wm. Lucas and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Al Perkins were also callers in the evening.

Advertising surely pays many folds and the Spring Brook and Bear Creek Orchard managers are fully convinced of this fact by the number of visitors they had last Sunday. Autos by the score passed through St. Joe, and we find that Mr. Widney reports between 900 and 1,000 visitors, and Mr. Reasoner reports 90 automobiles with about 500 people.

GRANDMA NEVER LET HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy, with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and not a medicine. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

John Leighty left Monday noon for his home id Kansas City.

Sherman Wolff and wife spent Sunday with Roy White and family, of near Norris Chapel

John Leighty, of Kansas City, and Frank Bowman spent Friday afternoon on the golf links at Ft. Wayne.

C. J. Hadsell and wife, of Hicksville, Ohio, and John Knight and children were Thursday guests of Dr. Sheffer and wife.

Sherman Wolff and wife attended the funeral of the former's sister, Mrs. Fred Meiser, Tuesday afternoon, not far from Edon, Ohio.

Joseph Hull and wife, Mrs. F. R. Bowman and daughter Eloise, were week-end and F. R. Bowman a Sunday guest of D. J. Baker and wife, of Ft. Wayne.

Eighteen St Joe young people took a short hike in the country Thursday evening and enjoyed a marshmallow and weiner roast. (Some of them hiked faster than others.)

The Concord township schools opened Monday with 182 enrolled in the town school divided up in the different rooms as follows:—High School room, 55; Grammar room, 35; Intermediate 41; Primary 51.

Wm Lucas and wife entertained the following guests Sunday:—S. H. Maurer, wife and son, Harvey Beam and wife, and Mrs. Nancy Rummel, all of Spencerville; Alfred Reasoner and wife, of west of Concord; P. A. Shurts and daughter, Miss Pearl.

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

"Thou Shalt Not Steal".

Have you seen that command written elsewhere than in your Bible? H. M. Widney is using this very novel way of asking folks to stay out of his apples. He reports having lost many bushels last year by tourists, sight-seers and some folks who live right here. We think the plan is a good one.

Automobile Accident

Saturday morning at 2 o'clock, while returning from Wayne in Chas. Jones Studebaker Six, Harry Randall driving, Mr Jones in front seat, Oscar Reed and Mr FitzHarris in the back seat, were quite seriously injured by the car turning turtle, when on the road about 20 minutes, and were nearing Cedarville. No one knows how it occurred or anything about the accident. Randall remained unconscious until nearly noon Saturday, while Jones regained consciousness before they were brought home about 7 o'clock. It was thought he had several ribs broken besides his left arm being badly hurt and scratched about the head and face. His teeth ware broken loose from his plate. The others were jammed considerable and you can still tell that they have been somewhere. The machine will also recover after the expenditure of a few dollars. This is the first accident that came near home.

People of United States Know Little of Leading Writers of Latin America

The names of few Spanish-American writers are known to the English-speaking American, although South Americans generally are said to be familiar with English and American literature. How many Americans have read of Ruben Dario, the poet, the most prominent figure in Spanish-American letters of today?

He was born in Segovia, Nicaragua, January 18, 1864, and was educated in Leon, the Nicaraguan capital. Early in his life he developed a taste for the writings of Victor Hugo, and translations of some of Hugo's stories were his earliest literary efforts. From Leon he went to Salvador, where he joined the staff of a musical journal. While there the government commissioned him to write the ode for the Bolivar centennial. He next went to Santiago, and his fourth book, "Azul," a collection of tales in prose and verse, published there, attracted general attention, and was the subject of much praise by Spanish critics. He afterward removed to Madrid, and for several years exercised a great influence on the younger poets of Spain.

Dario's poetry is said by critics to combine French excellence of technique with Spanish feeling and beauty. The Nicaraguan poet is one of a number of Latin-American writers whom the North American might read for pleasure and mental stimulation.—Poetry Review.

A Few Smiles

More Trying Still.

"It is painful to hear a man and his wife quarreling in tones audible to all the neighbors."

"True, but it might be even more painful to the feminine part of the neighborhood."

"How so?"

"The quarrel might be heard by them and still not be quite loud enough to enable them to find out what it is about."

Mrs. Charles Lawhead and Mrs. Savilla Chapman, both of Auburn, spent from Friday until Tuesday the guests of Ray Reasoner and wife.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

FOUND: A small dog. Owner can have same by calling on H. M. Widney.

FOR SALE: Young cow, to be fresh in November. W. L. Hallabaugh.

Pony and Outfit for sale. $125.00.
O. E. GINTHER.

For Sale: Sow and ten pigs. Joseph Boger, phone 84-20. Spencerville.

FOR SALE:-Good second hand Cook Stove. Mrs. R. A. SMITH, Phone 79-8.

For Sale: Blue Bell Cream Separator, used 4 months. In best of running order.
H. F. Garton, St. Joe.

FOR SALE:—8 room cottage house, small barn and 6 lots. Located at Orangeville. Price reasonable. J. R. CULBERTSON, Auburn, Ind.

FOR SALE:-Honey. Harvey Kimes, Sr., Spencerville, Ind.

Hard coal stove in fair condition for sale cheap. St. Joe Valley Bank.

LOST:—A velvet purse trimmed with beads, containing a small purse with a five dollar bill. Supposed to be lost between my home and Fairview church.
Mrs. J. W. Sharer.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Howard Gee, wife and baby Lucile, of Hicksville, were over Sunday guests of S. D Gee and wife.

Guy Kilpatrick and wife, of Ft. Wayne; and Mr. Dill, of Pierceton, came Wednesday morning to visit C. R. Price and wife.

Mrs. Anna Abel returned home Sunday after a two weeks visit with her grandson, Chas. Benjamin and family, at Grabill.

J. C. F. Abel and wife had as Sunday guests Wayne Sharp and wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Allen, and Mrs. Charles Baldoff, all of Edgerton, Ohio.

John Gill and wife had as Sunday guests:-Chas. Woodcox and family, of Woodburn; Martin White, wife and daughter Mamie, Henry Gall, wife and daughters Beulah and Alberta, and son Cecil, Mrs Nancy Hammond and sons, Otis and Leslie, all of Hamilton.

Emanuel Ulm and wife entertained Mike Castello, wife and 2 children, and John Ulm, wife and son Fred, at dinner Sunday. In the afternoon Mr Ulm's and their guests visited Bert Jackson and family.

Dell Coburn and wife gave an infare dinner Sunday in honor of their son and his bride, Lloyd Coburn and wife, who were married Sept. 9th., at the home of the bride's parents, Jesse Burlingame and wife, at Hicksville. Those entertained at dinner besides Mr. Coburn and wife were Mr. Burlingame and wife, Miss Lillian Watkins, of Illinois; and Paul Perry, the latter two, being the bridesmaid and best man at the wedding. In the afternoon, Wilmot Coburn and wife came and brought a beautiful oak rocker and table gifts from the neighbors and members of the Coburntown Sunday School tokens of their appreciation of the groom who was brought up among them. The Imperial Quartet of which the groom was a member also gave them a beautiful leather upholstered rocker on their wedding day. The young couple are settled in their new home in Garrett where the groom is clerking in the B. & O., yards.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washings the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

AT WARNERS

the styles this year are more beautiful than ever and those we have for you are the choicest from each selection offered to us.

This is a special personal invitation to you to inspect our display of Fall Millinery

DRESS HATS

in fine quality of Velvet in all the new Blocks including the famous Gage line.

Priced from $4.95 to $7.00.
Beautiful feathers in all colors

Lids For Kids

A special line for Children. Priced from 98 cts. to $2.50

'Warners Millinery'

Summer Fares

East	West
The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—	The Wabash and its connections now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

East — Round Trip

$15.70	to Toronto
$13.75	to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70	to New York
$30.50	to Boston

West — Round Trip

Colorado	$36.60
California	$78.75
Yellowstone	$51 60
Salt Lake City	$51.60
Portland, Seattle	$79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shorey, Division Passenger Agent. Fort Wayne, Ind. J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

St. Joe Locals

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Mack Leighty is making improvements on his Hicksville, O, property by putting in cement walks.

Jesse Copp and wife and Henry Snyder and family of New Haven were Sunday guests of F. M. Monroe and wife.

A insanity inquest was held on Monday by the 3 physicians of St. Joe, before Squire Widney, on the person of Esther Hallabaugh. She will be taken away as soon as admission is granted at Richmond.

Bertrain Thompson of Kendallville spent Tuesday and Wednesday with M. E. Leighty and family. He arrived home from Mexico where he has been for the the past 3 months superintending one of the 23 bakeries for Uncle Sam. His wife and baby, who have spent the summer with the Leighty family, returned home with him.

Public Sale.

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located 1 mile north of Newville on the farm known as the Anthony Stepelton farm, or 2 miles east and 4½ miles south of Butler on the River Road,

Tuesday, Oct. 3

Beginning at 10 a. m., the follows:-

HORSES:-Gray gelding, weight 1,400 pounds; Bay mare, 8-years old, weight 1,100 pounds; Sorrel mare, 3-yrs. old, weight 1,300 lbs; 1 Bay mare, 2-yrs. old, weighing 1,000 pounds.

CATTLE:—3 Head Durham Cows, 2-5-7 yrs. old.

8 HEAD HOGS:—2 Brood sows with pigs by side; Duroc Boar can be registered; 5 Shoats weighing about 125 pounds each.

FARMING MACHINERY:—Wagon, Oliver Riding Plow, Drag, Sulky Corn Plow, Sulky Hay Rake, Plaino Mowing Machine, Deering Corn Planter, Disc, Set of Dump Boards, and Set of Work Harness.

Heating stove, Cook stove, Cupboard, etc.

B. F. WOODRING
J. L. Rhodenbaugh, Auct.
A. D. Brunson, Clerk.

"TIZ" FOR TIRED SORE, ACHING FEET

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet, swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more pain in corns callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired.

Get a 25 cent box at any drug or department store, and get relief

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flush any time.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer.

$1.25 FOUR MONTHLY MAGAZINES $1.25

And Our Paper—All One Year

Today's Magazine
Woman's World
Home Life
Boys' Magazine

Get The Most For Your Money

Send your subscription to our paper at once, and we will give you a year subscription to these splendid magazines for only 25 cents additional. The extra quarter brings you $1.35 worth of standard magazines.

This offer is open to old and new subscribers. If you are already a subscriber to any of these magazines, your subscription will be extended one year from date of expiration.

This offer also includes a FREE dress pattern. When you receive your first copy of Today's, select any dress pattern you desire, send your order to Today's Magazine, giving them the size and number of the pattern and they will send it to you free of charge.

Never before has any newspaper been able to offer magazines of such high character at this price. We are proud of this offer and we urge you to take advantage of it at once.

$1.25 Send Your Order Before You Forget It $1.25
The Magazines Will Stop Promptly When Time Is Up

SEPTEMBER

SYSTEMATIZE

✻ ✻

your household expenses by opening a bank account for your wife. Give her a check book and teach her the use of it. Pay the butcher, the grocer, the baker with a check. Then at the end of the month you'll find out just how much it costs you to run the home. When payment by check is made there never is any doubt as to whether or not a bill is paid. The check is a receipt.

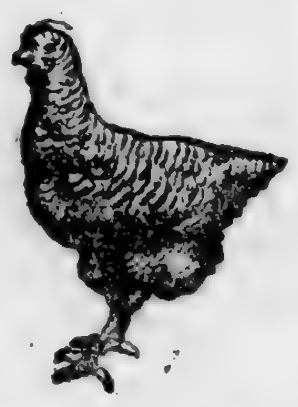
Besides, a checking account will give your wife a business education. The number of ordinarily bright women who know absolutely nothing of banking is surprising. If you are a husband, father, brother, you cannot tell when death may overtake you, and it is well that your wife, daughter and sister know something of banking.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND TODAY TO GIVE YOUR WIFE A CHECK BOOK.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana



POULTRY taken in at Erick's every THURSDAY up to 3:00 o'clock.

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

Raymond Rhodes and wife were at Ft. Wayne, Thursday.

Mrs. Anna Baker was a Thursday guest of Mrs. Bert Fisher and family.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

Mrs. Zimmerman and son drove to the depot on Friday afternoon and the horse became frightened at the work train throwing Mrs. Zimmerman out of the buggy. She received several bruises.

Subscribe for this paper.

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Allen Dorsey and wife of Scipio, spent Saturday with M. Ruppert and family.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Emillus Case purchased thirty acres of the farm belonging to Mortie Widdifield, last week.

Our Children's School Dresses will be here in a few days. Get the girls all fixed up the first thing at Beame & Co. store.

Ailleen Allen entertained the Girls Pansy Club last Friday afternoon. About twelve girls were present. Popcorn and fudge were served.

Milus Rhodes received the sad news of the death of his brother-in-law, Mr. Solomon Simon, of near Huntertown. The funeral was held Sunday.

Mrs. Manassah Ruppert, an aged lady living east of town, had the misfortune to brake her arm on Wednesday evening. She was resting easy at that writitg.

The Sub District Rally of the Epworth Eeague was held at the M. E. Church on Friday evening. The following delegations were present: Auburn, Garrett, Huntertown, Swan, Harlan, Meese Chapel and Wesley Chapel. Two subjects were discussed, "The Model Devotional Meeting" and "Win My Chum Week." The latter will be held beginning November 12. After the program was completed the delegation was invited by the Spencerville League to the greens along the river, where all enjoyed a Marshmallow Toast and Weiner Roast.

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

Mrs. Thornburgh and daughters will move into the Sommer's property soon.

John Bets and wife, of St. Joe, were Sunday afternoon callers of Joel Bets and wife.

The Lutheran church will hold their Harvest Home services on next Sunday evening.

Messrs Wm. Vallieu and Wm. Miller, of Harlan, were Sunday visitors of J. C. Vallieu and family.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

Mrs. Robert Beams is on the sick list. Her mother, Mrs James of Harlan came Friday to care for her.

Mr. Wm. Simpson, of Erie, Pa., visited his aunt, Mrs. Geo. Hollabaugh and children, several days last week.

The Ladies Aid Society of East Springfield are being entertained today at the home of Mrs. John Benninghoff.

Mrs. Jennie Chaney and niece, Nellie Scott, are visiting the former's sister Mrs. George Cope and family of Angola.

Charles Scott and wife and Oscar Ruppert of Antwerp, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Manassah Ruppert and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beams and Raymond Rhodes, wife and daughters, attended the funeral of Mr. Solomon Simon, at Huntertown, Sunday.

Mrs. John Benninghoff spent last week at Ft. Wayne, the guest of her children, Mrs. Arthur Heyman and family and Wm. Benninghoff and wife.

J. S. Hollabaugh and family, Mrs. Henry Goldsmith, John, Geo. and Frank Horn with their wives, were Sunday guests of D. K. Horn and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Walter, of LaPorte, Indiana, came Saturday to spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walter and Mrs. Cora Steward and families.

Miss Stout, the new Domestic Science teacher, of Anderson, came last Thursday evening to look up a boarding place. She will board with Mrs. Samuel Steward.

Saul Goldsmith and wife were called to the home of his parents on Sunday where his father, Joseph Goldsmith had taken very ill. He was resting easier the last report.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Farner, Misses Minnie Fredrick and Hazel Dove, of Butler, spent Sunday at the home of the former's brother, Wm. Farner and wife west of town.

Dr. Koonts and wife and Wm. Koonts, wife and son of Roanoke, and Mr. and Mrs. Myers of Huntington motored to this place on Sunday and spent the day with Baltzer Koonts and wife.

The F. G. M. and N. Club met at the home of Mrs. George Henderson on Friday afternoon. Contests were won by Mrs. Samuel Steward and Mrs. Robert DuVall. Dainty refreshments were served to the members and one guest, Mrs. Maggie Henderson.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Lutheran Church will give a reception on Friday evening to all members, in honor of those who have been away to school during the summer months. It will be in the nature of a Rally for the fall and winter work.

Mrs. Sharon and daughter, of Branch, Mich., came Saturday and visited Mr. and Mrs. John Benninghoff. On Sunday they in company with Wm. Lake and family and Flora Renn motored to the home of Frank Lake and took dinner and spent the day at the old home.

The C. C. Club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Greeley Wearley and daughter, on Friday afternoon. A three course luncheon was served by the hostess. Contests were enjoyed, a prize was won by Miss Thornburgh About twenty-five ladies were present. The guests were Mrs. Thornburgh, Mrs. Merwood Rhodes and Miss Strout.

Mrs. Mary Bishop is visiting her son, Ross, and family near Hopewell, this week.

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

George Kinsey and wife were Sunday afternoon guests of the latter's brother, George Jenkins and wife.

Miss Ruth Grats will teach the Hopewell school this year, Alvin Valentine the Boots school and Vera Silberg a school near Auburn.

Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Mumma, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beams and Mrs. Thornburgh, attended the Concord Township Sunday School Convention at Fairview church Sunday afternoon.

BANK STATEMENT.

F. E. Rhodes, President; L. B. Fisher, Vice-president; C. G. Rectenwalt, Cashier. Report of the condition of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank, a State bank at Spencerville, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Sep. 12th '16,

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$76,026 26
Overdrafts	81
Banking House	3,650 66
Furniture and fixtures	1,611 33
Due from Banks and Trust companies	14 577 74
Cash on Hand	3,384 45
Current Expenses	1,079 41
Taxes Paid	196 23
Interest Paid	506 11
Total Resources	101,033 00
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	300 00
Un ivided Profits	86 17
Exchange, discounts and interest	2,944 25
Demand deposits	27,121 81
Demand certificates	45,580 77
Total Liabilities	101,033 00

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, C. G. Rectenwall, cashier, of the Farmer & Merchant State Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

C. G. RECTENWALL, Cash.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 19th. day of Sep. 1916.

[L. S] L. O. WADE J. P.

A Vicious Pest

RAT CORN

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists; price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20.

BIG PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located on the Rudolph Bair farm, 1½ miles down the St. Joe river from Spencerville near Bair's bridge on the old Leo and Ft. Wayne road and 4 miles up the river from Leo, on

Tuesday, Sept. 26

Beginning at 10 a. m.. the following

CATTLE:—4 cows, all giving milk, one of these is Jersey and one due to be fresh Dec. 1st.; 3 heifers due to be fresh in April; Jersey bull; 3 spring calves.

7 HEAD HORSES:—Bay brood mare, 13 years old, weight 1,250 lbs.; Brown brood mare, 8 years old, weight 1,300 lbs; Black mare, 16 years old, weight 1,200 lbs.; Black mare, 4 years old; Iron gray mare colt, 3 years old; Iron gray Gelding colt, 3 years old, and 1 spring colt.

SHEEP:—15 Shropshire Ewes, 7 Shropshire Ewe Lambs, 7 Shropshire Buck Lambs, 1 Shropshire Buck, all fine ones.

3 Brood Sows with Pigs by Side.

Full-Blood Rhode Island Red Chicks.

FARMING MACHINERY:—Oliver No. 11 Riding Breaking plow, Riding 2-horse corn plow, Disc, 2 spike tooth harrows, 1-horse cultivator, Drill with phosphate attachment, John Deere binder 7 foot cut, John Deere mower 5 foot cut, John Deere hay loader, John Deere side delivery rake, new ground plow, Farm wagon, 2 hay racks, Set dump boards, Platform scales, Set double work harness, Cart swill barrel Cream Separator. All these implements were bought NEW last year.

HAY in Mow. CORN in the Shock.

Lunch Served on the Grounds.

Barton & Metcalf.

J. L. RHODENBAUGH, Auct.
A. D. BRUNSON, Clerk.

Mystery
Dangers
Adventure

All move in rapid succession through the new serial about to be featured in this paper.

The Destroying Angel

By Louis Joseph Vance

It's a strange tale but it's very much alive. You want to be sure to read it, for it's the best story we have had in a long time.

Craig Sheffer, wife and son Basil, of Butler, were Sunday guests of Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

Mother's Responsibility

No part of the body is so seriously neglected as the mouth, nose and throat. If not kept sanitary they become a breeding place for germs. If Glando Gargle be used once or twice daily it will cleanse the mucus membrance and kill the germs. It is excellent for sore mouth in babies; soothes during teething. It relieves a cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever and prevents adenoids. For sale by all Dealers.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

A daughter was born the last of the week to Levi Rowe and wife, northeast of town.

Roy Wade and family were Sunday guests of Geo. Wade and wife, of near Coburntown.

Mrs. Sarah Widney and daughters, Mrs. Florence Hale, of New Iberia, La., and Miss Ida; Dale Widney and wife, and S. L. Widney were Sunday guests of H. M. Widney and wife.

F. P. HART
"The Expert",
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest in America
Strongest in the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Sell Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 12
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROR
Fort Wayne, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

0304

Important News Events of the World Summarized

European War News

Renewal of heavy fighting in Mesopotamia, with the British on the offensive, is reported in a statement issued at Constantinople on September 9. The British are said to have lost 2,000 men in one engagement.

* * *

The greater part of the Bouleaux wood, High wood and the towns of Flers, Martinpuich and Courcelette have been taken by the British, who also have captured all the high ground between Combles and the Pozieres-Bapaume road, according to the official communication issued at London. More than 2,300 prisoners were captured.

* * *

The Russian and Roumanian troops in the Dobrudja region of Roumania are in retirement northward, according to the official communication issued at Bucharest.

* * *

French, British and Serbian forces, operating at different points along the Macedonian front, have broken the Bulgarian defenses. The French captured positons west of the Vardar, while the Serbians forced the enemy to retreat nearly ten miles west of Lake Ostrovo. The British won east of the Vardar.

* * *

Prince Frederick William of Hesse, a nephew of the kaiser, has been killed in action at Cara Orman, on the Balkan front. The Berlin war office officially announced the death. He was born at Frankfort-on-the-Main in 1893.

* * *

That Constantinople has been promised to Russia by the entente allies should the central empires be defeated in the war was the statement made at San Francisco by M. M. Itchas, member of the duma and of the Russian parliamentary deputation sent by the czar to England, France and Italy.

* * *

Halicz, next to Lemberg and Stanislau the most important railroad junction of eastern Galicia and considered the key to Lemberg, has been captured by General Stcherbatchev's Russian army after a terrific 12-day battle, according to reports received at London from Petrograd.

* * *

Berlin announced the occupation by the Bulgarians of the forts of Kavala, on the Aegean coast, has been completed.

* * *

Commanders of the Fourth Greek army corps, with headquarters at Kavala, have placed their soldiers in the hands of the Germans for transportation to Germany, according to an official statement given out in Berlin. They will enjoy German hospitality until Greek soil is free of the allied invaders, says the dispatch.

* * *

The Bulgarian commander in chief in Dobrudja reports at Sofia that the retreating Roumanians perpetrated horrible cructies upon the defenseless population, which was Bulgarian in the invaded portion of the province up to the second Balkan war.

* * *

Continuing the spectacular offensive which marked a gain of two miles and captured the village of Bonchavesnes and advanced 600 yards beyond the Bapaume-Peronne highway, the French extended their gains both north and south of the Somme. A total of more than 2,300 prisoners captured in this action as officially reported by Paris.

* * *

Following artillery preparation lasting 24 hours, the Serbians launched a general attack from the allies' left wing against the Bulgarians. An official statement issued at the Saloniki headquarters said that the action was becoming general and that conditions were favorable to the Serbians.

* * *

Defeated by the entente allies in a 36-hour battle, the Bulgarians are retreating along the Struma on the Macedonian front. Heavy losses were inflicted on the troops of Czar Ferdinand, whose forces are being pursued by the French and British. Athens reports that the French have captured the village of Yenimah.

* * *

Domestic

Jack Miller, an aviator, fell 75 feet to his death at Fredericksburg, Tex.

* * *

War between the farmers and local milk dealers, which threatened Chicago with a milk famine last spring, may break out again as a result of the ultimatum of the Milk Producers' association regarding the price of milk for the next six months.

* * *

The charges made by Mayor John P. Mitchel of New York against a number of Catholic priests arising out of disclosures last summer of telephone wire-tapping by the police, were dismissed by Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum.

* * *

Wrapped in flames, the Pacific coast liner Congress stood two miles off Marshfield, Ore., and, after a thrilling race, landed its 253 passengers and crew of 170. All of those on board were rescued by the Colonel P. S. Michie, a bar dredge.

A 16-inch shell fired in a big gun test at Indian Head, Md., government proving ground wrecked the home of Mrs. Mary Swann while she and several children were in the building.

* * *

Alexander Tyng, widower of sixty-four, reputed millionaire of Peoria, Ill., and Hildah Anderson, thirty-two, eloped and were married at Bloomington, Ill.

* * *

Charles E. Morse, head of the recently organized United States Steamship company, has been sued for $100,000 in the supreme court of New York by Max C. Baum, a real estate dealer, who alleges he performed certain services which aided Morse in obtaining his release from the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., in January, 1912.

* * *

Joseph Pulitzer, publisher of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and the members of his household have been quarantined at their summer home at Bar Harbor, Me. Physicians diagnosed the illness of Mr. Pulitzer's ten-year-old nephew, Ralph Pulitzer, Jr., as infantile paralysis.

* * *

Joseph Mulholland was arrested in New York in connection with the murder there September 8, 1915, of Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, a wealthy widow. Information obtained by detectives who arrested Arthur Waltonen at Ironwood, Mich., aided the police in their search for Mulholland.

* * *

The Tennessee National Guard, encamped at Nashville, was ordered to the Mexican border by the war department at Washington.

* * *

Washington

Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt announced at Washington that the United States battleship Arizona had stood tests satisfactorily and would be put into commission at the New York navy yard on October 15.

* * *

It was reported at Washington that Secretary of Commerce Edwin C. Sweet will resign soon to become a candidate for governor of Michigan. Secretary Redfield has not recommended to the president a successor.

* * *

It has been announced at Washington that both Japan and Russia have given the United States assurances the treaties of 1907 and 1910, in which both pledged themselves to respect the integrity of China and maintain the open-door policy, are not repealed or affected by the new Russo-Japanese treaty.

* * *

The department of agriculture at Washington announced that it would begin immediately a nation-wide investigation into the milk and dairy industry to determine whether improper practices are causing the threatened general advance in prices.

* * *

Brigadier General Liggitt, commander of American military forces in the Philippines, reported to the war department facts that show a clear violation of American neutrality when a British destroyer held up the American steamer Cebu off Carabao island early Monday.

* * *

Politics

Charles W. Fairbanks, Republican nominee for vice president, has abandoned his campaign and gone back to his home in Indianapolis for a rest. Mr. Fairbanks was stricken with acute indigestion at Tulsa, Okla., and his condition is such that his physicians have advised him to temporarily abandon his work.

* * *

Henry Ford, the Detroit automobile manufacturer, has declared that he and "his neighbors" would support President Wilson for re-election, it was announced at Democratic headquarters in New York.

* * *

The transcontinental tour began by Presidential Candidate Charles E. Hughes 38 days ago ended at Plattsburg, N. Y. He departed for New York and Bridgehampton to recover from the strain before starting on a renewal of his campaign in the middle West.

* * *

President Wilson has decided to make a number of pre-election speeches in addition to those already scheduled—September 20 at St. Louis and September 24 at Baltimore. The president reached this decision at New London, Conn.

* * *

Western Democratic headquarters announced at Chicago that Vice President Marshall will get into the campaign at once, speaking in the middle West up to October 14.

* * *

Gov. Edward F. Dunne was renominated by the Illinois Democrats at the primary with a plurality of 80,000. Col. Frank O. Lowden won in a landslide. He captured the Republican nomination for governor by a clear majority of 75,000 over his two opponents, State Senator Morton D. Hull and Col. Frank L. Smith of Dwight.

* * *

Vce President Thomas R. Marshall was notified of his renomination by the committee appointed by the Democratic national convention, at his home in Indianapolis.

* * *

Foreign

Suffrage and prohibition have been adopted by the voters of British Columbia, according to incomplete returns received at Vancouver from the general election. The conservative government, headed by Premier W. J. Bowser, was defeated.

HOSPITAL TRAIN PICKS UP SICK

Suffering Soldiers Taken to the Government Hospital at San Antonio.

ONLY EIGHT HOOSIERS TAKEN

Lieut. Col. John J. Toffey, Jr., Suffering From Para-Typhoid Fever, Is Improving and No Serious Result Is Anticipated.

Mercedes, Tex.—A United States hospital train passed through the Rio Grande valley gathering the sick and transferring them to the hospital at San Antonio. The train was composed of 14 Pullman cars, and was in truth a hospital on wheels, equipped with doctors and nurses. Most of the sick soldiers were taken from Mission, where there are many cases of para-typhoid fever among the troops.

The train stopped at Llano Grande for eight sick soldiers, among them Lieut. Col. John J. Toffey, Jr., of the First Indiana, who is suffering from para-typhoid fever contracted when visiting at Mission. Word from Colonel Toffey was that he is improving, and no serious result is anticipated. Dr. C. B. Buck, health officer of Hidalgo county, says the report of yellow fever or genuine typhoid fever at Mission is without a basis.

"The disease there," said Doctor Buck "is para-typhoid, which bears the same resemblance to genuine fever that varioloid bears to smallpox. It is not a dangerous disease at all. I never heard of a fatal case of it. It really is not as bad as dengue fever, but the terror of name of typhoid is what causes all the excitement. There will be no quarantine established, and in a few days the para-typhoid will have run its course. There is no occasion for the people of the north to become alarmed."

Three Brigades in Review.

General Parker and General Lewis Friday reviewed the three Indian, Minnesota and Nebraska brigades at Llano Grande. It was a most brilliant review, held soon after sunrise. Every infantryman in the three brigades carried a fixed bayonet, and when the sun caught the long ranks of rifle points, it looked like a river of steel floating across the drill fields. Six artillery companies and the machine-gun company, with their new motor cars, were interesting units in the review. Several of the Hidalgo county school teachers witnessed the review. Not since the First regiment left Fort Benjamin Harrison has there been such a snappy drill as that at sunset Thursday. There were 50 reasons for this, and each reason wore a dainty summer dress, and watched the Hoosier soldiers with admiring eyes. In the past no one but soldiers and Broadway concession men had watched the sunset drills of the battalions and regiments at Llano Grande. The arrival of 50 pretty teachers at six o'clock Thursday evening put pep into every soldier. The three Indianapolis companies, A, C and D, were at their best. Not a man missed carrying out an order with precision and snap. The Texas school teachers applauded as the regiment passed them on the way off the field.

"At Ease, Men," Orders Sergeant.

When the top sergeant of Company C was telling the Indianapolis men they were ordered not to cross the river into Mexico when they left camp on pleasure jaunts, the appearance of three dainty educators in the company street turned every head in the company.

"At ease, men," said the sergeant, and gave them all a chance to crane their necks and drink in the wonderful sight, but as far as the order he read, forbidding them to cross the Rio Grande, he might as well have been reading to them the day's stock quotations or explaining the Twenty-third Psalm. The men remember nothing except there were crisp, fresh ruffles and white boots and whiffs of toilet water.

Ever Go to a Bailar.

Well, the big bailar is over. What's a bailar? Why, that's Mexican for dance, and the dance given by the officers of the Indiana infantry in honor of 250 Texas school teachers was a genuine social function. It was held on the infantry drill grounds and the dancing floor, that two months ago was a forest of mesquite trees, was covered with two large tarpaulins used to cover the hay when not in social use. The orchestra was the entire First Indiana band, and the ballroom was lighted by a bright moon, millions of twinkling stars, and here and there a flambeau and a myriad of searchlights. Previously to the dance the school teachers and the wives of officers who are living in Mercedes were taken to Llano Grande in army trucks, and were entertained at dinner at the officers' club and at the messes of the different Indiana units. After dinner General Parker, commander of Brownsville district, and General Lewis, commander of the camp, reviewed the Indiana troops, and when the men were sent to the quarters the dancing began. There was not a dress suit on the floor, and not more than half a dozen white collars.

Col. Leslie R. Naftzger of the First Indiana, from some unknown source, had a white necktie. Army shoes and puttees, instead of dancing pumps, and fatigue uniforms instead of dress suits, made the spectacle one out of the ordinary. There was a crowd of spectators, too. Mexican men, women and children gathered in the shadows and watched the dancing in round-eyed wonder.

The enlisted men gathered in thousands and wished they were participating in the dance. In appreciation of the event, Bill Chaddick and his brother Stokes, Art Summers, J. D. White, Jim Bussy, Bill McElwain and some of the rangers among the spectators took off their six-shooters and carried them inside their shirts, where they would not attract so much attention, and A. Y. Baker, sheriff of Hidalgo county, removed his long-barreled pistols from his boots and placed them up his sleeves.

Nothing was left undone to make the event as cheerful and homelike as possible.

Say Carranza Men Smuggle.

Indiana troops who have met Carranza soldiers do not think much of the Mexicans. Especially is this belief with Col. Aubrey L. Kuhlman, commander of the Third Indiana; Maj. George H. Healy of the Third battalion, and Lieutenant Rodifer of the machine gun company of the Third. Colonel Kuhlman, Major Healy and Lieutenant Rodifer accompanied by Private Benson, official interpreter at headquarters, took a 38-mile ride along the Rio Grande and saw much of Mexico with field glasses.

Near the Donna pump, about five miles from Llano Grande, the Indiana officers found a number of Mexican soldiers in a house across the river. Three of these soldiers and a boy, perhaps fifteen years old, came to the river bank and hailed the Americans. Private Benson talked to them and they said they had no money, and would like to sell the Americans something. Asked what they had to sell, the soldiers replied by taking the bands off their hats and holding them in the air—these hatbands are made from the skins of rattlesnakes and are quite popular among tourists.

Benson said to send the hatbands across. The soldiers hung the bands about the boy's neck and he plunged into the river, swimming against the swift current until he had landed on the American side. He received 50 cents each for the bands, and placing the money in his mouth, he swam back to the Mexican side. After that the Mexican soldiers opened up for business. They had several bottles of mescal, which they offered to the American officers at $2 a bottle. But that was too much like smuggling and the officers refused to buy.

The soldiers were a dirty, ragged lot and were part of the river guards the Carranza government has established at the boundary line to prevent smuggling and bandit raids. And yet they are in the smuggling business themselves, and it is believed that some of them have been in raids on this side of the river.

Lake to Be Drained.

A soldier was seated on an upturned nail keg, his rifle across his knees and his eyes fastened on a pond of water in which the pollywogs were jumping and about which the mosquitoes were swarming. He looked for all the world like the picture of the lone fisherman, but he was not fishing. The soldier was Private Pratt, Company M, First Indiana, of Newcastle.

"This is not as bad as it was," said the soldier. "In fact, it is getting better all the time, and really I am beginning to like it. I wonder if there are any fish in that lake?" But it will not be many days until the lake is gone, for a drain is being built to drain it.

May Spend $1 to Get Lost 35 Cents.

The Hotel DeBum is the delightful name given to one of the tents of field hospital No. 1 of Indianapolis, and the Hotel DeBum was a place of perfect happiness until B. M. Sutherlin dropped 35 cents through a crack in the floor. Sutherlin insisted that the floor be taken up and his money recovered. Sergeant Padgett, in charge of the tent, insisted it would do more than 35 cents worth of damage to government property to try to get the money. Finally, Sutherlin suggested that Padgett drop a dollar alongside the 35 cents and that amount of money would justify them in taking up the floor and doing other things to the Hotel DeBum. Sergeant Padgett has the proposal under consideration.

THE SOLDIER'S DIARY.

Private Leslie Hanawalt of Company C, Third Indiana, has received a furlough because of the sickness of his father at Burnetts Switch.

Company E, First regiment, of Fort Wayne, has a quartet of warblers, who certainly can do some singing. It is made up of Lieutenants Howard and Mills and Corporals Loring and Cranston. When the quartet tears off, "On the Banks of the Wabash, Far Away," the rest of the boys always cheer.

The sight of a major swinging a pick and juggling a shovel on the water trenches made a great hit with the privates, who are not used to seeing the gold-leaf fellows doing that kind of stunt. It was Major Wimer of the Second battery, First regiment, who was not afraid to do a little work on a hurry-up job.

Major Glenn Van Auken, brigade adjutant of the Indiana infantry, left for the North on a 20 days' leave of absence. He will visit his home and may stop at Indianapolis.

STATE NEWS

Vincennes.—The seventy-eighth annual conference of the pastors of Indiana's M. E. churches met here September 13 for five days.

Moores Hill.—Dr. A. F. Hughes of Columbus, O., has assumed his duties as president of Moore's Hill college, succeeding Dr. Harry Andrews King.

Windfall.—Thomas Hannah, sixty, widower, living with the family of his son, Charles, while the family was absent committed suicide with a revolver.

Bedford.—Henry Dorsett was bitten on the left ankle by a large snake when he was in a woods near here and it is feared serious results may follow.

Medaryville.—S. J. Nichols of this city, who is said to be the oldest man in Indiana, celebrated his one hundredth birthday. He is in perfect health.

Rochester.—James Davis, a farmer, killed himself with a shotgun at his home near here. His suicide is attributed to despondency over the death of his wife.

Muncie.—Harve Sheets is under arrest on a charge of selling liquor without a license. The police said he was operating a "blind tiger" in the southern part of town.

Newcastle.—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Black celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home, southwest of Newcastle. More than one hundred guests were present.

Kokomo.—Alexander McMillan was trampled and seriously injured by a horse when he was in a box stall with the animal. McMillan is seven feet tall and weighs 300 pounds.

Lafayette.—William Q. Evans, thirty, despondent because his wife had filed a suit for divorce, committed suicide by taking poison. He drank the poison as his mother entered his room.

Tipton.—The schools opened here Tuesday, the board of health having removed restrictions on the congregating of children, which were imposed because of the prevalence of smallpox.

Petersburg.—W. M. McFadden of Oakland City, discoverer of an oil gusher, was drowned in a huge oil tank while making an examination of it. Guy Frank was nearly overcome by gas while attempting to rescue him.

Marion.—Lewis Thompson, eighty, a former Marion resident, returned here, after an absence of 62 years. Thompson came to Grant county with his parents from Ohio. He is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richardson of South Landis street.

Columbus. — Azalia, Bartholomew county, is to have a public park in a vacant piece of ground the village owns as a bequest from the Joel Newson estate. A flagpole has been raised and on Arbor day trees and shrubbery will be planted.

Kendallville.—The program for the twenty-eighth annual meeting of the Northern Indiana Dental society, to be held in the Y. M. C. A. building in Kokomo, October 12 and 13, has been announced by Dr. O. A. Vankirk of this city, president of the society.

Indianapolis.—Senator Thomas Taggart prepared to put "zip" in the Indiana campaign. He arrived here from his summer home in Massachusetts. He set at rest stories of a split with Senator Kern by saying that in the campaign "my job will be to carry Kern's manuscript." They will campaign together.

Princeton.—E. W. Barber, brakeman on a Southern freight train, found a loose cover on an empty gasoline tank car. He lifted the cover off to readjust it, when the gas fumes from the tank were exploded by his lantern. The explosion shot a flame up 20 feet and burned Barber badly about the head and face. He will recover.

Hammond.—As a result of a celebration over Roumania's entrance into the war and her victories in Transylvania, Searillica Seroch was hit on the head with a hatchet and killed at Indiana Harbor. Several other Roumanians and Bulgarians were injured in a clash between several men of the two nationalities. Seroch's assailant escaped.

Jeffersonville.—Alonzo Brendel was sentenced by Jonas G. Howard, special judge, to serve two to fourteen years in the state prison at Michigan City for manslaughter, following his conviction three months ago for killing John Case at Utica March 3, 1916, after a quarrel about the primary election. Brendel will be taken to prison next Saturday.

Bloomington.—"You're doing wrong by smoking in the judge's chair," said Rev. James Pearson to Special City Judge Roy Buckley as he yanked the cigar out of the judge's mouth. The judge started after Rev. Pearson, and the police separated them. Rev. Pearson, who was before Judge Buckley on a charge of blocking a street while holding a meeting, was sent to jail for 30 days for contempt.

Indianapolis.—The board of health closed school No. 60 in the heart of the city's best residential district following the death of Ola Hughes, three, of infantile paralysis. The child was stricken after playing with several children and died in a few hours. There are five cases in the city.

Milton.—Fire destroyed two barns and damaged two others in the northeast part of town. The fire first was discovered by Mrs. Morton Warren, in their barn, and it communicated to Will Null's barn, and destroyed it. The barns both contained hay and the loss to each will be about $500.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

FAIRY YBAB'S CONCERT.

"Fairy Ybab, who leads the little Orchestra of the Fairies, which gives such beautiful Music, said that she wanted to hear the Robins' new Songs."

"Did she?" asked Nancy.

"Indeed she did," replied Daddy. "And I must tell you how it all happened. She sent messages to the Robins by some of her winged Fairies who also help make the Fairies' Music so wonderful.

He Carried a Stick.

"They went around to the Nests of the Robins near by and at the side of each Nest they put a twig on which were the words, "'Come to the Concert tomorrow morning. Every Robin is wanted! The Fairies will Sing and Play and the Robins are asked to Sing too!'

"Now nobody else but the Robins and the Fairies would have understood those words on the twigs—for it was just a way the Fairies had of pulling off the bark on the twig which made the Robins understand.

"The next morning, bright and early, the Robins were awake. 'It's the day of the Concert,' they said, and they chirped happily while they were pruning their Feathers and making a great effort to look their best.

"Grandpa Robin had on a fine waistcoat of red and his Trousers were of speckled gray. His Coat was of dull brown and under his right Wing he carried a Stick which he called his Cane!

"And all the other Robins looked very handsome too, I can assure you.

"They began to fly over the Tree where the Fairies had said the Concert was going to take place. And what should they hear but a constant pounding on the Tree.

"'Peck, Peck, Peck,' was the sound the Robins heard, and they looked at each other and said,

"'That must be the Drum for the Concert.' And the Drumming sound went on all the time.

"But on the side of the Tree stood Mr. Downy Woodpecker.

"'What are you doing there?' chirped the Robins.

"'I'm looking for Insects that hurt the Tree and that the Fairy Queen doesn't like. Ybab asked me to do this.' And again went the Drum—Drum—Drum!

"'You're looking very handsome this morning,' said Grandpa Robin.

"'Glad you think so!' said the Woodpecker. 'And so are you, sir,' he added.

"'Thank you. Thank you,' said Grandpa Robin and made a little bow with his head.

"And to be sure they both did look extremely well. Mr. Downy Woodpecker was wearing a black and white Suit which was most becoming. And his Collar was of red! It was a truly beautiful one.

"Soon came Ybab, her little Fairy Musicians and the Queen of the Fairies.

"'Good morning all!' they shouted.

"'Good morning,' chirped the Robins; and Mr. Downy Woodpecker said, 'Drum, drum,' which just at that moment meant 'Good morning,' too!

"'The Concert must begin,' said Ybab. 'And Mr. Downy Woodpecker, we'd like to have you beat the Drum for us. That Tree will do splendidly for the Drum.'

Waved Her Silver Wand.

"'Honored, I'm sure,' said Mr. Downy Woodpecker. For all along he had hoped that he would be asked to join the Orchestra.

"Then the Music began. Fairy Ybab waved her Silver Wand while her little Head went from side to side to keep time with the Music. On her head she wore her best Silver Crown, and her hair was very black and very long.

"Mr. Downy Woodpecker kept such good time with his Drum and he certainly did beat the bark of the Tree! When the Fairies had finished playing their new piece, Fairy Ybab called out,

"'Now for the Robins' songs.'

"'We know no new Songs,' chirped the Robins.

"'You haven't forgotten the old ones, have you?' said Fairy Ybab. 'We love those best.'

"That made the Robins so happy, and their lovely clear voices Sang out in the bright morning air, and seemed to say, 'Mr. Woodpecker, Fairies and we, are all just as happy as happy can be!'"

He Minded.

A mother told her small son she would punish him if he ever asked for anything to eat while at a neighbor's house.

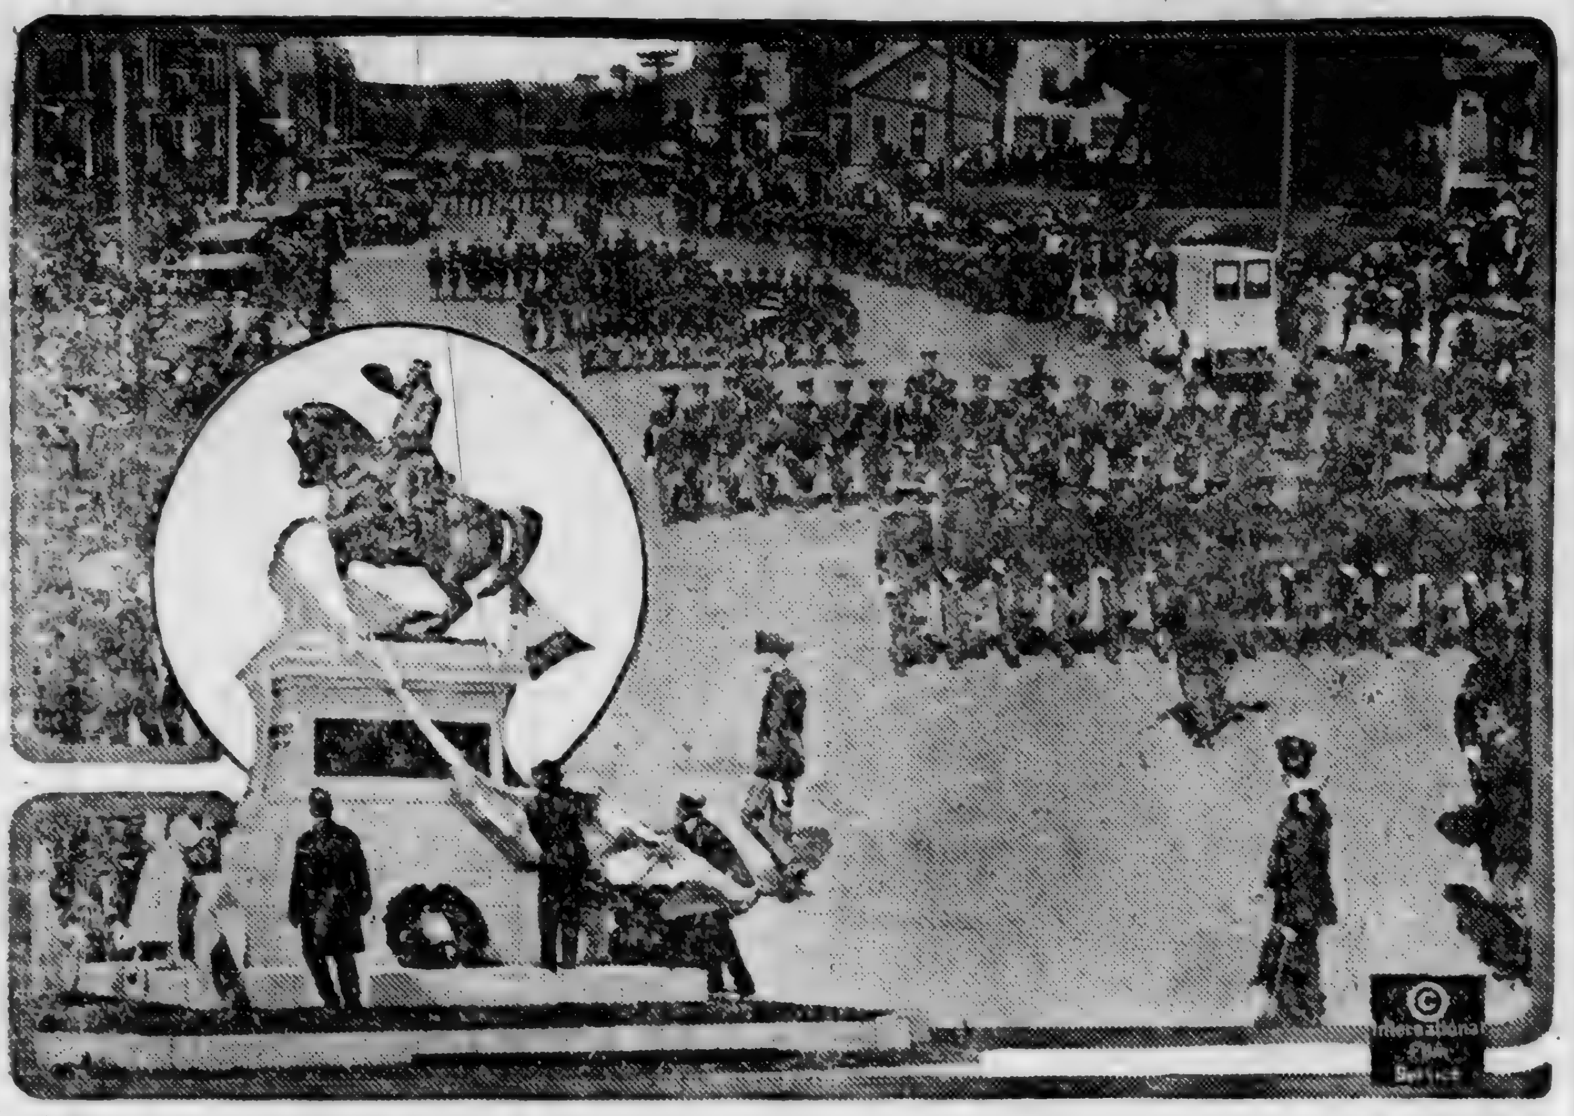
The next time he went out for the afternoon he sat still for a few minutes, then he said:

"Now I must go. Do you know why I must go? Well, I'm hungry, that's why."

SEPTEMBER

0305

LAFAYETTE MONUMENT AT FALL RIVER UNVEILED



View of the parade during the Lafayette celebration at Fall River, Mass., when a statue of the great Frenchman was unveiled; and, inserted, the monument at the moment of unveiling.

AMERICAN AND MEXICAN COMMISSION BEGINS WORK

First photograph showing the American and Mexican members of the joint commission together. They are now holding sessions at New London, Conn. Left to right, standing, are: Mr. Bonsall, Secretary of State Lansing, Eliseo Arredondo, Mexican ambassador designate, and Doctor Rowe. Left to right, seated: Dr. John R. Mott, Judge George Gray, Secretary of the Interior Lane, Luis Cabrera, Ignacio Bonillas and Alberto J. Pani. The men seated are the commissioners.

LOOKS DEADLY, AND IT IS

On this French reconnoitering aeroplane two machine guns joined together are mounted behind the pilot. The skull and crossbones indicate the feeling of the aviators.

Gums and Health.

Two drops of camphor on your toothbrush will give your mouth the freshest, cleanest feeling imaginable, will make your gums rosy and absolutely prevent anything like cold sores or affections of the tongue. The gums, by the way, are barometers of your condition. If they are clear, bright red, you are in good health, while if your blood is thin and wanting in the mysterious red corpuscles that make one healthy, the gums will be pale pink, or if you are in a very bad way, indeed, and much in need of a course of dialyzed iron, they will be almost white.—Leonard Keene Hirshberg.

The Office a Home.

A young fashionable was graduated from Yale in June. His father is setting him up in business. This father asked us if we would not aid in the selecting of the office furnishing for the young man. The father said: "Spend whatever you like. Not because I have money, but because when a man works in a place for so many hours it should be made as comfortable as possible. Many men spend more actual hours in their offices than they do in their homes. Their offices should therefore be as attractive as their homes. That is my theory, and I am going to practice it for my son."

GENERAL SMUTS TAKING AN OBSERVATION

General Smuts, commander of the British forces in East Africa, making observations from the top of an armored car. It has been officially reported that General Smuts has occupied Dar-es-Salaam, the chief town of German East Africa, and a principal seaport.

Sentiment Voiced at Last.

It must be a great comfort to have Josh at home for his summer vacation."

"Yep," replied Farmer Corntossel. "I dunno when I've been more comforted than I was to hear Josh tell one of the summer boarders that us folks set the best table in the township an' that anybody who didn't like it could git out. It's what me an' mother often wanted to say to Josh hisself, but we didn't have the nerve."

A Conservative.

"What sort of view does Dubwaite take of life?"

"The sort that is not incompatible with an easy chair in a club window, something to drink at his elbow and a good cigar in his mouth."

"In other words?"

"While granting that there may be room for improvement on this world, it does not come within the range of his immediate observation."

Old-Time Grain Reappears.

A grain called "guautli" or "huautli" is mentioned in old Mexican chronicles as among the articles of tribute paid by the Mexican pueblos to Montezuma. The identity of the grain has long been a mystery. In recent years wild and cultivated varieties of a grain, apparently the ancient guautli, have been found in Sinaloa and other states of Mexico, where the natives use it for food when maize is scarce. Species that are similar if not quite the same are cultivated for food in Peru and Bolivia as well as in Tibet and the mountainous regions of India.

A Hard Turn.

Redd—In a new automobile signal for following vehicles hands are illuminated to indicate the direction that a car is going to turn as the driver presses buttons on the steering wheel.

Greene—Well, now, about what would the signal look like to indicate the car was about to turn turtle?

Temperance Notes

AS HEALTH OFFICERS SEE IT.

Dr. Haven Emerson, health commissioner of New York city:

"It is, as I conceive it, the duty of departments of health to teach, teach, teach, persuade, demonstrate, exhibit, exhort, prove that alcohol as a beverage or in patent medicines is a menace to personal and community health, is a common source of sickness and death, is blocking the path of preventive medicine and is a menace to the physical and social development of the nation."

Health Commisisoner Ford of Cleveland, O.:

"Teaching the effects of alcohol is a public health function. There is nothing more important than this question."

Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary Indiana state board of health:

"We know that alcoholic liquor is a vile and evil thing. It is a horrible thing from an economic and social point of view; It is always and everywhere injurious from the physical standpoint. Every drop is a poison. Its use is always injurious, and if I had the power I would close every public saloon as a public dope shop."

Dr. John Dill Robertson, health commissioner of Chicago:

"In the city of Chicago, where the death rate is approximately 100 a day, it is safe to say that at least 25 per cent of these deaths are caused directly or indirectly by alcohol. Alcohol produces acute inflammation of the stomach, hemorrhage of the pancreas, heart disease, cancer of the stomach, Bright's disease, fatty liver, hardened liver, inflammation of the nerves, epilepsy, hardening of the arteries and a multitude of other afflictions of the body. Those are known medical facts. It is not only a causative factor in the diseases and afflictions mentioned, but it invades the mental man and produces insanity."

The New Jersey Health Officers' association passed a resolution recommending that campaigns of publicity be inaugurated by the state and local departments of health for the purpose of informing the public of the dangers attending the use of alcoholic beverages.

The Vermont state board of health is planning an anti-alcohol crusade similar to that of New York city.

Other city and state health boards are also incorporating anti-alcohol work as a regular part of health department programs.

DOES IT?

"Beer promotes efficiency," says the advertisement of a certain brewing company. Someone replies as follows:

"If you were about to have a dangerous surgical operation performed, would you prefer to have the surgeon take a few glasses of beer just before the operation, to 'promote efficiency?'

"If you were about to take a trip on a railroad, would you prefer to have the engineer and the telegraph operators and the switchmen along the line take a few beers while you were on your way, to 'promote efficiency?'

"If you are business man, do you prefer to have your employees 'rush the can' occasionally, to 'promote efficiency.'

"Remember, you can get just as drunk on beer as you can on whisky."

BOTTLES SCARCE.

A chemist in Chicago, who is experimenting with a formula for making catchup and other preparations in tablet form, explained to a friend that this change was all "because of prohibition." "Second-hand bottles are used to a great extent by manufacturers of many of these products," said the chemist, "and the spread of prohibition is making it almost impossible to secure bottles for this purpose."

NO REAL OBSTACLE.

Sumptuary legislation? Yes. Curtailment of the citizen's personal prerogative? Yes. We used to halt at this rock, too. And it is still there. But how easy it is to go around it—and find out what is on the other side. How much more is on the other side than on the side which, only, we have seen up to now.—Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle (oldest newspaper in the South, which has taken its stand for national prohibition).

PERSONAL RIGHTS CHAMPION.

Obedient to the conservation ideal, society steadily declines to tolerate humanity's waste of itself in sensuality. This aligns against the drinker and the liquor maker and vender today persons and institutions that a generation ago were also stout champions of "personal rights."—Christian Science Monitor.

DRINKERS NOT WANTED.

"If we could, we would keep no man in our employ who drank at all. Sober men are safer and the better always. The total abstainer is decidedly better than the one who drinks even moderately."—The Buckeye Rolling Mill Company, Steubenville, O.

VIOLATES LAW.

Champion of Fair Play:

"There is not a licensed saloon keeper in the state who does not lay himself liable to prosecution a dozen times a day."

ENGLISH RULE IN GREEN ISLE

Dates From Twelfth Century, When Strongbow Invaded Country to Assist King of Leinster.

Visitors to the historical places and buildings of Ireland hear much talk of Strongbow. In the twelfth century, when Strongbow became famous, Ireland was divided into many small provinces, and each of these had its petty king. Dermot MacMurrough, who was king of the province of Leinster, was a very cruel and unpopular ruler, and he was so disliked and abused by his people and the neighboring rulers that he finally fled to England, where he begged King Henry II for help in subduing his enemies.

But Henry remembered that there were many other kings in Ireland and he refused to side with MacMurrough, though he gave permission to any of his subjects who liked, to go to Ireland and aid the Leinster king. A company of barons, therefore, left their barren lands in South Wales and crossed over to Ireland to win themselves rich lands there where soil was fertile. At the head of this band of barons was Richard de Clare, earl of Pembroke, who was known as Strongbow. They landed at Waterford, which city these barons straightway captured. Strongbow made his claim even stronger by marrying the daughter of Dermot MacMurrough. Then, learning that Dublin was just then struggling to free itself from the rule of the Danes, Strongbow made all haste in that direction, and soon he had taken the city by storm. Since that first landing and conquest by Strongbow and the other barons the English have always held more or less power over Ireland.

An old historian, named Cambrensis, gives us the following quaint description of the warrior Strongbow: "The eerl was somewhat ruddie and of sanguine complexion and freckle-faced, his eies grei, his face feminine, his voice small, and his necke little, but somewhat of a high stature. He was very liberal, courteous and gentle; what he could not compasse and bring to passe in died, he would win by good words and gentle speeches. In time of peace he was more readie to yield and obeie than to rule and beare swaie. In all chances of warre, he was still one and the same maner of man, being neither dismaid with adversitie nor puffed up with prosperitie," a picture which hardly fits such a twelfth-century conqueror.—Christian Science Monitor.

Poker Chip Material Found.

It has been several years since open gambling was allowed in Texas and other parts of the Southwest. Even poker-playing is becoming an almost lost art. As an evidence of the falling off in this one-time great national game, it may be stated that few people realize that there now exists an unprecedented shortage of poker chips, due to the war across the seas.

The knowledge of this threatened crisis has caused a world-wide search to be made for the mineral known as barite, which enters largely into the manufacture of poker chips. In the days before the foreign war barite came chiefly from Austria.

It is well known to mineralogists that the Llano region of Texas contains many rare and little-known metals. This fact caused a search for barite to be instituted, with the result that a large deposit of the metal has just been discovered in that district.

The poker chip supply will soon be replenished from this new source of raw material.

Barite is also used in the enameling of iron and steel, the manufacture of paints, the coating of linoleums and oilcloths and the adulteration of sugar.

Three-Toed Horse Fossil.

A well-preserved set of teeth and jawbone of an animal which Prof. J. C. Jones of the Nevada State university declares were the property of a three-toed horse of the Upper Miocene age have been unearthed in the Washoe valley, on the Pedroli ranch, by university engineers.

Professor Jones says the horse probably roamed the wilds of Nevada some 3,000,000 years ago.

He says the horses of that date were even smaller than the Shetlands of the present day, and are classified as the eohippus. The specimens were found in a well which apparently penetrated a prehistoric lake bed. Teeth of mammoths, fossil leaves and other specimens of prehistoric ages have been found in wells on the Pedroli ranch. They are among the best in the fossil collection at the university, as they show clearly the age and classification to which they belong.

Brace Up!

"Brace up!"

"You who sit all day in one position square your shoulders and brace up."

"The 'consumptive stoop' does not make for health, so brace up."

"The slouch, the sag, the droop, the slump are poor guarantees of fitness. They endanger your health and your job. Brace up!"

"Don't bow your back and round your shoulders as if the burdens of life were too heavy. All loads will be lighter if you brace up."

These are a few of the paragraphs in a circular sent out by the Chicago health department.

Economies.

"Why don't you wear some of your last year's clothes?", inquired M. Growcher.

"Why, father!" exclaimed his daughter; "didn't I have my last winter's furs made over and wear them all summer?"

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MORIN, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. (confidential) for free advice which will prove helpful.

To Extinguish Gasoline Fire.

Experiments recently carried out by a British fire prevention committee show that the best way to extinguish a small gasoline fire is to spread over the burning liquid a mixture of ten pounds of bicarbonate of soda and twelve pounds of common sawdust. The sawdust need not be wet but must be free from chips and shavings. The theory is that the sawdust, by floating on the burning liquid, excludes the oxygen of the air, and the heat of the flame generates carbonic acid gas, which helps extinguish the fire. Sawdust alone gives satisfactory results, better than sand or similar materials.

The buildings of Amsterdam are built largely on pilings. The town hall stands on 13,000 such supports.

OH! MY BACK

A stubborn backache is cause to suspect kidney trouble. When the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, stooping brings a sharp twinge in the small of the back, that almost takes the breath away. Soon there may be other symptoms; scanty, painful or too frequent urination, headaches, dizziness, or rheumatic pains. Don't wait for these troubles to become serious—use Doan's Kidney Pills at once. You'll find no better-recommended remedy.

An Ohio Case

"Every Picture tells a Story"

Mary M. Jastatt, 240 W. High St., New Philadelphia, Ohio, says: "I had terrible spells of pain in my back and nothing helped me. My health failed and I was in a critical condition. The kidney secretions were distressing and my body bloated. The pains in my back set me almost frantic. I had dizzy spells, too. Doan's Kidney Pills cured all this suffering and I have had no further trouble for five years."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Army of Constipation

Is Growing Smaller Every Day.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are responsible — they not only give relief — they permanently cure Constipation. Millions use them for Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache, Sallow Skin.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

SEPTEMBER

0306

DeKalb County Centennial

CELEBRATION

AUBURM, INDIANA

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, OCTOBER 4 to 6, 1916.

"Old DeKalb Always Leads."

All roads will lead to Auburn during the week of the Centennial celebration. Railway and Interurban Trains will run Just Right, an ideal auto ride from every section of N-E. Ind.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 4:—Old Settlers' Day. Come. Bring your family and meet all your relatives and old-time friends.

THURSDAY, OCT. 5:—Organization day. Thousands of Lodge, Club and Society members will be in the parade with unique and attractive floats portraying in various phases the progress made during 100 years of Life in Indiana. Parade both morning and night.

FRIDAY, OCT. 6:—School Pageant Day, when thousands of school children of DeKalb Co. will be in line with floats representing the changed and changing conditions of the Educational Life of the county and state.

EVERY NIGHT will be seen folk drills and human flag presentation in which 800 school children will have a part. This will be one of the most spectacular exhibitions ever seen in Northeastern Indiana.

DOZENS OF FREE ACTS for the entertainment of visitors, such as the Purdue Agricultural exhibit, Educated Seals, Plantation Musicians, Lady Aeronaut, Band music every hour of the day, Open air moving pictures, and a thousand and one featuress that will keep everybody interested, entertained and instructed.

Everything Free! Don't Miss It.

Auburn, Ind., Wed-Thurs-Fri. Oct. 4-5-6.

BEAR CREEK FARM

LEIGHTY ORCHARD

We have hanging on the trees now, between 8,000 and 9,000 bushels of apples.

They make a beautiful and unusual sight, and we want you to see them.

If you have an auto, bring some one who is not so fortunate.

You are not asked to buy, but if you insist, we will sell to you for ONE DOLLAR per bushel, if you furnish something to carry them away in.

We will make cider same as last year, ten cents per gallon at the farm if you bring your container to be filled.

Local Briefs

It will soon be cool enough for automobile owners to go to church.

St. Joe Mills are running a Ford truck, for delivering purposes. Business demanded something faster than the old horse.

A heavy frost early Monday morning completed the work of killing the late vegetation. Jack Frost made his initial appearance of the season Friday night when only a light frost made its appearance. Saturday and Sunday night's visits, however, finished the work and but very few plants escaped. Tomatoes, melons and potatoes suffered the most.

Mort Widdifield has purchased the John Horn farm on the Spencerville road.

Mrs. Foster Gee and family are guests of Eugene Carpers' for a couple weeks.

Pocahontas Lump—$4.25 from cars or $4.60 delivered up to Jan 1st. St. Joe Mills

Mrs. Wm. Culbertson and daughter Elizabeth, of Garrett, were guests of Mrs. F. M. Thornton, Wednesday.

Amos Hale and wife, of Bluffton, Mrs. Pearl Lockwood and baby, of Batesville, Ind., were guests of C T. Baymans', last week.

A car of Bradley's Fertilizer will be in this week. Phone in your order and get from the car. Get it at Curie's.

WANTED!

YOUR POULTRY

For which we will pay the highest market price.

Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM

St. Joe, Indiana

Patronize the advertisers.

More wheat to the acre when you use Bradley's Fertilizer. A car load is being received by Wm. Curie this week.

A. Bilger and family, and Mrs. Ruark, of Garrett, called at the Thornton home, Sunday afternoon.

Frank Sherer and son Chas., of Haviland, Ind., a nephew of J. W. Sherer, of Fairview, was here last Friday, a guest in the Sherer home while negotiating for the Craig Sheffer blacksmith shop at Concord. The deal has not been closed.

"Then I'm to understand there's no hope for me!"

Such is the opening remark of the principal character in the corking good story we have secured for our next serial

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The doctors assure him that the mysterious disease from which he is suffering will be the death of him within six months. So the young man starts out in search of a quiet place where he can die peacefully and at once. His plan is frustrated by a chance meeting with a girl in distress, bent on suicide. He marries her so she may have the benefit of his fortune, then departs for the South Seas on a yachting trip with a friend.

Then things begin to happen; he doesn't die as predicted and he has all sorts of adventures in rapid succession. Every installment is alive with interest. Be sure you don't miss the issue containing the first one.

Watch for It!

A Rousing Convention.

Fairview church entertained the Township Sunday School Convention Sunday afternoon, with the Township President, Frank Provines, presiding. The meeting was called to order at 1:30 with a very good attendance. The Fairview choir had charge of the music. Opening song, All Hail the Power of Jesus Name. Prayer by Rev. J. C. Coons. Song, Stand up for Jesus. Devotional led by Frank May. Prayer, Sol Barney. Song, Speed Away. Frank Scholes opened a round table discussion on, "Is My Sunday School What it Ought to be? If not, What can I do to Make it so." This subject was divided into five topics and were discussed as follows: Attendance, F. B. Leighty, who said personal calls helped very much; M. T. Bishop, said attendance was helped through the home department; J. W. Sherer advised advertising. The Kind of Teaching, Rev. A. K. Mumma opened the topic by saying most depends on the teachers. He also said two thoughts well clinched were better than a half dozen that were not. Dr. B. S. Sheffer said, teach to the class and not over their heads, know the lesson yourself and then ask the class questions. Sol Barney said, a teacher should ask God every morning to give him new thoughts and to try and live up to them through the week. Interest, Mrs. Hull, of Concord, opened the discussion, she said we must be interested ourselves if we expect to interest others. John Knight said, parents must be interested if children are expected to keep up interest. Class Organization, Mrs. Lina Knight opened the topic by saying an organized class could keep up better interest and do better work. The president whose hobby is class organization, then said, be careful and put persons on committees who are suitable. That all schools should be thoroughly organized; that if the young ladies who attend Sunday School would refuse to go with young men out of the Sunday School it would not be thirty days until all would be in the Sunday School. Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick gave the result of all the foregoing discussions in a very interesting way. She likened the Sunday School to a factory which takes the crude material, children, and makes of them the finished product, christians and the teacher is the important factor in the work.

Mr. Scholes gave a very interesting talk on foreign missions and Mrs. A. K. Mumma also gave an interesting talk on home missions showing that each were heartily interested in their subjects. Each of the following Township Department Superintendents gave reports Secondary, Earl Wyatt, reported seven secondary organized classes in the township. Home department, Mrs. Eva Sheffer reported each church with a home department except Fairview. Teacher Training, Dr. Sheffer, one good teachers training class reported with others working for it. Temperance, no special report was given as the Superintendent, Samuel Fellers, was new in the work but a very interesting discussion on temperance was given. An announcement was made at this time that an Anti-saloon League man had been secured for the World's temperance Sunday, November 12, at the M. P. Sunday school and a motion was then made that a union meeting be held on the evening of November 12, at the said church. Missionary Supt., Frank Scholes, gave a short talk on the work. Report of the secretary-treasurer. Song, God be With You 'Till We Meet Again Benediction, Rev. Mumma.

Dr. H. R. Farnham

MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY

ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.

Telephone
Office,..............No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

BANK STATEMENT.

Emillus Case, President; H. L. Dunkle, Vice-President; S. W. Tustison, Cashier; F. R. Bowman, Ass't. Cashier Report of the condition of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a State bank, at St. Joe, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Sep. 12th., 1916.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$89,205 80
Overdrafts	50 33
Other Bonds and Securities	5,855 00
Furniture and Fixtures	967 50
Due from Banks and Trust Companies	23,198 93
Cash on Hand	4,330 80
Current Expenses	353 75
Taxes Paid	:3 50
Interest Paid	384 57
Total Resources	124,360 18
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock—paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	1,750 00
Undivided Profits	139 40
Exchange, Discounts and Interest	865 75
Demand Deposits	27,095 59
Demand Certificates	69,509 44
Total Liabilities	124,360 18

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, S. W. Tustison, cashier, of the St. Joe Valley Bank, State Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

S. W. Tustison, Cash.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 18th. day of Sep. 1916.

[L. S.] S. S. Widney, J. P.

Called to Ohio.

Chris Curie was at Orwell, Ohio, last Friday attending the funeral of his oldest brother, Nicholps, aged 89 years and 9 months. He will be remembered by St. Joe people as he has visited here three or four times in the past three years. Last spring he was here while making a west. On the following Tuesday Mr. Curie states that he attended a Home Coming at the old school house he used to attend and only 3 out of the entire audience, were in attendance to school there at that time.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m.
Prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.; Preaching, 7:00 p. m ;Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:00.

The subject for Sunday evening service is "The New Birth, Its Necessity." This is the first of a series of Sunday evening sermons on this vital subject. Our object is not to stir up differences or to criticise the views of others, but only to study this subject in a careful and evangelical manner from our point of view. Our manner of treating the subject will be practical rather than doctrinal. We invite your attendance at these services.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.
Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.;
Preaching 7:00 p. m. Rev. L. W. Spade.
Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.;
Preaching services, 7:30 p. m.;
Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.
Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.
Preaching service at 10:30 a. m.

Dying By Inches.

It is not an uncommon sight to see people who are dying by inches. The glands of the body are not working properly, poisonous matter accumulates and health declines. The circulation becomes sluggish, the blood impure, and a general nervous or debilitated condition exists. Day by day the liver and kidneys become less active, leaving the poisonous matter within the body. This poisonous accumulation causes the sallow complexion, and a tired, achy or run down feeling which, if neglected, may result in jaundice, typhoid fever or serious liver and kidney trouble. Glando, the great gland tonic, is especially prepared to relieve glandular disorders, throw off the poisonous accumulations and build up the system. Glando, the great gland tonic is the only treatment of its kind upon the market. Its superior qualities are due to the fact that it contains three separate treatments, each treatment having a special part to perform in effecting a cure. For sale by all Dealers.

Try an ad in the Free col.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank

Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

SEPTEMBER

0307

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY SEPT. 28 1916 NO. 40

FORD Announcement

$369.00

Buys a 1917 Model Ford Touring Car delivered to your home.

$354.00

Buys the New Ford Roadster. See me for your car.

FRANK SILBERG,
AGENT

Big Fire Friday

Makes clean Sweep of the Jasper Snider Residence north of Concord--Hard to Get Help.

The Farm Properties Threatened by the heavy West wind carry-burning shingles a great distance.

Friday afternoon about 3 o'clock, fire broke out in the Jasper Snider country home and completely destroyed his fine 11 room house, and the old house that stood but 10 feet away. Mrs. Ern Johnson was the first to discover the blaze and she immediately gave Mrs Snider warning and upon going up stairs the entire attic was on fire. Mr. Snider and son were in the corn field and after starting home, his son remarked that it looked as though the house was on fire. Alarm was given but being in the country help was slow coming. Mrs. Snider was making jelly, but she had a low fire. It is thought that perhaps a defective flue was the cause. Only a very little furniture was removed from the rooms due to the fact that no one was there to help and everything was so dry, that the house was in ashes in a very short time. Only the rugs and piano beside a few smaller pieces were saved. Their clothing was consumed and nearly all the provisions that had been placed in the cellar were a total loss. The fire company of St. Joe was called at one time and then by someone calling that it would be of no use to come, as the house was nearly down, the boys did not go. Had they reached the fire in a short time it would have been possible to have saved the old house that stood near. Insurance amounting to $1,700 was carried, but this cannot even replace the house. $1,860 was paid 11 years ago for the construction of the house, and with the advance in material $2,500 would not replace it. Due to the west wind, the Johnson properties were in danger and several small fires were started by flying shingles. The fire engine was sent for to protect the buildings near by. Mr. Snider and family will move into the Shrader house for the winter. They have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood.

"We're Going Forward."

The Christian Sunday School is planning for a big Church Home Coming and Rally Day, October 15th. A good program is being arranged. We're expecting you, don't disappoint us. Get in line for the big Rally for "We're Going Forward".

Hanly at Aub.

November 4, the Prohibition Presidential train will stop at Auburn for a short time, returning from the tour of the country. An effort is being made to stop the train at Waterloo for 30 minutes also.

That car of Middlings has Arrived

We are paying highest market price for Timothy-Clover- and Alsike seeds. We have instock the following kinds of Coal: Pocohontas, West Virginia, Hocking Valley, Chestnut, Egg and Stove and Cannel coal.

Always Welcome At The St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

Puts St. Joe On the Map.

Spring Brook and Bear Creek Orchards continue to be the mecca for Sunday tourists in this community. About 2500 people, it is estimated, visited the above named orchards, last Sunday. Autos were parked on each side of the road, some times four abreast, for a distance of an eighth of a mile at each farm. Garage and restaurant men did a flourishing business. Both gasoline stations were depleted of their supply of gasoline. One would think St. Joe to be the liveliest spot in DeKalb County to judge by the traffic on our streets. Mr. Widney's force of men were picking last week. Mr. Reasoner, manager for the Leighty orchard, will begin picking Monday, Oct. 2nd., possibly some varieties will be picked the latter part of this week.

In Attendance at Funeral.

The following out-of-town people attended the funeral of the late W. C. Patterson held here last Wednesday afternoon:-R. W. Patterson and wife, and Dr. L. S. Keyser, of Springfield, O.; (the latter being of Wittenberg College) M. E. Olds and wife, of Clinton, Mich; Mrs. Arvilla Derck and Mrs. Mildred Walker, of Montpelier, O; Mrs. Esther Karn, D. J. Baker and wife, and F. H. Langley and wife, of Ft. Wayne; Charles Abel and wife, Frances Merica and wife, Mrs. Don VanFliet and Mrs Chas. Bishop, of Garrett; J. F. Nelson, of Grand Rapids, Mich; F. A. Patterson and wife, J. W. Wright and wife, A. E. Hart and wife, Mrs. O. L. Widney, Mrs. T. L. Crook, Mrs. Edward Crook and Dr. T. C. Kinmont, of Hicksville, O; Mrs Anna Allen, Mrs. Ruth Miller, Miss Batha Hart, DeWitte Monroe and wife, of Columbia City; Alex Kinmont, Mrs. Z. T. Kagey, J. K. Stafford and wife, and Mahlon Baker and wife, of Auburn.

Card of Thanks.

We wish, through the columns of The News, to express our appreciation to the many friends and neighbors, who by kindly deeds and sincere sympathy assisted us through the last illness, death and burial, of our beloved husband and father. For the many beautiful floral offerings, we tender heartfelt thanks.

Mrs. W. C. Patterson.
Mrs. S. W. Tuetison.
Mr. R. W. Patterson.

LOCAL ITEMS.

"We're Going Forward".

Mrs. Ida Page, of Grabill, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. R. Weirs, Friday.

Wm. Randall and wife were supper guests of Mrs. Hannah Ulm, Monday evening.

The Fair Store at Hicksville, expect 3 car loads Choice Maine and Michigan Eating Potatoes in this week.

Arrangements are being made for entertaining the Rural Church Conference in St. Joe this year. It is an opportunity that seldom is offered to a small town and St. Joe should not fall short of holding up the reputation she has for entertaining.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

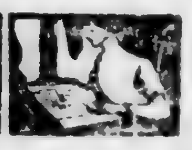
When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

M. P.	100	$3.60
Lutheran	94	3.40
Christian	54	2.94
Fairview	23	1.36
M. E. Spencer	87	4.58
Lutheran	67	1.85

Personal Items



Lester Curie left Friday for his home in Tulsa, Okla., after several weeks visit with his parents, Will Curie and family. Mrs. Curie and son Paul, accompanied him as far as Ft. Wayne.

BAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

Evans Dermott and wife, of near Coldwater, Mich., spent Saturday the guests of Mrs. Mary Scholes.

Ralph Patterson and wife left Friday for their home at Springfield, Ohio, after being here several days called here by the serious illness and death of the former's father, W. C. Patterson.

The Rural Housewives Club met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Matie Gee. Nine members and one guest, Miss Myra Coburn, of Muskeegon, Mich., were present. The hostess served watermelon and muskmelon.

Tim Agler and wife entertained the following guests Sunday:—Calvin Baker and wife, of Wayne; J. P. McMillan, wife and son Irvan and Mrs Mildred Westerlin and daughter Norma, all of Woodburn; and John Dove, wife and babe.

C. H Sailer and family attended the Kendallville Fair and visited relatives also in that city Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. John Coburn returned home from Bloomington, where she had been helping care for her sister Ruth, who had been sick with typhoid fever.

Coal.

We have 8 cars Pocahontas Lump Coal to be delivered by Jan. 1st. We can guarantee to fill your order any time from car at $4.25 ton or $4.60 in bin. Pocahontas being a very delicate coal does not stand much handling. Beware of Pocahontas from the bins after one or two handlings, it becomes crumbly; by getting it from the car you are assured of good Lump Coal. Also Hocking Lump at $3.60 from car up to Jan. 1st. Watch papers for announcement when coal will arrive. ST. JOE MILLS.

Special Sale

ON

APPLES!

In order to solve the Labor Problem and put my enormous crop of apples in the hands of the Consumers at FIRST COST, I will

ON

September 25th.,

and for 30 days thereafter

Sell to all who come to

SPRING BROOK FRUIT FARM,
St. JOE, INDIANA.

No. 1 Choice Hand Picked Apples at Per Bushel........ $1.00

No. 2 Choice Hand Picked Apples at Per Bushel........ .50

Bushels to weigh 48 pounds net, the Ohio Standard.
In no case can we give Containers with Apples.

2,500 bushels of Grimes Golden, will pick, Sept. 25, to Oct. 3
3,000 bushels of Winter Bananas, will pick,....October 3 to 11
1,500 bushels of Baldwins, will pick,........October 11 to 15
1,500 bushel of Starks, will pick,........October 15 to 20
500 bushel of Yorks, will pick,........October 20 to 25

Several hundred bushels of Talpahocking—Mann—Greening—Ranboo—King, etc. First here, first served.

TERMS:- Cash.

Spring Brook Fruit Farm is Located:

1-2 mile EAST and 1-2 mile NORTH of St. Joe, Indiana;
6 miles west and 1 1-2 miles north of Hicksville;
7 miles south and 1 mile west of Butler;
24 miles north-east of Fort Wayne on Leo Road;
16 miles north of Woodburn;
10 miles east of Auburn.

H. M. WIDNEY, OWNER.

SEPTEMBER

L. 9

0308

The TURMOIL

A NOVEL

By BOOTH TARKINGTON
AUTHOR OF
"MONSIEUR BEAUCAIRE"
"THE CONQUEST OF CANAAN"
"PENROD" ETC.

COPYRIGHT 1915 BY HARPER & BROTHERS.

CHAPTER XXX (Continued).

—16—

Old Man Sheridan goes to Bibbs' room to console the boy about Mary Vertrees' rejection of his proposal of marriage. Instead, against his will, the father rants about his son's need for hard work—and suddenly halts his abuse in the middle of a sentence.

Bibbs looked up patiently—an old, old look. "Yes, father; I'm listening."

"That's all," said Sheridan, frowning heavily. "That's all I came to say, and you better see 't you remember it!"

He shook his head warningly, and went out, closing the door behind him with a crash. However, no sound of footsteps indicated his departure. He stopped just outside the door, and stood there a minute or more. Then abruptly he turned the knob and exhibited to his son a forehead liberally covered with perspiration.

"Look here," he said, crossly. "That girl over yonder wrote Jim a letter—"

"I know," said Bibbs. "She told me."

"Well, I thought you needn't feel so much upset about it—" The door closed on his voice as he withdrew, but the conclusion of the sentence was nevertheless audible—"if you knew she wouldn't have Jim, either."

And he stamped his way downstairs to tell his wife to quit her frettin' and not bother him with any more fool's errands. She was about to inquire what Bibbs "said," but after a second thought she decided not to speak at all. She merely murmured a wordless assent, and verbal communication was given over between them for the rest of the afternoon.

Bibbs and his father were gone when Mrs. Sheridan woke, the next morning, and she had a dreary day. She missed Edith woefully, and she worried about what might be taking place in the Sheridan building. She felt that everything depended on how Bibbs "took hold," and upon her husband's return in the evening she seized upon the first opportunity to ask him how things had gone. He was noncommittal. What could anybody tell by the first day? He'd seen plenty go at things well enough right at the start and then blow up. Pretty near anybody could show up fair the first day or so. There was a big job ahead. This material, such as it was—Bibbs, in fact—had to be broken in to handling the work Roscoe had done; and then, at least as an overseer, he must take Jim's position in the Realty company as well. He told her to ask him again in a month.

But during the course of dinner she gathered from some disjointed remarks of his that he and Bibbs had lunched together at the small restaurant where it had been Sheridan's custom to lunch with Jim, and she took this to be an encouraging sign. Bibbs went to his room as soon as they left the table, and her husband was not communicative after reading his paper.

She became an anxious spectator of Bibbs' progress as a man of business, although it was a progress she could glimpse but dimly and only in the evening, through his remarks and his father's at dinner. Usually Bibbs was silent, except when directly addressed, but on the first evening of the third week of his new career he offered an opinion which had apparently been the subject of previous argument.

"I'd like you to understand just what I meant about those storage rooms, father," he said, as Jackson placed his coffee before him. "Abercrombie agreed with me, but you wouldn't listen to him."

"You can talk, if you want to, and I'll listen," Sheridan returned, "but you can't show me that Jim ever took up with a bad thing. The roof fell because it hadn't had time to settle and on account of weather conditions. I want that building put just the way Jim planned it."

"You can't have it," said Bibbs. "You can't, because Jim planned for the building to stand up, and it won't do it. The other one—the one that didn't fall—is so shot with cracks we haven't dared use it for storage. It won't stand weight. There's only one thing to do: Get both buildings down as quickly as we can, and build over. Brick's the best and cheapest in the long run for that type."

Sheridan looked sarcastic. "Fine! What we goin' to do for storage rooms while we're waitin' for those few bricks to be laid?"

"Rent," Bibbs returned, promptly. "We'll lose money if we don't rent, anyhow—they were waiting so long for you to give the warehouse matter your attention after the roof fell. You don't know what an amount of stuff they've got piled up on us over there. We'd have to rent until we could patch up those process perils—and the Krivitch Manufacturing company's plant is empty, right across the street. I took an option on it for us this morning."

Sheridan's expression was queer. "Look here!" he said, sharply. "Did you go and do that without consulting me?"

"It didn't cost anything," said Bibbs. "It's only until tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock. I undertook to convince you before then."

"Oh, you did?" Sheridan's tone was sardonic. "Well, just suppose you couldn't convince me."

"I can, though—and I intend to," said Bibbs, quietly. "I don't think you understand the condition of those buildings you want patched up."

"Now, see here," said Sheridan, with slow emphasis: "Suppose I had my mind set about this. Jim thought they'd stand, and suppose it was—well, kind of a matter of sentiment with me to prove he was right."

Bibbs looked at him compassionately. "I'm sorry if you have a sentiment about it, father," he said. "But whether you have or not can't make a difference. You'll get other people hurt if you trust that process, and that won't do. And if you want a monument to Jim, at least you want one that will stand. Besides, I don't think you can reasonably defend sentiment in this particular kind of affair."

"Oh, you don't?"

"No, but I'm sorry you didn't tell me you felt it."

Sheridan was puzzled by his son's tone. "Why are you 'sorry'?" he asked, curiously.

"Because I had the building inspector up there, this noon," said Bibbs, "and I had him condemn both those buildings."

"What?"

"He'd been afraid to do it before, until he heard from us—afraid you'd see he lost his job. But he can't uncondemn them—they've got to come down now."

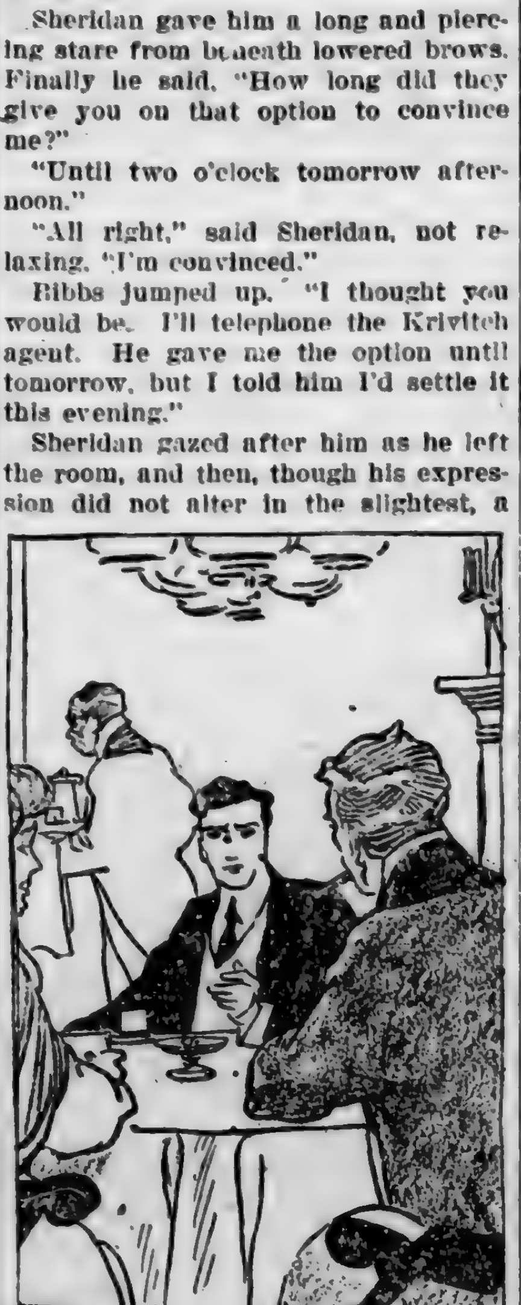
Sheridan gave him a long and piercing stare from beneath lowered brows. Finally he said, "How long did they give you on that option to convince me?"

"Until two o'clock tomorrow afternoon."

"All right," said Sheridan, not relaxing. "I'm convinced."

Bibbs jumped up. "I thought you would be. I'll telephone the Krivitch agent. He gave me the option until tomorrow, but I told him I'd settle it this evening."

Sheridan gazed after him as he left the room, and then, though his expression did not alter in the slightest, a sound came from him that startled his wife. It had been a long time since she had heard anything resembling a chuckle from him, and this sound—although it was grim and dry—bore that resemblance.



"They've Got to Come Down Now."

She brightened eagerly. "Looks like he was startin' right well, don't it, papa?"

"Startin'? Lord! He got me on the hip! Why, he knew what I wanted—that's why he had the inspector up there, so 't he'd have me beat before we even started to talk about it. And did you hear him? 'Can't reasonably defend sentiment!' And the way he say 'Us:' 'Took an option for Us!' 'Stuff piled up on Us!' "

There was always an alloy for Mrs. Sheridan. "I don't just like the way he looks, though, papa."

"Oh, there's got to be something! Only one chick left at home, so you start to frettin' about it!"

"No. He's changed. There's a kind of a settish look to his face, and—"

"I guess that's the common sense comin' out on him, then," said Sheridan. "You'll see symptoms like that in a good many business men, I expect."

"Well, and he don't have as good color as he was gettin' before. And he'd begin to fill out [illegible] e, but—"

Sheridan gave forth another dry chuckle, and, going round the table to her, patted her upon the shoulder with his left hand, his right being still heavily bandaged, though he no longer wore a sling. "That's the way it is with you, mamma—got to take your frettin' out one way if you don't another!"

"No. He don't look well. It ain't exactly the way he looked when he begun to get sick that time, but he kind o' seems to be losin', some way."

"Yes, he may 'a' lost something," said Sheridan. "I expect he's lost a whole lot o' foolishness besides his Godforsaken notions about writin' poetry and—"

"No," his wife persisted. "I mean he looks right peakid. And yesterday, when he was settin' with us, he kept lookin' out the window. He wasn't readin'."

"Well, why shouldn't he look out the window?"

"He was lookin' over there. He never read a word all afternoon, I don't believe."

"Look here!" said Sheridan. "Bibbs might 'a' kept goin' on over there the rest of his life, moonin' on and on, but what he heard Sibyl say did one big thing, anyway. It woke him up out of his trance. Well, he had to go and bust clean out with a bang; and that stopped his goin' over there, and it stopped his poetry, but I reckon he's begun to get pretty fair pay for what he lost. I guess a good many young men have had to get over worries like his; they got to lose something if they're goin' to keep ahead o' the procession nowadays—and it kind o' looks to me, mamma, like Bibbs might keep quite a considerable long way ahead. Why, a year from now I'll bet you he won't know there ever was such a thing as poetry! And ain't he funny? He wanted to stick to the shop so's he could 'think!' What he meant was, think about something useless. Well, I guess he's keepin' his mind pretty occupied the other way these days. Yes, sir, it took a pretty fair-sized shock to get him out of his trance, but it certainly did the business." He patted his wife's shoulder again, and then, without any prefatory symptoms, broke into a boisterous laugh.

"Honest, mamma, he works like a gorilla!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

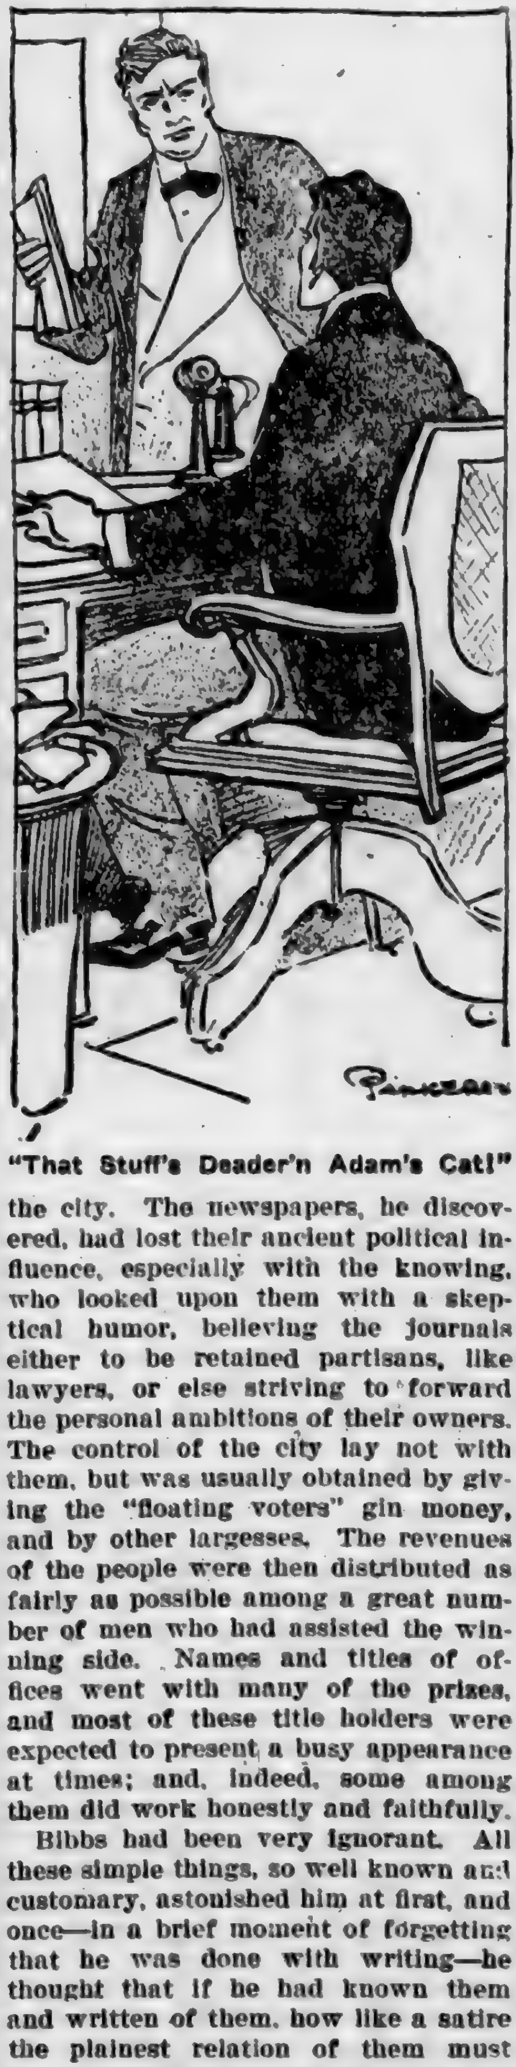
And so Bibbs sat in the porch of the temple with the money changers. But no One came to scourge him forth, for this was the temple of Bigness, and the changing of money was holy worship and true religion. The priests wore that "settish" look Bibbs' mother had seen beginning to develop about his mouth and eyes—a wary look which she could not define, but it comes with service at the temple; and it was the more marked upon Bibbs for his sharp awakening to the necessities of that service.

He did as little "useless" thinking as possible, giving himself no time for it. He worked continuously, keeping his thoughts still on his work when he came home at night, and he talked of nothing whatever except his work. But he did not sing at it. He was often in the streets, and people were not allowed to sing in the streets. They might make any manner of hideous uproar—they could shake buildings; they could outthunder the thunder, deafen the deaf, and kill the sick with noise; or they could walk the streets or drive through them bawling, squawking or screeching, as they chose, if the noise was traceably connected with business; though street musicians were not tolerated, being considered a nuisance and an interference. A man or woman who went singing for pleasure through the streets—like a crazy Neapolitan—would have been stopped, and belike locked up; for freedom does not mean that a citizen is allowed to do every outrageous thing that comes into his head. The streets were dangerous enough, in all conscience, without any singing! and the Motor federation issued public warnings declaring that the pedestrian's life was in his own hands, and giving directions how to proceed with the least peril. However, Bibbs Sheridan had no desire to sing in the streets, or anywhere. He had gone to his work with an energy that, for the start, at least, was bitter, and there was no song left in him.

He began to know his active fellow citizens. Here and there among them he found a leisurely, kind soul, a relic of the old period of neighborliness, "pioneer stock," usually; and there were men—particularly among the merchants and manufacturers—"so honest they leaned backward;" reputations sometimes attested by stories of heroic sacrifices to honor; nor were there lacking some instances of generosity even nobler. Here and there, too, were bookmen, in their little leisure; and, among the Germans, music men. And these, with the others, worshiped Bigness and the growth, each man serving for his own sake and for what he could get out of it, but all united in their faith in the beneficence and glory of their god.

To almost all alike that service stood as the most important thing in life, except on occasion of some such vital, brief interregnum as the dangerous illness of a wife or child. In the way of "relaxation" some of the servers took golf; some took fishing; some took "shows"—a mixture of infantile and negroid humor, stockings, and tin music; some took an occasional debauch; some took trips; some took cards; and some took nothing. The high priests were vigilant to watch that no "relaxation" should affect the service. When a man attended to anything outside his business, eyes were upon him; his credit was in danger—that is, his life was in danger. And the old priests were as ardent as the young ones; the million was as eager to be bigger as the thousand; seventy was as busy as seventeen. They strove mightily against one another, and the old priests were the most wary, the most plausible and the most dangerous. Bibbs learned he must walk charily among these—he must wear a thousand eyes and beware of spiders indeed!

And outside the temple itself were the pretenders, the swarming thieves and sharpers and fleecers, the sly rascals and the open rascals; but these were feeble folk, not dangerous once he knew them, and he had a good guide to point them out to him. They were useful sometimes, he learned, and many of them served as go-betweens in matters where business must touch politics. He learned also how breweries and "traction" companies and banks and other institutions fought one another for the political control of the city. The newspapers, he discovered, had lost their ancient political influence, especially with the knowing, who looked upon them with a skeptical humor, believing the journals either to be retained partisans, like lawyers, or else striving to forward the personal ambitions of their owners. The control of the city lay not with them, but was usually obtained by giving the "floating voters" gin money, and by other largesses. The revenues of the people were then distributed as fairly as possible among a great number of men who had assisted the winning side. Names and titles of offices went with many of the prizes, and most of these title holders were expected to present a busy appearance at times; and, indeed, some among them did work honestly and faithfully.



"That Stuff's Deader'n Adam's Cat!"

Bibbs had been very ignorant. All these simple things, so well known and customary, astonished him at first, and once—in a brief moment of forgetting that he was done with writing—he thought that if he had known them and written of them, how like a satire the plainest relation of them must have seemed! Strangest of all to him was the vehement and sincere patriotism. On every side he heard it; it was a permeation; the newest schoolchild caught it, though just from Hungary and learning to stammer a few words of the local language. Everywhere the people shouted of the power, the size, the riches and the growth of their city. Not only that, they said that the people of their city were the greatest, the "finest," the strongest, the Biggest people on earth. They cited no authorities, and felt the need of none, being themselves the people thus celebrated. And if the thing was questioned, or if it was hinted that there might be one small virtue in which they were not perfect and supreme, they wasted no time examining themselves to see if what the critic said was true, but fell upon him and hooted him and cursed him, for they were sensitive. So Bibbs, learning their ways and walking with them, hearkened to the voice of the people and served Bigness with them. For the voice of the people is the voice of their god.

• • • • • • • •

Sheridan had made the room next to his own into an office for Bibbs, and the door between the two rooms usually stood open—the father had established that intimacy. One morning in February, when Bibbs was alone, Sheridan came in, some sheets of typewritten memoranda in his hand.

"Bibbs," he said, "I don't like to butt in very often this way, and when I do I usually wish I hadn't—but for heaven's sake what have you been buying that ole busted inter-traction stock for?"

Bibbs leaned back from his desk. "For eleven hundred and fifty-five dollars. That's all it cost."

"Well, it ain't worth eleven hundred and fifty-five cents. You ought to know that. I don't get your idea. That stuff's deader'n Adam's cat!"

"It might be worth something—some day."

"How?"

"It mightn't be so dead—not if We went into it," said Bibbs coolly.

"Oh!" Sheridan considered this musingly; then he said, "Who'd you buy it from?"

"A broker—Fansmith."

"Well, he must 'a' got it from one o' the crowd o' poor ninnies that was soaked with it. Don't you know who owned it?"

"Yes, I do."

"Ain't sayin', though? That it? What's the matter?"

"It belonged to Mr. Vertrees," said Bibbs, shortly, applying himself to his desk.

"So!" Sheridan gazed down at his son's thin face. "Excuse me," he said. "Your business." And he went back to his own room. But presently he looked in again.

"I reckon you won't mind lunchin' alone today"—he was shuffling himself into his overcoat—"because I just thought I'd go up to the house and get this over with mamma." He glanced apologetically toward his right hand as it emerged from the sleeve of the overcoat. The bandages had been removed, finally, that morning, revealing but three fingers—the forefinger and the next to it had been amputated. "She's bound to make an awful fuss, and it better spoil her lunch than her dinner. I'll be back about two."

But he calculated the time of his arrival at the new house so accurately that Mrs. Sheridan's lunch was not disturbed, and she was rising from the lonely table when he came into the dining room. He had left his overcoat in the hall, but he kept his hands in his trousers pockets.

"What's the matter, papa?" she asked, quickly. "Has anything gone wrong? You ain't sick?"

"Me!" He laughed loudly. "Me sick?"

"You had lunch?"

"Didn't want any today. You can give me a cup o' coffee, though."

She rang, and told George to have coffee made, and when he had withdrawn she said querulously, "I just know there's something wrong."

"Nothin' in the world," he responded, heartily, taking a seat at the head of the table. "I thought I'd talk over a notion o' mine with you, that's all. It's more women-folks' business than what it is man's, anyhow."

"What about?"

"Why, ole Doc Gurney was up at the office this morning awhile—"

"To look at your hand? How's he say it's doin'?"

"Fine! Well, he went in and sat around with Bibbs awhile—"

Mrs. Sheridan nodded pessimistically. "I guess it's time you had him, too. I knew Bibbs—"

"Now, mamma, hold your horses! I wanted him to look Bibbs over before anything's the matter. You don't suppose I'm goin' to take any chances with Bibbs, do you? Well, afterwards, I shut the door, and I an' ole Gurney had a talk. He's a mighty disagreeable man; he rubbed it in on me what he said about Bibbs havin' brains if he ever woke up. Then I thought he must want to get something out o' me, he got so flattering—for a minute! 'Bibbs couldn't help havin' business brains,' he says, 'bein' your son. Don't be surprised,' he says—'don't be surprised at his makin' a success,' he says. 'He couldn't get over his heredity; he couldn't help bein' a business success—once you got him into it. It's in his blood. Yes, sir,' he says, 'it doesn't need much brains,' he says, 'an' only third-rate brains, at that,' he says, 'but it does need a special kind o' brains,' he says, 'to be a millionaire. I mean,' he says, 'when a man's given a start. If nobody gives him a start, why, course he's got to have luck and the right kind o' brains. The only miracle about Bibbs,' he says, 'is where he got the other kind o' brains—the brains you made him quit usin' and throw away.' "

"But what 'd he say about his health?" Mrs. Sheridan demanded, impatiently, as George placed a cup of coffee before her husband. Sheridan helped himself to cream and sugar, and began to sip the coffee.

"I'm comin' to that," he returned, placidly. "See how easy I manage this cup with my left hand, mamma?"

"You been doin' that all winter. What did—"

"It's wonderful," he interrupted, admiringly, "what a fellow can do with his left hand. I can sign my name with mine now, well's I ever could with my right. It came a little hard at first, but now, honest, I believe I rather sign with my left. That's all I ever have to write, anyway—just the signature. Rest's all dictatin'." He blew across the top of the cup unctuously. "Good coffee, mamma! Well, about Bibbs. Ole Gurney says he believes if Bibbs could somehow get back to the state o' mind he was in about the machine shop—that is, if he could some way get to feelin' about business the way he felt about the shop—not the poetry and writin' part, but—" He paused, supplementing his remarks with a motion of his head toward the old house next door. "He says Bibbs is older and harder'n what he was when he broke down that time, and, besides, he ain't the kind o' dreamy way he was then—and I should say he ain't! I'd like 'em to show me anybody his age that's any wider awake! But he says Bibbs' health'll never need bother us again if—"

Mrs. Sheridan shook her head. "I don't see any help that way. You know yourself she wouldn't have Jim."

"Who's talkin' about her havin' anybody? But, my Lord! she might let him look at her! She needn't 'a' got so mad, just because he asked her, that she won't let him come in the house any more. He's a mighty funny boy, and some ways I reckon he's pretty near as hard to understand as the Bible, but Gurney kind o' got me in the way o' thinkin' that if she'd let him come back and set around with her an evening or two sometimes—not reg'lar, I don't mean—why— Well, I just thought I'd see what you'd think of it. There ain't any way to talk about it to Bibbs himself—I don't suppose he'd let you, anyhow—but I thought maybe you could kind o' slip over there some day, and kind o' hint around till you see how the land lays, and ask her—"

"Me!" Mrs. Sheridan looked both helpless and frightened. "No." She shook her head decidedly. "It wouldn't do any good."

"You won't try it?"

"I won't risk her turnin' me out o' the house. Some way, that's what I believe she did to Sibyl, from what Roscoe said once. No, I can't—and, what's more, it'd only make things worse. If people find out you're runnin' after 'em they think you're cheap, and then they won't do as much for you as if you let 'em alone. I don't believe it's any use, and I couldn't do it if it was."

He sighed with resignation. "Al' right, mamma. That's all." Then, in a livelier tone, he said: 'Ole Gurney took the bandages off my hand this morning. All healed up. Says I don't need 'em any more."

"Why, that's splendid, papa!" she cried, beaming. "I was afraid— Let's see."

She came toward him, but he rose still keeping his hand in his pocket. "Wait a minute," he said, smiling. "Now it may give you just a little teeny bit of a shock, but the fact is—well, you remember that Sunday when Sibyl came over here and made all that fuss about nothin'—it was the day after I got tired o' that statue when Edith's telegram came—"

"Let me see your hand!" she cried.

"Now wait!" he said, laughing and pushing her away with his left hand. "The truth is, mamma, that I kind o' slipped out on you that morning, when you wasn't lookin', and went down to ole Gurney's office—he'd told me to, you see—and, well, it doesn't amount to anything." And he held out for her inspection, the mutilated hand. "You see, these days when it's all dictatin', anyhow, nobody 'd mind just a couple o'—"

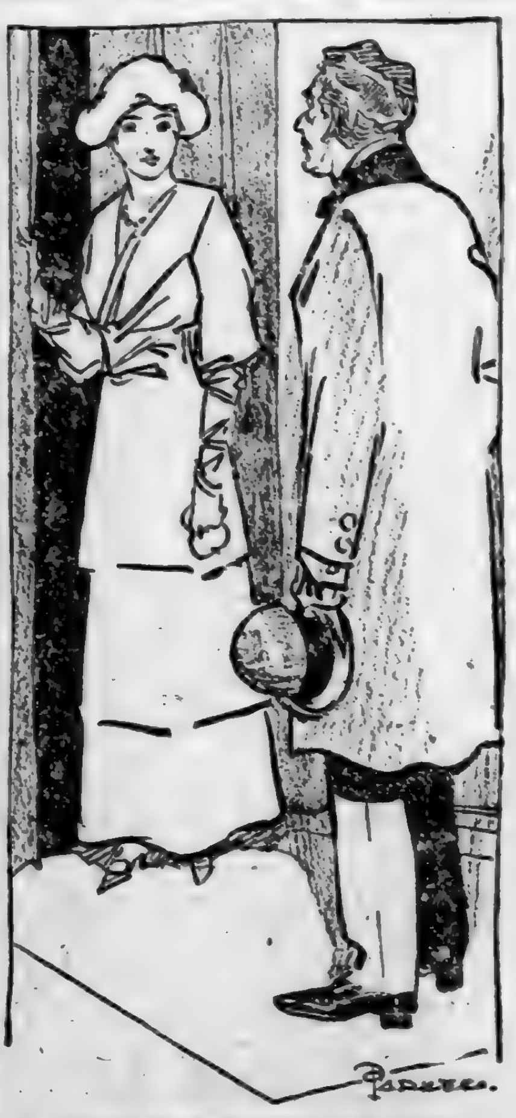
He had to jump for her—she went over backward. For the second time in her life Mrs. Sheridan had fainted.

CHAPTER XXXII.

It was a full hour later when he left her lying upon a couch in her own room, still lamenting that the "fuss" which she was making irked him far more than his physical loss. He permitted her to think that he meant to return directly to his office, but when he came out to the open air he told the chauffeur in attendance to await him in front of Mr. Vertrees' house, whither he himself proceeded on foot.

Mr. Vertrees had taken the sale of half of his worthless stock as manna in the wilderness; it came from heaven—by what agency he did not particularly question. The broker informed him that "parties were interested in getting hold of the stock," and that later there might be a possible increase in the value of the large amount retained by his client. It might go "quite a ways up" within a year or so, he said, and he advised "sitting tight" with it. Mr. Vertrees went home and prayed.

He rose from his knees feeling that he was surely coming into his own again. It was more than a mere gasp of temporary relief with him, and his wife shared his optimism; but Mary would not let him buy back her piano, and as for furs—spring was on the way, she said. But they paid the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, and hired a cook once more. It was this servitress who opened the door for Sheridan, and presently assured him that Miss Vertrees would "be down."



"Don't Be Surprised," He Said.

He was not the man to conceal admiration when he felt it, and he flushed and beamed as Mary made her appearance, almost upon the heels of the cook. She had a look of apprehension for the first fraction of a second, but it vanished at the sight of him, and its place was taken in her eyes by a soft brilliance, while color rushed in her cheeks.

"Don't be surprised," he said. "Truth is, in a way it's sort of on business I looked in here. It'll only take a minute, I expect."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SEPTEMBER

L 9

0309

Ask for and Get
SKINNER'S
THE HIGHEST QUALITY
SPAGHETTI
36 Page Recipe Book Free
SKINNER MFG. CO. OMAHA, U.S.A.
LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

ANY WOMAN can become an expert dressmaker or tailoress. Can reproduce any design with our system. Experience unnecessary. Ohio Russell Dressmaking & Tailoring School, Dayton, O.

NEW PENSION LAW FOR WIDOWS
Send for blanks and instructions. DR. O. E. HOWE & CO., Pension and Patent Attorneys, WASHINGTON, D. C.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

Critic Shies.

Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, was talking about the public's literary taste.

"The public," he said, "likes trash. Put good stuff before it and it shies like the critic at the 'Players.'

"A poet smiled affectionately on this critic, thrust a ten-cent cigar in his hand and said:

"'Let me show you the proofs of my new volume of poems.'

"'No, no,' said the critic, rising hastily and grabbing up his hat. 'No, no. I don't need proof. Your word is sufficient.'

"And he rushed off without finishing the two inches of beer that still remained in his glass."

FOR ITCHING SCALP

And Falling Hair Use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

When the scalp is itching because of dandruff and eczema a shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water will be found thoroughly cleansing and soothing, especially if shampoo is preceded by a gentle application of Cuticura Ointment to the scalp skin.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Decimal System for England.

According to the British and Colonial Printer and Stationer, there is now a well-organized movement in Great Britain to secure the immdiate adoption in that country of the decimal system of coinage and weights and measures.

The handicap in securing new foreign trade, with nine-tenths of the world on the decimal basis, is the prime argument in the propaganda, and it is pointed out that in the even keener trade competition after the war this added handicap may prove ruinous.

Had Cause for Wrath.

"I am not surprised that it put the man out of temper," said Magistrate Fordham to a woman who applied for process against a man who smashed her window because a phonograph was playing in her house at ten o'clock at night.

"It is a most vexing and troublesome noise," added his worship, "and it is a wonder he did not smash 20 windows."—London Globe.

Explained.

"How do you happen to miss your way so often when you go touring?"

"That's easily explained," replied Mr. Chuggins. "It's due to the kind of car I bought. They give you a joke book with it instead of a road map."

"Every man," says a preacher, "has his own idea of hell." As many kinds as there are many minds.

Brightens
One Up

There is something about Grape-Nuts food that brightens one up, infant or adult, both physically and mentally.

What is it?

Just its delightful flavor, and the nutriment of whole wheat and barley, including their wonderful body and nerve building mineral elements!

A crisp, ready-to-eat food, with a mild sweetness all its own; distinctive, delicious, satisfying—

Grape-Nuts
"There's a Reason"

NEW FEATURES IN LITTLE BUNGALOW

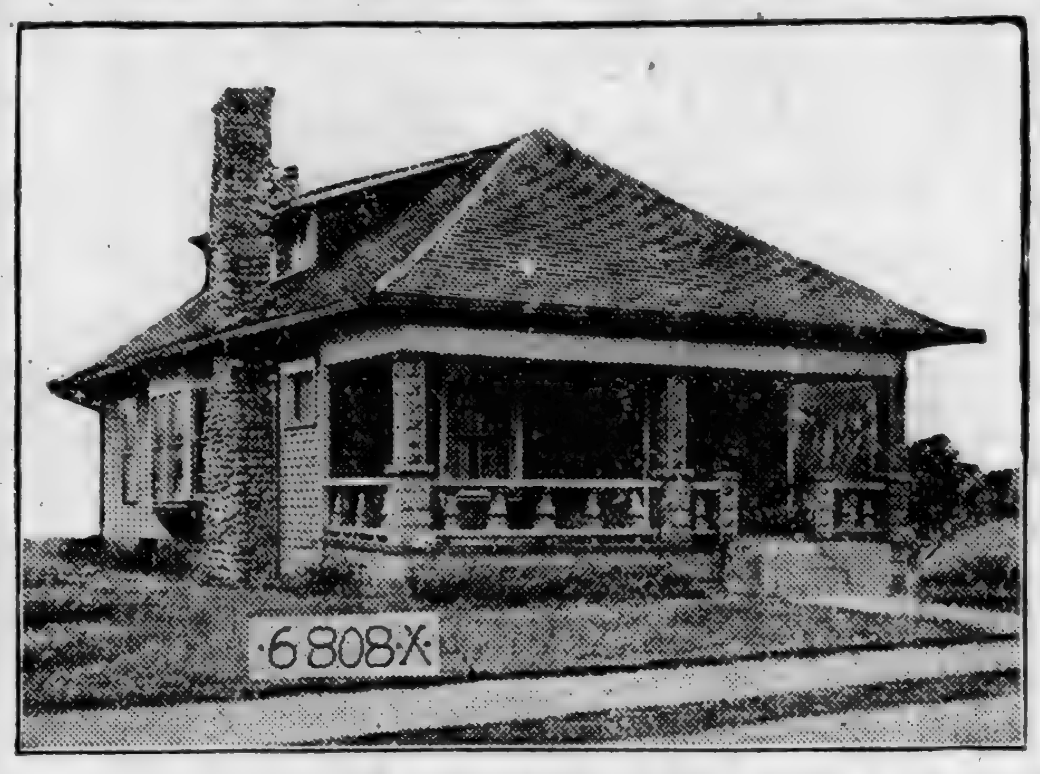
Do Away With Objections That Some Have to This Type of Building.

HAS AMPLE STORAGE SPACE

Utilization of Hip-Roof Construction Provides This, by Many Considered a Requisite—Arrangement of the Interior Will Appeal to the Housewife.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A great many people object to the bungalow type of house construction because it does not provide enough storage for the array of odds and ends which they have not yet decided to pass on to the junk man. As a rule, this lack of storage space is caused by the fact that the usual bungalow is built with a very flat gable roof set as low as possible to produce the effect of broadness and to destroy the appearance of height. This effort is made necessary in order that the fundamental idea of the bungalow may be expressed in the design. Bungalows are not supposed to be high. They are, in the pure type, single-story buildings, and since this feature is their inherent mark of distinction the contrast is carried still farther by placing a roof on them which will emphasize their flatness.



In fact, the roof is of prime importance in a bungalow, for it is in the roof that the greatest effect may be obtained in adjusting the appearance of the structure to meet the demand for something distinctive or something new. As a rule, when the appearance of the house is the governing factor, the roof will be given such form that very little storage space is possible; but, if necessary, there is no reason why the designer cannot produce a structure of the distinct bungalow type and still shape the roof in such a manner that a generous attic space is provided.

The method employed to enlarge the space above the first floor without destroying the appearance of broadness consists in using either a straight hip-roof construction or a combination of the hip and gable types, with the hip type predominating. Occasionally flat roof dormers are used in connection with the hip roof to produce the same result. The effect is altogether pleasing to the eye, and the several advantages of the more generous storage space which is provided in the attic have recommended it in a great many cases. Aside from this fact, if the space is not used for storage it still serves a very good purpose in providing an insulating layer of air which will keep the lower floor cool in the hottest weather.

An attractive little bungalow of simple construction is shown here as an example of the possibility of utilizing the hip-roof construction. The roof of this pleasant little home is almost purely of this type, the only addition being the small projecting dormer. This dormer adds space to the attic and also provides the means of admitting light to the upper floor. An artistic touch is given the main roof by breaking the slope just above the eaves and carrying the last few feet down at a new slope. Several interesting details are included in the design of this little cottage.

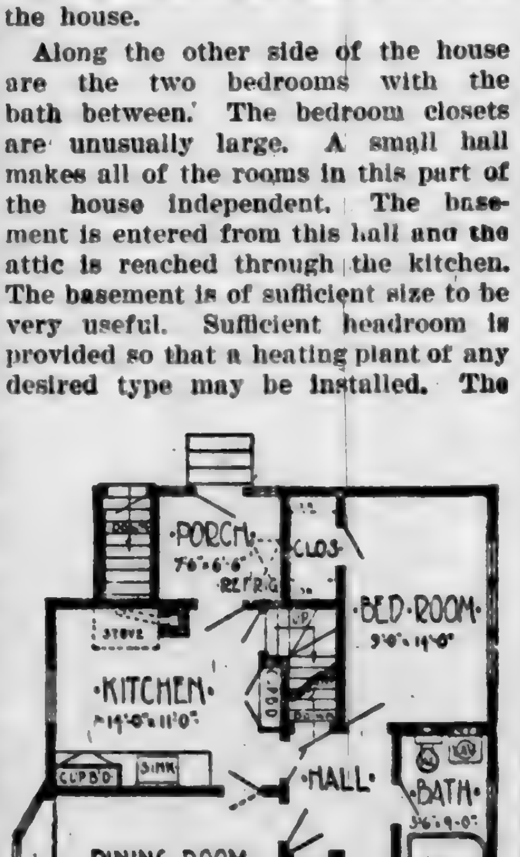
The sides are finished with beveled siding and the roof is shingled. The chimney is of the out-built type and is constructed of cobble stones. It is quite massive and adds a great deal to the exterior attractiveness of the little bungalow. The broad front porch, extending across the front of the house, is a pleasing feature. It is attractively decorated with the block columns and the simple railing. Without the expenditure of a great deal of money the exterior of this house has been made very neat.

The arrangement of rooms and the design of interior details are of special interest. The living room and the dining room form an attractive combination. The entire wall between these two rooms is removed, forming what is really one large room. Part of the opening made by the removal of the wall is cased and into the remainder is built a colonnade. On the living-room side of this colonnade a seat is built which is extended over to one of the two bookcases which flank the large fireplace. A china case is set against the dining room side of the colonnade. The combination of the living room with the dining room necessitates a careful selection of furniture for these two rooms, it being desirable that the unity be maintained throughout if possible. The effect will also be felt in the decorating of the rooms, a harmonizing scheme of colors being necessary. By proper attention to these details a very pleasing effect may be obtained by the combination of the living room with the dining room.

The door from the porch opens into an entry which has a small closet for wraps. On the other side of the entry is a cased opening leading to the living room. The view from this entry, of the fireplace, the broad seat and colonnade and the wide opening between the two rooms is very striking.

An attractive feature of the dining room is the four-window-bay with the seat built entirely across it. The kitchen is entered through a swinging door and is handily arranged to facilitate the preparation and serving of meals. Near the door to the dining room is a cupboard built above a shelf into which the sink is set. Another cupboard fills a nook in the central wall of the building and is also very handy to the dining-room door The stove is intended to be placed against the rear wall of the kitchen, where a very short length of pipe will connect it with the chimney. The rear porch is built right into the house and furnishes a handy kitchen annex. The refrigerator may be placed on this porch, where it is iced without causing the iceman to take many steps into the house.

Along the other side of the house are the two bedrooms with the bath between. The bedroom closets are unusually large. A small hall makes all of the rooms in this part of the house independent. The basement is entered from this hall and the attic is reached through the kitchen. The basement is of sufficient size to be very useful. Sufficient headroom is provided so that a heating plant of any desired type may be installed. The space is divided into rooms which will greatly increase the total value of the basement. Home owners are finding increasing usefulness in the construction of a cold-storage room in the basements of the houses. This is easily done and it furnishes an excellent place to keep fruit and vegetables. This room should, of course, be placed as far as possible from the furnace.



Floor Plan of Cottage—Size 30 by 44 Feet 6 Inches.

Saw Wood.

Saws and sawyers have changed. The old saw has new teeth—the nicked flint of our antediluvian ancestors has long since given way to the toothed blade of tempered steel. Closely paralleling the development of sawing instruments is progress in sawing methods. The first saw, a piece of stone with roughened edge, was worked slowly back and forth across the material to be cut. The modern saw is a narrow band of steel traveling at tremendous speed. Against the cutting edge of this logs are held by mechanical conveyors.

WASTE INVOLVED IN ILLNESS

Serious Matter to Which Far Too Little Attention Has Been Given by the Country.

A spectacular event often attracts public attention, while routine matters of large magnitude go unnoticed. For instance, the whole country was recently acutely conscious of a question of wages amounting to $50,000,000. It was an important question and the sum involved was vast.

But take another question involving wages—the question of the illness of workers. Public health bulletin No. 76 of the public health service of the United States estimates on the basis of inquiries here and abroad that the average industrial worker loses about nine days a year on account of illness. This amounts to a loss to the workers of the country, it is estimated, of $800,000,000 a year. If by better sanitation and safety devices the time could be reduced one-half, there would be a saving of $400,000,000. Yet it is exceedingly difficult for health authorities to arouse interest in the question, simply because it concerns everyday matters that lack the excitement of a threatened tieup of transportation.

RELIABLE REMEDY RESTORES KIDNEYS

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is a physician's prescription.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. Dr. Kilmer used it for years in his private practice. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it will help you. No other remedy can successfully take its place.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Road to Fame.

William Dean Howells was talking, at his cottage at Kittery Point, Me., about a writer who, after a good beginning, had degenerated into a producer of trash.

"I suppose," said Mr. Howells, "he got discouraged with the moderate sale of his good work, and now hopes to sell his poor work abundantly."

Mr. Howells shook his head and smiled grimly.

"The road to fame," he said, "is crowded with men who, discouraged, are hurrying back."

They Fooled 'Em.

"Did anyone discover that you were a bride and bridegroom on your honeymoon trip?"

"No; we fooled every one. Instead of calling each other by our first names I called Jim 'Mr. Black' and he called me 'Miss Pinkly' just as we did before we were engaged. We were just as formal with each other as strangers would be."

WHAT EVERY WOMAN KNOWS.
Every woman takes great pride in having her home well kept, in having the family wash done early in the week. Good bluing is needed even more than good soap. Be sure to use Red Cross Ball Blue.—Adv.

Not Stationary.

Lady—Mary, I should be delighted if I had as much hair as you.

Servant—Well, ma'am, you can borrow it any time you like!

Never bow to the inevitable before you meet it.

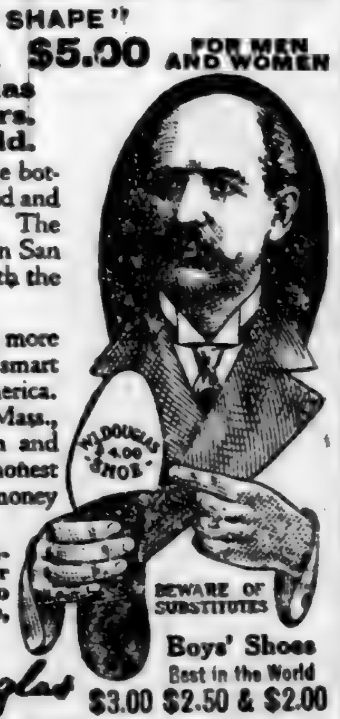
W. L. DOUGLAS
"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"
$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.



Boys' Shoes
Best in the World
$3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

CLUB SHOULD BE SATISFIED

Organization That Persistently Fought for Shorter Skirts Might as Well Disband.

Twenty years ago an organization of women in New York began a fight to influence women to wear shorter skirts. The organization was known as the Rainy Day club, and branches of it were formed throughout the country. Mrs. A. M. Palmer, who has since its birth, has just announced that the fight has been won with a vengeance, and that the organization may as well disband, unless it should decide to reverse its bylaws and begin a crusade for longer garments.

When the Rainy Day club was organized, the style for women was to wear long trailing skirts that did a portion of the work now paid for by the street-cleaning department. Crusaders for shorter skirts produced volumes of testimony from physicians that the long, dragging, heavy skirts were wrecking the health of women, carrying disease germs and causing many kinds of grief. The rainy daisies, as they were then called, pleaded for skirts at least four inches from the ground. The fight was stubborn. For some time Fashion would not yield an inch. Then the bicycle fad came along and helped a little. Finally the shortening process gained headway, and even a casual glance skirtward today finds proof that the battle has been won, and the time has come to call a halt. It is high time that the Rainy Day clubs disband.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Like Master Like Man.

"No such thing as stuck-uppishness about her," says the loyal servitor, defending his mistress against the criticisms of the acquaintance who is inveighing against class discrimination and the attitude of the wealthy toward the working element.

"Well, but don't she order you around?"

'Sure she does. But, Lord, she bawls me out just the same as what she does her husband. She don't make no 'difference between me an' him, even."—Judge.

Flight of Imagination.

he were the last man in the world," re-he were the last man in the world,' remarked the haughty girl.

"No," replied Miss Cayenne. "If he were the last man in the world, he'd probably be so much in demand that you wouldn't even get a chance to propose to him."

Biology.

First Girl—What's biology, mean?

Second Girl—Why, it's the science of shopping, I suppose.

FOUND FLAW IN DEFENSE

Ingenious Excuse of Man Who Had Imbibed Too Freely Did Not Satisfy Policeman.

When Police Captain Patrick Costello met a man on the main street of Dobbs Ferry loudly and joyfully disturbing the peace of the historic hamlet, he said: "My friend, you're drunk, and I'll have to run you in."

The stranger drew a tattered Bible from his pocket and, leading the captain to the nearest street lamp, read, with fervor: "First Timothy, five, twenty-three: 'Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake and thine often infirmities.'"

The captain scratched his head and thought. Finally he said: "What were you drinkin'?"

"Well," replied the stranger, "the last one was beer."

"Then," said the captain, "you lose on a technicality, and it's come with me."

So the stranger, who said he was John Hasch of the Bowery, New York, was locked up to await the morning session of the police court.—Cincinnati Times Star.

Hard Ideal.

"The new ideal of patriotism—patriotism and preparedness—is a hard ideal to reach up to."

The speaker was Representative Gardner of Massachusetts. He continued:

"Yes, before this splendid ideal the soft and selfish citizen is like the farm boarder.

"'I guess,' the farmer said to his new boarder from the city, 'I guess ye won't want to get up very early in the morning, hey?'

"'No, by heck!' said the city chap with a laugh; I think I'd prefer to sleep late.'

"'All right,' said the farmer. 'In that case, then, we won't have breakfast till 4:30 a. m."—Washington Star.

Not an Endurance Test.

Two soldiers caused some amusement at a golf course the other day. The first man teed up and made a mighty swipe, but failed to shift the ball. The miss was repeated no fewer than three times.

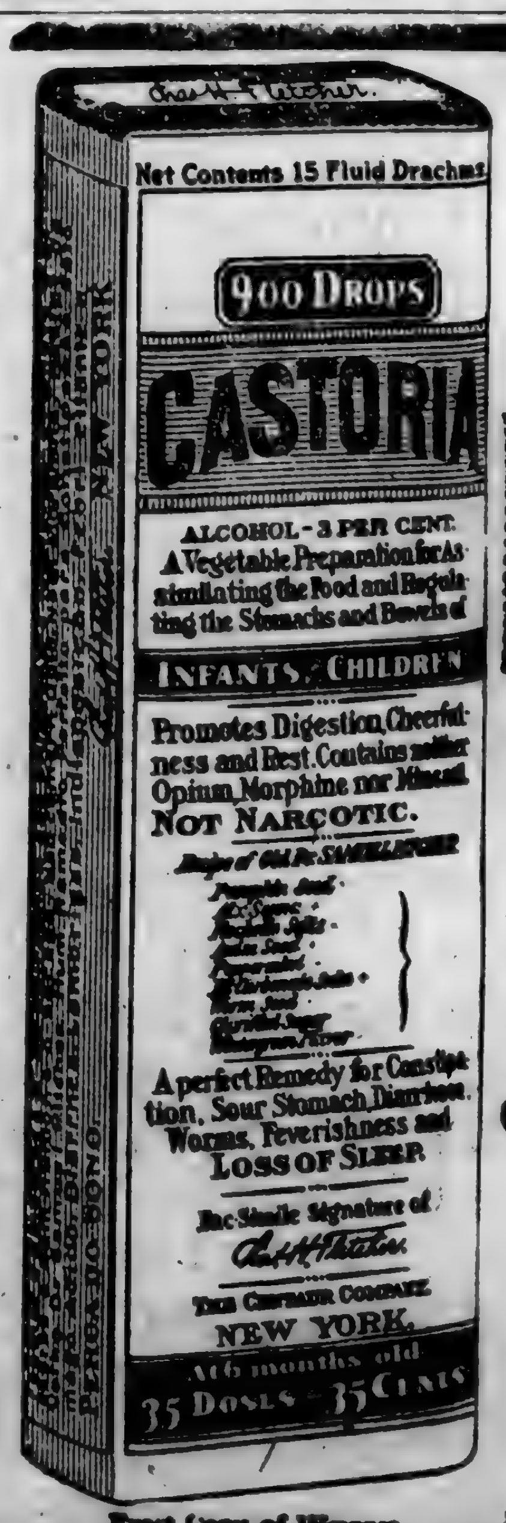
His pal was unable to stand it any longer.

"For heaven's sake, Bill," he broke out, "hit the thing. You know we have only four days' leave."

Economy.

"Pop, what do we mean by economy?"

"Spending money in such a way as not to get any fun out of it, my son."—Judge.



Chas. H. Fletcher.
Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS / CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
THE CENTAUR COMPANY,
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES — 35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's

CASTORIA

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic, all Teething Troubles and Diarrhoea. It regulates the Stomach and Bowels, assimilates the Food, giving healthy and natural sleep. The Children's Panacea—The Mother's Friend.

GENUINE CASTORIA ALWAYS
Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years
The Kind You Have Always Bought
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

The St. Joe News

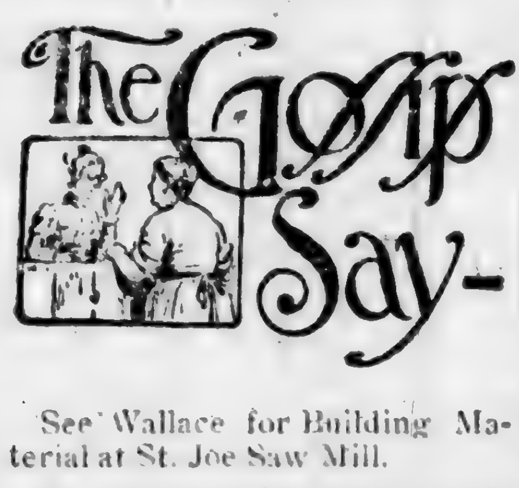
Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year, - - - $1.00
Six Months, - - - .50
Three Months, - - - .25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

The Gossips Say-



See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Mr. Perkins and family and little Harold Reinoehl, of Fairfield Center, were Sunday guests of John Reinoehl and sons.

Genuine Hocking Coal $3.60 from car or $3 95 delivered up to Jan. 1st. St. Joe Mills.

John Goldsmith and wife, the Misses Laura and Jennie Shutt, Mrs. Eva Elson and daughter, Miss Alta, all of Harlan, were all day guests of Mrs. Flora Simanton, Sunday.

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

"We're Going Forward".

Attorney Glenn Miller was on our streets, Tuesday.

D. C. McCann is improving the looks of his residence by applying a coat of paint.

Miss Helen Bowman returned home Saturday evening from a visit of a few days at Chicago.

J. C. Hart and family spent Sunday with John Hart and family in the west end of town.

Fred Saylor lost a gold watch at the Kendallville Fair, last week. He isn't sure whether it dropped from his pocket or whether a pickpocket helped himself to it.

Ross Bishop, wife and little son Stanley, of Rehobeth; Sol Bishop, wife and daughter Lucile, of Spencerville; Geo. McCann and family were Sunday guests of D. C. McCann and wife.

Earl Crawford, wife and children Elton and Helen, Vin Hutchens, wife and son George, all of near Sherwood, Ohio, were Sunday afternoon guests of B. F. Terman and wife.

Monday and Tuesday of this week, 1,500 bushels of apples were sold at the Spring Brook Fruit Farm to customers calling. One man drove 90 miles Tuesday and took 28 bushels of apples home with him in a Ford.

Bishop is the Co. Chairman.

M. T. Bishop, of our little city, has been selected as County Chairman of the Prohibition, at a meeting held at Auburn a few days ago, and Rev. A. K. Mumma, secretary. Prof. W. O. Bailey of Angola, the party's candidate for Congress, was present and made the principal address of the convention. He told of the principles advocated by the prohibition party and gave a very able address. The audience gave him the best of attention and his speech was well received.

Mrs. Jennie Andress is quite ill at her home in the west end of town.

C. A. Patterson and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Addie Filley.

Glen Abel and wife, of Spencerville, were Sunday guests of Tom Abel and wife.

Tom Rickett has sold his property to Howard Northrup. Consideration $1,400.

Mrs. Lee O. Tustison, who is suffering from typhoid fever, is reported much better.

Harry Hursh and wife, of Garrett, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Marsh Andress and wife.

Mrs. Amanda Shaffer will entertain the Martha Society of the Christian Church, this afternoon (Thursday.)

The report comes to us that Robert Bailey was married last week to a Miss Mavis. They will live at Busco, where he is driving the cream route.

Archie Simpson and wife, of Montgomery, Mich., and F. A. Patterson and wife, of Hicksville, Ohio, were Sunday afternoon guests of C. A. Patterson and wife, and Mrs. Ella Patterson.

Joseph Caw, wife and children, Frank and Alyce, left Monday morning for their home in Detroit. Mrs. Caw had spent the summer at this place with her mother, Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

C. A. Patterson and wife entertained at supper Thursday evening:—R. W. Patterson and wife, of Springfield, Ohio; S. W. Tustison, wife and daughter Margaret, Mrs. Ella Patterson, Mrs. Anna Simpson, and Miss Ina Shorden.

A union evangelistic campaign begins Sunday night, October 1, in Butler, conducted by Evangelist Fletcher and party. The opera house has been leased for the month and the greatest religious stir Butler has ever known is expected. The music will be in charge of Prof. F. E. Lindgren, of Chicago.

DEMOCRATS!

Your Attention, Please.

◆ ◆ ◆

A Get-together Meeting will be held on next

FRIDAY NIGHT SEPT. 29

At the Widney Opera House, St. Joe.

◆ ◆ ◆

For Democrats or any others who desire to affiliate with them. The county candidates will be present, also out-of-town speakers will be here-Harry Hilgeman of Wayne and D. W. Stump of Auburn. Music and refreshments will be part of the social program.

You Will Be Welcome.

Auspices of St. Joe Young Men's Democratic Club.

SUGAR!

is higher, but we have 1,000 pounds on hand bought before the recent advance, and will give our patrons the benefit of our purchase. We will place the last lot on sale next Saturday at the low price of 14 pounds for $1.00 with every 50 cts purchase in any department of the store—New Fall goods now arriving—Sweaters for Men, Women and Children—Big stock of Men's Fall Caps—Comforts and Bed Blankets—No advance on percales and outings this fall.

Come to us for rubber footwear, largest stock ever seen in the town. Bring us your eggs and get highest price. Next Saturday last chance to get cheap Sugar. With every 50 cent purchase you can get 14 pounds Standard Granulated Sugar for $1.00, as long as the lot lasts.

JONES

The Big 4 Store

St. Joe, Ind.

LOCAL NEWS

Strayed from the pasture Tuesday evening, a 2 year old white heifer. Report to John Knight.

Buy your next writing tablet and package of envelopes at this office.

Wm. Smith took dinner Sunday with W. E. Petersons'. Mrs. Smith remained at North Baltimore to assist in caring for her daughter-in-law, who is dangerously ill.

Harlan Coburn, of Quincy, Mass., reports the arrival of a baby girl at their home at 249 Washington St., on March 17, 1916.

Say, have you seen the new model 1917 Ford. Well, she is some car. Frank Silberg is the new agent in this territory and he reports a ready sale for the new model.

We have on display in our window a sample of the tomatoes raised by Chub Richmond at Newville, the beefsteak variety. He raised a nice crop of them and due to the quality, ready sale was afforded him.

News reaches our office of the death of Edgar Rohrer, formerly of South Bend, but later of Elkhart. He will be remembered as the husband of Miss Violet Everett, formerly a St. Joe young lady. After an illness of a few years he died at the home of her parents, with tuberculosis.

P. A. Shurts and daughter Pearl, left Monday for a two weeks trip in Michigan, making Bailey the principal point on their trip. Dr. and Mrs. Sheffer accompanied them as far as Angola to visit relatives. Mr. Shurts remained over night with an old friend, John McCrory, and then journeyed on to Coldwater and Grand Rapids.

The Concord township and Newville Young Men's Democratic club was organized at St. Joe Wednesday evening, with Attorney Walter D. Stump, of Auburn, was the principal speaker. Clark Scholes, democratic candidate for county surveyor, was elected chairman; Harry Smith, vice chairman, and Everett Maxwell, secretary. There was an attendance of 125. The capacity of the town hall was taxed to its uttermost capacity and great enthusiasm ran through the crowd, for Democratic success in the coming election.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 10
ST. JOE, - - - IND

Summer Fares

East

The Wabash is the direct line to Detroit, Buffalo and the East. Low Summer fares in effect:—

Round Trip
$15.70 to Toronto
$13.75 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls
$31.70 to New York
$30.50 to Boston

West

The Wabash and its connections now have new and far faster train service to Colorado, California and the West.

Round Trip
Colorado - - $36.60
California - $78.75
Yellowstone - $51.60
Salt Lake City $51.60
Portland, Seattle $79.10

WABASH

Find out about these and other summer fares. See the undersigned Wabash Agent or write to W. H. Shoney, Division Passenger Agent, Fort Wayne, Ind.
J. D. MILLIMAN, Agent, St. Joe, Ind. 9-30

St. Joe Locals

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

Albert Zimmerman, Rt. 2, of north of Concord, is a new subscriber to The News.

Class No. 3 and 4 of the Concord Sunday School had planned on having a Parcel Post Sale on Oct. 5th., but due to the Centennial Celebration, it has been postponed until Oct. 12th.

Going Too Far.

"It is shocking the way young women here put on bathing suits at home and then walk through the streets to the beach," said a visitor at a seashore resort.

"Oh, we're used to that," replied the resident, "and don't mind, so long as they go direct from their homes to the beach, but if one of them should tarry for an ice cream soda or yield to the temptation to drop into a movie show, I dare say it would cause a sensation."

Cool Consolation.

"Water you doing there?" asked the alleged funny chap, as a hobo picked up a hunk of ice from the sidewalk and hid it away in a mysterious recess of his habiliment.

"Jist takin' it kind uv cool, pard," replied the free lunch epicure. "Ain't dat de proper t'ing ter do dis hot weather?"

"Ice suppose so," answered the comic individual with a fiendish chuckle.

Collars Grow Wider.

Collars and cuffs grow bigger and bigger; it looks as though, before many moons have passed, the extreme style of 1880, when cape collars, falling almost to the waistline at front and back were worn, will have been reached. A smart neckwear set for wear over a simple silk frock or blouse, is of sheer batiste, with edge frillings of plaited net. The collar opens in a V and falls well over the shoulder, and instead of crossing in surplice fashion, the long ends are gathered up to form a sort of jabot. The cuffs reach the elbow and are buttoned all the way up with round crochet buttons.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —Editor News.

FOR SALE: Young cow, to be fresh in November. W. F. Hanabaugh.

For Sale: Sow and ten pigs. Joseph Boxer, phone 34-20, Spencerville.

FOR SALE: Good second hand Cook stove. Mrs. R. A. SMITH. Phone 79-3.

For Sale: Blue Bell Cream Separator, used 4 months. In best of running order.
H. F. Garton, St. Joe

FOR SALE:—8-room cottage house, small barn and 6 lots. Located at Orangeville. Price reasonable. J. R. CULBERTSON, Auburn, Ind.

FOR SALE—Honey. Harvey Eimes Sr., Spencerville, Ind.

Hard coal stove in fair condition for sale cheap. St. Joe Valley Bank

LOST: A velvet purse trimmed with beads, containing a small purse with a five dollar bill. Supposed to be lost between my home and Fairview church.
Mrs. J. W. Sheets

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed with Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

[illegible] druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Says an inside bath, before breakfast helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particulary those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

SEPTEMBER

SYSTEMATIZE

your household expenses by opening a bank account for your wife. Give her a check book and teach her the use of it. Pay the butcher, the grocer, the baker with a check. Then at the end of the month you'll find out just how much it costs you to run the home. When payment by check is made there never is any doubt as to whether or not a bill is paid. The check is a receipt.

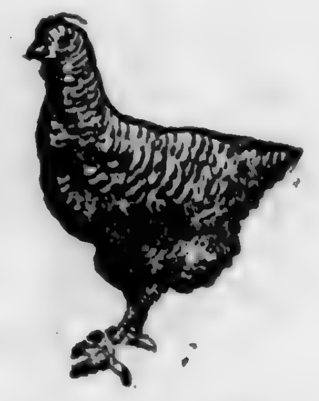
Besides, a checking account will give your wife a business education. The number of ordinarily bright women who know absolutely nothing of banking is surprising. If you are a husband, father, brother, you cannot tell when death may overtake you, and it is well that your wife, daughter and sister know something of banking.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND TODAY TO GIVE YOUR WIFE A CHECK BOOK.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana



POULTRY
taken in at Erick's
every THURSDAY
up to
3:00 o'clock.

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

A dandy line of those cool Sport Shirts for Men and Boys at Beams & Co., store.

Martin Peters and family spent Sunday the guests of Saul Bishop and family, east of town.

The news of the marriage of Miss Julia Baker, daughter of Mrs Porter Baker of this place, and Ross Palmerton, of near Butler, has just been learned. The young people eloped to Hillsdale, Mich. on Aug. 19th. The young people will reside on a farm near Butler.

Subscribe for this paper.

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

The Girls Pansy Club will be entertained Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Beatrice Wasson, west of town.

Mrs. Jesse Klopfenstein, who have been very ill with typhoid fever at the home of her parents, McClellan Hart and wife, is able to be around some at this writing.

The Harvest Home Services were well attended Sunday evening at the Lutheran Church. Flowers, fruits, grains and vegetables were displayed which made a beautiful sight.

Jean Widderfield and family, Mrs. William Widderfield and son Homer, of Harlan; Eli Fales and wife, and Harvey Kimes and family were Sunday dinner guests of Mortie Widderfield and family.

Dr. Frank Silberg has secured a year's lease of the entire building belonging to R. U. Bowser. He is the agent of the Ford cars in this vicinity. He will have both his vetenary and agent offices in this building.

Our Children's School Dresses will be here in a few days. Get the girls all fixed up the first thing at Beame & Co. store.

The East Springfield Center Aid Society, No. 3 Class of the M. E. Church and several neighbors of Mrs. John Beninghoff met at her home last Wednesday, and assisted her to quilt two quilts and knot two comforts. Pot luck dinner was served, and a royal good time was enjoyed.

Sell Your
POULTRY
TO ZONKER
BROTHERS
St. Joe, Indiana.
Highest Prices Paid.
Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.
PHONE NO. 12
Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

The C C Club will be entertained in an all day meeting at the home of Mrs. Perry Miller, at La Otto.

Mr. Becker, wife and daughters, Rachel and Wilma, and Mrs. Libbie Raub, all of Corunna; and Bill Chaney, of Auburn, took Sunday dinner with R E. Chaney and wife.

On Friday evening the Lutheran Christian Endeavor Society gave a reception in honor of the following members who have been gone during the summer:—The Misses Bertha Thornburg and Vera Silberg, who were at the State University, Boulder, Colorado; Walter Means, Angola; Charlotte Miller, Indianapolis; and Harry Hursh, Detroit. An excellent program was rendered. The room was tastefully decorated with flowers, fodder and pumpkins to represent Autumn. Lemonade, cake and grapes were served.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Jesse Klopfenstein, of Ft. Wayne; Wilmot Coburn and family, Wesley Hart and wife, and Floyd Coburn spent Sunday with McClellan Hart and wife.

Mrs. Luella Smith and children visited Sunday with Daniel Oberholtzer and wife, of Coburntown.

Mrs. Gerry Wasson was a Friday guest of Mrs. Frank Wertman.

Chas. Haifley, wife and baby spent Sunday at Harlan the guests of Mr. Amstutz and wife.

Effie Hart, of St. Joe, visited Sunday with W. O. Millers'.

Mr. Herrick and wife, Mrs. Nelson, Mrs Miller, Mrs. John Swaidner, of Ohio, Martin Beery and wife, and Lewis Markle and wife were Sunday visitors of Henry Beery and wife.

Mrs. Vernie Kelley and daughter Madonna, Mrs. Chas. Gibbons and Miss Lena Kelley spent one day last week, with Mrs. John Stafford, of Newville Center.

Mrs. Mary Cook and daughter Grace, made a business trip to Hicksville, last Wednesday.

Earl Stiman and family spent Sunday the guest of Frank Wertman and wife. In the afternoon they visited the Blue Cast Spring at Woodburn.

A reunion of the Shatzer family was held Sunday at the beautiful country home of Theo. Dinius and wife, two miles east of Spencerville Those present were:—J P. Bonnell and wife, J. McMacken and wife, Allen Shatzer and wife, S. McMacken and wife, Rozella Hoffman, Ellen Bonnell, Sylvia and Albert Johnson, all of Ft. Wayne; L. S. Zent and wife, Gerry Shatzer and wife, and W. O. Bishop, wife and two children, of Roanoke, Ind.

Jurors Drawn

GRAND JURY.

Milo Boren, Jackson.
Henry Leins, Richland.
Allen Feagler, Richland.
John W. Pepple, Grant.
James Ferguson, Jackson.
David Shook, Richland.

PETIT JURY.

Ernest Johnson, Concord.
Jerry Mortorff, Smithfield.
Brown Albright, Smithfield.
A. B. Hammond, Franklin.
John F. Ahrens, Fairfield.
Mathias Paulen, Jackson.
J. W. Jackman, Grant.
Delbert McBride, Wilmington.
M. H. Bishop, Wilmington.
Floyd Collins, Smithfield.
Newman Heffy, Union.
Miles Embry, Grant.

TALESMEN.

Wm. J. Blackman, Richland.
E. A. Eakright, Wilmington.
Archie Hewitt, Richland.
John Leins, Richland.
Sherman Funk, Spencer.
Ambrose Heitz, Butler.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer.

COLETOWN

Henry Kling and family Sundayed at Elmer Palmers'.

Lester Pierman and family spent Sunday with Edwin Gutherie and wife.

E. S. Ginther and family spent Sunday with Jim Evans and family. Henry Murphy and wife were afternoon callers.

Mame Craig and Irving Ginther called on W. E. Jacksons', Sunday evening.

Mrs. Della Hart and Gertie Mann called on R. H. Conines', Sunday afternoon.

Ross Bair, of Spencerville, spent Sunday with A. E. Millers'.

Old Settler's Day

Thursday afternoon (to-day) at the Hicksville fair ground will be held the annual reunion of the Pioneers of the Maumee Valley. Rev. J. W. Lilly, president of the organization, with the assistance of his executive force, is making a big effort to have this year's doings one of unusual importance. The program will open at 1 p. m. Sept. 28, and is as follows:—Song, Audience; Prayer, Rev. C. A. Moore; Solo, David Perry; secretary's report, E O. Stone; music, Imperial quartet; Old Settlers' short addresses; election of officers; music, Boughton Bros. and Richardson; annual address, Hon. L. W. Fairfield; music, Ohio Harmonic quartet; benediction, Rev, R. M. Gordan. After the program it is being planned to take all the old pioneers in an auto parade which will include a visit to the famous fruit farms of H. M. Widney and John R. Leighty near St. Joe, which are now attracting statewide attention because of the great crop of apples now being harvested.

Short Notes

Adam Shilling and family, and John Koch and wife, were Sunday visitors in the home of Wm. Shillings' near New Era.

A Vicious Pest
Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. [illegible]
RAT CORN
[illegible] 25c, 50c and $1.00. [illegible]

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20.

TAXES
You can pay here any time
NOW.
St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank
4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.
Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

Mystery
Dangers
Adventure

All move in rapid succession through the new serial about to be featured in this paper.

The Destroying Angel

By Louis Joseph Vance

It's a strange tale but it's very much alive. You want to be sure to read it, for it's the best story we have had in a long time.

HEARD AROUND THE CORNER

Saxe Hadsell and family visited relatives south of Hicksville, Sunday.

Herman Brown and family, of Auburn, were Sunday guests of H. C. Hathaway and family.

Mr. Yeiser and wife, of Avilla, were guests of their son, L. W Yeiser and family, a part of last week.

Will Hamilton, wife and daughter, Margaret Eleanor, and Mrs. R. H. Abel motored to Ft. Wayne, Saturday.

If it is a Separator you want, it's a DeLaval, and no other. Guaranteed in every way. See John N. George, St. Joe, Indiana.

Gust Baker and Mr. McConnell, of Wayne; and John Gillian, wife and son, Mahalie Bokhold, Mrs Lee Auspach, and Mrs. Martha Bowers, of Baldwin, Ind., were guests of Morris Lothamers', Sunday.

Mother's Responsibility

No part of the body is so seriously neglected as the mouth, nose and throat. If not kept sanitary they become a breeding place for germs. If Glando Gargle be used once or twice daily it will cleanse the mucus membrance and kill the germs. It is excellent for sore mouth in babies; soothes during teething. It relieves a cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever and prevents adenoids. For sale by all Dealers.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser
Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.
Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE,
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest in America Strongest in the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
BEN LEHMAN PROP.
Fort Wayne, Ind.

SEPTEMBER

0312

Happenings of the World Tersely Told

European War News

Some of the forts defending Halicz, the key to Lemberg, have fallen to the Russians, according to Petrograd dispatches which reached London.

* * *

An enemy transport, loaded with troops, was sunk in the Mediterranean by a German submarine, the admiralty announced at Berlin. The transport sank in 43 seconds.

* * *

The Greek forces transferred from Kavala to Germany will be lodged at Goerlitz, a town of Prussian Silesia, says the Overseas News agency at Berlin. The force is composed of 400 officers and 6,000 men.

* * *

Charles William Reginald Duncombe, second earl of Feversham, major of the Yorkshire Hussars, has been killed in action, it was announced at London.

* * *

Field Marshal von Hindenburg's master hand, directing 90,000 Germans, was felt on the western front on an extraordinary fierce assault against the new French positions on the Somme, according to the Paris La Libert's special correspondent in the field.

* * *

Prince Alexander Hohenlohe, in an article published in the Neue Zuricher Zeitung, appeals to the pope and President Wilson to bring about an "honorable peace." The prince argues it now has become evident that the war cannot be ended in the old style by the defeat of one belligerent.

* * *

The six-day battle in the Dobrudja has ended in a Russo-Roumanian victory. Field Marshal von Mackensen's right wing in Roumania is retiring to the south in the direction of the fortress of Dobric, says an official statement issued at Bucharest.

* * *

British and French losses in the battle of the Somme have reached about 500,000 men, the Overseas News agency at Berlin estimates.

* * *

Reuter's Telegram company at London says it learns officially that the Greek government has submitted a very urgent note to Germany regarding the removal to Germany of Greek troops from Kavala, and demanding that they be released.

* * *

The Roumanian army in Transylvania has been defeated. It has been driven back on both right and left flanks. Bucharest admits that superior forces have pressed the troops of King Ferdinand back on the northwestern front, and the Vienna report claims the expulsion of the Roumanian left wing from the province into its native land.

* * *

According to a dispatch to Amsterdam from Maastricht, 62 persons have been on trial at Haselt, Belgium, on charge of espionage, of whom 22 were condemned to death.

* * *

Serbian, Russian and French troops have driven the entire right wing of the Bulgarian army out of Greece across the Serbian frontier and are pressing on toward Monastir, according to official advices received at Saloniki. The Bulgar leaders are said to be evacuating that city.

* * *

Turning upon the Russians, the German and Austrian armies struck a smashing blow at the Russian line before Kovel. The Berlin war office announces that the Russian bridgehead Zarecze has been taken by storm, 31 officers and 2,511 men being taken prisoners.

* * *

Domestic

Dr. P. C. Regan, a Waukegan (Ill.) dentist, was killed when an automobile in which he was returning from a fishing trip at Fox Lake turned turtle near Ingleside, Ill.

* * *

Fire destroyed the grain elevator of McKenney, Rodgers & Co. of Chicago, located at Laporte, Ind. The estimated loss is $150,000.

* * *

Worth's museum at Newcastle, Ind., a private collection of relics and curios, said to be the most extensive of its kind in America, was destroyed by fire with a loss of probably $1,000,000.

* * *

American business men, aided by the federal reserve bank system, will be able successfully to withstand the shock of European competition after the war, in the opinion of Charles Hamlin, governor of the federal reserve board at New York.

* * *

Creditors of the Industrial Savings bank, an old-time private institution of Chicago, caused to be filed in federal court an involuntary petition for the appointment of a receiver. The institution's liabilities total about $1,000,000, with assets half that amount.

* * *

Organized workers in virtually every industry in greater New York were formally called upon to cease work Wednesday in sympathy with striking traction employees. Labor leaders assert approximately 600,000 men and women are involved.

Rear Admiral Caspar Frederick Goodrich, U. S. N., retired, is to wed again. His engagement to Miss Sarah Minis Hays was announced.

* * *

Seventy thousand dollars has been raised in the United States for the Holland-American Home for Homeless Belgian Orphans, it was announced by Miss Hendrika Van Der Flier at New York.

* * *

The Gullfoss, said to be one of the first Icelandic ships to visit the shores of the western hemisphere since the days of Lief the Lucky, tied up in the harbor at New York with a cargo of herring.

* * *

Fire at Peoria, Ill., practically destroyed the Majestic Theater building. The loss is estimated at $75,000.

* * *

Rt. Rev. Philip N. McDecitt was consecrated fourth bishop of Harrisburg in the cathedral at Philadelphia.

* * *

National Guardsmen and United States army regulars—26,000 of them in dust-stained khaki—swung through the streets of El Paso, Tex., and past a reviewing stand at Fort Bliss in the first parade and review of an infantry division at full war strength ever held in the United States.

* * *

Mrs. Amy E. Archer Gilligan, charged with poisoning five inmates of her home for elderly people at Windsor, Conn., was indicted on charges of first-degree murder by the grand jury.

* * *

Labor leaders of New York were given formal warning by Mayor Mitchel that he would employ the "full civil and military powers" conferred upon him by law to prevent disorders if the threatened general strike of trade unionists is called to aid the street car employees who quit September 6.

* * *

The Lake Carriers' association, through its executive committee, which met at Cleveland, O., provided an increase in wages to boatswains, firemen, watchmen, firemen, oilers, deckhands and coal passers, arranging the full schedule of wages on the great lakes.

* * *

Nine stores, ten houses and a score of sheds were destroyed at Erie, Mich., by a fire. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

* * *

Mexican War News

Reports reaching Brownsville, Tex., stated that a band of bandits under Alberto Carrera Torres has captured Victoria, capital of the Mexican state of Tamaulipas.

* * *

Two British subjects were taken from their home and shot and 36 of a party of 38 Carranza soldiers were killed in a raid September 16 on an Aquila oil camp near Tuxpam, Mex., by bandits calling themselves Villistas.

* * *

Washington was amazed when it received an account of Villa's raid on Chihuahua City from Brigadier General Bell at El Paso. General Bell says Villa captured a large supply of ammunition and made a speech from the balcony of the governor's palace after this and other buildings had been captured.

* * *

General Carranza notified Secretary of State Lansing at Washington that every American-owned mine in Mexico not in operation in 60 days will be confiscated. The threat is aimed at property valued at hundreds of millions of dollars.

* * *

Politics

It was announced in New York that Theodore Roosevelt and William H. Taft will shake hands, for the first time since their 1912 quarrel, at the Union League club October 3.

* * *

President Wilson and Vance C. McCormick, Democratic national chairman, mapped out at Long Branch, N. J., a program for meeting the campaign attacks of Charles E. Hughes on the railroad eight-hour law.

* * *

W. V. M. Knott was declared the Democratic nominee for governor by the state canvassing board in compliance with an order from the state supreme court at Jacksonville, Fla.

* * *

Foreign

The giant dam situated above Hannwald burst, says a dispatch from Berlin. Many lives were lost and enormous property damage was caused at Galdona, Bohemia and in Weissendesse valley, 250 bodies, many of them children, have been recovered. The villages of Deszendorf, Tiefenbach, Hannwald, Schumburg, Schwarow, Grosshammer and Haratz are inundated.

* * *

Washington

It was announced in Washington that Germany will pay an indemnity for all American lives lost in the sinking of the Lusitania.

* * *

The state department at Washington was officially [illegible] ded in a dispatch from Consul General Brittain at Sydney, Australia, of the release there of the 38 civilians of the Teutonic powers who were seized illegally while on board the American steamer China.

* * *

Great Britain formally apologized to the United States for the British violation of American neutrality in the Philippines when a British destroyer inside the three-mile limits stopped and searched the steamer Cebu, flying the Stars and Stripes.

WRITES ON PROPER FOOD AND COOKING

DR J. N. HURTY WILL ASK PUBLICATION OF BOOK BY LEGISLATURE.

IMPORTANCE OF DIET SHOWN

With Few Exceptions the Book Deals Only With Foods That Can Be Produced on Indiana Farms—Physiology and Chemistry.

Indianapolis.—Dr. J. N. Hurty, state health commissioner, has written a book for the state board of health which he thinks will be a rival to the "Indiana Mothers' Baby Book." Doctor Hurty recalled that the baby book was strongly opposed in the legislature, but finally permission was given to print it. It has made a tremendous hit throughout the United States, Doctor Hurty said. A copy of the baby book, which is illustrated and bound in blue, is given to mothers, and the state board of health is flooded with letters from grateful mothers who have received this book.

Doctor Hurty expects equally as enthusiastic reception for his new book, provided the legislature will permit it to be published and distributed. "A man is what he eats, how much he eats, and how he eats it," Doctor Hurty says. And with this idea in view he has written the new book with the title, "Plain Foods, How to Cook Them, How to Eat Them." With few exceptions the book deals only with foods that can be produced on Indiana farms. Among the exceptions are rice, oranges, prunes and raisins.

The first chapter tells the physiology and chemistry of nutrition briefly and as lucidly as possible. The second chapter gives a like treatment of the chemistry of foods. The third chapter sets forth the evils which attend over-eating, and especially the over-eating of proteids (meats) and the failure to masticate food properly. The second part of the book presents receipts. There are 20 nutritious and toothsome dishes made from corn products, and the reasons are given why corn is one of the best foods the farmer raises. Special attention is given to the making of good bread because it is well known there is much over-fermented and soggy bread eaten in Indiana, which produces stomach trouble.

"Stomach trouble," Doctor Hurty says, "is a common complaint in our state. One hundred doctors were asked what ill is brought most frequently to their attention, and every one of the 100 said stomach trouble. Stomach trouble and constipation are the bane of life. Stomach trouble comes entirely from the wrong eating of foods, or the eating of wrong foods. Constipation also is due largely to the foods we eat, coupled with neglect and the formation of bad habits." The cure of stomach trouble and constipation by a properly adjusted diet is described in the book.

Twenty methods are given for cooking apples. The book recommends that potatoes be baked or boiled with their jackets on, and the jackets eaten. It recommends that "French friend potatoes," "German fried potatoes" and mashed potatoes be served only occasionally, for variety's sake. The reasons assigned for eating the potato jackets are that in this way the roughage of the potato is preserved, which goes a long way to relieve constipation, but more particularly because the vitamines, which are the life-giving elements of the potato, lie principally next to the jackets. The German food dictator recently ordered that the German people eat potatoes only when baked or boiled, and that they shall not fail to eat the jackets. This is a measure to sustain the strength and health of the people.

The receipts for desserts are few, and are very simple. In regard to desserts the book says "they are a very valuable addition to our diet, but must be considered secondary." Two chapters are on the feeding of children and the preparation of school lunches.

Doctor Hurty said he had found by actual investigation that many school children are wrongly fed or underfed and suffering from malnutrition. He has found not a few who actually were starving. One little girl who was weak, of putty complexion and white-lipped, said her breakfast had been one batter-cake, with molasses. Her dinner bucket contained one soggy soda biscuit and one small tomato. This child was given no milk, and had not tasted an egg for weeks. The book says children cannot be strong without milk. The milk must be fresh milk, and not the canned variety. The fresh milk is teeming with life-giving elements while in canned milk these vitamines are killed by heat in evaporation.

"If the legislature will permit the publication of this book and its free distribution," Doctor Hurty said, "and if the people will heed its teachings, the general efficiency of the state will be increased 20 per cent."

Employer Must Pay.

Salesmen traveling from place to place receiving injuries occasionally by a collision between vehicles or common carriers are entitled to compensation under the new Indiana workmen's compensation act, according to a decision made by the state industrial board in the case of Thomas M. Blandford against James R. Ross & Co., wholesale liquor dealers of Indianapolis.

Blandford, a traveling salesman for the company, was hurt in an accident October 28, 1915, when an automobile which he was driving between North Vernon and Seymour was in collision with an interurban car.

The interurban company paid his medical and hospital services after his family had paid them. The check sent to the hospital by the interurban company was forwarded to his wife.

Ross & Co. contested the application for compensation on the ground that Blandford's injuries could not be construed as having been the result of conditions of his employment. The industrial board decided in favor of Blandford, holding that "when a traveling salesman is traveling from place to place, he is in the course of his employment, and an injury occasioned by a collision of vehicles or with a common carrier is an accident arising out of his employment."

Hoosiers on Guard Duty.

Mercedes, Tex.—Eight companies, including A and B of the Second Indiana, left for the Rio Grande to replace the Minnesota troops at Mercedes pumphouse, Progresso and Champion's store. They will do guard duty for two weeks.

Maj. H. Tyndall, commanding officer of the Indiana field artillery, is the proudest man in Texas because of the success his battalion made of its drill and review before Gen. James A. Parker, commander of the Brownsville district. He is especially proud because General Parker said it was the finest artillery drill he ever saw, and he has been seeing them for 44 years.

"I wish the people of Indiana could have seen that review and drill," exclaimed the major. "It certainly would make them feel proud of the Indiana battalion. The training the soldiers have been given here has been of great benefit; we have accomplished something by coming down here."

"And now are you ready to go home?"

To this suggestion the major made no answer.

Official reports sent out show there is considerable sickness at Llano Grande. So crowded is the field hospital that an addition with tents has been put up, and the surgeons are busy with many operations. However, the sickness is not serious, being for the most part dengue fever and para-typhoid fever and intestinal troubles. The surgical operations for the most part are minor ones, though there have been several major operations. The fact that there have been only three deaths among the Indiana troops, two of them being accidental, is regarded as remarkable.

Three Brigades in Review.

General Parker and General Lewis Friday reviewed the three Indian, Minnesota and Nebraska brigades at Llano Grande. It was a most brilliant review, held soon after sunrise. Every infantryman in the three brigades carried a fixed bayonet, and when the sun caught the long ranks of rifle points, it looked like a river of steel floating across the drill fields. Six artillery companies and the machine-gun company, with their new motor cars, were interesting units in the review. Several of the Hidalgo county school teachers witnessed the review. Not since the First regiment left Fort Benjamin Harrison has there been such a snappy drill as that at sunset Thursday. There were 50 reasons for this, and each reason wore a dainty summer dress, and watched the Hoosier soldiers with admiring eyes. In the past no one but soldiers and Broadway concession men had watched the sunset drills of the battalions and regiments at Llano Grande. The arrival of 50 pretty teachers at six o'clock Thursday evening put pep into every soldier. The three Indianapolis companies, A, C and D, were at their best. Not a man missed carrying out an order with precision and snap. The Texas school teachers applauded as the regiment passed them on the way off the field.

Troops Wish to Move.

There was a wild story at Llano Grande that the Indiana troops were to be transferred to El Paso, but like all the wild stories floating about the camp it appeared to be without foundation. However, the troops are jubilant over a report that they are to be moved anywhere.

THE SOLDIER'S DIARY.

Thirty-five newspaper correspondents who have been item chasing in the Rio Grande valley and a number of telegraphers left for the North. They seem to think all the stories have been exhausted.

In addition to the soldiers at Camp Llano Grande, three miles west of this place, about 5,000 more are stationed in the town and on its edge. A man without a uniform does not amount to much in these parts now.

Lieutenant Buschmann, quartermaster of the artillery, and Doctor Whitsell, the veterinarian, took a flashlight and automatic pistols and went wildcat hunting in the mesquite. They heard several cats, but did not get a shot at any of them.

One of the very first things a soldier in the camp has to do when the day begins is to shake the scorpions and little lizards out of his shoes. It does not make any difference how carefully the soldier hides his shoes, the scorpions will surely find them.

State Happenings

Columbus.—Harry S. Truitt, sanitary officer here, was forced to quarantine his own home because his three-year-old son has scarlet fever. This makes the eleventh case here.

Monticello.—John Sluyter, a farmer in Liberty township, dug up a watch lost 26 years ago by his father, Abraham Sluyter. The watch still is in good condition and can be used.

Michigan City.—Suicide as the result of taking paris green was the verdict returned by Coroner Kakinshaw in the case of Charles F. Krumm who became despondent because of domestic troubles.

Elwood.—Clyde Winn, a hotel man, picked up a jug he thought contained coal oil, to start a fire in the hotel kitchen. The jug contained gasoline and in the explosion Winn was badly burned.

Indianapolis.—For the first time here "canned music" was rendered at a funeral when several hymns were played by a talking machine at services for Samuel Miller, sixty-three, a pioneer resident.

Muncie.—A government weather bureau sation has been established here with Harvey Anthony, head of the high school department of science, as meteorologist or forecaster. The station will be in the high school building.

Wellsboro.—Fire destroyed the grain elevator of McKinney & Rodgers of Chicago, causing a loss estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000. Thirty-five thousand bushels of wheat in storage was destroyed.

Gary. — Because eighteen-year-old Annie Mallek is believed to have killed herself after receiving disheartening advice in a love affair from a clairvoyant, the city council plans to pass legislation practically barring all fortune teller establishments from the city.

Warsaw.—Dr. Charles Loomis, a physician in Etna Green, was fined $46 for assault and battery in the court of H. W. Graham, justice of the peace, as the result of a fight several days ago with Lew Eakins of Etna Green. The trouble arose over a case against Doctor Loomis filed by Pearl Yeazel, a niece of Eakins.

Laporte.—A. Piatt Andrew, former treasurer of the United States during the Taft administration, and now head of the American ambulance corps serving in France, will return to the United States early in October. Mr. Andrew is the son of Capt. A. P. Andrew, Laporte banker. It is presumed that Mr. Andrew is returning to the United States to seek volunteers.

Newcastle.—The museum of E. W. Worth, eighty, said to be worth a million dollars, was destroyed when the star-shaped building in which it was housed was burned to the ground. Among the things destroyed was what was claimed to be the head of Charles Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, and a collection of twenty mummies.

Laporte.—The Logansport Presbytery closed its sessions after electing Rev. John Burns of South Bend moderator, and Rev. S. A. Stewart of Rochester, stated clerk. The Presbytery adopted a resolution urging the state synod, which is to assemble at Huntington in October, to select Laporte for the 1917 meeting of the four hundred clergymen and laymen of Indiana. Plymouth was selected as the next meeting place of the Logansport Presbytery.

Columbus.—Alex Spry, age thirty-five, asked Mayor Volland, in the city court, to add his name to the list of habitual drunkards here. He had been arrested on a charge of intoxication. Spry told the mayor that his greatest trouble was his lack of ability to judge his own capacity. The mayor granted Spry's request. Copies of this list are on file in all local saloons, and the saloonkeepers have orders not to sell these men intoxicating drinks.

Huntington.—Herbert and Fred Covey, twelve and ten years old, played truant from school and got out their homemade canoe for a ride on Little river. The boat upset, throwing both into the water. Frank Hier, janitor of the school the boys attend, heard their screams, and, running to the river bank, he jerked off his coat and overalls and plunged into the water. He had to swim across the river, and the boys were under water when he reached them, but both were revived and are little the worse for their narrow escape.

Columbus.—Mayor H. K. Volland and Chief of Police Frank Huffman are restrained from interfering with amusements at the Red Men's carnival, by an order of Judge Hugh Wickens of Greenfield until an injunction suit filed by the Red Men can be heard. The Red Men, the mayor understood, intended to have games of chance at the carnival, which is to raise money for the campaign of Howard J. Tooley, for the position of great keeper of wampum of the state. The mayor had plainly stated that he would tolerate no gambling at the carnival.

Richmond.—Acting upon a report of the peace committee, the Indiana yearly conference of Friends, in session here, decided upon a vigorous fight against military training in institutions of learning, characterized as an attempt to "throw to the winds the teachings of God."

Sheridan.—Fred S. Purnell, Republican nominee for congress in the Ninth district, has been lined up with the nation-wide dry movement. He announced to an audience here that he will vote for the national prohibition amendment or a similar measure if he is sent to congress.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 1

PLOT THAT FAILED.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 23.

GOLDEN TEXT—They shall fight against thee; but they shall not prevail against thee; for I am with thee, saith Jehovah, to deliver thee.—Jer. 1:19.

The stirring events of this lesson occurred in the Castle Antonia and the Sanhedrin hall, near the temple court of Jerusalem; also in Caesarea, the Roman capital of Judea, on the Mediteranean coast, in the year A. D. 57, just at the close of Paul's third missionary journey. The lesson pictures two successive days of strange adventures in which Paul was concerned, a narrow escape and the unexpected providences used in his deliverance. The day was inaugurated by Paul's magic words "I am a Roman citizen," which caused the commander, Lysias, to release him from the threatened scourging, and made him more than ordinarily careful in his treatment of Paul.

I. Before the Elders (vv. 1-12). By referring back to chapter 21, v. 13, we find the charge which really underlay all of Paul's trouble, his preaching in the name of the Lord Jesus. Paul's defense is interesting. He gives us a rehearsal of his Christian life, laying emphasis upon its blamelessness and the fact that he is not an apostate Jew. The high priest speaks to silence him, but not gently. Although Paul for a moment seems to give way to his justifiable indignation, he quickly reveals his reverence for the rulers of the people. He then divides the sanhedrin. Read carefully chapter 22:6-7, and compare with verses 17 and 18. The sanhedrin could not explain this testimony of Paul, and were seeking to put aside the whole question. An interesting discussion would be to consider the insult to Paul. Was his indignation right and rightly expressed? Another question, the matter of Paul's apology. Just for what did he apologize? Is it ever wrong to speak evil of rulers? These were indeed days of stress and storm. Was Paul justified in dividing the sanhedrin in order to conquer their opposition to him? Again, how God used these incidents in the furtherance of the gospel is a suggestive lesson for us all. It has been hinted that Ananias was not in his priestly garments, and therefore perhaps not readily recognized by Paul. Paul may never have seen him, as he was elected high priest after Paul had left the council. It is interesting to note that it is not said that anyone struck Paul or that Paul did not apologize for his words or deny them to be true, but only for their being spoken to the high priest. Read in this connection what Christ said to the Pharisees (Matt. 23:27). Paul apologized because he had broken the law found in Exodus 22:28. In the trial of Christ one of the officers struck Jesus with the palm of his hand, whereupon Jesus answered him, saying: "If I have spoken evil, bear witness of the evil, but if well, why smitest thou me?" On the other hand, when Jesus was ill-treated by the common soldires, he opened not his mouth.

II. The Plot and Deliverance (vv. 12-35). Paul's prospect was not a pleasant one. In his darkness God appeared to his faithful servant to cheer him (v. 11). Perhaps Paul was tempted to think he had made a mistake in coming to Jerusalem over the protests of his friends, but evidently the Lord heartily approved of his testimony there. A dangerous conspiracy was forming against him, but God was, as he always is, beforehand with his comfort and preparation for the crisis. We have often speculated as to what became of the forty men who entered into it (see v. 12)—whether they actually lived up to their oath. If they did, they must have died of starvation. They were determined men, willing to go any length, and fancied they were doing the will of God. There is no more dangerous man than he who fancies that he must be the judge as to who are God's friends and who are his foes, and that he is the appointed executioner of God's judgment. The plot was well laid, and seemed certain of success, but it failed miserably. (See Psalm 2:1-4; 64:1-10; Isaiah 41:10). The wicked, who leave God out of their plans, no matter how cunningly they plot, are doomed to failure (Rom. 8:31). These plotters co-operated with the priest. Ecclesiastics have often descended to the lowest villainy. Men are not murdered today, though their reputations are often blasted by unprincipled and hellishly impelled professed followers of the lowly Nazarene. Paul had friends in this city. His nephew's discovery and revelation, and the Gentile soldier, a colonel, effered his deliverance. In the boy's heart there must have been great admiration for the uncle. It would be well for teachers of boys to have them repeat in their own language this boy's story. Paul was not safe in Jerusalem. The Roman governor recognized the nature of the conspiracy, and the desperate character of the Jewish fanatics, and therefore sent him under a strong guard to Caesarea, which was reached after a journew on horseback, lasting through the night and the following day.

SEPTEMBER

0313

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

Dangerous Effect of "Movie" Posters on Children.

SUGGESTIONS OFTEN VICIOUS

Need for a Concerted Movement to Control the Character of These Pictures Is Recognized by Enlightened Mothers.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

IT WAS a blood-curdling yell that came from the nursery and paralyzed everybody for a moment. And with the sobbing that followed immediately, the mother started for the children's room, the rest following apprehensively. Howard had hold of one end of the clothesline, the other end being tangled up about the neck and arms of weeping and protesting Louise. Between sobs the girl complained that brother had nearly choked her, and when there was a chance to get an additional word in the boy explained that they had only been playing and that he had not meant to hurt sister.

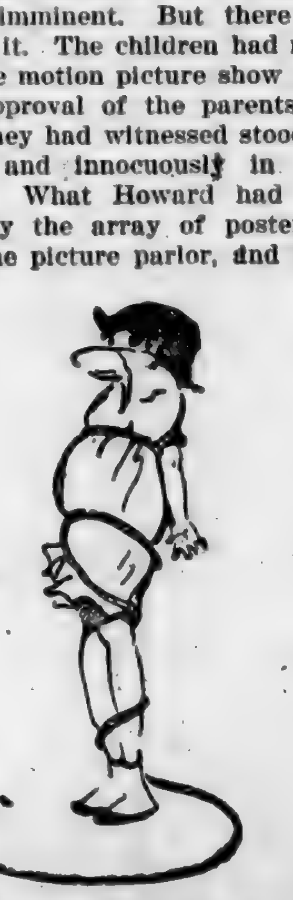
The children were soon disentangled and duly admonished not to play such dangerous games again. Howard was penitent and downcast and Louise cast about for sympathy. But mother had to ask the question that she had kept back with difficulty throughout the whole affair. Whatever made the child think of doing such an awful thing?

"Why, mother," said Howard, sensing a possible vindication in the historic sequence, "we were playing what we saw at the motion pictures."

This was more disquieting than ever, since it aroused suspicion of secret attendance upon the forbidden amusement parlors. Mother and father had agreed that the children were not to see any motion pictures, except such as had been strictly censored, first by the regular agencies and then by some member of the family. And so far as mother knew, the children had actually attended only three or four motion picture shows, of a perfectly harmless kind, and always in the company of some older member of the household. She therefore asked at once: "When did you see anything like that at the motion pictures?"

"This afternoon, on the corner of the avenue," came the reply.

That looked bad, for mother knew that the children were supposed to be in the park with the maid during the afternoon. Who took them to the show? Where did they get the money? Who gave them permission to go? For a minute the exposure of a scandalous plot was imminent. But there was nothing to it. The children had never gone to the motion picture show without the approval of the parents and the ones they had witnessed stood out distinctly and innocuously in their memories. What Howard had seen was merely the array of posters in front of the picture parlor, and there was nothing in law or morals to prevent a boy drinking deep from this fountain of inspiration.



Between Sobs She Complained That Brother Nearly Choked Her.

Now that she came to think of it, Mrs. Heath had noticed those posters, and had often remarked how fortunate they had been in keeping the children away from the undoubtedly demoralizing influences of the performances that those posters were attempting to suggest. But it had never occurred to her that the posters suggested quite enough to the imagination of the children, so that the actual performance was entirely superfluous. Indeed, with the censorship that is being maintained through the co-operation of private agencies with the manufacturers of the "movie" films the reels presented in most motion picture parlors, whereas the posters are in most cases more lurid and more suggestive than the pictures inside.

Within a few weeks Howard and Louise, and thousands of other children whose careful parents kept them away from the demoralizing effects of crude melodrama, were able to gloat on highly colored pictures representing:

A man choking a woman, the latter holding a dagger.

A woman choking a man, the latter holding a revolver.

A lynching party leading a man with a rope about his neck.

A veiled figure pushing a man from the edge of a precipice.

Masked men sawing the timbers on a railroad bridge.

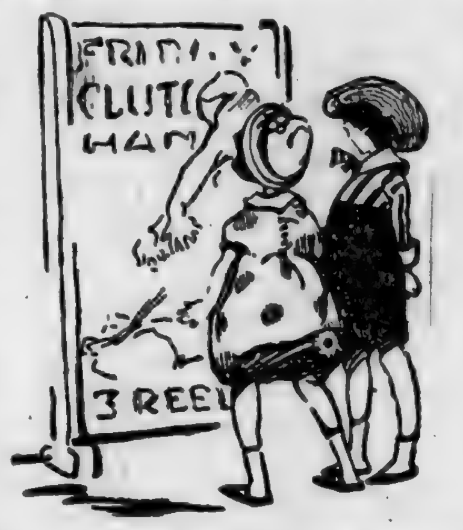
A woman pouring the contents of a suspicious looking bottle into a glass of liquor.

And many others equally suggestive of violence and fraud and deceit. Where there is a "change of bill every day" you get a large assortment of suggestions in a given time, but in all cases you get enough to stir the imagination of active youngsters.

Mrs. Heath, like so many other careful mothers, had tried hard to protect her children against the many degrading influences that every large city holds. She had tried the method of exclusion in relation to the home. By keeping improper books and pictures out of the house and by keeping the children away from improper picture shows she had hoped to solve the problem—for her own children.

Now she realized that the forces acting upon the development of children cannot be controlled by house rules or kept out by doors and shutters. Offensive comic supplements, so called, may be kept out of the house, but that does not insure the children against becoming acquainted with them the next day in the park or school. Objectionable theatrical performances or motion pictures are fortunately confined to restricted habitats, but the poster flaunts its crude or insidious suggestions where none can escape them.

There is enough in the house for intelligent and conscientious mothers to do to keep a person busy. But those who have a little time to spare and are looking for some worthy object upon which to expend their energies may do well to consider the need for a concerted movement to control the character of the posters used to interest the public in the motion picture shows. There has been great improvement in recent years in the character of the theater poster, but the "movie" poster which confines its ministrations to limited localities, remains a flagrant menace to childhood. There is an opportunity for enlightened motherhood to help through community service.



Howard Had Seen Merely the Array of Posters.

Used the Wrong Cask.

A certain milkman was in the habit of watering the milk before starting on his rounds in the morning. He is dead now, so we are not telling any trade secret.

One day, by some unlucky chance, the man omitted to do so, but to his joy he discovered at the first house he called at, a huge cask, strongly banded with iron, and filled to the brim with water, the head having apparently just been taken off.

Such a good chance of repairing his neglect was too good to be lost, and the milkman had just succeeded in watering the milk satisfactorily when the figure of the master of the house appeared in the doorway, and a voice asked sweetly:

"Are you sure you've put in enough, my man?"

Poor John was petrified.

"If I were you," continued the voice, "I should have chosen some other cask. My doctor has ordered me a course of sea water baths, you know, and you have just mixed your milk with salt water. But perhaps your customers like it that way."

Gasoline Danger.

A number of statements have been made at one time or another to the effect that the pouring of gasoline through a chamois skin in a funnel will generate enough electricity to ignite the gases, unless the funnel is grounded on the tank. This is contradicted by Professor Foley of the Indiana university. He says, however, that when the atmosphere is very dry, as it usually is on a cold, clear day, a man may become charged by scuffling about on a clean, dry floor, or his clothing may become electrified by friction, as noticed sometimes when combing the hair. Under such circumstances, pouring gasoline through a funnel, whether or not there is any chamois in it, gives rise to induced charges that are quite too complicated to be explained in a few words. Such charges might fire the gas.

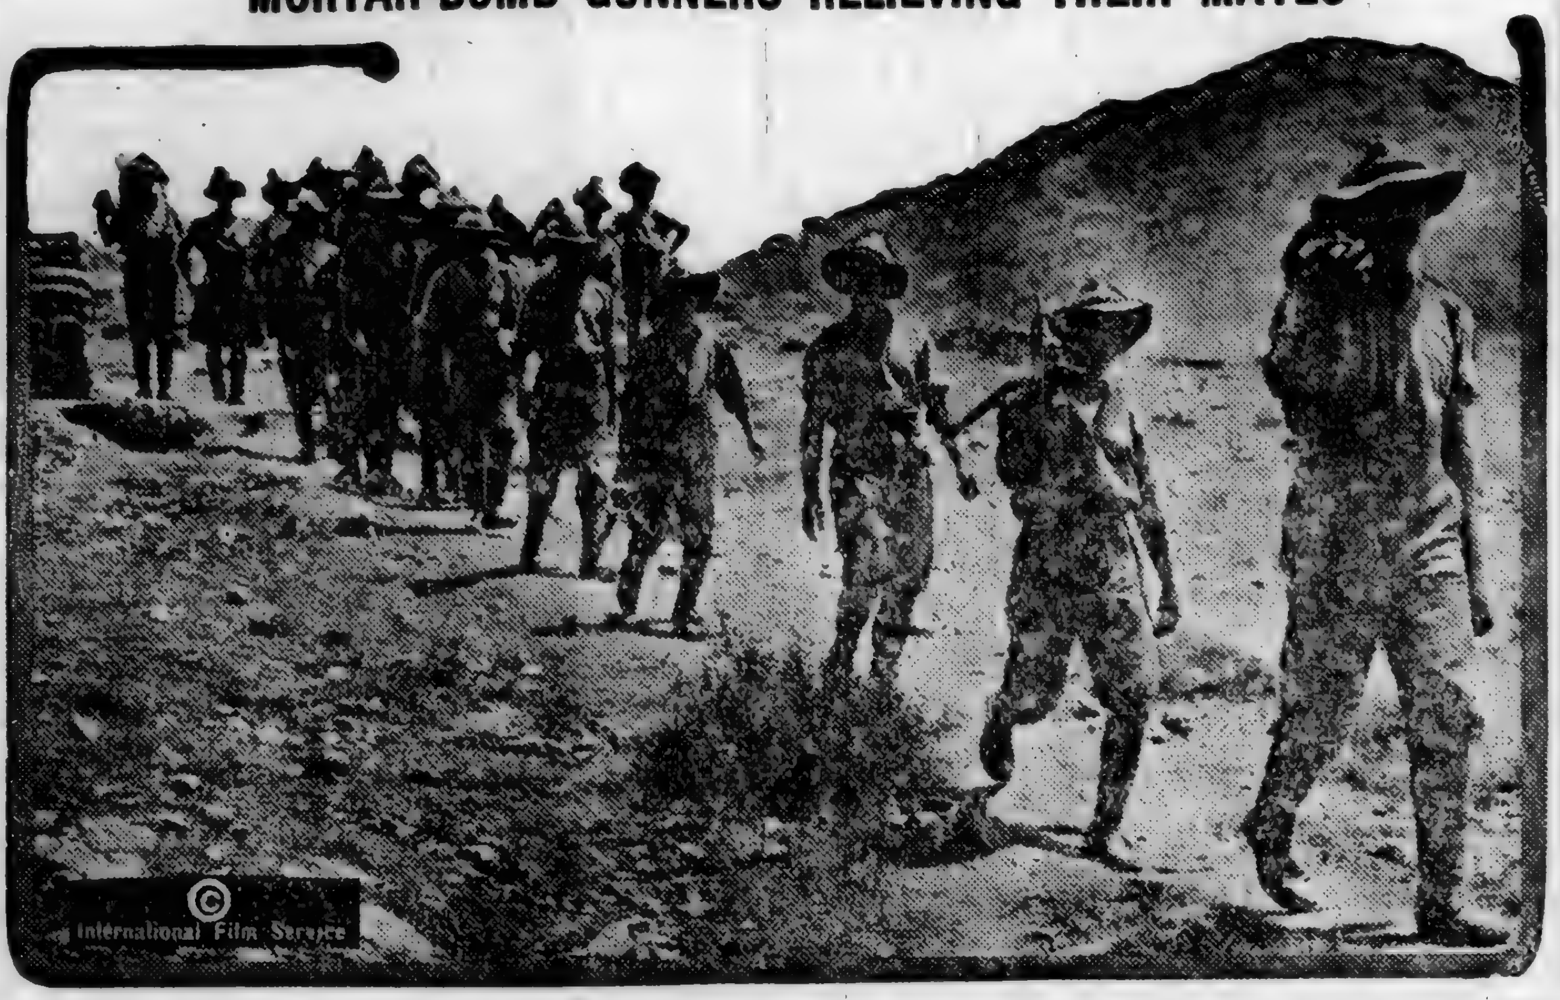
Much-Quoted Sentence.

In Proverbs 13:24, is the expression, "He that spareth his rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chastiseth him betimes." Later writers have given the expression other forms, either misquoting it or trying to improve it. Ralph Venning an English nonconformist preacher of the seventeenth century (1621-1674), and author of several religious works quoted it: "They spare the rod and spoil the child." Samuel Butler about the same time (1612-1680), quoted it "spare the rod and spoil the child." Butler was a famous coiner of phrases and probably was the first to give the Biblical expression that particular form.

Its Class.

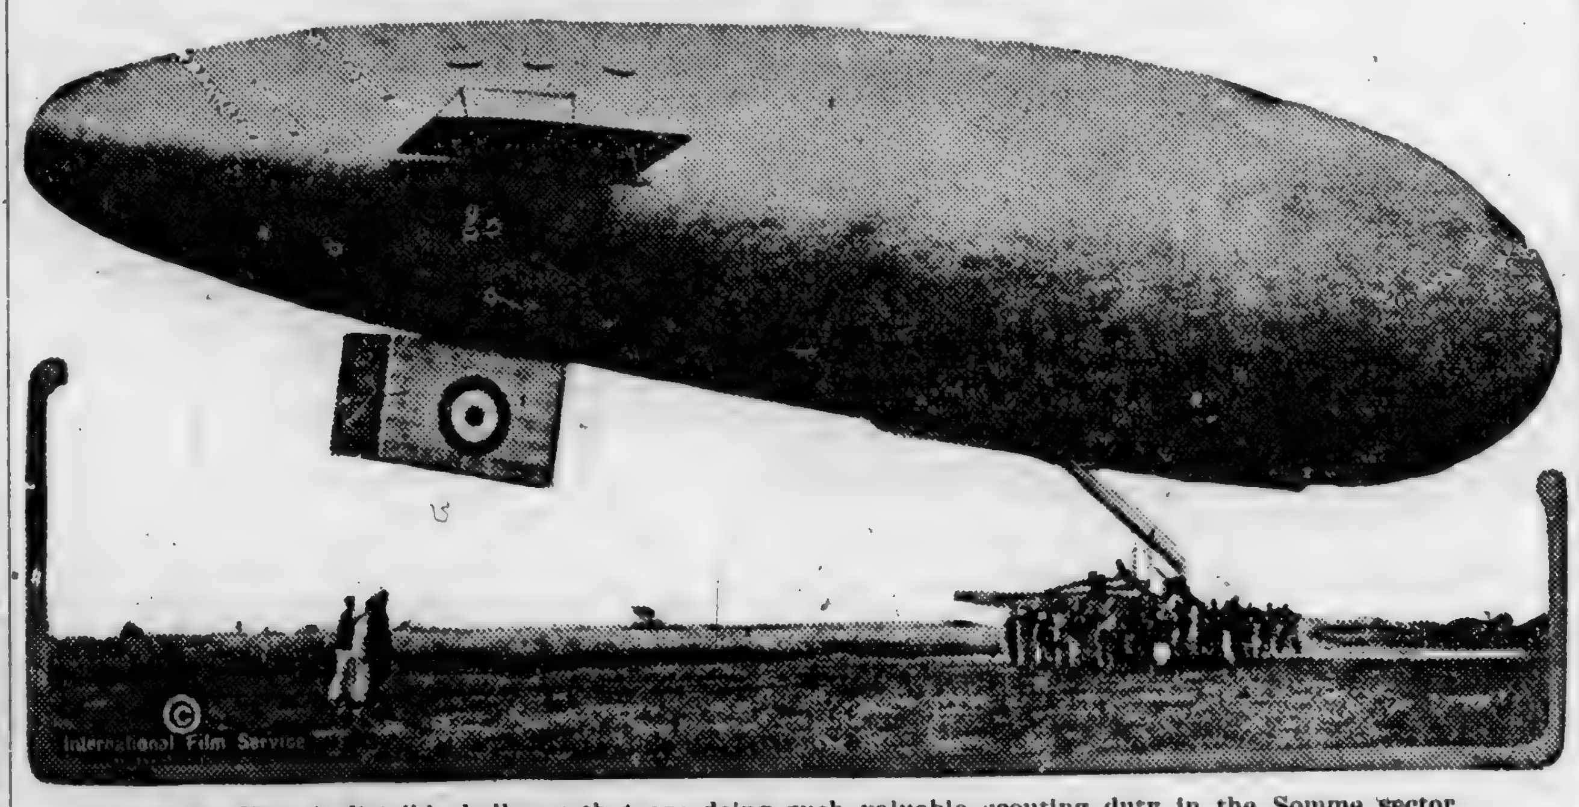
She—"I waive all claim to your pitiful, unworthy, utterly despicable affections." He—"Whew! but that was some hot waive!"

MORTAR-BOMB GUNNERS RELIEVING THEIR MATES



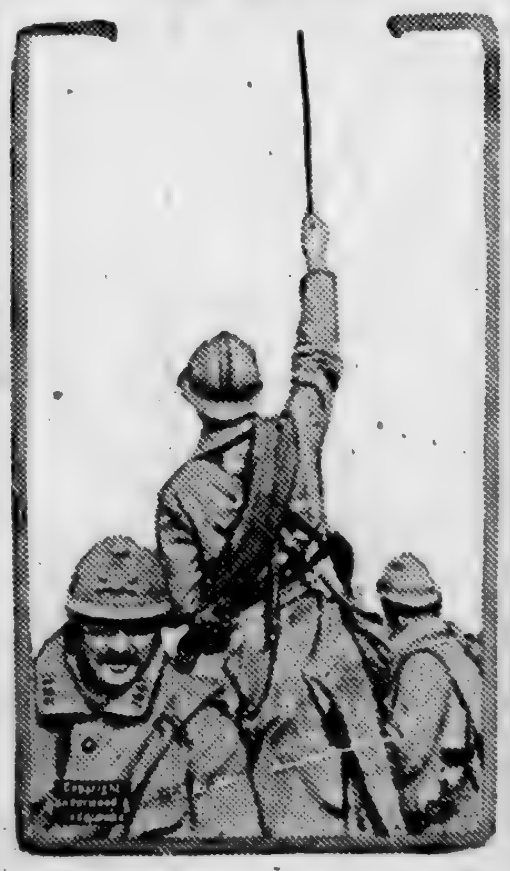
This shows British mortar-bomb gunners relieving their mates in the trenches during the fighting in the Balkans. The work is so nerve racking that the men find it difficult to stand by the guns for a long time.

FRENCH DIRIGIBLE IN THE SOMME REGION



One of the French dirigible balloons that are doing such valuable scouting duty in the Somme sector.

LEADING THE CHARGE



One of the heroic actions which take place many times a day on the Somme front. The soldiers with their eyes on their leader patiently await the command. The officer raises his cane and shouts, "Come ahead, men," and the soldiers leap from their trenches and with a rush charge the enemy, heedless of the raking fire of machine guns and bursting shells.

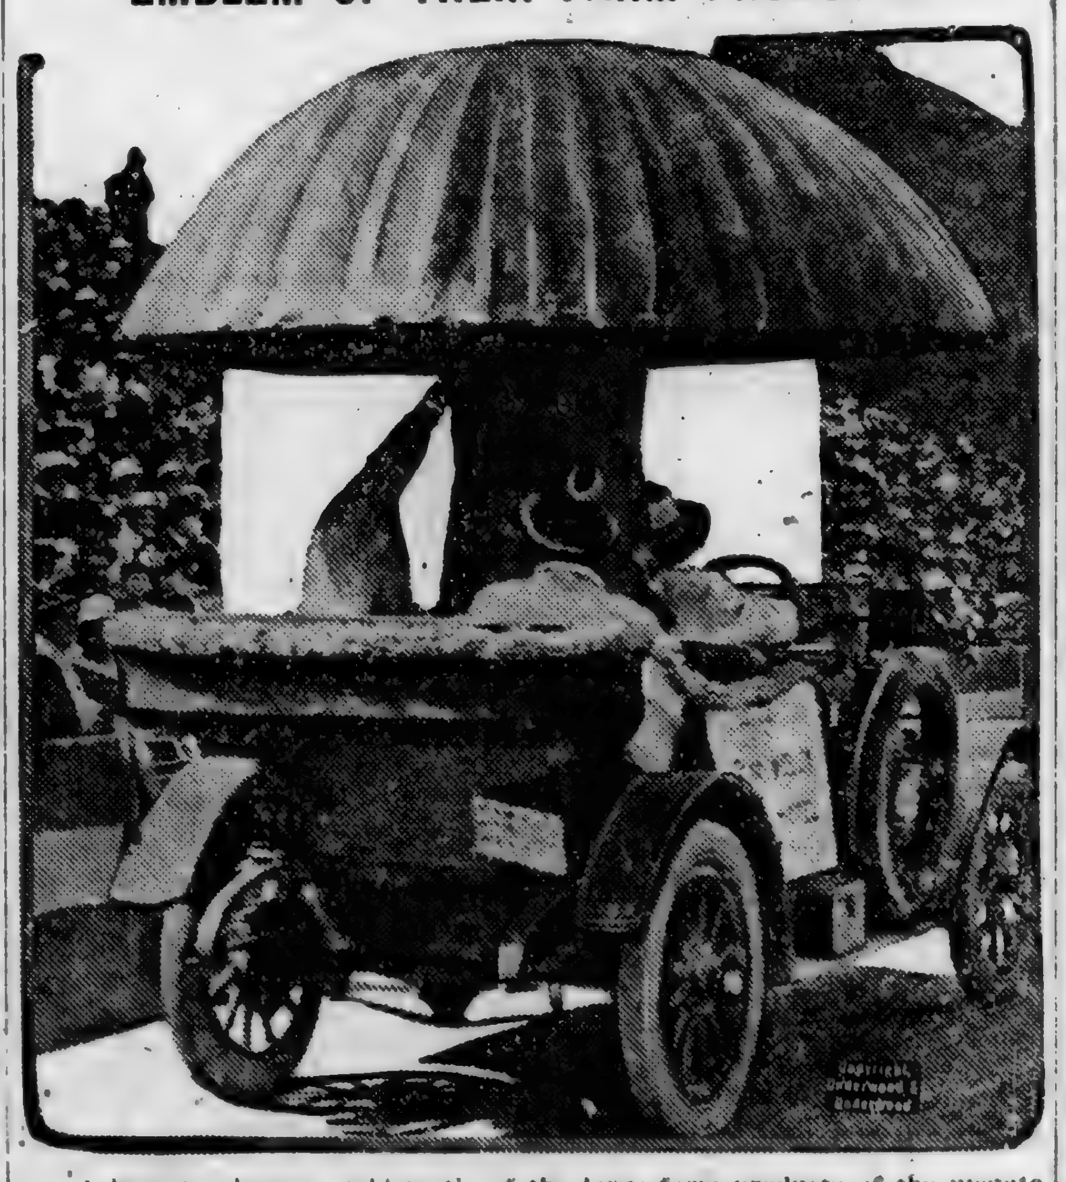
Browning's Sensitiveness.

The last time Lucy met Browning, the poet told him gleefully that he had just received a letter from an enterprising American weekly, which offered him $1,000 for a short poem. He declined in a characteristic letter. "If I could write in that way for anyone," he said, "I would consider this request from Boston, but I simply can't. An English magazine offered me a large price, which I refused, and then a still larger, which I again refused. Then they sent me a blank check and asked me to fill it out to my own satisfaction. I returned that also. I cannot bring myself to write for periodicals. If I publish a book and people want to buy it, that proves that they choose to read my work. To have them turn over the pages of a magazine and find me, that is to be an uninvited guest."

Home Cure for Hay Fever.

At last the great problem has been solved—how to cure hay fever without being rich. Fred Bailey, barber, discovered the cheap cure. It is just an accident. Fred went into the big cooler of the Hartford City Ice company's plant and when he came out he found that his hay fever was greatly relieved. He kept up this "treatment" for a few days, and now feels that he is almost cured. He spread the good news and now the cooler at the ice plant is the mecca for hay feverites. There they can enjoy with perfect impunity and no additional drag on their pocketbooks the gentle breezes from the artificial icebergs.—Indianapolis News.

EMBLEM OF THEIR FARM PRODUCTS



A huge mushroom, emblematic of the large farm products of the upstate farmers in New York state, in the parade of the state fair at Syracuse, N. Y. A monster crowd turned out for the fair, the mayor of the city having issued a proclamation making the day a civil and business holiday. Charles Evans Hughes was the guest of the mayor, and was up in the reviewing stand that is seen on the left.

SUPPLIES FOR THE FRENCH AT SALONIKI

The French army campaigning in Macedonia and having its base camp at Saloniki has been receiving great quantities of ammunition and supplies, preparing for an extended campaign in that section of Greece. Steamers loaded with the necessaries daily sail into Saloniki harbor, and transfer their freight to lighters, which carry the material to the allied piers.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it has saved many women from surgical operations.

Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice—it will be confidential.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S ASTHMA MEDICINE

Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00. Trial Package by Mail 10c.

WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

Her Remark.

The cataclysm was occuring. Huge buildings crashed down as if smashed by a gaint fist. The ground rocked. Tall trees fell fast. The tortured earth gaped in wide fissures. People ran wildly about, shrieking in frenzied terror. Mrs. Kidletts looked up from her novel.

"Rupert and Harold seem to be enjoying themselves," she murmured. "The dear little fellows are so full of animal spirits!"—Kansas City Star.

If the preacher is long-winded the best plan is to take up the collection before the sermon.

More than 1,000 kinds of sausages are known in Germany.

Why That Lame Back?

Morning lameness, sharp twinges when bending, or an all-day backache; each is cause enough to suspect kidney trouble. Get after the cause. Help the kidneys. We Americans go it too hard. We overdo, overeat and neglect our sleep and exercise and so we are fast becoming a nation of kidney sufferers. 72% more deaths than in 1890 is the 1910 census story. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands recommend them.

An Ohio Case

J. H. Truebe, 342 Harvard St., Youngstown, O., says: "Three physicians said I was in such bad shape with kidney complaint I couldn't live six months. For nine months I was confined to the house, most of the time in bed. My limbs were terribly swollen and my back pained acutely. The kidney secretions were scanty and I had awful dizzy spells. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and the cure has been permanent for years."

"Every Picture Tells a Story."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the liver is right the stomach and bowels are right

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cures Constipation, Indigestion, Sick Headache, and Distress After Eating.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

DON'T CUT OUT A Shoe Boil, Capped Hock or Bursitis FOR

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

will reduce them and leave no blemishes. Stops lameness promptly. Does not blister or remove the hair, and horse can be worked. $2 a bottle delivered. Book 6 M free

ABSORBINE, JR., for mankind, the antiseptic liniment for Boils, Bruises, Sores, Swellings, Varicose Veins. Allays Pain and Inflammation. Price $1 and $2 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Will tell you more if you write.

W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

APPENDICITIS

If you have been threatened or have GALLSTONES, INDIGESTION, GAS or pains in the right side write for valuable Book of Information FREE

E. E. BOWERS, DEPT. W-8, 319 S. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 40--1916

SEPTEMBER

0314

DeKalb County Centennial
CELEBRATION
AUBURM, INDIANA
Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, OCTOBER 4 to 6, 1916.
"Old DeKalb Always Leads."

All roads will lead to Auburn during the week of the Centennial celebration. Railway and Interurban Trains will run Just Right, an ideal auto ride from every section of N-E. Ind.

WEDNESDAY, OCT. 4:—Old Settlers' Day. Come. Bring your family and meet all your relatives and old-time friends.

THURSDAY, OCT. 5:—Organization day. Thousands of Lodge, Club and Society members will be in the parade with unique and attractive floats portraying in various phases the progress made during 100 years of Life in Indiana. Parade both morning and night.

FRIDAY, OCT. 6:—School Pageant Day, when thousands of school children of DeKalb Co. will be in line with floats representing the changed and changing conditions of the Educational Life of the county and state.

EVERY NIGHT will be seen folk drills and human flag presentation in which 800 school children will have a part. This will be one of the most spectacular exhibitions ever seen in Northeastern Indiana.

DOZENS OF FREE ACTS for the entertainment of visitors, such as the Purdue Agricultural exhibit, Educated Seals, Plantation Musicians, Lady Aeronaut, Band music every hour of the day, Open air moving pictures, and a thousand and one featuress that will keep everybody interested, entertained and instructed.

Everything Free! Don't Miss It.
Auburn, Ind., Wed-Thurs-Fri. Oct. 4-5-6.

BEAR CREEK FARM
LEIGHTY ORCHARD

Apples usually offered for putting away your winter supply are in bulk and delivered from the car door. They are nearly always "Orchard Run" or for some reason are not good enough to pack for retail market. They are seldom culled. OUR pickers are paid by the day and not allowed to hurry. The apples are handled in stiff crates to prevent bruising. They are machine graded and never handled in bulk. They will keep if you handle them as carefully as we do. You can use all of every one instead of having to cut out a lot and throw away. Poor apples are not cheap at any price. Our trade mark protects you—REMEMBER.

Cider same as last year 10c. per gallon if you furnish the container.

Local Briefs

H. L. Dunkle and wife, and G. M. Barney and wife motored to Hicksville, Sunday, and visited friends.

Clarence Swogger, wife and daughter Greta, and Clyde Suller, wife and daughter Claudine, all of South Milford, were guests of the ladies's sister, Mrs. John Milliman and family.

Mrs. Sarah Hull will entertain the W. C. T. U., Friday afternoon. Topic—"Looking Forward". The members are all requested to be present as this is the time of electing officers, and also delegates to the State Convention.

Pocahontas Lump—$4.25 from cars or $4.50 delivered up to Jan. 1st. St. Joe Mills

Will Hiltner and wife, of near Continnental, Ohio, spent Sunday with the latter's sister and husband, J. P. Buckingham and wife.

Mrs. B. S. Nelson, Reed Nelson, wife and baby, all of Antwerp; and Foster Gee were Sunday guests of Sam Gee and wife. The latter and former ladies being sisters.

A car of Bradley's Fertilizer will be in this week. Phone in your order and get from the car. Get it at Curie's.

Chester Bowman and wife, and Byron Leese and wife, of Waterloo, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. W. R. Weirs and daughter, Miss Grace.

WANTED!
YOUR POULTRY
For which we will pay the highest market price.
Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

NEWVILLE

Eston Ames, wife and daughter, and Ella Ames, all of Palasko, O., were Sunday guests of Grant Ames and family.

Potatoes are very small and scarce in this part of the country.

Roger Tryon was the dinner guest of John Miller and family, Sunday, and accompanied Byron Miller on a call to Trustee Tustison's home in the afternoon and from there to Sedan, on wheels.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, of South Chicago, were two weeks guests of their son, Lewis Palmer and family, returned home Saturday.

The two youngest children of Grant Ames and wife have been quite ill with Summer complaint.

Clyde Dean and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday guests of Mrs Mell Whitherst and family.

Lloyd Engle moved to St. Joe, last week. Wm. Miller is remodeling the vacated property preparatory to moving in.

The W. C. T. U., held their meeting Friday afternoon and elected Mrs. Ruppe, president. Mrs. John Miller, vice-president, not being able to be present we did not learn the others that were elected.

At a meeting recently held the U. B. Ladies Aid Society elected the following officers:—Miss Bertha Platter, President; Miss Laura Wyatt, Vice-president; Geraldine Rickett, Secretary; and Miss Gladys Kain. Mrs. S. J. Kain has been president for a number of years and is no doubt glad to be released.

Much money is being spent to pay car fare for delegates to the W. C. T. U., Conventions and other similar purposes. We think the money would be well spent in hiring someone to keep watch. The fellows here bring loads of wet goods from St Joe, Butler and other surrounding towns. No one is surprised when it comes from Garrett or Blakesley but when they get it at St. Joe or Butler we think something ought to be started on the hunt.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—The above statement may all be true, but remember the booze was not purchased here. Anyone of age can have it shipped in, and of course this is the cause of so much being distributed in this territory. There is not much use to try and change the attitude of the old soaks on this question but the fight must be waged on the coming generation.

Farewell Party.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Wyatt, pleasantly surprised them before moving to their new home in Auburn from their country home west of Concord, on Monday evening of last week. A lunch with hot coffee was served and all report having a good time.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Lawhead, Mr. and Mrs Alfred Reasoner, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shilling and daughter, Bonnie, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Provines and daughter Neva, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Culbertson and grandson, Harold Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Provines and son, Hubert, Mr. and Mrs. James George, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Beeber and son, Harold, Mr. and Mrs. John Farver, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone, Mrs Charles Widney and daughter, Ida, Mrs. Fred Draggoo, Miss Mattie Wasson and Art Warstler.

A similar event was held on Tuesday evening at the Widney home, before moving goods to Auburn. Miss Ida has returned to her school at Chicago, while Mrs. Widney and daughter are in Adrian visiting. She will return to Louisiana with her daughter and remain until Miss Ida finishes her schooling.

From the Border

Elpaso, Texas, Co. E, Sec. Reg.
Sept., 10th. 1916.

Dear Mother and Father:—

I expect you have been worrying yourself to death about me, not having heard from me for so long a time, but I am well and contented. We left Columbus on Tuesday and went through Kentucky and Tennessee. We stopped at Chattanooga and got off for exercise, and our section went off and left us, but we got on with another section and caught up with ours about 80 miles down the track. We saw some pretty good sized hills in Kentucky and Tennesee. We went through several tunnels, the longest being a mile. We passed over several large bridges, the largest being 8 miles long, another in Kentucky being 385 ft. above water, and one in Texas 321 feet above water. We are stationed a couple of miles from a large mountain and about 3 miles from from the borders. All the people that I have seen since leaving Columbus are negroes and greesers, the latter stick poles upright in the ground and plaster them with mud for their houses. The soldiers all carry loaded guns. We have cots to sleep on here. We arrived at Elpaso the 9th., about 5 o'clock but did not unload until this morning. Well this is Sunday p. m. but I have worked hard about all day and am feeling some tired so will close with love to all.

DEWEY MILLER.

Cough Medicine Made at Home
400 Per Cent. Saved
why Pay $2 Per Pint for Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine—50 cents worth—and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. For sale by all Dealers.

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,..............No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Widney Opera House.

"Then I'm to understand there's no hope for me!"

Such is the opening remark of the principal character in the corking good story we have secured for our next serial

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The doctors assure him that the mysterious disease from which he is suffering will be the death of him within six months. So the young man starts out in search of a quiet place where he can die peacefully and at once. His plan is frustrated by a chance meeting with a girl in distress, bent on suicide. He marries her so she may have the benefit of his fortune, then departs for the South Seas on a yachting trip with a friend.

Then things begin to happen; he doesn't die as predicted and he has all sorts of adventures in rapid succession. Every installment is alive with interest. Be sure you don't miss the issue containing the first one.

Watch for It!

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Send in your news items.

"We're Going Forward".

Will Hamilton, wife and daughter were Sunday dinner guests of Ross Abel and wife.

Mrs. J. B. Gibford, of Auburn, spent a couple of days this week, with relatives here.

Miss Myra Coburn left Monday for her home at Muskeegon, Mich., after a few weeks visit with her sister, Mrs. Winifred Hart and family.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching services 10:30 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m. This is a consecration meeting led by the president, Miss Stella Hull. Every member is expected to be present. If you cannot be present you should send a verse of scripture for response at Roll Call.

Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching Services, 7:00 p. m.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Prayer Meeting on Wednesday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m. Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching services, 7:30 p. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

Dying By Inches.

It is not an uncommon sight to see people who are dying by inches. The glands of the body are not working properly, poisonous matter accumulates and health declines. The circulation becomes sluggish, the blood impure, and a general nervous or debilitated condition exists. Day by day the liver and kidneys become less active, leaving the poisonous matter within the body. This poisonous accumulation causes the sallow complexion, and a tired, achy or run down feeling which, if neglected, may result in jaundice, typhoid fever or serious liver and kidney trouble. Glando, the great gland tonic, is especially prepared to relieve glandular disorders, throw off the poisonous accumulations and build up the system. Glando, the great gland tonic is the only treatment of its kind upon the market. Its superior qualities are due to the fact that it contains three separate treatments, each treatment having a special part to perform in effecting a cure. For sale by all Dealers.

Come in and pay that overdue subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

Try an ad in the Free col.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000
The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906
4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

OCTOBER

OCTOBER

L 908

0316

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY OCT. 5 1916 NO. 41

AT YOUR SERVICE.

In our Drug Business we are expected to handle Rubber Goods such as Syringes, Atomizers, Hot Water Bottles, Ice Bags, Syringe Fittings, Ect. We buy from factory direct and can guarantee you quality and make our word good.

Dunkle's Drug Store.

In Society

Miss Helen Bowman was guest of honor at a Miscellaneous Shower given by the Philathea Class at the home of Miss Inez Hart on Friday evening. After a few games. The principle feature of the evening was the "Shower Hunt" which was very amusing as well as unique. Strings leading from the electrolier to various parts of the house were taken up and followed by the bride-elect at the end of which she found a gift. The dining room where dainty refreshments were served, was very pretty in blue and white, the class colors. While the sitting room was aglow in the color chosen by Miss Helen for life that of "Golden". A large bunch of Golden Rods adorned the center table, while streamers of gold crepe paper draped the ceiling. Those present were the Misses Pauline Andress, Agnes Sechler, Lela Wallace, DeVeta Bayman, Ima Scholes, Stella Hull, Princess Krabill, Pauline Barney, Flossie Sechler, Eunice Leonard, Helen and Dorothy Bowman, and Inez Hart, Mesdames H. S. Bowman, E. W. Hart, William Curie and F. P. Hart.

The wedding took place at high noon Wednesday and the young couple left for Toledo. Complete details will be given in the next issue of the News.

At the W. C. T. U., meeting which was held Friday afternoon at Mrs. Sarah Hull's home north of the B. & O., tracks. After a brief program as follows:—Opening song, "Stand up for Jesus", Devotional led by Mrs. Grace Dilley who read the 12 Chapter of Romans responsively with those present, and called for sentence prayers; song, "Woman's Cause Shall Win"; Roll Call with responses from Current Events, and minutes of last meeting read by Secretary. Then came reports of officers and superintendents; the secretary reported eighteen new members added to the roll, eleven meetings held, announcements each month of meetings to be held from the pulpits of the three local churches. The treasurer reported a nice little balance in the treasury to begin the new year with fifty paid up members, and one honorary member; Superintendent of Flower Missions reported 486 boquets given to sick and aged, 213 text cards given out, 284 visits to sick made, 69 garments given where needed, $149.00 spent for Missionary work, fruits and vegetables to 212, delecasies 85, outings 83, Jellies 31, and pledges 34. The Superintendent of Press Work reported, write-up of eleven meetings for three papers the full year and two others part of the year, with the same number of notices of meetings, with between 20 and 25 feet of press work. The Literature Superintendent reported several thousand pages of literature handed out and put into the literature boxes in the B. & O., and Wabash depots. After these reports Mrs. Mary Buchanan read a very interesting story, "A Changed View Point". Then the following officers were elected to serve for the coming year:—President, Mrs. Jennie Sechler; Vice-president, Mrs. Lora Leighty; Secretary, Mrs. Chloe Hart; Treasurer, Mrs. Ada Bassett. Delegates for the State Convention which will be held in Huntington, October 13-17, were also appointed. They being Mrs Chloe Hart and Mrs. Anna Tustison; alternates, Mrs. Etta Hull and Mrs Ada Bassett. One verse of "Blest be the Tie that Binds" was sung, and Mrs Buchanan pronounced the benediction. The hostess served cakes, fruit and tea.

That car of Middlings has Arrived

We are paying highest market price for Timothy-Clover- and Alsike seeds. We have instock the following kinds of Coal: Pocohontas, West Virginia, Hocking Valley, Chestnut, Egg and Stove and Cannel coal.

Always Welcome At The
St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

How would you spend your remaining days if you were Doomed to Death Within Six Months?

Read what Hugh Whitaker does after receiving this sentence from three eminent physicians, as told in our new serial—

The Destroying Angel

By Louis Joseph Vance

Things happen to him, many of them very queer things. If you like action and surprises in your stories don't fail to read

OUR NEW SERIAL!

Personal Items

"We're Going Forward". Fresh Oysters, next week at Meat Market.

Mrs. Ernest Steward, of Spencerville, returned home Sunday after a week's visit with her parents, DeForest Brown and wife.

C. A. Patterson and wife, C. T. Bayman, wife and daughter, Miss DeVeta, motored to Hicksville, Sunday, and spent the afternoon with F. A. Patterson and wife.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Big Guns Are Fired

James A. Watson opened the Republican Campaign in DeKalb Co.; last Friday afternoon, making a complete tour of the towns. At St. Joe he was accompanied by 62 automobile loads of warm supporters. He made an excellent address to the vast audience, but due to the meeting not being advertised not many of our citizens were present. The largest Democratic Rally of the year was held Friday evening when the meeting arranged by the Young Men's Democratic Club of Concord township, was held in the Widney opera house and over 450 democrats were in attendance All of the seats were filled and standing room was hard to find. Harry Hilgemann, of Ft. Wayne, and W. D. Stump, of Auburn, made excellent speeches, the Auburn attorney especially being greeted by a great deal of applause The democratic quartet consisting of Frank Baltz, of Auburn, Ves McKennan, Carl Weaver and J. D. Brinkerhoff, of Garrett, also pleased in the singing of several campaign songs written by Frank Nelson, of Indianapolis, a brother of County Auditor Nelson. At the close of the meeting sandwiches and coffee were served. To be in line with the custom already established the Prohibitionists will be in shape for Saturday night of next week, with good speakers and good Should the weather permit the meeting will be held in open air.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

M. P	101	$4 12
Lutheran	89	3.00
Christian	58	2.02
Coburntown	97	3.04
Concord	88
New., U B.	66	2.50
M. E. Spencer	88	3 54
Lutheran	77	2 31

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

Of St. Joe News, published weekly at St. Joe, Indiana, for Oct. 1, 1916.

State of Indiana, County of DeKalb, ss:

Before me, a Justice of the Peace in and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Fred B. Leighty, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor and Publisher of the St. Joe News, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager are:

Publisher, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Editor, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Managing Editor, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

Business Manager, Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

2. That the owners are:

Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are:

None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the boods of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given, also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stick and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him

FRED B LEIGHTY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 3rd day of October, 1916.

S. S. WIDNEY, J. P.

"We're Going Forward."

Do not forget the big Rally Day program to be given at the Christian Church at the Sunday School hour, October 15th. A young Ladies' Quartett from near Hicksville, will furnish some special music. A young lady reader has also been secured. Each class will be represented on the program and all are trying for a full attendance on that day.

Rally Day Exercise.

Rally Day at Lutheran Sunday School, Oct 8. Military Program. Brigadier General A. K. Mumma wants all his soldiers to be there and bring new recruits.

Hart-Hood-Widney Company,

Hicksville, Ohio

GREATEST

CLOAK OPENING

of the Year.

Friday and Saturday this week, October 6th. and 7th.

We were extremely fortunate in securing a New York Manufacturers line of Womens Coats to be placed on sale for these two days only, that will give the ladies an opportunity to provide for their garments with a selection and at such modern prices unusual in this season.

Every Woman of St. Joe and Vicinity have a special invitation to this

CLOAK FEAST

Remember the Manufacturers line of Scores of Styles will be here for these two days only. These with our own large stock will give you the largest assortment to choose from seen in this section this season. Be sure and come. A. F. Theek representing the manufacturer, will be here these two days to tell you best styles.

OCTOBER

L 9

0317

WORLD'S EVENTS IN SHORT FORM

BEST OF THE NEWS BOILED DOWN TO LIMIT.

ARRANGED FOR BUSY PEOPLE

Notes Covering Most Important Happenings of the World Compiled in Briefest and Most Succinct Form for Quick Consumption.

European War News

Despite the refusal of the Italians to agree to an armistice, Austrian troops rescued Italians wounded and buried in the debris when Monte Cimone was blown up by Austrian mines, says Vienna.

* * *

All of Europe is "ready for peace," but Germany wants "only a truce." This statement was made in London by Lord Robert Cecil, minister of war, trade and blockade, in answer to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech at the opening of the German reichstag.

* * *

Roumanian forces have been repulsed at Hermannsstadt, Transylvania, and the heights south and southwest of the town have been captured by Austro-German troops, says the official statement issued from Vienna.

* * *

Germany will persevere until victory is hers, the reichstag at Berlin was assured by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg. The chancellor asserted that the harvest this year had made Germany's position much more secure than was the case last year.

* * *

The British forces have captured the greater part of a German redoubt north of Thiepval, which overlooks the northern valley of the Ancre, taking nearly 600 prisoners, according to the official statement issued in London.

* * *

Serbian and French dispatches received at London make evident that the Bulgarians are holding the road to Monastir against the advance of the entente allies on the western Macedonian front.

* * *

An ultimatum to Bulgaria and a declaration of war to follow it were prepared by the Greek cabinet at Athens, following the decision of King Constantine to enter the war.

* * *

Sofia reports that the Bulgarians were victorious on the western end of the Macedonian front, where they compelled the Serbians to retreat along the whole line. This statement denies the Roumanian victory in the Dobrudja.

* * *

A Bucharest dispatch dated September 25 to the Reuter Telegram company at London, says: "Later details confirm the report of a great victory for the Roumanians and Russians in Dobrudja."

* * *

Pressing home the advantage won by the capture of Thiepval and Combles, the British troops to the north of the Somme stormed and took German trenches on a front of 2,000 yards. They also captured the great enemy work known as "Stuff Redoubt." The British have captured between 3,000 and 4,000 of the enemy, says a statement issued in London, making a total of more than 10,000 men who have fallen into their hands in the last fortnight.

* * *

The council of Greek ministers has decided, in agreement with King Constantine, upon military co-operation with the entente powers, says a Reuter dispatch to London from Athens.

* * *

The battle for the Carpathian passes turned toward Roumanian success. The Berlin war office admitted that Roumanian troops have again occupied the heights on both sides of Szurduk and Vulcan passes in Transylvania and that the Austro-German forces had retreated.

* * *

Sixty persons were killed and a large number wounded in Bucharest in the afternoon by bombs dropped from a squadron of aeroplanes of the Teutonic allies, and five others were killed at night by bombs dropped on the city from a Zeppelin, according to an official communication issued at Bucharest.

* * *

Domestic

Rt. Rev. Dr. Huysche Wolcott Yeatman-Biggs, lord bishop of Worcester, who arrived in New York from England, corroborated the statement of a naval officer as to the navy operating the tanks. The bishop said that 100 of the tanks were sent to the czar.

* * *

The department of labor at Washington has given Sergt. Maj. Robert Middemus, a British soldier who had been blinded in battle, permission to remain six months longer in the country. He came here to collect funds for blind soldiers.

* * *

Two negroes, accused of being implicated in the killing of Deputy Sheriff James Gibson during a jail delivery at Nowata, Okla., were taken from the jail by a mob and lynched in front of the courthouse.

Evelyn Arthur See, notorious as the former leader of the Absolute Life cult, the expose of which resulted in one of the most sensational chapters in Chicago's criminal history, was refused an audience by the state parole board at Joliet, Ill., when he applied for clemency.

* * *

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, spent three weeks in Japan hunting for evidence of the "yellow peril." He announced in Chicago that he was firmly convinced by his investigation that Japan's feelings toward the United States are friendly.

* * *

Mrs. Frederick L. Small, wife of a wealthy Boston real estate broker, was murdered in the Small summer home at Lake Ossipee, near Mountain View, N. H. Small is under arrest pending investigation. The body was found after a fire had destroyed the home. A rope was around the woman's neck.

* * *

The widely exploited sympathetic walkout of trades unionists in Greater New York in aid of the striking carmen, which was supposed to have started, has not materialized, according to the police. The labor leaders claimed that upward of 110,000 quit work.

* * *

Leland Rice, one of four bandits who robbed the State Bank of Homestead, Fla., of $6,000, was shot and killed on Chokoloskee island, in Florida, by Rollo Wiggins, a resident.

* * *

The sum of $50,000,000 has been borrowed in this country by the city of Paris, France, it became known. The banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced at New York that they had closed negotiations with the municipal government of the French capital for a five-year loan to that amount in 6 per cent bonds.

* * *

Marked as prospective victims of the alleged "blackmail trust," the names of a long list of wealthy Chicagoans were read in court at Chicago from the pages of a little yellow memorandum book—the property of Buda Godman, government witness in the extortion of $15,000 from E. R. West, Chicago merchant.

* * *

Washington

The pension office at Washington announced the list of army and navy veterans who will receive an additional pension of $10 a month under a recent act of congress by reason of the fact that they are holders of medals of honor granted for having distinguished themselves conspicuously above and beyond the call of duty.

* * *

Foreign

Safe blowers held up and robbed the Bank of Hamilton branch at Caron, Sask., 18 miles west of Moosejaw, and escaped with $9,000.

* * *

General von Wandel has been dismissed from his post as deputy minister of war, according to a Berlin dispatch to Amsterdam.

* * *

Any statesman refusing to do everything possible against England would deserve hanging, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollwegg declared in his speech before the reichstag, which convened at Berlin.

* * *

Politics

President Wilson made it plain at Long Branch, N. J., that he wants no "disloyal" American to vote for him. He expressed indignation over a telegram from Jeremiah A. O'Leary of New York, president of the American Truth society, accusing him of being pro-British and saying he had failed to obtain compliance with American rights. The president sent Mr. O'Leary a short telegram which officials indicated Mr. Wilson had desired to put in stronger language.

* * *

John M. Parker, Progressive nominee for vice president, said at New Orleans he would take the stump against Charles Evans Hughes.

* * *

Mexican War News

More than a hundred Villa followers were killed, the bandit leader, Baudelio Uribe, was taken prisoner and heavy casualties were suffered by Carranza forces in a fight at Cusihuirachic, a mining center near Chihuahua City, according to a message received by General Trevino at Chihuahua City, Mex.

* * *

Fifty armed Mexicans, invading the United States, were driven back into Mexico near Ysleta, 12 miles southeast of El Paso, Tex., by a patrol of eight cavalry. One of the Mexicans dropped a Mauser rifle equipped with a sling branded "Troop K, Tenth U. S. Cavalry." This was Captain Boyd's troop, which suffered serious losses in the Carrizal fight.

* * *

The war department at Washington has ordered 10,000 additional members of the National Guard to the Mexican border immediately. A similar number of militia infantrymen now on the border will be released from service.

* * *

Satisfied of the inability of the Mexican commissioners to induce American bankers to float a loan of $100,000,000 or more, the American commissioners at New London, Conn., are prepared to submit a proposal for the establishment of a practical financial protectorate over Mexico.

MEDICAL INSPECTION OF FOOD HANDLERS

STATE FOOD AND DRUG COMMISSIONER ISSUES ORDER EFFECTIVE OCT. 1.

PENALTY FOR PROPRIETORS

Whenever Such an Employer Does Not Comply With Law His Place Will Be Reported as "Bad" and "Condemned."

Indianapolis.—H. E. Barnard, state food and drug commissioner, issued an order, effective October 1, which is intended to result in compulsory medical examination and successful passing of such examinations by all persons employed in food-handling establishments in the state.

The medical inspection of such food handlers has been going on in some localities of the state for some time, but the state-wide order is intended to compel such inspection and the elimination of all persons affected with communicable disease, or carriers of such disease, from food-handling occupations throughout the state.

The order to all inspectors of the state board of health carries a penalty for proprietors of such establishments who fail to comply with the law's provisions. Wherever such an employer does not comply with the law hereafter his place of business will be reported as "bad" to the state food and drug commissioner, and he will thereupon act on a recommendation from the inspector that the place be "condemned" by the state board of health, the condemnation "to remain in force until the required medical certificates have been filed with the local health officer." The order follows:

"Beginning October 1, 1916, you will give special attention to the inspection of the following types of food producing and distributing establishments, to-wit: Bake shops, groceries, hotel kitchens and dining rooms, restaurants, ice cream parlors, soda fountains, saloons and other places where food or drink is prepared or served.

"In addition to the customary sanitary inspection, you will require of the proprietor if he personally engages in his business, and all clerks, cooks, waiters, bus boys or other employees who come in contact with or handle food, a medical certificate showing such proprietor or employee to be free from infectious or contagious disease.

"You will make personal inquiry to determine whether the proprietor or employees have at any time suffered from typhoid fever, and if you find such to be the case, you will determine whether or not the necessary clinical tests have been made to prove the absence of the bacillus typhosus in the excretions of the persons examined.

"In the event you find that the proprietor or any of his employees as specified above has no certificate of health, or having had typhoid fever, is not proven to be a noncarrier, you will score the establishment 'bad' and recommend that the state commissioner of foods and drugs issue a 'condemnation' order against it, to remain in force until the required medical certificates have been filed with the local health officer.

"This order is issued in conformity with section 9 of the sanitary food law and the rule of the state board of health, adopted in January, 1916, ordering employers engaged in the production and distribution of food to require a certificate of good health of all employees.

"H. E. BARNARD,
"State Food and Drug Commissioner."

Fare Unit Decision.

That towns and cities in Indiana, through which interurban lines are operated, are passenger units and that no more than 5 cents fare can be charged within the limits of the unit is held true by the public service commission, which has decided a case at Elkhart, through a letter written by Charles A. Edwards of the commission to Rev. F. J. Jansen, a Catholic priest there.

Mr. Edwards said the Elkhart situation was the only "case of the kind" he knew of in the state. He said everywhere in the state a fare of 5 cents is charged for all travel within the city or town limits. Whether the passenger boards the car some distance from the central station of an interurban company in any city or town, or whether he boards it at the station, makes no difference in his fare from that city to another city and makes no difference in the 5-cent fare charged between points in the same city, Mr. Edwards said. If the passenger leaves the car beyond the central station of an interurban, but still within the city or town limits to which he has paid his fare, no additional charge can be made, Edwards said.

Rev. Mr. Jansen complained to the commission that the interurban car on which he was accustomed to travel to the rectory of the church stopped at the Elkhart central station, and that the conductor insisted on collecting additional fare from him if he rode on a few blocks to the rectory.

New Incorporations.

The Railroad Men's Building and Savings association, Indianapolis, has increased its capital from $15,000,000 to $17,000,000.

Crescent Drug company, Bedford; capital, $2,000; drugs; directors, Karl Kramer, D. Kramer and Frank Prevo.

Library Realty company, Indianapolis; has increased its capital from $80,000 to $80,000.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Anderson, has changed the manner of the election of its officers.

Historians Disagree.

The honor of suggesting the name of Indianapolis for the Indiana state capital will be divided between Samuel Merrill and Jeremiah Sullivan, so far as William C. Langdon, master of the pageant of Indiana, to be produced at Riverside park, October 2 to 7, is concerned. Several students of Indiana history have given their opinions to Dr. Harlow Lindley. They disagree as to which suggested the name.

"In view of what Doctor Lindley has received," Langdon says, "it seems to me that the weight of opinion is in favor of Judge Jeremiah Sullivan of Madison. On the other hand, Judge Sullivan himself said that Mr. Merrill was influential in getting the name adopted, and I have decided to represent the suggestion as having been made by the two together, giving Judge Sullivan the preference."

Among those who came to the defense of Jeremiah Sullivan when the state archivist wrote for opinions was Reginald H. Sullivan, great-grandson of the pioneer statesman. He said in a letter that it had always been understood in his family and by all historians who have written on the subject that Jeremiah Sullivan first suggested the name. Mr. Sullivan quotes from Col. W. R. Holloway's history of Indianapolis, which relates that the legislature on January 6, 1821, confirmed the choice of the state capital made by the commission and called the new city "Indianapolis."

Afterward, Holloway's history records, Judge Sullivan gave the following interesting account of the christening of the town: "I have a very distinct recollection of the great diversity of opinion that prevailed as to the name which the new town should receive on legislative baptism. The bill (if I remember rightly) was reported by Judge Polk and was in the main acceptable. A blank (of course) was left for the name of the town that was to become the seat of government and during the two or three days we spent in endeavoring to fill the blank there was in the debate some sharpness and amusement.

"General Marston C. Clark of Washington county proposed 'Tecumseh' as the name and earnestly insisted on its adoption, and when it failed he suggested other names that I have forgotten. They were all rejected. A member proposed 'Sewarron,' which met with no favor. Other names were proposed, discussed, laughed at and voted down and the house, without coming to an agreement, adjourned till the following day. I had gone to Corydon with the intention of proposing 'Indianapolis' as the name of the town, and on the evening of the adjournment, or the next morning, I suggested to Samuel Merrill, the representative from Switzerland county, the name I proposed. He at once adopted it and said he would support it. We called on Governor Jennings, who had been a witness of the amusing proceedings of the day before, and told him what conclusion we had come to and asked what he thought of the name. He gave us to understand that he favored it and would not hesitate to so express himself. When the house met and went into convention on the bill I moved to fill the blank with 'Indianapolis.' The name created quite a laugh. Mr. Merrill, however, seconded the motion. We discussed the matter fully, gave our reasons in support of the proposition, the members conversed with each other formally in regard to it and the name gradually commended itself to the committee."

State Fair a Success.

The finery of the state fair gave way to wreckage. Tents fell, exhibits were packed up and caravans of live stock moved out of the gates for home or for other fairs, while the state board of agriculture loaded its books on a truck to move its headquarters back to the state house. Members of the board were gratified over the results of the week.

About 90 per cent of the fair's premium money went into the hands of Indiana exhibitors, although there was keen competition from other states in all live stock departments. J. Crouch & Son of Lafayette led the list of winners with $1,427. C. M. Bottema of Indianapolis won $250 with his dairy cattle; M. K. Gleason of Indianapolis was about the largest winner of farm products, his premiums amounting to $462. The Hope Poultry Breeders' association of Hope led in poultry winnings with $307. T. S. Simpson of Downers Grove, Ill., won $513 on his ponies. Mrs. Minnie Smith of Converse was one of the largest winners in the show of table luxuries, her awards amounting to $105, while Mrs. Ben Hardin of Indianapolis won $73 on pies and cakes.

SHORT STATE NEWS.

Worthington.—A rattlesnake, more than five feet long, was killed in the springhouse on the farm of Melvin Heaton, near Freedom. It is the first rattlesnake found in this community in many years.

Muncie.—Mary Andrick, age five, in trying to avoid being struck by an automobile, stepped in front of a machine driven by Carlton Marsh, son of a Muncie manufacturer, and was severely injured.

Indiana News Tersely Told

Brazil.—William Jarrett, seventy-five, living near Harmony, was injured seriously when kicked by a mule.

Hartford City.—The Green street school was closed after it was announced that Gladys Sanburn, a pupil at the institution, is suffering from infantile paralysis.

Tipton.—Worth Hobbs, seventeen, was severely burned about the face when the gasoline tank of an automobile exploded. He may lose the sight of one eye.

Gary.—Dr. Charles Lynn Pyatt of Cambridge, Mass., has been called to the pastorate of the Central Christian church of Gary to succeed Rev. S. W. Nay, called to Duluth.

Bloomington.—Thomas M. Faris, widely known in the United Presbyterian church, died here. He gave $10,000 to the United Presbyterian mission board last Christmas day.

Vincennes.—Freeman Gary, a young farmer, is in jail here after shooting his father, James Gary, who is perhaps fatally injured. Young Gary maintains silence, but it is said that he shot his father to avenge an insult to his wife. The elder Gary went to the home of his son drunk, according to the story, and attempted to seize his daughter-in-law, who fled. Her husband followed the elder man to his home and shot him twice.

Laporte.—Louis Baker of North Adams, Mass., paroled from Jeffersonville, to James Shovlen of Cincinnati, and who violated his parole going to California where he married into a respectable family, gave himself up to the Elkhart county authorities. He was returned to prison. Baker says his wife persuaded him to return to prison and then she would get a pardon for him.

Indianapolis.—Fred Van Nuys, a Democratic leader, has reached the camp of the Indiana National Guard at Llano Grande, Tex., to obtain the registration of the Democrats in the guard. A representative of the Republican party will follow soon. Although there is no state law allowing the troops to vote when on duty and there is no assurance that they will be home by November, both parties are anxious to see that their voters are properly registered.

Columbus.—Ione Mosier, fifteen; Alto Robbins, sixteen, and Daisy Cordrey, seventeen, all inmates of the Bartholomew county orphans' home, left the institution and started to walk to North Vernon. When near North Vernon they asked permission to remain all night at a farmhouse. They became frightened when questioned and started to return here. They spent the night in the barn of Fred Waughtel, who held them until Sheriff Shaw of Bartholomew county was notified. The sheriff returned the girls to the institution.

Logansport.—The city of Logansport threw open its doors and welcomed the delegates to the thirty-second annual convention of the Indiana State Federation of Labor which opened a three days' session here. The meeting was called to order in the Elks hall by Victor J. Wagner, president of the Logansport Trades and Labor assembly. After welcoming addresses by Mayor Guthrie and others a response by Charles Fox of Indianapolis, president of the federation, Mother Jones addressed the convention for an hour.

Indianapolis.—Prison labor has become one of the important questions confronting the state of Indiana, after the heads of the penal institutions and members of the state board of charity agreed that the contract labor system in Indiana prison must go. Governor Ralston named a committee to investigate the labor situation in the prisons, and to recommend a system to succeed the contract labor systems, when the present contracts expire in 1920. His action followed a conference of officials and others interested in prison reform. Three distinct propositions were made to the conference, as follows: "That the state manufacture products, market them itself, and make the institutions self-supporting. That the state operate large farms, supplying all state institutions with agricultural products. That the state pay convicts for their labor, allowing them to support dependent relatives." One of the chief opponents of the convict labor system is Edward Fogarty, state warden of the prison at Michigan City. He asserted it caused ill feeling among the prisoners which hindered reform and declared every manufacturer who had hired labor in the prison had lost money. The state, he said, receives 65 to 75 cents a day for the convict's work. That outside labor does not suffer by the condition, however, was proved by the fact that no manufacturer had been able to make his business pay with prison labor.

Richmond.—President R. L. Kelly of Earlham college announced to the Indiana yearly meeting of Friends, in session here that with gifts totaling $11,000 this last week, a successful campaign for $100,000 for the endowment fund had been completed.

Shelbyville.—Mrs. Louisa Bradley, aged seventy-five, died at her home in Fairland. She was a daughter of Mrs. Francis Judd, a resident of this county, who died a few months ago at the age of ninety-nine. Mrs. Bradley is survived by one son, two daughters, one brother and two sisters.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 8

PAUL BEFORE FELIX.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Herein I also exercise myself to have a conscience void of offense toward God and men always.—Acts 24:16.

This is a court scene, and it might be well with certain classes to introduce the lesson by describing such a gathering. The lesson occurred five days after the last lesson, and twelve days after Paul reached Jerusalem, bearing the collection for the poor. The place, Caesarea, was the Roman capital of Judea.

I. The Prisoner's Examination (vv. 1-9). In addition to the Roman governor, Felix, attired in his gorgeous official regalia, on a platform nearby, were the high priest of the Jews, in his highly colored and jeweled robes, the lawyer, Tertullus, in his Roman toga, and the elders of the Sanhedrin who had come down from Jerusalem to be witnesses against Paul. Of Tertullus it was said that, by his persuasive tongue, he could make white seem black, and could therefore more easily make it appear that Paul was "a danger to the Roman power, and not merely a turbulent and renegade Jew." The judge, Felix, was an exceptionally bad governor, who two years later was recalled by Nero to Rome. The inference of verse two is that Paul was an inciter of rebellion and robberies, but the exact charges were three-fold: (See vv. 5-6) (a) that Paul was a mover of insurrection; (b) that he was a ringleader of a sect of Nazarenes who were causing trouble in the province: and (c) that he had profaned the Jewish temple at Jerusalem. The charge of insurrection would be especially obnoxious to Felix who had just been praised for keeping peace in his dominion. That of being a leader of heresy was not serious, for the Romans had no desire to interfere between one Jewish sect and another, but it led to the last one, viz., profaning the temple. The Romans had legalized the Jewish ritual, and for Paul to profane the holy place would be a serious outrage. The weakness of Tertullus' case was that he produced no evidence to support his charges. The accusers were there, but they had no witnesses.

II. The Prisoner's Defense (vv. 10-21). Paul cheerfully made his defense, for he knew the Jews and their customs, and that Felix had married a Jewess, (v. 24). We might consider this defense first negatively and then positively. On the negative side, Paul answers each charge seriatim. In the first place there had not been time for him to cause an insurrection (v. 11). Going back over these days; (1) his arrival in Jerusalem (21:15); (2) his appearance before James (21:18); (3, 4, 5 and 6), the days of his vow (Ch. 21:26, 27); (7) his arrest; (8) his appearance before the Sanhedrin; (9) the conspiracy and his deliverance; (10, 11, 12 and 13) in Caesarea (See Ch. 24:1). Paul's statement showed that the whole story of his experience was fresh in the memories of both friends and foes. It was the Jews who did the stirring up. Paul answers the second charge by acknowledging (vv. 14-16) that he belonged to the Christian way of salvation, but denied that this was heresy. Paul was a true Jew and a good Pharisee, for (1) he worshiped the same God (v. 14); (2) he believed in the Jewish law and prophets. From them he knew he could prove that Jesus was the Messiah. (3) He agreed with the Pharisees (v. 15) in hope toward God, a resurrection from the dead and immortal life. Paul's life was "void of offense" toward God in heart and worship, and toward men as shown in good deeds. It was for this that he exercised himself. Literally, he worked upon the raw material, disciplining and training it. Paul answers the third charge by a simple denial that it had actually taken place, and calls for witnesses. Positively, Paul explains that he had followed the God of his fathers, that he believed in fulfilled prophecy—literally the resurrection of Jesus from the dead—that he came to Jerusalem with alms for the poor, and, as before the council, he stands upon his integrity.

III. The Judge's Delay (vv. 22-27). Felix had a "more perfect knowledge of that way." We believe he had secured this knowledge from Philip, the evangelist, and from Cornelius, the Roman centurion, both of whom lived in Caesarea. By deferring his decision, Felix avoided an outrageous injustice to Paul, and at the same time gave serious offense to the troublesome Jews who knew of his evil conduct. From verse twenty-three we see that Paul was given liberty, literally such indulgence in freedom as would be consistent with his safety. Luke, the physician, and Philip, the evangelist, visited him here, bringing food, books and letters. After a time Felix and his wife, Drusilla, sent for Paul to talk with him "concerning the faith in Christ." Drusilla was a daughter of Herod Agrippa I (vv. 12-23), and a sister of Herod II (See Ch. 26). She was a beautiful woman, much younger than Felix who was possibly about sixty years of age. She and her only child perished in the eruption of Vesuvius.

THE ST. JOE NEWS, ST. JOE, INDIANA

The Turmoil

By

BOOTH TARKINGTON

(Copyright 1915, by Harper & Brothers)

CHAPTER XXXII (Continued).

—17—

Old Man Sheridan, mightily pleased with Bibbs, has gone to Mary Vertrees with the purpose of "fixing up" the "trouble" between her and his son. He wants to see the young folks happy.

"I'm sorry," said Mary. "I hoped you'd come because we're neighbors."

He chuckled. "Neighbors! Sometimes people don't see so much o' their neighbors as they used to. That is, I hear so—lately."

"You'll stay long enough to sit down, won't you?"

"I guess I could manage that much." And they sat down, facing each other and not far apart.

"Of course, it couldn't be called business, exactly," he said, more gravely. "Not at all, I expect. But there's something o' yours it seemed to me I ought to give you, and I just thought it was better to bring it myself and explain how I happened to have it. It's this—this letter you wrote my boy." He extended the letter to her solemnly, in his left hand, and she took it gently from him. "It was in his mail, after he was hurt. You knew he never got it, I expect."

"Yes," she said, in a low voice.

He sighed. "I'm glad he didn't. Not," he added, quickly—"not but what you did just right to send it. You did. You couldn't acted any other way when it came right down to it. There ain't any blame comin' to you—you were aboveboard all through."

Mary said, "Thank you," almost in a whisper, and with her head bowed low.

"You'll have to excuse me for readin' it. I had to take charge of all his mail and everything; I didn't know the handwritin', and I read it all—once I got started."

"I'm glad you did."

"Well"—he leaned forward as if to rise—"I guess that's about all. I just thought you ought to have it."

"Thank you for bringing it."

He looked at her hopefully, as if he thought and wished that she might have something more to say. But she seemed not to be aware of this glance, and sat with her eyes fixed sorrowfully upon the floor.

"Well, I expect I better be gettin' back to the office," he said, rising desperately. "I told—I told my partner I'd be back at two o'clock, and I guess he'll think I'm a poor business man if he catches me behind time. I got to walk the chalk a mighty straight line these days—with that fellow keepin' tabs on me!"

Mary rose with him. "I've always heard you were the hard driver."

He guffawed derisively. "Me? I'm nothin' to that partner o' mine. You couldn't guess to save your life how he keeps after me to hold up my end o' the job. I shouldn't be surprised he'd give me the grand bounce some day, and run the whole circus himself. You know how he is—once he goes at a thing!"

"No," she smiled. "I didn't know you had a partner. I'd always heard—"

He laughed, looking away from her. "It's just my way o' speakin' o' that boy o' mine, Bibbs."

He stood then, expectant, staring out into the hall with an air of careless geniality. He felt that she certainly must say at least, "How is Bibbs?" but she said nothing at all, though he waited until the silence became embarrassing.

"Well, I guess I better be gettin' down there," he said, at last. "He might worry."

"Goodby—and thank you," said Mary.

"For what?"

"For the letter."

"Oh," he said, blankly. "You're welcome. Goodby."

Mary put out her hand. "Goodby."

"You'll have to excuse my left hand," he said. "I had a little accident to the other one."

She gave a pitying cry as she saw. "Oh, poor Mr. Sheridan!"

"Nothin' at all! Dictate everything nowadays, anyhow." He laughed jovially. "Did anybody tell you how it happened?"

"I heard you hurt your hand, but no—not just how."

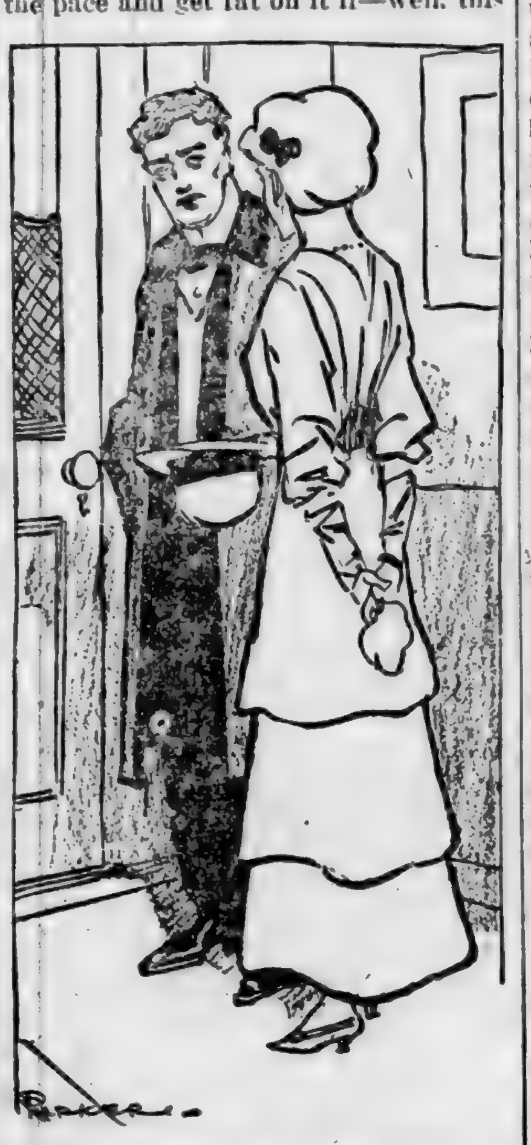
"It was this way," he began, and both, as if unconsciously, sat down again. "You may not know it, but I used to worry a good deal about the youngest o' my boys—the one that used to come to see you sometimes, after Jim—that is, I mean Bibbs. He's the one I spoke of as my partner; and the truth is that's what it's just about goin' to amount to, one o' these days—if his health holds out. Well, you remember, I expect, I had him on a machine over at a plant o' mine; and sometimes I'd kind o' sneak in there and see how he was gettin' along. Take a doctor with me sometimes, because Bibbs never was so robust, you might say. Ole Doc Gurney—I guess maybe you know him? Tall, thin man; acts sleepy—"

"Yes."

"Well, one day I an' ole Doc Gurney, we were in there, and I undertook to show Bibbs how to run his machine. He told me to look out, but I wouldn't listen, and I didn't look out—and that's how I got my hand hurt, tryin' to show Bibbs to do something he knew how to do and I didn't. Made me so mad I just wouldn't even admit to myself it was hurt—and so, by and by, ole Doc Gurney had to take kind o' radical measures with me. He's a right good doctor, too. Don't you think so, Miss Vertrees?"

"Yes."

"Yes, he is so!" Sheridan now had the air of a rambling talker and gossip with all day on his hands. "Take him on Bibbs' case. I was talkin' about Bibbs' case with him this morning. Well, you'd laugh to hear the way ole Gurney talks about that! 'Course he is just as much a friend as he is doctor—and he takes as much interest in Bibbs as if he was in the family. He thinks Bibbs isn't anyways bad off yet; and he thinks he could stand the pace and get fat on it if—well, this is what'd make you laugh if you'd been there, Miss Vertrees—honest it would!" He paused to chuckle, and stole a glance at her. She was gazing straight before her at the wall; her lips were parted, and—visibly—she was breathing heavily and quickly. He feared that she was growing furiously angry; but he had led to what he wanted to say, and he went on, determined now to say it all. He leaned forward and altered his voice to one of confidential friendliness, though in it he still maintained a tone which indicated that ole Doc Gurney's opinion was only a joke he shared with her. "Yes, sir, you certainly would 'a' laughed! Why, that ole man thinks you got something to do with it. You'll have to blame it on him, young lady, if it makes you feel like startin' out to whip somebody! He's actually got this theory: he says Bibbs got to gettin' better while he worked over there at the shop because you kept him cheered up and feelin' good. And he says if you could manage to just stand him hangin' round a little—maybe not much, but just sometimes—again, he believed it'd do Bibbs a mighty lot o' good. 'Course that's only what the doctor said. Me, I don't know anything about that; but I can say this much—I never saw any such a mental improvement in anybody in my life as I have lately in Bibbs. I expect you'd find him a good deal more entertaining than what he used to be—and I know it's a kind of embarrassing thing to suggest after the way he piled in over here that day to ask you to stand up before the preacher with him, but accordin' to ole Doc Gurney, he's got you on his brain so bad—"



"Bibbs Isn't Like Other Men."

Mary jumped. "Mr. Sheridan!" she exclaimed.

He sighed profoundly. "There! I noticed you were gettin' mad. I didn't—"

"No, no, no!" she cried. "But I don't understand—and I think you don't. What is it you want me to do?"

He sighed again, but this time with relief. "Well, well!" he said. "You're right. It'll be easier to talk plain. I ought to known I could with you, all the time. I just hoped you'd let that boy come and see you sometimes, once more. Could you?"

"You don't understand." She clasped her hands together in a sorrowful gesture. "Yes, we must talk plain. Bibbs heard that I'd tried to make your oldest son care for me because I was poor, and so Bibbs came and asked me to marry him—because he was sorry for me. And I can't see him any more," she cried in distress. "I can't!"

Sheridan cleared his throat uncomfortably. "You mean because he thought that about you?"

"No, no! What he thought was true!"

"Well—you mean he was so much in—you mean he thought so much of you—" The words were inconceivably awkward upon Sheridan's tongue; he seemed to be in doubt even about pronouncing them, but after a ghastly pause he bravely repeated them. "You mean he thought so much of you that you just couldn't stand him around?"

"No! He was sorry for me. He cared for me; he was fond of me; and he'd respected me—too much! In the finest way he loved me, if you like, and he'd have done anything on earth for me, as I would for him, and as he knew I would. It was beautiful, Mr. Sheridan," she said. "But the cheap, bad things one has done seem always to come back—they wait, and pull you down when you're happiest. Bibbs found me out, you see; and he wasn't 'in love' with me at all."

"He wasn't? Well, it seems to me he gave up everything he wanted to do—it was fool stuff, but he certainly wanted it mighty bad—he just threw it away and walked right up and took the job he swore he never would—just for you. And it looks to me as if a man that'd do that must think quite a heap o' the girl he does it for! You say it was only because he was sorry, but let me tell you there's only one girl he could feel that sorry for! Yes, sir!"

"No, no," she said. "Bibbs isn't like other men—he would do anything for anybody."

Sheridan grinned. "Perhaps not so much as you think, nowadays," he said "For instance, I got kind of a suspicion he doesn't believe in 'sentiment in business.' But that's neither here nor there. What he wanted was, just plain and simple, for you to marry him. Well, I was afraid his thinkin' so much of you had kind o' sickened you of him—the way it does sometimes. But from the way you talk, I understand that ain't the trouble." He coughed and his voice trembled a little. "Now here, Miss Vertrees, I don't have to tell you—because you see things easy—I know I got no business comin' to you like this, but I had to make Bibbs go my way instead of his own—I had to do it for the sake o' my business and on his own account, too—and I expect you got some idea how it hurt him to give up. Well, he's made good. He didn't come in half-hearted or mean; he came in—all the way! But there isn't anything in it to him; you can see he's just shut his teeth on it and goin' ahead with dust in his mouth. You see, one way of lookin' at it, he's got nothin' to work for. And it seems to me like it cost him your friendship, and I believe—honest—that's what hurt him the worst. Now you said we'd talk plain. Why can't you let him come back?"

She covered her face desperately with her hands. "I can't!"

He rose, defeated, and looking it.

"Well, I mustn't press you," he said, gently.

At that she cried out, and dropped her hands and let him see her face. "Ah! He was only sorry for me!"

He gazed at her intently. Mary was proud, but she had a fatal honesty, and it confessed the truth of her now; she was helpless. It was so clear that even Sheridan, marveling and amazed, was able to see it. Then a change came over him; gloom fell from him, and he grew radiant.

"Don't! Don't!" she cried. "You mustn't—"

"I won't tell him," said Sheridan, from the doorway. "I won't tell anybody anything!"

CHAPTER XXXIII.

There was a heavy town-fog that afternoon, a smoke-mist, densest in the sanctuary of the temple. The people went about in it, busy and dirty, thickening their outside and inside linings of coal-tar, asphalt, sulphurous acid, oil of vitriol, and the other familiar things the men liked to breathe and to have upon their skins and garments and upon their wives and babies and sweethearts. The growth of the city was visible in the smoke and the noise and the rush. There was more smoke than there had been this day of February a year earlier; there was more noise; and the crowds were thicker—yet quicker in spite of that. The traffic policeman had a hard time, for the people were independent—they retained some habits of the old market-town period, and would cross the street anywhere and anyhow, which not only got them killed more frequently than if they clung to the legal crossings, but kept the motormen, the chauffeurs and the truck drivers in a stew of profane nervousness. So the traffic policemen led harried lives; they themselves were killed, of course, with a certain periodicity, but their main trouble was that they could not make the citizens realize that it was actually and mortally perilous to go about their city. It was strange, for there were probably no citizens of any length of residence who had not personally known either someone who had been killed or injured in an accident, or someone who had accidentally killed or injured others. And yet, perhaps it was not strange, seeing the sharp preoccupation of the faces—the people had something on their minds; they could not stop to bother about dirt and danger.

Mary Vertrees was not often downtown; she had never seen an accident until this afternoon. She had come upon errands for her mother connected with a timorous refurbishment; and as she did these, in and out of the department stores, she had an insistent consciousness of the Sheridan building. From the street, anywhere, it was almost always in sight, like some monstrous geometrical shadow, murk-colored and rising limitlessly into the swimming heights of the smoke-mist. It was gaunt and grimy and repellent; it had nothing but strength and size—but in that consciousness of Mary's the great structure may have partaken of beauty. Sheridan had made some of the things he said emphatic enough to remain with her. She went over and over them—and they began to seem true: "Only one girl he could feel that sorry for!" "Gurney says he's got you on his brain so bad—" The man's clumsy talk began to sing in her heart. The song was begun there when she saw the accident.

She was directly opposite the Sheridan building then, waiting for the traffic to thin before she crossed, though other people were risking the passage, darting and halting and dodging parlously. Two men came from the crowd behind her, talking earnestly, and started across. Both wore black; one was tall and broad and thick, and the other was taller, but noticeably slender. And Mary caught her breath, for they were Bibbs and his father. They did not see her, and she caught a phrase of Bibbs' mellow voice, which had taken a crisper ring: "Sixty-eight thousand dollars? Not sixty-eight thousand buttons!" It startled her queerly, and as there was a glimpse of his profile she saw for the first time a resemblance to his father.

She watched them. In the middle of the street Bibbs had to step ahead of his father, and the two were separated. But the reckless passing of a truck, beyond the second line of rails, frightened a group of country women who were in course of passage; they were just in front of Bibbs, and shoved backward upon him violently. To extricate himself from them he stepped back, directly in front of a moving trolley car—no place for absent-mindedness, but Bibbs was still absorbed in thoughts concerned with what he had been saying to his father. There were shrieks and yells; Bibbs looked the wrong way—and then Mary saw the heavy figure of Sheridan plunge straight forward in front of the car. With absolute disregard of his own life, he hurled himself at Bibbs like a football player shunting off an opponent, and to Mary it seemed that they both went down together. But that was all she could see—automobiles, trucks and wagons closed in between. She made out that the trolley car stopped jerkily, and she saw a policeman breaking his way through the instantly condensing crowd, while the traffic came to a standstill, and people stood up in automobiles or climbed upon the hubs and tires of wheels, not to miss a chance of seeing anything horrible.

Mary tried to get through; it was impossible. Other policemen came to help the first, and in a minute or two traffic was in motion again. The crowd became pliant, dispersing—there was no figure upon the ground, and no ambulance came. But one of the policemen was detained by the clinging and beseeching of a gloved hand.

"What is the matter, lady?"

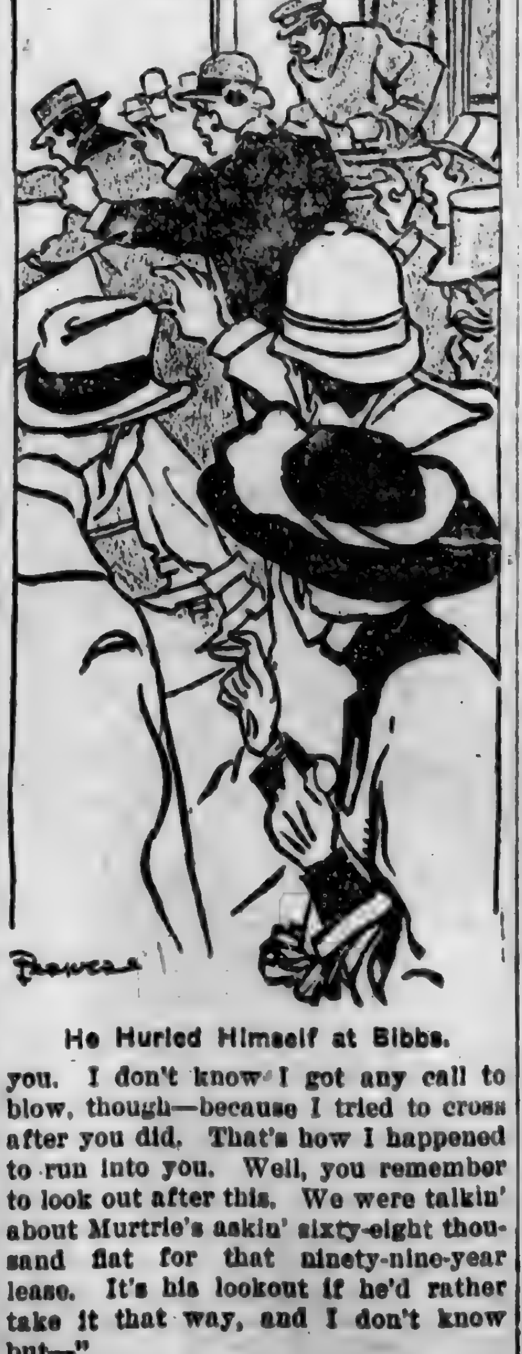
"Where are they?" Mary cried.

"Who? Ole Man Sheridan? I reckon he wasn't much hurt!"

"His son—"

"Was that who the other one was? I seen him knock him—oh, he's not bad off, I guess, lady. The ole man got him out of the way all right. The fender shoved the ole man around some, but I reckon he only got shook up. They both went on in the Sheridan building without any help. Excuse me, lady."

Sheridan and Bibbs, in fact, were at that moment in the elevator, ascending. "Whisk-broom up in the office," Sheridan was saying. "You got to look out on these corners nowadays, I tell you. I don't know I got any call to blow, though—because I tried to cross after you did. That's how I happened to run into you. Well, you remember to look out after this. We were talkin' about Murtrie's askin' sixty-eight thousand flat for that ninety-nine-year lease. It's his lookout if he'd rather take it that way, and I don't know but—"



He Hurled Himself at Bibbs.

"No," said Bibbs, emphatically, as the elevator stopped; "he won't get it. Not from Us, he won't, and I'll show you why. I can convince you in five minutes." He followed his father into the office anteroom—and convinced him. Then, having been diligently brushed by a youth of color, Bibbs went into his own room and closed the door.

He was more shaken than he had allowed his father to perceive, and his side was sore where Sheridan had struck him. He desired to be alone; he wanted to rub himself and, for once, to do some useless thinking again. He knew that his father had not "happened" to run into him; he knew that Sheridan had instantly—and instinctively—proved that he held his own life of no account whatever compared to that of his son and heir. Bibbs had been unable to speak of that, or seem to know it; for Sheridan, just as instinctively, had swept the matter aside—as of no importance, since all was well—reverting immediately to business.

Bibbs began to think intently of his father. He perceived, as he had never perceived before, the shadowing of something enormous and indomitable—and lawless; not to be daunted by the will of nature's very self; laughing at the lightning and at wounds and mutilation; conquering, irresistible—and blindly noble. For the first time in his life Bibbs began to understand the meaning of being truly this man's son.

He would be the more truly his son henceforth, though, as Sheridan said Bibbs had not come downtown with him meanly or half-heartedly. He had given his word because he had wanted the money, simply, for Mary Vertrees in her need. And he shivered with horror of himself, thinking how he had gone to her to offer it, asking her to marry him—with his head on his breast in shameful fear that she would accept him! He had not known her; the knowing had lost her to him, and this had been his real awakening; for he knew now how deep had been that slumber wherein he dreamily celebrated the superiority of "friendship!" The sleep-walker had wakened to bitter knowledge of love and life, finding himself a failure in both. He had made a burnt offering of his dreams, and the sacrifice had been an unforgivable hurt to Mary. All that was left for him was the work he had chosen, but at least he would not fail in that, though it was indeed no more than "dust in his mouth." If there had been anything "to work for—"

He went to the window, raised it, and let in the uproar of the streets below. He looked down at the blurred, hurrying swarms—and he looked across, over the roofs with their panting jets of vapor, into the vast foggy heart of the smoke. Dizzy traceries of steel were rising dimly against it, chattering with steel on steel, and screeching in steam, while tiny figures of men walked on threads in the dull sky. Buildings would overtop the Sheridan Bigness was being served.

But what for? The old question came to Bibbs with a new despair. Here, where his eye fell, had once been green fields and running brooks, and how had the kind earth been despoiled and disfigured! The pioneers had begun the work, but in their old age their orators had said for them that they had toiled and risked and sacrificed that their posterity might live in peace and wisdom, enjoying the fruits of the earth. Well, their posterity was here—and there was only turmoil. Where was the promised land? It had been promised by the soldiers of all the wars; it had been promised to this generation by the pioneers; but here was the very posterity to whom it had been promised, toiling and risking and sacrificing in turn—for what?

The harsh roar of the city came in through the open window, continuously beating upon Bibbs' ear until he began to distinguish a pulsation in it—a broken and irregular cadence. It seemed to him that it was like a titanic voice, discordant, hoarse, rustily metallic—the voice of the god, Bigness. And the voice summoned Bibbs as it summoned all its servants.

"Come and work!" it seemed to call. "Come and work for Me, all men! By your youth and your hope I summon you! By your age and your despair I summon you to work for Me yet a little, with what strength you have. By your love of home I summon you! By your love of woman I summon you! By your hope of children I summon you!

"You shall be blind slaves of Mine, blind to everything but Me, your Master and Driver! For your reward you shall gaze only upon my ugliness. You shall give your toil and your lives, you shall go mad for love and worship of my ugliness! You shall perish still worshiping Me, and your children shall perish knowing no other god!"

And then, as Bibbs closed the window down tight, he heard his father's voice booming in the next room; he could not distinguish the words, but the tone was exultant—and there came the thump! thump! of the maimed hand. Bibbs guessed that Sheridan was bragging of the city and of the Bigness to some visitor from out of town.

And he thought how truly Sheridan was the high priest of Bigness. But with the old, old thought again, "What for?" Bibbs caught a glimmer of far, faint light. He saw that Sheridan had all his life struggled and conquered, and must all his life go on struggling and inevitably conquering, a part of a vast impulse not his own. Sheridan served blindly—but was the impulse blind? Bibbs asked himself if it was not he who had been in the greater hurry, after all. The kiln must be fired before the vase is glazed, and the Acropolis was not crowned with marble in a day.

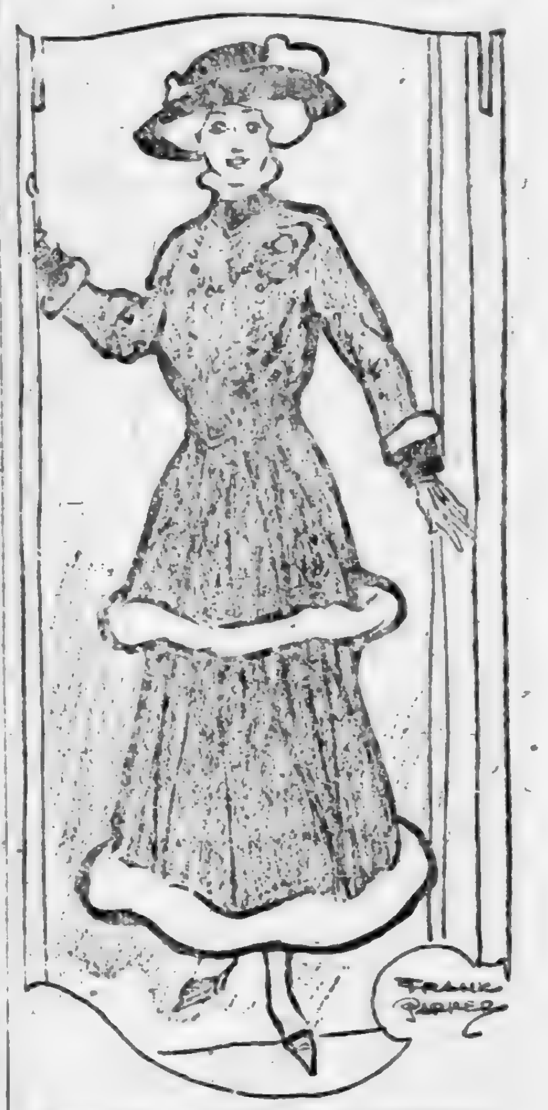
Then the voice came to him again, but there was a strain in it as of some huge music struggling to be born of the turmoil. "Ugly I am," it seemed to say to him, "but never forget that I am a god!" And the voice grew in sonorousness and in dignity. "The highest should serve, but so long as you worship me for my own sake I will not serve you. It is man who makes me ugly, by his worship of me. If man would let me serve him, I should be beautiful!"

Looking once more from the window, Bibbs sculptured for himself—in vague contortions of the smoke and fog above the roofs—a gigantic figure with feet pedestaled upon the great buildings and shoulders disappearing in the clouds, a colossus of steel and wholly blackened with soot. But Bibbs carried his fancy further—for there was still a little poet lingering in the back of his head—and he thought that up over the clouds, unseen from below, the giant labored with his hands in the clean sunshine; and Bibbs had a glimpse of what he made there—perhaps for a fellowship of the children of the children that were children now—a noble and joyous city, unbelievably white—

* * * * * * *

It was the telephone that called him from his vision. It rang fiercely.

He lifted the thing from his desk and answered—and as the small voice inside it spoke he dropped the receiver with a crash. He trembled violently as he picked it up, but he told himself he was wrong—he had been mistaken—yet it was a startlingly beautiful voice; startlingly kind, too, and ineffably like the one he hungered most to hear.



Mary Stood Upon the Threshold.

"Who?" he said, his own voice shaking—like his hand.

"Mary."

He responded with two hushed and incredulous words: "Is it?"

There was a little thrill of pathetic half-laughter in the instrument. "Bibbs—I wanted to—just to see if you—"

"Yes—Mary?"

"I was looking when you were so nearly run over. I saw it, Bibbs. They said you hadn't been hurt, they thought, but I wanted to know for myself."

"No, no, I wasn't hurt at all—Mary. It was father who came nearer it. He saved me."

"Yes, I saw; but you had fallen. I couldn't get through the crowd until you had gone. And I wanted to know."

"Mary—would you—have minded?" he said. There was a long interval before she answered.

"Yes."

"Then why—"

"Yes, Bibbs?"

"I don't know what to say," he cried. "It's so wonderful to hear your voice again—I'm shaking, Mary—I—I don't know—I don't know anything except that I am talking to you! It is you—Mary?"

"Yes, Bibbs!"

"Mary—I've seen you from my window at home—only five times since I—since then. You looked—oh, how can I tell you? It was like a man chained in a cave catching a glimpse of the blue sky, Mary. Mary, won't you—let me see you again—near? I think I could make you really forgive me—you'd have to—"

"I did—then."

"No—not really—or you wouldn't have said you couldn't see me any more."

"That wasn't the reason." The voice was very low.

"Mary," he said, even more tremulously than before, "I can't—you couldn't mean it was because—you can't mean it was because you—care?"

There was no answer.

"Mary?" he called, huskily. "If you mean that—you'd let me see you—wouldn't you?"

And now the voice was so low he could not be sure it spoke at all, but if it did, the words were, "Yes, Bibbs—dear."

But the voice was not in the instrument—it was so gentle and so light, so almost nothing, it seemed to be made of air—and it came from the air.

Slowly and incredulously he turned—and glory fell upon his shining eyes. The door of his father's room had opened.

Mary stood upon the threshold.

THE END.

Work and the Colt.

The newly broken colt should not be worked too hard this spring. Too much work just now may ruin him.

OCTOBER

L 9

0319

APPLES

The increasing demand for our apples have exhausted our crop this year in very short order, and we were unable to supply all who desired to purchase. No more orders will be received as we are

SOLD OUT

Spring Brook Fruit Farm

H. M. WIDNEY, Owner

The St. Joe News

Fred B. Leighty, Editor
Mrs. Jora Leighty, Associate

One Year,	$1.00
Six Months,	.50
Three Months,	.25

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

INDIANA ASSOCIATED WEEKLIES

The Gossips Say-

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Roy Maxwell and Ralph Sechler left Saturday noon for Terre Haute to attend school.

Dr. and Mrs. W. K. Schlosser and sons, Dan and Joe, of Plymouth, were Friday guests of S. W. Tustison and wife.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway returned home from Hobart, where she had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Eva Chandler, for several days.

S. N. Brunson, of near Butler, was a St. Joe business visitor Wednesday, and while in town called on his sister, Mrs. C. C. Bassett.

Mrs. Mary Scholes went for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Tustison, Thursday, while her daughter, Mrs. Emma Abel, is visiting relatives in Auburn.

Guy D. Dill, of Pierceton, State Agent for the New York Life Insurance Company, was here Thursday, and Friday settled the W. C. Patterson life insurance claim; while here he was the guest of his sister and husband, Dr. and Mrs. C. R Price.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price entertained at six o'clock dinner, the following guests, Friday evening:—C. A. Patterson and wife, F. R. Bowman, wife and daughter Eloise, C. T Bayman, wife, daughters, DeVeta, Elizabeth and Katherine, and son Riuhard.

H. C. Hathaway

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Transfer paper at NEWS office, 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

A baby girl was born Thursday night at the Sacred Heart hospital at Garrett to Fred Thornton and wife.

Mrs Alice Gee and children returned home Friday from a two weeks visit with her parents, E. Carper and wife, near Auburn.

Public Sale.

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located 3 miles north-east of St. Joe on the River Road and ¼ mile south of Orangeville, on

Saturday, Oct. 7

Beginning at 10 a. m., the follows:-

CATTLE:—¾ Jersey cow, 7-yrs. old, due to be fresh by day of sale; Durham cow with heifer calf, 4 months old, by her side; Red cow with heifer calf 4 months old by side; Black cow with calf 5 months old by side; Jersey bull calf 5 mos. old. All these calves have run with the mothers.

13 Head Good Shotes.

FARMING MACHINERY:—Birdsell wagon with top box, spring seat and scoop board; Portland sleigh, Bryan plow as good as new; 50 tooth lever drag as good as new; Single and double shovel plow; 4 log chains; Log bunks; Cant hook; Swamp hook; Crowbar; Sledge; Wedges; Storm front for buggy; about 50 folding crates; Platform scales; Shovels; Forks; Sausage grinder. Some building material, Buggy pole, Pair bobs, and many other articles not listed.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS:—Cupboard, Dining room table, 6 Dining chairs, Couch, 5 Kitchen chairs, Cook stove, 27 yards rag carpet, Bed and Springs, Crocks, Jars, Cooking Utensils, etc.

John Simanton

C. H. Baber & Sons, Auct.
A. D. Brunson, Clerk.

St. Joe Locals

"We're Going Forward".

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

Fresh Fish, Friday, at Meat Market.

Subscriptions taken for new or renewals of any magazine published, at The News office.

P. S. Reasoner and wife, of Montpelier, were Sunday and Monday guests of Frank Bowman and wife

Mrs. Lulu Foote and children, and Wilton Reichelderfer, all of Harlan, were Sunday guests in the Frank Sechler home, Sunday.

Wm. Lucas and wife, J. C. Hull and wife, Miss Susan Sechler, Ye editor and family were Sunday guests of Adam Shilling and family.

John Doll and wife returned Tuesday morning from a few days visit with friends at Cleveland, they were also guests of his mother at Canton. An enjoyable trip was had.

Stanley Koch took an auto load of Auburn young people to Pierceton, Sunday, while there Mr. Koch called on Mr. and Mrs. Booth and daughter Violet. He reports Mrs. Booth in poor health.

Joe Royer and wife left Wednesday morning for their home at Orville, Ohio, after a week's visit with the former's sister and husband, C. C. Curie and wife, and other relatives.

Last Sunday the R. W. Vaughn auto was demolished on the George crossing, west of Concord, when the auto engine died on the track with five passengers. The freight train was approaching and the joyriders were compelled to pile out and see the machine demolished under the train. This was surely carelessness on the part of the driver.

$1.25 FOUR MONTHLY MAGAZINES $1.25
And Our Paper—All One Year

TODAY'S MAGAZINE WOMAN'S WORLD HOME LIFE

Get The Most For Your Money

Send your subscription to our paper at once, and we will give you a year subscription to these splendid magazines for only 25 cents additional. The extra quarter brings you $1.35 worth of standard magazines.

This offer is open to old and new subscribers. If you are already a subscriber to any of these magazines, your subscription will be extended one year from date of expiration.

This offer also includes a FREE dress pattern. When you receive your first copy of Today's, select any dress pattern you desire, send your order to Today's Magazine, giving them the size and number of the pattern and they will send it to you free of charge.

Never before has any newspaper been able to offer magazines of such high character at this price. We are proud of this offer and we urge you to take advantage of it at once.

$1.25 Send Your Order Before You Forget It $1.25
The Magazines Will Stop Promptly When Time Is Up

NEWVILLE

Byron Miller was a Butler visitor Sunday afternoon.

John Gillingham purchased a new horse, Saturday.

Miss Ruth Griest, of Hicksville, was the guest of relatives here over Sunday.

Rev. Higley filled his appointment at the U. B. Church, Sunday forenoon.

Levon McDonald, of Butler, was the guest of his Grandma Miller and family, over Sunday.

50 sheets of writing paper and 25 No. 1 rag envelopes for 10 cents at NEWS office.

Jacob Presler and wife, of Hicksville, were guests of Ross Nelson and other friends here, a part of last week.

Calvin Fell is at his mother's home in Garrett. He will be remembered as the boy that accidentally shot himself 2 years ago while rabbit hunting. He is still an invalid.

John Washler took his wife, Mrs. Harry Weener, Mrs. Guy Platter and Mrs. John Miller, to Auburn in his auto, last Monday afternoon, on business concerning the W. C. T. U., during the Centennial.

Some moving went off here last week. Willie Miller and wife moved into their new home vacated by Lloyd Engles', and Hugh Traxler moved his family to the Gibson property vacated by Mr. Miller.

New Fall Goods.

We are now receiving our new fall stock of Dry Goods—Hosiery Notions and Underwear—Our stock will be complete by time you read this. Our rubber footwear is now on display—Men's Women's, Boys' and Children's Rubber Boots—Every size from the smallest to the largest made—in fact everything in the way of rubber footwear for the entire family and our prices are absolutely the lowest in this neck-O-the-woods—New goods in our grocery department every few days—An immense stock of Sweater Coats for Men, Women and Children—Fine display of Men's Caps for fall and winter wear—Come to us for underwear we have every size wanted for the entire family—We pay the highest price for Eggs—We have a few Tin Wash Boilers to close out cheap—Gloves and Mittens by the dray load—Salt by the barrel, $1.25—Bring in your Oil Can when its empty, we will fill it—Lamp chimneys, Lanterns, Oil Cans, Axe handles, Brooms, Tooth Picks and Yeast Foam—Everything in Dry Goods Notion and Hosiery—We have more Rain Coats than we need—will part with them for a small amount above cost. Don't forget us when anything in the way of rubber footwear is wanted—Special low price on present stock of 9x12 room rugs to close out—Don't sell any Eggs before getting our price—Poultry Shells, per hundred pound sack, 65 cts., while they last. New stock of Buckwheat and Pancake flour just received. Plenty of Table Oil Cloth, new patterns. Come to us for your supplies at the right price, and bring us your Eggs and get top prices.

JONES

The Big 4 Store

St. Joe, Ind.

P. S.—Big stock of Husking Gloves and Husking Pegs received this week.

Coburn's Corners

George Place and family were Sunday guests of Ralph Nelson and wife.

Preaching services at the church next Sunday evening. Come and hear Rev. Spade.

Mrs. C. R. Headley is taking care of her sister, Mrs. Amanda Young, who underwent an operation Saturday.

Grandma Pflaumer and daughter Kate, of Springfield Center, spent Sunday with Edward Pflaumer and family.

Will Snyder and family, of Burlington, Mich., visited with P A Walkers', Sunday. Mrs. Walker went home with them for a few days visit.

If it is a Separator you want, it's a DeLaval, and no other. Guaranteed in every way. See John N. George, St. Joe, Indiana.

T. H. Shull and family entertained the following company to dinner Sunday:—The Messrs. Celia Hadsell, of Hicksville; Lee Crawl, of Edgerton; Aloy and Mervin Place, and the Misses Audrey Coburn, Lena Kelley, Gladys Place and Estella Headley.

C. C. Shull and family entertained the following company, Sunday: Willie Bowen, wife and daughter, John Harmon and wife, Mrs. Sim Myers and baby, of VanWert, O.; Ola Swoveland, wife and daughters Helen, Vera and Mary, of Berne, Ind.; Lloyd Engle, wife and son Frank, of St. Joe; Guy Platter and wife, and Evelyn Engle, of Newville.

LOCAL ITEMS.

J. W. Hart and wife had for their Sunday guests:—W. P. Coburn and family, and Kel Hart and family.

Mrs. Frank Sechler, Mrs. Grace Dilley, Miss Avis Sechler, Miss Ethel Wallace and Merritt Sechler motored to Auburn and visited friends Sunday.

Oh! Just For An Apple.

St. Joe was never better known than it has been in the last three weeks. People for many miles had been told of the great sights awaiting them in the Widney and Leighty orchards. We call your attention to the advertisement in this issue of the Leighty orchard, giving full information as to the crop. Spring Brook goes down on records as having the largest sales in their history, in fact the plan taken this year was never tried before and it has proved a great money saver by selling out at the orchards. Thousands of people made purchases there this year in response to the advertising matter scattered broadcast over the country. People were crazy over apples and demanded of Mr. Widney favors that he could not possibly grant and treat his customers squarely. It became necessary to give out numbers in order to serve those who came first in their order. Machines came in at midnight and camped on the ground to be there ready for morning. Hundreds of customers were turned away every day and it became so that they demanded the apples before being sorted at the $1.00 price, and some who were in a great hurry offered $1.50 per bushel. Mr. Widney states today that his crop was sold out Wednesday and at the last he was compelled to limit the orders to ten bushels. The apple condition (20,000 bushels) is nothing to what it will be in a few years (50,000) at least. Bear Creek is swamped with orders and are sending out a fine quality of fruit, and one that has the color.

S. S. Widney
Justice of the Peace
Insurance and Real Estate
Phone No. 16
ST. JOE, IND

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three time during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

FreeColumn

All advertisements in this department are free to subscribers only. —EDITOR NEWS.]

FOR SALE:—8 room cottage house, small barn and 6 lots. Located at Orangeville. Price reasonable. J. R. CULBERTSON, Auburn, Ind.

FOR SALE:—Honey. Harvey Kimes, Sr., Spencerville, Ind.

Strayed from the pasture Tuesday evening, a 2 year old white heifer. Report to John Knight.

FOR SALE:—16 in fire pot Base Burner, used 2 years, in good condition.
MORRIS LOTHAMER.

FOR SALE:—Single buggy, set single harness, one-horse Wagon, Surrey and 1 Horse. JOS. B. HAIFLEY, St. Joe, Ind.

For Sale: Delaine Male Sheep. Registered. Goat broke well to drive. Ira E. Smith, Rt. 2, Spencerville.

Wanted to rent a farm of 60 to 80 acres for 3 to 5 years. Call on Otto Hildebrand, Fry hay barn St. Joe evenings or address Otto Hildebrand, Harlan, Ind.

Mich. Farms for Sale.

TUSCOLA COUNTY, BANNER COUNTY OF THE STATE--KNOWN AS THE THUMB COUNTRY.

Lies in the Saginaw River Valley, and is crossed by three trunk line railroads, and their branches. It has a taxable wealth of $30,600,000, and a population of near 38,000.

Caro, the county seat, has a population of about 3,000, with paved streets, boulevard lights, and state piked roads leading to it; with its manufactories, numerous business houses, four hotels, three banks, and one of the largest beet sugar refineries in the United States.

The soil of Tuscola county is generally level, from a sandy loam to black loam, with splendid rivers and water powers, splendid schools and churches, rural mail routes, telephones, milk routes, improved roads, and pikes running everywhere.

The sugar beet crop leads, with the bean crop second, also a large acreage of corn, wheat, oats, hay, alfalfa, fruits and potatoes. Unexcelled markets everywhere in the county--within a hauling distance not exceeding 5 or 6 miles from any farm listed, and over the best gravel and state reward roads.

Considering the high quality of the soil and its productiveness, the prices of farm lands are far below those of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. Tuscola county has more automobiles than any county in Michigan outside of Waye county.

For prices and furthur information, write

FRANK STAMETS
43-- Caro, Mich.

OCTOBER

0320

SYSTEMATIZE

your household expenses by opening a bank account for your wife. Give her a check book and teach her the use of it. Pay the butcher, the grocer, the baker with a check. Then at the end of the month you'll find out just how much it costs you to run the home. When payment by check is made there never is any doubt as to whether or not a bill is paid. The check is a receipt.

Besides, a checking account will give your wife a business education. The number of ordinarily bright women who know absolutely nothing of banking is surprising. If you are a husband, father, brother, you cannot tell when death may overtake you, and it is well that your wife, daughter and sister know something of banking.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND TODAY TO GIVE YOUR WIFE A CHECK BOOK.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

POULTRY taken in at Erick's every THURSDAY up to 3:00 o'clock.

SPENCERVILLE

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

Eck Vanzile, wife and son Clifford, and George Gloyd and wife were Sunday visitors of Krit Moudy and family, of Robison Chaple.

On last Tuesday afternoon, while threshing at the James Boots farm Dallas Kelley fell off his engine resulting in a broken arm and several severe bruises which confined him to his bed several days.

Sell Your POULTRY TO

ZONKER BROTHERS

St. Joe, Indiana.

Highest Prices Paid.

Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.

PHONE NO. 13

Our Motto: "A Square Deal."

See our winter Bed Blankets—Beams & Co.

On Saturday afternoon the Girls Pansy Club were entertained at the home of Miss Beatrice Wasson, west of town. A delightful luncheon was served by the hostess.

On Saturday evening, Rev. A. K Mumma and family were entertained at 6 o'clock dinner at the home of S. W. Tustison and wife, of St. Joe, in honor of the birthdays of Mrs. Ella Patterson and Rev. Mumma.

To-day an all day Missionary Meeting is being held at the M. E. Church. Rev. and Mrs. Springer has charge of the meeting and this evening views will be shown which were taken by the Missionaries in foreign countries. Dinner will be served at the church.

Walter Daughterty, wife and children, Violet and Alfred, and Mr. Bagor and wife, of Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Daughterty aunt, Mrs. R. U. Bowser and family; they also had as their guests Sunday evening, Mrs. Geo. Gloyd and son Gerry, Martin Renn and Mrs. Fred Osborne and daughter, of Roanoke, Ind.

A Vicious Pest
RAT CORN

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

Joel Betz and wife, who have been visiting their son, Glenn and family, of New Haven, and other relatives in Wells County several weeks, returned home Thursday.

Rev. A. K. Mumma and family attended the play "In His Steps" at Harlan, Friday evening, given by a Sunday school class of the Monroeville Lutheran Church.

W. S. Tyndall and daughter Violette, motored to Ft. Wayne, Saturday evening returning Sunday morning, and were accompanied home by Jason Keyes and wife, and Mark Tyndall of that place.

Our line of School Dresses are meeting the demands of many people here—You can't make them for what Beams & Co., ask.

Mrs. Melissa Hesner, of Greentown, Ohio, has been visiting the Greeley and Clinton Wearley homes for several weeks, and both families accompanied by Mrs. Hesner motored to Mongo and spent the day at the Ben McKinley home.

Last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gust Heffner the Forget-me-not Club was very pleasantly entertained. After a short program a dainty two-course luncheon was served; after which they adjourned to attend the Republican Rally that was in progress down down. Mrs. Lotter and daughters, of Ft. Wayne, were guests.

On account of the Missionary Meeting at the M E. Church the Epworth League will be held Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock lead by Miss Ethel Metcalf. Rally Day will be observed at the M. E. Sunday School, next Sunday. A special program will be rendered by the children. All are invited to be present who are not attending Sunday School elsewhere.

On Tuesday evening of last week at the building recently occupied by the Post office a mass meeting was held for the public improvements of the town. Rev. J. C. Valentine acted as chairman, and Rev. A K. Mumma as secretary of the meeting. The following committee was appointed:—R. U. Bowser, Rev. Mumma, Wm. Erick, Lloyd Wade and Saul Goldsmith. The committee met Tuesday evening to establish by-laws.

On Sunday, Mrs. Henry Beams entertained at dinner in honor of her husband's seventieth birthday which occurred on Saturday, Sept., 30. The dinner was a surprise to Mr. Beams. Those present to make merry the day were Rev. and Mrs. A K. Mumma and children, Mrs. Lucy Fairfield, Wm. Fairfield, wife and daughter, Geo. Beams and family, Frank Beams and family, Robert Beams, wife and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Ett Walker of Hicksville, Mrs. Sarah Phillip and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel High of Rehobeth, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip of Auburn Mary Comesky and Helen Lake.

Several automobiles containing members of the C. C. Club motored to LaOtto, Friday, and were entertained at the home of Perry Miller and wife. After a delightful dinner, a program was rendered and all responded to roll call with short talks or readings. Those that were present were:—Mesdames Anna Henderson and daughter Ruth, Lissie Wearley and daughter LeAnna, Myrtle Beams, Minta Rhodes, Flossie Rhoades, Louie Beam, Mary Jane Silberg, Georgia Jenkins, Jane Butler, and Miss Ethel Shutt, of this place; and Mrs. Chas. Pepple and children, Mrs. Wm. Pepple and Mrs. Ditmer and daughter Grace, of LaOtto.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Wm. Tyndall has purchased a new 1917 touring Ford.

Miss Pearl Kimes and Mrs. Eva Mills are on the sick list.

Winter Coats and Caps just arrived at Beams & Co., Store. See them at once.

Lewis Markle and wife, and Sam Markle and wife motored to Fort Wayne, Sunday, and took dinner with Geo. Steward and wife.

Elmer Chaney and wife, of Ann Arbor, Mich., is visiting a few days with Henry Beery and wife.

Ed. Billman and wife visited Monday with friends at Milan Center; on Tuesday they visited at Leo.

Dr. Dean and mother, of Hicksville, O., and Mrs. Ostermeyer were Sunday afternoon guests of W. O. Miller and wife.

Mr. Freit, who has been sick at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Beery, is not much improved at this writing.

The Misses Nellie Kelley, Nellie Berry, and Berniece Glass, and the Messrs. Frank and Carl, spent Sunday with Frank and Jessie Cook.

Scarfs and Caps to match, for cool weather—Beams & Co.

Mrs. Will Wise, of Auburn, spent one day last week with Miss Sarah Kyle. Mrs. Wise is 77 years old, and walked from Auburn to this place.

Miss Edna Dinius has resigned as relief operator at the telephone office, and go to Roanoke where she has accepted a position. Miss Francis Webb will be relief operator.

As Frank Wertman and wife and Ed Billman and wife were returning home from Leo and Grabill, one evening last week, they met with quite an accident. As Mr. Wertman turned out to go around a buggy his auto turned turtle in the ditch; breaking two of Mrs. Wertman's ribs and cutting and bruising Mr. Wertman's face quite badly, the other two were scarcely hurt any. Not much damage was done to the car.

Mother's Responsibility

No part of the body is so seriously neglected as the mouth, nose and throat. If not kept sanitary they become a breeding place for germs. If Glando Gargle be used once or twice daily it will cleanse the mucus membrance and kill the germs. It is excellent for sore mouth in babies: soothes during teething. It relieves a cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever and prevents adenoids. For sale by all Dealers.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

Dr. J. C. Emme
Spencerville, Ind.
Phone No. 20.

We Are Always Ready

to serve you with good printing. No matter what the nature of the job may be we are ready to do it at a price that will be

Satisfactory

YOU CANNOT

be robbed if you carry a check book instead of actual money. You cannot lose your money by carelessness or fire, if you keep it in the Bank and pay by check. Safety First.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

Death of Mrs. Kennedy

Mrs. Nancy Wasson Kennedy died on Sunday afternoon at her home, west of Spencerville, at 4:10 o'clock, of harding of the arteries and drying-up of the blood, after an illness of over two years the last seven weeks being confined to her bed. Mrs. Kennedy was born on April 19, 1851. Her husband died 15 years ago this fall. She was a member of the M. E. church and the Ladies Guild of this place, for many years. She leaves to mourn her departure an adopted son, Milton Wasson; 4 sisters, Mrs. Milton Chaney, of Sedan; Mrs. James Rickett, of Newville; Mrs. Jane Hull, of Concord; and Mrs. Matilda Shalden, of Johnsonburg, Penn.; one brother, Milton Wasson of California. The funeral was held on Tuesday at 10 o'clock from the M. E. Church. Rev. J. C. Valentine officiated. Interment in the White City cemetery.

Look and Feel Clean, Sweet and Fresh Every Day

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Life is not merely to live, but to live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatism; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store which will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

"TIZ" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

"TIZ" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters and bunions.

"TIZ" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, or how long you remain on your feet, "TIZ" brings restful foot comfort. "TIZ" is wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now from any druggist or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy.

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ¾ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser
Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.
Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

Oldest In America
Strongest In the World
Mutual life
INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York
J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. 46

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
ESTABLISHED 1887
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
808-810 CALHOUN STREET
Fort Wayne, Ind.
BEN LEHMAN PROP.

OCTOBER

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

"Sit tight, look sharp, and be ready for anything," is the very good advice the Philadelphia Press offers to readers of this capital story, which will appear serially in this paper. It is replete with a series of lively adventures. The opening situation is bound to arouse the keenest interest in the outcome and in its development the author has given his agile imagination free rein. At every turn the unexpected happens and it happens with such rapidity that there isn't a moment to spare for speculation.

Doctors have been known to err in their diagnoses of disease but Hugh Whitaker believes them when they declare he has but six months more to live. And since his own life is of such small consequence, he finds an opportunity to help a girl in her hour of need, saving her from disgrace she would otherwise have to suffer. Then he goes off to the South Seas to die, but instead is cured, and wins wealth as well.

When he returns to New York his legal wife has done the unexpected also. From this point on the action continues at rapid pace, one exciting incident following another.

You can't help but enjoy "The Destroying Angel," as will every normal, red-blooded man and woman who reads this paper.

Leading a Dog's Life.

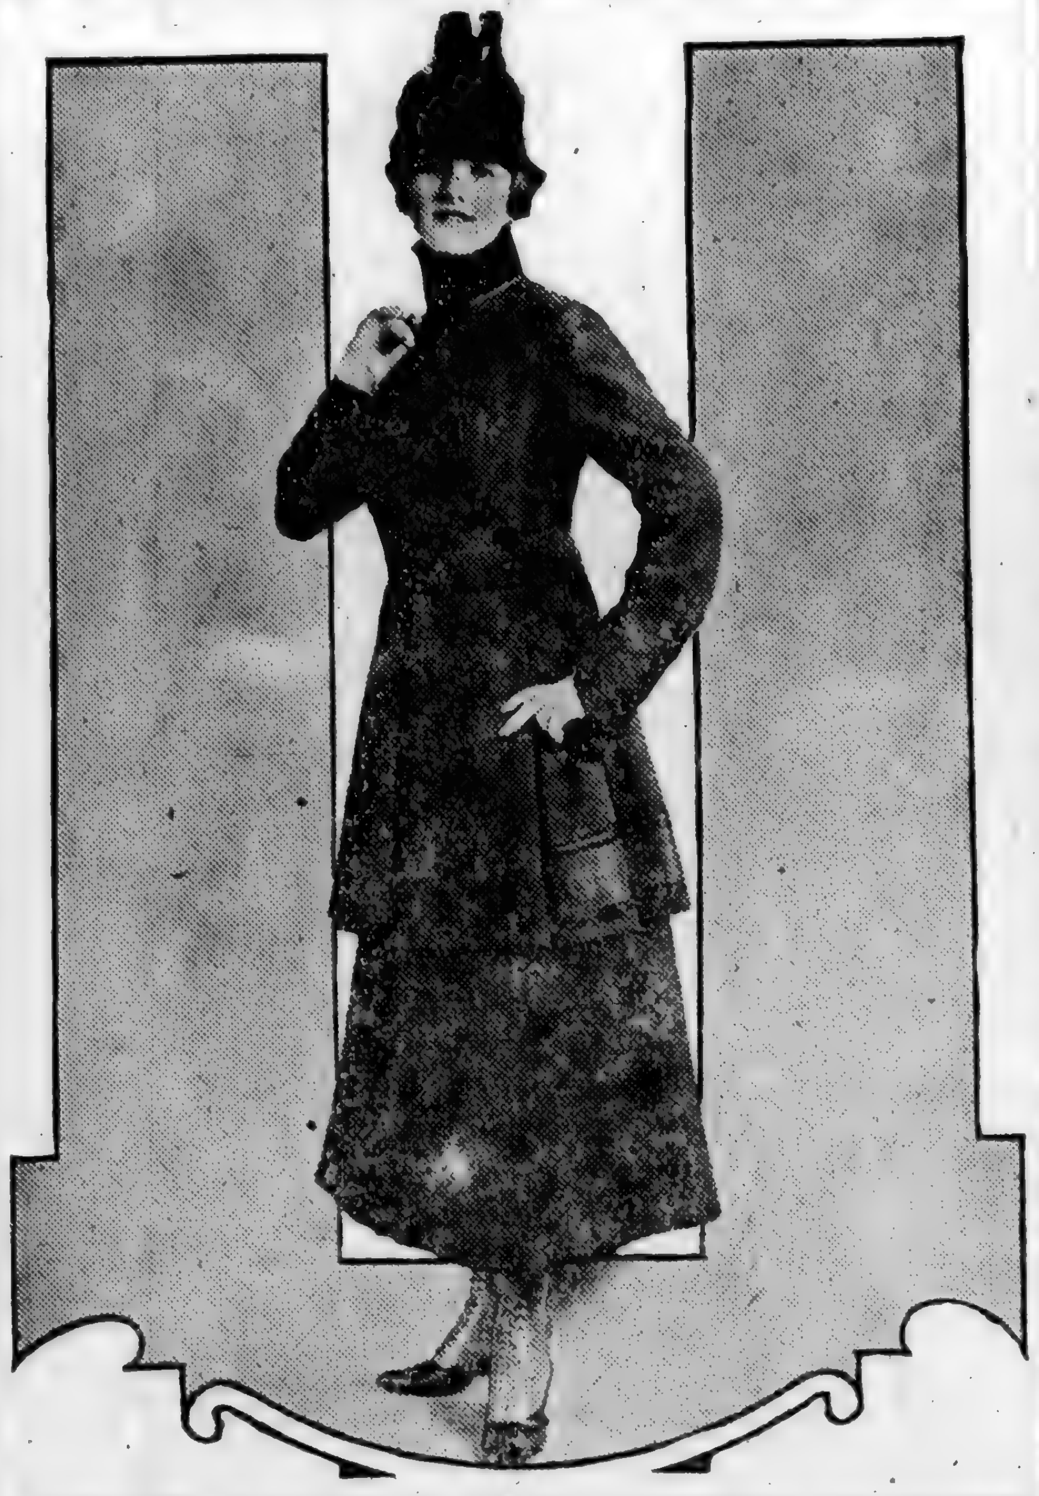
A society note which should not be overlooked is the presence in Palm Beach of Newport Nipper, the prize winning Boston bulldog of Mrs. Hamilton Wilkes Cary. He is probably the most carefully tended guest at the resort. Geraldine Farrar is not half so careful of herself as his mistress is of him. He takes an airing every day in a wheel chair and he wears ribbons on his collar. White is his favorite color. This week he appeared every day with a wide, fresh ribbon, tied in a large bow below his ear. He curls up comfortably on the white linen cushions of his chair, while Malachi, his colored valet, serves his minor commands.—New York Letter to the Chicago Tribune.

Judging From the Bundles.

Mrs. Choosem—I've been shopping all afternoon and saw nothing that I really wanted.

Mr. Choosem—Gee! You didn't buy all that junk that you didn't want, did you.

Clever Management of Tailored Modes

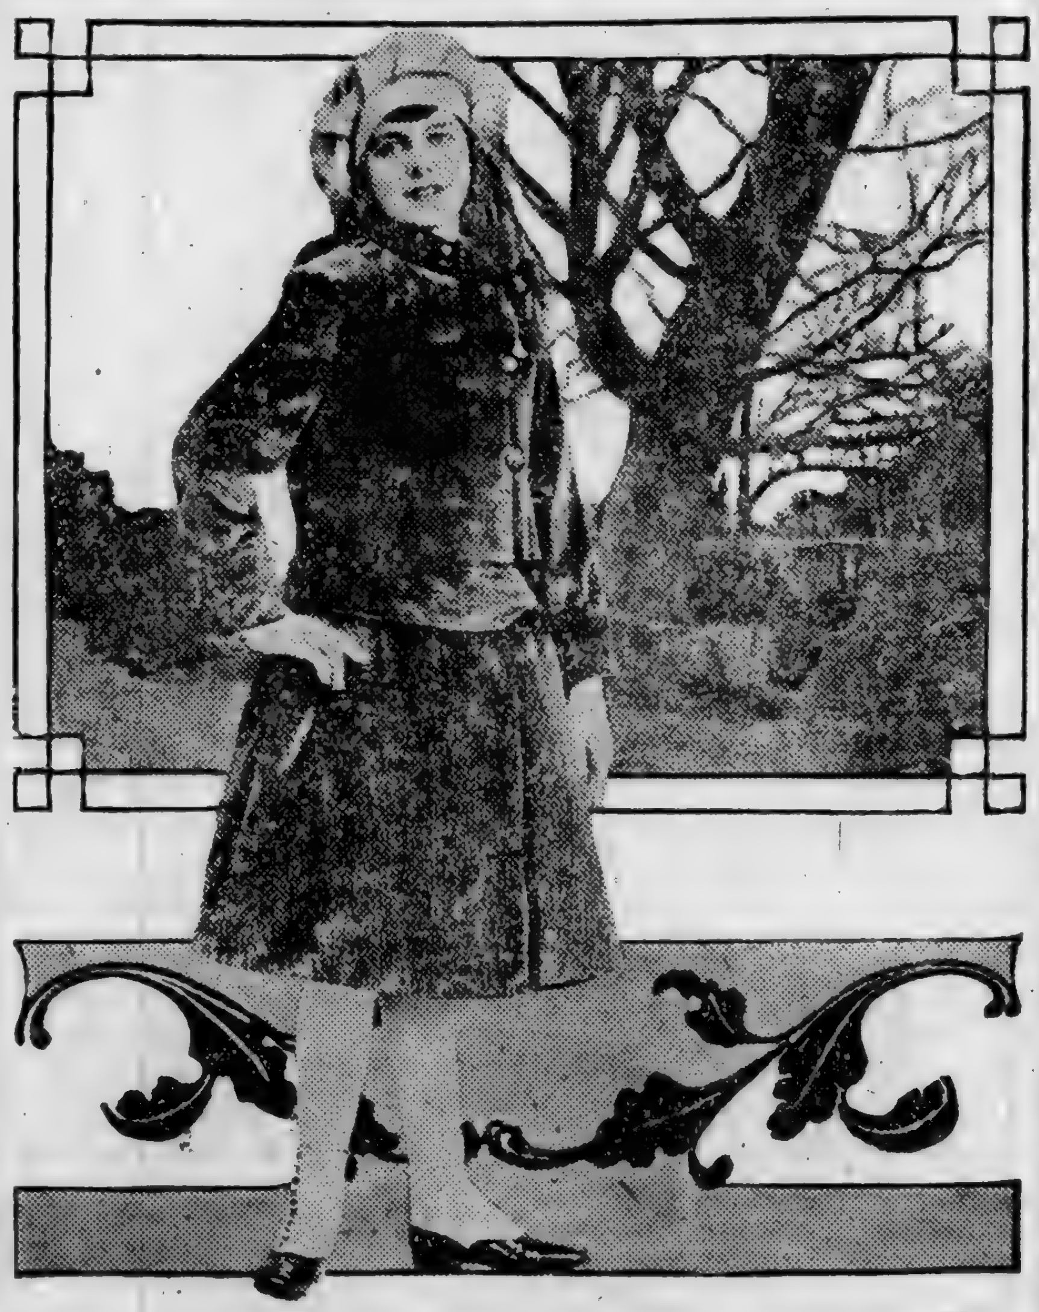


If the trials of the tailor are increased because women grow constantly more exacting, his triumphs are assured because they also grow more discriminating. In the matter of street suits an achievement like that pictured is sure of appreciation. It proclaims its designer a master in the art of tailoring and alive to every new idea which has made itself evident in the styles of today.

This suit might be developed in any of the usual materials—serge, whipcord, gaberdine, broadcloth, etc., or in pile fabrics. Its skirt is plain and may be considered as authoritative as to length and width. The coat is severely plain and close fitting as to the body, with the skirt portion set on in inverted plaits. Two of these at each side are embellished with the neatest and most tailored of satin braids. It is of the approved length. The coat is beautifully adjusted to the figure, and boasts an engaging eccentricity in its manner of fastening down the front. The opening curves from neck to waistline and fastens over buttons set close together. At the waistline it meets a narrow belt which is finished at the back with two buttons.

The long sleeves with points at the wrists is finished with buttons, and the high, overlapping, crushed collar of velvet shows an original management of an accepted style. It is just these small details, managed with so much cleverness, that charm the woman who insists that her tailored suit must conform to the mode, in its general aspect.

In Plushes and Fur Fabrics



Weavers of plushes and fur-fabrics appear to be designing their productions along independent lines this season. They have made some new departures and have turned out a number of patterns that are especially adapted to children's and misses' wear. Those who produce coats for children give a prompt indorsement to these handsome novelties in plushes, and it is likely that the coats themselves inspire an enthusiasm for the material. They have the charm of beauty and novelty, and they are durable and comfortable.

A handsome coat for a miss of eleven or so is pictured here. It is in dark brown, flecked with white. As in coats for grownups it is cut on simple lines with straight-hanging front, and the body set rather close to the figure. It is long enough to cover the dress. Coats made of these novelty fabrics must be plain, and this one tells its story in the picture. There is nothing in the way of ornament except three small metallic buttons which are set on the belt at each side of the back, and two similar buttons at the front of the narrow standing collar. An abbreviated cape might be considered as merely ornamental, but it adds something of warmth where warmth is most needed.

The "tam" of white corduroy is a happy choice in headwear to be worn with this coat, and for dress-up requirements white-topped shoes and white gloves will finish up a toilette quite above criticism. But the plush coat will give all sorts of service. Nothing will stand the strain of everyday wear better than pile fabrics of this kind.

Julia Bottomley

Use of Kid.

Leather and kid as trimming are receiving serious attention from designers. This fashion will never become truly popular, but there is always a place for well cut belts, pocket flaps, collars and cuffs of leather in the smarter coats and street suits. Bright green leather waistcoats are shown for sport wear for men and they may indicate leather waistcoats for women's winter suits.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

WHO WANTS OPEN BAR?

(Part only of verses by T. Watson in The Pioneer.)

Not they who live by honest work
And never would that duty shirk
Which calls them from afar.

. . . .

Not they whose enterprise employs
The skillful men and active boys
Who know each mast and spar.

. . . .

Not they who on the battlefield
Are willing all they have to yield
For truth's victorious star.

. . . .

Not they who rightly live their lives
And would not leave their sons and wives
To bear oppression's scar.

. . . .

It is not difficult to see
Who liquor's advocates must be
Who wander oft so far:
No voter finds it hard today
To tell the kind of men who say,
"We want the open bar."

STRONG FOR TEMPERANCE.

A well-known preacher riding in a London omnibus was entertained by a dialogue which was sustained upon the one side by the driver and upon the other by an elderly passenger.

"I understand you're temperance?" began the driver.

"Yes, I'm pretty strong against liquor," returned the other. "I've been set against it now for 35 years."

"Scared it will ruin your health?"

"Yes, but that wasn't the main thing."

"Perhaps it doesn't agree with you?" ventured the driver.

"Well, it really don't agree with anybody. But, that isn't it, either. The thing that sets me against it is a horrible idea."

"A horrible idea! What is it?"

"Well 35 years ago I was sitting in a hotel in America with a friend of mine, and I says, 'Let's order a bottle of something.' And he says, 'No, sir. I'm saving my money to buy the government land at 7s. and 6d. per acre. I'm going to buy tomorrow, and you'd better let me take the money you would have spent for liquor and buy a couple of acres along with mine.' I says, 'All right.'. So we didn't drink, and he bought me two acres.

"Well, sir, today those two acres are right in the middle of a flourishing town, and if I'd ordered that bottle I'd have swallowed a city block, a grocery store, an apothecary's shop four lawyer's offices, and it's hard to say what else. That's the idea. Ain't it horrible!"

ECONOMIC FOLLY.

"The Saloon is an Economic Folly and Must Go," is the slogan of a business men's league of Oakland, Cal., with a membership of over 500. A statement signed by the league includes the following clauses:

"The liquor traffic exists at the expense of all other industries.

"The revenue to the state, derived from liquor licenses, is overbalanced by losses to the state inseparable from the use of liquor.

"Its elimination is good business, because it will promote thrift, economy and prosperity. This will mean more work and better wages.

"We therefore favor the passage of either or both of the two proposed amendments affecting the liquor traffic, to be voted upon this fall by the electorate of California."

PERSONAL LIBERTY.

"In Chicago we hear much about personal liberty," says Mr. Fred Eberling, secretary of the Cooks' union, Chicago, "especially during campaigns. What do the brewers mean by personal liberty? The three big personal liberty gardens of this city have told the representatives of their employees that they will not deal with them except as individual employees while the brewers belong to the Chicago liquor trust, an organization which wages war against organized labor. When a license was refused to one of these beer gardens, the cry for personal liberty was heard from the big liquor combine, but when seven days per week workers make a demand for union recognition these same people cry 'anarchists.'"

COMMENDS PROHIBITION.

Samuel McRoberts, one of the vice presidents of the National City bank of New York, has been in Russia recently where he arranged a loan of $50,000,000 to the Russian government. Mr. McRoberts says:

"Russia now offers a wonderful opportunity to American capital and business enterprise. The people of America do not appreciate the extent of the Russian market or Russian resources, but should prepare now for great Russian trade after the war. I traveled for three days through territory as fertile as the best part of Iowa and Illinois. With vodka prohibited and the war concluded, Russia will ripen into prosperity."

BEER MORE NOXIOUS.

Modern scientific research has shown that, contrary to general belief, beer is proportionately much more noxious than are wines or liquors, says Dr. Edwin F. Bowers in the American Magazine. The Bremen Anti-Alcohol congress, a conclave of many of the most famous physicians in Europe, concluded that, while liquor makes a man brutal and dulls his judgment, an adequate amount of beer makes him slow-witted and abolishes judgment, while wine or brandy, in sufficient quantity, makes a man crazy.

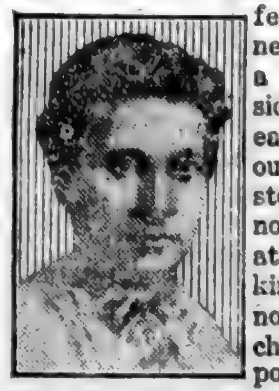
AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. Barlow, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Was She Wise?

"Mother doesn't think she'll go to the theater with us tonight, Albert."

"Is that so? I have got three tickets. What shall I do with the third one?"

"Give it to the man you always go out to see between the acts. He can sit with us, and you won't have to go out to see him."

CLEAR RED PIMPLY FACES

Red Hands, Red Scalp With Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trial Free.

The soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal. Nothing better, quicker, safer, surer at any price for skin troubles of young or old that itch, burn, crust, scale, torture or disfigure. Besides they meet every want in toilet preparations.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

An Unwelcome Variety.

"Is Bliggins an optimist?"

"Yes. But he's one of the kind that remind you of all your troubles and then tell you to cheer up."

An air-propelled hydroplane has been built in France for use on shallow rivers in Africa.

Thousands Tell It

Why dally along with backache and kidney or bladder troubles? Thousands tell you how to find relief. Here's a case to guide you. And it's only one of thousands. Forty thousand American people are publicly praising Doan's Kidney Pills. Surely it is worth the while of any one who has a bad back, who feels tired, nervous and run-down, who endures distressing urinary disorders, to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

An Indiana Case

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Miss Lucy Whittker, 160 S. Colfax St., Martinsville, Ind., says: "My health began to fail and the pains through my hips and sides drove me almost frantic. For two weeks I couldn't move hand or foot without suffering. I felt tired all the time, had headaches and dizzy spells and my nerves gave out. The doctor treated me and I tried every medicine I knew of, but without relief. Finally, however, I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they completely cured me."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Don't Persecute Your Bowels

Cut out cathartics and purgatives. They are brutal, harsh, unnecessary. Try
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS
Purely vegetable. Act gently on the liver, eliminate bile, and soothe the delicate membrane of the bowel. Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Indigestion, as millions know.
CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.
Genuine must bear Signature
Brent Good

Every Woman Wants
Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC POWDER
FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE
Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleansing and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 41--1916.

OCTOBER

0322

Ask for and Get
SKINNER'S
THE HIGHEST QUALITY
MACARONI
36 Page Recipe Book Free
SKINNER MFG. CO. OMAHA, U.S.A.
LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

Asbestos fiber now brings $500 a ton in United States markets.

Smile, smile, beautiful clear white clothes. Red Cross Ball Blue, American made, therefore best. All grocers. Adv.

No Insult.

"I heard Smith call Robinson a hard name, and Robinson just smiled."

"What was it?"

"Called him a brick."

A GRATEFUL ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Mr. F. C. Case of Welcome Lake, Pa., writes: "I suffered with Backache and Kidney Trouble. My head ached, my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. I felt heavy and sleepy after meals, was always nervous and tired, had a bitter taste in my mouth, was dizzy, had floating specks before my eyes, was always thirsty, had a dragging sensation across my loins, difficulty in collecting my thoughts and was troubled with shortness of breath. Dodds Kidney Pills have cured me of these complaints. You are at liberty to publish this letter for the benefit of any sufferer who doubts the merit of Dodds Kidney Pills."

Mr. F. C. Case.

Dodds Kidney Pills, 50c. per box at your dealer or Dodds Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Dodds Dyspepsia Tablets for Indigestion have been proved. 50c. per box.—Adv.

COLLEGES ARE NOT AFFECTED

Enrollment of German Universities Shows Increase in Number of Students During War.

War has not made much difference with German universities. On the books of the 22 universities of the German empire there was an enrollment during the last half-year of 53,800 students, against 52,500 in the first winter of the war, and 61,200 in the last half-year before the war.

All students serving in the army have continued their connection with the university, and of the 43,800 carried on the books of the university last winter there were 30,000 in the ranks of the soldiers, or 82 per cent.

Of the total enrollment 4,800 were women and 1,400 were foreigners. The University of Warsaw, reopened after the Germans and Austrians captured the city, has already 1,125 students, men and women, desiring the honor of associating their names with this famous old institution of Poland, which had been suppressed by the Russians.

The Closed Circle.

Young Girl—Yes; I feel an intense longing to do something for others.

Friend—Just whom do you mean by others?"

"Well, I suppose almost anybody outside of my immediate family."—Life.

Canada last year produced $3,491,000 worth of asbestos fiber.

"Another Article Against Coffee"—

In spite of broad publicity, many people do not realize the harm the 2½ grains of caffeine in the average cup of coffee does to many users, until they try a 10 days' change to

POSTUM

Postum satisfies the desire for a hot table drink, and its users generally sleep better, feel better, smile oftener and enjoy life more.

A fair trial—off coffee and on Postum—shows

"There's a Reason"

CONSTRUCTED IN RUSTIC DESIGN

Type of Bungalow Which Will at Once Appeal to the Beholder.

BEST PLACED ON WIDE LOT

For the Most Artistic Effects the Surroundings Should Be as Close to Nature as Possible—Lawn Always a Matter of Importance.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

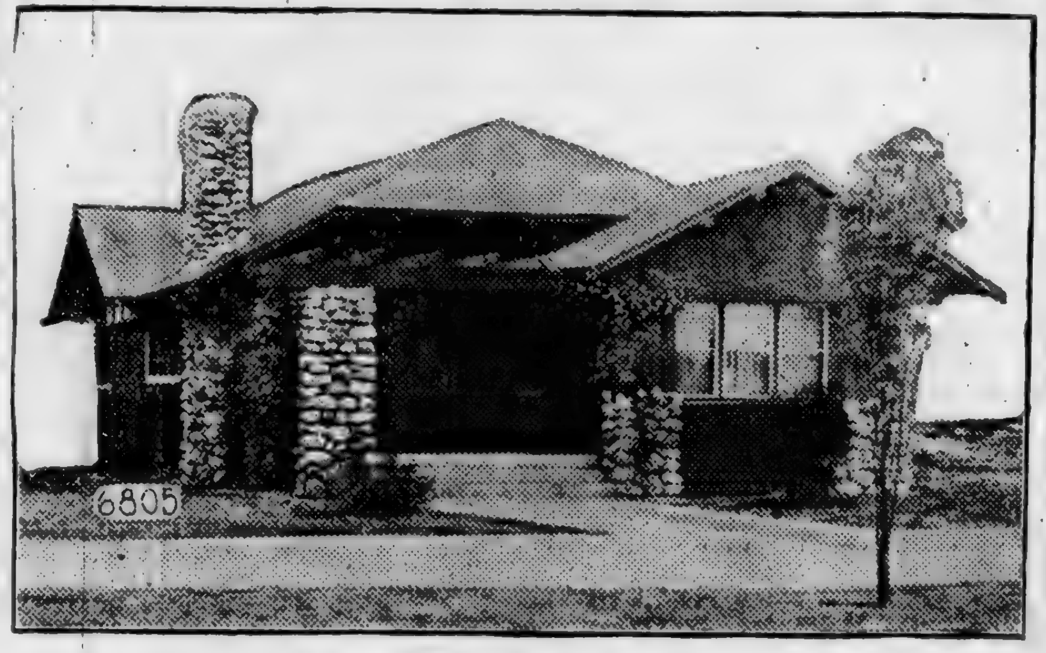
In the bungalow, more than in any other type of house, there is the possibility of producing effects which will meet the desire of a person whose mind is definitely set upon some novel feature which is to predominate throughout the scheme of architecture employed in the house design. There is such an endless array of little tricks which may be brought into play for the purpose of establishing distinctiveness in each particular bungalow design that it is a radical mind which cannot find satisfaction in one of the many combinations of details which are at the disposal of the designer.

Since the designer of bungalows is not hampered, in the true type, by the necessity of tucking rooms under the roof or of providing a large attic space—since the old-fashioned attic seems to be dying a slow but certain death in almost any type of house design—the roof may be used to express any one of a number of ideas. The fundamental hip and gable types may be variously modified and combined with one another and with several types of dormers. A number of roofing materials offer a further variation in appearance.

A great variety of building materials are open for selection. The walls of the house may be given many pleasing finishing touches both in color and character of surface. It remains, then, for the architect to find the proper combination of all the possibilities which exist, in order to match the picture formed as an image in the mind of the home-builder.

One of the styles which have been established in bungalow design, and one which makes a strong appeal to a great many people, is the rustic type. This type embodies the infusion of the architecture of nature into the architecture of man. It implies the use of some natural building material applied in such a way that the suggestion of the big out-of-doors surrounds the home. The purpose is absolutely defeated if such a house is built on a narrow lot. A wide lot upon which sufficient time and effort have been spent to adapt it to the house is necessary for the full realization of the advantages of this design. Shrubs, vines, trees and flower beds must be placed with care and selected with a purpose to harmonize with the color scheme of the bungalow. The rustic bungalow is seen in its most appropriate frame when it is placed on a small country estate where the natural growth of trees may be taken advantage of in laying out the lawn.

The little bungalow shown in the illustration is an attractive example of the rustic type. The architect had found a happy combination of details in this design and the result is shown in both the exterior appearance and in the arrangement of rooms. Large cobblestone pillars give the front of the house a unique appearance. The chimney carries out the idea very effectively. The low roof is a combined hip and gable type with exposed supports, well adapted to this type of house. The pergola effect of the porch, with the pleasing decorative ends of the timbers carried through the design, even to the decoration placed on the short column at the corner of the house, adds a great deal to the general attractiveness of the little home. The gable is decorated with wide boards or siding strips which have a decorative design cut in each board. Many details of finish have been worked out in a way which gives this little rustic bungalow an appearance rather different from the ordinary.



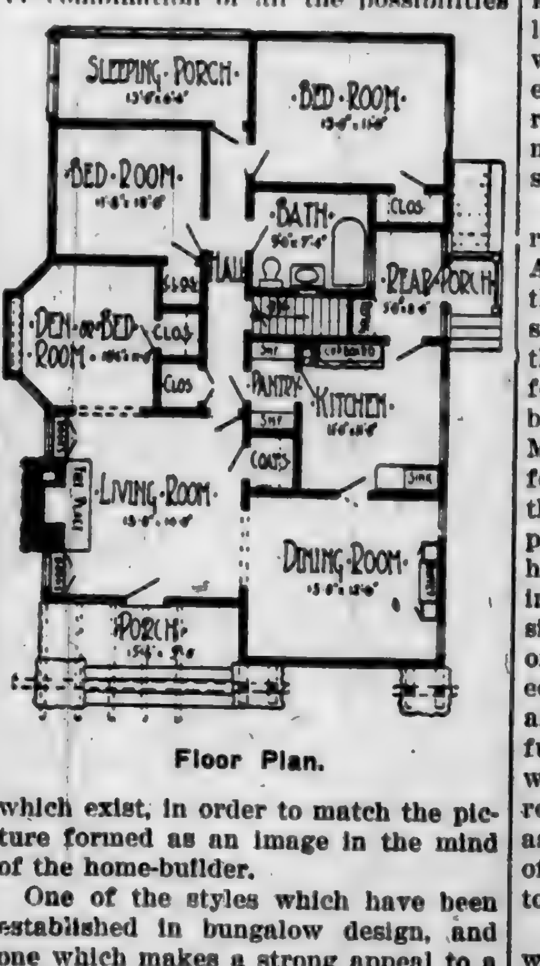
A Happy Combination of Details.

In the room arrangement and attention to interior details the same thoroughness has been observed. The living room is entered from the front porch. This room has a large fireplace, flanked with bookcases, built along the side wall. The fireplace may be made in any way which is suited to the style of finish that is decided upon for this room. A very striking and artistic effect may be secured by building the fireplace of cobblestones such as are used in the construction of the exterior chimney and pillars at the front of the house. The combination of the living room with the little den is a very attractive arrangement. If the den is to be used at times as a spare bedroom, a sliding door may be built between it and the living room. It will, of course, be more attractive with just a cased opening between the two rooms. The many windows in this little nook will make it like a sun parlor and consequently a part of the house which will, perhaps, be used more than any other.

The dining room is a front room open to the living room. The buffet is built against the wall opposite the opening of the living room and may be seen from the other side of the house. A double-acting door leads to the kitchen. This room is square, well lighted and pleasant. It is equipped with cupboards and a sink; the rear entry and pantry form two annex rooms which may be used to help very materially in performing the tasks associated with this part of the house.

A hall extends back from the living room through the center of the house. A closet, the pantry, the cellar stairs, the bathroom, two bedrooms and the sleeping porch all may be entered from this hall. The sleeping porch is a feature in home construction which is becoming more popular all the time. Many people who live in older houses feel that the sleeping porch is one of the modern fads which will soon disappear, but anyone who has lived in a house which includes a sleeping porch in its room arrangement will not consider a house which does not include one in its design. It cannot be disputed that an abundance of good fresh air is an absolute necessity to restful slumber. There are seven large windows in the sleeping porch at the rear of this rustic bungalow, and this assures a condition as near the limit of real out-of-doors as it is necessary to come.

The interior is entirely in keeping with modern ideas in home design. Convenience and comfort have been the strong outstanding factors in the design, and worked in with these is the effort to make this house as healthful a home as it is possible to provide, from the standpoint of the architect. At the same time a lucky combination of details has rendered it very attractive from an artistic standpoint.



Floor Plan.

PERFECT POTATO IS DEFINED

In Size Tuber Is Medium, Weighing About Eight Ounces—Oval in Shape and Shallow-Eyed.

What is a "perfect potato?" In size it is medium, or table size—weighing about eight ounces. It is oval in shape, shallow-eyed, well ripened and mealy and pure within. Its dimensions are 4½ to 5 inches long, 2½ to 3 inches wide and 1½ inches thick. Table-sized potatoes vary from 5 to 10 ounces in weight, according to market tendencies and location, but the eight-ounce size is preferable.

Good Milking Stool.

A good milking stool that can be easily made is one with one leg, made with straps to fasten about the waist and hold the seat in place. This is sanitary, comfortable and convenient.

Way to Raise Calves.

Raise calves on clean, warm, sweet, skim milk, fed regularly.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SCHOOL CAT.

"What would you like to hear about tonight?" asked Daddy.

"Well," said Nancy, "I think I would like to hear a Story about an Animal."

"Ah! I have just the one then," said Daddy, so he commenced his Story:

"It was the first day of School, and Marjorie had had to leave her pet Kitten Home. It was the very first time Kitty had ever been left Home—for he had come to Marjorie during the first days of Vacation time and ever since he had always been taken along. On Picnics he had been given delicious bits of Bacon and drinks of the most wonderful Milk — and sometimes—sometimes a little Cream!

"But, of course, Marjorie had to go to School again. Kitty did not see quite why Marjorie had to go anywhere and leave him—but Marjorie's Mother and Teacher did. Even Marjorie, herself, thought it would make her learn her Lessons more quickly—because then she would get through and have her Kitty to play with.

Marjorie Was Reading.

"Half the Morning had gone by and the Children were having their reading Lessons. Marjorie was reading,

"'The Cat sat on the Floor in front of the Fire.'

"'Me-ow, meow,' cried Kitty—for he had followed Marjorie and unseen by anyone had walked into the School.

"'Is that a Cat?' asked the Teacher.

"'Me-ow,' the Cat answered quite plainly.

"'It isn't my Cat,' said Marjorie, 'for mine always wears a little Bell, and he can't move without it jingling. We gave it to him partly to make him happy and because he couldn't catch Birds then.'

"'I thought I heard a Cat,' said the Teacher, 'but now I don't. Look around Children and see if you can find one.'

"All the Children looked and not a Cat was to be seen. For Kitty had hidden himself in a great Box filled with wood at one end of the Room, and had moved so as not to ring his Bell!

"The Lessons went on and the Cat was forgotten about. It was not long before a strange smell of smoke filled the Room and the Teacher and Pupils soon became very nervous.

"They looked all over to see if something could be burning and then the sounds from Kitty came again.

"'Me-ow, meow, meow,' he wailed, and his Bell jingled from his Neck. Oh, such cries of terror!

"'That's Kitty,' shouted Marjorie. 'Oh, oh, I do hope nothing's happened to him. Where can he be?'

"And still the cries came—and they sounded queer and muffled.

"'I've found him!' shouted Marjorie, 'and, look!' She gasped in horror.

"They pulled Kitty out—but a Fire had started in the Wood Box—and that was where the smell of burning was coming from.

"The Janitor of the School came rushing in with Pails of Water and quickly put out the Fire.

"'We would never have known where the Fire was,' said Marjorie proudly, 'if it hadn't been for my Kitty.' And she hugged Kitty tightly, who had not been hurt but only very much frightened.

"'And it's the first time a Cat has come to School,' said the Teacher, 'that has been a help to me—and if Kitty will behave like this and keep quiet unless there is danger—and unless we talk about Cats—he can come to School each day.'

"He's a Pretty Fine Animal."

"But the Janitor said, 'That Cat saved the School, for he rang his Bell in time before the Fire had become well started. He's a pretty fine animal. He knows when to ring that little jingle of his, and when not to!'

"And after that, Marjorie and Kitty came to School together each day, and Kitty slept in the Wood Box.

"No more strange Fires broke out and Kitty kept his Bell quiet.

"But whenever he heard the Children talk about Cats he said, 'Me-ow, me-ow,' for he wanted to let them all know what was one Lesson he didn't need to study! And he wanted to let them know that that wasn't the reason why he came to School!

"Later on, when it was Marjorie's Birthday, to her great surprise Kitty was given a Box from the School Children, in which was a Collar. Written in large letters on the Collar were the words, 'To Kitty the Brave!'"

Easily Seen.

"This baby of ours will never be a success in practical politics."

"Why not?"

"Too much of a squealer."

W.L. DOUGLAS $4.00 SHOE
BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES

W. L. DOUGLAS
"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"
$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN
Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers.
The Best Known Shoes in the World.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

Boys' Shoes
Best in the World
$3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

SMALL CANNON FOR POCKET

Deadly Weapon of War That May Be Readily Concealed Is a New Invention.

The smallest breech-loading cannon in the world is now being made for pocket use. It is not a toy, but takes a .22-caliber rim-fire cartridge and fires a bullet that would inflict a nasty wound at close range.

It is in the form of a pocket knife, no larger than the usual knife, and has two blades of fine steel. But at one end is a hole. Anyone asked to examine the article and say what it is will be most likely to guess that it is some new-fangled pencil sharpener or cigar cutter.

In the end of the knife is a steel block that turns out on a swivel, being held by a spring that is released with the thumbnail and reveals a hole straight through the block. The cartridge is inserted at the base of this hole, the block is swung back into place, the trigger on the side is opened, thus cocking the pistol, which is now ready to fire. It is held in the hand and the trigger pressed down with the thumb.

What the Doctor Knows

KIDNEYS MUST BE RIGHT TO INSURE HEALTH.

Few people realize to what extent their health depends upon the condition of the kidneys.

The physician in nearly all cases of serious illness, makes a chemical analysis of the patient's urine. He knows that unless the kidneys are doing their work properly, the other organs cannot readily be brought back to health and strength.

When the kidneys are neglected or abused in any way, serious results are sure to follow. According to health statistics, Bright's Disease, which is really an advanced form of kidney trouble, caused nearly ten thousand deaths in one year, in the State of New York alone. Therefore, it is particularly necessary to pay more attention to the health of these important organs.

An ideal herbal compound that has had remarkable success as a kidney remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The mild and healing influence of this preparation, in most cases, is soon realized, according to sworn statements and verified testimony of those who have used the remedy.

When your kidneys require attention, get Swamp-Root at once from any pharmacy. It is sold by every druggist in bottles of two sizes—50c and $1.00.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Adv.

New Shoes Protect Linemen.

A number of linemen have lost their lives because the shoes they wore were not properly protected from transmitting electric current. A special lineman's shoe has been patented recently which will completely overcome this risk. Its sole is composed of two separate layers of rubber which lessen the possibility of blowholes through which current enough to produce shock might be carried. Tests prove that this new shoe will prevent the passage of a current of at least thirty thousand volts without in any way affecting the wearer.

For Outdoors Life.

There are 10,000 Girl Scouts in this country, organized in 328 cities. State councils have been formed.

"URIC ACID NEVER CAUSED RHEUMATISM"

I WANT to prove it to your satisfaction. If you have Rheumatism or Neuritis, acute or chronic—no matter what your condition—write to-day for my FREE BOOK on "RHEUMATISM—Its Cause and Cure." Thousands call it "The most wonderful book ever written." Don't send a stamp—it's ABSOLUTELY FREE.
JESSE A. CASE
Dept. C. W. Brockton, Mass.

WHY NOT TRY POPHAM'S
ASTHMA MEDICINE
Gives Prompt and Positive Relief in Every Case. Sold by Druggists. Price $1.00.
Trial Package by Mail 10c.
WILLIAMS MFG. CO., Props. Cleveland, O.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
A toilet preparation of merit.
Helps to eradicate dandruff.
For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair.
50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

HERB RENOVATOR Laxative, tonic, diuretic. "One pill a day keeps the doctor away." Natures great health maker; prevents and destroys all forms of sickness. 200 pills in a box, price $1.00, postpaid. QUAKER CHEMICAL CO., 2817 Moerlein Ave., C. H. Cincinnati, Ohio

155 ACRES in Union County, Ohio: fine corn farm, well improved; can be bought right. Many others in Logan and Union Counties, Ohio. For particulars, address H. B. Hager, Real Estate Agency, West Mansfield, O.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

Send 10c for sample wonder polish rag. Best for quickly polishing silver, jewelry, nickel, brass, pianos, furniture, automobiles etc. Beats other polishes a mile, with less labor. George F. Rayner, 1270 Broadway, N. Y.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

He Furnished Proof.

Mr. Slowboy—Did you know that I am a member of the Press club?

Miss Willing—Of course not. How was I to know?

N. B.—The following day Miss Willing told her chum that Slowboy had a powerful press and could print kisses like an expert.

Beautiful, clear white clothes delights the laundress who uses Red Cross Ball Blue. All grocers. Adv.

Cinnaminson Sage.

"The English cabinet's dreadful bungles at Gallipoli and Kut are to be investigated—and the investigators have been appointed by the cabinet itself."

The speaker, Representative McLemore, shook his head.

"This fact," he said, "recalls the epigram of the Cinnaminson sage:

"'Ye can't strengthen neither a crumblin' wall nor a crumblin' reputation with whitewash.'"

Just Like Home Folks.

"Have a good time on your trip to New York?"

"Yes, but that town has been greatly overadvertised."

"In what way?"

"Well, I stopped with friends in one of the residential districts and most of the people there actually went to bed at ten o'clock every night."

Important to Mothers
Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

The Natural Process.

"What is the first step to take in training a voice that's guttural?"

"Have it curbed."

WINCHESTER

"LEADER" AND "REPEATER" — SHOT SHELLS

For the high flyers, or the low flyers, "Leader" and "Repeater" shells have the reach, spread and penetration. Their great sale is due to these qualities, which insure a full bag. Made in many gauges and loads.

BE SURE TO ASK FOR THE W BRAND

OCTOBER

0323

POTATOES

$1.60 per bushel

2ND. CAR LOAD

Will Arrive About Mon. Oct. 9

They are Jersey Giants potatoes. GUARANTEED to be sand-grown in the State of New Jersey. We disposed of one car of these potatoes which gave entire satisfaction. Ask the fellows who bought them.

STEWARD LUMBER & GRAIN Co

SPENCERVILLE, IND.

Highest Prices Paid for Grain and Seeds.

BEAR CREEK FARM

LEIGHTY ORCHARD

We have sold all of our apples for which orders were not taken to the J. T. Johnson Fruit Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

We are sorry if you put off ordering until too late, but we did all we could to give you a chance to order for your winter needs.

We have reserved enough to fill all orders left with us, and want you to know that we appreciate the patronage you have given us.

We have had more than 2,500 visitors at the farm in the last four weeks, and hope to see you all again next year with your friends. REMEMBER,

LEIGHTY ORCHARD.

Local Briefs

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

Harry Jones and wife, of Wayne, came Tuesday to spend their vacation with Simon Bernard and wife.

Ab Conp has secured a contract for building an Apple House on Bear Creek farm and began work last week.

W. B. Kyle and wife, of Plymouth, visited from Saturday until Tuesday with their nephew, Wm. Wallace and family.

Mesdames Sarah Hull, Mary Sechler, Anna Dilley and Grace Dilley, and Miss Susan Sechler, and S. S. Widney left Wednesday noon for Auburn where they will remain with friends and attend the Centennial celebration until Friday night.

"We're Going Forward".

St. Joe turned out in fine shape Wednesday at Auburn.

Mrs. Sam Dailey is a patient at the hospital, being taken last week.

Miss Mary Fretz, of Waterloo, is caring for Mrs. J. P. Buckingham.

Jesse Copp and wife, of New Haven, and Dale Widney and wife were Sunday guests of Ab Copp and wife.

Mrs. E. Borthwick left last Tuesday for Riegelsville, N. J., after spending the summer with her son, Howard and family.

Next Monday is registration day and the booths will be kept open from 6 to 9. Voters can register in D. P. Cole building and town hall, and Henry Markle building will be used at Spencerville. Newville township will register at Center school house.

WANTED!

YOUR POULTRY

For which we will pay the highest market price.

Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM

St. Joe, Indiana

Accidents of the Week

Another arm was broken that of Ralph Frye, while on the Skating Rink, Wednesday evening. It being his right arm, will necessarily cause him to be laid up for some time.

Monday was an unlucky day. Wm. Bleeks fell from a scaffold and broke his left arm. He is building a house on his farm. While Dr. Farnham was dressing the arm, Robert Mirely, of Butler, who is working on the stone road here, was brought in with his right arm broken, caused in dumping stone on the road. It will be some time before either of them will be able to work.

Among the late list of accidents in this vicinity is that of C. T. Bayman and his Ford truck. While returning from Auburn, Wednesday, as he came upon the George crossing, west of Concord, No. 8, the fast train on the B. & O., just demolished his machine completely. How Mr. Bayman escaped, he does not know. The siding is lined with box cars there and you are unable to see until you cross the first track. It might have been worse, because there are more Fords anyway and they can replace it. Stop, Look and Listen, Safety first.

Daily Jots

James Rhodenbaugh, wife and daughter, Miss Irma, motored to Ft. Wayne, Saturday.

Leon Sechler and wife spent Sunday at Hicksville the guests of the latter's parents, Sam Deardorf and wife.

Vin Hutchens and wife and Chas. Fetter and wife, of near Ney, Ohio, were Saturday callers of B. F. Terman and wife.

William Brown and wife, of Auburn, are spending a few weeks with their daughter, Mrs. Hollis Jackson and husband, north of town.

The Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church will meet next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. Ella Patterson.

Will Curie and wife went to Ft. Wayne, Monday night, and remained until Tuesday when they left for Indianapolis where the former will represent the K. of P., lodge of this place at the State lodge meeting.

Miss Mary Bennett, of Mineral, Illinois; and Mrs. Mary Garton, of Ft. Wayne, came Saturday evening for a week's visit with the latter's son, H. S. Garton and family. Also Miss Lela Yocum, of Ft. Wayne, who together with Miss Bennett are Mr. Garton's nieces. John Gruber and wife (Mrs. Garton's parents) and Oscar Boulton, wife and daughter, all of Harlan, were also Sunday guests.

Asa Crawford, wife and children, Howard and Irene, of Kunkle, O.; Frank Crawford and daughter, Miss Mabel, of the northwestern part of Williams County, Ohio, were Saturday and Sunday guests of Frank Terman and wife. The following out-of-town people called during the day Sunday:—John Crawford, wife and daughter, of West Unity, Ohio; George Crawford and wife, of Fayette, Ohio; Mr. Johnston, wife and grandson, and Mr. Slesser and wife, all of Defiance County.

Prohi Rally

St. Joe has been visited this year so far with the Democrat and Republican speakers and the Prohibitionists will follow suit on Saturday evening of next week, when the Ford Auto Party that has been touring Indiana will be here. Good songs and speakers. Meeting will begin at 8:00 o'clock.

Commissioners Allowance Aug. Term 1916.

Central Union Tel. Co.	Tel, Tol	$ 32 50
Home Tel. Co.	"	46 75
Auburn Courier	Sup. Clerk	6 85
H. B. McCord	"	18 25
Auburn Courier	Sup. Auditor	3 30
H. B. McCord	"	14 48
Auburn Courier	Sup. Treas	49 66
H. B. McCord	"	4 35
H. B. McCord	Sup. Recorder	4 35
Auburn Courier	"	12 50
John P. Hoff	Sheriff Fees	74 59
Miles Baxter	Sup. Sheriff	2 00
H. B. McCord	"	6 60
Peerless Paint & Varnish Co.	"	5 00
Auburn Courier	Sup. Surveyor	2 22
H. B. McCord	"	33 15
Miles Baxter	Sup Co Supt	3
H. B. McCord	"	1 50
D. M. McKenzie	Coroner Inquest	2
Eugene Treesh	"	31 50
H. B. McCord	Sup Brd Health	17
Auburn Courier	"	12 50
Miles Baxter	"	5
J. A. Dennison	Assessing Grant	26
Hiram Enzor	Janitor	60
Henry Ludwig	"	60
Kimbrough Hdw Co	Sup Ct House	33 90
Auburn Water & Lt Wks	"	27 59
Mrs. Hiram Enzor	"	6 10
M. J. Wilcox Co	"	169 89
West Publishing Co	Sup Ct Room	10 71
J. R. McDowell	Sup Ct House	1
Hebel Bros	"	23 95
Culbertson Hdw Co	"	1
Schmeling & Alter	"	8
Frank Avery	Sup Jail	3
Faye Brown	Labor Co Farm	21 66
T. E. Quince	"	25
Faye DeLong	"	17 33
W. C. Workman	"	25
Mary Brown	"	21 66
S. C. Miser	"	18 91
Schaab Bros Co	Sup Co Farm	14 63
Culbertson Hdw Co	"	26 10
Globe Refining Co	"	5 50
L. J. Bueret	"	17 75
Indian Refining Co	"	11 28
Geo. E. King	"	5 05
Waterloo Broom Co	"	7 35
Ind. Hospital	Expense State Inst	21 43
J. M. Hosock	Soldier Burial	50
H. A. Hinklin	"	100
Garrett Clipper	Adv & Print	5 80
L. H. Higley	"	12 80
Garrett Clipper	"	7 10
Fred Becker	Highway Repair	6
A. L. Link	Bridge Supt	12
C. L. Wagoner	"	32
W. A. Austin	Record Comm	60
M. A. Butler	New Bridge	397
Willis Baughman	"	906 50
M. A. Butler	"	737
M. A. Butler	Bridge Repair	850
H. B. McCord	Sup Ct Room	8 20
Chester Hodge	County Highway	101 40
C. A. Rugman	"	267 13
Stanley Palmer	Layman Funk road	4
John D. Smith	"	54
Walter D. Wineland	"	4
A. L. Link	"	38 50
N. B. Putman	"	1071 20
N. B. Putman	"	52 09
Philip Habig	Rowley Road	60
Walter Wineland	"	2
Stanley Palmer	"	4
Al Link	"	34 50
Davenport & McReynold	"	2478 40
Indianapolis News	"	16 02
J. I. Holcomb Co	Sup Ct House	72 76
Worrell Mfg Co	"	85
Jacob Paulen	Rowley Road	25
J. S. Moyer	Poor School Children	51 90
John Roos	Keyser Poor	30

S. P. NELSON,
Auditor DeKalb County.

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved

why Pay $2 Per Pint for Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine -50 cents worth- and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. For sale by all Dealers.

List of Letters

Unclaimed at the postoffice at St. Joe, Ind., on October 1, 1916:

LETTERS

Mr Tom Zinninger
Mr. M. Lassar
Mr. T. D. Harner

ELGIN CURIE, P. M.

Dr. H. R. Farnham

MEDICINE AND
GENERAL SURGERY

ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office, ... No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house west of Weekly Opera House.

"Then I'm to understand there's no hope for me!"

Such is the opening remark of the principal character in the corking good story we have secured for our next serial

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The doctors assure him that the mysterious disease from which he is suffering will be the death of him within six months. So the young man starts out in search of a quiet place where he can die peacefully and at once. His plan is frustrated by a chance meeting with a girl in distress, bent on suicide. He marries her so she may have the benefit of his fortune, then departs for the South Seas on a yachting trip with a friend.

Then things begin to happen; he doesn't die as predicted and he has all sorts of adventures in rapid succession. Every installment is alive with interest. Be sure you don't miss the issue containing the first one.

Watch for It!

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Send in your news items.

Try an ad in the Free col.

R. J. Hillegass and wife, of Huntertown, were Sunday guests of J. P. Buckingham and wife.

Jesse Copp and wife, of New Haven, spent Saturday night and Sunday with St. Joe relatives.

F. H. Langley and wife, and Mr. Evans and wife, of Ft. Wayne, took Sunday dinner with Sam Warner and wife.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching, 10:00 a. m. Prayer meeting on Wednesday evening at 7:30.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9 a. m.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.; Preaching, 7:00 p m; Subject, "The new Birth a Blessing for All." Prayer meeting Thursday evening 7:00.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m. Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. R. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching service at 10:30 a. m. Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

Dying By Inches.

It is not an uncommon sight to see people who are dying by inches. The glands of the body are not working properly, poisonous matter accumulates and health declines. The circulation becomes sluggish, the blood impure, and a general nervous or debilitated condition exists. Day by day the liver and kidneys become less active, leaving the poisonous matter within the body. This poisonous accumulation causes the sallow complexion, and a tired, achy or run down feeling which, if neglected, may result in jaundice, typhoid fever or serious liver and kidney trouble. Glando, the great gland tonic, is especially prepared to relieve glandular disorders, throw off the poisonous accumulations and build up the system. Glando, the great gland tonic is the only treatment of its kind upon the market. Its superior qualities are due to the fact that it contains three separate treatments, each treatment having a special part to perform in effecting a cure. For sale by all Dealers.

Come in and pay that overdue subscription account.

Don't wait until the paper stops.

Patronize

the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank

Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

OCTOBER

L 9

0324

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed without advertising, therefore we solicit the patronage of our readers for those who by their advertising help to make this paper possible.

VOL. XXX | ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY OCT 12 1916 | NO. 42

Is An Interesting Letter

Giving a Detailed Descsiption of Long Journey through the Far East, Written by Mrs. Jennie Sechler.

Ranschs, Pa.
Oct. 5th., 1916

Dear Editor:

As you requested us to describe our trip will try as best we can. After leaving St. Joe on Sept. 19th., by way of the Wabash we proceeded to Detroit, Mich., where we secured rooms and lodging at the Wayne Hotel. We then spent the afternoon at Belle Isle, visiting the principal points of interest one of which was the "Aquarium". In the evening went sight-seeing in the city. The next morning boarded the Wabash train again and were ferried across the Detroit river and proceeded to Niagara by way of Canada; passing through Windsor, Chatham and St. Thomas, crossed the Niagara river arriving in Buffalo about 5:00 p. m. The crops through Canada where we passed were not as good as our own. Corn very poor, potatoes green and killed by frosts. Secured rooms and lodging in Buffalo at the "Avon". Spent the evening seeing the sights. Next morning took a car to Niagara where we spent the day. Secured a machine and visited all the points of interest which we particularly cared to see. Passed the camp of the Canadian soldiers. The bridge is guarded and all rigs, machines and persons are examined as you enter Canada, even lift the cushions of the seats to be sure there is nothing concealed; and one bridge overlooking the falls is guarded and you are not allowed to go on. If you attempt you are stopped by a soldier. Went back to Buffalo in the evening and spent the night there. Next morning took the Lehigh Valley train, the "Black Diamond". This road is noted for its scenery and is certainly grand; passes lakes Cayuga and Seneca, through Ithica, the home of Cornell; crosses the Wilkes Barre Mountains at a very high elevation from whence the scenery is grand.

Reached Mauch Chunk in the evening, where we stopped at the "Stemler House". Mauch Chunk is a place of much interest, excursions almost daily coming from New York, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Washington and the surrounding country. This last Sunday the excursionists numbered something like 10,000. Taking an electric car and after an interesting ride through Mauch Chunk and up the mountain side you reach the switchback station, here you ascend by means of gravity cars, the plane 2,322 feet in length, with an elevation of 664 feet, a rise of about one foot in three. Upon reaching Mt. Pisgah you are 900 feet above the starting point and 15,000 feet above tidewater; here you cross a trestle spanning a wide ravine; from here looking north, you see broad mountains; and midway between the summit and river, Glen Onoco, and southeast, Lehigh Gap, and still beyond, Schooleys Mts., near Hackettsville, N. J., a distance of sixty-five miles, after a ride of six and two thirds miles, you reach the plane of Mt Jefferson which is 2,070 feet in length, where you again ascend by gravity upon reaching the summit, you are 1,660 feet above tidewater, after a mile of descent we reach Summit Hill, a beautiful city of 3,000 with parks, street cars, electric lights, etc the return trip is made by the old mule track route over the nine miles of continuous descending grade to the starting point. Here also is the famous Flagstaff Mt., but this trip is made entirely by electric cars, but the view from here is great. Looking down on the whole city, the railroads, canals ets., but everything looking like toys. We reached our destination on Saturday morning, Sept. 23rd., since then we have visited the cities of Potsville, Hazelton, and Lamaqua, and have crossed broad and spring mountains, also visited the coal breaker, watched them take the coal from the ground the depth being 600 ft., counted 8 cars in 5 minutes, each car containing 5 tons, were told they averaged a car per minute. Are still seeing new sights every day, visited the Philadelphia Reading and Kutztown Ice Plant to-day, looks as though it would hold ice enough for the U. S. Well I think this is all that would interest you at present, will tell you the rest when we reach home.

Yours,
MRS. J. SECHLER.

AT YOUR SERVICE.

In our Drug Business we are expected to handle Rubber Goods such as Syringes, Atomizers, Hot Water Bottles, Ice Bags, Syringe Fittings, Ect. We buy from factory direct and can guarantee you quality and make our word good.

Dunkle's Drug Store.

YOU CANNOT

be robbed if you carry a check book instead of actual money. You cannot lose your money by carelessness or fire, if you keep it in the Bank and pay by check. Safety First.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

That car of Middlings has Arrived

We are paying highest market price for Timothy-Clover-and Alsike seeds. We have instock the following kinds of Coal: Pocohontas, West Virginia, Hocking Valley, Chestnut, Egg and Stove and Cannel coal.

Always Welcome At The
St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

A Line From Mich.

P. A. Shurts and daughter Pearl, were the guests of Michigan relatives and in order to show that they had a good time we reproduce a letter received from Mr. Shurts last week as follows:—

"Well, Fred, Clara Ford landed me in Bailey all O. K. Having a nice time here. It rained Monday night while we were at Angola and Tuesday p. m., and Wednesday a. m. Swamped 12 miles south of Grand Rapids, borrowed a shovel and dug Clara out and marched on. Peaches are nearly gone. Big frost last night. I am here with Uncle J. S. Miller attending a Soldiers Reunion. We are 22 miles north of Grand Rapids to-day. The potatoe crop is light. I have nothing to do but can peaches, pears, plums and musk melons. Don't you wish you was here. Tell Joe Koch and Walter Abel, J. S. Miller is all O. K., lively as a coon. We expect to start home Oct. 9, via Plainwell and Battle Creek."

Agler Fire Friday.

Friday afternoon, while nearly the whole of St. Joe was at Auburn, the alarm of fire was given, and there was some tall hustling going on, as nearly all the fire boys were there too. Mrs. Agler, who resides in the Widney property just west of Dr. Farnham, had just started a fire in the kitchen to take the chill off the room on account of Mrs. John Dove and baby, who had just called for the afternoon. Mrs. Agler went up-stairs shortly after and she heard fire cracking and began to investigate, and it seems as though a spark had set fire to the shingle roof on the main part of the house and was making great progress for the short time. She gave alarm to Mrs. Monroe who was in the yard raking leaves and she then gave alarm to Elza Kinsey who happened to be in front his store. He rang the alarm and soon enough had responded to take the apparatus to the fire. Noble work was done by the six fire boys with the aid of the citizens. The blaze was going at a rapid rate when the company arrived, but just as soon as they started to work they got control of it and only a short time elapsed until the fire was out. Carpenters were put to work Saturday to make the repairs. No insurance was carried.

Gets Contract.

Samuel Warner is a busy man now-a-days, having secured two good jobs during the past few days. The erection of a block building at Bear Creek Farm is the first and as soon os he is through there, he will move to the Grabill job, that of plasting a large church.

Begin READING

"Then I'm to understand there's no hope for me!"

Such is the opening remark of the principal character in the corking good story we have secured for our next serial

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The doctors assure him that the mysterious disease from which he is suffering will be the death of him within six months. So the young man starts out in search of a quiet place where he can die peacefully and at once. His plan is frustrated by a chance meeting with a girl in distress, bent on suicide. He marries her so she may have the benefit of his fortune, then departs for the South Seas on a yachting trip with a friend.

Then things begin to happen; he doesn't die as predicted and he has all sorts of adventures in rapid succession. Every installment is alive with interest. Be sure you don't miss the issue containing the first one.

Watch for It!

IN THIS ISSUE.

Were Caught By Cupid

In the Matrimonial Meshes—Victims Join Heart and Hand for Full Quota of Happiness Through Life.

A wedding of interest to the many St. Joe and Spencerville friends is that of Miss Helen Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bowman, of West Main Street and Mr. John Sturl Benninghoff, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Benninghoff, of Spencerville, which took place at high noon on Wednesday of last week, (October 4) at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. John C. Coons, the bride's pastor performed the impressive ring ceremony with little Miss Mary Ellen Heyman as ring bearer. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by Mrs. Fred B. Leighty. The home decorations were very neat consisting of green vines and white wedding bells.

The bride is a graduate of the St. Joe High School. Mr. Benninghoff is working as a mechanic at the Shyrock Garage at Ft. Wayne.

After the wedding dinner the young couple left by auto on their honeymoon trip for Toledo and Detroit, returning Saturday evening. Upon leaving they were showered with rice and as they passed thru town, the attention of the citizens was called by the large placard on the rear of the auto bearing the words "Just Married" and old shoes were seen dragging behind. Due to the interest shown in them by the citizens as they passed, they suspicioned something was wrong and when they reached the east part of town Mr. Benninghoff stopped the auto and removed the sign and in his excitement overlooked the old shoes and drove on. Upon entering Defiance they see that people there were somewhat amused at them, as though they had been informed as to what had happened. Again the auto was stopped and another search was made and the shoes were discovered. When the groom alighted from the machine, rice fell from his clothes and then the secret was off. Upon their return home the young people were ready to serenade them.

Mrs. John Sturl Benninghoff Jr.

Those present at the wedding were the parents of the bride and groom, A. F. Heyman, wife and little daughter, Will Benninghoff and wife of Ft. Wayne, Harry Hursh and wife and Mrs. Frank Steward of Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Richey of Hamilton, Mrs. Georgie Jenkins and Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg of Spencerville, Miss Inez Hart and ye editor and wife. Many beautiful presents were received such as linens, china, silverwear, cut glass cooking utensils and cash amounting to $105.

Furnished rooms at 121 West Creighton Ave., Ft. Wayne, have been secured.

A brounteous infare dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Benninghoff at Spencerville, those attending were the children from Ft. Wayne, Harry Hursh and wife of Garrett, H. S. Bowman, wife and daughter, and F. B. Leighty and wife of St. Joe and Miss Lake of east of Spencerville.

A farewell service was given in honor of the young couple at the St. Joe M. P. Sunday School, Sunday morning.

Notice to H. S. Graduates

The High School has a new permanent record in which to record all credits made by her graduates.

Please hunt up your old cards and records and bring them in to be recorded, as the credits doubtless will be wanted badly by you at some time in the future.

H. C. Hathaway, Trustee,
F. L. Smith, Supt.

New Road Opened

Tuesday morning was the first that any traffic was permitted over the new stone road west of town, to the Wabash since early last fall. The work has been accepted by the commissioners, we are told, and will thus save considerable of unnecessary driving to those who desire to go and come from the west.

COAL

has advanced from 75c to $1.00 ton. We have 1--Big Car coming soon at $3.80 ton from car. Order quick for it won't last long.

St. Joe Mills.

Programme.

Rally Day at the Christian Church on Sunday, Oct. 15th., '16

Opening Song............No. 15
Prayer led by Frank Johnston
Song ....No. 112
Study Period
Roll Call and Class Reports
Greeting......Supt. Mrs. Bassett
Song....................No. 89
Cradle Roll
Song...................No. 174
"Rally Everybody".............
.................Dorothy Scholes
Remarks..Chairman of Committee
Quartette....The Misses Scranton, Christoffle, Countryman and Hootman, and Mrs. Fusselmann
Piano Duet ....
.....Medames Herrick and Meek
Reading........Darla Fusselmann
Quartette.......................
..Members of Mrs. Sheffer's Class
March and Song ....
Little Winners and Loyal Juniors
Duet.........The Misses Hughes
Reading........Darla Fusselmann
Loyal Boys and Girls
Quartette....The Misses Scranton, Christoffle, Countryman and Hootman, and Mrs. Fusselmann
Recitation........Phyllis Kosht
Recitation.....Priscilla Borthwick
Quartette....The Misses Scranton, Christoffle, Countryman and Hootman, and Mrs Fusselmann
Closing Remarks and Benediction,
..................By Dr. Sheffer

Sunday School Report.

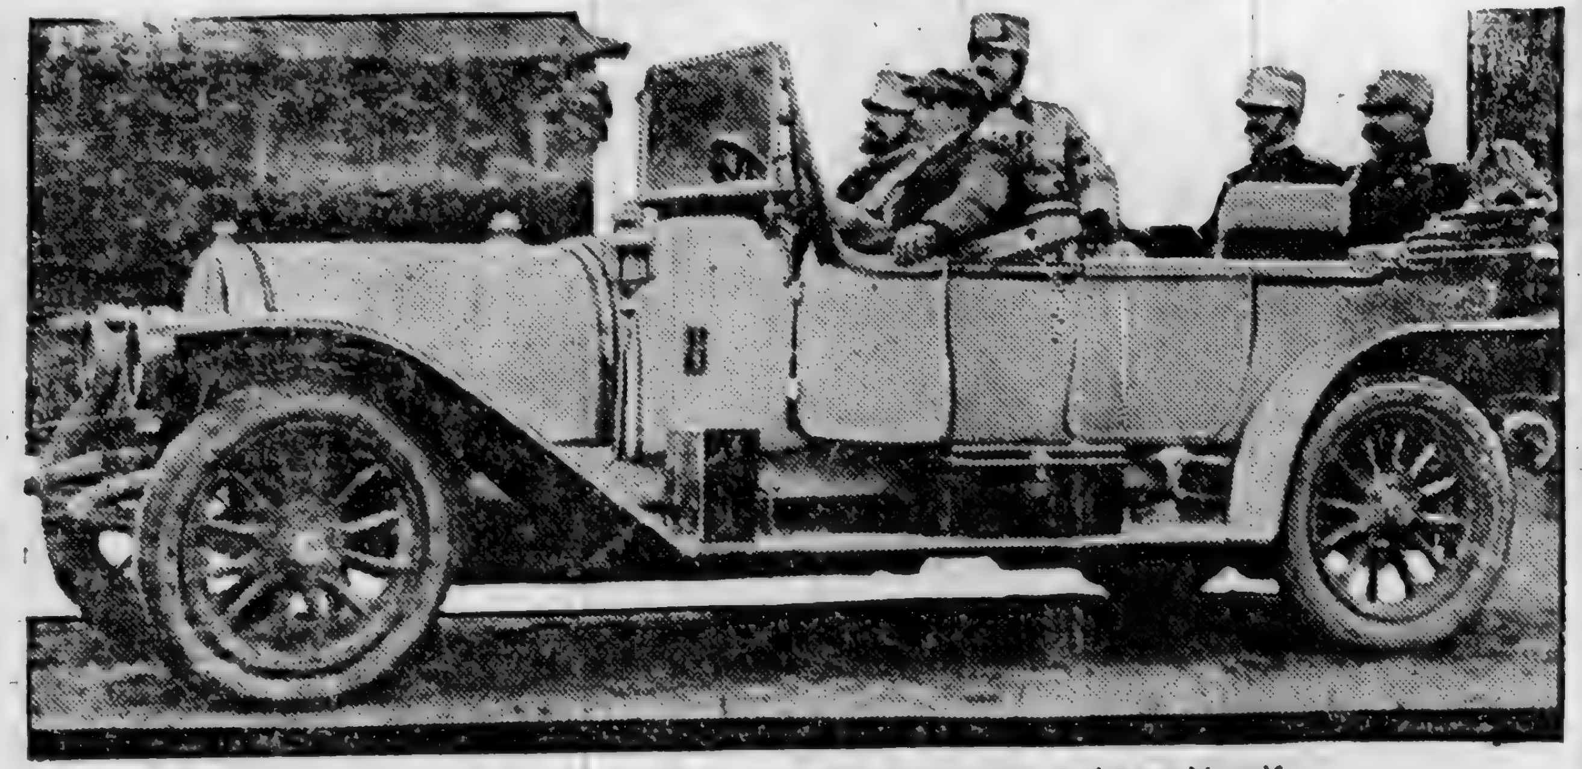
The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

M. P	92	$4 38
Lutheran	147	5.84
Christian	60	2 42
Coburntown	88	2.77
Concord	94	1.96
Fairview	17	.57
M. E. Spencer	134	7.45
Lutheran	80	2.20

OCTOBER

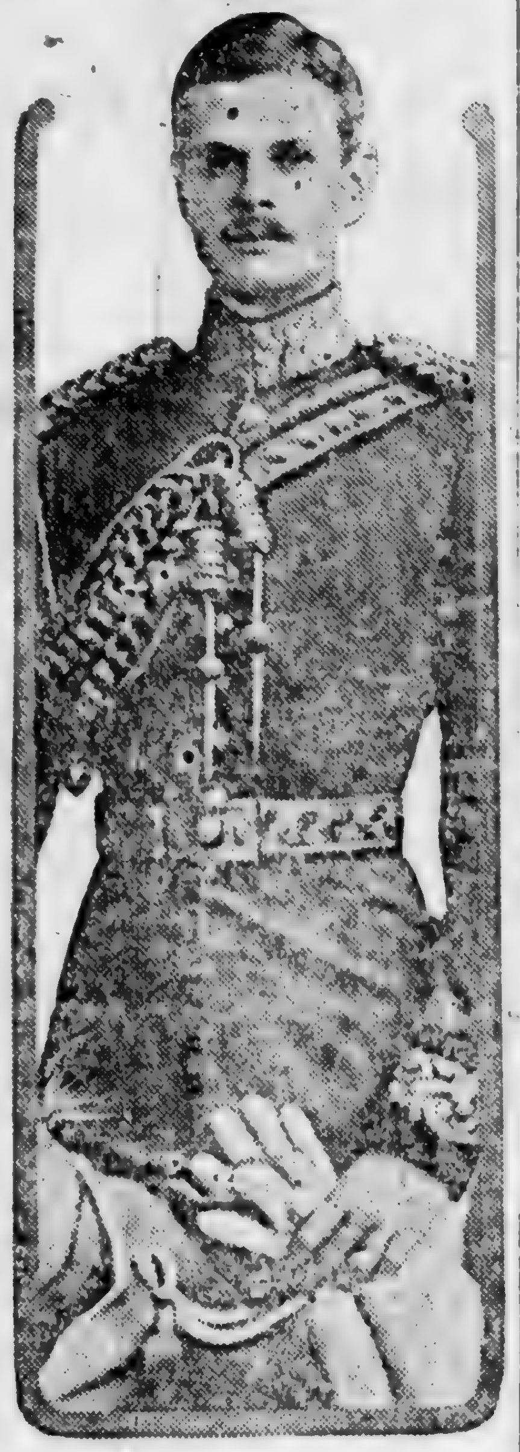
0325

KING FERDINAND AND HIS ARMY CHIEFS



King of Roumania and his army heads seated in auto. The king is driving the car himself.

CAPT. JOHN JACOB ASTOR



Capt. John Jacob Astor, son of Baron Astor, is back again at the front after his recent marriage to Lady Nairne. At the outbreak of the war Captain Astor immediately enlisted. He had served only a few months when he was wounded and sent home. After his recovery he insisted upon returning to the firing line, where he remained until last August. He then left for England and was married to Lady Nairns. On July 2 his father turned over $2,000,000 to him.

HOW TO TAKE HOT BATHS

Have the Tub Filled and Prepared, and Step Right Into It From Bed.

"The majority of bathers undoubtedly do themselves more harm than good," said an English physician, quoted by the Daily Mail. "First let me tell you how I take it myself—the ideal way. I have the bath filled, and when all is prepared I step into it straight from bed. Doubtless you put on a dressing gown, perhaps light a cigarette, lounge about your room, and then stroll along the draughty corridor and get into the bath already chilled. When there you stay until your skin vessels are thoroughly relaxed by the heat and unable to react. Afterward you are surprised to find yourself chilly and depressed.

"Some men shave first. Let me advise you to do this after the bath, not before, and so avoid chilling. Not everyone has his bathroom opening off from the bedroom, or even next door, so in many cases it is wiser to take a sponge bath in your sleeping room and get into it while the heat of the bed is still upon you. This should be the rule in all but the very hot months of the year.

"If you take a cold plunge bath stay in it only ten seconds. Then do not waste time drying yourself. Get on some clothes within three seconds after the bath. The weakliest can take a cold bath with benefit in this way; the strongest will suffer in the ordinary way."

New Steamship Machinery.

The efficiency and economy of the steamship Mjolner, in which turbo-electric propulsion is adopted, were recently commented on by the Motor Ship. The main machinery consists of two double-flow turbines, each driving a 400 k. w. generator and delivering power to a single motor, which drives the propeller shaft through reduction gearing at 90 revolutions a minute. It is reported in the Electrician that there are about 20 or 25 steamboats under construction in which similar machinery is to be used mostly of a low-powered type, usually of about 1,000 horse power

RULERS OF ROUMANIA AND RUSSIA

Copyright Underwood & Underwood

The king of Roumania and the czar of Russia photographed at one of their conferences held immediately before the former entered the war on the side of the entente allies.

BRITISH USING THE DAYLIGHT SIGNAL

© International Film Service

A British signaling party using the daylight signal lamp in a shellhole on the western front. One of the party is receiving signals from far away. He is looking through a periscope well wrapped with gunnysack the color of the surroundings.

BIG MEN OF THE ALLIES IN CONFERENCE

Copyright Underwood & Underwood

David Lloyd-George in conference with Premier Aristide Briand of France. Both holding high positions of trust in their respective countries, the great physical likeness of the two men is remarkable. It is said that these leaders also have many characteristics in common and, furthermore, they are the best of friends personally.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

CHICKENS QUARREL.

"The other day," said Daddy, "two little Chickens were Fighting in the Barnyard. It was very early in the Morning, and only the Animals were up.

"'That was my Seed, and you took it,' said one little Chicken, as he gave his small Brother a peck on the top of the Head.

"'It wasn't your Seed. I found it first,' said the small Brother.

"'You may have picked it up first, but I saw it first. So it's mine.

"And then they had a regular Quarrel. They both got very angry and called each other very unkind names. And they hit each other on top of the head, and gave horrid little pinches with their Beaks.

"Pretty soon who should come walking along but Father Rooster.

"'Stop your Quarreling, Children!' he clucked. 'I am ashamed of you.' And he stepped right in between them, and stopped the Fight.

"'Now where is your Seed?' he asked.

"'You took it,' they said together—very crossly.

"'That is no way to talk to Father Rooster,' he said. 'Besides I did not take it.'

"'Who did then?' they asked.

"'Wait and you shall see.'

"'I don't want to wait,' said one of the Chickens.

"And the other one said, 'I don't want to wait. I want to eat it up for it was my Seed.'

"'It wasn't your Seed—it was my Seed,' said the other Chicken. And they began to Quarrel again.

"'Stop Fighting! I command you! I demand you to stop!' said Father Rooster. And the Chickens were so frightened over his loud voice that they stopped and looked rather ashamed of themselves.

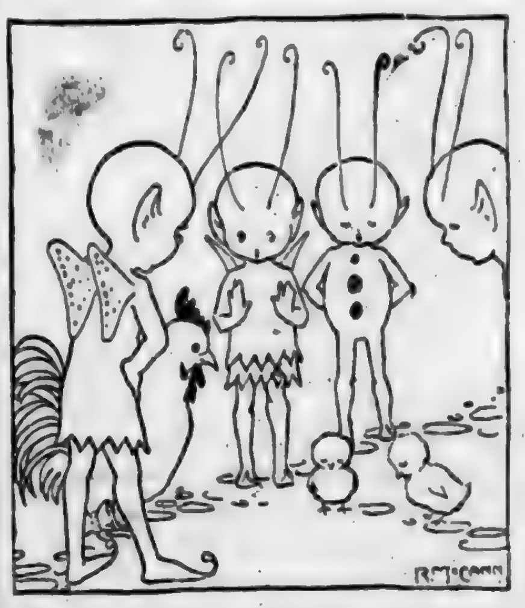
"'It's not sensible to Fight over a Seed which is lost, is it?' he asked.

"'No,' said both the Chickens hanging their Heads.

"And then Father Rooster began to crow.

"'Victory—victory!'

"As he crowed over and over again, pretty soon along came hundreds of little Elves. They wore fresh Green Suits and Green Caps, with Silver trimmings.



"We Are Much Ashamed," They Said.

"'Hello, Elves,' said Father Rooster. 'I have stopped the Quarrel!'

"'Good!' shouted the Elves.

"'Oh, do you suppose those pretty creatures heard us Fight?' asked the Chicken of his small Brother.

"'I hope not,' said his Brother.

"'I wonder,' said the Chicken sadly.

"But it was not long before they knew just what the Elves had heard.

"'We are much ashamed,' they said, 'to hear of such a selfish Quarrel between two nice little Chickens—and two Brothers!'

"Oh, how badly the Chickens were feeling.

"'My Brother can have the Seed!' one of them said.

"'I don't want it,' he replied.

"'Well,' said Effie Elf, who was leading the other Elves. 'I am sure you didn't know how badly that Quarrel sounded—all about who should have a Seed. You should both be glad to get Seeds for each other, just as Father Rooster gets Worms for you and for the Hens.'

"'That's true,' said the Chickens. 'We are so, so sorry.' And they truly meant it, for they hadn't realized how selfish they had been—just over the little matter of a Seed.

"'It was greedy,' said one Chicken.

"And the other said, 'We would expect nothing better from the Pig family who are noted for being greedy and mean!'

"But while they were saying these things to each other the Elves had gone away.

"'They'll be back,' said Father Rooster, when he noticed the Chickens looked so sad, for they wanted to beg forgiveness from the Elves.

"And just then back came the Elves, and with them was Mrs. White Leghorn Hen, looking very handsome with her long white tail, and her bright Red Hat.

"'We're going to have a feast of Worms and Seeds for you,' said the Elves. But the little Chickens waited on the others first, and then how much more they enjoyed their own."

Small Pay.

Natives of India who wave fans to keep the air circulating in houses receive the munificent wage of 6 cents a day.

EVEN THE PREMIER IS HIT

Only Allowed Six Gallons of Gasoline a Month by New Restrictions.

In England the private motorist is no longer allowed to use gasoline freely. So much is needed for military purposes that the new restrictions are severe. High and low are being treated alike, and it is, perhaps, some consolation to the ordinary motor car owner to know that the prime minister and the speaker of the house of commons are allowed only six gallons of petrol a month. Mr. Lowther, the speaker, cannot dream of motoring as usual to Penrith, and Mr. Asquith will be hard put to it to run down to his Berkshire home for a week-end. Mr. Asquith, however, rarely uses his car in town, and can be seen any evening, unescorted and almost unnoticed, strolling from the house back to Downing street.

As for the speaker, one day recently a traveler on the top of a South London tramcar bound for Westminster observed among his fellow-passengers the picturesque figure of Right Hon. J. W. Lowther, immaculately clad in a suit of summer gray, with a white top-hat. Next to him was a carpenter, burdened with the implements of his trade.

TENDER SKINNED BABIES

With Rashes and Irritations Find Comfort in Cuticura. Trial Free.

Baby's tender skin requires mild, soothing properties such as are found in the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Cuticura Soap is so sweet, pure and cleansing and Cuticura Ointment so soothing and healing, especially when baby's skin is irritated and rashy.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Didn't Feaze Him.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the maneuvers.

"Oo-oo!" screamed the pretty girl, a nice decorous, surprised little scream. She stepped backward into the arms of a young man.

"Oh!" she said, blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles. I beg your pardon."

"Not at all," said the young man. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

"REALLY, NOW—

"I can't take that. I must have Red Cross Ball Blue. I have used it for more than ten years. My white dresses, linens and lace curtains are snowy white. I simply can't do without Red Cross Ball Blue. You will get it? All right, I'll wait."—Adv.

His Kill.

"Did Jaeger bag anything on his hunting trip last week?"

"Not much. Only the hunting dog he borrowed from me."

The government health service has discovered a new and cheap disinfectant. It is obtained from pine oil.

Ask for and Get
SKINNER'S
THE HIGHEST QUALITY
SPAGHETTI
36 Page Recipe Book Free
SKINNER MFG. CO., OMAHA, U.S.A.
LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

Mail Us Your
KODAK
Films for Finishing
We pay return postage.
M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Washington, D.C. Books free. High est references. Best results

In the Conservatory.

Nina—I understand the young grass widow has failed in her efforts to snare the rich old bachelor.

Verne—Is she much disappointed?

Nina—Indeed, she is! One would think she was from Kentucky.

Verne—Because why?

Nina—She's such a blue grass widow.

Very True.

Teacher—What must we do before our sins can be forgiven?

Walter—We must sin.

A noiseless bowling alley is the invention of a Parisian, the clash of falling pins being silenced.

When Work Is Hard

That kidney troubles are so common is due to the strain put upon the kidneys in so many occupations, such as:
Jarring and jolting on railroads, etc.
Cramp and strain as in barbering, moulding, heavy lifting, etc.
Exposure to changes of temperature in iron furnaces, refrigerators, etc.
Dampness as in tanneries, quarries, mines, etc.
Inhaling poisonous fumes in painting, printing and chemical shops.
Doan's Kidney Pills are fine for strengthening weak kidneys.

An Indiana Case

George W. McCrary, W. Fourth St., Paoli, Ind., says: "My back was so sore and lame, I could hardly lift anything. The kidney secretions were highly colored and passed too often day and night. I took a great deal of medicine, but steadily grew worse until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They cured me and I give them the credit for saving my life."

Every Picture Tells a Story

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

COLD IN HEAD
CATARRH
INSTANTLY RELIEVED BY THE OLD
DR. MARSHALL'S
CATARRH SNUFF
25¢ AT ALL DRUG STORES OR SENT PREPAID BY WILLIAMS MFG. CO. CLEVELAND, O.

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. Frank Knobl, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. Yost, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. Clementina Duerring, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

OCTOBER

L 9

U326

WRIGLEY'S

THE PERFECT GUM

Let us make you acquainted with the new, luscious flavor—

WRIGLEY'S JUICY FRUIT CHEWING GUM
WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT THE PERFECT GUM MINT LEAF FLAVOR
WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT CHEWING GUM PEPPERMINT

It's all that the name suggests!

Wrigley quality— made where chewing gum making is a science.

Now three flavors:

Have a package of each always in reach

Don't forget WRIGLEY'S after every meal

WRAPPED IN UNITED PROFIT SHARING COUPONS

645

Constipation Vanishes Forever

Prompt Relief—Permanent Cure

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS never fail. Purely vegetable — act surely but gently on the liver. Stop after dinner distress—cure indigestion, improve the complexion, brighten the eyes. SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE.

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG.U.S.PAT.OFF.

will reduce inflamed, swollen Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Soft Bunches; Heals Boils, Poll Evil, Quittor, Fistula and infected sores quickly as it is a positive antiseptic and germicide. Pleasant to use; does not blister or remove the hair, and you can work the horse. $2.00 per bottle, delivered. Book 7 M free.

ABSORBINE, JR., the antiseptic liniment for mankind, reduces Painful, Swollen Veins, Wens, Strains, Bruises; stops pain and inflammation. Price $1.00 per bottle at dealers or delivered. Will tell you more if you write. Liberal Trial Bottle for 10c in stamps.

W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

NEW PENSION BILLS

Widows and former widows, (now single,) civil war survivors and widows, Indian wars '59-'91 widows, Spanish-Philippine war; National Guards. Write MILO B. STEVENS & CO., 653 F. ST., WASHINGTON D. C. Established 1864.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

GALL STONES AVOID OPERATIONS (No Oil) No more Gallstone Pains or Aches in Stomach, Back, Side or Shoulders; Liver Troubles, Stomach Misery, Dyspepsia, Colic, Gas Billousness, Headache, Constipation, Piles, Catarrh, Nervousness, Blues, Jaundice, Appendicitis. Those are common Gallstone symptoms—CAN BE CURED. Send for home treatment. Medical Book on Liver, Stomach, Gall Troubles and Appendicitis FREE

Gallstone Remedy Co., Dept. W-8, 219 S. Dearborn St., Chicago

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 42--1916.

MACHINE TO PEEL PEACHES

Industry in California Will Be Revolutionized by Remarkable Invention, Growers Predict.

There has been quietly and secretly installed at the California Peach Growers' Plant No. 9, which is better known as the Fresno Home Packing company's plant, a peeled peach machine which promises to revolutionize the peach industry and make it profitable to market peeled peaches at the low price of 8 or 9 cents per pound.

With the advent of the peeled peach machine, which can put out a perfect peeled peach at less cost than can be done by hand, it is predicted that there will be a big demand for the peeled peaches, and this will form one of the important outlets for the peach industry.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Enemies Now.

"A burglar stole into our house last night and stole a diamond ring and a pie I made yesterday. The police are watching the pawnshops, but have found no trace of him yet."

"Has anyone had sense enough to visit the morgue?"

Strategic Move.

Hazel—Is that your will you are writing, Aimee?

Aimee—No; it's my won't.

Hazel—Why, what do you mean?

Aimee—George proposed to me last night and I promised to mail my answer today.

A mouse can bore a passage through an inch board in three hours.

DRUGGISTS HIGHLY RECOMMEND DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT

Satisfied With Results

I have been selling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for six and one-half years and my customers are always satisfied with the results obtained from the use of the medicine and speak favorably regarding it. I have used it for "pain in the back" and a bottle or two put me in good shape and made me feel fine again. I believe Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root will cure any cases for which it is recommended if they are not of too long standing.

Very truly yours,
FRANK JENKINS, Druggist.
Pilgrim, Texas.
November 11th, 1915.

Customers Speak Favorably

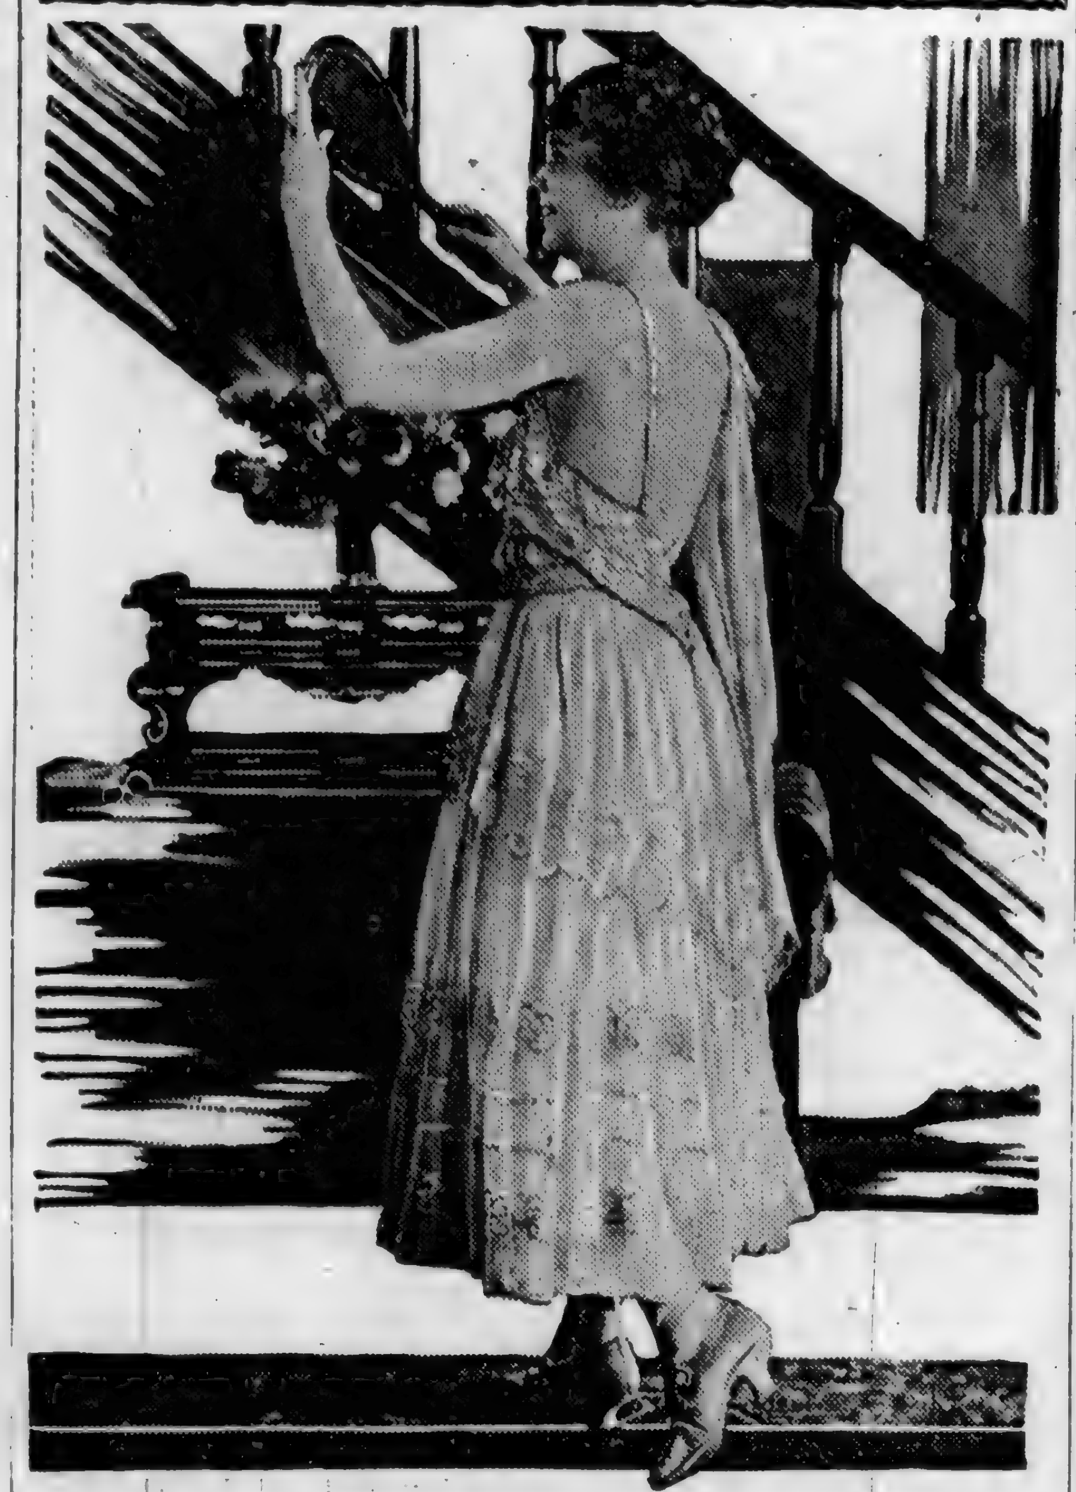
We have been handling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root for fourteen years and during all that time we never had a dissatisfied user of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root; all of our customers speak very favorably regarding it. We know of cases of Gall Stones, Gravel, Catarrh or Inflammation of Bladder and Rheumatism where it produced the most beneficial results. We believe it is a good medicine for the diseases for which it is intended.

Very truly yours,
McCUNE DRUG CO.,
By N. E. McCune,
Bridgeport, Texas.
November 11th, 1915.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Too Daring Evening Gown



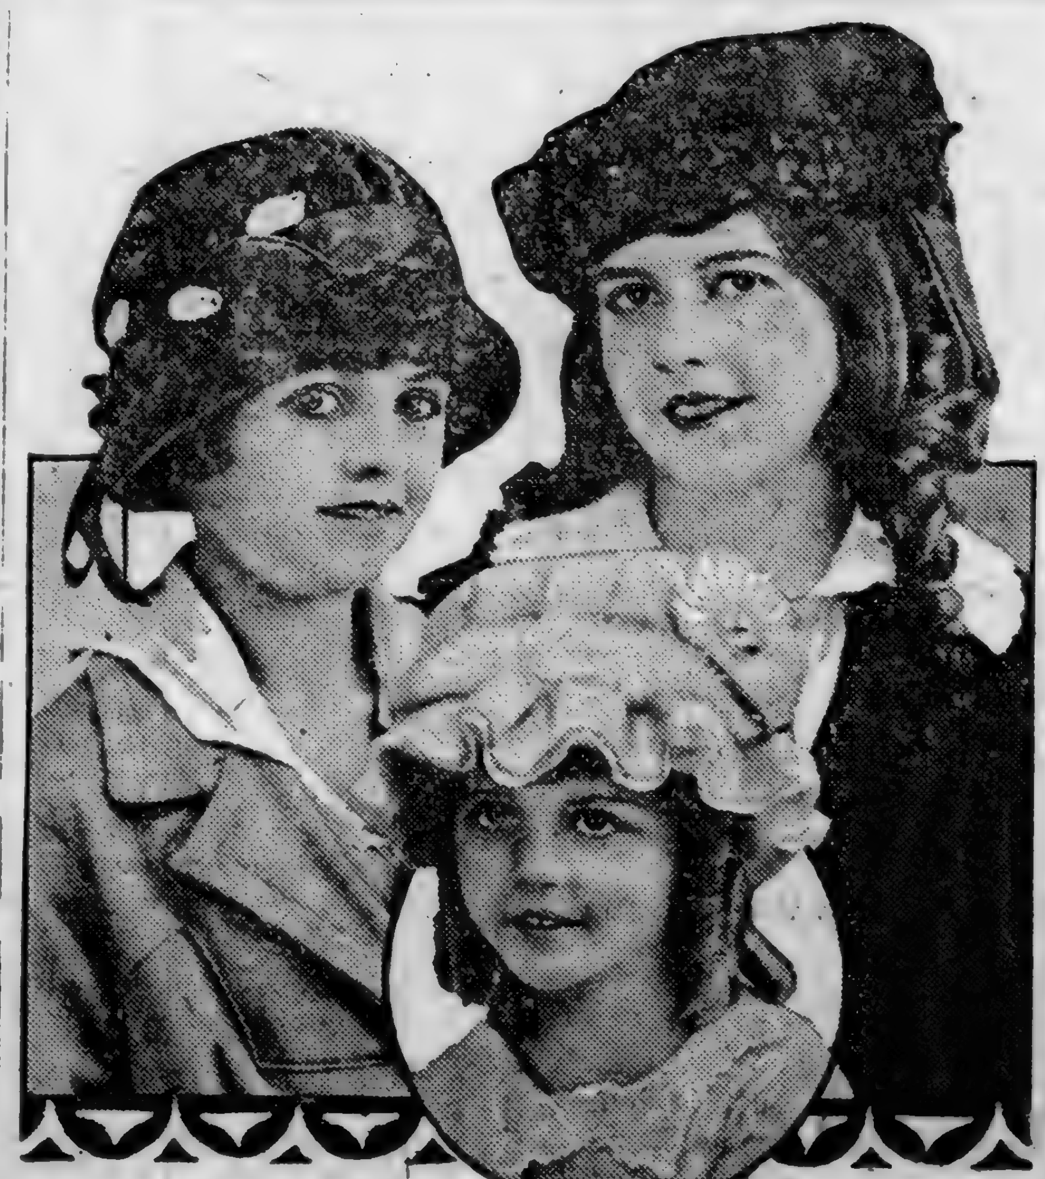
We will accept anything at the hands of Paris and keep it long enough to get a good look at it. So we received the backless evening gown, gave a gasp of surprise—and made a copy of it. But we never took it seriously. It caused a small ripple of talk, gave a little spice to initial displays of gowns for the new season and passed on its way to oblivion. But it made no lasting impression and exerted no influence on the mode, where the tendency is toward higher bodices with sleeves of tulle or lace.

However fleeting its career, the camera caught the backless gown, and it is shown above. The full skirt of white net, embroidered with silver sequins is adorably pretty. It has a tunic which is extended into the bodice at the front and bordered with a scroll pattern in sequins. A wide lace, almost covered with the glittering sequins, falls from the bodice and is attached to narrow shoulder straps at the back. There is a full scarf of chiffon which hangs from the right shoulder and may be brought around the figure. The skirt is of the promised length, reaching quite to the ankles.

New evening gowns and dance frocks show the most novel combinations of vivid color. Brocaded silks with figures in silver or gold thread in gorgeous patterns are the richest stuffs used in them. These costly brocades are sparingly used in dance frocks, where they form a small part of the airy bodices of tulle or lace. But they appear in narrow trains and draperies on splendid evening gowns and are at their best in fur-trimmed evening coats.

Satin and point de esprit are favored materials for evening gowns and dance frocks. Both are to be had in all the fashionable colors. Skirts are full and hang straight, and bodices are nearly always draped with tulle and have fanciful tulle sleeves which float about the arms. The important thing to study is the startling color combinations, which are so entirely new that it is not possible to describe them.

Real Millinery for Small Girl



The small girl, being already fitted out with something plain and substantial in headwear for school is acquiring her real millinery—the hat she is to wear when she is "dressed up." Her needs are of such importance that many keen minds devote their energies to the production of hats just for girls—little and big. They welcome her with pretty things when she slips out of babyhood and bonnets into little girlhood and hats. And they care for her needs until she emerges from school and leaves the limitations of young girlhood in matter of dress, behind her.

These designers have found in the woolly, furry and fuzzy materials of the present season, mediums that make fascinating millinery for children. In the group of hats pictured here plush, corduroy, velvet and plain velvet are used. At the left a little bonnet-like shape of plush is suited to the small lady from three to eight years old. It is shown in brown plush with a sash of narrow satin ribbon, and buds on a stem simulated in pink and green satin.

For the girl of eleven to sixteen there are many tams of black velvet like that at the right of the picture. It is finished with a band of narrow grosgrain ribbon, folded cleverly into joints, and a rosette and hanging ends of ribbon at the side. No other shape surmounts curls more effectively.

At the bottom of the group a hat of white corded velvet is simply a soft, puffed crown with a plaited frill about it. The frill is lined with white chiffon. There is a narrow band of white fur about it and at the left side a tiny head nestles in a rosette of fur. This is sure to capture the heart of the little maid of five who wears it.

All of these hats may be undertaken by the home millinery for none of them is hard to make.

Julia Bottomley

Chinese Trade and the War.

United States trade with China increased in 1915, although foreign business men throughout the world suffered a loss of more than $100,000,000 in their exports to that country last year. China has for years been in an unsettled condition, yet the country's foreign trade mounted higher and higher until the European war, when the trade was crippled. Wherever a railroad has been built in China new trade opportunities have sprung up and new markets have been created. On the upper Yangtze river in western China, a rich island empire in the Chungking consular district, having a population of upward 75,000,000, no adequate transportation facilities exist, and no railway connection whatever.

Legal Experience.

"Do you believe that truth really lies at the bottom of a well?" queried the young lawyer.

"It would seem so," replied the old lawyer, "judging by the amount of pumping we have to do to get a little of it."

Russians are to colonize in South America.

A New Delight

Libby's Chili Con Carne

With real Bayou beans, or plain. Made after the real and famous Mexican formula. The seasoning is most piquant—a zestful tasty dish anywhere—any time.

Libby, McNeill & Libby
Chicago

Look for the triangle

Libby's
Mexican Style
Chili Con Carne
WITH BEANS
Libby McNeill & Libby Chicago

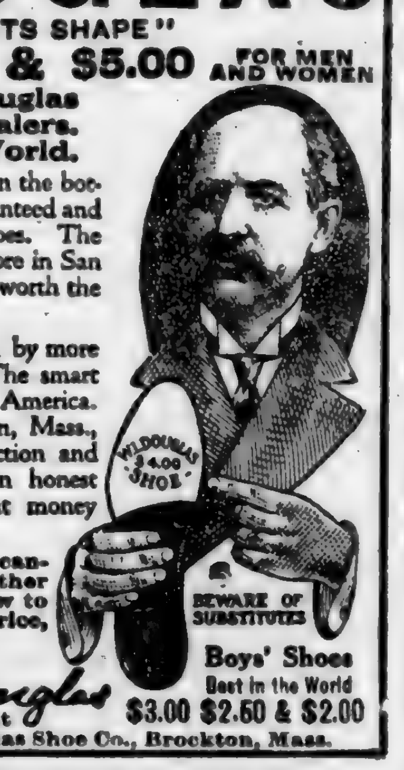
Insist on Libby's at your grocer's

W. L. DOUGLAS

"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"

$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN

Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World.



W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

Boys' Shoes Best in the World $3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

Puts a ... Stop to all Distemper

CURES THE SICK

And prevents others having the disease no matter how exposed. 50 cents and $1 a bottle, $5 and $10 a dozen bottles. All good druggists and turf goods houses.

SPOHN MEDICAL CO.,
Chemists and Bacteriologists, Goshen, Ind., U. S. A.

HOW LLOYD-GEORGE WORKS

Depends Much on Secretaries and Never Writes a Letter If He Can Help It.

It is said that Lloyd-George, the British war minister, depends very much on his secretaries, and never writes a letter if he can help it. He has a knack of getting the men he wants and of getting a lot of work out of them, and, as would be expected, sees that they are properly rewarded. When he went to the war office Lloyd-George took three of his secretaries with him, Mr. H. J. Creedy, who was Lord Kitchener's secretary, being retained also; J. T. Davies, who has served Mr. Lloyd-George in a very confidential post for some time; Miss F. L. Stephenson, who is probably the first woman to occupy such a post with a responsible statesman, and Mr. W. Sutherland, who is underpaid. Lloyd-George, by the way, has made more than one find among his private secretaries, and, even in face of comment, he has not hesitated to secure their promotion to responsible posts. There is, for instance, Sir W. H. Clark, a former board of trade clerk, who was the present war secretary's "ghost" at the board of trade and the exchequer, who became a member of the council of India, and who, at the age of forty, is a knight busily engaged in organizing the capture of German trade. Another of Mr. Lloyd-George's former private secretaries is Mr. John Rowland, a brilliant Welshman, who has done good work as Welsh Insurance commissioner.

Furnished a Double Proof.

A tramp knocked at a farmer's door and called for something to eat.

"Are you a Christian?" asked the good-hearted country man.

"Can't you tell?" answered the man. "Look at the holes worn in the knees of my pants. What do they prove?"

The farmer's wife promptly brought out the food and the tramp turned to go.

"Well! Well!" asked the farmer. "What made those holes in the back of your pants?"

"Backsliding," replied the tramp as he hurried on.

Putting It Up to Father.

After several unsuccessful attempts to draw her husband into conversation at the restaurant, the wife discovered the cause of his abstraction to be a beautiful girl dressed in black at a nearby table.

"An attractive widow," observed the wife coolly.

"Yes, indeed, a very attractive widow," agreed the husband enthusiastically.

"Yes," sighed the wife. "I wish I were one."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Higher Up.

Mrs. English—Is your husband a representative American?

Mrs. U. S. A.—No, indeed! He's a senator!—Life.

The Chinese government controls the mining of copper because the metal is so largely used in currency.

The People Pay.

The people of the United States are paying war prices for a great many articles of everyday use because those articles are not produced at home. In other words, they are having a practical demonstration at so much per of the democratic free trade idea. The idea is that we ought to buy where we can buy cheapest. It may have worked in the old days, but it doesn't work now, because all the cheap sources of supply are closed. If the old Republican idea of protecting industry in our own country had been followed consistently for the last ten or fifteen years we should have had factories busy in the production of all these things, and our people would be able to purchase them at reasonable prices. Right now the mistake of abandoning the theory of protection is costing the people of this country more than it costs any European nation to do its part in the war.—Yakima Republic.

The Duffer.

"I heard today that Mr. Brown plays golf on Sunday."

"Well, what of it?"

"I think it's dreadfully wicked."

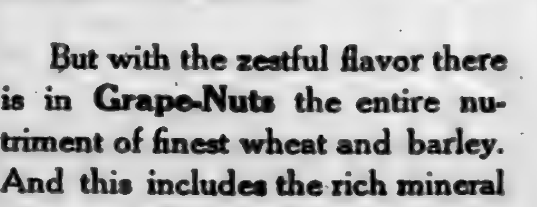
"It's wicked to play the kind of golf Brown does on any day of the week."

His Hint.

Visitor—Has this hotel all modern improvements?

Clerk—Yes—you can't beat it!

German helmets are nearly as light as straw hats.



Adds to the Joy of Living—

It isn't alone the deliciously sweet nut-like taste of Grape-Nuts that has made the food famous, though taste makes first appeal, and goes a long way.

But with the zestful flavor there is in Grape-Nuts the entire nutriment of finest wheat and barley. And this includes the rich mineral elements of the grain, necessary for vigorous health—the greatest joy of life.

Every table should have its daily ration of

Grape-Nuts

"There's a Reason"

OCTOBER

0327

TAXES!

Can be paid at this bank at any time with a small cost to you. Save time by calling at this bank.

Farmers & Merchants State Bank

Capital Stock $25,000.00

Spencerville, - - - Indiana

POULTRY taken in at

Erick's

every THURSDAY up to 3:00 o'clock.

SPENCERVILLE

Don't put off any longer. Subscribe now.

Ezra Horn and Rev. Mumma left Monday morning for AnnArbor Mich., to attend the Annual Convention of the Northern Indiana Synod.

William Hollabaugh and family, of Auburn; J. S. Hollabaugh and family, and Lee Hollabaugh and wife were Sunday guests of George Hollabaugh and wife.

See our winter Bed Blankets—Beams & Co.

The C C Club will be entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louie Beam.

John Horn and wife spent Sunday with the former's brother, Frank Horn and wife.

Clyde Fredrick and family will spend the winter at Hamilton Lake where Mr Fredrick has contract of building a cottage.

John Betz and wife, of St. Joe; and Joel Betz and wife were Sunday guests of Mrs. Walter Perkins and family, near Harlan.

Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Valentine and son, Wm. Lucas and wife, of near St. Joe; and Jason Keyes and wife, of Ft. Wayne; were Sunday dinner guests of Harvey Beams and wife.

HOW "TIZ" HELPS SORE, TIRED FEET

Good-bye sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, sweaty feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

Good-bye corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "TIZ" is magical, acts right off. "TIZ" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet. Use "TIZ" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel. Get a 25-cent box of "TIZ" now at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. A year's foot comfort guaranteed or money refunded.

Sell Your POULTRY TO

ZONKER BROTHERS

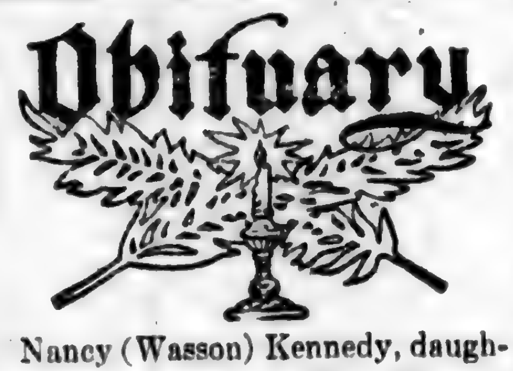
St. Joe, Indiana.

Highest Prices Paid.

Poultry Shippers and Sanitary Meat Market.

PHONE NO. 19

Our Motto: "A Square Deal."



Obituary

Nancy (Wasson) Kennedy, daughter of Samuel and Eliza Wasson, was born near Spencerville, Ind., April 19, 1850, and died at her home on the same farm Oct. 1, 1916. Age 66 years, 5 months, 12 days. She has always lived in DeKalb Co., most of the time on the farm where she was born and where she died. Aug. 28, 1879, she was united in marriage to Philip Kennedy, who departed this life in the fall of 1901. She became a Christian and united with the church at Concord when she was about 17 years of age. She afterward transfered her membership to the M. E Church at Waterloo and then to the M. E. Church at Spencerville about 30 years ago, during the pastorate of Rev. Slack, and there she remained a member until called from time to reward. She was reared in a Christian home. Her mother was a charter member of the Spencerville M. E. Church.

Her parents, five brothers and one sister have passed to the Great Beyond. She leaves one brother, Milton, of Cal.; four sisters, Lizzie Chaney, of Sedan; Ann Rickett, of Newville; Jane Hull, of Concord; Tillie Sheldon, of Johnsonburg, Penn., and many other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Funeral services were held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m., conducted by Rev. J. C. Valentine assisted by Rev. Mumma. H. Beams, funeral director.

SPENCERVILLE NEWS.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

The Ladies Guild of the M. E. church will meet in a business meeting at the church, this afternoon (Thursday.)

On next Sunday morning there will be a special service at the Lutheran church with reports from the Synod and all departments of the local church.

Our line of School Dresses are meeting the demands of many people here—You can't make them for what Beams & Co., ask.

Geo. Gloyd, wife and son Ralph, spent Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Isadore Badica and family, of near Ft. Wayne. Mrs. Gloyd remained to care for her daughter who will undergo an operation at the Lutheran hospital, the latter part of the week.

On Sunday a family dinner was held at the home of Martin Keesler and wife in honor of their son, Chas. Keesler, of Branch, Mich. Those present were Samuel Keesler and family, of St. Joe; Ami Baker and wife and Neut Henderson and wife, of Leo; John Keesler and wife, of Edgerton; Ralph Furnish and family, of the County Line; and Ray Baker and wife.

On Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Maude Beams the C. C. Club met in honor of Mrs. Dr. Edwards, who with the Dr. are spending a few days at this place visiting old friends. Mrs. Edward organized the club about three years ago when she was a resident here. Those who were present besides the members were Dr. and Mrs Emme, Mrs. Audrey Wade and Mrs. D. D. Metcalf. A pot luck supper was served.

Winter Coats and Caps just arrived at Beams & Co., Store. See them at once.

On Sunday afternoon, while Harold Vallieu, Edwin Harwood and Donald Dinius were pleasure driving with the latter's horse and buggy on Mill St., an auto came up behind them frightening the horse. In turning the horse around so it would not run into the river, the buggy (which was a Cosy Cab style) upset, throwing Harold Vallieu through the glass door, the buggy falling on him crushing his ankle and knee, also receiving several bad cuts about the head and face. The Harwood boy received a few small bruises, while the Dinius never received a scratch.

Box Social, Friday night, Oct. 27, Hay's School House.

Rally Day was observed last Sunday morning at the M. E Church. An excellent program was rendered and several good speeches were made. A large crowd was in attendance.

SPENCERVILLE R. F. D. NO. 2

Box Social, Friday night, Oct. 27, Hay's School House.

Ira Smith and wife, Ed Culter and wife, and Mrs. Walters, of Antwerp, O., were Sunday guests of Will Smith and wife.

Mr. Courtney and family, of Auburn, spent Sunday with Charles Esaley and family.

Edna and Fay Green, Willis Bishop and wife, and Edna Dinius, of Roanoke, Ind, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Theo. Dinius and wife.

Ed Revertt aud family, of Fort Wayne, visited Sunday with Milo Beams and family.

Geo. Squiers, wife and children, of Garrett, are visiting with the former's sister, Mrs. Elmer Smith and family.

G. W. Wearley, wife and daughter LeAnna, spent Sunday at Huntertown, the guests of John Emerick and family.

John Stafford and family, of Newville Center, were Sunday guests of D. M. Kelley and children.

Ray Means, wife and babe spent Sunday with Chas. Gibbons and wife.

Edward Shumaker, of Waterloo spent a few days last week, with Chas. Gibbons and wife. On Sunday, Mr. Gibbons and wife and C. M. Wearley and wife accompanied him home.

The Misses Marjorie Hollabaugh and Vivian Quisenberry were Sunday guests of Crystal and Rhea Wearley.

Lewis Markle and wife, Mrs. Joe Webb, and Clint Webb and wife motored to Farmers Center, Sunday, and spent the day with Dan Bowman and wife.

John Farver and wife, of Concord, were Sunday guests of Earl Stiman and wife.

Mother's Responsibility

No part of the body is so seriously neglected as the mouth, nose and throat. If not kept sanitary they become a breeding place for germs. If Glando Gargle be used once or twice daily it will cleanse the mucus membrance and kill the germs. It is excellent for sore mouth in babies; soothes during teething. It relieves a cold in the head, catarrh and hay fever and prevents adenoids. For sale by all Dealers.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists. 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation

Dr. J. C. Emme

Spencerville, Ind.

Phone No. 20.

$5.00

will buy you a dandy Raincoat at Beams & Co's., store. See them on display now. Ladies and Gents. Never a better chance in the world.

CRISIS FOR NATION'S TOILERS.

What the laborer didn't see under the Republican regime was that High Tariff does not regulate wages, but makes it possible for the manufacturer to so regulate prices that he can control labor. The farmer, with his characteristic self-reliance and naturally independent spirit, asked no favors. All he wanted was an equal chance with other business men. Wilson saw the farmers' interests in a big way.

The Rural Credits Act alone, of more than a dozen big things this Democratic Congress did for agriculture, gave greater direct benefits to the farmers than any legislation enacted since the creation of the Department of Agriculture a generation ago.

There came a time when the laborer saw that his labor was a commodity, a thing to be bought and sold, or restrained or enjoined by the unwarranted issuance of injunction writs in Federal courts; he saw that he did not have the right—guaranteed to him by our constitution—of voluntary association for his own protection and welfare; in short he saw that he was a wage-slave! He saw that he was up against Capital—organized and entrenched behind the Powerful Pull of the Political Bosses of the Republican High Finance

Henry Ford, a Republican, believes in Peace, Prosperity and Progress and will vote for the man who has given all three to the country—Woodrow Wilson.

Wilson's good enough for Dr. Charles W. Eliot, Richard H. Olney, Thomas A Edison, Henry Ford, Ben Lindsey, Ida Tarbell and a host of other distinguished men and women, but Gifford Pinchot and Huerta's friend, Henry Lane Wilson, don't like him a little bit.

If only he would shave off those whiskers and let the public see his face!

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. what a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

Advertising a Sale!

YOU don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence-post to read a sale bill do you? Then don't expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an ad in this paper, then, regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach reads your announcements while seated at his fireside.

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your sale. One extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the ad, and it's a poor ad that won't pull that buyer.

An ad in this paper reaches the people you are after.

Bills may be a necessity, but the ad is the thing that does the business

Don't think of having a special sale without using advertising space in this paper.

One Extra Buyer at a sale often pays the entire expense of the ad. Get That Buyer

P. A. Walker
Trustee
Spencer Township

OFFICE DAY—
Tuesday of each week at the residence ½ mile east of the Dills River Bridge.
Phone—St. Joe, 21-6
Spencerville, - Indiana

F. P. HART
"The Expert"
House Mover
—AND—
Building Raiser

Concrete Work of all kinds finished in the best shape with the least expense.

Call or write

DENTIST
C. R. PRICE
ST. JOE, IND.
Office: first door south of Patterson's Dept. Store.
Bell Phone No. 44.

A Vicious Pest

Rats destroy nearly a billion dollars worth of food and property every year. Kill your rats and mice and stop your loss with

RAT CORN

It is safe to use. Deadly to rats but harmless to human beings. Rats simply dry up. No odor whatever. Valuable booklet in each can, "How to Destroy Rats." 25c, 50c and $1.00. In Seed, Hardware, Drug and General Stores.

E. R. Kinsey, St. Joe, Ind.
Beams & Co., Spencerville, Ind.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1887

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

808-810 CALHOUN STREET

Fort Wayne, Ind.

BEN LEHMAN PROP

OCTOBER

L 9

0328

WORLD'S EVENTS IN SHORT FORM

BEST OF THE NEWS BOILED DOWN TO LIMIT.

ARRANGED FOR BUSY PEOPLE

Notes Covering Most Important Happenings of the World Compiled in Briefest and Most Succinct Form for Quick Consumption.

European War News

Roumanian troops have withdrawn from their positions in the region of Fogaras, Transylvania, before attacks of superior forces, says the official statement sisued at Bucharest by the Roumanian war office. Violent engagements continue in other sections of Transylvania.

* * *

The British forces which recently crossed to the eastern bank of the Struma river on the Macedonian front have occupied the village of Nevolyen, it was announced officially by the British war office at London.

* * *

The 25,000-ton transatlantic liner Franconia of the Cunard line, one of the finest vessels on the Atlantic, has been sunk by a German submarine, according to a Lloyd's announcement at London. Twelve of the crew of 302 are unaccounted for.

* * *

Sixteen Roumanian battalions (about 15,000 men) that crossed the Danube between Turtukai and Silistria into Bulgaria have been destroyed, according to an official statement issued by the Sofia war office.

* * *

A fresh Russian defeat in Volhynia Tuesday, west of Lutsk, was announced by the German war office at Berlin. "Thousands of dead were left on the battlefield," the statement said.

* * *

Serbians have crossed the Toherna river and defeated the adversary on the Nize mountain in Serbia, and also captured the Kessali railroad station, according to advices received at Paris. The Serbian territory recaptured now embraces 89 square miles including seven towns.

* * *

German submarines between September 20 and 29 sank in the North sea, and the English channel 35 hostile vessels with a total tonnage of [illegible]4,000, the Overseas News agency announced at Berlin.

* * *

"As the result of an encircling attack," the German war office announced ata Berlin, "Roumanian forces which had crossed the Danube near Rjshove, south of Bucharest, withdrew in a hasty flight."

* * *

Between July 1, the opening of the Somme battle, and the end of September, the British forces on that front took 20,735 prisoners. They engaged in that period 38 German divisions and forced 29 of them to withdraw from the battle exhausted or shattered. These results were announced in a summary of the Somme operations by Sir Douglas Haig, given out by the Official Press bureau in London.

* * *

The Bulgarians have abandoned several positions in the Starkov, Grob and Brod river regions, says a Paris dispatch. The entente allies occupied Sovich, Petorak, Verveni and Jenikol, northeast of Florina.

* * *

The capture of 5,000 soldiers, 600 of them Germans, during fighting in Galicia, was reported by the war office at Petrograd.

* * *

Domestic

Major General Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal Zone; George Rublee, federal trade commissioner, and Commissioner Clark of the interstate commerce board, have been named by President Wilson to be members of the board created by congress to investigate the eight-hour law.

* * *

Six coaches of Chicago & Alton train No. 3, Chicago to St. Louis, overturned in a ditch four miles east of Granite City, Ill. None of the 150 passengers was more than bruised.

* * *

Two men entered the Citizens' State bank at Covington, Ind., held up the cashier, S. P. Graves, and took $2,000. They were pursued by a posse and, after a battle, were captured.

* * *

Frank McDonald confessed to Detroit police that he and his brother Henry wrecked a Michigan Central train at Bridgeport, Ont., May 30, 1911. Two persons were killed in the wreck.

* * *

The Pittsburgh and Allegheny Telephone company has granted its central office operating force a wage increase of 45 per cent, according to an announcement made at Pittsburgh. Nearly 250 persons are affected.

* * *

Three men were killed and several were injured seriously when three cars of dynamite exploded at the mill of the Illinois Powder company at Grafton, Ill. The dead are: Superintendent Peterson and two workmen.

The safe in the People's Savings bank at Ottawa Lake, Mich., was blown. Bank officers report that $1,201 was stolen.

* * *

Nearly 1,000 persons participated in a riot at Chicago when Benjamin Reitman and other I. W. W. leaders attempted to hold a "soap-box" meeting.

* * *

James Couzens, new multi-millionaire police commissioner of Detroit, Mich., who draws $5,000 salary, announced the establishment of a bonus system for members of the Detroit police force. The bonus, provided personally by Mr. Couzens, will amount to about $10,000 annually.

* * *

Henry Rider of Howell, Mich., was shot and killed; A. J. Rider, his brother, of Hammonton, president of the New Jersey Cranberry Growers' association, and Mrs. Elsie Smathers, also of Hammonton, were wounded seriously by a band of Italians at Atsion, N. J., near Hammonton, N. J., in an attempt to rob the party of an $8,000 pay roll.

* * *

Spurred on by the exhortations of "Mother" Jones, labor agitator, 300 wives and women relatives of striking streetcar men battled with the police in New York in the most serious riot since the walkout on the traction lines began a month ago. Scores of women were injured.

* * *

Ellis E. Shookman, cashier of the Burrows bank at Burrows, Carroll county, Indiana, came to Indianapolis and surrendered himself to the authorities following the discovery of a shortage of $18,000.

* * *

A plot to assassinate Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit company in New York and that Shonts' life was imperiled first became known when the police announced that two men who are detained at police headquarters will be charged with conspiring to kill Shonts.

* * *

Nine men are dead in a fire which destroyed the central portion of the main building of Christian Brothers' college at St. Louis. Two of the known dead were aged members of the Christian Brothers' order. All of the students escaped from the building. Five known to be dead were firemen. The loss is $300,000.

* * *

Washington

Acting Secretary of State Polk announced at Washington that he did not believe there was any truth in the story published by the New York Evening Post, that Germany has decided to request President Wilson to use his influence to bring about peace.

* * *

The special war department board at Washington which investigated military aeronautics reported that its inquiry not only failed entirely to substantiate allegations of inefficiency on the part of army officers but clearly established that development of this branch of the service "is being conducted with energy and foresight."

* * *

Politics

Charles E. Hughes spent an hour visiting his boyhood home in Newark, N. J., where his father was minister of a Baptist church from 1869 to 1874.

* * *

"I'd no more debate with Gompers than with a tramp on the street corner." This is the answer of Senator Sherman to the proposal that he meet in public debate Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, whom Senator Sherman recently attacked in the senate.

* * *

President Wilson discussed the European war, peace and American business in three speeches at Omaha. He declared America is as ready to fight as any nation in the world, but that its cause must be just. After the war, he said, this nation must join a league of nations to preserve the peace of the world.

* * *

Mexican War News

The Mexican government prepared a decree at Mexico City providing for the death penalty for robbers, bandits and those convicted of holdups. The decree is similar to the one issued by Benito Juarez.

* * *

Strong protest has been made to the state department at Washington by the British and French embassies against the action of the Carranza government in Mexico in seizing the assets of British and French banking institutions in the Mexican capital.

* * *

Foreign

Viscount Bryce of Dechmont, former ambassador at Washington, addressing the Congregational union at Birmingham, England, decried the spirit of hate against the Germans and the talk of a lasting trade war. In conclusion he advocated a league to restrain aggression and compel arbitration.

* * *

Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, until recently minister to the United States, has been elected president of Nicaragua.

* * *

Field Marshal Terauchi has been appointed by the emperor to succeed Count Okuma as premier of Japan, it was announced at Tokyo.

* * *

A mass meeting held at Frankfort adopted a resolution in favor of early peace, says an Amsterdam dispatch to London.

INDIANA SOLDIERS LEAD BIG REVIEW

COL. KUHLMAN'S REGIMENT HAS HONOR POSITION IN HUGE PARADE.

ENTIRE DIVISION TAKES PART

More Than 10,000 Seasoned Troops March Before Gen. Funston at Llano Grande Camp—Great Spectacle Witnessed by About 200 Civilians.

Llano Grande, Tex.—The honor of participating in one of the biggest military spectacles witnessed within the United States in more than a half-century, and with such a distinguished military figure as Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston as the reviewing officer, fell to the Indiana troops of infantrymen, artillerymen and auxiliary organizations, when they marched at the head of a parade of 10,360 seasoned soldiers.

The pity of it was that this spectacular parade, the like of which has never been witnessed by Indiana's 100 years of statehood, unless in Civil war times, was witnessed by scarcely more than 200 persons, who came out from the little town of Mercedes. Such a show in populous Indiana surely would have attracted a crowd that would have set a new record for that state. The small number of persons to witness such an unusual spectacle served to emphasize the fact that our Hoosier boys are isolated on the rugged edge of the Texas border, far from a populated center.

The diminutive Major General Funston, who commands the Southern department of the United States army, with his headquarters at San Antonio, came to the Llano Grande camp in company with the tall Brig. Gen. James Parker, commander of the Brownsville military district, after having made inspections at Brownsville and San Benito. His approach to the Llano Grande camp, which, by the way, is said to be the biggest camp along the entire border, was heralded by the firing of a 13-gun salute by Indiana cavalrymen.

It had not been planned to have a formal review, but after General Funston, with Generals Parker and Lewis, had ridden in his auto along the long line of troops as they stood in massed formation, he expressed a wish that they pass in review. General Lewis had only to flash the word. The parade, which required more than one hour in passing, was begun with a smoothness that won the praise of the three distinguished generals.

The Third Indiana infantry, in command of Col. Aubry L. Kuhlman, had the honor position in the parade because of the seniority of its commander. Then came the Second Indiana and the First Indiana infantry followed. Near by came the First, Second and Third Minnesota infantry and the Fourth and Fifth Nebraska infantry and the First North Dakota infantry. Following the three brigades of infantry came the Indiana artillery battalion, the Minnesota artillery regiment, four troops of Iowa cavalry and Oklahoma engineers' corps, Indiana and Nebraska signal corps, Indiana ambulance companies and the Indiana field hospital.

The presence of nine machine-gun companies, all organized since the National Guard came to the border and each equipped with four Lewis machine guns of 1916 pattern, which are used by the British army, added to the interest in the parade. The Indiana and Nebraska regiments have their rapid-fire guns in small motor trucks, while the Minnesota and North Dakota regiments use the pack mules to transport them.

Following the review, General Funston had mess with General Lewis and then rode in an auto on an inspection of the camp.

"I was exceedingly gratified by the showing made in the review," said General Funston.

Motor Tax Receipts.

Indianapolis.—The income to the state of Indiana under the automobile license law for the first six months of 1916 amounted to $731,498.96, according to the semi-annual report on the law's operations, made public by Herman L. Conter, assistant to Homer L. Cook, secretary of state.

Of the total sum, $48,596.54 was spent for the administration of the act, leaving $682,902.42 to be distributed to the counties for road construction and maintenance. The secretary's report shows the amount distributed to each county out of this net sum.

The automobile licensing law provides that the net income from the sale of licenses shall be divided among the counties as follows:

One-third of the total to be distributed equally among the counties; one-third of the total to be distributed pro rata according to the number of miles of improved road in each county; one-third of the total to be distributed pro rata to the total amount of license money received from each county.

A recapitulation of the six months' activities of the secretary of state's office in the licensing department follows:

RECEIPTS.
Automobile licenses	$671,876.00
Manufacturers' and dealers' licenses	23,100.00
Chauffeurs' licenses	6,418.00
Motorcycle licenses	18,790.00
Duplicates	4,677.00
Transfers	2,036.00
Interest	4,601.96
Total receipts		$731,498.96
DISBURSEMENTS.
Salaries	$ 9,079.83
Automobile plates	27,337.32
Chauffeurs' badges	270.32
Parcel post and postage	8,659.22
Stationery and supplies	1,511.11
Rebates	1,738.54	48,596.54
Net distribution to counties		$682,902.42

New Incorporations.

Hoosier Tire company, Indianapolis; capital, $10,000; auto tires; directors, E. M. Fife, W. R. Fife, E. H. Fife.

J. W. Nicholls & Co., Illinois, has announced that $2,000 of its capital of $5,000 is to be represented in Indiana.

The Irvington Ice company, Indianapolis, has issued $25,000 of preferred stock.

Fred Rothfiser & Co., Hammond; capital, $10,000; meats; directors, Philip McLaughlin, Fred Rothfiser and W. G. Fredericks.

Escape Law Too Severe?

Edward J. Fogarty, warden of the state prison at Michigan City, in a discussion with the state board of pardons, declared that the Indiana law placing a penalty of imprisonment for two to five years against men who escape from the state farm, was too severe. He related stories of escapes from the Michigan City institution and told of the causes, which usually had led the men to attempt escape.

One prisoner, the warden said, had been seized with an impulse to see his old mother and had escaped, later becoming frightened and hiding from the prison authorities for nine months. This man, he pointed out, did not have a criminal intention in escaping.

Mr. Fogarty's talk with the board came in the midst of a plea from an attorney for clemency by the board in the case of George Wheatley, sentenced to the state farm in May, 1915, by the mayor of Vincennes for a term of 180 days and fined $50 and costs on a charge of recklessly driving an automobile.

Wheatley, so the board was told, splashed mud on a woman's dress when he was driving a small taxicab. Later, he escaped from the state farm, was almost immediately recaptured, and sentenced to a term of from two to five years at the state prison at Michigan City.

Mr. Fogarty asserted that the reason so many prisoners escaped from the farm in the early days of the "escape" law was because they were unfamiliar with the penalty provided. Now, he contended, the state prison receives relatively few such escaped prisoners.

University Extends Work.

In arranging to open a large school with many classes covering a wide range of studies in Indianapolis this fall, Indiana university hopes to equal the work being done by universities in other large cities. The University of California has more than 150 classes in San Francisco and other cities with an enrollment of 1,100 students. Columbia university has about 5,000 students doing extension work, and the University of Chicago has 1,400 students in downtown classes. The University of Wisconsin has extension centers in six cities, where 5,000 students study in classes or by correspondence.

The Indiana university extension classes will open on a large scale in Indianapolis October 9, in the Chamber of Commerce building and the Shortridge high school. The state university has adopted a definite policy of serving the people of the state who cannot go to Bloomington, without in any way weakening its standards of scholarship.

Indianians Get Places.

The post office department at Washington announced the appointment of the following Indianians to places in the railway mail service: W. A. Harlin, South Bend; R. E. Wilson, Winnamac; M. R. Troyer, Upland; C. N. Richmond, Goshen; L. H. Olds, Elkhart; Roy Harroff, Kimmel; J. A. Follick, Scottsburg; C. H. Clay, Dunfee; W. E. Metcalf, Fort Wayne; C. C. Fox, J. B. Darnell, Indianapolis; Mamie Bunes, Alfordsville; Fred Gladden, Charlestown; J. L. Ketcham, Washington; Cornelius Shafer, Geneva; R. H. Eyes, Burnett; C. C. Updike, Westport; J. D. McBride, Indianapolis; H. S. Lamb, Amboy; O. E. Denoon, Lebanon; P. R. Moore, North Salem; A. N. Smith, Fort Wayne; W. W. Walt, Rolling Prairie; S. A. V. Grissen, Terre Haute; M. E. Allen, Tunnelton; O. R. Pfaff, Carmel; J. H. Hutchins, Muncie; V. R. Miller, Athens; F. W. Malon, Indianapolis; O. D. Schuem, Shoals; H. S. Smelser, Centerville; T. G. Blue, Connersville; Milton Irwin, Mexico; R. S. Funk, Corydon; H. F. Evans, Davidson; J. L. Fitzgerald, Clarkshill; C. A. Webster, Colfax; John Duckwall, Noblesville; Fred Covalt, Muncie; E. W. Young, Cowan; H. M. Walker, Anderson; L. Q. Ray, Lakeville; W. E. Keither, Monterey; G. C. Grossbach, New Albany; H. R. Rubble, Rockport; C. R. Gant, Elizabethtown; J. D. Carlos, Lyons Station; L. E. Dashiell, Moores Hill; J. P. McGovern, Loogootee; K. C. Benson, Fort Wayne; Paul Morris, New Albany; Roscoe Stitt, Elberfield; W. A. Boomler, North Manchester; G. G. Steele, Logansport.

SHORT STATE NEWS.

Bedford.—Deputy state fire marshals caused the arrest of Miss Olive Shively, thirty-five, a seamstress, and Charles Goodman, thirty-six, on a charge of arson. The state officers assert the couple attempted to burn Miss Shively's home so that they could obtain money from the insurance to start in business. The fire occurred when Miss Shively was absent. The odor of oil was noticeable during the fire, and investigation and arrests followed.

Indiana News Tersely Told

Marion.—Yeggmen blew the safe of the Standard Oil company's office in North Marion, securing $200.

Logansport.—Mrs. Adelaide Hendricks is in a serious condition from burns suffered when her clothing became ignited at a bonfire.

Hammond.—Bennett Bartholomew was killed near here when a Pennsylvania train struck the motorcycle he was riding, near the Thaynard crossing.

Bedford. — Raymond Colglazier, county road viewer, is in the hospital suffering from a fracture of the skull, the result of his being kicked by a mule.

Columbus.—Frank Renner, a farmer, former trustee of Union township, has been returned to the Southeastern Indiana Insane hospital at North Madison, at his own request.

Frankfort.—Dr. Edward Eccleston of Los Angeles, Cal., extension lecturer of the Luther Burbank foundation, is seriously sick here of indigestion, attributed to eating pawpaws.

Greenfield.—Dr. J. M. Larimore of this city received 30 gallons of fish from the government for the Hancock County Fish and Game association to stock Brandywine and Sugar creeks.

Alexandria.—Rev. W. J. Whiteford, pastor of the Alexandria circuit of the M. E. Church, and Rev. W. J. Weber of Oregon have opened a two weeks' revival at the Gilman M. E. church.

Jeffersonville.—An immense crowd saw the exercises at the centennial celebration. The Charlestown schools staged a representation of the departure of Gen. George Rogers Clark for Kaskaskia.

Hammond. — Hammond, jammed with thousands of visitors, opened its annual fall festival commemorating the state centennial. A monster industrial and statehood parade was featured.

Muncie.—A railway motorcar used by the track laborers of the Indiana Union Traction company jumped the track on a curve near Yorktown, and Charles Foster, Edward Baker and James Sidle, the foreman, were hurt.

Michigan City.—Released from prison only a few days ago, after serving a term for attempted murder, and just starting life over again, Allen Pyle, sixty-seven, stepped in front of a Michigan Central train and was instantly killed.

Indianapolis.—A jury in a justice's court, hearing a case against a moving picture theater owner charged with showing an indecent picture, visited the theater, sat through seven reels, held a conference and decided the picture was moral.

Michigan City.—Mayor Martin T. Krueger left for Washington, where he will present the claim of Michigan City as a site for the proposed armor plant. It is understood that the claims of the Calumet-Indiana district and of New Buffalo, Mich., also will be presented.

Sullivan.—The fourth case of scarlet fever reported in the city schools is in the family of Ed. P. Reed, assistant postmaster, whose daughter, Sarah, is sick. She is a member of the sophomore class in the Sullivan high school. Dr. T. W. Kennedy, city health officer, said a strict quarantine is being maintained, and it is believed the further spread of the disease has been checked.

Muncie. — The civic atmosphere of Muncie cleared somewhat when indictments against John Coffman, police commissioner, and J. Wilbur Sims, former secretary of police, charging them with conspiracy to solicit bribes, were dismissed. The cases had been in court three terms without a trial. Mayor Rollin Bunch was acquitted and former Deputy Prosecutor Williams was convicted on similar charges.

Indianapolis. — Four Democratic spellbinders of national note will invade Indiana this week ahead of President Wilson, who comes to Indianapolis October 12 for a nonpolitical speech. Secretary of Labor Wilson will start a tour through the mining district of southern Indiana Thursday. Secretary of the Navy Daniels will open a speaking tour at Lafayette next Friday. Senator Thomas Hardwick of Georgia and Bainbridge Colby, former Progressives, will speak in several cities.

Llano Grande, Tex.—Maj. Robert B. Grubbs, who was appointed sanitary inspector of Llano Grande when Major Brechman went to Gloversville, N. Y., to take charge of the physical examination of Guard troops to be mustered out, anticipates no further danger of malaria unless a period of prolonged rains again fills the swamps to a point where they cannot be drained. Six cases of diphtheria have developed in camp, but the patients have been isolated. Apparatus for making a test for immunity is to be used as a precautionary measure.

Indianapolis.—Capt. George L. Bumbaugh, who recently organized an aviation corps in Indiana, announced that two aeroplanes will be received by the corps next week. A training field will be selected by Adjutant General Bridges with Captain Bumbaugh, who has just finished a course of training, in charge.

Lafayette.—Pauline Hudson, four, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hudson, was burned so seriously she may die, when a pan of blazing paraffine her mother threw out of the kitchen struck the girl when she was playing in the yard.

Temperance

RAISES STANDARD OF LIVING.

Miss Gertrude Valle, executive secretary of the bureau of charity and corrections, says in the Denver News:

"We have been asked many times whether prohibition has had any effect on the work of the city relief office. We feel that it has very greatly helped us. The number of families asking relief from the city office has been about a hundred a month less than for the corresponding month last year.

"Most of that difference is accounted for in the employment problem. We have had very much less trouble with unemployment this year than last. That may not be due to prohibition, but at least, prohibition has not created a hard unemployment problem, as some people anticipated. We can recall only two cases in which relief has been asked because the man had been thrown out of employment by the closing of the saloons.

"Men are using their wages more for their families. Among us all in the office we can think of only two cases since the first of last January in which a woman has complained that her husband did not bring home his wages. Last year that was a frequent and bitter complaint.

"Grocers tell us, without exception, that they are better able to make their collections, and that people are buying more and better quality of food. One grocer commented that it was worth a great deal to see the increased manner of self-respect with which the women did the buying since they could buy better things.

"So we are convinced that however much or little actual drunkenness may have had to do with the poverty we meet, at any rate, since the closing of the saloons people are being better fed, and that will go far to reduce some other cause of poverty.

"They are doing better about meeting their just obligations, and that will go far toward raising their self-respect and their general standard of living."

PROHIBITION BENEFITS MILKMAN

A Massachusetts man, investigating the dairy business in Denver, found that during the first four months under state prohibition there was an increase in milk sales of over $21,000.

One dairy had a milk route in a district where 47 saloons had been its best customers, and the proprietor expected to take that particular wagon off. But with the closing of the saloons came the opening of more lunch counters and milk sales in that district increased about $15 a day.

There has been little increase in the better residence districts—Park hill, Capitol hill and the well-to-do parts of the North and South sides, where, if people drank, at least they could also buy milk. But a route around the stockyards has an increased business of $5 a day; one around the railroad shops an increase of $6 a day; one in the district between Curtis and Larimer street, an increase of $8 a day.

BEER DRINKER AND HIS FAMILY.

"It is difficult to find a heavy beer drinker 40 years of age with a normal liver, kidneys or heart," says Dr. D. H. Kress. "These vital organs, from the excessive burden that is thrown upon them, wear out prematurely. The beer drinker may have an abundance of flesh, but it is of inferior quality. Surgeons do not care to operate upon him, because the chances of recovery are minimized. Should the beer drinker be stricken down with pneumonia or some other febrile disease that taxes the heart and kidneys, he would have but three chances out of ten to make a recovery."

GOOD BEGINNING.

Alabama's state-wide prohibition law went into effect July 1. Saloons in Birmingham closed their doors at eleven o'clock the night of June 30. A dispatch reporting the business of the recorder's court of that city for the morning of July 3, says there was not a single case of drunkenness nor assault and battery on the docket, the first instance of this sort within at least four years and the clerk thinks he is within the truth in stating that the period is more likely eleven years. It was the lightest docket that the clerk can remember.

VOTE FOR MEN.

A woman with a drinking husband used to wash for a living. When a petition was presented to her, asking that women might vote, the overworked woman cried out "Good gracious! Have we even got to do the voting for the men?"

LAST AND FIRST.

The last to be hired,
The first to be fired,
The drinker.

DECREASE DISEASE.

Dr. Richard C. Cabot of Boston, chief of the medical staff of the Massachusetts General hospital, and one of the most distinguished physicians in the United States, says: "Abolish alcohol and you will cut disease in half."

DRY TAX RATE.

"The tax rate of 11.5 mills in dry Spokane does the work of 13 mills under saloon rule."—Charles M. Fassett, Commissioner of Public Utilities, Spokane, Wash.

OCTOBER

0329

AUTHOR OF
"THE POOL OF FLAME," "THE BRONZE BELL," "THE BLACK BAG," "THE BRASS BOWL."
COPYRIGHT BY LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

The Destroying Angel

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

A FAMOUS neurologist said recently in a lecture: "We don't give our patients much medicine any more. We give them something to think about. If we can make a man put his thoughts on something constructive and shift the focus of his mind from his bodily ills, we can give him a good start on the road to health." And this is the big idea out of which the story of "The Destroying Angel" is woven. If any of our readers need to get their minds entirely off themselves and their troubles, they will find in this new serial an uncommonly strong magnet. For Louis Joseph Vance, you know, never wrote a tiresome yarn. He keeps your mind electrified and your interest eager from start to finish.

CHAPTER I

—1—

Doom.

"Then I'm to understand there's no hope for me?"

"I'm afraid not..." Greyerson said reluctantly, sympathy in his eyes.

"None whatever." The verdict was thus brusquely emphasized by Hartt, one of the two consulting specialists.

Having spoken, he glanced at his watch, then at the face of his colleague, Bushnell, who contented himself with a tolerant waggle of his head, apparently meant to imply that the subject of their deliberations really must be reasonable.

Whitaker looked quickly from one to the other of his three judges, acutely sensitive to the dread significance to be detected in the expression of each.

Failing to extract the least glimmering of hope from the attitude of any one of them, he drew a long breath, unconsciously bracing himself in his chair.

"It's funny," he said with his nervous smile—"hard to realize, I mean. You see, I feel so fit—"

"Between attacks," Hartt interjected quickly.

"Yes," Whitaker had to admit, dashed.

"Attacks," said Bushnell, heavily, "recurrent at intervals constantly more brief, each a trifle more severe than its predecessor."

Evidently Bushnell considered the last word his prerogative.

There was a brief uneasy silence in the gloomy consulting room. Then Whitaker rose.

"Well, how long will you give me?" he asked in a strained voice.

"Six months," said Greyerson, miserably avoiding his eye.

"Three," Hartt corrected jerkily.

"Perhaps..." The proprietor of the last word stroked his chin with a contemplative air.

"Thanks," said Whitaker, without irony. He stood for an instant with his head bowed in thought. "What a damned outrage," he observed thoughtfully. And suddenly he turned and flung out of the room.

Greyerson jumped to follow him, but paused as he heard the crash of the street door. He turned with a twitching, apologetic smile.

"Poor devil!" he said, sitting down at his desk and fishing a box of cigars from one of the drawers.

"Married?" Hartt inquired.

"No. That's the only mitigating circumstance," said Greyerson, distributing glasses. "He's quite alone in the world, as far as I know—no near relatives, at least. He's junior partner in a young law firm down-town—senior a friend or classmate of his, I understand: Drummond & Whitaker. Moves with the right sort of people. Young Stark—Peter Stark—is his closet friend."

* * * * * * *

Hugh Whitaker stood for a long time—how long he never knew—bareheaded on a corner, just as he had left Greyerson's office: scowling at nothing, considering the enormity of the wrong that had been put upon him. Later, realizing that people were staring, he clapped on his hat to satisfy them and strode aimlessly down Sixth Avenue.

He turned across town toward Fifth Avenue, came to his club, and went in. Passing through the office, force of habit swung his gaze to the letter-rack. There was a square white envelope in the W pigeonhole, and it proved to be addressed to him. He knew the handwriting very well—too well; his heart gave a great jump as he recognized it, and then sank like a stone; for not only must he die, but he must give up the girl he loved, and had planned to marry. The first thing he meant to do was to write to her and explain and release her from her promise. The next thing...

He refused to let the idea of the next step form in his mind. But he knew very well what it would be. In the backwards of his understanding it lurked—a gray, grisly, shameful shadow.

The elevator kept him waiting a moment or two, just round the corner from the grill-room door, whence came a sound of voices talking and laughing. Whitaker heard what was being said without at first comprehending—heard and afterwards remembered in vivid detail.

"Seems to be the open season for runaways," Hamilton was saying. "It's only a few days since Thurlow Ladislas' daughter—what's her name?—Mary—took the bit between her teeth and bolted with the old man's chauffeur."

Somebody asked: "How far did they get before old Ladislas caught up?"

"He didn't give chase. He's not that kind. If he was put to it, old Thurlow could play the unforgiving parent in a melodrama without any make-up whatever."

"He's just like that," said Hamilton. "Remember his other daughter, Grace, eloping with young Pettit a few years ago? Old Ladislas had a down on Pettit—who's a decent enough kid, notwithstanding—so Grace was promptly disowned, and they've no hope of ever touching a penny of the Ladislas coin."

"But what became of them—Mary and the stoker-person?"

"Nobody knows, except possibly themselves."

"What's she like, this Mary-quite-contrary?" inquired George Brenton's voice.

"Oh, nothing but a kid," said little Fiske.

"Not over eighteen."

The elevator was waiting by this time, but Whitaker paused an instant before taking it, chiefly because the sound of his own name, uttered by Hamilton, had roused him out of the abstraction in which he had overheard the preceding conversation.

"Anyhow, I'm sorry for Hugh Whitaker. He's going to take this hard, mighty hard."

George Brenton asked, as if surprised: "What? I didn't know he was interested in that quarter."

"You must be blind. Alice Carstairs has had him going for a year. Everybody thought she was only waiting for him to make some big money—he as much as anybody, I fancy."

Brenton added the last straw. "That's tough," he said soberly. "Whitaker's a white man, and Alice Carstairs didn't deserve him. But I wouldn't blame any man for feeling cut-up to be thrown over for an out-and-out rotter like Percy Grimshaw. . ."

Whitaker heard no more. At the first mention of the name of Alice Carstairs he had snatched her letter from his pocket and was reading. Nobody will ever know just what Alice Carstairs saw fit to write to Hugh Whitaker. The blood ebbed from his face and left it ghastly, and when he had torn the paper to shreds and let them flutter about his feet, he swayed perceptibly—so much so that one of the pages took alarm and jumped to his side.

"Beg pardon, Mr. Whitaker—did you call me?"

Whitaker steadied himself and stared until he recognized the boy. "No," he said thickly, "but I want you. Give me a bar order."

The boy produced the printed form and Whitaker hastily scribbled his order on it. "Bring that up to the library," he said, "and be quick about it."

He stumbled into the elevator, and presently found himself in the library. There was no one else about, and Whitaker was as glad of that as it was in him to be glad of anything just then. He dropped heavily into a big armchair and waited, his brain whirling and seething, his nerves on edge and screeching. In this state Peter Stark found him.

Peter sauntered into the room with a manner elaborately careless. Beneath that mask he was anything but indifferent, just as his appearance was anything but fortuitous. Moreover, Peter had already heard about Alice Carstairs and Percy Grimshaw.

"Hel-lo" he said, contriving by mere accident to catch sight of Whitaker, who was almost invisible in the big chair with its back to the body of the room. "What you doing up here, Hugh? What's up?"

"It's all up," said Whitaker, trying to pull himself together. "Everything's up!"

"Don't believe it," said Stark, coolly. "My feet are on the ground; but you look as if you'd seen a ghost."

"I have—my own," said Whitaker.

The page now stood beside him with a tray. "Open it," he told the boy, indicating a half-bottle of champagne; and then to Peter: "I'm having a bath. Won't you jump in?"

Peter whistled, watching the wine cream over the brandy in the long glass. "King's peg, eh?" he said, with a lift of disapproving eyebrows. "Here, boy, bring me some Scotch and plain water for common people."

The boy disappeared as Whitaker lifted his glass.

"I'm not waiting," he said bluntly. "I need this now."

"I hope," Peter said thoughtfully, "that the man who started that lie about drink making a fellow forget died the death of a dog. He deserved to, anyway." He stopped at Whitaker's side and dropped a hand on his shoulder. "Hugh," he said, "you're one of the best. Don't. . ."

Whatever he had meant to say, he left unfinished because of the return of the page with his Scotch; but he had said enough to let Whitaker understand that he knew about the Carstairs affair.

"That's all right," said Whitaker; "I'm not going to make a fool of myself, but I am in a pretty bad way. Boy—"

"Hold on!" Peter interrupted. "You're not going to order another? What you've had is enough to galvanize a corpse."

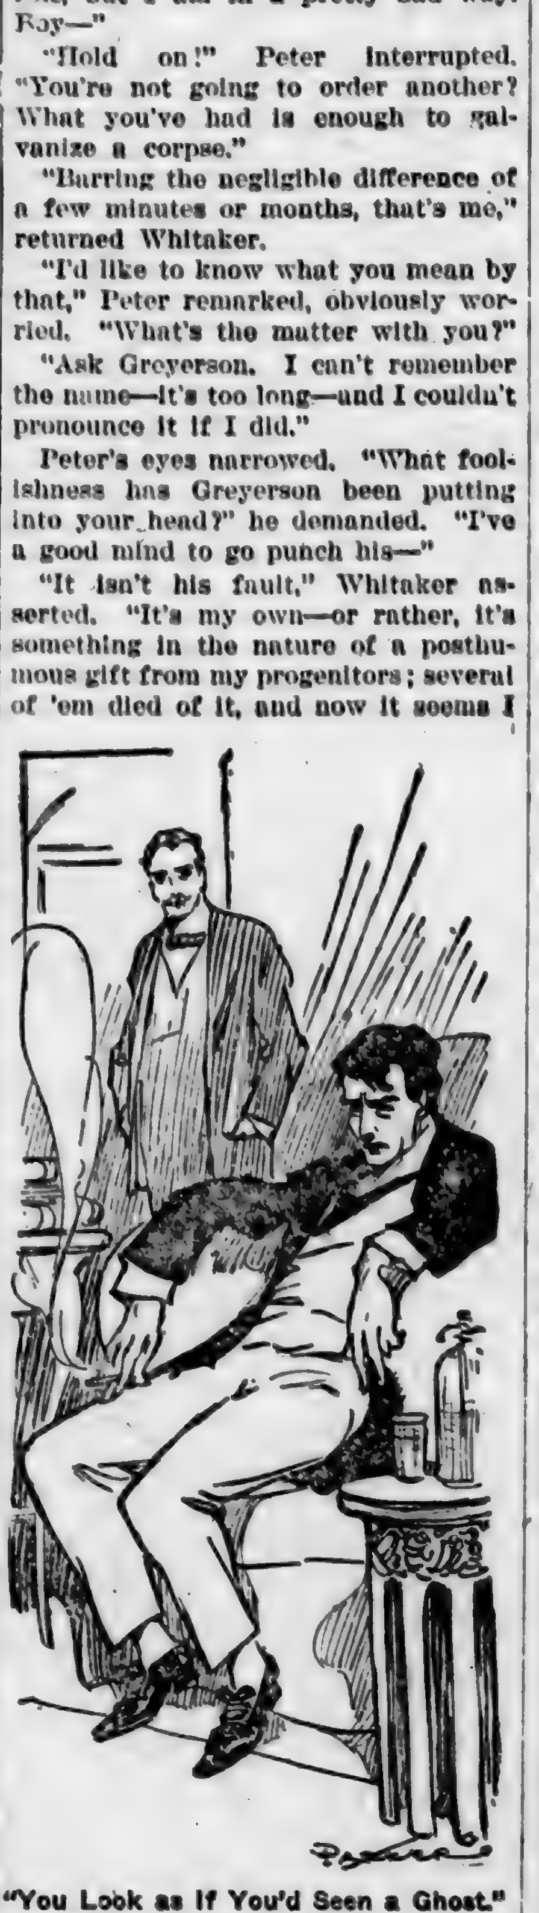
"Barring the negligible difference of a few minutes or months, that's me," returned Whitaker.

"I'd like to know what you mean by that," Peter remarked, obviously worried. "What's the matter with you?"

"Ask Greyerson. I can't remember the name—it's too long—and I couldn't pronounce it if I did."

Peter's eyes narrowed. "What foolishness has Greyerson been putting into your head?" he demanded. "I've a good mind to go punch his—"

"It isn't his fault," Whitaker asserted. "It's my own—or rather, it's something in the nature of a posthumous gift from my progenitors; several of 'em died of it, and now it seems I must. Greyerson says so, at least, and when I didn't believe him he called in Hartt and Bushnell to hold my antemortem. They made it unanimous. If I'm uncommonly lucky I may live to see next Thanksgiving."



"You Look as If You'd Seen a Ghost."

"You can't make me believe that," Peter insisted. "It just can't be so. A man like you, who's always lived clean . . . Why, look at your athletic record! I won't believe it!"

His big, red, generous fist described a large and inconclusive gesture of violence.

"Well," he growled finally," grant all this—which I don't, not for one little minute—what do you mean to do?"

"I don't mind telling you," said Whitaker: "I don't know. Wish I did. At the same time, I've got to do something—get away somewhere."

Abrupt inspiration sparked the imagination of Peter Stark, and he began to sputter with enthusiasm.

"I've got it!" he cried, jumping to his feet. "A sea trip's just the thing. Chances are, it'll turn the trick—bring you round all right-O, and prove what asses doctors are. I can have the Adventuress put in commission within three days. We'll try that South Seas thing we've talked about so long. What d'you say?"

A warm light glowed in Whitaker's sunken eyes. He nodded slowly.

Just suppose now that in Whitaker's battered mind the seed thought of suicide has started to swell and sprout—do you believe that the anticipation of a sea trip will kill the seed? There's a hint in this question.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

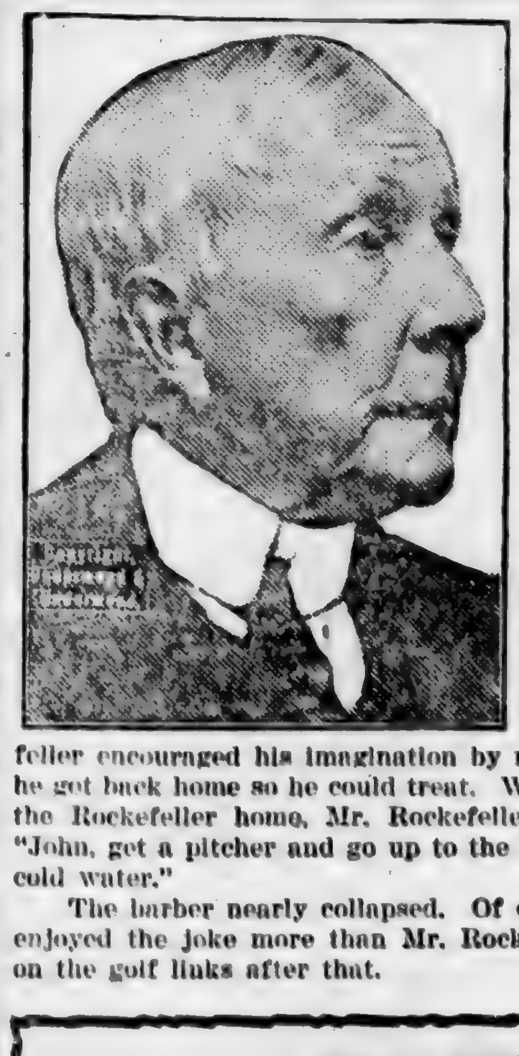
Not a Thief.

Man who broke into the house while the owner was away and took nothing but a shave could scarcely be called a thief, because he went out with less than he came in with.

Fine feathers often make the old man wear his suit another season.—Kansas City Journal.

IN THE LIMELIGHT

JOHN D.'S LITTLE JOKE



"No one but John D. Rockefeller could have gotten away with a joke like that," seriously declares the German barber at Tarrytown who shaves the oil man. While he is not expressing his feelings out loud, at the same time when anyone asks him how he likes to take a drink with Mr. Rockefeller his actions are more eloquent than words.

After the barber had shaved him one warm afternoon, Mr. Rockefeller invited him to take an automobile ride. They went to Mamaroneck and Mr. Rockefeller asked the barber if he would like a drink. The barber assured Mr. Rockefeller that he would be delighted.

"Well, you wait till we get back to the house," the barber was told. "I've got a fine cold drink back there for you."

All the way home the barber had visions of a cold bottle, and Mr. Rockefeller encouraged his imagination by remarking that he would be glad when he got back home so he could treat. When the automobile stopped in front of the Rockefeller home, Mr. Rockefeller called one of his servants, saying: "John, get a pitcher and go up to the spring and get us a glass of that pure, cold water."

The barber nearly collapsed. Of course, he drank the water, but no one enjoyed the joke more than Mr. Rockefeller. It was one of his pet stories on the golf links after that.

MRS. REED SMOOT

Mrs. Reed Smoot, wife of Senator Smoot of Utah, is pre-eminently a home-loving woman. "The woman, as executive head of the home," Mrs. Smoot says, "has it in her power to exert a more tremendous influence on the future in this country through this one medium than ever before in history.

"The woman who builds up a happy home, brings her children into the world, rears them with love and tenderness and gives to the world noble women and courageous men to carry on its work has done the greatest work a human being could do. Growing with one's children—making companions and friends of them—instilling in them a love of the wholesomeness of home—these are requirements that a mother must live up to."

Mrs. Smoot is proud of her children, and says she wishes that every other woman was just as happy as she is. She is very bright and an able lieutenant for her distinguished husband, but paramount to everything else are her home and children.

OAKEY AND THE BALD HEADS

When is a man really bald?

Why, when he has a bald spot, of course, but then comes the question that the Bald Head Club of America tried to solve. How large must the diameter of that spot be before the man is bald? The answer of the club is four inches.

The head of this organization which has declared a relentless war on all hair restorers is Congressman P. Davis Oakey of Hartford, Conn. Mr. Oakey is proud of his eligibility to the club, and has made many boasts of it. He was moved to utterance recently in the house cloakroom when he saw a grave menace staring him in the face—or on the bald spot.

It was a group of Republican bald heads who listened to the impassioned defense of the liberties of the balds, which the president of the Bald Head Club of America gave.

"Gentlemen," he began, "I have listened during the weary days of this long session to many demagogic speeches and wearisome orations. The closing days of this session have been prolific of that kind of statesmanship.

"This afternoon, while meditating upon the issues of this important campaign, it occurred to me that in at least one great issue the Republican party is badly handicapped. The party has not taken the Bald Head Club of America into its confidence, and a formidable rival threatens the organization.

"Bald heads, look out! For your reputation for brains, humor, and statecraft will be obliterated from the national scene unless you bestir yourselves in the campaign of the future. It is not for you to waste your time in idle recriminations at this slight upon the club, but to strive in noble emulation."

ROUMANIA'S STRONG MAN

The strong man of Roumania is its minister of war, Take Jonescu. Among his people he holds a place similar to that of Venizelos among the Greeks; he is one of them and they trust him.

He has been the most courted statesman in Europe lately. He was the hope of the allies and the fear of the Germans.

The most prominent characteristics of this interesting man are his magnetism and personal charm. He has loyalty, principle, energy, as well as the opportunism and "realism" of Venizelos. He knows national character. He can conform to its idiosyncrasies.

The great Roumanian lawyer, although in receipt of huge fees, takes up the cases of the impoverished without a retainer. At the opening of his career he refused a government post that he might practice in the courts. He has figured in the most important as well as in the most sensational cases without adding to his wealth. His income from his profession is astonishingly small for one who ranks among the great lawyers of Europe. It is true that he has private means that render him independent.

The hobby of Take Jonescu is art and, if we may accept current gossip, he has thrown away much money on the education of promising young men who at Rome or Paris turned out idlers or dilettanti.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 15

APPEAL TO CAESAR.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 25 (vv. 1-12).

GOLDEN TEXT—It is enough for the disciple that he be as his teacher, and the servant as his Lord.—Math. 10:25.

Teachers ought to urge their scholars to read Chapters 24, 25 and 26 thoroughly, and with the use of a map locate the places mentioned. The date of this lesson is A. D. 59, and it occurred at the crisis of the events which determined the way Paul should go to Rome, Nero being the emperor at that time.

I. Paul in the Prison at Caesarea (vv. 1-6). Paul was worn out, badly in need of rest, and is given during this imprisonment much freedom. He was accompanied by Luke, his physician, and probably some of his other friends. For almost 20 years Paul had been living a strenuous life, crowded full of labors that would have crushed an ordinary man. Now for some considerable time he had time to thoroughly master and assimilate the truth which he had been preaching, the results of which have come down to us in the form of letters, seven of which at least were written during and after the events of this lesson. His imprisonment also gave many of his friends opportunity to secure his counsel and guidance. The vindictiveness and hatred of the Jews is evident by this new plot whereby they sought the help of Festus against Paul. The corrupt Felix had been succeeded by a more upright man, Festus. The scheme of these enemies of Paul and of Jesus had already resulted in giving Paul an opportunity to preach Jesus as the Christ and the judge of men to persons who otherwise would not have been within the scope of his influence. Through his persecution he had reached leading officials and educated men of the Romans and of the Jews. Bunyan, in Bedford jail, and Luther in Wittenberg Castle, are illustrations of the principle that "difficulties are the stones out of which all God's houses are built."

Felix, on giving up his office to his successor, left Paul bound (Ch. 24:27) though he knew he ought to be released, but by this vile, iniquitous act, he gave Paul another one of his desired opportunities to witness for Christ in high places. The shrewdness of Festus saved Paul from falling into the trap of the Jews, for God was guiding Festus and at the same time guarding Paul.

II. Paul's Appeal to Caesar (vv. 7-12). The Jews made many and grievous complaints, but without bringing a single witness to prove their assertions. Doubtless these were the same old charges that had been brought before Felix through Tertullus two years before, and which now, as then, could not be proved. Paul was permitted to answer for himself, and he declared that he had broken neither the Jewish nor the Roman law. Most of the enemies of Christianity and of the Bible "lay many and grievous charges against it which they cannot prove." In all ages the enemies of God and his word mistake strong and confident charges and vilifications as proofs. Paul's life was absolutely clean, and he could say, "I have not sinned at all" (v. 8 R. V.) in any of the directions in which he was charged. Festus, as the newly appointed governor, desired to do the Jews a favor; literally, desired to gain their favor. Therefore he said to Paul, "Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?" This amounted to an acquittal of Paul on the charges that would come under the Roman law.

There remained only such charges as would naturally come before the Sanhedrin, and the question was whether Paul would accept an informal acquittal from the Roman court on condition that he submit to a trial before his own people on the other count. Festus wished to throw upon Paul the responsibility of refusing to go to Jerusalem, and to avoid displeasing the Jews.

Festus got a courteous but a stinging and well deserved rebuke from his prisoner. Paul was perfectly willing to take any punishment he deserved, even unto death, but, having a clear conscience, he had no fear of Festus or any man. His appeal to Caesar was most unexpected. It confused Festus and baffled the Jews. The Lord's own words on his midnight visit to Paul in prison are here suggested (23:11).

Festus could make but one decision, "Unto Caesar thou shalt go." Paul's sincere and open character was the means of his safety and power.

III. Paul and Agrippa (vv. 13-22). Agrippa was the king of the northern part of Palestine, a Jew and trained in religious ceremonies, but one who never mixed politics with religion, wearing his Judaism as a garment.

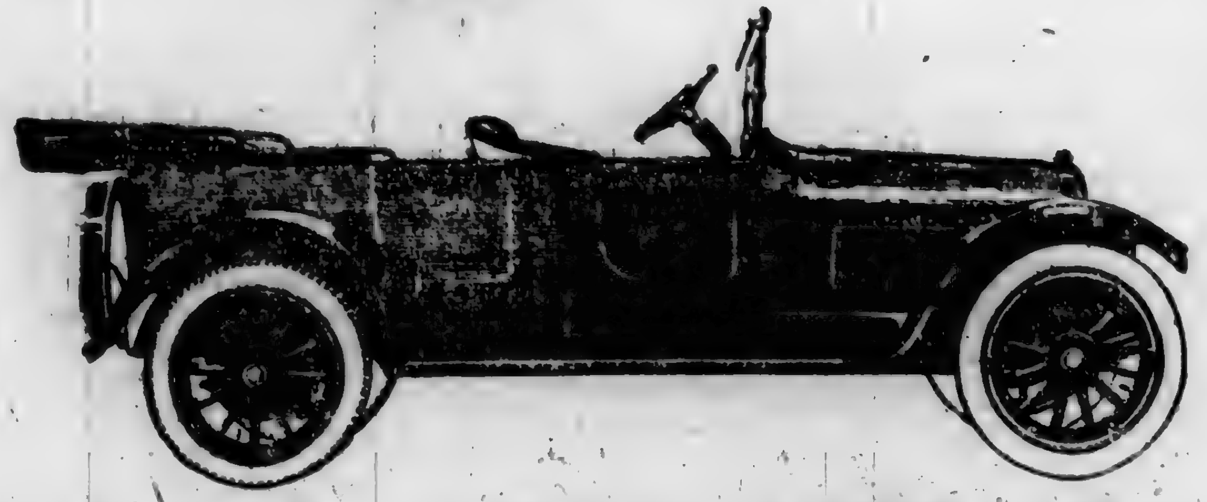
His father, Agrippa I, slew James the elder, the apostle.

The great-grandfather, "The Great," caused the massacre of the infant innocents (Math. 2).

He married his own sister, Bernice, who came with him on this visit to Festus.

Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king.

OCTOBER



$795
Model 85-4 f. o. b. Toledo

Overland

$795
Model 85-4 f. o. b. Toledo

Think of It—112 Inch Wheelbase!

It has the famous Overland 35 horsepower motor—
Now at the height of its development—
More than a quarter of a million in use—
Driving more automobiles than any other motor of its power ever designed.
And never before has anyone anywhere ever built so big, fine and comfortable a car to sell for anywhere near so low a price.

The wheelbase is 112 inches.
It has cantilever springs and four inch tires.
And the price is $795.
See us at once—they are selling faster than we can get them.
Model 85-6, six cylinder 35-40 horsepower, 116-inch wheelbase—$925.

Steward & Beams, Dealers, Spencerville, Ind.

The Willys-Overland Company, Toledo, Ohio
"Made in U. S. A."

Personal Items

Send in your news items.

Zay Sailer, of Ft. Wayne, was at home, Saturday night and Sunday.

Fresh Oysters, this week at Meat Market.

Scarfs and Caps to match, for cool weather—Beams & Co.

Wm Pepple and wife spent the week at Auburn the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Jane Pepple.

POTATOES!

For the benefit of those who have not laid in their supply of winter potatoes, we will have on the tracks at St. JOE

Next Monday Only

1 Car Load of MAINE

POTATOES

at $1.50 per Bushel

Give your order at once to

C. E. FRY.

WANTED!

YOUR POULTRY

For which we will pay the highest market price.

Call us and we will call and get them.

J. P. BUCKINGHAM
St. Joe, Indiana

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

Miss Io Zonker of Corunna, came Monday for a week's visit with her brothers

J. N. George is on the sick list and George Wilmot has been taking care of his cream routes.

Dr. N. J. Shook and wife, of Kendallville, were guests of his brother, B. O. Shook and family, last Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Bowman entertained at dinner Saturday:—Mesdames Elizabeth Leighty, Margaret Swineford and Sarah McCrory.

Mr. and Mrs. Saxe Hadsell, Dr. B. S. Sheffer and Mrs. John Knight motored to Angola Sunday and visited the Doctor's brother and family.

Tim Agler and wife had as Thursday afternoon guests J. P. McMillen and wife, Herman Strottmyer and wife, and Mrs. George Headley, all of Woodburn

Bert Jackson, wife and daughter Edna, Mrs. Hannah Ulm, granddaughter Phillis, and Miss Ruth Circle, of Springfield, Ohio, spent Saturday night and Sunday the guests of Hollis Jackson and wife.

Jake Sailer and wife, and Mr. Greer and wife, of Toledo; Calyton Sailer and Miss Fern Sailer, of Sherwood; and Mrs. Laura Hettinger, of Harlan, were all Saturday guests of C. H. Sailer and wife.

C. A. Patterson and wife entertained John Goldsmith and wife, Mrs. Eva Elson, the Misses Jennie and Laura Shutt, and Alda Elson, all of Harlan, at dinner, Sunday. John Zimmerman and family and Mr. Weaver, of Auburn, were also afternoon guests.

Good Place to Live.

Your attention is called to the advertisement of Frank Stamets, a former resident of this neighborhood. In his letter he said:—"We are located here in Caro, the county seat of Tuscola County, Michigan, and certainly consider it a splendid place. There is no question as to the prosperity of the farmers here. The roads are the best I ever saw, you will have to take off your hat to Michigan when it comes to roads. The farmers have splendid improvements. Almost every farmer has an auto. Crops are good, although it has been dry, but not as dry as many places. We all send our regards to you and the people of St. Joe.

NEWVILLE

Byron Miller was a Butler visitor Saturday.

Buren Houk and wife were Sunday guests of his father, at Butler.

John Platter and family were Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

Charley Lepper and wife were Tuesday afternoon guests of Mrs. Jane Crum.

Mrs. John Miller spent Sunday with Mrs. Elmer McDonald and family, of Butler.

The Ladies Aid of the Christian Church served dinner at the Woodring sale, Tuesday.

Grant Ames and family went to Bryan, Sunday, where they were guests of Mrs. Ames's parents.

Ella Thomas is making some improvements on her property. She expects to take possession, next week.

Mrs. John Whitherst and little grand-daughter, were Sunday guests of Namen Dean and family, of Butler.

Mrs. Lizzie Smith, of Wabash, returned to her home Saturday after a two weeks visit with Elmer Wyatt and wife, and other relatives.

John Wilderson and wife, and Mr. Johnston and wife, the latter was Miss Ethel Wilderson, all of Chicago, are guests of Orland Wilderson and family.

Ross Nelson and wife returned home the first of last week, from Hillsdale, Mich., where they had made a week's visit with the latter's parents, Rev. Sheldon and wife, and other relatives. Jacob Presler and wife, of Hicksville, kept house for them while gone.

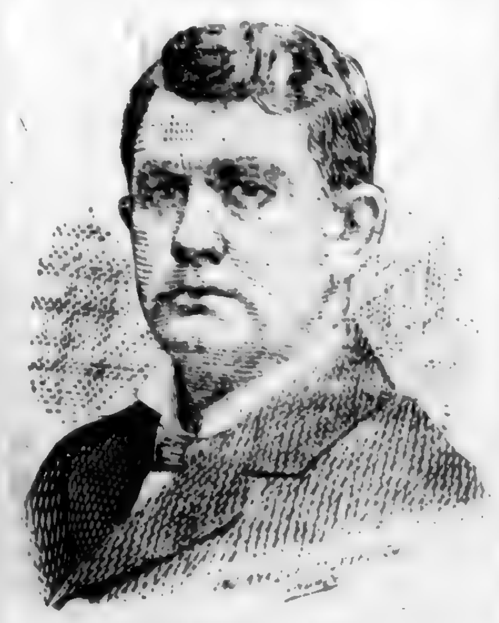
Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

Dr. H. R. Farnham
MEDICINE AND GENERAL SURGERY
ST. JOE, INDIANA

Office Hours—Week Day
10:00 to 11:00 a. m.
1:00 to 3:00 p. m.
6:30 to 8:00 p. m.
Sunday—By appointment.
Telephone
Office,...............No. 2

Office at Residence, Second house West of Whitney Opera House.

The Prohibition Ticket.



NATIONAL
For President
J. Frank Hanly, Indiana
For Vice President
Ira Landrith, Kentucky

COUNTY TICKET
For Joint Representative
James E. Graham, Ft. Wayne
For Representative
Aaron K. Mumma, Spencerville
For Clerk Circuit Court
Charles H. Bishop, Garrett
For Treasurer
Abram D. Schomp, Garrett
For Sheriff
John Weimer, Auburn
For Surveyor
William R Lee, Garrett
Commissioner Northwest District
John H. Urie, Waterloo
Commissioner Southeast District
Emmett J. Armstrong, Auburn

Cough Medicine Made at Home

400 Per Cent. Saved

why Pay $2 Per Pint for Syrup?

Ask your druggist for three ounces of Glando Pine -50 cents worth- and add enough syrup to make one pint, and you will have a cough medicine excelled by none. It is easy to prepare, costs but little and is pleasant to take. It is splendid for coughs, colds, bronchial affections and highly recommended for croup. It will relieve the spasmodic coughing in whooping cough. Glando Pine contains the pure form of white pine to which other valuable ingredients have been added. Directions for preparing accompany each bottle. For sale by all Dealers.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

When it comes to neat and effective printing of any kind we will guarantee to give you satisfaction.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Announcements.
J. C. Coons, Pastor.

Concord:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Prayer Meeting on Wednesday evening, 7:30 p. m.

Fairview:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching Services, 7:00 p. m.

St. Joe:—Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.; Preaching services 10:30 a. m.; Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening, 7:00 p. m.

Christian Church Announcements;
St. Joe:—Bible School at 9 a. m.
Rally Day in connection.
Morning Worship at 10:15 a. m.;
Christian Endeavor, 6:30 p. m.

Lutheran Church Announcements.
A. K. Mumma, Pastor.
St. Joe:–Sunday School, 9:00 a. m.;
Preaching service at 7:00 p. m.
Christian Endeavor, 6:00 p. m.
Prayer Meeting, Thursday evening.

Dying By Inches.

It is not an uncommon sight to see people who are dying by inches. The glands of the body are not working properly, poisonous matter accumulates and health declines. The circulation becomes sluggish, the blood impure, and a general nervous or debilitated condition exists. Day by day the liver and kidneys become less active, leaving the poisonous matter within the body. This poisonous accumulation causes the sallow complexion, and a tired, achy or run down feeling which, if neglected, may result in jaundice, typhoid fever or serious liver and kidney trouble. Glando, the great gland tonic, is especially prepared to relieve glandular disorders, throw off the poisonous accumulations and build up the system. Glando, the great gland tonic is the only treatment of its kind upon the market. Its superior qualities are due to the fact that it contains three separate treatments, each treatment having a special part to perform in effecting a cure. For sale by all Dealers.

Oldest in America
Strongest in the World

Mutual life

INSURANCE COMPANY
of New York

J. C. HULL, Agent
Phone No. [illegible]

Patronize

the merchants who advertise in this paper. They will treat you right.

ABSOLUTE SAFETY is the best thing we have to offer. Other inducements are of secondary importance.

Upon this basis only, do we solicit your patronage.

Every dollar insured by The American Guaranty Company.

Total Assets, over $175,000

The Grabill State Bank
Established 1906

4 per cent. Interest on deposits left 6 months.

Joseph Witmer, President
David Klopfenstine, v. pres.
Albert Egly, Cashier
Joseph A. Grabill, Director
Peter W. Amstutz, Director
Julius Gehrig, Director
John B. Haifley, Chairman Board Directors

OCTOBER

0 3 3 1

Has Your Subscription Expired? Come in and renew it next time you are in town.

ST. JOE NEWS.

NO newspaper can succeed wi out advertising, therefore solicit the patronage of our read for those who by their adverti help to make this paper possib

VOL. XXX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, THURSDAY OCT. 19 1916 NO. 43

Wedding Anniversary

Celebration and Family Reunion Held Last Sunday—A Pleasant Time in Life—Children Assemble.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Haifley celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding day, on last Sunday; all their family were home with the grandchildren. The following list of those present were:—David Ametuts, wife and four children, of Harlan; Charles F. Haifley, wife and baby, of Spencerville; James Dorsey, wife and two children, of Hicksville, Ohio, and the children who are at home are LeRoy H., George J., Edith L., Ernman, and Milton Haifley. A very enjoyable day was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Haifley are contemplating moving to Fort Wayne in the near future where Mr. Haifley and son LeRoy, have steady employment.

Personal Items

Mrs. Clara Elkson, of Toledo, Ohio, spent several days the past week with Mrs. Rolland Bearss.

G. M. Barney and F. Buchanan are installing furnaces, this fall.

Mrs. Anna Abel is visiting her son, Wallace Abel, near Newville.

Box Social at Hay's School House, 1 mile north of Concord, Friday eve, Oct. 27. Come.

Archie Erickson and wife, of Garrett, spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Frank Scholes and family.

Wm. Randall was surprised Sunday on his 48th., birthday. His son Harry, had invited him to their home for dinner and as they were almost ready to dine an automobile load from Columbia City, of relatives consisting of Biglow Ramp and wife, the Misses Treva and Flossie Ramp, and Esther Smith drove up and were taken to the William Randall home. They were very considerate of Mrs. Randall, who is just recovering from an operation, for they brought well filled baskets of good things with them.

Yes, It Is

the time of the year when you get a cold and other ailments which require some attention. Your first thought is medicine you can rely upon, then where you can get it and then quick as as a flash you think of a good reliable Drug Store. Our aim is to operate just that kind of a Drug Store and we are glad to have you try us.

Dunkle's Drug Store.

The Place With THE GOODS

Educate Yourself

in the small details of your business affairs. Start a checking account now and begin your education. Do business in a business-like manner. It will surprise you to see the results.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

4 per cent. paid on certificates if left 1 Year.

Safety Deposit Boxes for Rent

Bring Your
CLOVER SEED
To Us.

We are paying the highest market price for same. Buy your feed now, it is advancing and will advance more in price. We have all kinds of coal in stock and have more on the way.

Always Welcome At The
St. JOE ELEVATOR

SAMUEL KEESLER, Local Manager.

Birthday Surprise.

A pleasant surprise was perpetrated upon Mr. Jesse Copp at his home in New Haven, Sunday, when Mrs. Copp served a bountiful dinner in honor of his 31st., birthday, with the following guests present:—Mr. C. W. Sperry, of Ft. Wayne; Mr. and Mrs. A. Copp, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Widney, Miss Agnes Sechler and Vernie Monroe, all of St. Joe.

Mr. Copp was induced to take a stroll about town a short time before dinner and upon his return at about the noon hour he found the above guests and a festive board laden with the good things of the year.

Thru' Mrs. Copp's efforts the surprise was a complete success in every way. Mr. Copp recieved many useful and valuable gifts. The day was one that will be fondly remembered by all present.

Daily Jots

C. C. Bassett and son Carl, spent Monday in Ft. Wayne.

HAY—Call C. E. Fry, St. Joe or Marion Keller, Spencerville.

Don't miss the Box Social at Hay's School House, Friday eve, Oct. 27.

Clarence Hart, wife and daughter spent Sunday with Fred Hart and family.

That material you bought of Wallace should be paid for, he needs the cash.

Mrs. Milo Provines, of near Auburn, came Saturday for a few days visit with her parents, Sam Gee and wife.

Rev Coons is at Tippecanoe this week attending the District Meeting of the M. P church, of which he is the district chairman.

Mrs. Bess Justus and baby, of Warsaw, came Saturday and remained until Monday noon the guests of Clay Coburn and family.

Chas. Bishop, wife and children, Katherine and Frank, of Garrett, were Saturday afternoon guests of the former's parents, M. T. Bishop and wife.

Walter Claybaugh and wife, of Connelsville, Pa., came Monday morning for a two weeks visit with W. E. Peterson and wife. They were here last May for a few days visit, and due to his ill health they will remain here for a rest up.

A Masquerade Social will be given by the Loyal Daughters Class at the Newville Christian church on the evening of Oct. 31, 1916, including a Mystery Menu and also curiosities. The one with the best costume will receive supper free. Come prepared for a jolly good time.

The Ministeral Association of DeKalb County Christian Churches met at this place, Tuesday, in an all day session. The topics under discussion for the afternoon were "The Duties of the Minister to His Congregation" which was given by Dr. Sheffer and Mrs. Howard Borthwick, and "The Duties of the Congregation to Its Minister" by Rev. Charles Mahin, of Auburn, and Rev. Small, of Garrett. They were the only ministers present as the others were detained by various duties at home. In the evening, Rev. Mahin delivered a powerful address on "Seeing Through Love".

The Prohibition Motor Brigade was in town Saturday night. The party consisted of three members, Prof. Bailey of Angola, Clark of Indianapolis and a singer with a folding organ made the third member of the party. Prof. Bailey and Clark discussed the issues of the Prohibition Party. The attendance was small, the weather being cool for an outdoor speech. We have had three political speeches thus far, and no doubt as election draws near, will have more.

Some Record for Company

The Rodded Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company of DeKalb county having completed their fiscal year October 5, 1916, reports but one loss since the company was organized, on August 15, 1914. This loss resulted from fire and no lightning losses were recorded. The one loss came on March 30, 1915, so that the company has not sustained a single loss in one year and five months. The officers of the company believe that this record stands as sufficient proof that rodding buildings against lightning is an absolute protection if properly done.

The New Tax Rates

Taxes are of interest to everyone and below we give the rates of the cities as they are given by Auditor Nelson. Auburn, $3.93; Butler, $3.16; Ashley, $3.90; Garrett, $3.79; Corunna, $2.93; Altona, $3.04 and St. Joe, $2. 82. Of this list you will notice that St. Joe is the lowest, while Waterloo does not appear, it is stated that it will be a few cents less than Ashley. Of the township rates we find that Concord is the highest in the county due partially to the stone road that is under construction. Below we quote a few townships that are of interest to our readers. Wilmington, $1.89; Jackson, $2.07; Newville, $2.17; Spencer, $2.27; Concord, $2.56.

At the Hospital

Miss Princess Krabill is a patient at the St. Joseph hospital at Ft. Wayne, having had an operation on her nose Monday. The operation was not a serious one but will necessitate her remaining for about two weeks.

Letter From the Borde

Chas. Anderson of Newville Writes his Foster Parents, M Forest Marrow and Wife concerning Army Life.

ElPaso, Texas,
Sept. 22, 1916.

Dear Father and Mother:—

I will drop you a few lines to let you know that I am well, and hope you are the same. I am at the dedication of the new Y M C A, of the state of Ohio, there is a large crowd here. Well, mamma, I still think we will soon be home. Things are beginning to look good to me, we had about two hundred mules and horses here and to-day there was an order came in to return them to the corral where we got them. To-morrow, we are to have our final inspection of quarters and all our equipments, and also our drilling inspection, and if we pass we will be home sooner. We have passed every inspection yet, and have the name of being the best drilled regiment that has reached ElPaso. The government is getting so low on money that they can't pay the soldiers; we have a month and a half pay coming and we can't get it, and we are pretty hard up for money. We are expected to go to Camp Perry near Toledo to be mustered out, we will remain there a week or so and then sent home. The Massachusetts troupes left to-day the Michigan troupes next; and here is hoping that Ohio will go next, for I will be glad to see home and friends once more. We had a little scare last night, about 12 o'clock the call of arms was sounded, and in about five minutes the bugle recalled. Now, beleive me, we did sure move when we heard the first call. Well, mamma, I will close for this time. The band is playing in the building now.

Good-bye,
Charley Anderson.

LOCAL ITEMS.

Subscribe for this paper.

Rob Meese, of Hamilton County, Nebraska, is here visiting old friends.

Buy 6 packages of "Little Wi zard" Washing Compound and ceive a silver sugar shell and bu ter knife, as premiums at Leighty grocery. St. Joe—DeKalb Dist buting Company. —4

Sunday Schoo Report.

The following is a true and co rect report of the various Sunda Schools in this neighborhood f last Sunday.

Christian	110	$4.
M. P.	86	3.
Lutheran	80	2
Coburntown	102	3
Fairview	23	.
New., U. B.	91	3.
M. E. Spencer	78	4.
Lutheran	100	3

Vote for

Cleve H. Grub

DEMOCRAT

Candidate For Representative.

Hart-Hood-Widney Company,
Hicksville, Ohio

Our Customer's Interests

In these times of soaring prices on all commodities of merchandise we have endeavored by placing our orders early in the year to secure the best prices to protect our customers sofar as possible and sell you our goods at the very lowest figures obtainable.

We Invite St. Joe and Vicinity

To trade at this store believing we are in a position to make it worth your while to shop here. We now are showing the largest and most attractive stock of merchandise in our eighteen years in this place, and our prices are based upon quality of goods which we feel we have no hesitancy in recommending.

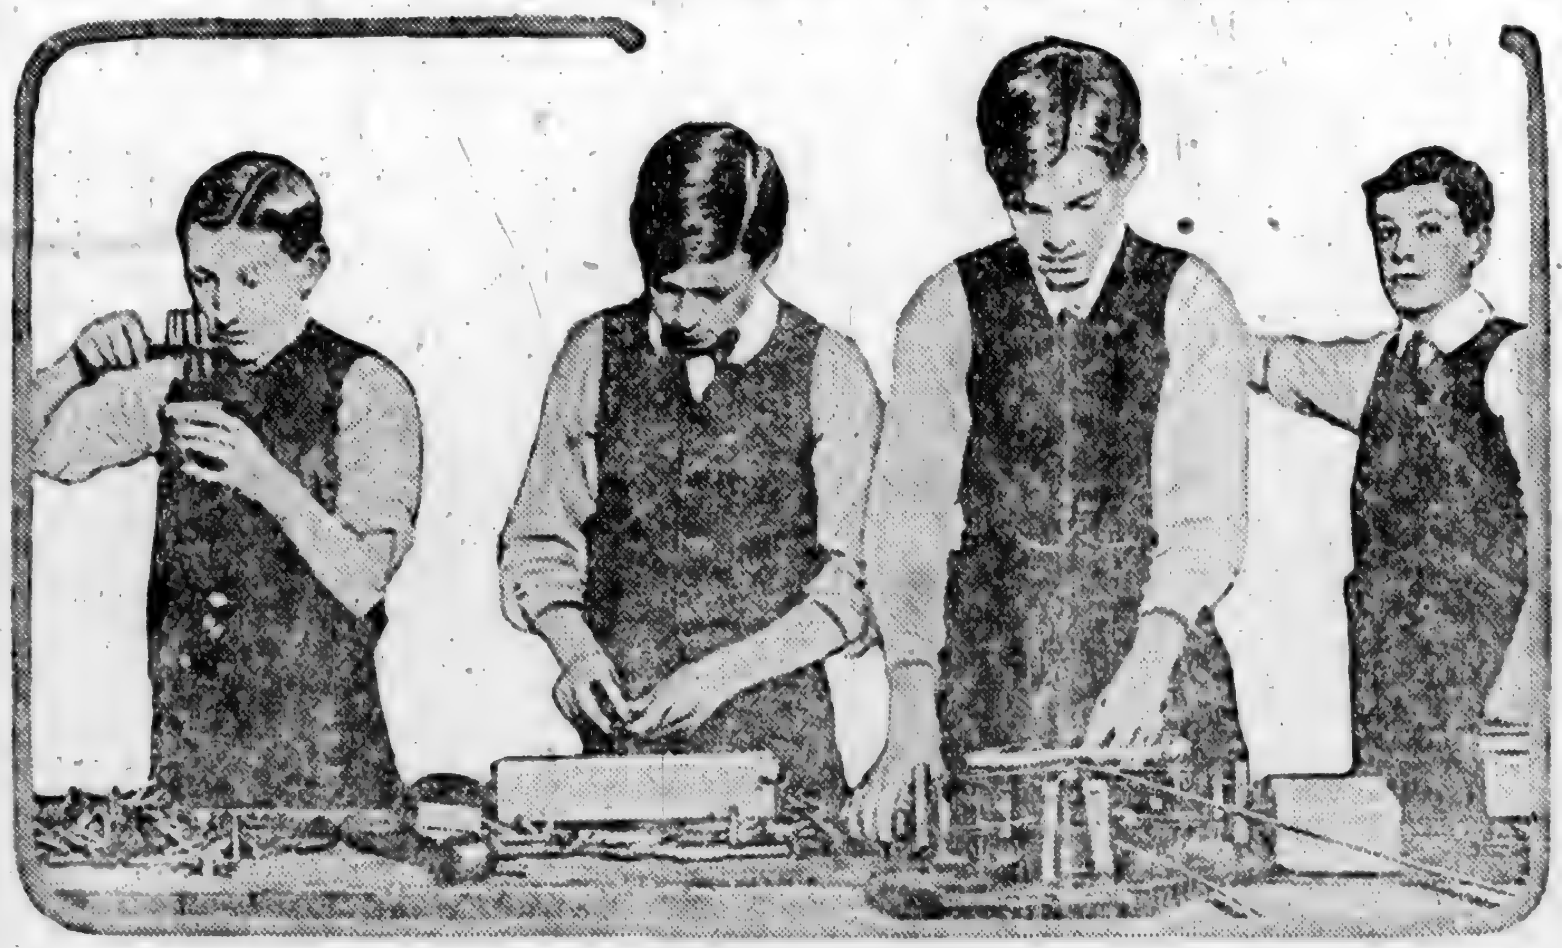
YOU SHOULD SEE OUR

Coats, Skirts, Waists, Dress Goods, Silks, Gloves, Auto Accessiories, Shoes, Millinery, Notions, Hosiery. Underwear, Corsets, Blankets, Outings, Curtain Draperies, Aprons, House Dresses and a Grocery Stock Unsurpassed.

OCTOBER

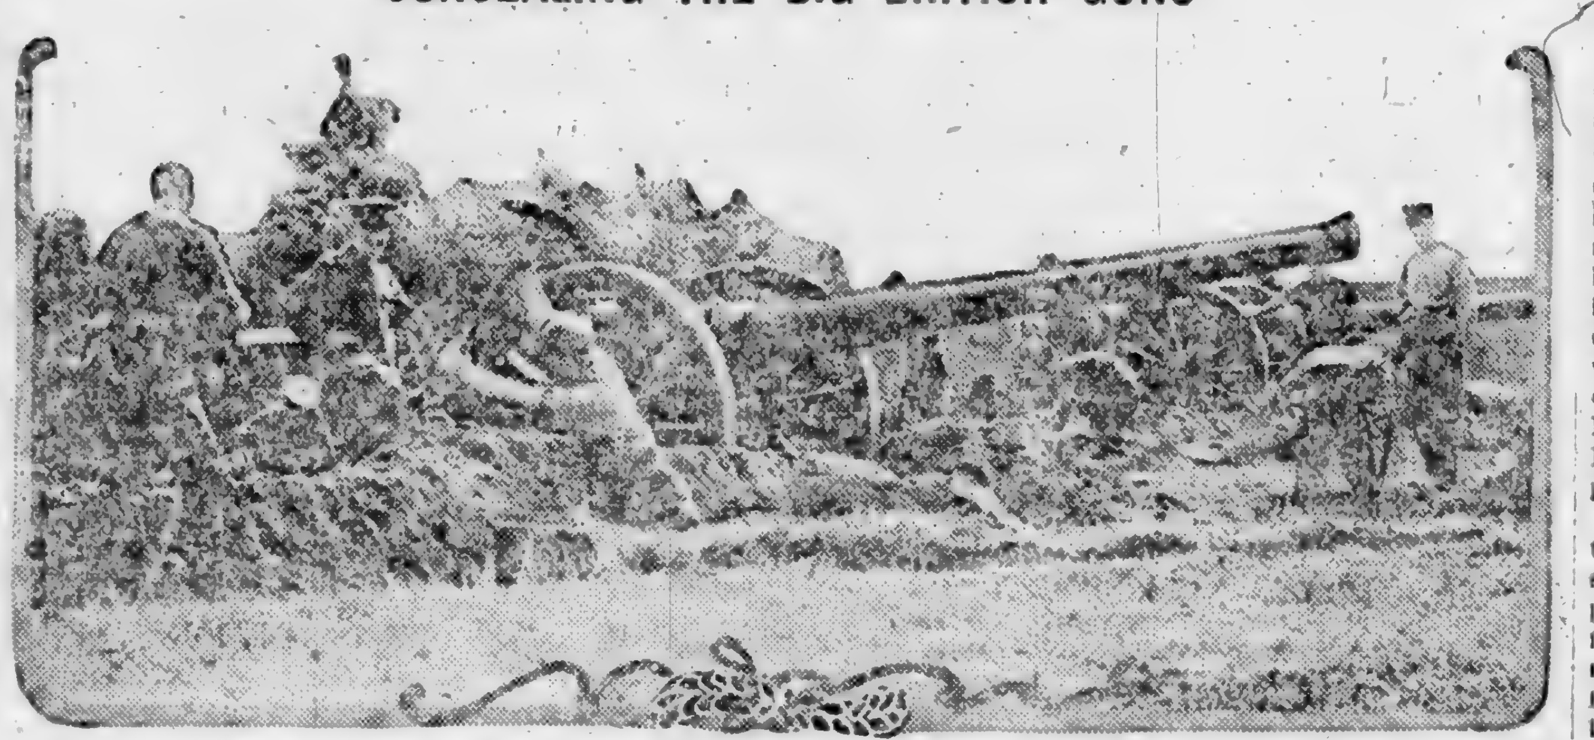
0332

TRADE SCHOOL BOYS WORK AT MUNITION-MAKING



The boys of the Plymouth Juvenile Trade school in England are hard at work at their benches in the shops, doing all they can to increase the output of munitions. They are even sacrificing their holidays in order that the soldiers fighting at the front may profit by every hour and minute, and that the supply of ammunition may not run low. The photograph shows a group of the boys making shell cases.

CONCEALING THE BIG BRITISH GUNS



British big guns are hammering the Germans with the heaviest artillery fire in history. Photograph shows the breastwork being thrown up in front of the gun to keep it hidden. Often the guns are covered with the surrounding verdure to make it harmonize with the background, disguising it perfectly.

AN ACROBATIC FAREWELL

Cavalrymen of the District of Columbia National Guard entrained for the border recently with small anticipation of being shot by Mexicans, but sweethearts of the soldier boys took no chances. They were on hand long before the train pulled out and clung to their "steadies" as long as the soldier lads remained within reach. The lad pictured here shows the results of fine physical training in camp for the last four months.

LADY HAIG SHOWS RED CROSS SKILL

Lady Haig, wife of Sir Douglas Haig, British commander in chief, attended a fishing competition arranged for the benefit of 150 wounded soldiers. The photograph shows Lady Haig bandaging Private Borthwick's finger. Borthwick was the winner of the tournament. His finger was caught in a hook, and Lady Haig had an opportunity to display her aptitude for Red Cross Work.

MORNING BATH ON WESTERN FRONT

English troops on the western front having their morning bath in a tub made of timber and tarpaulin.

The Boy's Handicap.

Prof. A. S. Alexander declares that a defect in a horse's veins will take five generations of better breeding to correct. He makes the effect of heredity upon horses so plain that we find ourselves applying it to men .

Horse breeders have come to understand this terrible handicap in their efforts to obtain perfect specimens of animals, but parents have not taken the lesson to heart.

If a horse has a five-generation struggle to get even for one single mistake nature makes, how much more bitter the struggle of a boy to overcome the mistakes with the added ignorance of indifferent or criminal parents?

The effect of heredity upon the mental, physical and moral nature of boys is certainly worth as much study and interest as upon animals, but there is yet much to be done. Let us hope that when we have learned how to breed perfect horses we may turn our attention toward creating a better influence upon the lives of boys and sex.—C. M. Miller.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 22

PAUL'S DEFENSE BEFORE AGRIPPA.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 26 (vv. 1, 24-32).
GOLDEN TEXT—I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.—Acts 26:19.

It is possible to use the Bible either as a music box or a telephone. We should let it speak the words of the Lord Jesus to us and our pupils. This lesson occurred probably A. D. 59, perhaps in August, the day after last Sunday's lesson. This was the same hall where Agrippa had heard the people calling him a god (Acts 12). Paul, the center of all interest, is chained to his Roman guardians. The prisoner has been vehemently accused as one worthy of death and had appealed to Caesar, but Festus, not being well acquainted with Jewish laws and customs, could not make any definite charge against him before the Roman court. Hence he turns him over to Agrippa, who was well acquainted with matters of Jewish law.

I. Paul, the Preacher (vv. 1-23). This was one of the great occasions in the life of this great man. Paul was preaching to a king and a woman of great influence (a sermon which little changed their lives evidently), and also to the coming ages. This king and queen were wedded to their infamy. God had in mind on that day an audience in comparison with which that which Paul saw faded into oblivion. Notice his argument. (1) He begins with his own experience. In these verses there are over forty personal pronouns.

Men do not need so much light as they do need heat, and Paul was speaking out of the hot throbs of his personal experience. Paul stood before them a living miracle, an incarnate argument. We might tremble at the doctrine of the resurrection. He knew it was a marvelous thing that God should raise the dead, but that change had been wrought in him which was equivalent to the miracle of raising one from the grave.

Paul's plea was for the Roman as well as the Jew. Considering his personal testimony, he declares that he is a true Jew of the strictest sect (vv. 4-8), and as such he lived in the "hope of the promise" as predicted by Isaiah and Daniel. That promise has been fulfilled in Jesus, the crucified, who rose again from the dead, and Paul adds, "I have seen him, for which hope's sake, King Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews." (2) (vv. 9-15) Paul tells the audience that he, himself, was once a zealous persecutor of the Christians, more so than those who are now persecuting him, "being exceedingly mad against them." He then relates his Damascus journey and the conversation held on the road with the risen Lord.

The gospel Paul preached was to lead men into the kingdom of God that they might receive forgiveness of sins and an inheritance among those who were fitted for that inheritance, who were the sanctified. For this cause the Jews went about to kill him.

II. Agrippa, the Doubter (vv. 24-32). Five ways are suggested as to the reception of Paul's message. The high priest's way was to hate him and oppose. Felix's way was "go thy way this time. When I have a more convenient season I will call." Festus' way (vv. 24-26) was to charge Paul with madness. Much learning (literally, many writings) was turning him mad, making him a lunatic, a dreamer, one who lived in the atmosphere of wild imaginings. Paul's reply was not harsh. "Most noble Festus" (Am. R.) "I am not mad, but speak words of soberness," words of eternal life and spiritual life (of sound sense) that were true and earnest. Paul thereupon appeals to King Agrippa to confirm his statements (v. 2-6). The crazy man is he who lives for this world rather than for eternity. The devil has cheated many a man out of eternal life by the method which Festus followed. He has also cheated many a Christian out of the larger life in the same way. Paul's appeal to Agrippa (vv. 27-29) is very suggestive.

Some people believe that the contents of the prophecies are of no present day value, and some are trying to break their force. Some declare they cannot be true, yet these prophecies are the ones that declare that "Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God." The literal translation of Agrippa's answer is, "In a little thou persuadest me to be a Christian." It is said that Agrippa said this in sarcasm, but, like many another attempted jest, it revealed the real state of the heart.

Agrippa saw the cost of further consideration of the claims of Christ and was unwilling to pay the price (vv. 30-32). Thus Agrippa's soul was lost, and yet he was within one step of eternal life. Paul with great dignity took advantage of Agrippa's ambiguous expression, and said: "I would to God that whether with little or with much, not only thou but also all that hear me this day might become such as I am except (raising his fettered hands) these bonds." (Am. R.).

Paul was willing and glad to suffer anything for the sake of Jesus Christ his Lord (II Cor. 12-10).

"Yes, that is a complete telephone."

"But there is nothing to it but the receiver. Where is the mouthpiece?"

"Doesn't need one. That is the instrument over which I converse with my wife."

Kind of Him.

"Let me give you a piece of my mind, old boy."

"But won't it be wobbing you, deah boy?"

Ask for and Get
SKINNER'S
THE HIGHEST QUALITY
MACARONI
36 Page Recipe Book Free
SKINNER MFG. CO., OMAHA, U.S.A.
LARGEST MACARONI FACTORY IN AMERICA

W. L. DOUGLAS
"THE SHOE THAT HOLDS ITS SHAPE"
$3.00 $3.50 $4.00 $4.50 & $5.00 FOR MEN AND WOMEN
Save Money by Wearing W. L. Douglas shoes. For sale by over 9000 shoe dealers. The Best Known Shoes in the World.

W. L. Douglas name and the retail price is stamped on the bottom of all shoes at the factory. The value is guaranteed and the wearer protected against high prices for inferior shoes. The retail prices are the same everywhere. They cost no more in San Francisco than they do in New York. They are always worth the price paid for them.

The quality of W. L. Douglas product is guaranteed by more than 40 years experience in making fine shoes. The smart styles are the leaders in the Fashion Centres of America. They are made in a well-equipped factory at Brockton, Mass., by the highest paid, skilled shoemakers, under the direction and supervision of experienced men, all working with an honest determination to make the best shoes for the price that money can buy.

Ask your shoe dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes. If he cannot supply you with the kind you want, take no other make. Write for interesting booklet explaining how to get shoes of the highest standard of quality for the price, by return mail, postage free.

LOOK FOR W. L. Douglas name and the retail price stamped on the bottom.

W. L. DOUGLAS $4.00 SHOE
BEWARE OF SUBSTITUTES

Boys' Shoes
Best in the World
$3.00 $2.50 & $2.00

W. L. Douglas
President
W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton, Mass.

His Weather Eye?

Two ladies were hurrying down the street in Worcester in the rain, carrying their umbrellas low for protection. In turning a corner sharply the point of one umbrella struck a passerby in the forehead.

"Goodness!" gasped the woman, "I'll keep an eye out in the future."

"Goodness!" exclaimed the man, "you near had one out in the present!"

There are 2,580 daily papers in the United States with a combined daily circulation of 28,436,030 copies.

No Speculator.

"I see where a famous banker says he has never learned how to read a stock ticker."

"Fancy that!"

"No wonder he's one of the most highly respected financiers in the country. The impulse to trust a man like that with your hard earned money must be almost irresistible."

Disappointment feeds development in earnest souls.

United States has 380 piano factories.

Buy materials that last
Certain-teed
Roofing
Fully guaranteed —best responsibility
For sale by dealers everywhere at reasonable prices
General Roofing Manufacturing Company
World's largest manufacturers of Roofing and Building Papers
New York City Chicago Philadelphia St. Louis Boston Cleveland Pittsburgh Detroit San Francisco Cincinnati New Orleans Los Angeles Minneapolis Kansas City Seattle Indianapolis Atlanta Richmond Houston London Sydney

Bright Outlook.

"How is the attendance at your college this year?"

"Splendid," replied the athletic sophomore. "We are getting scores of new fellows this year who don't weigh an ounce under 180 pounds."

Don't Neglect Kidneys

Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Prescription, Overcomes Kidney Trouble

It is now conceded by physicians that the kidneys should have more attention as they control the other organs to a remarkable degree and do a tremendous amount of work in removing the poisons and waste matter from the system by filtering the blood.

The kidneys should receive some assistance when needed. We take less exercise, drink less water and often eat more rich, heavy food, thereby forcing the kidneys to do more work than nature intended. Evidence of kidney trouble, such as lame back, annoying bladder troubles, smarting or burning, brick-dust or sediment, sallow complexion, rheumatism, maybe weak or irregular heart action, warns you that your kidneys require help immediately to avoid more serious trouble.

An ideal herbal compound that has had most remarkable success as a kidney and bladder remedy is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. There is nothing else like it. It is Dr. Kilmer's prescription used in private practice and it is sure to benefit you. Get a bottle from your druggist.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Adv.

The Gentle Sex.

Aimee—I hear that Hazel is trying to get into business.

Mary—So? What kind of business?

Aimee—Everybody's.

New Kite Balloon.

A military kite balloon, observed by thousands of persons, landed near Washington Court House, O., after a trip from Akron, O., a distance of about 120 miles. The balloon was piloted by C. H. Roth and C. A. Wollen of Akron, and made the trip in three hours and 45 minutes.

The balloon was shaped like a large cigar, but carried no motive power. It was guided by means of planes, and the trip was made for the purpose of testing the steering, elevating and lowering apparatus.

The pilots said that it was the first time that such a trip in a balloon so equipped had been attempted in this country, and that the idea is a new and undeveloped one in Europe. They said that the fast time and perfect control proved the value of the craft.

The balloon was shot at over a farm in Green county, but the machine rose out of range.

Most particular women use Red Cross Ball Blue. American made. Sure to please. At all good grocers. Adv.

Too Much Excitement.

"You say your cook has quit?"

"Yes."

"What was the trouble?"

"She wanted Saturdays off."

"You might have conceded that much."

"I was willing, but it often required two or three days for her to recuperate."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Siam in last fiscal year imported $1,135,883 worth of goods from the United States.

If you have anything to say to a mule, say it to his face.

Thrift is better than an annuity.

WINCHESTER
HUNTING RIFLES
When you look over the sights of your rifle and see an animal like this silhouetted against the background, you like to feel certain that your equipment is equal to the occasion. The majority of successful hunters use Winchester Rifles, which shows how they are esteemed. They are made in various styles and calibers and ARE SUITABLE FOR ALL KINDS OF HUNTING

OCTOBER

0333

Worries Bring Aches

Life today brings many worries and worrying brings on kidney troubles, so the doctors say. Kidney weakness reveals itself in backache, pains when stooping or lifting, dizzy headaches and urinary disorders. Be cheerful. Stop worrying. And, to strengthen weak kidneys, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the kidney remedy that is used and recommended the world over.

An Ohio Case

Mrs. Elnora Lutz, 502 N. Prospect St., Marion, Ohio, says: "For fifteen years I had spells of kidney complaint and often had to give up. The pain across my right kidney was almost unbearable, my back ached and my feet swelled badly. My appetite was poor too, and I lost thirty pounds in weight. Doan's Kidney Pills rid me of all these troubles and made me feel like a different woman. I regained my weight, too."

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Every Woman Wants

Paxtine

ANTISEPTIC POWDER

FOR PERSONAL HYGIENE

Dissolved in water for douches stops pelvic catarrh, ulceration and inflammation. Recommended by Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. for ten years. A healing wonder for nasal catarrh, sore throat and sore eyes. Economical. Has extraordinary cleaning and germicidal power. Sample Free. 50c. all druggists, or postpaid by mail. The Paxton Toilet Company, Boston, Mass.

Mail Us Your

KODAK

Films for Finishing

We pay return postage.

M. L. JONES, FORT WAYNE, IND.

FIFTY FARMS for sale, ranging from 40 to 600 acres. Priced from $20 to $40 per acre. Productive, level, cheap, in Northeast Oklahoma. For information, write J. R. Caudle, Collinsville, Okla.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs. Die outdoors. 15c and 25c.

Uncle Sam's Chemists.

Despite the monumental work of such government experts as Doctor Rittmann, the discoverer of a new gasoline process; Dr. Harvey Wiley of pure food fame, and the whole corps engaged in fertilizer experiments, public opinion will not give credit for any good thing to Uncle Sam's chemists. After making a low cost record for producing smokeless powder at Pickatinny arsenal and producing "dannite"—our famous secret "high explosive 'D'"—the workers in explosives have succeeded in producing a flashless powder. The great heat developed in smokeless powder detonations causes flying particles to become incandescent, producing a flash, but this new explosive produces only a pear-shaped iridescent flow at the muzzle, invisible at two miles. At night, a mask as high as a mounted man (technically known as "mounted defilade") will conceal the glow; the "defilade" required at night for our present explosive is not exactly known, but artillery officers have been known to declare, pessimistically, that a mile would be none too high.

Gossipy Romance.

"How did she come to marry that fortune hunter?"

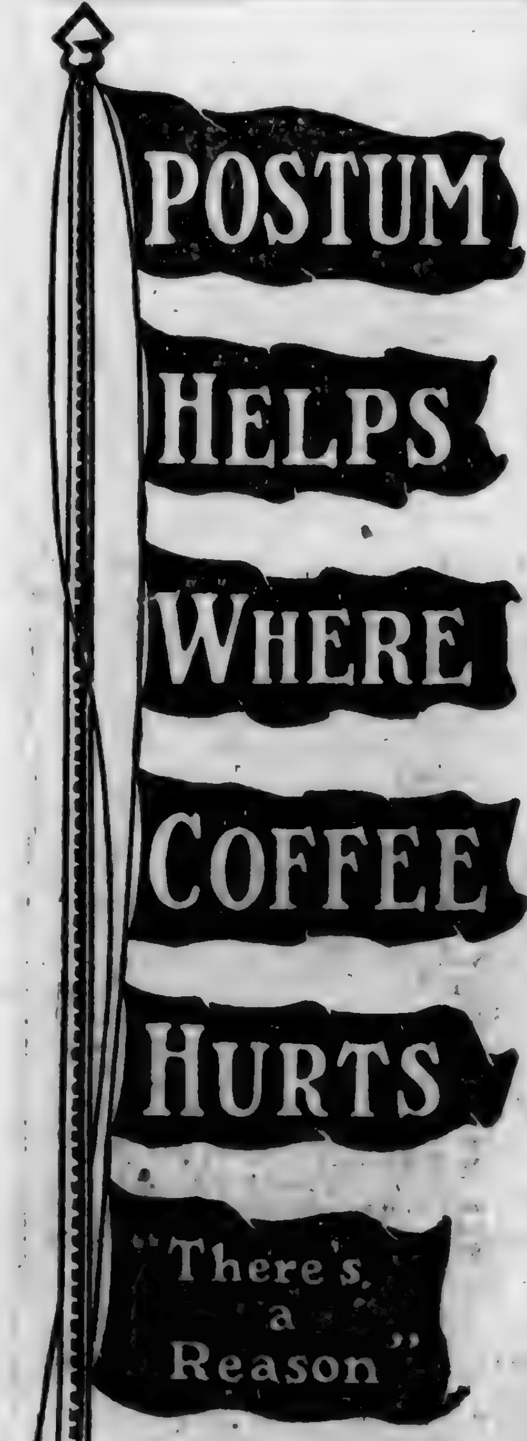
"He flattered her," replied Miss Cayenne. "She kept fishing for compliments until she caught a shark."

Heard in an Office.

"Blank complains of feeling sick."

"Yes; he smoked a cigar from the wrong pocket."—Boston Transcript.

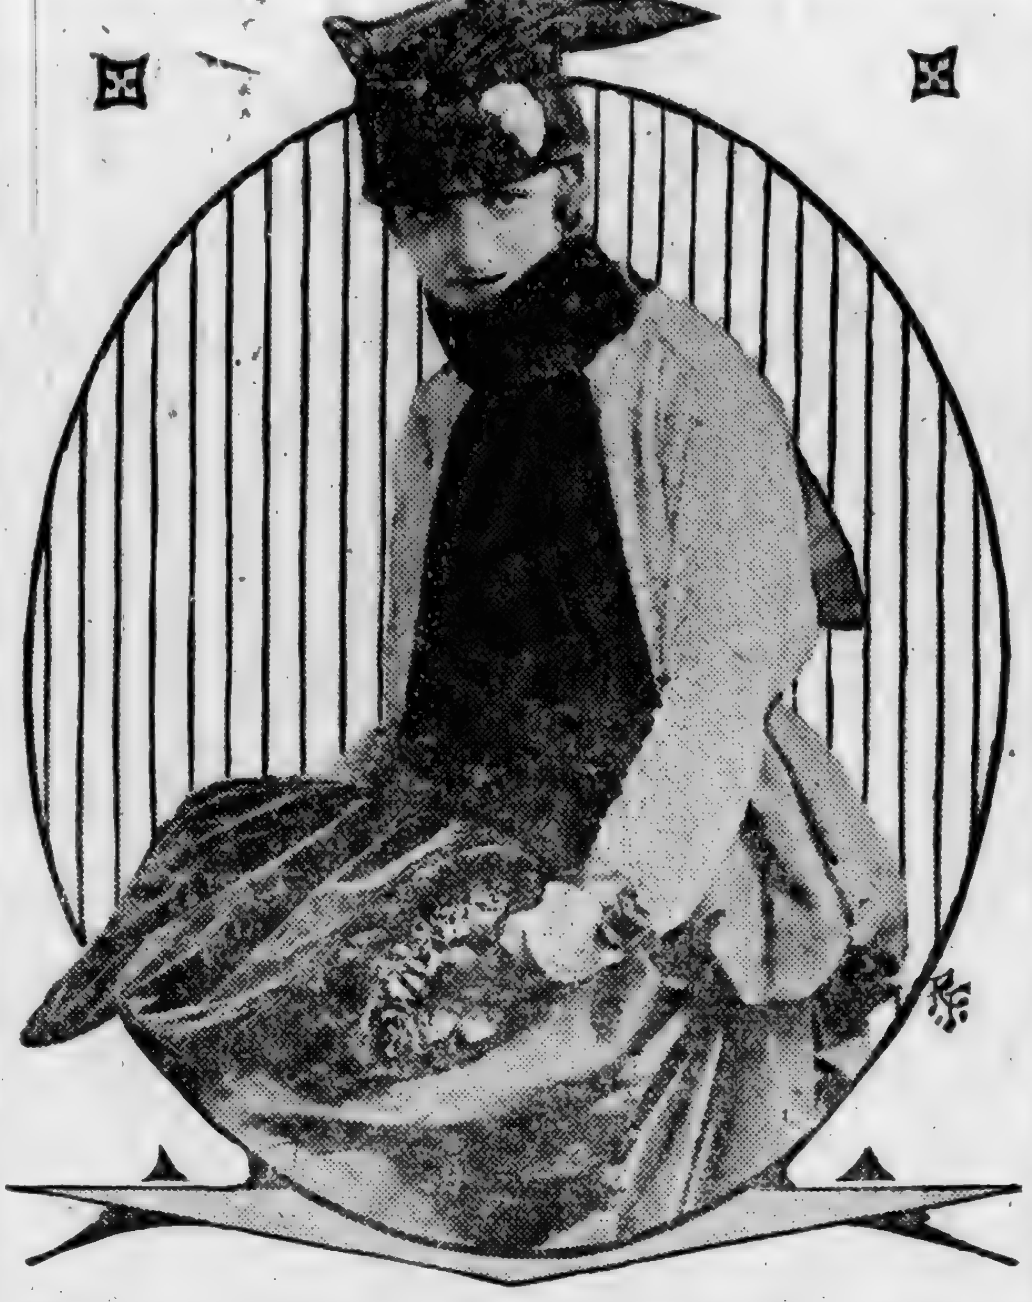
Labor overcometh all things.



POSTUM HELPS WHERE COFFEE HURTS

"There's a Reason"

Matched Sets of Velvet and Fur



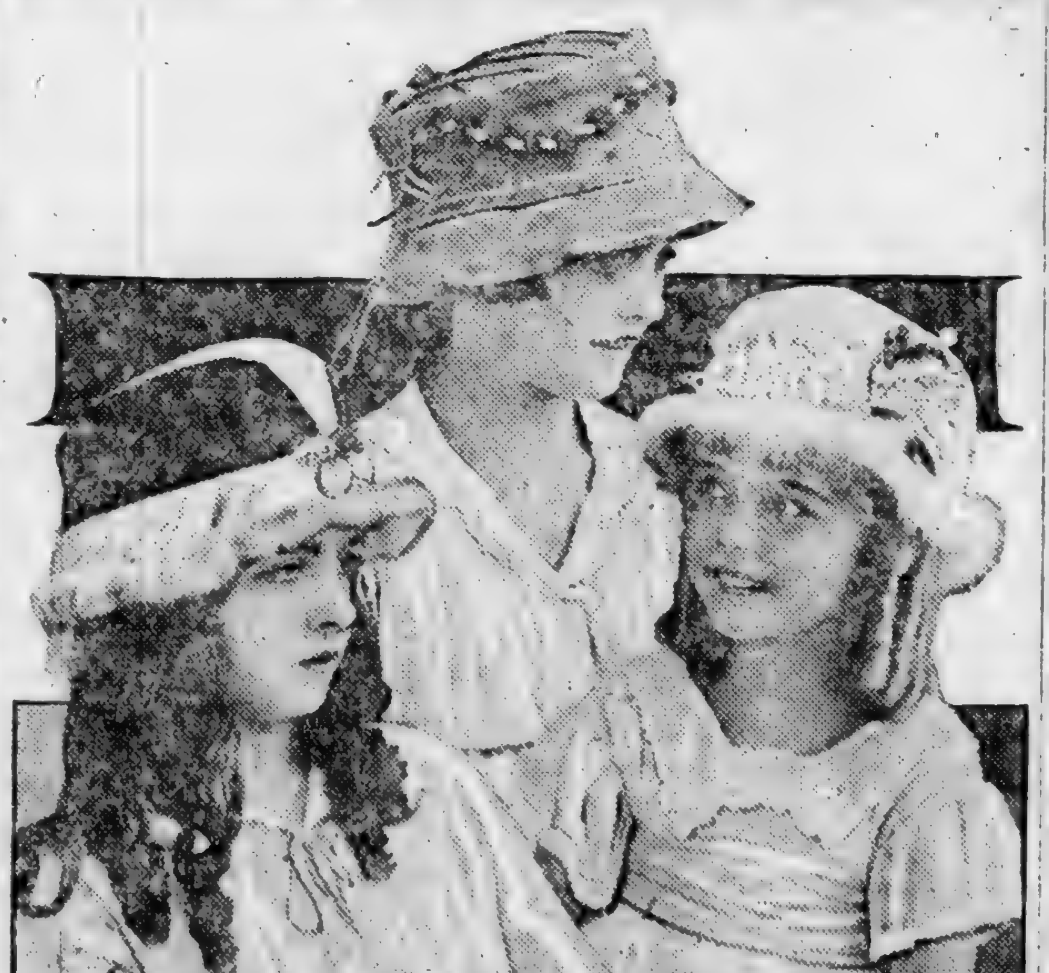
Every season presents us with matched millinery sets and usually they are combinations of velvet and fur. The neckpiece, muff and hat to match will set off the plainest of frocks or suits with an elegance equal to almost any requirement for afternoon wear. In the set shown in the picture mole-colored velvet and moleskin fur are put together with a great deal of cleverness and originality.

Plain bands of moleskin and long tabs of velvet lined with satin form the hat, the muff and the neckpiece. The tabs are lengths of velvet cut into shallow points at one end. For the neckpiece a band of moleskin forms the standing collar and a velvet tab is gathered to it at the front and back. The turban has a band of moleskin about the coronet and one of the velvet tabs (wired along the sides) draped over the crown. It is decorated with a pretty little cockade of silver which is set flat against the coronet.

The flat muff is covered with velvet and bordered with fur at each side. A velvet tab is shirred with several parallel rows of shirring, along one end where it is sewed to the muff. The addition of the tab to the muff brings it into the scheme of the set but serves no other purpose.

Turbans, or small hats, with cape collars and muffs to match, are made of all the shorthaired furs. Hudson seal, Alaska seal, ermine, kolinsky squirrel, and, above all, moleskin serve for high enveloping collars and short fanciful capes. These furs, bought in "plates" or bandings, are not hard to handle, and the handsome small matched set is not too difficult for the home dressmaker.

Dressy Headdress for Little Girls



Tailored hats, sports hats, and plain hats, for every-day wear, start the season in September, but with October comes the time when all members of the family rejoice in the acquisition of dressy millinery. The milliner is overwhelmed with orders, for everyone, from grandma to the littlest sister, wants a pretty hat and is in a hurry for it. The milliner's worries are lessened if her customers come in with some definite idea in mind and are not all at sea as to what they really want.

Here are three pretty hats for little misses, which may help out in making a choice. They are all simple, childish designs, and they are the last word in dress headwear for little folks. At the left a dignified lady of eleven wears a hat with a crown of black velvet. Its droopy brim is covered with blue satin ribbon gathered along the edges. The brim facing is of blue satin also, and the brim edge is bound with a soft fur which looks just enough like chinchilla to be called by its name. A piece of the satin ribbon is laid over the crown and caught at the front with a cluster of leaves and little flowers. It ends at the back with a bow having hanging loops and ends.

At the right the pretty maid of five is pleased over the possession of a white velvet hat edged with white fur. It is brightened with a rosette of ribbon and a few small flowers at the left side.

The roguish girl of five, at the top of the group, wears a demure hat of gray velvet with a flat velvet bow at the back. It is trimmed with a novel ornament like a strand of fuzzy silk beads on a chenille string.

For very little girls there are bonnets of white fur, worn with white fur coats and the tiniest muffs. It is a fad of the season to make the coat, hat, and little muff all of the same material. Wool velours, Bolivia cloth, velvet and other popular materials are used, and smocking or shirring are effective in them.

Julia Bottomley

Widely Known as Expert on Fashions

Julia Bottomley is recognized as one of the best informed women's fashion writers in the United States. She knows exactly the needs and desires of women in the small town and country, for not many years ago she conducted a dressmaking and millinery shop in a little city in Colorado. And the articles she prepares for us are written with a view to meeting the conservative ideas of the ladies of our community. The tawdry and extravagant are taboo with her. Leading wholesale and retail dealers and manufacturers of women's apparel recognize in Mrs. Bottomley an authority and the editor of the Ladies' Home Journal has consulted her frequently. She is at present associate editor of one monthly fashion periodical, is a regular contributor to another and is fashion editor for an important newspaper syndicate. Before the war Mrs. Bottomley went annually to the Paris fashion center, and since then has kept in touch by personal correspondence. We publish these articles by special arrangement.

Taffeta is always a staple silk, as far as fashion is cocerned.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY THE AUTHOR

MAN IN THE MOON.

"I want to tell you," commenced Daddy, "a Story about the Man in the Moon."

"Oh, yes," said Nancy. "I haven't heard a Story about him for ever so long."

"That's true," agreed Nick. "We haven't heard about old Mr. Moon for so long that we'd almost forgotten about him."

"I think he thought he was being forgotten about himself," said Daddy. "About a week ago when it was quite Dark—though Night hadn't quite come, a number of the Fairies were Playing and Dancing about in Fairyland.

"'Let's Sing a Song,' said the Fairy Princess Twilight Bell.

"'What shall we Sing about?' asked the Fairy Princess Joy.

"'Oh, I know,' said Fairy Ybab.

"'What?' they all asked.

"'Let's Sing a Song of Good-bye to the Daytime, and of Welcome to the Nighttime, and tell the Daytime to come back again at Dawn.'

"'All right,' said the Fairies, and they began Singing a Song which every time ended with 'Good-bye Daytime. Welcome Nighttime.'

"And some of the Shadows and Clouds looked so gay and bright that the Fairies felt sure that the Cloud Fairies and Shadows that play with the Fairies had heard.

"'Well, I never,' said a Voice from behind a tall Tree.

"'What can that be?' asked one of the Fairies.

"'I knew it, I knew it,' said the Voice. 'They haven't noticed me for such a long time that they've forgotten my Voice. Here they are Singing a Song of Good-Bye to the Daytime and of Welcome to the Nighttime and they don't say a word about me. It's pretty hard lines on an old fellow.'

"'Oh, do let us see you,' said the Fairy Princess Twilight Bell.

"'Oh yes,' said the Fairy Princess Joy.

"And Ybab in her lovely fairylike voice said, 'Oh yes, let us see who you are.'

"And then from around the tall tree peeped the Old Man in the Moon.

"'Oh Mr. Moon,' they called. 'To think that we didn't recognize your Voice. Have you a Cold?'

"Oh, Mr. Moon!" They Called.

"'A Cold? Ha, ha, ha,' he Laughed. 'A Cold?' And then he Laughed some more, and he grinned so hard that the Fairies wished they could see behind him, for they felt sure his grin must be going all the way around.

"'The very idea of the Man in the Moon with a Cold! Did anyone ever hear of such a thing? No, no, no!' And he answered his own question before anyone had a chance to say a word.

"'Well, we're glad you haven't a Cold in the Head, or in the Throat, or a hoarse Voice. But at first we didn't know who was speaking,' said Ybab. 'You must have changed your Voice just on purpose.'

"'You think,' said Mr. Moon, 'that I can change my Voice to a half Voice or a quarter Voice, or a crescent Voice,' he Laughed, 'just as I change my Shape to a quarter Moon, or a half Moon or a crescent Moon. Well, you're all wrong, all of you!'

"'Oh don't Scold us,' said Ybab. 'But tell us what a crescent Voice is.'

"'I don't know,' said Mr. Moon.

"'But you just spoke about it,' said Ybab.

"'I said,' continued Mr. Moon, 'that you probably thought I could change and have a crescent Voice. I know nothing about Voices. You started the subject!' And Mr. Moon really sounded quite Angry.

"'Well, then let's drop the subject,' said Ybab. 'For none of us know what we're talking about, and we're quarreling very stupidly. Besides, we haven't forgotten about you. We've just been busy—there have been so many things to do in Fairyland lately.'

"'Well,' said Mr. Moon, 'can you have a good evening's Frolic tonight?'

"'Yes,' shouted all the Fairies.

"'Goodie,' said Mr. Moon—'and I'll give the light, and also send the Moonlight Shadows to play too!'

"'Hurrah!' shouted the Fairies, 'and you're not Cross with us any more, are you, Mr. Moon?'

"'I couldn't be Cross with the Fairies,' he said, and gave one of his broadest smiles."

Boys' Beef Clubs.

Boys' baby beef clubs have been organized in many of the states. This movement originated in Texas where the original club has a membership of more than 1,200.

Arsenic Absorbed by Living Hair.

New light has been thrown on the legal side of arsenic poisoning, says the Scientific American. It has been found that arsenic compounds are absorbed by the hair of living persons, though not absorbed after death. In the hair of man arsenic has been known to reach a concentration of one to five parts in 100,000. The deposit takes place in the hair after it has been absorbed by the abdominal organs—liver and kidneys in particular.

Therefore, in cases of acute, quick poisoning a chemical analysis of the hair would show no arsenic, while it would be found in the liver and kidneys. On the other hand, if slow arsenic poisoning were suspected, analysis would show arsenic in the hair, but not in the liver and kidneys, and it could be safely assumed that the poisoning was not recent. The legal value of such evidence is apparent.

STOP ITCHING INSTANTLY

With Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Nothing Better. Trial Free.

Bathe the affected part with Cuticura Soap and apply the Ointment. For eczemas, rashes, irritations, pimples, dandruff and sore hands Cuticura Soap and Ointment are supreme. Nothing better, cleaner or purer than these super-creamy emollients at any price.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

Farmers Amazed at City Squirrels.

No other one thing so generally attracted the attention of the farmers from distant parts of the state while they were in Columbus attending the state fair as the squirrels they saw in the parks, lawns and even leaping from tree to tree in the streets. Not that they do not see squirrels at home in their native woods, but there they see them wild, darting for their holes the moment they note the approach of man. To see squirrels careless of the presence of people, and even soliciting food from them seemed a strange condition.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

SUFFERED FOR FOUR YEARS.

Mr. J. M. Sinclair, of Olivehill, Tenn., writes: "I strained my back, which weakened my kidneys and caused an awful bad backache and inflammation of the bladder. Later I became so much worse that I consulted a doctor, who said that I had Diabetes and that my heart was affected. I suffered for four years and was in a nervous state and very much depressed. The doctor's medicine didn't help me, so I decided to try Dodds Kidney Pills, and I cannot say enough to express my relief and thankfulness, as they cured me. Diamond Dinner Pills cured me of Constipation."

Mr. J. M. Sinclair.

Dodds Kidney Pills, 50c. per box at your dealer or Dodds Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Dodds Dyspepsia Tablets for Indigestion have been proved. 50c. per box.—Adv.

Couldn't Be Natural.

Fluff—I don't like that fellow. He looks as if he'd resort to almost anything to do you.

Ruff—You have him. Why, he's the kind of a chap that can't even swim except underhand.—Town Topics.

Always use Red Cross Ball Blue. Delights the laundress. At all good grocers. Adv.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Railway company has raised the wages of 9,216 employees by $650,000 annually.

YOUNG WOMEN MAY AVOID PAIN

Need Only Trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, says Mrs. Kurtzweg.

Buffalo, N.Y.—"My daughter, whose picture is herewith, was much troubled with pains in her back and sides every month and they would sometimes be so bad that it would seem like acute inflammation of some organ. She read your advertisement in the newspapers and tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She praises it highly as she has been relieved of all these pains by its use. All mothers should know of this remedy, and all young girls who suffer should try it."—Mrs. MATILDA KURTZWEG, 529 High St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

If you know of any young woman who is sick and needs helpful advice, ask her to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Only women will receive her letter, and it will be held in strictest confidence.

Your Liver Is Clogged Up

That's Why You're Tired—Out of Sorts —Have No Appetite.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS will put you right in a few days.

They do their duty.

Cure Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion and Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

SMALL PILL, SMALL DOSE, SMALL PRICE

Genuine must bear Signature

Brent Good

"URIC ACID NEVER CAUSED RHEUMATISM"

I WANT to prove it to your satisfaction. If you have Rheumatism or Neuritis, acute or chronic—no matter what your condition—write today for my FREE BOOK on "RHEUMATISM Its Cause and Cure." Thousands call it "The most wonderful book ever written." Don't send a stamp—it's ABSOLUTELY FREE.

JESSE A. CASE

Dept. C. W. Brockton, Mass.

COLD IN HEAD CATARRH [illegible] DR. MARSHALL'S CATARRH SNUFF 25 [illegible]

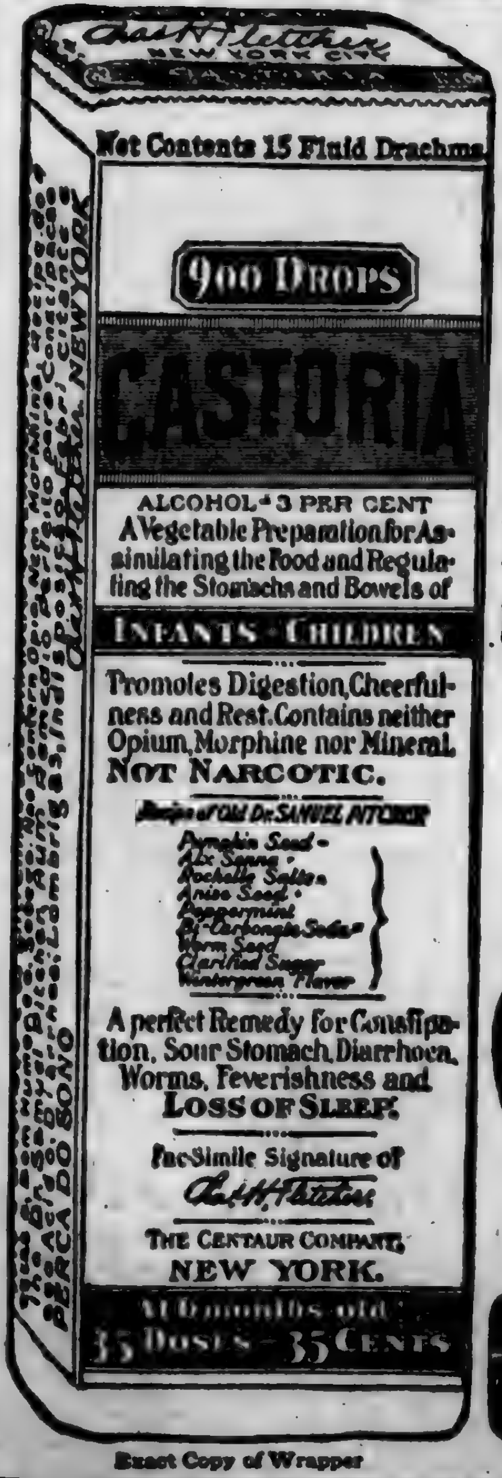
PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray or Faded Hair. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

PATENTS Watson E. Coleman, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D.C. Advice and books free. Rates reasonable. Highest references. Best services.

FOR SALE By owner, 183 and 115 acre farms good land desirable location. Address JACKSON, 219 E. Judd St., Woodstock, Ill.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 43–1916.



Chas. H. Fletcher NEW YORK CITY

Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms

900 DROPS

CASTORIA

ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT

A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of

INFANTS CHILDREN

Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.

A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.

FacSimile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK.

35 DOSES — 35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

WILLIAM JENNINGS

BRYAN

And United States Senator, ATLEE POMERENE will be at Hicksville, Ohio, MONDAY, OCT. 23, at 8:00 P. M., out doors if the weather permits, otherwise in the Huber Opera House. Hart's Famous Band of Hicksville, will supply plenty of the very best music.

NEWVILLE

Slide in the $1.00. Do it now.

See Wallace for Building Material at St. Joe Saw Mill.

Henry Herrick has gone on a western trip in the interest of his property.

Mr. Foster and wife, north of town, were the Sunday guests of Sam Stafford and wife.

Mrs. Jane Crum was quite ill the latter part of last week. Dr. Brunson is the attending physician.

A large crowd attended the Sam Wyatt Sale, Thursday. The U. B. Ladies Aid cleared $15 serving lunch.

Dean Bechtol, of Garrett, is the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Mell Whitherst and family, at this writing.

Mrs. J. H. Benner spent last week with her daughter, Mrs. Emery Welker and family, near Ney, Ohio

W. H. Rittenhouse, pastor of the U. B. Church at Butler, preached a good sermon in the pulpit of the Newville U. B. Church, Sunday morning

George Layman and family, of Concord, were Sunday guests of Ben Woodring and wife. In the afternoon they called on Orla Woodrings'.

Ben Woodring and his son Orla, exchanged homes, Ben moving to town and Orla moving to the farm. This makes twice this exchange has been made.

Mrs. Effie Burrows, of Warren, Ind., is the guest of her parents, Elmer Wyatt and wife, and other relatives. Her husband, Thomas Burrows, has lost his eye sight and is in the hospital for treatment.

School shoes are arriving now for those youngters of yours. Get them at Beams & Co. store.

Prepared.

We are now prepared with a full and complete stock of Fall and Winter Merchandise. Men's Women's and Children's Underwear—Gloves and Mittens—Hats and Caps. Everything in Dry Goods—Notions—Men's and Women's Furnishings-Our Shoe Department is a busy place—Big stock to select from—Anything and everything in Rubber Footwear for the entire family—Men's and Boy's Overcoats—Mackinaw Coats, Rain Coats, Overalls, Work Coats and Shirts -Bed Blankets-Comforts-Sweater Coats—Women's and Children's ready-to-wear house dresses—5 and 10 cent Goods—Immense stock of Hosiery—Everything in Groceries—Salt by the barrel—Stoneware—Big lot of Men's Pants and Seperate Coats from suits to close out cheap—Cotton batts from 10 to 75 cts.—Carpets—Rugs—Linoleum and Floor Oil Cloth—Most everything in the way of General Merchandise—Husking Gloves and Husking Pegs—Pay the highest market price for Eggs.

JONES

The Big 4 Store

St. Joe, Ind.

FARMS.

For Sale and Exchange

120 acres in Allen County, 3 miles from Harlan; good clay loam and black soil, lays level; fair fences; large house and barn; 20 acres of good timber, has been estimated at $1,500. You, that want a real bargain, look after this one at the small price of $77.50 Per Acre.

60 Acres:—7 miles from Ft. Wayne, on St. Joe road. Fine level black land, part sand; good house, just like new; good barn and out buildings. 20 acres young orchard, which will be worth a nice bunch of money in time, as the nearness to the city. Might consider St. Joe residence as part pay. Price only $7,500.

65 Acres:—6 miles from Auburn. First class land; fair buildings; spring water for stock; an abundance of gravel for roads and concrete. Will sell or trade on larger farm.

40 Acres:—5 1-2 miles from Auburn. One of the nicest homes in the County. Good house with furnace and lighting plant; good barn and out buildings. First class land and well fenced. Might consider Auburn residence as part pay.

Deals of nearly all kinds at hand.

Address J. Beninghoff

Spencerville, Indiana.

PUBLIC SALE.

The undersigned will sell at Public Sale at his residence, located 1½ miles west of ST. JOE, ½ mile west of Wabash Depot at St Joe, and 1 mile south and ½ mile east of CONCORD, on

Monday, Oct. 23

Beginning at 10 a. m., the following:

10 Head Horses:

